<sup>21</sup> And the Lord sent his angel, the which killed each strong man and warrior, and the prince of the host of the king of Assyrians; and he/Sen-nacherib turned again with shame to his land. And when he had entered into the house of his god, the sons, which went out of his womb, killed him there with sword.

<sup>22</sup> And the Lord saved Hezekiah, and the dwellers of Jerusalem, from the hand of Sennacherib, king of Assyrians, and from the hand of all men; and he gave to them rest by compass.

<sup>23</sup> Also many men brought offerings and sacrifices to the Lord into Jeru-salem, and gifts to Hezekiah, king of Judah; which was enhanced after these things before all folks.

<sup>24</sup> In those days Hezekiah was sick unto the death, and he prayed the Lord; and he heard him, and gave to him a sign;

<sup>25</sup> but he yielded not thankings to the Lord after the benefits which he had taken, for his heart was raised into pride; and wrath of the Lord was made against him, and against Judah, and against Jerusalem.

<sup>26</sup> And he was meeked afterward, for-thy that his heart was raised; both he was meeked, and the dwellers of Jerusalem; and therefore the wrath of the Lord came not upon them in the days of Hezekiah.

<sup>27</sup> And Hezekiah was rich, and full noble, and he gathered to himself full many treasures of silver, and of gold, and of precious stones, and of sweet smelling spices, and of armours of all kind, and of vessels of great price.

<sup>28</sup> Also he builded large houses of wheat, [and] of wine, and of oil, and cratches of all beasts, and folds to sheep,

<sup>29</sup> and he builded six cities. And he had unnumberable flocks of sheep and of great beasts; for the Lord had given to him full much chattel [or substance].

<sup>30</sup> That is Hezekiah, that stopped the higher well of the waters of Gihon, and he turned those [or them] away under the earth at the west side of the city of David; in all his works he did by prosperity, whatever thing he would do.

<sup>31</sup> Nevertheless in the message of the princes of Babylon, that were sent to him for to ask of the great wonder, that befelled on the land, God forsook him, that he were assayed, and that all things were known that were in his heart.

<sup>32</sup> Soothly the residue of [the] words of Hezekiah, and of his mercies, be written in the prophecy of Isaiah, the prophet, the son of Amoz, and in the book of kings of Judah and of Israel.

CHAPTER 33

<sup>1</sup> Manasseh was of twelve years, when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem five and fifty years.

<sup>2</sup> And he did evil before the Lord after the abominations of heathen men, whom the Lord destroyed before the sons of Israel.

<sup>3</sup> And he turned, and restored the high places, which Hezekiah, his father, had destroyed. And he builded altars to Baalim, and made woods, and worshipped all the knighthood of heaven, and praised it.

<sup>4</sup> And he builded altars in the house of the Lord, of which the Lord had said, My name shall be in Jeru-salem without end.

<sup>5</sup> Soothly he builded those altars to all the knighthood of heaven in the two large places of the house of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And he made his sons to pass through the fire in the valley of Ben-hinnom; he kept dreams; he pursued [or followed] false divining by chit-tering of birds; and he served witch-crafts; and he had with him astrono-mers and enchanter, either tregetours, that deceived men's wits, and he wrought many evils before the Lord to stir him to wrath.

<sup>7</sup> And he set a graven and a molten sign in the house of the Lord, of which house God spake to David, and to Solomon, his son, and said, I shall set my name without end in this house, and in Jerusalem, which I chose of all the lineages of Israel;

<sup>8</sup> and I shall not make the foot of Israel to move from the land which I gave to their fathers, so only that they take heed to do those things that I have commanded to them, and all the law, and ceremonies, and dooms, by the hand of Moses.

<sup>9</sup> But Manasseh deceived the men of Judah, and the dwellers of Jerusalem, so that they did evil, more than all heathen men, which the Lord had destroyed from the face of the sons of Israel.

<sup>10</sup> And the Lord spake to him, and to his people; and they would not take heed.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore the Lord brought upon them the princes of the host of the king of Assyrians; and they took Manasseh, and bound him with chains, and stocks, and led him into Babylon.

<sup>12</sup> And after that he was anguished, he prayed the Lord his God, and did penance greatly before the God of his fathers.

<sup>13</sup> And he prayed God, and beseech-ed him intently; and God heard his prayer, and brought him again into Jerusalem into his realm; and then Manasseh knew, that the Lord himself is God alone.

<sup>14</sup> After these things he builded the wall without or outside the city of David, at the west side of Gihon, in the valley, from the entering of the gate of fishes, by compass unto Ophel; and he raised it up greatly; and he ordained princes of the host in all the strong cities of Judah.

<sup>15</sup> And he did away alien gods and simulacra from the house of the Lord; and he did away the altars, which he had made in the hill of the house of the Lord, and in Jerusalem, and he casted them away all without the city.

<sup>16</sup> Certainly he restored the altar of the Lord, and offered thereon slain sacrifices, and peaceable sacrifices, and praising; and he commanded Judah to serve the Lord God of Israel.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth the residue of [the] deeds of Manasseh, and his beseeching to his Lord God, and the words of [the] prophets, that spake to him in the name of the Lord God of Israel, be contained in the words of the kings of Israel.

<sup>19</sup> And his prayer, and the hearing that the Lord heard him, and all his sins, and all his despising, and also the places in which he builded high things, and made maumet woods and images, before that he did penance, these be written in the book of Hozai.

<sup>20</sup> And Manasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in his house; and Amon, his son, reigned for him.

<sup>21</sup> Amon was of two and twenty years, when he began to reign; and he reigned two years in Jerusalem.

<sup>22</sup> And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, as Manasseh, his father, had done; and he offered, and served to all the idols, which Manasseh had made.

<sup>23</sup> And he revered not the face of the Lord, as Manasseh, his father, revered; and he did much greater trespasses than his father did.

<sup>24</sup> And when his servants had sworn together against him, they killed him in his house.

<sup>25</sup> Soothly the residue multitude of the people, after that they had slain them that had slain Amon, ordained Josiah, his son, king for him.

CHAPTER 34

<sup>1</sup> Josiah was of eight years, when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem one and thirty years.

<sup>3</sup> And in the eighth year of the realm of his empire, when he was yet a boy, that is, sixteen years old, he began to seek the God of his father David; and in the twelfth year after that he began, he cleansed Judah and Jerusalem from high places, and woods, and simulacra, and graven images.

<sup>4</sup> And they destroyed before him the altars of Baalim, and they destroyed the simulacra, that were put above. Also he hewed down the maumet woods, and the graven images, and brake to small gobbets; and scattered abroad the small gobbets on the burials of them, that were wont to offer to those.

<sup>5</sup> Furthermore the king burnt the bones of priests upon the altars of idols, and he cleansed Judah and Jerusalem of idolatry.

<sup>6</sup> But also he destroyed all the idols in the cities of Manasseh, and of Ephraim, and of Simeon, unto Naphtali.

<sup>7</sup> And when he had scattered the altars, and had all-broken into gobbets the maumet woods, and the graven images, and had destroyed all [the] temples of idols from all the land of Israel, he turned again into Jerusalem.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore in the eighteenth year of his realm, when the land and the temple was cleansed now, he sent Shaphan, the son of Hilkiah, and Maaseiah, the prince of the city, and Joah, the son of Joahaz, his chan-cellar, that they should repair the house of the Lord his God.

<sup>9</sup> Which came to Hilkiah, the great priest; and when they had taken of him the money, that was brought into the house of the Lord, which money the deacons [or Levites] and porters had gathered of men of Manasseh, and of Ephraim, and of all the remnant men of Israel, and of Judah and of Benjamin, and of the dwellers of Jerusalem,

<sup>10</sup> they gave it into the hands of them that were sovereigns of the workmen in the house of the Lord, that they should restore the temple, and repair all the feeble things thereof.

<sup>11</sup> And they gave that money to the craftsmen and masons, for to buy stones hewed out of the quarries, and wood to the joinings of the buildings, and to the couplings of [the] houses, which the kings of Judah had destroyed.

<sup>12</sup> The which workmen did faithfully all things. And the sovereigns of workers were Jahath, and Obadiah, of the sons of Merari; and Zechariah, and Meshullam, of the sons of Kohath, which hastened the work; all were deacons [or Levites], knowing how to sing with organs.

<sup>13</sup> And over them that bare burdens to diverse uses were scribes, and masters of deacons [or Levites], and porters.

<sup>14</sup> And when they bare out the money, that was brought into the temple of the Lord, Hilkiah, the priest, found a book of the law of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

<sup>15</sup> And Hilkiah said to Shaphan, the writer [or scribe], I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord. And Hilkiah took it to Shaphan, <sup>16</sup> and he bare in the book to the king; and he told to him, and said, Lo! all things be fulfilled, or ended, which thou hast given into the hands of thy servants.

<sup>17</sup> And they have welled together the silver, which is found in the house of the Lord; and it is given to the sov-ereigns of the craftsmen, and those making diverse works;

<sup>18</sup> furthermore Hilkiah, the priest, took to me this book. And when he had rehearsed this book in the presence of the king,

<sup>19</sup> and when the king had heard the words of the law, he rent his clothes;

<sup>20</sup> and he commanded to Hilkiah, and to Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, and to Abdon, the son of Micah, and to Shaphan, the scribe, and to Asaiah, the servant of the king, and said,

<sup>21</sup> Go ye, and pray the Lord for me, and for the remnant of men of Israel and of Judah, on all the words of this book, that is found. For great venge-ance of the Lord hath dropped upon us, for our fathers kept not the words of the Lord, to do all things that be written in this book.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore Hilkiah, and they that were sent together from the king, went to Huldah, the prophetess, the wife of Shallum, the son of Tikvath, the son of Hasrah, keeper of the king's clothes, the which Huldah dwelled in Jeru-salem in the second ward; and they spake to her the words, which we told before.

<sup>23</sup> And she answered to them, The Lord God of Israel saith these things, Say ye to the man, that sent you to me,

<sup>24</sup> The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall bring evils upon this place, and upon the dwellers thereof, and all the cursings that be written in this book, that they have read before the king of Judah.

<sup>25</sup> For they have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to alien gods, for to stir me to wrathfulness in all the works of their hands; therefore my strong vengeance shall drop upon this place, and it shall not be quenched.

<sup>26</sup> But speak ye thus to the king of Judah, that sent you to pray the Lord, The Lord God of Israel saith these things, For thou heardest the words of the book,

<sup>27</sup> and thine heart thereby is made nesh, and thou art meeked in the sight of the Lord of these things which be said against this place, and against the dwellers of Jerusalem, and thou hast revered my face, and hast rent thy clothes, and hast wept before me; also I have heard thee, saith the Lord.

<sup>28</sup> For now I shall gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be borne into thy sepulchre in peace; and thine eyes shall not see all the evil, that is, none of all the evils, that I shall bring in upon this place, and upon the dwellers thereof. Then they told to the king all things, that Huldah had said.

<sup>30</sup> he went up into the house of the Lord, and there went up together with him all the men of Judah, and the dwellers of Jerusalem, priests, and deacons [or Levites], and all the people, from the least unto the most; to whose hearing in the house of the Lord, the king read all the words of the foresaid book.

<sup>31</sup> And he stood in his throne, and smote, or made, a bond of peace before the Lord, for to pursue or go after him, and to keep the command-ments, and the witnessings, and the justifying of him, in all his heart, and in all his soul; and to do those things which were written in that book, that he had read.

<sup>32</sup> And he charged greatly upon this thing all men, that were found in Jeru-salem and Benjamin; and the dwellers of Jerusalem did after the covenant of the Lord God of their fathers.

<sup>33</sup> Therefore Josiah did away all the abominations from all the countries of the sons of Israel; and made all men, that were left in Israel, to serve the Lord God; and in all the days of his life they went not away from the Lord God of their fathers.

CHAPTER 35

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth Josiah made pask to the Lord in Jerusalem, the which pask was offered in the fourteenth day of the first month;

<sup>2</sup> and he ordained priests in their offices; and commanded them for to serve in the house of the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> And he spake to the deacons [or Levites], at whose teaching all Israel was hallowed to the Lord, Set ye [or Putteth] the ark of the Lord in the saintuary of the temple, that Solomon, king of Israel, the son of David builded; for ye shall no more bear it about. But now serve ye the Lord your God, and his people Israel,

<sup>4</sup> and make you ready by your houses and meines, in the partings of each by himself, as David, king of Israel, commanded, and as Solomon, his son, ordained;

<sup>5</sup> and serve ye in the saintuary by the families and companies of deacons [or Levites],

<sup>6</sup> and be ye hallowed, and offer ye pask; also make ready your brethren, that they may do after the words, which the Lord spake by the hand of Moses.

<sup>7</sup> Furthermore Josiah gave to all the people, that was found there in the solemnity of pask, that is, to make the solemnity, lambs and kids of the flocks, and of residue sheep he gave thirty thousand, and of oxes [or oxen] three thousand; these things were given of the substance of the king.

<sup>8</sup> And his dukes offered those things which they avowed [or vowed] by their free will, as well to the people, as to priests and deacons [or Levites]. And Hilkiah, and Zechariah, and Jehiel, princes of the house of the Lord, gave to [the] priests, to make pask in com-mon, two thousand and six hundred sheep, and three hundred oxen.

<sup>9</sup> And Conaniah, and Shemaiah, and Nethaneel, and his brethren, and also Hashabiah, and Jeiel, and Jozabad, the princes of deacons [or Levites], gave to other deacons, to make [the] pask, five thousand of sheep, and five hundred oxen.

<sup>10</sup> And the service was made ready; and [the] priests stood in their office, and deacons [or Levites] in their companies, by the commandment of the king;

<sup>11</sup> and pask was offered. And [the] priests sprinkled their hands with blood, and deacons [or Levites] drew off the skins of sacrificed beasts,

<sup>12</sup> and they parted those sacrifices, for to give them by the houses and meines of all men that were come thither to make pask; and that those sacrifices should be offered to the Lord, as it is written in the book of Moses; and of oxen they did in like manner.

<sup>13</sup> And they roasted the pask lamb upon the fire, after that that is written in the law. And they seethed peace-able sacrifices in pans, and in caul-drons, and in pots, and in haste they dealt it to all the people;

<sup>14</sup> but they made ready afterward to themselves, and to priests; for the priests were occupied unto [the] night in the offering of burnt sacrifices and of the inner fatnesses. Wherefore the deacons [or Levites] made ready their part at the last to themselves, and to the priests, the sons of Aaron.

<sup>15</sup> And [the] singers, the sons of Asaph, stood in their order, by the commandment of David, and of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun, the prophets of the king; but the porters kept their office by each gate, so that they went not away from their service, soothly not in a point, that is, they were in no time absent from their office; wherefore and the deacons [or Levites], their brethren, made ready meats to them.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore all the religion of the Lord was fulfilled rightfully in that day, that they made pask, and offered burnt sacrifices upon the altar of the Lord, by the commandment of king Josiah.

<sup>17</sup> And the sons of Israel, that were found there, made pask in that time, and the solemnity of therf loaves seven days.

<sup>18</sup> No pask was like this in Israel, from the days of Samuel, the prophet; but neither any of the kings of Israel made pask as Josiah did, to [the] priests and deacons [or Levites], and to all Judah and Israel, that was found there, and to the dwellers of Jerusalem.

<sup>20</sup> After that Josiah had repaired the temple, Necho, the king of Egypt, went up to fight in Charchemish beside Euphrates; and Josiah went forth into his meeting.

<sup>21</sup> And Necho said by messengers sent to Josiah, King of Judah, what cause of strife is to me and to thee? I come not against thee today, but I fight against another house, to which God bade me go in haste; cease thou to do thus against God, that is with me, lest he slay thee.

<sup>22</sup> But Josiah would not turn again, but he made ready battle against him; and he assented not to the words of Necho, by God's mouth, but he went for to fight in the field of Megiddo.

<sup>23</sup> And there he was wounded of archers, and Josiah said to his children or servants, Lead ye me out of the battle, for I am wounded greatly.

<sup>24</sup> And they bare him over from that chariot into another chariot, that pursued [or followed] him, by custom of the king, and they brought him forth into Jerusalem; and he died there, and was buried in the sepulchre of his fathers. And all Judah and Jeru-salem bewailed him,

<sup>25</sup> Jeremy mostly, of whom all [the] singers and singeresses till into [the] present day rehearse lamentations, either wailings, on Josiah; and it came forth as a law in Israel, Lo! it is said written in [the] Lamentations.

<sup>26</sup> Forsooth the residue of [the] words of Josiah, and of his mercies, that be commanded in the law of the Lord,

<sup>27</sup> and his works, the first and the last, be written in the book of [the] kings of Israel and of Judah.

CHAPTER 36

<sup>1</sup> Therefore the people of the land took Jehoahaz, the son of Josiah, and ordained him king for his father in Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> Jehoahaz was of three and twenty years, when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem.

<sup>3</sup> And when the king of Egypt had come to Jerusalem, he removed him, and he condemned the land in an hundred talents of silver and in a talent of gold.

<sup>4</sup> And he ordained for him Eliakim, his brother, king upon Judah and Jerusalem; and he turned his name, and called him Jehoiakim. And he took that Jehoahaz with himself, and he brought him into Egypt.

<sup>5</sup> Jehoiakim was of five and twenty years, when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem, and he did evil before the Lord his God.

<sup>6</sup> And Nebuchadnezzar, king of Chaldees, went up against this Jehoi-akim, and he led him bound with chains into Babylon.

<sup>7</sup> To which Babylon he translated or brought over also the vessels of the house of the Lord, and he set those [or put them] in his temple.

<sup>8</sup> Soothly the residue of [the] words of Jehoiakim, and of his abominations which he wrought, and which were found in him, be contained in the book of [the] kings of Israel and of Judah. And Jehoiachin, his son, reigned for him.

<sup>9</sup> Jehoiachin was of eighteen years, when he began to reign, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem, and he did evil in the sight of the Lord.

<sup>10</sup> And when the circle of the year was turned about, Nebuchadnezzar the king sent men, which also brought him into Babylon, when the most precious vessels of the house of the Lord were borne out together. And Nebuchadnezzar ordained Zedekiah, his father's brother, king upon Judah and Jerusalem.

<sup>11</sup> Zedekiah was of one and twenty years, when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem.

<sup>12</sup> And he did evil in the sight of the Lord his God, and he was not ashamed of the face of Jeremy, the prophet, that spake to him by the mouth of the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> Also he went [away] from king Nebuchadnezzar, which had made him to swear by God, that is, to promise steadfastly to be true to him; and Zedekiah made hard his noll and his heart, that he would not turn again to the Lord God of Israel.

<sup>14</sup> But also all the princes of priests, and the people, trespassed wickedly, by all the abominations of heathen men; and they defouled the house of the Lord, which he had hallowed to himself in Jerusalem.

<sup>15</sup> And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them by the hand of his messengers, and the Lord rose up by night, and he admonished them each day; for-thy that he would spare his people, and his dwelling place.

<sup>16</sup> And they mocked the messengers of God, and they despised his words, and they scorned his prophets; till the great vengeance of the Lord ascended [or went up] upon his people, and no cure, or healing, were to them.

<sup>17</sup> And he brought on them the king of Chaldees; and [he] killed the young men of them by sword in the house of [the] saintuary; he had not mercy of a young man, and of a virgin, and of an eld [or old] man, and soothly neither of a man nigh the death for eldness, but he betook all into the hand of that king of Chaldees.

<sup>18</sup> And he translated or brought over into Babylon all the vessels of the house of the Lord, both the greater and the lesser vessels, and the treasures of the temple, and of the king of Judah, and of the princes thereof.

<sup>20</sup> If any man escaped the sword, he was led into Babylon, and served the king and his sons; this subjection or thralldom continued upon the men of Judah, till the king of Persia reigned,

<sup>21</sup> and till the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremy was fulfilled, and till the land hallowed his sabbaths. Soothly Judah in all the days of desolation, or of the destroying, or forsaking thereof, it made sabbath, till that seventy years were fulfilled.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth in the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, to fulfill the word of the Lord, which he had spoken by the mouth of Jeremy, the Lord raised the spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia, that commanded to be preached in all his realm, yea, by writing, and said,

<sup>23</sup> I Cyrus, king of Persia, saith these things, The Lord God of heaven hath given to me all the realms of [the] earth, and he commanded to me, that I should build to him an house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who of you is in all his people? the Lord his God be with him, and go he up thither.

EZRA

<sup>1</sup> In the first year of Cyrus, king of Persia, that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremy should be fulfilled, the Lord raised the spirit of Cyrus, king of Persia; and he published a voice in all his realm, yea, by writing, he sent out his letters, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Cyrus, the king of Persia, saith these things, The Lord God of heaven hath given to me all the realms of [the] earth, and he hath commanded to me, that I should build to him an house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah.

<sup>3</sup> Who is among you of all his people? his God be with him; and go he up into Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build he the house of the Lord God of Israel; he is God, which is in Jerusalem.

<sup>4</sup> And all other men, that dwell wherever in all places, help him; the men of their place help in silver, and gold, and chattel, and sheep, besides that that they offer willfully to the temple of God, which is in Jerusalem.

<sup>5</sup> And then[the] princes of the fathers of Judah and of Benjamin rose up, and the priests, and the deacons [or Levites], and each man whose spirit God raised, for to go up to build the temple of the Lord, that was in Jerusalem.

<sup>6</sup> And all men that were in compass about helped the hands of them, with vessels of silver, and of gold, with their substance, with appurtenance of household, and with work beasts, besides, or over, these things which they offered by their free will.

<sup>7</sup> And king Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the temple of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem, and had set [or put] them in the temple of his god.

<sup>8</sup> And Cyrus, the king of Persia, brought forth those vessels by the hand of Mithredath, the son of Gazabar; and numbered those [or them] to Shesh-bazzar, the prince of Judah.

<sup>9</sup> And this is the number of the vessels; golden vials, thirty; silveren vials, a thousand; great knives, nine and twenty;

<sup>10</sup> golden basins, thirty; silveren basins, two thousand four hundred and ten; and other vessels, a thousand;

<sup>11</sup> all the vessels of gold and of silver were five thousand and four hundred. And Sheshbazzar took all these vessels, with them that went up from the trans-migration of Babylon, into Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> And these be the sons of the province, which went up from the captivity, which Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had translated or brought over into Babylon; and they turned again into Jerusalem and into Judah, each man into his city,

41 singers; the sons of Asaph, an hundred and eight and twenty;
42 the sons of [the] porters; the sons of Shallum, sons of Ater, sons of Talmon, sons of Akkub, sons of Hatita, sons of Shobai, all these were an hundred and eight and thirty;
43 Nethinims, these bare wood and water to the house of God's religion; the sons of Ziha, the sons of Hasupha, the sons of Tabbaoth,
44 the sons of Keros, the sons of Siaha, the sons of Padon,
45 the sons of Lebanah, the sons of Hagabah, the sons of Akkub,
46 the sons of Hagab, the sons of Shalmal, the sons of Hanan,
47 the sons of Giddel, the sons of Gahar, the sons of Reaiah,
48 the sons of Rezin, the sons of Nekoda, the sons of Gazzam,
49 the sons of Uzza, the sons of Paseah, the sons of Besai,
50 the sons of Asnah, the sons of Mehunim, the sons of Nephusim,
51 the sons of Bakbuk, the sons of Hakupha, the sons of Harhur,
52 the sons of Bazluth, the sons of Mehida, the sons of Harsha,

<sup>55</sup> the sons of the servants of Solo-mon; the sons of Sotai, the sons of Sophereth, the sons of Peruda,
<sup>57</sup> the sons of Shephatiah, the sons of Hattil, the sons of Pochereth, that were of Zebaim, the sons of Ami;
<sup>58</sup> all the Nethinims, and the sons of the servants of Solomon, were three hundred ninety and twain.
<sup>59</sup> And they that went up from Telmelah, Telharsa, Cherub, and Addan, and Immer, and might not show the house of their fathers, and their seed, or progeny, whether they were of Israel, were these;
<sup>60</sup> the sons of Delaiah, the sons of Tobiah, the sons of Nekoda, six hundred and two and fifty;
<sup>61</sup> and of the sons of priests, the sons of Habaiah, the sons of Hakkoz, and the sons of Barzillai, the which took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite, and was called by the name of them;
<sup>62</sup> these sought the scripture of their genealogy, and found it not, and they were therefore cast out of priesthood.
<sup>63</sup> And the Tirshatha said to them, that they should not eat of the holy of holy things, till a wise priest and a perfect man rose up.
<sup>64</sup> All the multitude being as one man, were two and forty thousand three hundred and sixty,
<sup>65</sup> besides the servants of them and the handmaids, which were seven thousand three hundred and seven and thirty; and among them were singers and singeresses, two hundred.
<sup>66</sup> The horses of them were six hundred and six and thirty; the mules of them, four hundred and five and forty;
<sup>67</sup> the camels of them, four hundred and five and thirty; the asses of them, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.
<sup>68</sup> And of the princes of [the] fathers, when they entered into the temple of the Lord, that is, the place where the temple was, which is in Jerusalem, they offered of their free will into the house of God, to build it in his place;
<sup>69</sup> they gave by their mights the costs of the work, one and forty thousand pieces of gold; and five thousand bezants of silver; and priests' clothes an hundred.
<sup>70</sup> Therefore priests, and deacons [or Levites] of the people, and singers, and porters, and Nethinims dwelled in their cities, and all Israel in their cities.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And when the seventh month was come, and the sons of Israel were in their cities. And the people was gathered as one man into Jerusalem.
<sup>2</sup> And Joshua, the son of Jozadak, rose up, and his brethren, priests, and Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and his brethren, and they builded the altar of God of Israel for to offer thereupon burnt sacrifices, as it is written in the law of Moses, the man of God.
<sup>3</sup> And they setted the altar upon his foundations, while the peoples of lands by compass made them afeared; and they offered upon that altar burnt sacrifices to the Lord in the morrow-tide and eventide.
<sup>4</sup> And they made the solemnity of tabernacles, as it is written, and they offered burnt sacrifices each day by order, by the work of the day commanded in his day.

<sup>5</sup> And after this they offered the continual burnt sacrifice, both in calends and in all solemnities of the Lord, that were hallowed, and in all, in which gift was offered to the Lord by free will.

<sup>6</sup> In the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt sacrifice to the Lord; certainly the temple of God was not founded yet.

<sup>7</sup> But they gave money to the hewers of stone, and to the layers of stone, and they gave meat, and drink, and oil, to men of Sidon, and to men of Tyre, that they should bring cedar trees from the Lebanon to the sea of Joppa, by that that Cyrus, king of Persia, had commanded to them.

<sup>8</sup> And in the second year of their coming to the temple of God in Jerusalem, in the second month, Zerub-babel, the son of Salathiel, and Joshua, the son of Jozadak, and others of their brethren, priests and deacons [or Levites], and all that came from the captivity into Jerusalem, began the work of God's temple; and they ordained deacons, from twenty years and above, for to hasten the work of the Lord;

<sup>9</sup> and Joshua stood, and his sons, and his brethren, Kadmiel and his sons, and the sons of Judah together, as one man, to be busy over them that made the work in the temple of God; and the sons of Henadad, their sons, and their brethren, deacons [or Levites].

<sup>10</sup> Therefore when the temple of the Lord was founded of stone-layers, priests stood in their ornaments with trumps, and deacons [or Levites], the sons of Asaph, stood singing in cymbals, for to praise God, by the hand, or ordinance, of David, king of Israel.

<sup>11</sup> And they sang together in hymns and acknowledging to the Lord, For he is good, for his mercy is without end upon Israel. And all the people cried with [a] great cry, in praising the Lord, for the temple of the Lord was founded.

<sup>12</sup> Also full many of the priests, and of the deacons [or Levites], and the princes of fathers, and the elder men, that had seen the former temple, when it was founded, and saw this temple before their eyes, wept with great voice, and many men crying in great gladness raised up the voice;

<sup>13</sup> and no man might know the voice of cry of the men being glad, and the voice of weeping of the people; for the people cried together with [a] great cry, and the voice of them was heard afar.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And the enemies of Judah and of Benjamin heard, that the sons of captivity builded a temple to the Lord God of Israel;

<sup>2</sup> and they came to Zerubbabel, and to the princes of fathers, and said to them, Build we with you, for so as ye do, we seek your God; lo! we have offered sacrifices from the days of Esar-haddon, king of Assur, that brought us hither into this land.

<sup>3</sup> And Zerubbabel, and Joshua, and the other princes of the fathers of Israel, said to them, It is not to us and to you, that we build an house to our God; but we ourselves alone shall build an house to the Lord our God, as Cyrus, the king of Persia, commanded us.

<sup>4</sup> And it was done, that the people of the land hindered the hands of the people of Judah, and troubled them in building.

<sup>6</sup> And in the realm of Ahasuerus, he is called Artaxerxes, in the beginning of his realm, they writed accusing against the dwellers of Judah and of Jerusalem;

<sup>7</sup> and in the days of Artaxerxes, Bishlam wrote, and Mithredath, and Tabeel, and others, that were in the counsel of them, to Artaxerxes, king of Persia. And the epistle of accusing was written in the language of Syria, and it was read in the word of Syria.

<sup>8</sup> Rehum, B'el T'em, and Shimshai, the scribe, wrote such an epistle from Jerusalem to king Artaxerxes, [on this manner];

<sup>9</sup> Rehum, B'el T'em, and Shimshai, the scribe, and [the] other counsellors of them, Dinaites, Apharsathchites, and Tarpelites, Apharistes, Archevites, men of Babylon, Susanchites, Dehavites, men of Elam,

<sup>10</sup> and others of heathen men, which the great and glorious Asnapper translated or brought over, and made them to dwell in the cities of Samaria, and in other countries beyond the flood, in peace.

<sup>12</sup> Be it known to the king, that the Jews, which went up from thee, be come to us in Jerusalem, a rebel and full evil city, which they build, and they make the ground walls thereof, and they array the walls above.

<sup>13</sup> Now therefore be it known to the king, that if that city be builded, and the walls thereof be restored, they shall not give tribute, and toll, and annual rents, and this trespass, or harm, shall come to the king.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore we be mindful of the salt, that is, of meats made savory with salt, that we ate in thy palace, and for we held it unleaveful to see the harms of the king, therefore we have sent and told to the king;

<sup>15</sup> that thou account and seek in the books of [the] stories of thy fathers, and thou shalt find written in chronicles, and thou shalt know, that that city Jerusalem is a rebel city, and that it annoyeth kings and provinces, and that battles be raised therein of eld [or old] days; wherefore also that city was destroyed.

<sup>16</sup> We tell to the king, that if that city be builded, and the walls thereof be restored, thou shalt not have possession beyond the flood.

<sup>17</sup> The king sent word to Rehum, B'el T'em, and to Shimshai, the scribe, and to others that were in the counsel of them, to the dwellers of Samaria, and to others beyond the flood, and said, Health and peace.

<sup>18</sup> The accusing, which ye sent to us, was read openly before me;

<sup>19</sup> and it was commanded of me, and they reckoned, and they found, that that city rebelleth of eld [or old] days against kings, and dissensions and battles be raised therein;

<sup>20</sup> for why there were in Jerusalem full strong kings, which also were lords of all the country that is beyond the flood; also those kings took tribute, and toll, and rents.

<sup>21</sup> Now therefore hear ye the sentence, that ye forbid those men to build, and that that city be not builded, till if peradventure it be commanded of me.

<sup>23</sup> Therefore the exemplar of the commandment of king Artaxerxes was read before Rehum, B'el T'em, and Shimshai, the scribe, and their counsellors; and they went in haste into Jerusalem to the Jews, and they forbade them to build, with arm and might.

<sup>24</sup> Then the work of God's house in Jerusalem was left [off], and it was not made till to the second year of the realm of Darius, king of Persia.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth Haggai, the prophet, and Zechariah, the prophet, the son of Iddo, prophesied, prophesying in the name of God of Israel, to the Jews that were in Judah and Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> Then Zerubbabel, the son of Sala-thiel, and Joshua, the son of Jozadak, rose up, and began to build the temple of God in Jerusalem; and with them rose up the prophets of God, helping them.

<sup>3</sup> And in that time Tatnai, that was duke beyond the flood, and Shethar-boznai, and the counsellors of them, came to them; and said thus to them, Who gave counsel to you to build this house, and to restore these walls?

<sup>4</sup> To the which thing we answered to them, and told them, which were the names of men, authors of that building.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth the eye of [the] God of them was made on the elder men of Jews, and they might not forbid, or hinder, the Jews to build; and it pleased that the thing should be told to Darius, and that then they should make satisfaction against that accusing.

<sup>7</sup> The word which they sent to him was written thus; All peace be to king Darius.

<sup>8</sup> Be it known to the king, that we went to the province of Judea, to the house of [the] great God, which is builded with stone unpolished, and wood be set in the walls thereof, and that work is builded diligently, and increaseth in the hands of them.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore we asked those eld [or old] men, and thus we said to them, Who gave to you power to build this house, and to restore these walls?

<sup>10</sup> But also we asked of them their names, that we should tell to thee; and we have written the names of those men, which they be, that be princes among them.

<sup>11</sup> Soothly they answered by such word, and said, We be the servants of God of heaven and of earth; and we build the temple that was builded before these many years, and which temple the great king of Israel had builded, and made.

<sup>12</sup> But after that our fathers had stirred [the] God of heaven and of earth to wrathfulness, he betook them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, Chaldean, king of Babylon; and he destroyed this house, and translated or brought over the people thereof into Babylon.

<sup>13</sup> And in the first year of Cyrus, king of Babylon, this Cyrus, king of Babylon, putted forth a commandment, that the house of God should be builded.

<sup>14</sup> For why king Cyrus brought forth from the temple of Babylon also the golden and silveren vessels of God's temple, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple, that was in Jerusalem, and had borne those [or them] away into the temple of Babylon, and those vessels were given to Shesh-bazzar, by name, whom he made also prince.

<sup>15</sup> And Cyrus said to him, Take these vessels, and go, and set [or put] them in the temple, that is in Jerusalem; and be the house of God builded in the place where it was.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore then that Sheshbazzar came, and setted [or set] the founda-ments of God's temple in Jerusalem; and from that time till to now it is builded, and it is not yet fulfilled.

<sup>17</sup> Now therefore, if it seemeth good to the king, reckon he in the biblet or library of the king, which is in Babylon, whether it be commanded of king Cyrus, that God's house should be builded in Jerusalem; and send he to us the will of the king on this thing.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Then king Darius commanded, and they reckoned, or sought, in the biblet of books, which books were kept in Babylon.

<sup>2</sup> And one book was found in Ecbatana, which is a castle in the province of Media, and such a sentence of the king was written therein.

<sup>3</sup> In the first year of king Cyrus, Cyrus the king deemed, or ordained, that the house of God, which is in Jerusalem, should be builded in the place where they offered sacrifices, and that they set a fundament supporting the height of sixty cubits, and the length of sixty cubits,

<sup>4</sup> and set they three orders of stones unpolished, and so the orders of new wood. And costs thereto should be given of the king's house.

<sup>5</sup> But also the golden and silveren vessels of God's temple, which Nebu-chadnezzar took from the temple of Jerusalem, and brought them to Babylon, be they yielded, and borne again into the temple of Jerusalem, and into their place, which vessels also be set [or put] in the temple of God.

<sup>6</sup> Now therefore Tatnai, duke of the country that is beyond the flood, and Shetharboznai, and your counsellors, Apharsachites, which be beyond the flood, depart ye far from them;

<sup>7</sup> and suffer ye, that that temple of God be made of the duke of Jews, and of the elder men of them; and that they build that house of God in his place.

<sup>8</sup> But also it is commanded of me, that that behooveth to be made of those priests of Jews, that the house of God be builded; that is, that costs be given busily to those men of the ark of the king, that is, of the tributes, that be given of the country beyond the flood, lest the work be hindered.

<sup>9</sup> That if it be needed, give they both calves, and lambs, and kids into burnt sacrifice to [the] God of heaven; wheat, salt, and wine, and oil, by the custom of priests that be in Jerusalem, be given to them by each day, that no complaint be in anything.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore this sentence is set of me, that if any man change this behest, a wood be taken of his house, and be it raised up, and be he hanged there-on; soothly his house be forfeited.

<sup>12</sup> And God, that maketh his name to dwell there, destroy all the realms and people, that hold forth their hand to impugn and destroy that house of God, which is in Jerusalem. I Darius have deemed the sentence, which I will be fulfilled diligently.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore Tatnai, duke of the coun-try beyond the flood, and Shetharboz-nai, and his counsellors, did execution, either fulfilled, so diligently, by that that king Darius had commanded.

<sup>14</sup> Soothly the elder men of Jews builded, and had prosperity, by the prophecy of Haggai, the prophet, and of Zechariah, the son of Iddo; and they builded, and made, for [the] God of Israel commanded, and for Cyrus, and Darius, and Artaxerxes, kings of Persia, commanded;

<sup>15</sup> and they performed or built this house of God till to the third day of the month Adar, which is the sixth year of the realm of king Darius.

<sup>16</sup> And the sons of Israel, the priests and deacons [or Levites], and the others of the sons of transmigration, that is, of them that came from the transmigration, made the hallowing of God's house in joy;

<sup>19</sup> And the sons of transmigration made pask, in the fourteenth day of the first month.

<sup>20</sup> For the priests and deacons [or Levites] as one man were cleansed, all they were clean to offer pask to all the sons of transmigration, and to their brethren priests, and to themselves.

<sup>21</sup> And the sons of Israel ate, that turned again from the transmigration, and each man ate, that had separated himself from all the defouling of heathen men of the land, for to seek the Lord God of Israel.

<sup>22</sup> And they made the solemnity of therf loaves seven days in gladness; for the Lord had made them glad, and had turned the heart of the king of Assur to them, that he would help their hands in the work of the house of the Lord God of Israel.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> And after these words, Ezra, the son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah,
<sup>5</sup> son of Abishua, son of Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, priest at the beginning, this Ezra was in the realm of Artaxerxes, king of Persia;

<sup>6</sup> that Ezra went up from Babylon, and he was a swift writer in the law of Moses, which the Lord God of Israel gave; and the king gave to him all his asking, by the good hand of his Lord God on him.

<sup>7</sup> And in the seventh year of Artaxerxes king, there went up into Jerusalem men of the sons of Israel, and of the sons of priests, and of the sons of deacons [or Levites], and of singers, and of porters, and of Nethinims.

<sup>8</sup> And they came into Jerusalem in the fifth month; that is the seventh year of the king.

<sup>9</sup> And in the first day of the first month Ezra began to go up from Babylon, and in the first day of the fifth month he came into Jerusalem, by the good hand, or help, of the God of him.

<sup>10</sup> And Ezra made ready his heart to inquire [or ensearch] the law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach in Israel the behest and doom of the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> Artaxerxes, king of kings, desireth health to Ezra, the priest, the most wise writer of the law of God of heaven.

<sup>13</sup> It is deemed of me, that whom-ever it pleaseth in my realm of the people of Israel, and of his priests, and deacons [or Levites], to go into Jerusalem, go he with thee.

<sup>14</sup> For thou art sent from the presence of the king, and of his seven counsellors, that thou visit Judea and Jerusalem in the law of thy God, which is in thy hand;

<sup>15</sup> and that thou bear silver and gold, which the king and his counsellors, have offered by free will to [the] God of Israel, whose tabernacle is in Jerusalem.

<sup>16</sup> And take thou freely all the silver and gold, whatever thou findest in all the province of Babylon, and that that the people will offer, and of priests that offered by free will to the house of their God, which is in Jerusalem;

<sup>17</sup> and buy thou busily of this money calves, rams, lambs, and other offerings, and [the] moist [or liquor] sacrifices of those [or them]; and offer thou those [or them] upon the altar of the temple of your God, which temple is in Jerusalem.

<sup>18</sup> But over this also if anything pleaseth to thee, and to thy brethren, to do of the silver and gold that leaveth, do ye it by the will of your God;

<sup>19</sup> also betake thou in the sight of God in Jerusalem the vessels, that be given into the service of the house of thy God.

<sup>20</sup> But also thou shalt give of the treasure of the king, and of the common ark, either purse, and of men other things, that be needful in the house of thy God, as much ever as is needful, that thou spend.

<sup>21</sup> I, Artaxerxes, king, have ordained, and deemed, to all the keepers of the common ark, or hutch, that be beyond the flood, that whatever thing Ezra, the priest, writer of the law of God of heaven, asketh of you, ye give it without tarrying, <sup>22</sup> unto an hundred talents of silver, and to an hundred cors of wheat, and unto an hundred baths of wine, and unto an hundred baths of oil, and salt without measure.

<sup>23</sup> All thing that pertaineth to the custom, either religion, of God of heaven, be given diligently in the house of God of heaven, lest peradventure he be wroth against the realm of the king, and of his sons.

<sup>24</sup> Also we make known to you of all the priests, and deacons [or Levites], singers, and porters, and Nethinims, and ministers of the house of this God, that ye have not power to put on them toll, and tribute, and other costs for keeping of the land.

<sup>25</sup> But thou, Ezra, by the wisdom of thy God, that is in thine hand, ordain judges and governors, that they deem [all] the people, that is beyond the flood, that is, to them that know the law of thy God, and the law of the king; but also teach ye freely unknowing men.

<sup>26</sup> And each man, that doeth not diligently the law of thy God, and the law of the king, this doom shall be of him, either into death, either into exiling, either into losing of his chattel, either certainly into prison.

<sup>27</sup> And Ezra, the writer, said, Blessed be the Lord God of our fathers, that gave this thing in the heart of the king, that he should glorify the house of the Lord, which is in Jerusalem, <sup>28</sup> and that bowed his mercy into me before the king, and his counsellors, and before all the mighty princes of the king. And I was comforted by the hand of the Lord my God, that was in me, and I gathered together princes of the sons of Israel, the which went up with me to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> Therefore these be the princes of meines, and this is the genealogy of them, that were in the realm of Artaxerxes, the king, and went up with me from Babylon.

<sup>2</sup> Of the sons of Phinehas, Gershom; of the sons of Ithamar, Daniel; of the sons of David, Hattush, (the son of Shechaniah);

<sup>3</sup> of the sons of Shechaniah and of the sons of Pharosh, Zechariah, and with him were numbered an hundred and fifty men; (of the sons of Pharosh, Zech-ariah, and with him were listed a hundred and fifty men;)

<sup>4</sup> of the sons of Pahath, Moab, and Elihoenai, the son of Zerahiah, and with him two hundred men;

<sup>5</sup> of the sons of Zattu, Shechaniah, the son of Jahaziel, and with him three hundred men;

<sup>6</sup> of the sons of Adin, Ebed, the son of Jonathan, and with him fifty men;

<sup>7</sup> of the sons of Elam, Jeshiah, the son of Athaliah, and with him seventy men;

<sup>8</sup> of the sons of Shephatiah, Zeba-diah, the son of Michael, and with him fourscore men;

<sup>9</sup> of the sons of Joab, Obadiah, the son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred and eighteen men;

<sup>10</sup> of the sons of Bani, Shelomith, the son of Josiphiah, and with him an hundred and sixty men;

<sup>11</sup> of the sons of Bebai, Zechariah, the son of Bebai, and with him twenty and eight men;

<sup>12</sup> of the sons of Azgad, Johanan, the son of Hakkatan, and with him an hundred and ten men;

<sup>13</sup> of the sons of Adonikam, that were the last, and these be the names of them, Eliphelet, and Jeiel, and Shemaiah, and with them sixty men;

<sup>15</sup> And I gathered all these men at the flood, that runneth down to Ahava; and we dwelled there three days. And I sought among the people, and in the priests, of the sons of Levi, and I found not there.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore I sent Eliezer, and Ariel, and Shemaiah, and Elnathan, and Jarib, and another Elnathan, and Nathan, and Zechariah, and Meshullam, princes; and Joiarib, and Elnathan, wise men;

<sup>17</sup> and I sent them to Iddo, that is the chief in the place of Casiphia, and I put in the mouth of them the words, which they should speak to Iddo, and to his brethren, Nethinims, in the place of Casiphia, for to bring to us the ministers of the house of our God.

<sup>18</sup> And by the good hand of our God upon us, they brought a full wise man of the sons of Mahli, the son of Levi, the son of Israel; and they brought Sherebiah, and his sons, twenty, and his brethren, were eighteen;

<sup>19</sup> and Hashabiah, and Jeshaiah came with him of the sons of Merari, they brought his brethren, and his sons, twenty;

<sup>20</sup> and of [the] Nethinims, which David and the princes had given to the services of deacons [or Levites], they brought two hundred and twenty Nethinims; all these were called by their names.

<sup>21</sup> And I preached there fasting beside the flood of Ahava, that we should be tormented before the Lord our God, and that we should ask of him the right way to us, and to our sons, and to all our substance.

<sup>22</sup> For I shamed to ask of the king help, and horsemen, which should defend us from our enemies in the way, for we had said to the king, The hand of our God is upon all men that seek him in goodness; and his lordship, and his strength, and his strong vengeance, be on all men that forsake him.

<sup>24</sup> And I separated twelve of the princes of priests, Sherebiah, and Hash-abiah, and ten of their brethren with them;

<sup>25</sup> and I betook under certain weight and number to them the silver and gold, and the hallowed vessels of the house of our God, which the king had offered, and his counsellors, and his princes, and all the men that were found of Israel.

<sup>26</sup> And I betook under certain weight and number into the hands of them six hundred and fifty talents of silver, and an hundred silveren vessels; an hundred talents of gold, <sup>27</sup> and twenty golden cups, or basins, which had in weight a thousand pieces of gold; and two fair vessels of best brass, shining as gold.

<sup>28</sup> And I said to them, Ye be the holy men of the Lord; and therefore wake ye, and keepeth the holy vessels, and the silver and gold, that is offered by free will to the Lord God of our fathers,

<sup>29</sup> till ye yield under certain weight and number before the princes of priests, and of deacons [or Levites], and before dukes of meines of Israel in Jerusalem, into the chamber of God's house.

<sup>30</sup> And the priests and deacons [or Levites] took the weight of silver, and of gold, and of vessels, for to bear them into Jerusalem, into the house of our God.

<sup>31</sup> Therefore we moved forth from the flood of Ahava, in the twelfth day of the first month, for to go into Jerusalem; and the hand of our God was upon us, and delivered us from the hand of [the] enemy, and of the ambusher in the way.

<sup>32</sup> And we came to Jerusalem, and we dwelled there three days.

<sup>33</sup> Forsooth in the fourth day the silver was yielded [up] under certain weight and number, and the gold, and the vessels, in the house of our God, by the number and weight of all things, by the hand of Meremoth, the son of Uriah, priest; and with him was Eleazar, the son of Phinehas, and with them were Jozabad, the son of Joshua, and Noadiah, the son of Binnui, deacons [or Levites];

<sup>34</sup> and all the weight was described in that time.

<sup>35</sup> But also the sons of transmigration, that came from captivity, offered burnt sacrifices to the Lord God of Israel, twelve calves for all the people of Israel, ninety and six rams, seven and seventy lambs, twelve bucks of goats for sin; all these were offered into burnt sacrifice to the Lord.

<sup>36</sup> Forsooth they gave the command-ments of the king to the princes, that were in the sight of the king, and to the dukes beyond the flood; and they raised up the people, and the house of God.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> And after that these things were fulfilled, the princes nighed to me, Ezra, and said, The people of Israel, and the priests, and deacons [or Levites], be not separated from the peoples of lands, and from [the] abominations of them, that is, of Canaanites, of Hittites, and of Perizzites, and of Jebusites, and of Ammonites, and of Moabites, and of Egyptians, and of Amorites.

<sup>2</sup> For they have taken of their daughters wives to themselves, and to their sons, and they have meddled [or mingled] holy seed with the peoples of lands; also the hand of princes and of magistrates was the first in this trespassing.

<sup>3</sup> And when I had heard this word, I rent my mantle and my coat, and I pulled away the hairs of mine head and of my beard, and I sat mourning.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth all that dreaded the word of God of Israel came together to me, for the trespassing of them that were come from [the] captivity; and I sat sorry till to the sacrifice of eventide.

<sup>5</sup> And in the sacrifice of eventide I rose up from mine affliction, and after that I had rent my mantle and my coat, I bowed my knees, and I spreaded abroad mine hands to the Lord my God,

<sup>6</sup> and I said, My God, I am confounded and ashamed to raise up my face to thee, for our wickednesses be multiplied on mine head, and our trespasses have increased unto heaven,

<sup>7</sup> from the days of our fathers hitherto; and also we ourselves have sinned grievously unto this day, and for our wickednesses we, and our kings, and our priests be betaken into the hands of kings of heathen lands, both into sword, and into captivity, into raven, and into shame of cheer, as also in this day.

<sup>8</sup> And now as at a little time and at a moment our prayer is made with the Lord our God, that [the] relics, or remnants, should be left to us, and that a little stake, that is, some setting, and stableness, should be given in his holy place, and that our God should lighten our eyes, and give to us a little life in our servage.

<sup>9</sup> For we be servants; and our God forsook us not in our servage or thralldom; and he bowed down mercy upon us before the kings of Persia, that he should give life to us, and enhance the house of our God, and that he should build the wildernesses thereof, or the desolate things thereof, and give to us hope, or mercy, in Judah and in Jerusalem.

<sup>10</sup> And now, Lord our God, what shall we say after these things? For we have forsaken thy commandments,

<sup>11</sup> which thou commandedest in the hand of thy servants prophets, and saidest, The land, to which ye shall enter, to hold it in possession, is an unclean land, by the uncleanness of peoples, and of other lands, in the abominations of them, that filled it with their defouling, from the mouth till to the mouth.

<sup>12</sup> Now therefore, ye Jews, give ye not your daughters to their sons, nor take ye their daughters to your sons; nor seek ye the peace of them, nor their prosperity unto without end; that ye be comforted, and eat the good things, that be of the earth, and that ye have your sons your heirs, unto without end.

<sup>13</sup> And after all things, or dis-eases, that came upon us in our worst works, and in our great trespass, thou, our God, hast delivered us from our wickedness, and hast given health to us, as it is today,

<sup>14</sup> that we should not be turned away from thee, and make void thy commandments, and that we should not join matrimonyes with the peoples of these abominations. Whether thou art wroth to us till to the ending, that thou shouldest not leave to us remnants, that is, a few men, and health?

<sup>15</sup> Lord God of Israel, thou art just; for we be left, that should be saved, as in this day, lo! we be before thee in our sin; for men may not stand before thee on this thing.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Therefore while Ezra prayed so, and besought God, and wept, and lay before the temple of God, a full great company of Israel, of men, and of women, and of children, was gathered together to him; and the people wept with much weeping.

<sup>2</sup> And Shechaniah, the son of Jehiel, of the sons of Elam, answered, and said to Ezra, We have trespassed against our God, and have wedded wives, alien women, of the peoples of the land. And now, for penance is in Israel on this thing, <sup>3</sup> make we bond of peace with the Lord our God, and cast we away all our alien wives, and them that be born of those wives, by the will of the Lord; and of them that dread the commandment of our God, be it done by the law.

<sup>4</sup> Rise thou up, it pertaineth to thee to deem, and we shall be with thee; be thou comforted, and do thus.

<sup>5</sup> Then Ezra rose up, and charged greatly the princes of priests, and deacons [or Levites], and all Israel, to do after this word; and they swore thereto.

<sup>6</sup> And Ezra rose up before the house of God, and he went to the bed-[place] of Johanan, the son of Eliashib, and he entered [in] thither; he ate not bread, nor drank water; for he bewailed the trespassing of them, that were come from the captivity.

<sup>7</sup> And a voice of them was sent into Judah and Jerusalem, to all the sons of captivity, that they should be gathered together in Jerusalem;

<sup>8</sup> and [that] each man that cometh not thither in three days, by the counsel of the princes and of [the] elder men, all his chattel shall be taken away from him, and he shall be cast away from the company of transmigration.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore all the men of Judah and of Benjamin came together into Jerusalem in three days; that is the ninth month, in the twentieth day of the month; and all the people sat in the street of God's house, and trembled for sin, and for rain.

<sup>10</sup> And Ezra, the priest, rose up, and said to them, Ye have trespassed, and ye have wedded wives, alien women, that ye should lay to, or increase, upon the trespass of Israel.

<sup>12</sup> And all the multitude answered, and said with [a] great voice, By thy word to us, so be it done.

<sup>13</sup> Nevertheless for the people is much, and the time of rain is, and we suffer not to stand withoutforth, and it is not [the] work of one day, neither of twain [or two]; for we have sinned greatly in this word;

<sup>14</sup> princes be ordained in all the multitude, and all men in our cities, that have wedded alien wives, come in times ordained, and with them come the elder men, by city and city, and the judges of the people, till the wrath of our God be turned away from us upon this sin.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore Jonathan, the son of Asahel, and Jahaziah, the son of Tikvah, stood upon this thing; and Meshullam, and Shabbethai, deacons [or Levites], helped them.

<sup>16</sup> And the sons of transmigration did so. And Ezra, the priest, and the men, that were princes of meines, went into the houses of their fathers, and all men by their names; and they sat in the first day of the tenth month, for to inquire the thing.

<sup>17</sup> And all men were ended, that is, the causes of all men were determined, that had wedded alien wives, till to the first day of the first month.

<sup>18</sup> And there were found of the sons of priests, that had wedded alien wives; of the sons of Joshua, the son of Jozadak, and his brethren, Maaseiah, and Eliezer, and Jarib, and Gedaliah.

<sup>26</sup> And of the sons of Elam; Mat-taniah, and Zechariah, and Jehiel, and Abdi, and Jeremoth, and Eliah.

<sup>27</sup> And of the sons of Zattu; Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, and Jeremoth, and Zabad, and Aziza.

<sup>30</sup> And of the sons of Pahath; Moab, Adna, and Chelal, Benaiah, and Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezaleel, and Binnui, and Manasseh.

<sup>44</sup> All these had taken alien, or heathen, wives, and of them were women, that had bore [or borne] children.

NEHEMIAH

<sup>1</sup> The words of Nehemiah, the son of Hachaliah. And it was done in the month of Chisleu, that is, November, in the twentieth year, and I was in the castle of Susa;

<sup>2</sup> and Hanani, one of my brethren, came to me, he and men of Judah; and I asked them of the Jews, that were left, and were alive of the captivity, and of Jerusalem.

<sup>3</sup> And they said to me, They that be left of the captivity, and that dwelled there still in the province, be in great torment, and shame; and the wall of Jerusalem is destroyed, and the gates of it be burnt with fire.

<sup>4</sup> And when I had heard such words, I sat and wept, and mourned many days, and I fasted, and prayed before the face of God of heaven;

<sup>5</sup> and I said, I beseech thee, Lord God of heaven, that art strong, great, and fearedful, that keepest covenant and mercy with them that love thee, and keep thy behests;

<sup>6</sup> thine ear be made hearkening, and thine eyes opened, that thou hear the prayer of thy servant, by which prayer I pray before thee now, by night and day, for the sons of Israel, thy servants, and I acknowledge for the sins of the sons of Israel, by which they have sinned to thee; both I and the house of my father have sinned;

<sup>7</sup> we were deceived by vanity, and we kept not thy commandments, and ceremonies, and dooms, which thou commandedest to Moses, thy servant.

<sup>8</sup> Have mind of the word, which thou commandedest to thy servant Moses, and saidest, When ye have trespassed, I shall scatter you into peoples;

<sup>9</sup> and if ye turn again to me, that ye keep my behests, and do those [or them], yea, though ye be led away to the furthest things of heaven, from thence I shall gather you together, and I shall bring you into the place, that I have chosen, that my name should dwell there.

<sup>10</sup> And we be thy servants, and thy people, which thou hast again-bought in thy great strength, and in thy strong hand.

<sup>11</sup> Lord, I beseech thee, thine ear be attentive to the prayer of thy servant, and to the prayer of thy servants, that will dread thy name; and dress thy servant today, and give thou mercy to him before this man, that is, Artaxerxes, king. For I was the bottler of the king.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the month of Nisan, that is, April, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes, the king, and wine was before him, and I took up the wine, and I gave it to the king, and I was as languishing before his face.

<sup>2</sup> And the king said to me, Why is thy cheer sorry, or heavy, since I see not thee sick? This is not without cause; but I know not what evil is in thine heart. And I dreaded full greatly;

<sup>3</sup> and I said to the king, King, live thou without end; why should not my cheer mourn? for the city of the house of the sepulchres of my father[s] is deserted, either forsaken, and the gates thereof be burnt with fire.

<sup>4</sup> And the king said to me, For what thing askest thou? And I prayed God of heaven, <sup>5</sup> and I said to the king, If it seemeth good to the king, and if it pleaseth thy servants which be before thy face, I beseech thee, that thou send me into Judah, to the city of the sepulchres of my fathers, and I shall rebuild it.

<sup>6</sup> And the king said to me, and the queen sat beside him, Unto what time shall thy way be, and when shalt thou turn again? And it pleased to the king, and he sent me forth, and I set to the king a time of coming again;

<sup>7</sup> and I said to the king, If it seemeth good to the king, give he epistles, or letters, to me to the dukes of the country beyond the flood, that they lead me over, till I come into Judah;

<sup>8</sup> and a letter to Asaph, the keeper of the king's forest, that he give trees to me, that I may cover the gates of the tower of the house, and of the wall of the city, and the house, into which I shall enter. And the king gave the letters to me, by the good hand of my God with me.

<sup>9</sup> And I came to the dukes of the country beyond the flood, and I gave to them the letters of the king. Soothly the king had sent with me the princes of knights, and horsemen.

<sup>10</sup> And Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah, the servant, the Ammonite, heard, and they were sorrowful by great torment, that a man was come, that sought prosperity of the sons of Israel.

<sup>11</sup> And I came into Jerusalem, and I was there three days.

<sup>12</sup> And I rose up by night, I and a few men with me, and I showed not to any man, what thing God had given in mine heart, that I would do in Jerusalem; and there was no work beast with me, but the beast that I sat on.

<sup>13</sup> And I went out by the gate of the valley by night, and before the well of the dragon, and to the gate of dung; and I beheld the wall of Jerusalem destroyed, and the gates thereof wasted by fire.

<sup>14</sup> And I passed forth to the gate of the well, and to the water conduit of the king, and there was no place for to pass, to the horse, that I sat upon;

<sup>15</sup> and in the night I went up by the strand [or stream], and I beheld the wall, and I turned again, and came to the gate of the valley, and I went again to my lodging.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth the magistrates knew not, whither I had gone, either what I would do; but also I had not showed anything to the Jews, and [the] priests, and to the best men, and [the] magistrates, and to [the] other men that made the work, till that time.

<sup>17</sup> And I said to them, Ye know the torment, in which we Jews be, for Jerusalem is deserted, and the gates thereof be wasted with fire; come ye, build we [up] the walls of Jerusalem, and be we no more a shame or in shame.

<sup>18</sup> And I showed to them the hand of my God, that it was good with me, and the words of the king, which he spake to me; and I said, Rise we up, and build we; and the hands of them were comforted in good.

<sup>19</sup> And Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah, the servant, the Ammonite, and Geshem of Arabs, heard this, and they scorned us, and despised; and said, What is this thing, that ye do? whether ye rebel against the king?

<sup>20</sup> And I answered to them a word, and I said to them, God himself of heaven helpeth us, and we be his servants; rise we up, and build; forsooth part, and rightwiseness, and mind, in Jerusalem, is not to you.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And Eliashib, the great priest, rose up, and his brethren, and priests, and they builded the gate of the flock; they made it steadfast; and they set up the gates thereof, and unto the tower of an hundred cubits they made it steadfast, unto the tower of Hananeel.

<sup>4</sup> And Meremoth, the son of Urijah, the son of Hakkoz, builded beside them. And Meshullam, the son of Berechiah, the son of Meshezabeel, builded beside him. And Zadok, the son of Baana, builded beside him.

<sup>5</sup> And men of Tekoa builded beside him; but the principal men of them under-putted not their necks in the work of their Lord God.

<sup>6</sup> And Jehoiada, the son of Paseah, and Meshullam, the son of Besodeiah, builded the old gate; they builded it, and setted up the gates thereof, and the locks, and bars.

<sup>7</sup> And Melatiah the Gibeonite, and Jadon the Meronothite, men of Gibeon, and of Mizpah, builded beside them, for the duke that was in the country beyond the flood.

<sup>12</sup> Shallum, the son of Halohesh, prince of the half part of a street of Jerusalem, builded beside him, he and his sons.

<sup>14</sup> And Malchiah, the son of Rechab, prince of a street of Bethhaccerem, builded the gate of the dunghill; he builded it, and setted it up, and covered the gates thereof, and locks, and bars.

<sup>15</sup> And Shallun, the son of Colhozeh, prince of a town of Mizpah, builded the gate of the well; he builded it, and covered it, and he set up the gates thereof, and locks, and bars; and he builded the walls of the cistern of Siloah, unto the orchard of the king, and unto the degrees of the king, which come down from the city of David.

<sup>20</sup> And Baruch, the son of Zabbai, builded after him in the hill the second measure, from the corner unto the gate of the house of Eliashib, the great priest.

<sup>21</sup> And Meremoth, the son of Urijah, son of Hakkoz, builded after him the second measure, from the gate [of the house] of Eliashib, as far as the house of Eliashib was stretched forth.

<sup>25</sup> Palal, the son of Uzai, builded over against the bowing of the wall, and the tower that standeth forth, from the high house of the king, that is in the large place of the prison; Pedaiah, the son of Parosh, builded after him.

<sup>32</sup> And craftsmen and merchants builded within the solar of the corner, and the gate of the king.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, when Sanballat had heard, that we builded the wall, he was full wroth, and he was stirred greatly, and he scorned the Jews.

<sup>2</sup> And he said before his brethren, and the multitude of Samaritans, What do the feeble Jews? Whether heathen men shall suffer them? Whether they shall [ful] fill, and make sacrifice in one day? Whether they may build stones of the heaps of the dust, which be burnt?

<sup>3</sup> And also Tobiah the Ammonite, his neighbour, said, Build they; if a fox go up, he shall over-leap their stone wall.

<sup>4</sup> And Nehemiah said in prayer, Our God, hear thou, for we be made despising; turn thou the shame upon their own heads, and give thou them into despising in the land of captivity;

<sup>5</sup> cover thou not the wickedness of them, and their sins be not done away before thy face; for they scorned the builders.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore we builded the wall, and joined together all till to the half part, and the heart of the people was excited to work.

<sup>7</sup> And it was done when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Arabians, and Ammonites, and men of Ashdod had heard, that the breaking of the wall of Jerusalem was stopped, and that the crazings had begun to be closed together, they were full wroth.

<sup>8</sup> And they all were gathered together to come and fight against Jerusalem, and to cast treasons against it.

<sup>9</sup> And we prayed the Lord our God, and we setted keepers on the wall day and night against them.

<sup>10</sup> And Judah said, The strength of the bearer is made feeble, and the earth is full much, and we be not able to build the wall.

<sup>11</sup> And our enemies said, Know they not, and know they not, till we come into the middle of them, and slay them, and make the work to cease.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth it was done, when [the] Jews came, that dwelled beside them, and said to us by ten times, from all places from which they came to us,

<sup>13</sup> I ordained the people in order, with their swords, and spears, and bows, in a place behind the wall by compass.

<sup>14</sup> I beheld, and rose, and said to the principal men, and magistrates, and to the other part of the common people, Do not ye dread of their face; but have ye mind of the great Lord, and fearedful, and fight ye for your brothers, and your sons, and your daughters, for your wives, and houses.

<sup>15</sup> And it was done, when our enemies had heard that it was told to us, God destroyed their counsel; and then all we turned again to the walls, each man to his work.

<sup>16</sup> And it was done from that day, the half part of the young men made the work, and the half part was ready to battle; and held spears, and shields, and bows, and habergeons, and princes after them, in all the house of men of Judah,

<sup>17</sup> building in the wall, and bearing burdens, and putting on; with their one hand they made the work, and with the other they held their sword.

<sup>18</sup> For each of the builders was girded with a sword upon his reins; and they builded the wall, and they sounded with clarions beside me.

<sup>19</sup> And I said to the principal men, and magistrates, and to the other part of the common people, The work is great and broad, and we be separated far in the wall, one from another;

<sup>20</sup> therefore in whatever place that ye hear [the] sound of the trump, run ye together thither to us; for our God shall fight for us.

<sup>21</sup> And we ourselves shall make the work, and the half of us hold we spears, from the going up of the morrowtide till that [the] stars go out.

<sup>22</sup> And in that time I said to the people, Each man with his servant dwell he in the midst of Jerusalem, and whiles be to us by night, and day to work.

<sup>23</sup> But I, and my brethren, and my keepers, and [my] servants, that were going after me, did not put off our clothes; each man was made naked only to washing.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>2</sup> And there were that said, Our sons and our daughters be full many; take we wheat for the price of them, and eat we, and live.

<sup>3</sup> Also there were that said, Set we forth to sale our fields, and vineries [or vines], and our houses, and take we wheat to eat in this hunger.

<sup>4</sup> And other men said, Take we money by borrowing, for usury, into the tributes of the king, and give our fields and vineries [or vines].

<sup>5</sup> And now as the fleshs of our brethren be, so and our fleshs be; and as be the sons of them, so and our sons be; lo! we have made subject our sons and our daughters into servage, and servantesses be of our daughters, and we have not whereof they may be again-bought; and other men have in possession our fields, and our vineries [or vines].

<sup>6</sup> And I was full wroth, when I had heard the cry of them by these words.

<sup>7</sup> And mine heart thought within me, and I blamed the principal men, and magistrates; and I said to them, Ask ye not usuries, or increase, each man of your brethren. And I gathered together a great company against them,

<sup>8</sup> and I said to them, As ye know, we have by our power again-bought our brethren Jews, that were sold to heathen men; and ye now sell your brethren, and shall we again-buy them of you? And they held silence, and found not what they should answer.

<sup>9</sup> And I said to them, It is not good thing, that ye do; why go ye not in the dread of our God, and reproof be not said to us of heathen men, our enemies?

<sup>10</sup> Both I, and my brethren, and my servants, have lent to full many men money and wheat; in common, ask we not for this again; but forgive we alien money, or usury, which is due to us.

<sup>11</sup> And again yield ye to them today their fields, and their vineries [or vines], their olive places, and their houses; and rather, give ye for them the hundred part of money, and of wheat, of wine, and of oil, which ye were wont to take of them.

<sup>12</sup> And they said, We shall yield their goods to them, and we shall ask nothing of them; and we shall do so as thou speakest. And I called the priests, and I made them to swear, that they should do after this, that I had said.

<sup>13</sup> And furthermore I shook my bosom, and I said, So God shake away each man from his house, and from his travails, that fulfilleth not this word; and be he shaken away, and be he made void. And all the multitude said, Amen; and they praised God. And the people did, as it was said.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth from that day in which the king had commanded to me, that I should be duke in the land of Judah, from the twentieth year unto the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes king, that is, by twelve years, I and my brethren ate not the sustenances which were due to dukes.

<sup>15</sup> But the first dukes, that were before me, grieved the people, and took of them in bread, and wine, and money, each day forty shekels; and also their ministers oppressed the people. But I did not so, for the dread of God;

<sup>16</sup> but rather I subjected myself, and I builded in the work of the wall, and I bought no field, and all my servants were gathered together with me to the work.

<sup>17</sup> Also [the] Jews and the magistrates of them, an hundred and fifty men, and they that came to me from heathen men, that be in our compass, were eating in my table.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth by each day one ox was made ready to me, six chosen wethers, besides volatiles, and within ten days diverse wines; and I gave many other things; furthermore and I asked not for the sustenances of my duchy; for the people was made full poor.

<sup>19</sup> My God, have thou mind on me into good, by all things which I have done to this people.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth it was done, when San-ballat had heard, and Tobiah, and Geshem of Arabia, and our other enemies, that I had builded the wall, and no more breaking was therein; and unto that time I had not set up the leaves of shutting of the gates;

<sup>2</sup> and Sanballat, and Tobiah, and Geshem of Arabia sent to me, and said, Come thou into a field, and smite we bond of peace in villages [or little towns]; certainly they thought to do evil to me.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore I sent messengers to them, and I said, I make a great work, and I may not go down therefore, lest peradventure it be done recklessly or negligently, when I come, and go down to you.

<sup>4</sup> Soothly they sent to me by this word by four times, and I answered to them by the former word.

<sup>5</sup> And Sanballat sent to me the fifth time by the former word his child; and he had in his hand a letter;

<sup>6</sup> written in this manner; It is heard among heathen men, and Gashmu said, that thou and the Jews think for to rebel, and therefore ye build the wall, and thou wilt raise thee king on them;

<sup>7</sup> for which cause also thou hast set prophets, which preach of thee in Jerusalem, and say, A king is in Jerusalem; the king shall hear these words; therefore come thou now, that we take counsel together.

<sup>8</sup> And I sent to them, and said, It is not done by these words which thou speakest; for of thine own heart thou makest these things.

<sup>9</sup> All these men made us afeared, and thought that our hands should cease from our works, and that we should rest from building; for which cause I strengthened more mine hand thereto.

<sup>10</sup> And I entered privily into the house of Shemaiah, the son of Delaiah, the son of Mehetabeel, which said to me, Treat we there with ourselves in the house of God, in the midst of the temple, and close we the gates of the house; for they shall come to slay thee, yea, by night they shall come to slay thee.

<sup>11</sup> And I said, Whether any man like to me, that is, trusting so to God, as I do, hath fled for such a thing, and who as I shall enter into the temple, and shall live, or be saved there? I will not enter [in]thither.

<sup>12</sup> And I understood that God had not sent him, but he spake as prophesying to me; and Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him for meed.

<sup>13</sup> For he had taken price, that I should be afeared, and do their will, and that I should do sin; and they should have evil, which they should put to me with shame.

<sup>14</sup> Lord, have mind of me, for Tobiah and Sanballat, by such works of them; but also of Noadiah, the prophetess, and of other prophets, that have made me afeared.

<sup>15</sup> And the wall was ended in the five and twentieth day of the month of Elul, that is, August, in two and fifty days.

<sup>16</sup> And it was done, when all our enemies had heard, that all [the] heathen men dreaded us, that were in our compass, and they felled down within themselves, and they knew then, that this work was made of God.

<sup>17</sup> But also in those days many letters of the principal men of Jews were sent to Tobiah, and came from Tobiah to them.

<sup>18</sup> For many men were in Judah, that had his oath, that is, were sworn to him; for he had wedded the daughter of Shechaniah, the son of Arah; and Johanan, his son, had taken the daughter of Meshullam, the son of Berechiah.

<sup>19</sup> But also they praised him before me, and told my words to him; and Tobiah sent letters, to make me afeared.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> And after that the wall of Jeru-salem was builded, and I had set up the gates thereof, and had numbered the porters, and singers, and deacons [or Levites],

<sup>2</sup> I commanded to Hanani, my brother, and to Hananiah, the prince of the house of Jerusalem; for he seemed a soothfast man, and dreading God more than other men did;

<sup>3</sup> and I said to them, The gates of Jerusalem be not opened till to the heat of the sun; and, when I was yet present, the gates were closed, and locked. And I set keepers thereof of the dwellers of Jerusalem, all men by their whiles, or times, and each man over against his own house.

<sup>4</sup> And the city was full broad and great, and little people in the midst thereof, and the houses were not yet builded.

<sup>5</sup> And God gave in mine heart, and I gathered together the principal men, and magistrates, and the common people, for to number them; and I found a book of the number<sup>[ing]</sup> of them, that had gone up first from the captivity. And it was found written therein,

<sup>6</sup> These be the sons of the province, which went up from the captivity of men passing over from Babylon to Jerusalem, which Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had led over into Babylon; and they that were come with Zerubbabel turned again into Jerusalem and into Judah, each man to his city;

<sup>8</sup> the sons of Parosh, two thousand an hundred and two and seventy;

<sup>9</sup> the sons of Shephatiah, three hundred and two and seventy;

<sup>10</sup> the sons of Arah, six hundred and two and fifty;

<sup>11</sup> the sons of Pahathmoab, of the sons of Jeshua and of Joab, two thousand eight hundred and eighteen;

<sup>12</sup> the sons of Elam, a thousand eight hundred and four and fifty;

<sup>30</sup> the men of Ramah and of Gaba, six hundred and one and twenty;

<sup>45</sup> porters; the sons of Shallum, the sons of Ater, the sons of Talmon, the sons of Akkub, the sons of Hatita, the sons of Shobai, an hundred and eight and thirty;

and the sons of Amon;
<sup>60</sup> all Nethinims, and the sons of the servants of Solomon, were three hundred and two and twenty or seventy.
<sup>61</sup> And these that follow be they that went up of the country of Telmelah, Telharesha, Cherub, Addon, and Immer; which might not show the house of their fathers, nor their seed, whether they were of Israel;
<sup>62</sup> the sons of Delaiah, the sons of Tobiah, the sons of Nekoda, six hundred and two and forty;
<sup>63</sup> and of the priests; the sons of Habaiah, the sons of Hakkoz, the sons of Barzillai, that took a wife of the daughters of Barzillai of Gilead, and was called by the name of them;
<sup>64</sup> these sought the scripture of their genealogy, and they found it not, and they were therefore cast out of priest-hood.
<sup>65</sup> And the Tirshatha said to them, that they should not eat of the holy things of holy men, till that a wise priest rose up among the people.
<sup>66</sup> All the multitude as one man, two and forty thousand six hundred and sixty,
<sup>67</sup> besides the servants and handmaids of them, which were seven thousand three hundred and seven and thirty; and among [them] the singers and sing-eresses, six hundred and five and forty.
<sup>68</sup> The horses of them, six hundred and six and thirty; the mules of them, two hundred and five and forty;
<sup>69</sup> the camels of them, four hundred and five and thirty; the asses of them, six thousand eight hundred and thirty.
<sup>70</sup> Soothly some of the princes of the meines gave costs into the work of God; the Tirshatha gave into the treasure [or treasury], a thousand drachmas/drams of gold, fifty vials, or basins, five hundred and thirty coats of priests.
<sup>71</sup> And of the princes of [the] meines, they gave into the treasure [or treasury] of the work, twenty thousand drachmas/ drams of gold, and two thousand and two hundred bezants of silver.
<sup>72</sup> And that that the residue people gave, twenty thousand drachmas/drams of gold, and two thousand bezants of silver, and seven and sixty coats of priests.
<sup>73</sup> Soothly [the] priests, and deacons [or Levites], and porters, and singers, and the residue people, and Nethinims, and all Israel dwelled in their cities. And when the seventh month was come under Ezra and Nehemiah, soothly the sons of Israel were in their cities.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> And all the people was gathered together as one man, to the street which is before the gate of waters. And they said to Ezra, the scribe or writer, that he should bring the book of the law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded to Israel.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore Ezra, the priest, brought the law before the multitude of men and of women, and before all that might understand, in the first day of the seventh month.

<sup>3</sup> And he read in it openly in the street that was before the gate of waters, from the morrowtide till to midday, in the sight of men and of women, and of wise men; and the ears of all the people were raised up to the book to hear the law.

<sup>4</sup> And Ezra the writer stood on the degrees of wood, that he had made to speak upon to the people; and Mattithiah, and Shema, and Anaiah, and Urijah, and Hilkiah, and Maaseiah stood beside him, at his right half; and Pedaiah, Mishael, and Malchiah, Hashum, and Hashbadana, and Zechariah, and Meshullam, stood at the left half.

<sup>5</sup> And Ezra opened the book before all the people; for he appeared over all the people; and when he had opened the book, all the people stood to hear.

<sup>6</sup> And Ezra blessed the Lord God with great voice; and all the people answered, Amen, Amen, raising up their hands. And they were bowed, and they worshipped God, lowly upon the earth.

<sup>7</sup> And Jeshua, and Bani, and Shere-biah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodi-jah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Joza-bad, Hanan, Pelaiah, deacons [or Levites], made silence in the people, for to hear the law. And the people stood in their degree or place.

<sup>8</sup> And they read in the book of God's law distinctly, and openly, to understand it; and they understood, when it was read.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth Nehemiah said, he is the Tirshatha, and Ezra, the priest and writer, and the deacons [or Levites], expounding to all the people, This is a day hallowed to the Lord our God; do not ye mourn, and do not ye weep. For all the people wept, when it heard the words of the law.

<sup>10</sup> And he said to them, Go ye, and eat ye fat things, and drink ye wine made sweet with honey, and send ye parts to them, that made not ready to themselves, for it is an holy day of the Lord; do not ye be sorry, for the joy of the Lord is your strength.

<sup>11</sup> And the deacons [or Levites] made silence in all the people, and said, Be ye still, for this is an holy day, and make ye no sorrow.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore all the people went for to eat, and drink, and to send parts, and to make great gladness; for they understood the words, which he had taught them.

<sup>13</sup> And in the second day, the princes of meines, and all the peoples, priests, and deacons [or Levites], were gathered to Ezra, the writer, that he should expound to them the words of the law.

<sup>14</sup> And they found written in the law, that the Lord commanded in the hand of Moses, that the sons of Israel dwell in tabernacles in the solemn days, in the seventh month;

<sup>15</sup> and that they preach, and publish a voice in all their cities, and in Jerusalem; and say, Go ye out into the hills, and bring ye boughs of the olive tree, and boughs of the fairest tree, the boughs of a myrtle tree, and the branches of a palm tree, and the boughs of a tree full of wood, that tabernacles be made of the boughs, as it is written.

<sup>16</sup> And all the people went out, and they brought with them boughs, and they made to themselves tabernacles, each man in his house roof, and in their streets, either foreyards, and in the large places of God's house, and in the street of the gate of waters, and in the street of the gate of Ephraim.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore all the church, or congregation, of them, that is, the gathering together, that came again from [the] captivity, made tabernacles, and they dwelled in those tabernacles. Certainly the sons of Israel had not done such things from the days of Joshua, the son of Nun, unto that day; and full great gladness was there among them.

<sup>18</sup> And Ezra read in the book of God's law by all days of the solemnity, from the first day unto the last day; and they made the solemnity by seven days; and in the eighth day they made a gathering, or collection, of silver, by the custom.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth in the four and twentieth day of this month, the sons of Israel came together in fasting, and in sack-cloths, and earth was on them.

<sup>2</sup> And the seed of the sons of Israel was separated from each alien man. And they stood before the Lord, and acknowledged their sins, and the wickednesses of their fathers.

<sup>3</sup> And they rose together to stand; and they read in the book of the law of the Lord their God four times in the day, and four times in the night; they acknowledged, and praised the Lord their God.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth they rised [up] on the degrees, of deacons [or Levites], Jeshua, and Bani, Kadmiel, Bunni, Shebaniah, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani. And the deacons [or Levites] cried with great voice to their Lord God.

<sup>5</sup> And the deacons [or Levites], Jeshua, and Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabniah, Sherebiah, Hodijah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah, said, Rise ye, and bless ye the Lord your God, from without beginning and till into without end; and Lord, bless they the high name of thy glory in all blessing and praising.

<sup>6</sup> Thou thyself, Lord, art alone, or art alone God; thou madest heaven, and the heaven of heavens, and all the host of those heavens; thou madest the earth and all things that be therein; thou madest the seas and all things that be in them; and thou quickenest all these things; and the host of heaven worshippeth thee.

<sup>7</sup> Thou thyself art the Lord God, that choosedest Abram, and leddest him out of the fire of Chaldees, and thou settedest, or calledest, his name Abraham;

<sup>8</sup> and foundest his heart faithful before thee, and thou hast smitten with him a bond of peace, that thou wouldest give to him the land of Canaanites, of Hittites, of Hivites, of Amorites, and of Perizzites, and of Jebusites, and of Girgashites, that thou wouldest give it to his seed; and thou hast fulfilled thy words, for thou art just.

<sup>9</sup> And thou hast seen the torment of our fathers in Egypt, and thou heardest the cry of them upon the Red Sea.

<sup>10</sup> And thou hast given signs and great wonders in Pharaoh, and in all his servants, and in all the people of that land; for thou knowest, that they did proudly against our fathers; and thou madest to thee a name, as also in this day.

<sup>11</sup> And thou partedest the sea before them, and they passed through the midst of the sea in the dry place; and thou castedest down the pursuers of them into the depth, as a stone in strong waters.

<sup>12</sup> And in a pillar of cloud thou were the leader of them by day, and in a pillar of fire by night, that the way, by which they entered, should appear to them.

<sup>14</sup> And thou showedest to them an hallowed sabbath; and thou command-est to them commandments, and ceremonies, and law, in the hand of Moses, thy servant.

<sup>15</sup> And thou gavest to them bread from heaven in their hunger; and thou leddest out of the stone water to them thirsting; and thou saidest to them, that they should enter, and have in possession the land, upon the which land thou raisedest up thine hand, that thou shouldest give it to them.

<sup>16</sup> But they and our fathers did proudly, and made hard their nolls, and heard not thy commandments.

<sup>17</sup> And they would not hear; and they had not mind of thy marvels, which thou haddest done to them; and they made hard their nolls; and they gave the head, that they were all-turned to their servage as by strife; but thou art God who is helpful, meek, and merciful, abiding long, either patient, and of much merciful doing, and forsookest not them;

<sup>18</sup> and when they had made to them a molten calf, as by strife, and had said, This is thy God, Israel, that led thee out of Egypt, and they did great blasphemies to thy name.

<sup>19</sup> But thou, Lord, in thy many mercies leftest, or forsookest, not them in desert; for a pillar of cloud went not away from them by the day, that it should lead them into the way whither they were to go; and the pillar of fire went not away from them by night, that it should show to them the way, by which they should enter.

<sup>21</sup> Forty years thou feddest them in desert, and nothing failed to them; their clothes waxed not eld, and their feet were not hurt, or swollen.

<sup>22</sup> And thou gavest to them realms, and peoples; and thou partedest lots, either heritages, to them, and they had in possession the land of Sihon, and the land of the king of Heshbon, and the land of Og, king of Bashan.

<sup>23</sup> And thou multipliedest the sons of them, as the stars of heaven or of the firmament; and thou broughtest them to the land, of which thou saidest to their fathers, that they should enter, and hold it in possession.

<sup>24</sup> And the sons of Israel came, and had the land in possession; and before them thou madest low the dwellers of the land, Canaanites; and thou gavest them into the hands of the sons of Israel, and the kings of them, and the peoples of the land, that they did to them, as it pleased them.

<sup>25</sup> And they took cities made strong, and fat earth; and they had in possession houses full of all goods, cisterns made of other men, vineries [or vines], and places of olives, and many apple trees. And they ate, and were fulfilled, and were made fat; and had plenty of riches in thy great goodness.

<sup>26</sup> And yet they stirred thee to wrath-fulness, and went away from thee, and casted away thy law behind their backs; and they killed thy prophets, that witnessed to them, that they should turn again to thee; and they did great blasphemies.

<sup>27</sup> And thou gavest them into the hands of their enemies; and they tormented them; and in the time of their tribulation they cried to thee; and thou heardest them from heaven, and by thy many merciful doings thou gavest them saviours, that saved them from the hand of their enemies.

<sup>28</sup> And when they had rested, they turned again to do evil in thy sight; and thou forsookest them in the hand of their enemies, and their enemies had them in possession; then they were turned again to thee, and cried to thee; and in thy mercy doing thou heardest them from heaven, and deliveredest them by many times.

<sup>29</sup> And thou witnessedest to them, that they should turn again to thy law; but they did proudly, and heard not thy behests, and sinned in thy dooms, which a man that shall do, shall live in those [or them]; but they gave their shoulder and went away, and they made hard their nolls, and would not obey to thy dooms.

<sup>30</sup> And thou drewest along many years upon them, and thou witnessed-est to them in thy Spirit, by the hand, or telling, of thy prophets, that they were law-breakers; and they heard them not; and therefore thou gavest them into the hand of the peoples of lands.

<sup>31</sup> But in thy mercies full many, thou madest not them to be into wasting, neither thou forsookest them; for thou art God of merciful doings, and meek.

<sup>32</sup> Now therefore, our Lord God, great God, strong, and fearedful, keeping covenant and mercy, turn thou not away thy face from us in all the travail that hath found us, our kings, and our princes, and our fathers, and our priests, and our prophets, and all thy people, from the days of king Assur till to this day.

<sup>33</sup> And Lord, thou art just in all things, that came [up] on us, for thou didest truth to us; but we have done wickedly.

<sup>34</sup> And our kings, and our princes, and our priests, and our fathers, have not done thy law; and they perceived not thy behests and thy witnessings, which thou hast witnessed in thy behests.

<sup>36</sup> Lo! we ourselves be thralls today; and the land which thou gavest to our fathers, that they should eat the bread thereof, and the goods that be thereof, is thrall; and we ourselves be thralls, either bondmen, in that land.

<sup>37</sup> And the fruits thereof be multiplied to kings, which thou hast set [or put] upon us for our sins; and they be lords of our bodies, and of our beasts, by their will, and we be in great tribulation.

<sup>38</sup> Therefore on all these things we ourselves smite and write bond of peace, and our princes, our deacons [or Levites], and our priests aseal.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> And the sealers were Nehemiah, that is, the Tirshatha, or the governor, the son of Hachaliah, and Zidkijah,

<sup>28</sup> and others of the people, priests, deacons [or Levites], porters, and singers, Nethinims, and all men that separated themselves from the peoples of lands to the law of God, the wives of them, the sons of them, and the daughters of them; all that might understand,

<sup>29</sup> promising for their brethren, the principal men of them, and they that came thither to promise, and to swear, that they should go in the law of the Lord, which he gave by the hand of Moses, his servant, and that they should do and keep all the behests of the Lord our God, and his dooms, and his ceremonies;

<sup>30</sup> and that we should not give our daughters to the people of the land, and that we should not take their daughters to our sons.

<sup>31</sup> Also the peoples of the land, that bring in things set to sale, and all things to use, by the day of sabbath, for to sell, we shall not take of them in the sabbath, and in a day hallowed; and we shall leave the land without tilth and sowing and gathering, the seventh year, and the asking of all hand, that is, release debts, and deliver Hebrew servants.

<sup>32</sup> And also we shall ordain upon us commandments, that by each year we give the third part of a shekel to the work of the Lord our God, <sup>33</sup> to the loaves of setting forth, and to the everlasting sacrifice, and into burnt sacrifice everlasting, in sabbaths, in calends, that is, beginnings of months, in solemnities, in hallowed days, and for sin, that prayer be made for Israel, and into all the uses of the house of our God.

<sup>34</sup> Also we casted lots on the offering of wood, betwixt priests and deacons [or Levites] and the people, that those [or they] should be brought into the house of our God, by the meines of our fathers in certain times, from the times of a year sufficient unto a year, that that wood should burn upon the altar of the Lord our God, as it is written in the law of Moses;

<sup>35</sup> and that we bring the first engendered things of our land, and the first fruits of all fruit of each tree, from year into year, into the house of the Lord,

<sup>36</sup> and the first begotten things of our sons, and of our beasts, as it is written in the law, and the first begotten things of our oxen, and of our sheep, that those [or they] be offered in the house of our God, to priests that minister in the house of our God;

<sup>37</sup> and we shall bring the first fruits of our meats, and of our moist [or liquor] sacrifices, and the fruits of each tree, and of vintage, and of oil, to [the] priests, at the chamber of the house of the Lord, and the tenth part of our land to deacons [or Levites]; those deacons shall take tithes of all the cities of our works.

<sup>38</sup> And a priest, the son of Aaron, shall be with the deacons [or Levites] in the tithes of deacons; and the deacons shall offer the tenth part of their tithe in the house of our God, at the chambers, in the house of treasure.

<sup>39</sup> For the sons of Israel and the sons of Levi shall bring the first fruits of wheat, of wine, and of oil to that place; and hallowed vessels shall be there, and priests, and singers, and porters, and ministers; and we shall not forsake the house of our God.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth the princes of the people dwelled in Jerusalem; but the residue people sent lot, for to take one part of ten, which should dwell in Jerusalem, in the holy city; and the other nine parts dwelled in other cities.

<sup>2</sup> And the people blessed all men, that proffered themselves by free will to dwell in Jerusalem.

<sup>3</sup> And so these be the princes of the province, that dwelled in Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah; and each man dwelled in his possession, in their cities of Israel, that is, priests, deacons [or Levites], Nethinims, and the sons of the servants of Solomon.

<sup>4</sup> And men of the sons of Judah, and of the sons of Benjamin dwelled in Jerusalem; of the sons of Judah; Athaiah, the son of Uziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalaleel, of the sons of Perez;

<sup>5</sup> Maaseiah, the son of Baruch, the son of Colhozeh, the son of Hazaiah, the son of Adaiah, the son of Joiarib, the son of Zechariah, the son of Shilonites;

<sup>6</sup> all the sons of Perez, that dwelled in Jerusalem, were four hundred eight and sixty, strong men.

<sup>7</sup> And these be the sons of Benjamin; Sallu, the son of Meshullam, the son of Joed, the son of Pedaiah, the son of Kolaiah, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ithiel, the son of Jesaiah;

<sup>8</sup> and after him Gabbai, Sallai, ninety and eight and twenty;

<sup>9</sup> and Joel, the son of Zichri, was the sovereign of them, and Judah, the son of Senuah, was the second man on the city.

<sup>11</sup> Seraiah, the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, these were princes of the house of God,

<sup>12</sup> and their brethren, making the works of the temple, were eight hundred and two and twenty. And Adaiah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchiah,

<sup>13</sup> and the brethren of them, the princes of fathers, were two hundred and two and forty. And Amashai, the son of Azareel, the son of Ahasai, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer,

<sup>14</sup> and their brethren, full mighty men, were an hundred and eight and twenty; and the sovereign of them was Zabdiel, the son of mighty men.

<sup>16</sup> and Shabbethai, and Jozabad was ordained of the princes of deacons [or Levites], upon all the works that were done withoutforth in God's house.

<sup>17</sup> And Mattaniah, the son of Micha, the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph, was prince in God's house, to praise and acknowledge to him in prayer; and Bakbukiah was the second of his brethren, and Abda, the son of Sham-mua, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun.

<sup>18</sup> All the deacons [or Levites] in the holy city, were two hundred fourscore and four.

<sup>19</sup> And the porters, Akkub, Talmon, and the brethren of them, that kept the doors of the temple, were an hundred and two and seventy.

<sup>20</sup> And other men of Israel, priests, and deacons [or Levites], in all the cities of Judah, each man in his possession.

<sup>22</sup> And sovereign of deacons [or Levites] in Jerusalem was Uzzi, the son of Bani, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Micha. Of the sons of Asaph, singers in the service of God's house.

<sup>23</sup> For the command of the king was on them, and an order was in singers by all days;

<sup>24</sup> and Pethahiah, the son of Meshe-zabeel, of the sons of Zerah, the son of Judah, in the hand of the king, by each word of the people;

<sup>25</sup> and in the houses by all the countries of them. Of the sons of Judah dwelled in Kiriatharba, and in the villages thereof, and in Dibon, and in the villages thereof, and in Jekabzeel, and in the towns thereof;

<sup>26</sup> and in Jeshua, and in Moladah, and in Bethphelet,

<sup>27</sup> and in Hazarshual, and in Beer-sheba, and in the villages thereof;

<sup>28</sup> and in Ziklag, and in Mekonah, and in the villages thereof;

<sup>29</sup> and in Enrimmon, and in Zareah, and in Jarmuth,

<sup>30</sup> in Zanoah, in Adullam, and in the towns thereof; in Lachish, and in the country thereof; in Azekah, and in the villages thereof; and they dwelled in Beersheba till to the valley of Hinnom.

<sup>31</sup> And the sons of Benjamin dwelled in Geba, Michmash, and Aija, and Bethel, and in the villages thereof;

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Soothly these were[the] priests and [the] deacons [or Levites], that went up with Zerubbabel, the son of Shealtiel, and with Joshua; Seraiah, Jeremy [or Jeremiah], Ezra,

<sup>22</sup> Deacons [or Levites] in the days of Eliashib, and of Joiada, and of Johanan, and of Jaddua, were written princes of meines, and priests, in the realm of Darius king of Persia.

---

* CHAPTER 12:17 A name is missing here in both the Hebrew and the Greek texts of the Ta'na'kh, which are the Hebrew Scriptures or the Old Testament.

<sup>23</sup> The sons of Levi, princes of meines, were written in the book of the words of days, and unto the days of Johanan, the son of Eliashib.

<sup>24</sup> And the princes of deacons [or Levites] were Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua, the son of Kadmiel; and the brethren of them by their whiles, or times, that they should praise and acknowledge by the commandment of king David, the man of God, and they should keep evenly by order.

<sup>25</sup> Mattaniah, and Bakbukiah, and Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, Akkub, were keepers of the gates, and of the porches before the gates.

<sup>26</sup> These men were serving in the days of Joiakim, the son of Joshua, son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah, the duke, and of Ezra, the priest and writer.

<sup>27</sup> Forsooth in the hallowing of the wall of Jerusalem they sought deacons [or Levites] of all their places, to bring them into Jerusalem, and to make the hallowing in gladness, in the doing of thankings, and in song, and in cymbals, and in psalteries, and in harps.

<sup>28</sup> And the sons of singers were gathered together, both from the field places about Jerusalem, and from the towns of Netophathi,

<sup>29</sup> and from the house of Gilgal, and from the country of Geba, and of Azmaveth; for the singers had builded towns to themselves in the compass of Jerusalem.

<sup>30</sup> And [the] priests and deacons [or Levites] were cleansed, and then they cleansed the people, and the gates, and the wall.

<sup>31</sup> And I made the princes of Judah to go up on the wall, and I ordained two great choirs, or companies, of men praising the Lord; and they went to the right side on the wall, to the gate of the dunghill.

<sup>32</sup> And Hoshaiah went after them, and the half part of the princes of Judah,

<sup>35</sup> And of the sons of priests singing in trumps; Zechariah, the son of Jonathan, the son of Shemaiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Michaiah, the son of Zaccur, the son of Asaph.

<sup>38</sup> And the second choir of men telling out thankings went over against, or on the other side, and I went after them; and half part of the people was on the wall, and on the tower of ovens, and they went unto the broadest wall;

<sup>39</sup> and over the gate of Ephraim, and over the eld [or old] gate, and over the gate of fishes, and over the tower of Hananeel, and over the tower of Meah, and they came unto the gate of flock; and they stood still in the gate of keeping.

<sup>40</sup> And the two choirs of men praising stood in the house of God, and I and the half part of magistrates with me.

<sup>42</sup> and Maaseiah, and Shemaiah, and Eleazar, and Uzzi, and Jehohanan, and Malchijah, and Elam, and Ezer; and the singers sang clearly, and Jezrahiah, their sovereign also.

<sup>43</sup> And they offered in that day great sacrifices, and were glad; for God had made them glad with great gladness. But also their wives and their lawful children were joyful, and the gladness of Jerusalem was heard [a] far.

<sup>44</sup> Also they numbered in that day the men that were over the keeping places of the treasure, to receive moist [or liquor] sacrifices, and the first fruits, and tithes, that in seemliness, or fairness, of doing of thankings to the Lord, princes of the city should bring in by them, for the priests and deacons [or Levites]; for Judah was glad in priests and deacons present.

<sup>46</sup> for in the days of David and of Asaph, from the beginning, princes of singers were ordained, praising in song, and acknowledging to God.

<sup>47</sup> And all Israel, in the days of Zerubbabel, and in the days of Nehemiah, gave parts to singers and to porters, by all the days; and they hallowed a part for the deacons [or Levites], and the deacons hallowed a part for the sons of Aaron.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth in that day it was read in the book of Moses, in hearing of the people; and it was found written therein, that Ammonites and Moabites owe not to enter into the church of God till into without end;

<sup>2</sup> for they met not the sons of Israel with bread and water, and they hired against the sons of Israel Balaam, for to curse them; and our God turned the cursing into blessing.

<sup>3</sup> And it was done, when the people had heard the law, they separated each alien from Israel.

<sup>4</sup> And upon these things was Eliashib, the priest, that was sovereign in the chamber of the house of our God, and was the neighbour of Tobiah*.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore he made to him a great chamber in the house of God; and there before him were men that kept the gifts that were offered, and incense, and diverse vessels, and the tithe of wheat, of wine, and of oil, and the parts of deacons [or Levites], and of singers, and of porters, and the first fruits of priests.

<sup>6</sup> And in all these things I was not in Jerusalem; for in the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes, king of Babylon, I came to the king, and in the end of days I prayed the king.

<sup>7</sup> And I came into Jerusalem, and I understood the evil that Eliashib had done to Tobiah, to make to him a chamber in the porches of God's house;

<sup>8</sup> and to me it seemed full evil. And I casted forth the vessels of the house of Tobiah out of the chamber;

<sup>9</sup> and I commanded, and they cleansed the chambers; and I brought again there the vessels of God's house, and the sacrifice thereof, and the incense.

<sup>10</sup> And I knew that the parts of the deacons [or Levites] were not given to them, and that each man of the deacons and of the singers, and of them that ministered in the temple, had gone away into his country;

<sup>11</sup> and I did the cause against magi-strates, and I said, Why have ye forsaken the house of God? And I gathered them together, that is, deacons or Levites and the ministers, that had gone away, and I made them to stand in their standings.

<sup>13</sup> And we ordained on the barns, Shelemiah, the priest, and Zadok, the writer, and Pedaiah, one of the deacons [or Levites], and besides them we ordained Hanan, the son of Zaccur, the son of Mattaniah; for they were proved faithful men, and the parts of their brethren were betaken to them.

---

<sup>14</sup> My God, have mind of me for this thing, and do thou not away my merciful doings, which I have done in the house of my God, and in his ceremonies.

<sup>15</sup> In those days I saw in Judah men treading pressers in the sabbath, men bringing in heaps, and charging or loading on asses wine, and grapes, and figs, and all burdens, and bringing into Jerusalem in the day of sabbath; and I witnessed to them, that they should sell in the day in which it was leaveful to sell.

<sup>16</sup> And men of Tyre dwelled in it, and brought in fishes, and all things set to sale, and they sold in the sabbaths to the sons of Judah, and of Jerusalem.

<sup>17</sup> And I rebuked the principal men of Judah, and I said to them, What is this evil thing that ye do, and make unholy the day of the sabbath?

<sup>18</sup> Whether our fathers did not these things, and our God brought on us all this evil, and on this city? and ye increase wrathfulness on Israel, in defouling the sabbath.

<sup>19</sup> And it was done, when the gates of Jerusalem had rested in the day of sabbath, I said, Shut ye the gates; and they shutted the gates; and I com-manded, that they should not open the gates till after the sabbath. And of my children, or servants, I ordained numbers on the gates to keep shut, that no man should bring in a burden in the day of sabbath.

<sup>21</sup> And I areasoned with them, and I said to them, Why dwell ye there even against, or on the other side of, the wall? If ye do this thing the second time, I shall set hand on you. Therefore from that time forth they came not thither in the sabbath.

<sup>22</sup> Also I said to the deacons [or Levites], that they should be cleansed, and that they should come to keep the gates, and to hallow the day of sabbath. And therefore for this thing, my God, have mind of me, and spare me by the muchliness of thy merciful doings.

<sup>23</sup> But also in those days I saw Jews wedding wives, women of Ashdod, and women of Ammonites, and women of Moabites.

<sup>24</sup> And their children spake half part by the speech of Ashdod, and could not speak by the speech of Jews, and they spake by the language of this people, and of that people.

<sup>25</sup> And I rebuked them, and cursed them; and I beat the men of them, and I made them bald, and I made them swear by the Lord, that they should not give their daughters to the sons of those aliens, and that they should not take of the daughters of those aliens to their sons, and to themselves;

<sup>26</sup> and I said, Whether Solomon, the king of Israel, sinned not in such things? And certainly in many folks there was no king like him, and he was loved of his God, and God setted [or set] him king upon all Israel, and alien women brought him to sin.

<sup>27</sup> Whether also we unobedient, should do all this great evil, that we trespass against our Lord God, and wed alien wives?

<sup>29</sup> My Lord God, have mind against them, that defoul priesthood, and the right of priests, and of deacons [or Levites].

<sup>30</sup> Therefore I cleansed them from all aliens, and I ordained the orders of priests and of deacons [or Levites], each man in his service, <sup>31</sup> and in offering, that is, dressing, of trees, or of wood, to burn with offered sacrifices, in times ordained, and in the first fruits. My God, have mind of me into good.

ESTHER

<sup>1</sup> In the days of king Ahasuerus, that reigned from India unto Ethiopia, upon an hundred and seven and twenty provinces,

<sup>2</sup> when he sat in the seat of his realm, the city of Susa was the beginning of his realm.

<sup>3</sup> And in the third year of his empire, he made a great feast to all his princes, and to all his children, or servants, to the strongest men of Persia, and to the noble men of Media, and to the prefects, or chief men, of provinces, before himself,

<sup>4</sup> to show the riches of the glory of his realm, and the greatness, and boast of his power in much time, that is, an hundred and eighty days, this feast lasted.

<sup>5</sup> And when the days of the feast were ended, the emperor called to his next feast all the people that was found in the city of Susa, from the most unto the least; and he commanded this feast to be made ready by seven days in the porch of an orchard and of a wood, that was set about with the king's ornament and with his hand, or works.

<sup>6</sup> And tents of the colour of the air, and of gold, and of jacinth, were held up with cords of bis, and of purple, and they hanged on each side, the which tents were set-in [or in-set]with circles of ivory, and they were underset with pillars of marble; also there were ordained seats, at the manner of beds, of gold and of silver, upon the pavement arrayed with smaragdus and with other diverse and precious stones; the which pavement painture made fair by wonderful diversity.

<sup>7</sup> And they, that were called to meat, drank in golden cups, and meats were borne in to them with one and other vessels; also plenteous wine, and full good was set forth before them, as it was worthy to the great doing, of the king.

<sup>8</sup> And there was no man that constrained them to drink that would not drink; but so the king had ordained, making sovereigns of his princes to all boards, that each man should take that, that he would.

<sup>9</sup> Also Vashti, the queen, made a feast of women in the palace, where king Ahasuerus was wont to dwell.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore in the seventh day, when the king was gladder than before, and when he was hot of wine after full much drinking, he commanded to Mehuman, and to Biztha, and to Harbona, and to Bigtha, and to Zethar, and to Abagtha, and to Carcas, seven honest and chaste servants, the which served in his sight,

<sup>12</sup> And she forsook, and despised to come at the commandment of the king, which he had sent by the honest and chaste servants. Wherefore the king was angry, and kindled with full great vengeance;

<sup>13</sup> and he asked the wise men, which by the king's custom were ever with him, and he did all things by the counsel of them, that knew the law and the rights of greatest men;

<sup>14</sup> forsooth the first and the next were Carshena, and Shethar, Admatha, and Tarshish, and Meres, and Marsena, and Memucan, seven dukes of Persia and of Media, that saw the face of the king, and were wont to sit the first after him;

<sup>15</sup> the king asked them, to what sentence the queen Vashti should be subject, that would not do the com-mandment of king Ahasuerus, which he had sent by the honest and chaste servants.

<sup>17</sup> For the word of the queen shall go out to all women, that they also despise their husbands, and say, King Ahasuerus commanded, that the queen Vashti should have come to him, and she would not.

<sup>18</sup> And by this ensample all the wives of the princes of Persia and of Media shall despise the behests of their husbands; wherefore the indig-nation of the king is just.

<sup>19</sup> If it pleaseth to thee, a command-ment go out from thy face, and be written by the laws of Persia and of Media, which it is unleaveful to be passed by, that Vashti enter [in] no more to the king, but another woman, which is better than she, take her realm.

<sup>20</sup> And be this behest published into all the empire of thy provinces, which is full large, that all wives, both of greater men and of less, give honour to their husbands.

<sup>21</sup> [And] His counsel pleased the king and the princes, and the king did by the counsel of Memucan;

<sup>22</sup> and he sent out letters by all the provinces of his realm, as each folk might hear and read, in diverse languages and letters, that husbands be princes and greater men in their houses; and that this thing be published by all peoples.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Therefore when these things were done, after that the indignation of king Ahasuerus was assuaged, he bethought of Vashti, and what things she had done, and what things she had suffered.

<sup>2</sup> And then the servants and the ministers of the king said to him, Fair damsels and virgins, be sought to the king;

<sup>3</sup> and be there men sent forth, which should behold by all provinces damsels who be fair and virgins; and bring they them to the city of Susa, and betake they them into the house of women, under the keeping of Hegai, the honest servant and chaste, the which is the sovereign and keeper of the king's women; and take those damsels ornaments of women, and other things needful to their uses.

<sup>4</sup> And whichever damsel among all them pleaseth most the eyes of the king, reign she for Vashti. And this word pleased the king; and he commanded to be done so, as they counselled.

<sup>5</sup> And a man, a Jew, was in the city of Susa, Mordecai by name, the son of Jair, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish, of the generation of Benjamin;

<sup>6</sup> that was translated or borne over from Jerusalem in that time, in which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had translated Jeconiah, king of Judah;

<sup>7</sup> the which Mordecai was the nourisher of Hadassah, the daughter of his brother, which daughter was called Esther by another name, and she had lost both father and mother; and she was full fair, and seemly of face; and when her father and mother were dead, Mordecai took her to him, and he made her his daughter.

<sup>8</sup> And when the commandment of the king was oft published, and by his behest many fair virgins were brought to Susa, and were betaken to Hegai, the honest servant and chaste, also Esther among other damsels was betaken to him, that she should be kept in the number of those women.

<sup>9</sup> And she pleased him, and found grace in his sight, so that he hasted to take to her the ornaments of women, and he betook to Esther her parts of all things needful to her, and seven of the fairest damsels of the king's house; and Hegai adorned and arrayed both her and those damsels following her feet.

<sup>10</sup> And Esther would not show to Hegai her people, neither her country; for Mordecai had commanded her, that in all manner she should be still of this thing.

<sup>11</sup> And Mordecai walked each day before the porch of the door, in which the chosen virgins were kept, and he did the care of the health of Esther, and would know, what befel to her.

<sup>12</sup> And when the time of all the damsels by order was come, that they should go in to the king, and when all things were fulfilled that pertained to women's attire, the twelfth month was turned; so only that they were anointed with the oil of myrrh by six months, and by another six months they used some pigments and sweet-smelling ointments.

<sup>13</sup> And they entered to the king, and whatever thing pertaining to their ornaments they asked for, they took it with them; and they were arrayed as it pleased to them, and then they passed forth from the chamber of women to the king's bed.

<sup>14</sup> And she that had entered in the eventide, went out in the morrowtide; and from thence they were led forth into the second houses, that were under the hand of Shaashgaz, honest servant and chaste, that was governor of the king's concubines; and she had not power to go again more to the king, no but the king would or desired her, and had commanded her to come by name.

<sup>15</sup> And when the time was turned about by order, the day nighed, wherein Esther, the daughter of Abihail, the brother of Mordecai, the which Esther Mordecai had taken to him, and made her his daughter, ought to enter to the king; and she asked not for women's ornaments, but whatever things Hegai, the honest servant and chaste, and keeper of the virgins, would, he gave these things to Esther to her ornament; for she was full shapely, and of fairness that may not lightly be believed, and she was seen gracious and amiable to the eyes of all men.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore she was led to the bed of king Ahasuerus, in the tenth month, which is called Tebeth, in the seventh year of his realm.

<sup>17</sup> And the king loved Esther more fervently than all women, and she had grace and mercy before him over all other women; and he setted the diadem, or crown, of the realm on her head, and made her to reign in the stead of Vashti.

<sup>18</sup> And he commanded a full worshipful feast to be made ready to all his princes and servants, for the joining together and the weddings of Esther; and he gave rest, that is, releasing of tribute, to all provinces, and gave gifts, after the worshipful or honourable doing of a prince.

<sup>20</sup> And Esther had not yet showed her country and her people, by the behest of Mordecai; for-why whatever thing he commanded, Esther kept, and she did so then all things, as she was wont in that time, in which he nourished her as a little child.

<sup>21</sup> Then in that time, wherein Mordecai dwelled at the gate of the king, Bigthana and Teresh, two servants of the king, were wroth against the king, that were porters, and sat in the first threshold of the palace; and they would rise against the king, and slay him.

<sup>22</sup> Which thing was not hid from Mordecai, and anon Mordecai told this to the queen Esther, and she told it to the king, in the name of Mordecai, that had told that thing to her.

<sup>23</sup> And it was sought, and it was found sooth, and either of them was hanged in a gibbet; and this was commanded to be written in [the] stories, and it was betaken to the books of [the] years, before the king.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> After these things king Ahasuerus enhanced Haman, the son of Hamme-datha, that was of the kindred of Agag, and the king set his throne above all the princes that he had.

<sup>2</sup> And all the servants of the king, that served in the gates of the palace, kneeled, and worshipped or honoured Haman; for so the emperor had commanded to them; but Mordecai alone bowed not his knees to him, neither worshipped him.

<sup>4</sup> And when they said full oft to him these things, and he would not hear them, they told to Haman, for they coveted to know, whether he continued in the sentence that he had showed to them; for he had said to them, that he was a Jew.

<sup>5</sup> And when Haman had heard this thing, and had proved by experience, that Mordecai bowed not his knee to him, neither worshipped him, he was full wroth,

<sup>6</sup> and Haman areckoned it for nought to set [or put] his hands upon Mordecai alone, to kill him; for he had heard, that Mordecai was of the folk of Jews, and the more rather he would destroy all the nation of Jews, which were in the realm of Ahasuerus.

<sup>7</sup> In the first month, whose name is Nisan, that is, April, in the twelfth year of the realm of Ahasuerus, lot was cast into a vessel, the which lot is said in Hebrew pur; before Haman, to know in what day and in what month the folk of Jews ought to be slain; and by the lot the twelfth month went out, that is called Adar, that is, March.

<sup>8</sup> And then Haman said to king Ahasuerus, A people is scattered by all the provinces of thy realm, and it is separated from itself, and this people useth new laws and ceremonies, and furthermore also it despiseth the behests of the king; and thou knowest best, that it speedeth not to thy realm, that it increase in malice by license.

<sup>9</sup> If it please thee, deem and com-mand thou that this people perish, and I shall pay ten thousand talents of silver to the keepers of thy treasure.

<sup>12</sup> And then the scribes, or writers, of the king were called in the first month of Nisan, that is, April, in the thirteenth day of the same month; and it was written, as Haman had commanded, to all the princes of the king, and to doomsmen of diverse provinces and of folks, that for diversity of language, each folk might read these letters and hear them, in the name of king Ahasuerus.

<sup>13</sup> And letters, asealed with the ring of the king, were sent by the couriers of the king to all his provinces, that they should slay, and do away, or destroy, all Jews, from a child to an eld [or old] man, little children and women, in one day, that is, in the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, that is called Adar, or March; and that they should take away the goods of the Jews.

<sup>14</sup> And the sentence of the letters was this, written in a few words, that all provinces should know, and make them ready, to the foresaid day.

<sup>15</sup> And the couriers, that were sent forth, hasted to [ful] fill the command-ment of the king; and anon the behest of the king was hanged up in the city of Susa, while the king and Haman made a feast, and all the Jews wept, that were in that city.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And when Mordecai had heard these things, he rent his clothes, and he was clothed in a sackcloth, and he sprinkled ashes upon his head, and he cried with great voice in the street of the midst of the city, and showed the bitterness of his soul,

<sup>3</sup> Also in all provinces, cities, and places, to which the cruel sentence of the king was come, there was great wailing, fasting, and weeping, and yelling with the Jews, and many Jews used a sackcloth and ashes for their bed.

<sup>4</sup> And the damsels, and the honest servants and chaste of Esther entered in, and told this thing to Esther; which thing she heard, and was astonished; and she sent a cloth to Mordecai, that when the sackcloth was taken away, he should clothe him therein; the which cloth he would not take.

<sup>5</sup> And after that, Hatach, the honest servant and chaste, was called, whom the king had given as a minister or servant to her, and she commanded, that he should go to Mordecai, and learn of him, why he did this thing.

<sup>6</sup> And Hatach went forth, and he came to Mordecai standing in the street of the city, before the gate of the palace;

<sup>7</sup> and he showed to Hatach all things that had befallen, how Haman had promised to bring silver into the treasures [or treasuries] of the king, for the death of the Jews.

<sup>8</sup> Also Mordecai gave to Hatach the copy of the king's behest, that hanged in Susa, to show to the queen, and to admonish her for to enter to the king, and to beseech him for her people.

<sup>9</sup> And Hatach went again, and told to Esther all things, which Mordecai had said.

<sup>10</sup> And she answered to Hatach, and said, that he should say to Mordecai,

<sup>11</sup> All the servants of the king, and all the provinces which be under his lord-ship, know, that whether man either woman, not called of the king, entereth into the inner hall of the king, he shall be slain anon without any tarrying, but if in hap the king hold forth to him the golden rod for a token of mercy, and that he may live so; therefore how may I enter to the king, that am not called to him now by thirty days?

<sup>13</sup> he sent again to Esther, and said, Guess thou not, that thou shalt deliver only thy life, for thou art in the house of the king, before all Jews;

<sup>14</sup> for if thou art still now, the Jews shall be delivered by another way, and thou and the house of thy father shall perish; and who knoweth, whether therefore thou camest to the realm, that thou shouldest be made ready in such a time to help?

<sup>16</sup> Go thou, and gather together all the Jews, which thou findest in Susa, and pray ye for me; eat ye not, that is, fast ye, neither drink ye, in three days and three nights, and I with mine handmaidens shall fast in like manner; and then I not called, shall enter in to the king, and I shall do against the law, and I shall betake me to death and to peril.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore Mordecai went, and did all things, that Esther had com-manded to him.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth in the third day, Esther was clothed in royal clothes, and she stood in the porch of the king's house, that was withinforth over against the king's hall; and the king sat upon his throne, in the consistory of his palace, against the door of the house.

<sup>2</sup> And when he had seen Esther, the queen, standing there, she pleased his eyes, and he held forth against her the golden rod, that he held in his hand; and she nighed, and kissed the highness of his rod.

<sup>3</sup> And the king said to her, Esther, the queen, what wilt thou? what is thine asking? Yea, though thou ask the half part of my realm, it shall be given to thee.

<sup>4</sup> And she answered, If it pleaseth the king, I beseech, that thou come to me today, and Haman with thee, to the feast, that I have made ready.

<sup>5</sup> And anon the king said, Call ye anon Haman, that he obey to the will of Esther. And then the king and Haman came to the feast, which the queen had made ready to them.

<sup>6</sup> And the king said to Esther, after that he had drunk wine plenteously, What thing askest thou of me, that it be given to thee, and for what thing askest thou? Yea, though thou ask the half part of my realm, thou shalt get it.

<sup>8</sup> If I have found grace in the sight of the king, and if it pleaseth the king, that he give to me that thing, that I ask, and that he fulfill mine asking, the king and Haman come they tomorrow to the feast, that I have made ready to them; and tomorrow, I shall open my will to the king.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore Haman went out glad and swift in that day. And when he had seen Mordecai sitting before the gates of the palace, and not only to have not risen up to him, but soothly neither moved from the place of his sitting, he was full wroth;

<sup>10</sup> and Haman feigned him as not wroth therefore, and turned again in to his house, and he called together his friends, and Zeresh, his wife;

<sup>11</sup> and he told to them the greatness of his riches, and the company of his children, and with how great glory the king had enhanced him above all his princes and servants.

<sup>12</sup> And he said after these things, Also the queen Esther called none other man with the king to the feast, except me, with whom I shall eat also tomorrow with the king.

<sup>13</sup> And though I have all these things, I guess that I have nothing, as long as I see Mordecai, the Jew, sitting before the king's gates.

<sup>14</sup> And Zeresh, his wife, and his friends answered to him, Command thou an high beam, or a gallows tree, to be made ready, having fifty cubits of height; and speak thou tomorrow early to the king, and ask of him, that Mordecai be hanged thereon; and so thou shalt go glad with the king to the queen's feast. And the counsel of them pleased him, and he commanded an high cross, that is a gibbet, to be made ready.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> The king led that night without sleep, and he commanded the stories and the books of years of former times to be brought to him. And when those books were read in his presence,

<sup>2</sup> men came to the place, where it was written, how Mordecai had told of the treasons of Bigthana and Teresh, honest servants, coveting to strangle king Ahasuerus.

<sup>3</sup> And when the king had heard this, he said, What honour and meed got Mordecai for this faithfulness? And his servants and ministers said to him, Utterly he took no meed.

<sup>4</sup> And anon the king said, Who is in the hall? Soothly Haman had entered into the inner hall of the king's house, to make suggestion to the king, that he should command Mordecai to be hanged on the gibbet, which was made ready to him.

<sup>5</sup> And the servants of the king said to him, Haman standeth in the hall. And the king said, Enter he in.

<sup>6</sup> And when Haman was come in, the king said to him, What oweth to be done to the man, whom the king desireth to honour? And Haman thought in his heart, and he guessed, that the king was about to honour no other man but himself, Haman;

<sup>8</sup> oweth to be clothed in the king's clothes, and to be set [or put] on the horse which is of the king's saddle, and to take the king's diadem, that is, his crown, upon his head;

<sup>9</sup> and the first, or chief, of the princes and of the strong men of the king, he hold his horse, leading him, and go he by the streets of the city, and cry he, and say, Thus he shall be honoured, whom the king will honour.

<sup>10</sup> And then the king said to Haman, Haste thou thee, and when the king's clothing, and his horse, is taken to thee, do thou, as thou hast spoken, to Mordecai, the Jew, that sitteth before the gates of the palace; and be thou ware, that thou leave not out, or undone, anything of these, which thou hast now spoken.

<sup>11</sup> And then Haman took the king's cloth, and his palfrey, and he went forth, and cried before Mordecai, clothed in the king's clothing, leading him in the chief street of the city, and set upon his palfrey, He is worthy of this honour, whomever the king will honour.

<sup>12</sup> And after this Mordecai turned again to the gate of the palace, and Haman hasted to go into his house, mourning, and with his head covered.

<sup>13</sup> And he told to Zeresh, his wife, and to his friends all things that had befallen to him. To whom the wise men, which he had in counsel, and his wife, answered, If Mordecai, before whom thou hast begun to fall, is of the seed of Jews, thou shalt not be able to against-stand him, but thou shalt fall in his sight.

<sup>14</sup> Yet while they spake these things, the honest servants and chaste of the king came after Haman, and they compelled him to go anon to the feast, which the queen had made ready.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>2</sup> And the king said also to Esther in the second day, after that he was hot of the wine, Esther, what is thine asking of me, that it be given to thee, and what wilt thou be done? Yea, though thou ask the half part of my realm, thou shalt have it.

<sup>3</sup> To whom she answered, O! king, if I have found grace in thine eyes, and if it pleaseth thee, give thou my life to me, for which I pray thee now, and also the life of my people, for the which I beseech thee.

<sup>4</sup> For I and my people be given, that we be defouled, and strangled, and that we perish; O! why not had we rather been sold into servants and servantesses, for that evil might have been suffered, and I, wailing, should have been still; but now our enemy is present, whose cruelty turneth against the king.

<sup>5</sup> And king Ahasuerus answered, and said, Who is this, and of what power, that he be hardy to do such things?

<sup>6</sup> And Esther said, Our worst adversary and enemy is this Haman. The which thing when he heard, he was astonied anon, and he was not sufficient to bear the semblance, or the indignation, of the king and of the queen.

<sup>7</sup> And the king rose up wroth, and from the place of the feast he entered into a garden beset about with trees. And Haman rose up for to pray Esther, the queen, for his life; for he understood evil made ready of the king to him.

<sup>8</sup> And when the king turned again from the garden, and had entered into the place of the feast, he found that Haman had fallen down upon the bed, wherein Esther lay.

And the king said, Also he will oppress the queen, while I am present, in mine house. And the word was not yet gone out of the king's mouth, and anon men covered the face of Haman.

<sup>9</sup> And Harbona, one of the honest servants and chaste, that stood in the service of the king, said, Lo! a tree having fifty cubits of height standeth in the house of Haman, which he had made ready to Mordecai, that spake for the king, and made known his traitors. To whom the king said, Hang ye Haman in that tree.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore Haman was hanged in the gibbet, which he had made ready to Mordecai, and the ire of the king rested.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>2</sup> Therefore the king took the ring, which he had commanded to be received from Haman, and he gave it to Mordecai. And Esther ordained Mordecai to be sovereign over her household.

<sup>3</sup> And Esther was not appeased with these things, and felled down to the feet of the king, and wept, and spake to him, and prayed, that he should command the malice of Haman of the kindred of Agag, and his worst casts, which he had thought out against the Jews, to be made void.

<sup>5</sup> and said, If it pleaseth the king, and if I have found grace before his eyes, and if my prayer is not seen to be contrary to him, I beseech, that the eld [or old] letters of Haman, the traitor, and enemy of Jews, by which he had commanded them to perish in all the provinces of the king, be amended by new letters;

<sup>6</sup> for how shall I be able to suffer the death, and the slaying, of my people?

<sup>7</sup> And king Ahasuerus answered to Esther, the queen, and to Mordecai, the Jew, and said, I have granted the house of Haman to Esther, the queen, and I commanded him to be hanged on the cross, for-thy that he was hardy to set [or put] hand against the Jews.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore write ye to [the] Jews, as it pleaseth to you, by the name of the king, and a seal ye the letters with my ring. For this was the custom, that no man durst against-say the letters, that were sent in the king's name, and were sealed with his ring.

<sup>9</sup> And when the arrayers of the king's letters, and his writers, were called; it was then the time of the third month, that is called Sivan, that is, June, in the three and twentieth day of the month; letters were written, as Mordecai would, to [the] Jews, and to [the] princes, and to procurators, and to judges, that were sovereigns over an hundred and seven and twenty provinces, from India unto Ethiopia, they were written to that province and to that province, to that people and to that people, by their languages and by their letters, and to the Jews, that they might read and hear them.

<sup>10</sup> And those letters, that were sent in the name of the king, were asealed with his ring, and were sent forth by his messengers, the which ran about by all provinces, and they came with [the] new messages before that the eld [or old] letters were executed.

<sup>11</sup> To whom the king commanded, that they should call together the Jews, and command them to be gathered together by all cities, and that they should stand together for their lives; and that they should slay, and do away, all their enemies, with their wives, and with their children, and with all their households.

<sup>12</sup> And one day of vengeance, that is, the thirteenth day of the twelfth month of Adar, that is, March, was ordained by all provinces.

<sup>13</sup> And the short sentence of the epistle was this, that it were made known in all lands and peoples, that were subject to the empire of king Ahasuerus, that the Jews be ready that day to take vengeance of their enemies.

<sup>14</sup> And the messengers went out, before-bearing swift messages; and this same behest of the king hanged in the city of Susa.

<sup>16</sup> Certainly then a new light seemed to rise up to the Jews, and joy, and honour, and dancing

<sup>17</sup> was at all peoples, and cities, and at all provinces, whither ever the commandments of the king came, among them was a wonderful joy, and meats, and feasts, and an holy day, in so much, that many of another folk and sect were joined to the religion and ceremonies of them; for the great dread of the name of Jews had assailed all them.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> Therefore in the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which we said now before to be called Adar, when slaying was made ready to all the Jews by Haman, and their enemies setted treason to their blood, on the contrary, the Jews now began to be the higher part, and to avenge them of their adversaries.

<sup>2</sup> And the Jews were gathered together by all cities, castles [or burg towns], and places, to stretch forth hand against their enemies and pursuers; and no man was hardy to against-stand them, for the dread of their greatness had pierced all peoples.

<sup>3</sup> For why both the judges, dukes, and procurators of provinces, and each dignity, that were sovereigns of all places and works, enhanced the Jews, for the dread of Mordecai was upon them,

<sup>4</sup> whom they knew to be a prince of the king's palace, and to be able to do full much; and the fame of his name increased each day, and flew by the mouths of all men.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore the Jews smote their enemies with great vengeance, and killed them, and yielded to their enemies that, that they had made ready to do to them,

<sup>6</sup> in so much, that also in the city of Susa the Jews killed five hundred men, without the ten sons of Haman of the kindred of Agag, the enemy of Jews, of the which sons these be the names;

<sup>10</sup> And when the Jews had slain the sons of Haman, they would not touch the preys of the chattels, [or substance], of them.

<sup>11</sup> And anon the number of them, that were slain in the city of Susa, was told to the king.

<sup>12</sup> And he said to the queen, The Jews have slain five hundred men in the city of Susa, and the ten sons of Haman; how great slaying guessest thou, that they haunt in all provinces? what askest thou more? and what wilt thou, that I command to be done?

<sup>13</sup> To whom Esther answered, If it pleaseth the king, power be given to the Jews, that as they have done today in Susa, so do they also tomorrow, and that the bodies of the ten sons of Haman be hanged up in gibbets.

<sup>14</sup> And the king commanded, that it should be done so; and anon the behest of the king hanged in Susa, and the bodies of the ten sons of Haman were hanged up.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore when the Jews were gathered together, in the fourteenth day of the month [of] Adar, or March, three hundred men were slain in Susa, and the Jews took not away the chattel of those men.

<sup>16</sup> But also by all the provinces, that were subject to the lordship of the king, Jews stood for their lives, when their enemies and pursuers were slain, in so much, that five and seventy thousand of slain men were filled, and no man touched anything of the chattels of them.

<sup>17</sup> Certainly the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, or March, was the day of slaying with all them, and in the fourteenth day they ceased to slay; and that day they ordained to be solemn, so that therein in each time afterward, they should give attention to meats, yea, to joy, and to feasts.

<sup>18</sup> And those Jews, that used, or haunted, the slaying in the city of Susa, lived in slaying in the thirteenth and fourteenth days of the same month. But in the fifteenth day they ceased to slay; and therefore they ordained the same day to be solemn of feasts and of gladness.

<sup>19</sup> And these Jews, that dwelled in burg towns not walled, and in villages, deemed the fourteen day of the month [of] Adar to be solemn of feasts, and of joy, so that they be joyful therein, and send, each to other, parts of their feasts, and of their meats.

<sup>20</sup> And Mordecai wrote all these things, and he sent all these things written by letters to the Jews, that dwelled in all the provinces of the king, as well to Jews dwelling nigh as far, [or both in nigh set and afar],

<sup>21</sup> that they should receive and hold for their feast days the fourteenth and the fifteenth days of the month [of] Adar, and ever<sup>[more]</sup> when the year turneth again, to hallow these days with solemn honour;

<sup>22</sup> for in those days the Jews avenged themselves of their enemies, and then their mourning and their sorrow were turned into gladness and joy; and therefore these days should be days of feasts, and of gladness, and that they should send, each to other, parts of meats, and give little gifts to poor men.

<sup>23</sup> And the Jews received into a solemn custom all those things, which they began to do in that time, and which things Mordecai had command-ed by letters to be done.

<sup>24</sup> For Haman, the son of Hamme-datha, of the kindred of Agag, the enemy and adversary of Jews, thought evil against them, to slay them, and to do them away, and he cast pur, that is to say in our language, lot, to do it.

<sup>25</sup> And after this Esther entered in to the king, and besought, that the enforcings or endeavours of Haman should be made void by the letters of the king, and that the evil, which he had thought against the Jews, should turn again into his head. Forsooth they hanged on the cross both him and his sons.

<sup>26</sup> And from that time these days were called Purim, that is, of lots, for pur, that is, lot, was sent, or cast, into a vessel; and the Jews received upon themselves, and upon their seed, and upon all men that would be coupled to their religion, all things that were done, and be contained in the volume of the epistle, that is, of this book,

<sup>27</sup> and which things they suffered, and which things were changed after-ward, so that it be not leaveful to any man to pass these two days without solemnity, which days the scripture witnesseth, and certain times ask, while the years come continually one after another.

<sup>28</sup> These be the days, which never any forgetting shall do away, but by all generations all the provinces, that be in all the world, shall hallow them; neither there is any city, in which the days of Purim, that is, of lots, shall not be kept of [the] Jews, and of the generation of them, which is bound to these ceremonies.

<sup>29</sup> And Esther, the queen, the daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai, the Jew, wrote also the second epistle, that this solemn day should be hallowed afterward with all busyness.

<sup>30</sup> And they sent their letter to those Jews, that dwelled in an hundred and seven and twenty provinces of king Ahasuerus, that they should have peace, and receive the truth,

<sup>31</sup> and that they should keep the days of lots, and hallow them with joy in their time, as Mordecai and Esther had ordained; and they received the rules for the fastings, and the solemn cries, and the days of lots, to be kept of themselves and of their seed, <sup>32</sup> and they received all things that be contained in the story of this book, that is called Esther.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>2</sup> whose strength and empire and his dignity and highness, by which he enhanced Mordecai, be written in the books of the kings of Media and of Persia;

<sup>3</sup> and how Mordecai of the kin of the Jews was the second from king Ahasuerus, and was great with Jews, and acceptable to the people of his brethren, and he sought good things to his people, and spake those things, that pertained to the peace of his seed.

Here endeth the text of Hebrew. I have set openly with full faith those things, that be had in Hebrew; but I found these things that follow (verses 10:4—16:24, omitted here, see Wycliffe's Apocrypha for the Additions to Esther), written in the common translation, that be contained in the language and letters of the Greeks.

JOB

<sup>1</sup> In the land of Uz was a man that was called Job; and that man was simple, that is, without guile, and rightful [or right], and dreading God, and going away from evil.

<sup>2</sup> And there were seven sons and three daughters born to him;

<sup>3</sup> and his possession was seven thousand of sheep, and three thousand of camels, and five hundred yokes of oxen, and five hundred of female asses, and full much household; and this Job was a great man among all the men of the east.

<sup>4</sup> And his sons went, and made feasts by their houses, each man in his day; and they sent, and called their three sisters, to eat, and to drink wine with them.

<sup>5</sup> And when the days of feast had passed into the world, that is, in the end of the week, Job sent to them, and hallowed them, and he rose early, and offered burnt sacrifices by all. For he said, Lest peradventure my sons do sin, and curse God in their hearts, [*or Lest peradventure my sons sin, and bless* to God in their hearts*]. Job did so in all days.

<sup>6</sup> And in a day, when the sons of God were come to be present before the Lord, also Satan came among them.

<sup>7</sup> To whom the Lord said, From whence comest thou? And Satan answered, and said, I have compassed the earth, and I have walked through it.

<sup>8</sup> And the Lord said to him, Whether thou hast beheld my servant Job, that there is no man in [the] earth like him; he is a simple man, and rightful [or right], and dreading God, and going away from evil?

<sup>11</sup> But stretch forth thine hand a little, and touch thou all things that he hath in possession, taking them away, or extinguishing them; and if he curse not thee in the face, he is verily simple, and rightwise, and dreading thee.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore the Lord said to Satan, Lo! all things, which he hath, be in thine hand; only stretch thou not forth thine hand into him. And Satan went out from the face of the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> a messenger came to Job, and said to him, Thine oxen eared, and thy female asses [were] pastured beside them;

<sup>15</sup> and Sabeans felled in, and took away all things, and smited the children or servants with sword; and I alone escaped to tell to thee.

<sup>16</sup> And when he spake yet, another came, and said, [The] Fire of God came down from heaven, and wasted [the] sheep, and smote thy children or servants; and I alone escaped for to tell to thee.

<sup>17</sup> But yet the while he spake, also another came, and said, Chaldees made three companies, and assailed the camels, and took those [or them] away, and they have killed thy servants with sword; and I alone escaped to tell to thee.

<sup>18</sup> And yet while he spake, lo! another entered, and said, While thy sons and daughters ate, and drank wine in the house of their first begotten brother,

* CHAPTER 1:5 That is, Lest peradventure my sons do sin, and curse God in their hearts; for the horror of cursing, Jews signified it by the contrary name.

<sup>19</sup> a great wind felled in suddenly from the coast of desert, and shook [the] four corners of the house, which felled down, and oppressed thy children, and they be dead; and I alone fled to tell to thee.

<sup>20</sup> Then Job rose up, and he rent his clothes, and when his head was polled, he felled down upon the earth, and he worshipped God, <sup>21</sup> and said, I went naked out of the womb of my mother, and naked I shall turn again thither; the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; as it pleased the Lord, so be it done; the name of the Lord be blessed.

<sup>22</sup> In all these things Job sinned not in his lips, neither spake any folly thing against God.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, in a day the sons of God were come to praise him, and they stood before the Lord, and Satan was come among them, and he stood in the sight of the Lord,

<sup>2</sup> and the Lord said to Satan, From whence comest thou? Which answered, and said, I have compassed the earth, and I have gone through it.

<sup>3</sup> And the Lord said to Satan, Whether thou hast not considered my servant Job, that none in [the] earth is like him; he is a simple man, and rightful [or right], and dreading God, and going away from evil, and yet holding innocence? But thou hast moved me against him, that I should torment or vex him in vain.

<sup>4</sup> To whom Satan answered, and said, A man shall give skin for skin, and all things that he hath for his life;

<sup>6</sup> Therefore the Lord said to Satan, Lo! he is in thine hand; nevertheless keep thou his life.

<sup>8</sup> and Job sat in a dunghill, and he shaved away the quitter or pus of him with a shell.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth his wife said to him, Dwellest thou yet in thy simpleness, that is, fondness or foolishness? Curse thou God, and die.

<sup>10</sup> And Job said to her, Thou hast spoken as one of the fond [or foolish] women; if we have taken goods of the hand of the Lord, why forsooth suffer we not evils? In all these things Job sinned not in his lips.

<sup>11</sup> And then three friends of Job heard of all the evil that had befallen to him, and they came to him, each of them from his place, Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite; for they had said together to themselves, that they would come together, and visit Job, and comfort him.

<sup>12</sup> And when they had raised afar their eyes, they knew not him; and they cried [out], and wept, and rent their clothes, and sprinkled dust on their heads into heaven.

<sup>13</sup> And they sat with him in the earth seven days and seven nights, and no man spake a word to him; for they saw, that his sorrow was great.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>3</sup> Perish the day in which I was born, and the night in which it was said, A man is conceived.

<sup>5</sup> Darkness make it dark, and the shadow of death and of mist occupy it; and be it wrapped with bitterness.

<sup>9</sup> [The] Stars of that night be they made dark with the darkness thereof; abide it light, and see it not, neither see it the beginning of the morrow-tide rising up.

<sup>10</sup> For it closed not the doors of the womb, that bare me, neither it took away evil from mine eyes.

<sup>11</sup> Why was not I dead in the womb? why went I out of the womb, and perished not anon?

<sup>13</sup> For now I sleeping should be still, and I should rest in my sleep,

<sup>14</sup> with kings and counsellors of the earth, which build to them sullen places;

<sup>15</sup> either with princes that have gold in possession, and fill their houses with silver;

<sup>16</sup> either as a child, or a beast, born before the time, and hid, I should not have been; either as they that be conceived, and saw not light.

<sup>17</sup> There wicked men ceased of making noise, and there men made weary of strength rested.

<sup>21</sup> Which abide death, and it cometh not; as men that dig out treasure, <sup>22</sup> and joy greatly, when they have found a sepulchre?

<sup>23</sup> Why is light given to a man, whose way is hid, and God hath encompassed him with darkneses?

<sup>25</sup> For the dread, which I dreaded, hath come to me; and that thing, that I shamed [of], hath befallen to me.

<sup>26</sup> Whether I dissembled or feigned not? whether I was not still? whether I rested not? and yet indignation hath come [up] on me.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>2</sup> If we begin to speak to thee, in hap thou shalt take it heavily; but who may hold a word conceived?

<sup>6</sup> Where is thy dread, thy strength, and thy patience, and the perfection of thy ways?

<sup>7</sup> I beseech thee, have thou mind, what innocent man perished ever, either when rightful [or rightwise] men were done away?

---

* CHAPTER 3:8 That is, the Devil, as Alcuin saith.

<sup>8</sup> Certainly rather I saw them, that work wickedness, and sow sorrows, and reap those [or them],

<sup>9</sup> to have perished by God blowing, and to be wasted by the spirit of his ire.

<sup>10</sup> The roaring of a lion, and the voice of a lioness, and the teeth of whelps of lions, be all-broken.

<sup>12</sup> Certainly an hid word was said to me, and mine ear took as it were thief-like the veins of the privy speak-ing thereof.

<sup>13</sup> In the hideousness of [the] night's sight, when heavy sleep is wont to occupy men, <sup>14</sup> dread and trembling held me; and all my bones were afeared.

<sup>15</sup> And when the spirit went in my presence, the hairs of my flesh had hideousness.

<sup>17</sup> Whether a man shall be made just [or justified] in comparison of God? either a man shall be cleaner than his Maker?

<sup>18</sup> Lo! they that serve him be not steadfast; and he hath found shrewd-ness in his angels.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Therefore, Job, call thou, if there is any man that shall answer thee, and turn thou to some of [the] saints.

<sup>5</sup> Whose ripe corn an hungry man shall eat, and an armed man shall ravish him, and they, that thirst, shall drink his riches.

<sup>8</sup> Wherefore I shall beseech the Lord, and I shall set [or put] my speech to my God.

<sup>9</sup> That maketh great things, and that may not be sought out, and wonder-ful things without number.

<sup>10</sup> The which God giveth rain upon the face of the earth, and moisteth all things with waters.

<sup>13</sup> Which taketh sly cautelous men in their own fellness, and he destroyeth the counsel of shrews or the depraved.

<sup>14</sup> By day they shall run into dark-nesses, and as in night, so they shall grope in midday.

<sup>19</sup> In six tribulations he shall deliver thee, and in the seventh tribulation evil shall not touch thee.

<sup>21</sup> Thou shalt be hid from the scourge of an evil tongue, and thou shalt not dread mis-ease, either wretchedness, when it cometh.

<sup>23</sup> But thy covenant shall be with the stones of earth, and beasts of earth shall be peaceable to thee.

<sup>24</sup> And thou shalt know, that thy tabernacle hath peace, and thou visiting thy fairness, that is, beholding thy prosperity, shalt not sin.

<sup>25</sup> And thou shalt know also, that thy seed shall be manyfold, and thy generation shall be as an herb of [the] earth.

<sup>26</sup> In abundance of years thou shalt go into the sepulchre, as an heap of wheat is borne [in] in his time.

<sup>27</sup> Lo! this thing is so, as we have sought; the which thing when thou hast heard, treat it in thy mind.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>2</sup> I would, that my sins, by which I have deserved the wrath of God, and the wretchedness which I suffer, were weighed in a balance.

<sup>5</sup> Whether a field ass shall roar, when he hath grass? Either whether an ox shall low, when he standeth before a full cratch?

<sup>6</sup> Either whether a thing unsavory may be eaten, which is not made savory by salt? Either whether any man may taste a thing, which tasted bringeth death? For why to an hungry soul, yea, bitter things seem to be sweet;

<sup>7</sup> those things which my soul would not touch before, be now my meats for anguish.

<sup>8</sup> Who giveth, or granteth, that mine asking come to me; and that God give to me that thing, that I abide?

<sup>9</sup> And he that hath begun to punish, all-break he me; loose he his hand, and cut he me down?

<sup>10</sup> And this be comfort to me, that he torment me with sorrow, and spare not, and that I against-say not the words of the Holy.

<sup>11</sup> For what is my strength, that I suffer? either which is mine end, that I suffer it patiently?

<sup>12</sup> Neither my strength is the strength of stones, neither my flesh is of brass.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! none help is to me in me; and also my necessary friends parted from me.

<sup>15</sup> My brethren passed from me, as a strand *[or stream]*doeth, that passeth by rushing in great valleys.

<sup>20</sup> They be shamed, for I hoped; and they came unto me, and they be covered with shame.

<sup>22</sup> Whether I said, Bring ye to me, and give ye of your chattel to me?

<sup>23</sup> either said, Deliver ye me from the hand of mine enemy, and draw away ye me from the hand of strong men?

<sup>24</sup> Teach ye me, and I shall be still; and if in hap I unknew anything, teach ye me.

<sup>25</sup> Why have ye contraried the words of truth? since there is none of you, that may reprove me.

<sup>29</sup> I beseech you, answer ye me with-out strife, and speak ye, and deem ye that, that is just [or rightwise].

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Knighthood, that is, continual travail, and fighting against vices, is the life of a man upon earth, and his days be as the days of an hired man.

<sup>3</sup> so I have had void months, and I have numbered travailous nights to me.

<sup>4</sup> If I shall sleep, I shall say, When shall I rise? and again I shall abide the eventide, and I shall be full-filled with sorrows unto darkneses come.

<sup>5</sup> My flesh is clothed with rot, and filths of dust; my skin dried up, and is drawn together.

<sup>6</sup> My days have passed swifter than a web is cut down from the looms; and those days be wasted without any hope of coming again.

<sup>7</sup> God, have thou mind, for my life is wind, and mine eye shall not turn again, that it see goods.

<sup>8</sup> Neither the sight of man shall behold me; but thine eyes be in me, and I shall not be in deadly life, that is, I shall not abide alive.

<sup>9</sup> As a cloud is wasted, and passeth soon away, so he that goeth down to hell, shall not go up from thence;

<sup>10</sup> neither he shall turn again more into his house, and his place shall no more know him.

<sup>11</sup> Wherefore and I shall not spare my mouth; I shall speak in the tribulation of my spirit, I shall talk altogether with the bitterness of my soul.

<sup>12</sup> Whether I am a sea, either a whale, for thou hast encompassed me with a prison?

<sup>13</sup> If I shall say, My bed shall comfort me, and I shall be relieved, or quieted, speaking with me in my bed;

<sup>14</sup> thou shalt make me afeared by dreams, and thou shalt shake me with horror, either hideousness, by sights.

<sup>17</sup> What is a man, for thou magnifiest him? either what settest thou thine heart toward him?

<sup>20</sup> I have sinned; O! thou keeper of men, what shall I do to thee? Why hast thou set me contrary to thee, and I am made grievous to myself?

<sup>21</sup> Why doest thou not away my sin, and why takest thou not away my wickedness? Lo! now I shall sleep in dust, and if thou seekest me early, I shall not abide.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>6</sup> if thou goest clean and rightful, anon he shall wake fully to thee, and shall make peaceable the dwelling place of thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness];

<sup>7</sup> in so much that thy former things were little, and that thy last things be multiplied greatly.

<sup>8</sup> For why, ask thou the former generations, and seek thou diligently the mind of [the] fathers.

<sup>9</sup> For we be men of yesterday, and know not; for our days be as a shadow on the earth.

<sup>10</sup> And they shall teach thee, [and] they shall speak to thee, and of their heart they shall bring forth true speeches.

<sup>13</sup> So be the ways of all men, that forget God; and the hope of an hypocrite shall perish.

<sup>14</sup> His cowardice shall not please God, and his trust shall be as a web of spiders.

<sup>16</sup> The bulrush seemeth moist, before that the sun come; and in the rising of the sun, the seed thereof shall go out.

<sup>17</sup> The roots thereof shall be made thick upon an heap of stones, and it shall dwell among [the] stones.

<sup>19</sup> For this is the gladness of his way, that again other bulrushes spring out of the earth.

<sup>22</sup> They that hate thee shall be clothed with shame; and the tabernacle of wicked men shall not stand.

<sup>2</sup> Verily I know, that it is so, and that a man comparisond to God shall not be made just [or justified].

<sup>3</sup> If he will strive with God, he may not answer to God one for a thousand.

<sup>4</sup> He is wise in heart, and strong in might; who hath against-stood him, and had peace?

<sup>5</sup> He bare over hills from one place to another, and they knew not; which he destroyed in his strong vengeance.

<sup>9</sup> He maketh Arcturus, and Orion, and Pleiades, that is, the seven stars, and the inner things of the south.

<sup>10</sup> He maketh great things, and that may not be sought out, and also wonderful things, of which there is none number.

<sup>11</sup> If he cometh to me, I shall not see him; if he goeth away from me, I shall not understand.

<sup>12</sup> If he asketh suddenly, who shall answer to him? either who may say to him, Why doest thou so?

<sup>13</sup> He is God, whose wrath no man may withstand; and under whom they be bowed, that bear the world.

<sup>14</sup> How great am I, that I answer to him, and speak by my words with him?

<sup>16</sup> And when he hath heard me inwardly calling him, I believe not, that he hath heard my voice.

<sup>17</sup> For in a whirlwind he shall all-break me, and he shall multiply my wounds, yea, without cause.

<sup>18</sup> He granteth not, that my spirit have rest, and he filleth me with bitternesses.

<sup>19</sup> If strength is sought, he is most strong; and if equity of doom is sought, no man dare yield witnessing for me.

<sup>20</sup> If I will make me just [or justify me], my own mouth shall condemn me; if I shall show me innocent, he shall prove me a shrew.

<sup>21</sup> Yea, though I be simple, my soul shall not know this same thing; and it shall annoy me of my life.

<sup>22</sup> One thing is, which I spake, he shall waste by death also the innocent and [the] wicked man.

<sup>23</sup> If he beateth, slay he once, and laugh he not of the pains of innocent men.

<sup>24</sup> The earth is given into the hands of the wicked; he covereth the faces of judges; that if he is not, who there-fore is?

<sup>25</sup> My days were swifter than a courier; they fled away, and saw not good.

<sup>26</sup> They passed away as [the] ships bearing apples, as an eagle flying to meat.

<sup>27</sup> When I say, I shall not speak so; I change my face, and I am tormented with sorrow.

<sup>30</sup> Though I am washed as with waters of snow, and though mine hands shine as most clean, <sup>31</sup> nevertheless thou shalt dip me in filths, and my clothes shall hold, or show, me abominable.

<sup>32</sup> Truly I shall not answer a man, that is like me; neither that may be heard evenly with me in doom.

<sup>33</sup> There is none, that may reprove ever either, and set [or put] his hand in both.

<sup>35</sup> I shall speak, and I shall not dread him; for I may not answer dreading.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> It annoyeth my soul of my life; I shall leave my speech against me, I shall speak in the bitterness of my soul.

<sup>2</sup> I shall say to God, Do not thou condemn me; show thou to me, why thou deemest me so.

<sup>3</sup> Whether it seemeth good to thee, if thou challengest me as false, and oppressest me, the work of thine hands; and if thou helpest the counsel of wicked men?

<sup>4</sup> Whether fleshly eyes be to thee, either, as a man seeth, also thou shalt see?

<sup>5</sup> Whether thy days be as the days of a man, and be thy years as man's times;

<sup>6</sup> that thou inquire about my wicked-ness, and ensearch my sin?

<sup>7</sup> And thou, Lord, know, that I have done no wicked thing; since there is no man, that may deliver from thine hand?

<sup>8</sup> Thine hands have made me, and have formed me all in compass; and thou hast cast me down suddenly.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, I pray thee, have thou mind, that thou madest me as clay, and shalt bring me again into dust.

<sup>10</sup> Whether thou hast not milked me as milk, and hast crudded or curdled me together as cheese?

<sup>11</sup> Thou hast clothed me with skin and flesh; and thou hast joined me together with bones and sinews.

<sup>13</sup> And though thou coverest these things in thine heart, nevertheless I know, that thou hast mind of all these things.

<sup>14</sup> And if when I did sin, thou spared-est me at an hour; why sufferest thou not me to be clean of my wickedness?

<sup>15</sup> And if I was wicked, woe is to me; and if I was just [or rightwise], I shall not raise up mine head, that am full-filled with torment, and wretched-ness.

<sup>16</sup> And if I raise up mine head for pride, thou shalt take me as a lioness; and thou turnest again, and tormentest me wonderfully.

<sup>18</sup> Lord, why hast thou led me out of the womb? Why not had I erst been wasted, that an eye had not seen me.

<sup>19</sup> That I had been, as if I were not, and were translated, either borne over, from the womb to the sepulchre.

<sup>20</sup> Whether not the fewness of my days shall be ended in short time? Therefore suffer thou me, that I bewail a little my sorrow,

<sup>21</sup> before that I go, and turn not again, to the dark land, and covered with the darkness of death,

<sup>22</sup> to the land of wretchedness, and of darkneses; where is shadow of death, and none order, but everlasting hideousness dwelleth.

CHAPTER 11

- <sup>1</sup> Then Zophar the Naamathite answered, and said,
<sup>2</sup> Whether he, that speaketh many things, shall not also hear? either a man full of words shall be made just [or justified]?
<sup>3</sup> Shall men be still to thee alone? and when thou hast scorned other men, shalt thou not be overcome of any man?
<sup>4</sup> For thou saidest, My word is clean, and I am clean in thy sight.
<sup>5</sup> And I would, that God spake with thee, and opened his lips to thee;
<sup>6</sup> to show to thee the privates of wisdom, and that his law is manifold, and thou shouldest then understand, that thou art required of God to pay much less things, than thy wickedness deserveth.
<sup>7</sup> In hap thou shalt comprehend the steps of God, and thou shalt find Almighty God unto perfection.
<sup>8</sup> He is higher than heaven, and what shalt thou do? he is deeper than hell, and whereof shalt thou know?
<sup>10</sup> If he destroyeth all things, either driveth them straitly into one, who shall against-say him? Either who may say to him, Why doest thou so?
<sup>11</sup> For he knoweth the vanity of men; and whether he seeing, beholdeth not wickedness?
<sup>12</sup> A vain man is raised into pride; and he guesseth himself born free, as the colt of a wild ass.
<sup>13</sup> But thou hast made steadfast thine heart, and hast spread abroad thine hands to him.
<sup>14</sup> If thou doest away from thee the wickedness, that is in thine hand, and if unrightwiseness dwelleth not in thy tabernacle,
<sup>15</sup> then thou shalt raise up thy face without wem, and thou shalt be steadfast, and thou shalt not dread.
<sup>16</sup> And thou shalt forget thy wretched-ness, and thou shalt not think of it, as of waters that have passed by.
<sup>17</sup> And as midday shining, it shall raise to thee at eventide; and when thou guessest thee to be wasted, thou shalt rise up as the day star.
<sup>18</sup> And thou shalt have trust, while hope shall be set forth to thee; and thou buried shalt sleep securely.
<sup>19</sup> Thou shalt rest, and none shall be that shall make thee afeared; and full many men shall beseech thy face.
<sup>20</sup> But the eyes of wicked men shall fail; and succor shall perish from them, and the hope of them shall be abomination of soul.

CHAPTER 12

- <sup>1</sup> Soothly Job answered, and said,
<sup>2</sup> And ye therefore be men alone, and wisdom dwell with you?
<sup>3</sup> And to me is an heart, as and to you, and I am not lower than ye; for who knoweth not these things, which ye know?
<sup>4</sup> He that is scorned of his friend, as I am, shall inwardly call God, and God shall hear him; for the simpleness of a just [or rightwise] man is scorned.
<sup>5</sup> And a lamp is despised at the thoughts of rich men, the which lamp is made ready to a time ordained.
<sup>6</sup> The tabernacles of robbers be plenteous [or abound], either full of goods; and boldly they stir God to wrath, when he hath given all things into their hands.

<sup>7</sup> No wonder, ask thou [the] beasts, and they shall teach thee; and ask thou[the] birds of the air, and they shall show to thee.

<sup>8</sup> Speak to the earth, and it shall answer thee; and the fishes of the sea shall tell those things.

<sup>10</sup> In whose hand the soul is of each living thing, and the spirit of each flesh of man.

<sup>11</sup> Whether the ear deemeth not words, and the cheeks of the eater deem savour, or the taste of meat?

<sup>14</sup> If he destroyeth, there is no man that buildeth; if he shutteth in a man, there is none that openeth.

<sup>15</sup> If he holdeth altogether waters, all things shall be made dry; and if he sendeth out those waters, they shall destroy the earth.

<sup>16</sup> Strength and wisdom is with God; he knoweth both him that deceiveth and him that is deceived.

<sup>17</sup> And he bringeth counsellors into a fond [or foolish] end, and judges into wondering, either astonishing.

<sup>20</sup> and he changeth the lips of sooth-fast men, and taketh away the doctrine of eld [or old] men.

<sup>21</sup> He sheddeth [or poureth] out despising on princes, and relieveth them, that were oppressed.

<sup>24</sup> He changeth the heart of [the] princes of the people of [the] earth; and deceiveth them, that they go in vain out of the way.

<sup>25</sup> They shall grope, as in darkneses, and not in light; and he shall make them to err as drunken men.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> Lo! mine eye, saith Job, hath seen all things, and mine ear hath heard; and I understood all things.

<sup>3</sup> But nevertheless I shall speak to Almighty God, and I covet to dispute with God;

<sup>4</sup> and first I show you makers of lies, and lovers or favourers of wayward teachings.

<sup>5</sup> And I would, that ye were still, that ye were guessed to be wise men.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore hear ye my chastisings; and perceive ye the doom of my lips.

<sup>9</sup> Either it shall please him, from whom nothing may be hid? Whether he, as a man, shall be deceived by your falsenesses?

<sup>11</sup> Anon as he shall stir or move him, he shall trouble you; and his dread shall fall upon you.

<sup>12</sup> Your mind shall be comparised to ashes; and your nolls shall be driven down into clay.

- 13 Be ye still a little, that I speak, whatever thing my mind hath showed to me.
14 Why rend I my flesh with my teeth, and bear my life in mine hands?
15 Yea, though God slay me, I shall hope in him; nevertheless I shall prove my ways in his sight.
16 And he shall be my saviour; for why each hypocrite shall not come in his sight.
17 Hear ye my word, and perceive ye with [your] ears my dark and hard privy or hard figurative speeches.
18 If I shall be deemed, I know that I shall be found just [or rightwise].
19 Who is he that is deemed with me? Come he; why am I still, and am wasted?
20 Do thou not to me two things only; and then I shall not be hid from thy face.
21 Make thine hand far from me; and thy dread make not me afeared.
22 Call thou me, and I shall answer thee; either certainly I shall speak, and thou shalt answer me.
23 How great sins and wickednesses have I? Show thou to me my felonies, and my trespasses.
24 Why hidest thou thy face, and deemest me thine enemy?
25 Thou showest thy might against a leaf, that is ravished away with the wind; and thou pursuest dry stubble.
26 For thou writest bitternesses against me; and wilt waste me with the sins of my young waxing age.
27 Thou hast set [or put] my foot in a stock, and thou hast kept all my paths; and thou hast beheld the steps of my feet.
28 And I shall be wasted as rot, and as a cloth, that is eaten of a moth.

CHAPTER 14

- 1 A man is born of a woman, and liveth short time, and he is full-filled with many wretchednesses.
2 And he goeth out, and is defouled as a flower; and he fleeth away as a shadow, and dwelleth never perfectly in that same state.
3 And guessest thou worthy thing to open thine eyes upon such a man; and to bring him into doom with thee?
4 Who may make a man clean conceived of unclean seed? Whether not thou, Lord, that art alone?
5 The days of a man be short, and the number of his months be with thee; thou hast set, either ordained, his terms, which may not be passed.
6 Therefore go thou away from him a little, that he have rest; till his meed coveted come, and his day is as the day of an hired man.
7 A tree hath hope, if it is cut down; and again it waxeth green, and his branches spread forth.
8 If the root thereof is eld [or old] in the earth, and the stock thereof is nigh dead in dust;
9 it shall burgeon at the odour of water, and it shall make hair, that is, leaves and branches, or take root, as when it was planted first.
10 But when a man is dead, and made naked, and wasted; I pray, where is he?
11 As if waters go away from the sea, and as a river made void of waters wax dry,
12 so a man, when he hath slept, that is, died, he shall not rise again, till heaven be broken, or made new; he shall not wake, neither he shall rise altogether from his sleep.
13 Who giveth this to me, that thou defend me in hell, and that thou hide me, till thy great vengeance pass by; and that thou set to me a time, in which thou have mind on me?

<sup>14</sup> Guessest thou, whether a dead man shall live again? Now in all the days, in which I hold knighthood, I abide, till my exchanging come.

<sup>15</sup> Thou shalt call me, and I shall answer thee; thou shalt dress the right half, that is, bless, to the work of thine hands.

<sup>22</sup> Nevertheless his flesh, while he liveth, shall have sorrow, and his soul shall mourn upon himself.

<sup>4</sup> As much as is in thee, thou hast avoided dread; and thou hast taken away thy prayers before God.

<sup>9</sup> What thing knowest thou, which we know not? What thing under-standest thou, which we know not?

<sup>14</sup> What is a man, that he be without wem, and that he, born of a woman, appear just [or rightwise]?

<sup>20</sup> A wicked man is proud in all his days; and the number of his years and of his tyranny is uncertain.

<sup>21</sup> The sound of dread is ever[more] in his ears, and when peace is, he supposeth ever[more] treasons.

<sup>23</sup> When he stirreth him[self] to seek bread, he knoweth, that the day of darkneses is made ready in his hand.

<sup>24</sup> Tribulation shall make him afeared, and anguish shall encompass him, as a king which is made ready to battle.

<sup>26</sup> He ran with his neck raised up against God, and he was armed with a fat noll.

<sup>30</sup> neither he shall go away from darkneses. Flame shall make dry his branches, and he shall be taken away by the spirit of his mouth.

<sup>31</sup> Believe he not vainly which is deceived by error, that he shall be again-bought by any price.

<sup>33</sup> he shall be hurt as a vine in the first flower of his grape, and as an olive tree casting away his flower.

<sup>34</sup> For the gathering together of an hypocrite is barren, and fire shall devour the tabernacles of them, that take gifts willfully.

<sup>4</sup> Also I might speak things like to you, and I would, that your soul were for my soul; and I would comfort you by words, and I would move mine head on you;

<sup>5</sup> I would make you strong by my mouth, and I would move my lips as sparing you.

<sup>6</sup> But what shall I do? If I speak, my sorrow resteth not; and if I am still, it goeth not away from me.

<sup>7</sup> But now my sorrow hath oppressed me, and all my limbs be driven into nought.

<sup>9</sup> He gathered together his strong vengeance in me, and he menaced [or threatened] me, and he gnashed against me with his teeth; mine enemy hath beheld me with fearedful eyes.

<sup>10</sup> They opened their mouths upon me, and they said shame to me, and they smote my cheek; and they be filled with my pains.

<sup>11</sup> God hath enclosed me altogether at [or with] the wicked, and hath given me into the hands of wicked men.

<sup>12</sup> I, that rich man and famous sometime, am all-broken suddenly; he held my noll; he hath broken me, and hath set [or put] me as into a sign.

<sup>13</sup> And he hath encompassed me with his spears, he hath wounded altogether my loins; he hath not spared me, and he hath shed out mine entrails into the earth.

<sup>14</sup> He hath beaten me with wound upon wound; and he as a giant hath fallen in upon me.

<sup>17</sup> I suffered these things without wickedness of mine hand, or work, when I had clean prayers to God.

<sup>18</sup> Earth, cover thou not my blood, and my cry find not in thee a place of hiding.

<sup>21</sup> And I would, that a man were deemed so with God, as the son of man is deemed with his fellow.

<sup>22</sup> For lo! short years pass, and I go a path, by which I shall not turn again.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>1</sup> My spirit shall be made feeble; my days shall be made short, and only the sepulchre is left to me.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, deliver thou me, and set [or put] me beside thee; and the hand of each man fight against me.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore all ye be turned again, and come ye; and I shall not find in you any wise man.

<sup>12</sup> Those [or they] have turned the night into day; and again after dark-nesses hope for light.

<sup>13</sup> If I sustain, either suffer patiently, hell is mine house; and I have arrayed my bed in darknesses.

<sup>14</sup> I said to rot, Thou art my father; and to worms, Ye be my mother, and my sister.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore where is now mine abiding? and who beholdeth my patience?

<sup>16</sup> All my things shall go down into [the] deepest hell; guessest thou, whether rest shall be to me, namely there.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>2</sup> Unto what end shalt thou boast with words? Understand thou us first, and so speak we together.

<sup>8</sup> For he hath sent, or put, his feet into a net; and he goeth in the meshes, or knittings, thereof.

<sup>21</sup> Therefore these be the tabernacles of a wicked man; and this is the place of him, that knoweth not God.

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth Job answered, and said,

<sup>2</sup> How long torment ye my soul, and all-break me with words?

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth and if I know not [or if I am uncunning], mine unknowing shall be with me.

<sup>5</sup> And ye be raised against me, and reprove me with my shames.

<sup>6</sup> Namely now understand ye, that God hath tormented me not by even doom, and hath encompassed me with his beatings.

<sup>7</sup> Lo! I suffering violence shall cry, and no man shall hear me; I shall cry loud, and there is none that deemeth me worthy to be heard.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord hath beset about my path, and I may not go; and he hath set darknesses in my way.

<sup>9</sup> He hath spoiled me of my glory, and hath taken away the crown from mine head.

<sup>10</sup> He hath destroyed me on each side, and I perished; and he hath taken away mine hope, as from a tree pulled up by the root.

<sup>11</sup> His strong vengeance was wroth against me; and he had me so as his enemy.

<sup>12</sup> His thieves came together, and made to them a way by me; and besieged my tabernacle in compass.

<sup>13</sup> He made [a] far my brethren from me; and my known as aliens went away from me.

<sup>14</sup> My neighbours have forsaken me; and they that knew me have forgotten me.

<sup>15</sup> The tenants of mine house, and mine handmaids, had me as a stranger; and I was as a pilgrim before their eyes.

<sup>16</sup> I called my servant, and he answered not to me; with mine own mouth I prayed him.

<sup>17</sup> My wife loathed my breath; and I prayed the sons of my womb.

<sup>18</sup> Also fools despised me; and when I was gone away from them, they backbited me.

<sup>19</sup> They, that were my counsellors sometime, had abomination of me; and he, whom I loved most, was adversary to me.

<sup>20</sup> When my fleshs were wasted, my bones cleaved to my skin; and only [the] lips be left about my teeth.

<sup>21</sup> Have ye mercy on me, have ye mercy on me, namely, ye my friends; for the hand of the Lord hath touched me.

<sup>22</sup> Why pursue ye me, as God pursueth; and ye be fulfilled with my fleshs?

<sup>23</sup> Who giveth, or granteth, to me, that my words be written? Who giveth to me, that those [or they] be written in a book, <sup>24</sup> with an iron pointel, either with a piece of lead; either with a chisel those [or they] be engraved in a flint?

<sup>25</sup> For I know, that mine again-buyer liveth, and in the last day I shall rise from the earth;

<sup>26</sup> and again I shall be encompassed with my skin, and in my flesh I shall see God, my saviour.

<sup>27</sup> Whom I myself shall see, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another man. This mine hope is kept in my bosom, that is, in mine heart.

<sup>28</sup> Why therefore say ye now, Pursue we him, and find we the root of a word against him?

<sup>29</sup> Therefore flee ye from the face of the sword; for the sword is the avenger of wickednesses, and know ye, that doom shall be.

CHAPTER 20

<sup>2</sup> Therefore my thoughts diverse come one after another; and the mind is ravished into diverse things.

<sup>3</sup> I shall hear the teaching, by which thou reprovest me; and the spirit of mine understanding shall answer me.

<sup>4</sup> I know this from the beginning, since man was set on [the] earth,

<sup>5</sup> that the praising of wicked men is short, and the joy of an hypocrite is at the likeness of a point soon passing.

<sup>7</sup> he shall be lost in the end, as a dunghill; and, they that have seen him, shall say, Where is he?

<sup>8</sup> As a dream flying away, or soon forgotten, he shall not be found; he shall pass as the sight of nights.

<sup>16</sup> He shall suck the gall of snakes; and the tongue of an adder shall slay him.

<sup>17</sup> See he not the streams of the flood, of the strand [or stream] of honey, and of butter.

<sup>18</sup> He shall suffer pains for all things which he hath done, nevertheless he shall not be wasted by those pains, but ever endure; and after the multitude of his findings, so shall he suffer.

<sup>19</sup> For he brake, and made naked the house of the poor man; he ravished it, and builded it not.

<sup>20</sup> And his womb was not yet[ful]-filled; and when he hath that, that he coveted, he may not hold it in possession.

<sup>22</sup> When he is full-filled with riches, yet he shall be made strait in covet-ousness; he shall burn in it, and all sorrow shall fall in upon him.

<sup>24</sup> He shall flee iron armours [or arms], and he shall fall into a brazen bow.

<sup>25</sup> Which is led, or taken out of his sheath, or case, and this bow going out, and shining as lightning, shall smite him in bitterness; horrible fears shall go, and come upon him.

<sup>29</sup> This is the part of a wicked man, which is given to him of God, and the heritage of his words is also of the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> Suffer ye me, that I speak; and laugh ye after my words, if it shall seem to you worthy to do so.

<sup>4</sup> Whether my disputing is against man, that skillfully I owe not to be [made] sorry?

<sup>5</sup> Perceive ye me, and be ye astonied; and set ye [or putteth] your finger upon your mouth.

<sup>13</sup> They lead in goods their days; and in a point, they go down to hells, that is, to burials, or the grave.

<sup>14</sup> Which men said to God, Go thou away from us; we desire not the knowing of thy ways.

<sup>15</sup> Who is Almighty God, that we serve him? and what profiteth it to us, if we pray him?

<sup>16</sup> Nevertheless for their goods be not in their hand, or power, the counsel of wicked men be far from me.

<sup>18</sup> They shall be as chaff before the face of the wind; and as a dead spark, that the whirlwind scattereth abroad.

<sup>19</sup> Ye say, God shall keep the sorrow of the father to his sons; and when he hath yielded to them vengeance, then he shall know it.

<sup>20</sup> His eyes shall see their slaying; and he shall drink of the strong vengeance of Almighty God.

<sup>28</sup> For ye say, Where is the house of the prince? and where be the tabernacles of wicked men?

<sup>29</sup> Ask ye this of each way-goer; and ye shall know, that he knoweth these same things, <sup>30</sup> that is, that an evil man shall be kept into the day of perdition, and he shall be led to the day of strong vengeance.

<sup>31</sup> Who shall reprove his ways before him? and who shall yield to him for those things, which he hath done?

<sup>32</sup> He shall be led to the sepulchres; and he shall wake in the heap of dead men.

<sup>33</sup> He was sweet to the stones, either filths, of hell; and he draweth each man after him, and unnumberable men went before him.

<sup>34</sup> How therefore comfort ye me in vain, since your answers be showed to contrary the truth?

CHAPTER 22

<sup>2</sup> Whether a man, yea, when he is of perfect knowing, may be compar-isoned to God?

<sup>4</sup> Whether he shall dread, and shall he reprove thee, and shall he come with thee into doom, <sup>5</sup> and not for thy full much malice, and thy wickednesses without number, these pains have fallen justly to thee?

<sup>12</sup> Whether thou thinkest not, that God is higher than heaven, and is enhanced above the top of stars?

<sup>14</sup> A cloud is his hiding place, and he beholdeth not our things, and he goeth about the hinges of heaven, that is, the principal parts of heaven.

<sup>17</sup> Which said to God, Go thou away from us; and as if Almighty God may do nothing, they guessed him, <sup>18</sup> when he had filled their houses with goods; the sentence of which men be far from me.

<sup>19</sup> Just [or Rightwise] men shall see, and shall be glad; and an innocent man shall scorn them.

<sup>20</sup> Whether the up-raising of them is not cut down, and fire shall devour the remnants of them?

<sup>21</sup> Therefore assent thou to God, and have thou peace; and by these things thou shalt have best fruits.

<sup>22</sup> Take thou the law of his mouth, and set [or put] thou his words in thine heart.

<sup>23</sup> If thou turnest again to Almighty God, thou shalt be builded [up]; and thou shalt make wickedness far from thy tabernacle.

<sup>27</sup> Thou shalt pray him, and he shall hear thee; and thou shalt yield thy vows.

<sup>29</sup> For he that is meeked shall be in glory; and he that boweth down his eyes, shall be saved.

<sup>2</sup> Now also my word is in bitter-ness, and the hand of my wound is aggrieved on my wailing.

<sup>4</sup> I shall set doom before him, and I shall fill my mouth with arguments;

<sup>5</sup> that I know the words, which he shall answer to me, and that I under-stand, what he shall speak to me.

<sup>6</sup> I will or desire not, that he strive with me by great strength, neither that he oppress me with the heaviness of his greatness.

<sup>7</sup> Set he forth equity against me, and my doom come perfectly to victory.

<sup>8</sup> If I go to the east, God appeareth not there; if I go to the west, I shall not understand him;

<sup>10</sup> But he knoweth my way, and he shall prove me as gold, that passeth through the fire.

<sup>11</sup> My foot pursued [or followed] his steps; I kept to his way, and I bowed not away from it.

<sup>12</sup> I went not away from the commandments of his lips; and I hid in my bosom the words of his mouth.

<sup>13</sup> For he is alone, and no man may turn away his thoughts; and whatever thing he would, his will did this thing.

<sup>14</sup> When he hath [ful] filled his will in me, also many other like things be ready to him.

<sup>2</sup> Other men have turned over the terms, or the boundary stones, of neighbours, they have taken away their flocks, and fed themselves.

<sup>3</sup> They have driven away the ass of fatherless children, and they took away the cow of a widow for a wed.

<sup>6</sup> They cut down a field not theirs, and they gather [the] grapes of his vinery, whom they have oppressed by violence.

<sup>7</sup> They leave men naked, and take away their clothes, to the which men there is no covering in cold;

<sup>8</sup> which men the rains of mountains wet, and they have no covering, and they embrace stones.

<sup>9</sup> They did violence, and robbed fatherless and motherless children; and they spoiled, either robbed, the community of poor men.

<sup>10</sup> They took away ears of corn from naked men, and going without cloth, and from hungry men.

<sup>11</sup> They were hid in midday among the heaps of those men, that thirst, when the presses of grapes be trodden.

<sup>12</sup> They made men of cities to wail, and the souls of wounded men shall cry; and God suffereth it not to go away unpunished.

<sup>13</sup> They were rebel to light; they knew not the ways thereof, neither they turned again by the paths thereof.

<sup>16</sup> They undermine houses in dark-nesses, as they said together to them-selves in the day; and they knew not light.

<sup>17</sup> If the morrowtide appeareth suddenly, they deem it the shadow of death; and so they go in darkneses, as in light.

<sup>18</sup> He is unstabler than the face of the water; his part in [the] earth be cursed, and go he not by the way of vineries [or vines].

<sup>19</sup> Pass he to a full great heat from the waters of snows, and the sin of him till to hells [or hell].

<sup>20</sup> Mercy forget him; his sweetness be for a worm; be he not in mind, but be he all-broken as an unfruitful tree.

<sup>21</sup> For he fed on the barren, and her that childeth not, and he did not well to the widow.

<sup>22</sup> He drew down strong men in his strength; and when he standeth in great state or prosperity, he shall not believe to his life.

<sup>23</sup> God gave to him a place of penance, and he misuseth that into pride; soothly the eyes of God be beholding in the ways of that man.

<sup>24</sup> They be raised up at a little while, and they shall not stand; and they shall be made low as all vile things, and they shall be taken away; and as the highnesses of ears of corn they shall be all-broken.

<sup>25</sup> That if it is not so, who may reprove me, that I lied, and have put forth follily my words before God?

<sup>5</sup> Lo! also the moon shineth not, and [the] stars be not clean in his sight;

<sup>6</sup> how much more man, that is rot, and the son of a man, that is a worm, is unclean in comparison to God.

CHAPTER 26

<sup>13</sup> His spirit hath adorned heavens, and the crooked serpent was led out by his hand, leading him out as a midwife leadeth out a child.

<sup>14</sup> Lo! these things be said in part of his ways; and when we have heard scarcely a little drop of his word, who may see the thunder of his greatness?

CHAPTER 27

<sup>2</sup> God liveth, that hath taken away my doom, and Almighty God, that hath brought my soul to bitterness.

<sup>3</sup> For as long as breath is in me, and the spirit of God is in my nostrils, <sup>4</sup> my lips shall not speak wicked-ness, neither my tongue shall think a leasing.

<sup>5</sup> Far be it from me, that I deem you just [or rightwise]; till I fail, that is, as long as I live, I shall not go away from mine innocence.

<sup>6</sup> I shall not forsake my justifying, which I began to hold; for mine heart reproveth me not in all my life.

<sup>8</sup> For what is the hope of an hypocrite, if he ravisheth greedily, and God delivereth not his soul?

<sup>10</sup> either whether he may delight in Almighty God, and inwardly call God in all time?

<sup>11</sup> I shall teach you by the hand of God, what things Almighty God hath; and I shall not hide them.

<sup>14</sup> If his children be multiplied, they shall be killed with sword; and his sons shall not be [ful] filled with bread.

<sup>16</sup> If he gathereth together silver as earth, and maketh ready clothes as clay;

<sup>18</sup> As a moth he hath builded his house, and as a keeper he made a shadowing place.

<sup>19</sup> A rich man, when he shall die, shall bear nothing with him; he shall open his eyes, and he shall find nothing.

<sup>23</sup> He shall constrain his hands on him, and he shall hiss on him, and shall behold his place.

CHAPTER 28

<sup>3</sup> God hath set time to darkneses, and he beholdeth the end of all things. Also a strand [or stream] parteth a stone of darkness, and the shadow of death,
<sup>4</sup> from the people going in pilgrim-age; it parteth those hills, which the foot of a needy man forgat, and hills without a way.
<sup>11</sup> And he sought out the depths or deepness of floods; and he brought forth hid things into light.
<sup>12</sup> But where is wisdom found, and which is the place of understanding?
<sup>13</sup> Man knoweth not the price there-of, neither it is found in the land of men living delicately.
<sup>14</sup> The depth of waters saith, It is not in me; and the sea speaketh, It is not with me.
<sup>15</sup> Gold full clean shall not be given for wisdom, neither silver shall be weighed in the exchanging thereof.
<sup>16</sup> It shall not be comparised to the dyed colours of India, nor to the most precious stone sardius, neither to the sapphire.
<sup>17</sup> Neither gold, neither glass shall be made even worth thereto; and high and far appearing vessels of gold shall not be exchanged for wisdom,
<sup>18</sup> neither they shall be had in mind in comparison thereof. Forsooth wisdom is drawn out of privy things;
<sup>19</sup> topaz of Ethiopia shall not be made even worth to wisdom, and most precious dyeings shall not be set together in price, or comparised, thereto.
<sup>20</sup> Therefore whereof cometh wisdom, and which is the place of understanding?
<sup>21</sup> It is hid from the eyes of all living men; and also it is hid from the birds of heaven, or of the air.
<sup>22</sup> Perdition and death said, With our ears we have heard the fame of wisdom.
<sup>23</sup> God understandeth the way there-of, and he knoweth the place thereof.
<sup>26</sup> When he set law to rain, and way to tempests sounding;
<sup>27</sup> then he saw wisdom, and told it out, and he made it ready, and sought it out.
<sup>28</sup> And he said to man, Lo! the dread of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to go away from evil, is understanding.

CHAPTER 29

<sup>1</sup> Also Job added, taking his parable, and said,
<sup>2</sup> Who giveth to me, that I be beside the eld months, by the days in which God kept me?
<sup>4</sup> As I was in the days of my youth, when in private God was in my tabernacle.
<sup>5</sup> When Almighty God was with me, and my children were in my compass;
<sup>6</sup> when I washed my feet in [or with] butter, and the stone shedded [or poured] out to me the streams [or rivers] of oil;

<sup>7</sup> when I went forth to the gate of the city, and in the street they made ready a chair to me.

<sup>8</sup> Young wanton men saw me, and were hid, and eld [or old] men rising up stood;

<sup>9</sup> princes ceased to speak, and they putted their finger on their mouth;

<sup>11</sup> The ear that heard me, blessed me, and the eye that saw me, yielded witnessing to me;

<sup>12</sup> for I delivered the poor man crying [out], and the fatherless child, that had no helper.

<sup>13</sup> The blessing of a man ready to perish came on me, and I comforted the heart of the widow.

<sup>16</sup> I was a father of poor men; and I inquired most diligently the cause, which I knew not.

<sup>18</sup> And I said, I shall die in my nest; and as a palm tree I shall multiply my days.

<sup>19</sup> My root is opened beside waters, and dew shall dwell in my reaping.

<sup>21</sup> They, that heard me, abided my sentence; and they were attentive, or taking heed to me, and they were still at my counsel.

<sup>22</sup> They durst nothing add to my words; and my speech dropped upon them.

<sup>23</sup> They abided me as rain; and they opened their mouth as to the soft rain coming late.

<sup>24</sup> If any time I laughed to them, they believed not; and the light of my cheer, that is, the gladness of my face, felled not down into the earth.

<sup>25</sup> If I would go to them, I sat the first; and when I sat as [a] king, while the host stood about, nevertheless I was [the] comforter of them that mourned.

CHAPTER 30

<sup>1</sup> But now younger men in time scorn me, whose fathers I deigned not* to set with the dogs of my flock.

<sup>2</sup> Of which men the strength of their hands was for nought to me, and they were guessed unworthy to that life.

<sup>4</sup> and they ate herbs, and the rinds of trees; and the root of junipers was their meat.

<sup>6</sup> They dwelled in deserts of strands [or streams], and in caves of [the] earth, either on gravel.

<sup>7</sup> Which were glad among such things, and they areckoned as delights to be under bushes.

<sup>8</sup> These were the sons of fools, and of unnoble men, and utterly appearing not on [the] earth.

<sup>9</sup> But now I am turned into the song of them, and I am made a proverb to them.

---

* CHAPTER 30:1 This disdain came not of despise, neither of pride, but of worthy beholding of vilety or vileness.

<sup>10</sup> They hold me abominable, and they flee far from me, and dread not to spit on my face.

<sup>11</sup> For God hath opened his arrow case, and he hath tormented me, and he hath put a bridle into my mouth.

<sup>12</sup> At the right side of the east my wretchednesses have risen up anon; they turned upside down my feet, and they oppressed me with their paths as with floods.

<sup>13</sup> They destroyed my ways; they setted treason to me, and they had the mastery; and there was none that helped me.

<sup>14</sup> They felled in upon me as by a broken wall, and by gate opened, and were stretched forth to my wretchednesses.

<sup>15</sup> I am driven into nought; he took away my desire as [the] wind, and mine help passed away as a cloud.

<sup>17</sup> In [the] night my bone is pierced with sorrows; and they, that eat me, sleep not.

<sup>18</sup> In the multitude of those [or them] my cloth is wasted, and they have girded me as with the collar of a coat.

<sup>19</sup> I am comparisond to clay, and I am made like to a dead spark and ashes.

<sup>20</sup> I shall cry to thee, and thou shalt not hear me; I stand, and thou behold-est not me.

<sup>21</sup> Thou art changed into cruel to me, and in the hardness of thine hand thou art adversary to me.

<sup>22</sup> Thou hast raised me, and hast set me as on wind; and hast hurtled me down strongly.

<sup>23</sup> I know, that thou shalt betake me to death, where an house is ordained to each living man.

<sup>24</sup> Nevertheless thou sendest not out thine hand to the wasting of them; and if they fall down, thou shalt save them.

<sup>26</sup> I abode goods, and evils be come to me; I abode light, and darkneses brake out.

<sup>27</sup> Mine inner things boiled out with-out my rest; and [the] days of torment came before me.

<sup>29</sup> I was the brother of dragons, and the fellow of ostriches.

<sup>30</sup> My skin was made black upon me, and my bones dried for heat.

CHAPTER 31

<sup>1</sup> I made [a] covenant with mine eyes, that I should not think on a virgin.

<sup>2</sup> For what part should God above have in me, and what heritage should Almighty God of high things have in me?

<sup>3</sup> Whether perdition is not to a wicked man, and alienation of God is to men working wickedness?

<sup>4</sup> Whether he beholdeth not my ways, and numbereth all my goings?

<sup>5</sup> If I have gone in vanity, and my foot hath hasted to go in guile [or treachery],

<sup>6</sup> God weigh me in a just balance, and know he my simpleness.

<sup>7</sup> If my steps have bowed from the way; and if mine eyes have pursued [or followed] mine heart, consenting to lust, and if a spot have cleaved to mine hands;

<sup>8</sup> sow I, and another eat, and my generation be drawn out by the root.

<sup>9</sup> And if mine heart was deceived on a woman, and if I have set ambush at the door of my friend;

<sup>10</sup> my wife be then the whore of another man, and other men be bowed down upon her.

<sup>13</sup> If I despised to take doom with my servant and with mine handmaid, when they strived against me.

<sup>14</sup> What soothly shall I do, when God shall rise up to deem? and when he shall ask, what shall I answer to him?

<sup>15</sup> Whether he, that wrought also him, made not me in the womb, and one God formed me in the womb?

<sup>16</sup> If I denied to poor men that, that they would, and if I made the eyes of a widow to abide;

<sup>17</sup> if I alone ate my morsel, and a fatherless child ate not thereof;

<sup>18</sup> for merciful doing increased with me, from my young childhood, and it went out of my mother's womb with me;

<sup>19</sup> if I despised a man passing forth by me, for he had not a cloth, and a poor man without covering;

<sup>20</sup> if his sides blessed not me, and were not made hot of the fleece of my sheep;

<sup>21</sup> if I raised up mine hand upon a fatherless child, yea, when I saw me the higher in the gate;

<sup>23</sup> For ever[more] I dreaded God, as waves waxing great upon me; and I might not bear his burden.

<sup>24</sup> If I guessed gold my strength, and I said to pured gold, Thou art my trust;

<sup>25</sup> if I was glad on my many riches, and for mine hand found full many things;

<sup>26</sup> if I saw the sun, when it shined, and the moon going clearly;

<sup>27</sup> and if mine heart was glad in private, and if I kissed mine hand with my mouth;

<sup>28</sup> the which is the most wickedness, and denying against the highest God;

<sup>29</sup> if I had joy at the falling of him, that hated me, and if I joyed fully [or full out joyed], that evil had found him;

<sup>30</sup> for I gave not my throat to do sin, that I should assail and curse his soul;

<sup>31</sup> if the men of my tabernacle said not, Who giveth, that we be [ful] filled of his flesh?

<sup>32</sup> a pilgrim dwelled not withoutforth; my door was open to a way-goer or a way-faring man;

<sup>33</sup> if I as [a] man hid my sin, and covered my wickedness in my bosom;

<sup>34</sup> if I dreaded at [the] full great multitude, and if despising of neigh-bours made me afear'd; and not more, I was still, and went not out of the door;

<sup>35</sup> who giveth then an helper to me, that Almighty God hear my desire? that he that deemeth, write a book,

<sup>36</sup> that I bear it on my shoulder, and encompass it as a crown to me?

<sup>37</sup> By all my degrees I shall pronounce it, and I shall as offering offer it to the prince.

<sup>38</sup> If my land crieth against me, and his furrows weep with it;

<sup>39</sup> if I ate fruits thereof without money, and I tormented the soul of earth-tillers of it;

<sup>40</sup> a briar grow to me for wheat, and a thorn for barley.

CHAPTER 32

<sup>2</sup> And Elihu, the son of Barachel the Buzite, of the kindred of Ram, was wroth, and had indignation; and he was wroth against Job, for he said himself to be just before God.

<sup>3</sup> And also Elihu had indignation against the three friends of Job, for they had found no reasonable answer, but only had condemned Job.

<sup>4</sup> Therefore Elihu abode Job speak-ing, for they, that spake, were elder men.

<sup>5</sup> But when he had seen, that these three men might not answer Job, he was wroth greatly.

<sup>6</sup> And Elihu, the son of Barachel the Buzite, answered, and said, I am younger in time, and ye be elder; therefore with head holden down, I dreaded to show to you my sentence.

<sup>7</sup> For I hoped that [the] longer age should speak, and that the multitude of years should teach wisdom.

<sup>8</sup> But as I see now, a spirit is in men, and the inspiration, either revelation, of Almighty God giveth understanding.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore I shall say, Hear ye me, and I also shall show my knowing to you.

<sup>11</sup> For I abode your words, I heard your prudence, as long as ye disputed in your words.

<sup>12</sup> And as long as I guessed you to say anything, I beheld; but as I perceive, there is none of you, that may reprove Job, and answer to his words;

<sup>13</sup> lest peradventure ye say, We have found wisdom; God, and not man, hath cast him away.

<sup>14</sup> Job spake nothing to me, and I not by your words shall answer him.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore since I abode, and they spake not, they stood, and answered no more;

<sup>17</sup> also I shall answer my part, and I shall show my knowing.

<sup>18</sup> For I am full of words, and the spirit of my womb, that is, my mind, constraineth me.

<sup>19</sup> Lo! my womb is as must without a spigot or faucet, either a venting, that bursteth new vessels.

<sup>20</sup> I shall speak, and breathe again a little; I shall open my lips, and I shall answer.

<sup>21</sup> I shall not take the person of a man, and I shall not make God even to man.

<sup>22</sup> For I know not how long I shall abide alive, and if my Maker will take me away after a little time.

CHAPTER 33

<sup>1</sup> Therefore, Job, hear thou my speeches, and hearken to all my words.

<sup>3</sup> Of simple heart be my words, and my lips shall speak clean sentence.

<sup>4</sup> The spirit of God made me, and the breathing of Almighty God quick-ened me.

<sup>5</sup> If thou mayest, answer thou to me, and stand thou against my face.

<sup>6</sup> Lo! God made me as and thee; and also I am formed of the same clay.

<sup>7</sup> Nevertheless my miracle, that is, knowing given of God, either by miracle, to me, make thee not afeared, and mine eloquence be not grievous to thee.

<sup>8</sup> Thou saidest in mine hearing, and I heard the voice of thy words, <sup>9</sup> I am clean, and without guilt, and unwemmed, and wickedness is not in me.

<sup>10</sup> For God found quarrels in me, therefore he deemed me enemy to himself.

- 11 He hath set [or put] my feet in a stock; he kept all my paths.
12 Therefore this thing it is, in which thou art not made just; I shall answer to thee, that God is more than man.
13 Thou, Job, strivest against God, that not at all thy words [he] answered to thee.
14 God speaketh once, and the second time he rehearseth not the same thing.
15 God speaketh by a dream in the vision of night, when sleep falleth on men, and when they sleep in their bed.
16 Then he openeth the ears of men, and he teacheth them, and teacheth prudence or discipline;
17 that he turn away a man from these things which he made, and deliver him from pride;
18 and that he deliver his soul from corruption, and his life, that it go not into sword.
19 Also God blameth a man by sorrow in his bed, and he maketh all the bones of him for to wax rotten.
20 Bread is made abominable to him in his life, and the meat, that before was to him desirable, loathed to his soul after.
21 His flesh shall fail for rot, and his bones, that were covered, shall be made naked.
22 His soul shall nigh to corruption, and his life to things bringing death.
23 If an angel, one of a thousand, is speaking for him, that he show the equity of man,
24 God shall have mercy on him, and shall say, Deliver thou him, that he go not down into corruption; I have found in what thing I shall do mercy to him.
25 His flesh is wasted with torments; turn he again to the days of his young waxing age.
26 He shall beseech God, and he shall be quemeful to him; and he shall see his face in perfect joy, and he shall yield to man his rightfulness [or rightwiseness].
27 He shall behold men, and he shall say, I have sinned, and verily I have trespassed; and I have not received, as I was worthy.
28 Forsooth he hath delivered his soul, that it should not go into perish-ing, but that he living should see light.
29 Lo! God worketh all these things in three times by all men;
30 that he again-call their souls from corruption, and enlighten them in the light of living men.
31 Job, take heed, and hear thou me, and be thou still, while I speak.
32 But if thou hast ready what thou shalt speak, answer thou to me, speak; for I will or desire, that thou appear just.
33 That if thou hast not, hear thou me; be thou still, and I shall teach thee wisdom.

CHAPTER 34

- 1 And Elihu pronounced, and spake also these things,
2 Wise men, hear ye my words, and learned men, hearken ye to me;
3 for the ear proveth words, and the throat deemeth meat by taste.
4 Choose we doom to us; and see we among us, what is the better.
5 For Job said, I am just [or rightwise], and God hath turned my justness [or doom] upside-down.
6 For why leasing is in deeming me, and mine arrow is violent with-out any sin.
7 Who is a man, as Job is, that drinketh scorning as water?
8 that goeth with men working wick-edness, and goeth with unfaithful men?
9 For he said, A man shall not please God, yea, though he run with God.
10 Therefore ye wise men, that is, ye with understanding, hear ye me; un-piety, either cruelty, be far from God, and wickedness from Almighty God.

<sup>11</sup> For he shall yield after the work of a man to him; and by the ways of each man he shall restore to him.

<sup>13</sup> What other man hath he ordained upon earth? either whom hath he set [or put] upon the world, that he hath made?

<sup>14</sup> If God dresseth his heart to him, he shall draw to himself his spirit and blast or breath.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore if thou hast understand-ing, hear thou that that is said, and hearken to the voice of my speech.

<sup>17</sup> Whether he that loveth not doom may be made whole? and how then condemnest thou so much him, that is just [or rightwise]?

<sup>19</sup> He accepteth not the persons of princes, neither he knoweth a tyrant to spare him, when he striveth against a poor man; for all men be the work of his hands.

<sup>20</sup> They shall die suddenly, and at midnight peoples shall be troubled; and shall pass away, and shall take away a violent man without hand.

<sup>21</sup> For the eyes of God be on the ways of men, and he beholdeth all the goings of them.

<sup>22</sup> No darkneses be, neither no shadow of death is, that they, that work wickedness, be hid there;

<sup>23</sup> for it is no more in the power of man, that he come to God into doom.

<sup>26</sup> He smote them, as unpious men, in the place of seeing men.

<sup>27</sup> Which went away from him by casting afore or by forecasting, and would not understand all his ways.

<sup>28</sup> That they should make the cry of a needy man to come to him, and that he should hear the voice of poor men.

<sup>29</sup> For when he granteth peace, who is it that condemnest him? And since he hideth his cheer, who is that seeth him? And on folks, and on all men, he hath power to do such things.

<sup>32</sup> If I have erred, teach thou me; if I have spoken wickedness, I shall no more add to.

<sup>33</sup> Whether God asketh that wickedness of thee, for it displeased thee? For thou hast begun to speak, and not I; that if thou knowest anything better, speak thou that.

<sup>36</sup> My father God, be Job proved unto the end; cease thou not from the man of wickedness,

<sup>37</sup> that addeth blasphemy over his sins. Be he constrained among us in the meantime; and then by his words stir he God to the doom.

CHAPTER 35

<sup>2</sup> Whether thy thought seemeth even, either rightful, to thee, that thou should-est say, I am right-fuller [or more right-wise] than God?

<sup>3</sup> For thou saidest, That, that is good, pleaseth not thee; either what profit-eth it to thee, if I do sin?

<sup>4</sup> Therefore I shall answer to thy words, and to thy friends with thee.

<sup>5</sup> See thou, and behold heaven, and behold thou the air, and know that God is higher than thou. [Behold heaven, and look, and mindfully see the clouds, that is higher than thou.]

<sup>6</sup> If thou sinnest, what shalt thou annoy him? and if thy wickednesses be multiplied, what shalt thou do against him?

<sup>7</sup> Certainly if thou doest justly [or rightwisely], what shalt thou give to him; either what shall he take of thine hand?

<sup>10</sup> And Job said not, Where is God, that made me, and that gave songs in the night?

<sup>14</sup> Yea, when thou sayest, He behold-eth not; be thou deemed before him, and abide thou him.

<sup>2</sup> Suffer thou me a little, and I shall show to thee; for yet I have that, that I shall speak for God.

<sup>3</sup> I shall rehearse my knowing from the beginning; and I shall prove my worker just [or rightwise].

<sup>4</sup> For verily my words be without leasing, and by them perfect knowing shall be proved to thee.

<sup>6</sup> but he saveth not wicked men, and he giveth doom to poor men.

<sup>8</sup> And if they be in chains, and be bound with the ropes of poverty,

<sup>9</sup> he shall show to them their works, and their great trespasses; for they were violent, either raveners.

<sup>10</sup> Also he shall open their ears, that he chastise them; and he shall speak to them, that they turn again from their wickedness.

<sup>11</sup> If they hear him, and keep his behests, they shall full-fill their days in good, and their years in glory.

<sup>12</sup> Soothly if they hear not, they shall pass away by sword, and they shall be wasted in folly.

<sup>13</sup> Feigners and false men stir the wrath of God; and they shall not cry to God, and acknowledge their guilt, when they be bound.

<sup>14</sup> The soul of them shall die in tempest; and the life of them among womanish men.

<sup>17</sup> Thy cause is deemed as the cause of a wicked man; and thou shalt receive thy cause and thy doom.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore wrath overcome thee not, that thou oppress any man; and the multitude of gifts bow thee not.

<sup>22</sup> Lo! God is high in his strength, and none is like him among the givers of law.

<sup>23</sup> Who may seek out the ways of God? either who dare say to him, Thou hast wrought wickedness?

<sup>33</sup> He telleth of it to his friend, that it is his possession; and that he may ascend [or go up] to it.

CHAPTER 37

<sup>5</sup> God shall thunder in his voice wonderfully, which maketh great things that may not be sought out.

<sup>6</sup> He it is that commandeth the snow to come down upon the earth, and to the rains of winter, and to the rains of his strength.

<sup>12</sup> The which clouds compass all things about by compass, whither ever the will of the governor leadeth them, to all thing to which he commandeth them upon the face of the world;

<sup>14</sup> Job, hearken thou to these things; stand thou, and behold the marvels of God.

<sup>18</sup> In hap thou madest with him heavens, which most firm be founded, as of brass.

<sup>19</sup> Show thou to us, what we shall say to him; for we be wrapped in darknesses.

<sup>20</sup> Who shall tell to him, what things I speak? yea, if he speaketh, a man shall be devoured.

<sup>21</sup> And now men see not light; the air shall be made thick suddenly into clouds, and wind passing shall drive away those [or them].

<sup>23</sup> For we may not find him worthily; he is great in strength, and in doom, and in rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and he may not be told out.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore men shall dread him; and all men, that seem to themselves to be wise, shall not be hardy to behold God.

CHAPTER 38

<sup>4</sup> Where were thou, when I set the foundations of the earth? show thou to me, if thou hast understanding.

<sup>8</sup> Who enclosed altogether the sea with doors, when it brake out coming forth as of the womb?

<sup>9</sup> When I setted a cloud the cover-ing thereof, and I wrapped it with darkness, as with 'clothes of young childhood.

<sup>10</sup> I encompassed it with my terms, and I setted [or set] a bar, and doors;

<sup>11</sup> and I said, Hitherto thou shalt come, and thou shalt not go further; and here thou shalt break altogether thy swelling waves.

<sup>12</sup> Whether after thy birth thou commandedest to the beginning of the day, and showedest to the morrow-tide his place?

<sup>19</sup> in what way the light dwelleth, and which is the place of darkness;

<sup>20</sup> that thou lead out each thing to his terms, and that thou understand the ways of his house.

<sup>21</sup> Knewest thou then, that thou shouldest be born, and knew thou the number of thy days?

<sup>24</sup> By what way is the light spread abroad, and by what way heat is parted upon earth?

<sup>27</sup> That it should [ful] fill a land without a way and desolate, and should bring forth green herbs?

<sup>30</sup> Waters be made hard in the likeness of [a] stone, and the over-part of [the] ocean is constrained together.

<sup>31</sup> Whether thou shalt be able to join together [the] shining stars Pleiades, that is, the seven stars, either thou shalt be able to destroy the compass of Arcturus?

<sup>32</sup> Whether thou bringest forth Lucifer, that is, the day star, in his time, and makest the even star to rise upon the sons of [the] earth?

<sup>33</sup> Whether thou knowest the order of heaven, and shall set the reason thereof in [the] earth?

<sup>36</sup> Who hath put wisdom to the entrails of man, that is, soul, either who gave understanding to the cock?

<sup>37</sup> Who shall tell out the reason of heavens, and who shall make [the] according of heaven to sleep?

<sup>38</sup> When dust was founded on the earth, and clots were joined together?

<sup>39</sup> Whether thou shalt take [the] prey to the lioness, and shalt fill the souls of her whelps, <sup>40</sup> when they lie in caves, and espy in dens?

<sup>41</sup> Who maketh ready for the crow his meat, when his young cry to God, and wander about, for they have not meats?

- <sup>3</sup> They be bowed down to [the] calf, and so calve; and they send out then roarings.
- <sup>4</sup> Their calves be separated from them, and go forth to pasture; they go out, and they turn not again to their mothers.
- <sup>5</sup> Who hath let the wild ass go free, and who hath loosed the bonds of him?
- <sup>6</sup> To whom I have given an house in wilderness, and the tabernacles of him in the land of saltness.
- <sup>7</sup> He despiseth the multitude of the city; he heareth not the cry of the asker.
- <sup>8</sup> He looketh about the hills of his pasture, and he seeketh all green things.
- <sup>9</sup> Whether an unicorn shall desire to serve thee, either shall dwell at thy cratch?
- <sup>10</sup> Whether thou shalt bind the unicorn with thy chain, for to ear thy land, either shall he break the clots of the valleys after thee?
- <sup>11</sup> Whether thou shalt have trust in his great strength, and shalt thou leave to him thy travails?
- <sup>12</sup> Whether thou shalt believe to him, that he shall yield seed to thee, and shall gather together for thy cornfloor?
- <sup>13</sup> The feather of an ostrich is like the feathers of a gyrfalcon, and of an hawk;
- <sup>14</sup> the which ostrich forsaketh his eggs in the earth, in hap thou shalt make those [or them] hot in the dust.
- <sup>15</sup> He forgetteth, that a foot treadeth those eggs, either that a beast of the field all-breaketh them.
- <sup>16</sup> He is made hard to his young, as if they were not his; he travailed in vain, while no dread constrained him.
- <sup>17</sup> For God hath deprived him from wisdom, and he hath not given under-standing to him.
- <sup>18</sup> When time is, he raiseth the wings on high; he scorneth the horse, and his rider.
- <sup>19</sup> Whether thou shalt give strength to an horse, either shalt give neighing about his neck?
- <sup>20</sup> Whether thou shalt raise him as locusts? The glory of his nostrils is dreaded.
- <sup>21</sup> He diggeth [the] earth with his foot, he full out joyeth; and he goeth boldly against [the] armed men.
- <sup>22</sup> He despiseth fearedfulness, and he giveth not stead to [the] sword.
- <sup>23</sup> An arrow case shall sound upon him; a spear and a shield shall shine.
- <sup>24</sup> He is hot, or fervent, and gnasheth, and swalloweth the earth; and he areckoneth not that the cry of the trump soundeth.
- <sup>25</sup> When he heareth a clarion, he saith, Joy! he smelleth battle afar; the exciting of dukes, and the yelling of the host.
- <sup>26</sup> Whether an hawk spreading abroad his wings to the south, beginneth to have feathers by thy wisdom?
- <sup>27</sup> Whether an eagle shall be raised up at thy commandment, and shall set [or put] his nest in high places?
- <sup>28</sup> He dwelleth in stones, and he abideth in flints broken before, and in rocks, to which men may not nigh.
- <sup>29</sup> From thence he beholdeth meat and his eyes look from [a] far.
- <sup>30</sup> His young suck blood, and wherever a carrion is, anon he is present.

CHAPTER 40

- <sup>1</sup> And the Lord added to, and spake to Job, and said,
- <sup>2</sup> Whether he, that striveth with God, shall have rest so lightly? Soothly he, that reproveth God, oweth for to answer to him.
- <sup>3</sup> And Job answered to the Lord, and said,

<sup>4</sup> What may I answer, which have spoken lightly, that is, indiscreetly and follily? I shall put mine hand upon my mouth.

<sup>5</sup> I spake one thing, which thing I would, that I had not said; and I spake another thing, to which I shall no more add.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth the Lord answered to Job from the whirlwind, and said,

<sup>7</sup> Gird thou as a man thy loins, and I shall ask thee, and show thou to me.

<sup>8</sup> Whether thou shalt make void my doom, and shalt thou condemn me, that thou be made just [or be justified]?

<sup>9</sup> And if thou hast an arm, or power, as God hath, and if thou thunderest with like voice, <sup>10</sup> take thou fairness about thee, and be thou raised on high, and be thou glorious, and be thou clothed in fair clothes.

<sup>11</sup> And destroy thou proud men in thy fierce vengeance, and behold thou, and make low each boaster.

<sup>19</sup> He is the beginning of the ways of God; he, that made him, shall set his sword to him.

<sup>23</sup> He shall swallow up the flood, and he shall not wonder; he hath trust, that Jordan shall flow into his mouth.

<sup>24</sup> He shall take them by his eyes, as by an hook; and by sharp shafts he shall pierce his nostrils.

CHAPTER 41

<sup>8</sup> Shalt thou put thine hand upon him? have thou mind of the battle, and add thou no more to speak.

<sup>9</sup> Lo! his hope shall deceive him; and in the sight of all men he shall be cast down.

<sup>10</sup> I not as cruel shall raise him; for who may against-stand my face?

<sup>11</sup> And who gave to me before, that I yield to him? All things, that be under heaven, be mine.

<sup>24</sup> His heart shall be made hard as a stone; and it shall be constrained together as the anvil of a smith.

<sup>25</sup> When he shall be taken away, angels shall dread; and they afeared shall be purged.

<sup>28</sup> A man archer shall not drive him away; [the] stones of a sling be turned into stubble to him.

<sup>29</sup> He shall areckon an hammer as stubble; and he shall scorn a flourishing spear.

<sup>30</sup> The beams of the sun shall be under him; and he shall strew to him-self gold as clay.

<sup>31</sup> He shall make the deep sea to boil as a pot; and he shall put it, as when ointments boil.

<sup>33</sup> No power there is on earth, that shall be comparised to him; which is made, that he should dread nothing.

<sup>34</sup> He seeth all high thing[s]; he is king over all the sons of pride.

CHAPTER 42

<sup>2</sup> I know, that thou mayest do all things, and that no thought or nothing is hid from thee.

<sup>4</sup> Hear thou, and I shall speak; I shall ask thee, and answer thou to me.

<sup>5</sup> By hearing of ear I have heard thee, but now mine eye seeth thee.

<sup>7</sup> And after that the Lord had spoken these words to Job, he said to Eliphaz the Temanite, My strong vengeance is wroth against thee, and against thy two friends; for ye have not spoken before me rightful [or right] things, as my servant Job.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore take ye to you seven bulls, and seven rams; and go ye to my servant Job, and offer ye burnt sacrifice for you. Forsooth Job, my servant, shall pray for you; I shall receive his face, that folly be not areckoned to you; certainly ye have not spoken before me rightful [or right] thing, as hath my servant Job.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite, went, and did, as the Lord had spoken to them; and the Lord received the face of Job.

<sup>10</sup> Also the Lord was converted to the penance of Job, when he prayed for his friends. And the Lord added all things double, whichever were of Job.

<sup>11</sup> And all his brethren, and all his sisters, and all that knew him before, came to him; and they ate bread with him in his house, and they moved their head upon him; and they comforted him on all the evil, that the Lord had brought in upon him; and they gave to him each man a sheep, and a golden earring.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth the Lord blessed the last things of Job, more than the beginning of him; and fourteen thousand of sheep were made to him, and six thousand of camels, and a thousand yokes of oxen, and a thousand female asses.

<sup>13</sup> And he had seven sons, and three daughters;

<sup>14</sup> and he called the name of the one daughter Jemima, and the name of the second daughter Kezia, and the name of the third daughter he called Kerenhappuch, that is, a horn of women's ointment.

<sup>15</sup> And there were not found so fair women in all the land, as were the daughters of Job; and their father gave heritage to them among their brethren.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth Job lived after these beatings, or scourgings, an hundred and forty years, and saw his sons, and the sons of his sons, till to the fourth generation;

<sup>17</sup> and he was dead eld [or he died old], and full of days, that is, he had length and prosperity of life.

PSALMS

PSALM 1

<sup>1</sup> Blessed is the man, that goeth not in the counsel of wicked men; and stood not in the way of sinners, and sat not in the chair of pestilence.

<sup>2</sup> But his will is in the law of the Lord; and he shall bethink in the law of him day and night.

<sup>3</sup> And he shall be as a tree, which is planted beside the runnings of waters; that shall give his fruit in his time. And his leaf shall not fall down; and all things, whichever he shall do, shall have prosperity.

<sup>4</sup> Not so wicked men, not so; but they be as dust, which the wind casteth away from the face of the earth.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore wicked men rise not again in doom; neither sinners in the council of just men [nor the sinful in the council of the rightwise].

<sup>6</sup> For the Lord knoweth the way of just men [for the rightwise]; and the way of wicked men shall perish.

<sup>5</sup> Then he shall speak to them in his wrath; and he shall trouble them in his strong vengeance.

<sup>7</sup> preaching his commandment. The Lord said to me, Thou art my son; I have begotten thee today.

<sup>8</sup> Ask thou of me, and I shall give to thee heathen men for thine heritage; and for thy possession the terms of earth.

<sup>9</sup> Thou shalt govern them in an iron rod; and thou shalt break them altogether as the vessel of a potter.

<sup>12</sup> Take ye lore of chastising; lest the Lord be wroth sometime, and ye perish from the just way. When his wrath shall burn out in short time; blessed be all they, that trust in him.

PSALM 3

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David, when he fled from the face of Absalom, his son. Lord, why be they multiplied that trouble me? many men rise against me.

<sup>2</sup> Many men say of my soul, None health there is to him in his God.

<sup>7</sup> Lord, arise thou; my God, make me safe. For thou hast smitten all men being adversaries to me without cause; thou hast all-broken the teeth of sinners.

PSALM 4

<sup>1</sup> To the victory, in organs, the psalm of David. When I inwardly called, God of my rightwiseness heard me; in tribulation thou hast alarged to me. Have thou mercy on me; and hear thou my prayer.

<sup>5</sup> Sacrifice ye the sacrifice or Offer ye an offering of rightfulness [or right-wiseness], and hope ye in the Lord;

<sup>6</sup> many say, Who showed good things to us? Lord, the light of thy cheer is marked upon us;

<sup>7</sup> thou hast given gladness in mine heart. They be multiplied of the fruit of wheat, and of wine; and of their oil.

<sup>8</sup> In peace in the same thing; I shall sleep, and take rest. For thou, Lord; hast set me singularly or only in hope.

PSALM 5

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer, on the heritages, the psalm of David. Lord, perceive thou my words with ears; understand thou my cry.

<sup>2</sup> My King, and my God; give thou attention to the voice of my prayer. For, Lord, I shall pray to thee;

<sup>3</sup> hear thou early my voice. Early I shall stand nigh to thee, and I shall see;

<sup>4</sup> for thou art God not desiring wickedness. Neither an evil-willed man shall dwell beside thee;

<sup>5</sup> neither unjust [or unrightwise] men shall dwell before thine eyes. Thou hatest all them that work wickedness;

<sup>6</sup> thou shalt lose them that speak leasing. The Lord shall hold abomin-able a man-queller, and a guileful man.

<sup>7</sup> But Lord, in the multitude of thy mercy, I shall enter into thine house; I shall worship toward thine holy temple in thy dread.

<sup>8</sup> Lord, lead thou forth me in thy rightwiseness for mine enemies; dress thou my way in thy sight.

<sup>10</sup> God, deem thou them. Fall they down from their thoughts; after the multitude of their wickednesses, or un-piousnesses, cast thou them down; for, Lord, they have stirred thee to wrath.

<sup>11</sup> And all that hope in thee, be they glad; they shall make full out joy [into] without end, and thou shalt dwell in them. And all that love thy name shall have glory in thee;

<sup>12</sup> for thou shalt bless the just [or right-wise] man. Lord, thou hast crowned us, as with a shield of thy good will.

PSALM 6

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer in psalms, the psalm of David, on the eighth. Lord, reprove thou not me in thy strong vengeance; neither chastise thou me in thine ire.

<sup>2</sup> Lord, have thou mercy on me, for I am sick; Lord, make thou me whole, for all my bones be troubled.

<sup>3</sup> And my soul is troubled greatly; but thou, Lord, how long?

<sup>4</sup> Lord, be thou converted or turned again, and deliver my soul; make thou me safe, for thy mercy.

<sup>5</sup> For none there is in death, that is mindful of thee; but in hell who shall acknowledge to thee?

<sup>6</sup> I travailed in my wailing, I shall wash my bed by each night; I shall moisten, either make wet, my bedstraw with my tears.

<sup>8</sup> All ye that work wickedness, depart from me; for the Lord hath heard the voice of my weeping.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord hath heard my beseech-ing; the Lord hath received my prayer.

<sup>10</sup> All mine enemies be ashamed, and be troubled greatly; be they turned altogether, and be they ashamed full swiftly.

PSALM 7

<sup>1</sup> For the ignorance of David, which he sang to the Lord, on the words of Ethiopian, the son of Benjamin. My Lord God, I have hoped in thee; make thou me safe from all that pursue me, and deliver thou me.

<sup>2</sup> Lest any time he as a lion ravish my soul; while none there is that again-buyeth, neither that maketh safe.

<sup>3</sup> My Lord God, if I did this thing, if wickedness is in mine hands, or works;

<sup>4</sup> if I yielded to men yielding to me evils, fall I by deserving void from mine enemies;

<sup>5</sup> mine enemy pursue he my soul, and take he, and defoul my life in earth; and bring my glory into dust.

<sup>7</sup> and the synagogue of peoples shall encompass thee. And for this go thou again on high;

<sup>8</sup> the Lord deemeth peoples. Lord, deem thou me by my rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and by mine innocence on me.

<sup>9</sup> The wickedness of sinners be ended; and thou, God, seeking the hearts, that is, thoughts, and reins, that is, delightings, shall dress a just [or rightwise] man.

<sup>11</sup> The Lord is a just [or rightwise] judge, strong and patient; whether he is wroth by all days?

<sup>13</sup> And therein he hath made ready the vessels of death; he hath fully made his arrows with burning things.

<sup>14</sup> Lo! the wicked hath conceived sorrow; he painfully hath brought forth unrightfulness [or unrightwiseness], and he hath childed wickedness.

<sup>15</sup> He opened a pit, and digged it out; and he fell into the ditch which he made.

<sup>17</sup> I shall acknowledge to the Lord by his rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and I shall sing to the name of the highest Lord.

PSALM 8

<sup>2</sup> Of the mouth of young children, not speaking and sucking milk, thou hast made perfect praising, for thine enemies; that thou destroy the enemy and the avenger.

<sup>3</sup> For I shall see thine heavens, the works of thy fingers; the moon and the stars, which thou hast founded.

<sup>5</sup> Thou hast made him a little less than angels; thou hast crowned him with glory and honour,

<sup>6</sup> and thou hast ordained him above the works of thine hands. Thou hast made subject all things under his feet;

<sup>7</sup> all sheep and oxen, furthermore and the beasts of the field;

<sup>8</sup> the birds of the air, and the fishes of the sea, and all the other creatures that pass by the paths of the sea.

PSALM 9

<sup>1</sup> Into the end, for the privates of the son, the psalm of David. Lord, I shall acknowledge to thee in all mine heart; I shall tell all thy marvels.

<sup>2</sup> Thou Highest, I shall be glad, and I shall be fully joyful [or full out joy] in thee; I shall sing to thy name.

<sup>3</sup> For thou turnest mine enemy aback; they shall be made feeble, and shall perish from thy face.

<sup>4</sup> For thou hast made my doom, and my cause; thou, that deemest rightfulness [or rightwiseness], hast set on the throne.

<sup>6</sup> The swords of the enemy have failed into the end; and thou hast destroyed the cities of them. The mind of them hath perished with sound;

<sup>7</sup> and the Lord dwelleth without end. He hath made ready his throne in doom;

<sup>8</sup> and he shall deem the world in equity, he shall deem peoples in rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>9</sup> And the Lord is made refuge, either help, to a poor man; an helper in covenable times in tribulation.

<sup>10</sup> And they, that know thy name, have hope in thee; for thou, Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek thee.

<sup>11</sup> Sing ye [psalms] to the Lord, that dwelleth in Zion; tell ye his studies among heathen men.

<sup>12</sup> God forgetteth not the cry of poor men; for he hath mind of them, and he seeketh the blood of them.

<sup>15</sup> heathen men be fast-set in the perishing, which they made. In this snare, which they hid, the foot of them is caught.

PSALM 10

<sup>4</sup> after the multitude of his wrath, he shall not seek after God. God is not in his sight;

<sup>5</sup> his ways be defouled in all time. Thy dooms be taken away from his face; he shall be lord of all his enemies.

<sup>6</sup> For he said in his heart, I shall not be moved, from generation into generation without evil.

<sup>7</sup> Whose mouth is full of cursing, and of bitterness, and of guile; travail and sorrow is under his tongue.

<sup>8</sup> He sitteth in ambushes with rich men in privates; to slay the innocent man. His eyes behold cruelly on the poor man;

<sup>10</sup> he shall bow himself down, and he shall fall, when he hath been lord of poor men.

<sup>11</sup> For he said in his heart, God hath forgotten; he hath turned away his face, that he see not into the end.

<sup>13</sup> For what thing stirred the wicked man God to wrath? for he said in his heart, God shall not seek.

<sup>15</sup> All-break thou the arm of the sinner, and evil-willed; his sin shall be sought, and it shall not be found.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord shall reign without end, and into the world of world; folks, ye shall perish from the land of him.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord hath heard the desire of poor men; thine ear hath heard the making ready of their heart.

<sup>18</sup> To deem for the motherless and meek; that a man presume no more to make himself great on earth.

PSALM 11

<sup>1</sup> To the victory, [the psalm] of David. I trust in the Lord; how say ye to my soul, Pass thou over into the hill, as a sparrow doeth?

<sup>2</sup> For lo! sinners have bent a bow; they have made ready their arrows in an arrow case; that they shoot in darkness the rightful men in heart.

<sup>3</sup> For they have destroyed, whom thou hast made perfect; but what did the rightful [or rightwise] man?

<sup>5</sup> The Lord asketh a just [or right-wise] man, and an unfaithful man; but he, that loveth wickedness, hateth his soul.

<sup>6</sup> He shall rain snares upon sinners; fire, and brimstone, and the spirit of tempests be the part of the cup of them.

<sup>7</sup> For the Lord is just [or rightwise], and loveth rightfulnesses [or rightwise-ness]; his cheer hath seen evenness, or equity.

PSALM 12

<sup>5</sup> For the wretchedness of needy men, and for the wailing of poor men; now I shall rise up, saith the Lord. I shall set him in health; I shall do trustily in him.

<sup>6</sup> The speeches of the Lord be chaste speeches; silver assayed by fire, proved from the earth, purged sevenfold.

PSALM 13

<sup>1</sup> To the victory, [the psalm]of David. Lord, how long forgettest thou me, into the end? how long turnest thou away thy face from me?

<sup>2</sup> How long shall I set counsel in my soul; sorrow in my heart by day? How long shall mine enemy be raised up on me?

<sup>3</sup> My Lord God, behold thou, and hear thou me. Lighten thou mine eyes, lest any time I sleep in death;

<sup>4</sup> lest any time mine enemy say, I had the mastery against him. They, that trouble me, shall have joy, if I shall be stirred;

<sup>5</sup> but I hoped in thy mercy. Mine heart shall fully have joy in thine health;

<sup>6</sup> I shall sing to the Lord, that giveth goods to me, and I shall say psalm to the name of the highest Lord.

PSALM 14

<sup>1</sup> To the victory, [the psalm]of David. The unwise man said in his heart, God is not. They be corrupt, and they be made abominable in their studies; none there is that doeth good, none is till to one*.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord beheld from heaven on the sons of men; that he see, if any is understanding, either seeking God.

<sup>3</sup> All bowed away, altogether they be made unprofitable; none is that doeth good, none is till to one. The throat of them is an open sepulchre, they did guilefully with their tongues; the venom of snakes is under their lips. Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness; their feet be swift to shed out blood. Sorrow and cursed-ness is in the ways of them, and they knew not the way of peace; the dread of God is not before their eyes.

<sup>4</sup> Whether all men that work wicked-ness shall not know; that devour my people, as meat of bread? They called not the Lord;

* PSALM 14:1 Compare Psalm 14:1-7 to Psalm 53:1-6.

<sup>7</sup> Who shall give from Zion health to Israel? When the Lord hath turned away the captivity of his people; Jacob shall fully be joyful or shall full out joy, and Israel shall be glad.

PSALM 15

<sup>2</sup> He that entereth without wem; and worketh rightfulness [or rightwise-ness]. He that speaketh truth in his heart;

<sup>3</sup> which did not guile in his tongue. Nor did evil to his neighbour; and took not reproof against his neighbours.

<sup>4</sup> A wicked man is brought to nought in his sight; but he glorifieth them that dread the Lord. He that sweareth to his neighbour, and deceiveth him not;

<sup>5</sup> which gave not his money to usury; and took not gifts upon the innocent. He, that doeth these things, shall not be moved without end.

PSALM 16

<sup>1</sup> Of the meek and simple, the psalm of David. Lord, keep thou me, for I have hoped in thee;

<sup>2</sup> I said to the Lord, Thou art my God; for thou hast no need of my goods.

<sup>3</sup> To the saints that be in the land of him; he made wonderful all my wills in them.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord is[the] part of mine heritage, and of my passion; thou art, that shall restore mine heritage to me.

<sup>6</sup> Cords felled to me in full clear things; for mine heritage is full clear to me.

<sup>7</sup> I shall bless the Lord, that hath given understanding to me; furthermore and my reins have blamed me unto the night.

<sup>8</sup> I saw before me ever[more] the Lord in my sight; for he is at the right half to me, that I be not moved.

<sup>9</sup> For this thing mine heart was glad, and my tongue joyed fully; further-more and my flesh shall rest in hope.

<sup>10</sup> For thou shalt not leave my soul in hell; neither thou shalt give thine holy man to see corruption.

<sup>11</sup> Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt [full-]fill me with gladness with thy cheer; delight-ings be in thy right half unto the end.

PSALM 17

<sup>1</sup> The prayer of David. Lord, hear thou my rightfulness; behold thou my prayer. Perceive thou with ears my prayer; not made in guileful lips.

<sup>3</sup> Thou hast proved mine heart, and hast visited me in [the] night; thou hast examined, or assayed, me by fire, and wickedness is not found in me.

<sup>4</sup> That my mouth speak not of the works of men; for the words of thy lips I have kept hard ways.

<sup>5</sup> Make thou perfect my goings in thy paths; that my steps be not moved.

<sup>6</sup> I cried, for thou, God, heardest me; bow down thy ear to me, and hear thou my words.

<sup>9</sup> from the face of unpious men, that have tormented me. Mine enemies have encompassed my soul;

<sup>11</sup> They casted me forth, and have en-compassed me now; they ordained to bow down their eyes into [the] earth.

<sup>12</sup> They, as a lion made ready to his prey, have taken me; and as the whelp of a lion dwelling in hid places.

<sup>15</sup> But I in rightfulness [or rightwise-ness] shall appear to thy sight; I shall be [ful] filled, when thy glory shall appear.

PSALM 18

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the word of the Lord to David, which spake the words of this song, in the day in which the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul; and he said: Lord, my strength, I shall love thee*;

<sup>2</sup> the Lord is my steadfastness, and my refuge, and my deliverer. My God is mine helper; and I shall hope in him. My defender, and the horn of mine health; and mine up-taker.

<sup>3</sup> I shall praise, and inwardly call the Lord; and I shall be safe from mine enemies.

<sup>4</sup> The sorrows of death encompassed me; and the strands [or streams] of wickedness have troubled me.

<sup>6</sup> In my tribulation I inwardly called the Lord; and I cried to my God. And he heard my voice from his holy temple; and my cry in his sight entered into his ears.

<sup>7</sup> The earth was moved together, and trembled greatly; the foundations of hills were troubled altogether, and moved together, for he was wroth to them.

<sup>8</sup> Smoke went up in the ire [or wrath] of the Lord, and fire burnt out from his face; coals were kindled of him.

<sup>9</sup> He bowed down heavens, and came down; and darkness was under his feet.

<sup>10</sup> And he ascended [or went] on cherubim, and flew; he flew over the pens of winds.

<sup>11</sup> And he setted [or put] darkneses his hiding place, his tabernacle in his compass; and dark water was in the clouds of the air.

<sup>13</sup> And the Lord thundered from heaven; and the Highest gave his voice, hail and coals of fire.

<sup>14</sup> And he sent his arrows, and destroyed those men; he multiplied lightnings, and troubled those men.

<sup>15</sup> And the wells of waters appeared; and the foundations of the earth were showed. Lord, of thy blaming; of the breathing of the spirit of thine ire.

<sup>16</sup> He sent from the highest place, and took me; and he took me from many waters.

* PSALM 18:1 Compare Psalm 18:1-50 to 2nd Samuel 22:1-51.

17 He delivered me from my strongest enemies; and from them that hated me, for they were comforted on me.

18 They came before me in the day of my torment; and the Lord was made my defender.

19 And he led out me into breadth; he made me safe, for he would me.

20 And the Lord shall yield to me by my rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and he shall yield to me by the cleanness of mine hands.

21 For I kept the ways of the Lord; and I did not go away unfaithfully from my God.

22 For all his dooms be in my sight; and I putted not away from me his rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses].

23 And I shall be unwemmed with him; and I shall keep me from my wickedness.

24 And the Lord shall yield to me by my rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and by the cleanness of mine hands in the sight of his eyes.

25 With the holy, thou shalt be holy; and with an innocent man, thou shalt be innocent.

26 And with a chosen man, thou shalt be chosen; and with a wayward man, thou shalt be wayward.

27 For thou shalt make safe a meek people; and thou shalt make meek the eyes of proud men.

28 For thou, Lord, lightenest my lantern; my God, lighten thou my darknesses.

29 For by thee I shall be delivered from temptation; and in my God I shall go over the wall.

30 My God, his way is undefouled; the speeches of the Lord be examined by fire; he is [the] defender of all men hoping in him.

31 For why, who is God, except the Lord? either who is God, except our God?

32 God that hath girded me with virtue; and hath set my way unwem-med.

33 Which made perfect my feet as the feet of harts; and ordaining me on high things.

34 Which teacheth mine hands to battle; and thou hast set mine arms as a brazen bow.

35 And thou hast given to me the covering of thine health; and thy right hand hath up-taken me. And thy chastising amended me into the end; and that chastising of thee shall teach me.

36 Thou alargedest my paces under me; and my steps be not made un-steadfast.

37 I shall pursue mine enemies, and I shall take them; and I shall not turn till they fail.

38 I shall all-break them, and they shall not be able to stand; they shall fall under my feet.

39 And thou hast girded me with virtue to battle; and thou hast overturned under me men rising against me.

40 And thou hast given mine enemies aback [or back] to me; and thou hast destroyed them that hated me.

41 They cried, and none there was that made them safe; they cried to the Lord, and he heard not them.

42 And I shall all-break them, as dust before the face of the wind; I shall do them away, as the clay of streets.

43 Thou shalt deliver me from [the] against-sayings of the people; thou shalt set me into the head of folks. The people, which I knew not, hath served me;

44 in the hearing of ear it obeyed to me. Alien sons lied down to me,

45 alien sons waxed eld; and went crooked from thy paths.

46 The Lord liveth, and my God be blessed; and the God of mine health be enhanced.

47 God, that givest vengeance to me, and makest subject peoples under me;

<sup>48</sup> thou art my deliverer from my wrathful enemies. And thou shalt enhance me from them, that rise against me; thou shalt deliver me from a wicked man.

<sup>49</sup> Therefore, Lord, I shall acknowl-edge to thee among nations; and I shall say psalm to thy name.

<sup>50</sup> Magnifying the healths of his king; and doing mercy to his christ David, and to his seed till into the world.

PSALM 19

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David. Heavens tell out the glory of God; and the firmament telleth the works of his hands.

<sup>2</sup> The day telleth out to the day a word; and the night showeth know-ing to the night.

<sup>4</sup> The sound of them went out into all earth; and the words of them into the ends of the world. In the sun he hath set his tabernacle;

<sup>5</sup> and he as a spouse coming forth of his chamber. He fully joyed, as a giant, to run his way;

<sup>6</sup> his going out was from [the] high-est heaven. And his going again was to the highest thereof; and none there is that hideth himself from his heat.

<sup>8</sup> The rightfulnesses of the Lord be rightful, gladdening hearts; the com-mandment of the Lord is clear, en-lightening eyes.

<sup>9</sup> The holy dread of the Lord dwelleth into the world of world; the dooms of the Lord be true, justified into themselves.

<sup>10</sup> Desirable more than gold, and a stone much precious; and sweeter than honey and honeycomb.

<sup>13</sup> and of alien sins spare thy servant. If those [or they] have not lordship of me, then I shall be undefouled of alien sins, or without wem; and I shall be cleansed of the most sin.

<sup>14</sup> And the speeches of my mouth shall be such, that they please; and the thinking of mine heart is ever[more] in thy sight. Lord, mine helper; and mine again-buyer.

PSALM 20

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David. The Lord hear thee in the day of tribulation; the name of God of Jacob defend thee.

<sup>2</sup> Send he help to thee from the holy place; and from Zion defend he thee.

<sup>5</sup> We shall be glad in thine health; and we shall be magnified in the name of our God. The Lord [ful] fill all thine askings;

<sup>7</sup> These, that is, adversaries, trust in chariots, and these in horses; but we shall inwardly call in the name of our Lord God.

<sup>8</sup> They be bound, and felled down; but we have risen, and be raised.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, make thou safe the king; and hear thou us in the day in which we inwardly call thee.

PSALM 21

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David. Lord, the king shall be glad in thy virtue; and he shall full out have joy greatly on thine health.

<sup>2</sup> Thou hast given to him the desire of his heart; and thou hast not defrauded him of the will of his lips.

<sup>3</sup> For thou hast before-come him in the blessings of sweetness; thou hast set [or puttest] on his head a crown of precious stone.

<sup>4</sup> He asked of thee life, and thou gavest it to him; the length of days into the world, and into the world of world.

<sup>6</sup> For thou shalt give him into blessing into the world of world; thou shalt make him glad in joy with thy cheer.

<sup>10</sup> Thou shalt lose the fruit of them from the earth; and the seed of them from the sons of men.

PSALM 22

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer, for the morrow-tide hind, the psalm of David. God, my God, behold thou on me, why hast thou forsaken me? the words of my trespasses be far from mine health.

<sup>2</sup> My God, I shall cry by day, and thou shalt not hear; and by night, and not to un wisdom to me.

<sup>5</sup> They cried to thee, and they were made safe; they hoped in thee, and they were not shamed.

<sup>6</sup> But I am a worm, and not a man; the shame of men, and the out-casting of the people.

<sup>7</sup> All men seeing me scorned me; they spake with lips, and wagged the head, and said,

<sup>8</sup> He hoped in the Lord, deliver he him; make he him safe, for he will or delights in him.

<sup>9</sup> For thou it art that drewest me out of the womb, that art mine hope from the teats of my mother;

<sup>10</sup> into thee I am cast forth from the womb. From the womb of my mother thou art my God;

<sup>11</sup> depart thou not from me. For tribulation is next; for none there is that helpeth.

<sup>14</sup> I am poured out as water; and all my bones be scattered. Mine heart is made, as wax floating abroad [or melting]; in the midst of my womb.

<sup>15</sup> My virtue dried as a tilestone, and my tongue cleaved to my cheeks; and thou hast brought forth me into the dust of death.

<sup>16</sup> For many dogs encompassed me; the council of wicked men besieged me. They delved mine hands and my feet;

<sup>17</sup> they numbered all my bones. Soothly they looked, and beheld me;

<sup>18</sup> they parted my clothes to them-selves, and they sent lot on my cloth.

<sup>19</sup> But thou, Lord, delay not thine help from me; behold thou to my defence.

<sup>21</sup> Make thou me safe from the mouth of a lion; and my meekness from the horns of unicorns.

<sup>22</sup> I shall tell thy name to my brethren; I shall praise thee in the midst of the church.

<sup>23</sup> Ye that dread the Lord, praise him; all the seed of Jacob, glorify him. All the seed of Israel, dread him;

<sup>24</sup> for he forsook not, neither despised the prayer of a poor man. Neither he turned away his face from me; and when I cried to him, he heard me.

<sup>25</sup> My praising is with thee in a great church; I shall yield my vows in the sight of men dreading him.

<sup>26</sup> Poor men shall eat, and shall be [ful] filled, and they shall praise the Lord, that seek him; the hearts of them shall live into the world of world.

<sup>28</sup> For the realm is the Lord's; and he shall be Lord of heathen men.

<sup>29</sup> All the fat men of earth ate and worshipped; all men, that go down into earth, shall fall down in his sight. And my soul shall live to him;

<sup>30</sup> and my seed shall serve him. A generation to coming shall be told to the Lord;

<sup>31</sup> and heavens shall tell his rightful-ness [or rightwiseness] to the people that shall be born, whom the Lord made.

PSALM 23

<sup>2</sup> in the place of pasture there he hath set me. He nourished me on the water of refreshing;

<sup>3</sup> he converted my soul. He led me forth on the paths of rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; for his name.

<sup>4</sup> For why though I shall go in the midst of shadow of death; I shall not dread evils, for thou art with me. Thy rod and thy staff; those have comforted me.

<sup>5</sup> Thou hast made ready a board in my sight; against them that trouble me. Thou hast made fat mine head with oil; and my cup, that filleth greatly, is full clear.

<sup>6</sup> And thy mercy shall follow me; in all the days of my life. And that I dwell in the house of the Lord; into the length of days.

PSALM 24

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. The earth and the fullness thereof is the Lord's; the world, and all that dwell therein.

<sup>2</sup> For he founded it on the seas; and made it ready on floods.

<sup>8</sup> Who is this king of glory? the Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle.
<sup>9</sup> Ye princes, take up your gates, and ye everlasting gates, be ye raised; and the king of glory shall enter.
<sup>10</sup> Who is this king of glory? the Lord of virtues* or the Lord of hosts, he is the king of glory.

PSALM 25

<sup>2</sup> my God, I trust in thee, be I not ashamed. Neither mine enemies scorn me;
<sup>3</sup> for all men that suffer thee shall not be shamed. All men doing wicked things superfluously; be they shamed.
<sup>4</sup> Lord, show thou thy ways to me; and teach thou me thy paths.
<sup>5</sup> Dress thou me in thy truth, and teach thou me, for thou art God, my saviour; and I suffered thee all day.
<sup>6</sup> Lord, have thou mind of thy merciful doings; and of thy mercies that be from the world.
<sup>7</sup> Have thou not mind on the tres-passes of my youth; and on mine unknowings. Thou, Lord, have mind on me by thy mercy; for thy goodness.
<sup>8</sup> The Lord is sweet and rightful; for this cause he shall give a law to men trespassing in the way.
<sup>10</sup> All the ways of the Lord be mercy and truth; to men seeking his testament, and his witnessings.
<sup>11</sup> Lord, for thy name, thou shalt do mercy to my sin; for it is much.
<sup>12</sup> Who is a man, that dreadeth the Lord? he ordaineth to him a law in the way which he should choose.
<sup>14</sup> The Lord is a firmness to men dreading him; and his testament is, that it be showed to them.
<sup>15</sup> Mine eyes be ever[more] toward the Lord; for he shall pull away [or pull up] my feet from the snare.
<sup>16</sup> Behold thou to me, and have thou mercy on me; for I am one alone and poor.
<sup>17</sup> The tribulations of mine heart be multiplied; deliver thou me of my needs.
<sup>18</sup> See thou my meekness and my travail; and forgive thou all my tres-passes.
<sup>19</sup> Behold thou mine enemies, for they be multiplied; and they hate me by wicked hatred.
<sup>20</sup> Keep thou my soul, and deliver me; be I not ashamed, for I hoped in thee.
<sup>21</sup> Innocent men and rightful cleaved to me; for I suffered thee.

PSALM 26

<sup>1</sup> [The psalm of David.] Lord, deem thou me, for I entered in mine inno-cence; and I hoping in the Lord, shall not be made unsteadfast.
<sup>2</sup> Lord, prove thou me, and assay me; burn thou my reins, and mine heart.

* PSALM 24:10 In the original Old Testament of the "Wycliffe Bible", but only in Psalms, numerous verses have the phrase 'the Lord of virtues'/'the Lord God of virtues', where 'virtues' refers to 'hosts' or 'armies', as it does elsewhere, and so should be read 'the Lord of hosts'/'the Lord God of hosts'. As well, 'virtue' can mean 'victory', 'power' and 'might/y'.

- <sup>3</sup> For why thy mercy is before mine eyes; and I pleased in thy truth.
<sup>4</sup> I sat not with the counsel of vanity; and I shall not enter with men doing wicked things.
<sup>5</sup> I hated the church of evil men; and I shall not sit with wicked men.
<sup>6</sup> I shall wash mine hands among innocents; and, Lord, I shall compass thine altar.
<sup>8</sup> Lord, I have loved the fairness of thine house; and the place of the dwelling of thy glory.
<sup>9</sup> God, lose thou not my soul with unfaithful men; and my life with men of bloods.
<sup>11</sup> But I entered in mine innocence; again-buy thou me, and have mercy on me.

PSALM 27

- <sup>1</sup> The holy prayer of David. The Lord is my lightening, and mine health; whom shall I dread? The Lord is defender of my life; for whom shall I tremble [or quake]?
- <sup>2</sup> The while noisome men nigh on me; for to eat my fleshs. Mine enemies, that troubled me; they were made sick and felled [or fell] down.
- <sup>3</sup> Though castles [or tents] stand together against me; mine heart shall not dread. Though battle riseth against me; in this thing I shall have hope.
- <sup>4</sup> I asked of the Lord one thing; I shall seek this thing; that I dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life. That I see the will of the Lord; and that I visit his temple.
- <sup>5</sup> For he hid me in his tabernacle in the day of evils; he defended me in the hid place of his tabernacle. He enhanced me in a stone;
- <sup>6</sup> and now he enhanced mine head over mine enemies. I compassed, and offered in his tabernacle a sacrifice of crying [out]; I shall sing, and I shall say psalm to the Lord.
- <sup>7</sup> Lord, hear thou my voice, by which I cried to thee; have thou mercy on me, and hear me.
- <sup>8</sup> Mine heart said to thee, My face sought thee; Lord, I shall seek again thy face.
- <sup>9</sup> Turn thou not away thy face from me; bow thou not away in wrath from thy servant. Lord, be thou mine helper, forsake thou not me; and, God, mine health, despise thou not me.
- <sup>10</sup> For my father and my mother have forsaken me; but the Lord hath taken me up.
- <sup>11</sup> Lord, set thou a law to me in thy way; and dress thou me in a rightful [or right] path, for mine enemies.
- <sup>12</sup> Betake thou not me into the souls of them, that trouble me; for wicked witnesses have risen against me, and wickedness lied to itself.
- <sup>13</sup> I believe to see the goods of the Lord; in the land of living men.
- <sup>14</sup> Abide thou the Lord, do thou manly; and thine heart be comforted, and suffer thou for the Lord.

PSALM 28

- <sup>1</sup> To David. [The psalm to this David.] Lord, I shall cry to thee; my God, be thou not still from me, be thou not still any time from me; and I shall be made like to them, that go down into the pit.
- <sup>2</sup> Lord, hear thou the voice of my beseeching, while I pray to thee; while I raise mine hands toward thine holy temple.
- <sup>3</sup> Betake thou not me together with sinners; and lose thou not me with them that work wickedness. Which speak peace to their neighbours; but evils be in their hearts.

<sup>5</sup> For they understood not the works of the Lord, and by the works of his hands thou shalt destroy them; and thou shalt not build them.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord is mine helper and my defender; and mine heart hoped in him, and I am helped. And my flesh flowered again; and of my will I shall acknowledge to him.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord is the strength of his people; and he is the defender of the savings of his christ.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, make thou safe thy people, and bless thou thine heritage; and rule thou them, and enhance thou them till into without end.

PSALM 29

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. Ye sons of God, bring ye to the Lord; bring ye to the Lord, the sons of rams. Bring ye to the Lord glory and honour;

<sup>2</sup> bring ye to the Lord glory to his name; praise ye the Lord in his holy large place.

PSALM 30

<sup>2</sup> My Lord God, I cried to thee; and thou madest me whole.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, thou leddest out my soul from hell; thou savedest me from them that go down into the pit.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth I said in my plenty; I shall not be moved without end.

<sup>7</sup> Lord, in thy will; thou hast given virtue to my fairness. Thou turnedest away thy face from me; and I am made troubled.

<sup>8</sup> Lord, I shall cry to thee; and I shall pray to my God.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord heard, and had mercy on me; the Lord is made mine helper.

<sup>11</sup> Thou hast turned my wailing into joy to me; thou hast rent my sack-cloth, and hast encompassed me with gladness.

<sup>12</sup> That my glory sing to thee, and I be not compunct; my Lord God, I shall acknowledge to thee without end.

PSALM 31

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David. Lord, I have hoped in thee, be I not shamed without end; deliver thou me in thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>2</sup> Bow down thine ear to me; haste thou to deliver me. Be thou to me into God a defender, and into an house of refuge; that thou make me safe.

<sup>3</sup> For thou art my strength and my refuge; and for thy name, thou shalt lead me forth, and shalt nourish me.

<sup>4</sup> Thou shalt lead me out of the snare, which they hid to me; for thou art my defender.

<sup>5</sup> I betake my spirit into thine hands; Lord God of truth, thou hast again-bought me.

<sup>7</sup> I shall have fully joy, and shall be glad in thy mercy. For thou beheldest my meekness; thou savedest my life from needs.

<sup>8</sup> And thou enclosedest not me altogether within the hands of the enemy; thou hast set my feet in a large place.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, have thou mercy on me, for I am troubled; mine eye is troubled in ire, my soul and my womb also.

<sup>10</sup> For why my life failed in sorrow; and my years in wailings. My virtue is made feeble in poverty; and my bones be troubled.

<sup>11</sup> Over all mine enemies I am made a shame, [and] greatly to my neighbours; and dread to my known. They that saw me withoutforth, fled from me;

<sup>12</sup> I am given to forgetting, as a dead man from the heart. I am made as a forlorn vessel;

<sup>13</sup> for I heard despising of many men dwelling in compass. In that thing while they came together against me; they counselled to take my life.

<sup>14</sup> But, Lord, I hoped in thee; I said, Thou art my God;

<sup>15</sup> my times be in thine hands. Deliver thou me from the hands of mine enemies; and from them that pursue me.

<sup>16</sup> Make thou clear thy face on thy servant; Lord, make thou me safe in thy mercy;

<sup>17</sup> be I not shamed, for I inwardly called thee. Unpious men be ashamed, and be they led forth into hell;

<sup>18</sup> guileful lips be made dumb. That speak wickedness against a just [or rightwise] man; in pride, and in mis-using or in abusing.

<sup>21</sup> Blessed be the Lord; for he hath made wonderful his mercy to me in a strengthened city.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth I said in the out-passing of my soul; I am cast out from the face of thine eyes. Therefore thou heardest the voice of my prayer; while I cried to thee.

<sup>24</sup> All ye that hope in the Lord, do ye manly; and your heart be comforted.

PSALM 32

<sup>4</sup> For by day and night thine hand was made grievous on me; I am turned in my wretchedness, while the thorn is set in.

<sup>5</sup> I made my sin known to thee; and I hid not my unrightfulness. I said, I shall acknowledge against me mine unrightfulness to the Lord; and thou hast forgiven the wickedness of my sin.

<sup>6</sup> For this thing each holy man shall pray to thee; in covenable time. Nevertheless in the great flood of many waters; they shall not nigh to thee.

<sup>7</sup> Thou art my refuge from tribulation, that encompassed me; thou, my fully joying [or full out joy], deliver me from them that encompass me.

<sup>8</sup> I shall give understanding to thee, and I shall teach thee; in this way in which thou shalt go, I shall make steadfast mine eyes on thee.

<sup>9</sup> Do not ye be made as an horse and mule; to which is none under-standing. Lord, constrain thou the cheeks of them with a barnacle and bridle; that they nigh not to thee.

<sup>10</sup> Many beatings be of the sinner; but mercy shall encompass him that hopeth in the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> Ye just [or rightwise] men, be glad, and make fully joy in the Lord; and all ye rightful of heart, have glory.

PSALM 33

<sup>6</sup> Heavens be made steadfast by the word of the Lord; and all the virtue of those [or them] by the spirit of his mouth.

<sup>7</sup> And he gathered together the waters of the sea as in a bouget or a bottle; and he setteth deep waters in treasures.

<sup>8</sup> All earth dread the Lord; soothly all men inhabiting the world be moved of him.

<sup>9</sup> For he said, and things were made; he commanded, and things were made of nought.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord destroyeth the counsels of folks, forsooth he reproveth the thoughts of peoples; and he reproveth the counsels of princes.

<sup>11</sup> But the counsel of the Lord dwelleth without end; the thoughts of his heart dwell in generation and into generation.

<sup>12</sup> Blessed is the folk, whose Lord is his God; the people which he chose into heritage to himself.

<sup>15</sup> Which made singularly, either each by himself, the souls of them; which understandeth all the works of them.

<sup>16</sup> A king is not saved by much virtue, that is, strength; and a giant shall not be saved in the muchliness of his virtue.

<sup>18</sup> Lo! the eyes of the Lord be on men dreading him; and in them that hope in his mercy.

<sup>20</sup> Our soul suffereth the Lord, that is, abideth patiently his will; for he is our helper and defender.

<sup>21</sup> For our heart shall be glad in him; and we shall have hope in his holy name.

<sup>22</sup> Lord, thy mercy be made on us; as we hoped in thee.

PSALM 34

<sup>1</sup> To David, when he changed his mouth, or his word, before Abimelech, and he drove out David, and he went forth. [The psalm of David, when he changed his cheer before Abimelech, and he let him go, and he went away.] I shall bless the Lord in all time; ever[more] his praising be in my mouth.

<sup>2</sup> My soul shall be praised in the Lord; mild men hear, and be glad.

<sup>4</sup> I sought the Lord, and he heard me; and he delivered me from all my tribulations.

<sup>5</sup> Nigh ye to him, and be ye lighten-ed; and your faces shall not be shamed.

<sup>7</sup> The angel of the Lord sendeth in the compass of men dreading him; and he shall deliver them.

<sup>8</sup> Taste ye, and see, for the Lord is sweet; blessed is the man, that hopeth in him.

<sup>9</sup> All ye holy men of the Lord, dread ye him; for no neediness is to men dreading him.

<sup>10</sup> Rich men were needy, and were hungry; but men that seek the Lord shall not fail of all good.

<sup>11</sup> Come, ye sons, hear ye me; I shall teach you the dread of the Lord.

<sup>16</sup> But the cheer of the Lord is on men doing evils; that he lose the mind the memory of them from [the] earth.

<sup>17</sup> Just [or rightwise] men cried, and the Lord heard them; and delivered them from all their tribulations.

<sup>18</sup> The Lord is nigh [to] them that be of troubled heart; and he shall save meek men in spirit.

<sup>19</sup> Many tribulations be of just [or rightwise] men; and the Lord shall deliver them from all these [or them].

<sup>21</sup> The death of sinners is worst; and they that hate a just [or rightwise] man shall trespass.

<sup>22</sup> The Lord shall again-buy the souls of his servants; and all, that hope in him, shall not trespass.

PSALM 35

<sup>1</sup> To David. [The psalm of David.] Lord, deem thou them, that annoy me; overcome thou them, that fight against me.

<sup>3</sup> Hold out the sword, and close altogether the way against them that pursue me; say thou to my soul, I am thine health.

<sup>4</sup> They that seek my life; be shamed, and ashamed. They that think evils to me; be turned away backward, and be they shamed.

<sup>5</sup> Be they made as dust before the face of the wind; and the angel of the Lord make them strait.

<sup>6</sup> Their way be made darkness, and sliderness; and the angel of the Lord pursue them.

<sup>7</sup> For without cause they hid to me the death of their snare; in vain they despised my soul.

<sup>8</sup> The snare which he knoweth not come to him, and the taking which he hid take him; and fall he into the snare in that thing.

<sup>9</sup> But my soul shall fully have joy in the Lord; and shall delight on his health.

<sup>13</sup> But when they were dis-easeful to me; I was clothed in an hair-shirt. I meeked my soul in fasting; and my prayer shall be turned into my bosom.

<sup>14</sup> I pleased so as our neighbour, as our brother; I was made meek, so as mourning and sorrowful.

<sup>15</sup> And they were glad, and came together against me; torments were gathered on me, and I knew it not. They were scattered, and not compunct;

<sup>16</sup> they tempted me, they scorned me with mocking, they gnashed on me with their teeth.

<sup>17</sup> Lord, when thou shalt behold, restore thou my soul from the wicked-ness of them; mine one alone from lions.

<sup>19</sup> They that be adversaries wickedly to me, have not joy on me; that hate me without cause, and beckon with eyes.

<sup>20</sup> For soothly they spake not peace-ably to me; and they speaking in wrath-fulness of [the] earth, thought guiles.

<sup>21</sup> And they made large their mouth on me; they said, Well, well! our eyes have seen.

<sup>24</sup> My Lord God, deem thou me by thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and have they not joy on me.

<sup>25</sup> Say they not in their hearts, Well, well, to our soul; neither say they, We shall devour him.

<sup>26</sup> Shame they, and dread they together; that joy for mine evils. Be they clothed with shame and dread; that speak evil things on me.

<sup>27</sup> Have they full joy, and be they glad, that will or desire my rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and say they ever[more], The Lord be magnified, which desire the peace of his servant.

<sup>28</sup> And my tongue shall bethink thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; all day thy praising.

PSALM 36

<sup>1</sup> To victory, to David[or the psalm of David], the servant of the Lord. The unjust man said, that he trespass in himself; the dread of God is not before his eyes.

<sup>2</sup> For he did guilefully in the sight of God; that his wickedness be found to be hatred.

<sup>4</sup> He thought wickedness in his bed; he stood nigh all ways not good; forsooth he hated not malice.

<sup>7</sup> as thou, God, hast multiplied thy mercy. But the sons of men shall hope in the covering of thy wings.

<sup>8</sup> They shall be filled greatly of the plenty of thine house; and thou shalt give drink to them of the stiff stream of thy liking [or thy delight].

<sup>9</sup> For the well of life is with thee; and in thy light we shall see light.

<sup>10</sup> Lord, set forth thy mercy to them that know thee; and thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness] to them that be of rightful [or right] heart.

<sup>11</sup> The foot of pride come not to me; and the hand of the sinner move me not.

<sup>12</sup> There they have fallen down, that work wickedness; they be cast out, and might not stand.

PSALM 37

<sup>2</sup> For they shall wax dry swiftly as hay; and they shall fall down soon as the worts of herbs.

<sup>4</sup> Delight thou in the Lord; and he shall give to thee the askings of thine heart.

<sup>5</sup> Show thy way to the Lord; and hope in him, and he shall do.

<sup>6</sup> And he shall lead out thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness] as light, and thy doom as midday;

<sup>7</sup> be thou subject to the Lord, and pray thou him. Do not thou pursue [or follow] him, that hath prosperity in his way; nor a man doing unright-fulness.

<sup>8</sup> Cease thou of ire, and forsake strong vengeance; do not thou pursue [or follow], that thou do wickedly.

<sup>9</sup> For they, that do wickedly, shall be destroyed; but they that suffer the Lord, shall inherit the land.

<sup>10</sup> And yet a little, and a sinner shall not be; and thou shalt seek his place, and thou shalt not find it.

<sup>11</sup> But mild men shall inherit the land; and shall delight in the multitude of peace.

<sup>12</sup> A sinner shall ambush the rightful [or rightwise] man; and he shall gnash with his teeth on him.

<sup>14</sup> Sinners have drawn out sword; they bent their bow. To deceive a poor man and needy; to strangle rightful [or right] men of heart.

<sup>19</sup> They shall not be shamed in the evil time, and they shall be [ful] filled in the days of hunger;

<sup>20</sup> for sinners shall perish. Forsooth anon as the enemies of the Lord be honoured, and enhanced; they failing shall fail as smoke.

<sup>21</sup> A sinner shall borrow, and shall not pay back; but a just [or rightwise] man hath mercy, and shall give.

<sup>22</sup> For they that bless the Lord shall inherit the land; but they that curse him shall perish.

<sup>23</sup> The goings of a man shall be dressed with the Lord; and he shall delight in his way.

<sup>24</sup> When he falleth, he shall not be hurtled or hurled down; for the Lord undersetteth his hand.

<sup>25</sup> I was younger, and soothly I waxed eld; and I saw not a just [or rightwise] man forsaken, neither his seed seeking bread.

<sup>26</sup> All day he hath mercy, and lendeth; and his seed shall be in blessing.

<sup>29</sup> But just [or rightwise] men shall inherit the land; and shall inhabit thereon into the world of world.

<sup>30</sup> The mouth of a just [or rightwise] man shall bethink wisdom; and his tongue shall speak doom.

<sup>34</sup> Abide thou the Lord, and keep thou his way, and he shall enhance thee, that by heritage thou take the land; when sinners shall perish, thou shalt see.

<sup>36</sup> And I passed by, and lo! he was not there; I sought him, and his place was not found.

<sup>37</sup> Keep thou innocence, and see equity; for those [or they] be relics or remnants to a peaceable man.

<sup>39</sup> But the health of just [or rightwise] men is of the Lord; and he is their defender in the time of tribulation.

<sup>40</sup> And the Lord shall help them, and shall make them free, and he shall deliver them from sinners; and he shall save them, for they hoped in him.

PSALM 38

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David, to bethink on the sabbath. Lord, reprove thou not me in thy strong vengeance; neither chastise thou me in thine ire.

<sup>2</sup> For thine arrows be fixed in me; and thou hast made steadfast thine hand on me.

<sup>3</sup> None health is in my flesh from the face of thine ire; no peace is to my bones from the face of my sins.

<sup>4</sup> For my wickednesses be gone over mine head; as an heavy burden, those [or they] be made heavy on me.

<sup>6</sup> I am made a wretch, and I am bowed down till into the end; all day I entered sorrowful.

<sup>7</sup> For my loins be filled with scorn-ings; and health is not in my flesh.

<sup>8</sup> I am tormented, and made low full greatly; I roared for the wailing of mine heart.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, all my desire is before thee; and my wailing is not hid from thee.

<sup>10</sup> Mine heart is troubled in me, my virtue forsook me; and the light of mine eyes, and it is not with me.

<sup>11</sup> My friends and my neighbours nighed; and stood against me. And they that were beside me stood afar;

<sup>12</sup> and they did violence, that sought my life. And they that sought evils to me, spake vanities; and thought guiles [or treacheries] all day.

<sup>13</sup> But I, as a deaf man, heard not; and as a dumb man not opening his mouth.

<sup>14</sup> And I am made as a man not hearing; and not having reprovings in his mouth.

<sup>15</sup> For, Lord, I hoped in thee; my Lord God, thou shalt hear me.

<sup>16</sup> For I said, Hear me, Lest any time mine enemies have joy on me; and the while my feet be moved/and while my feet were moved, they spake great things on me.

<sup>17</sup> For I am ready to beatings; and my sorrow is ever[more] in my sight.

<sup>18</sup> For I shall tell my wickedness; and I shall think for my sin.

<sup>19</sup> But mine enemies live, and they be confirmed on me; and they be multiplied, that hate me wickedly.

<sup>20</sup> They that yield evils for goods, backbited me; for I pursued [or followed] goodness.

PSALM 39

<sup>1</sup> For victory, to Jeduthun, the psalm of David. I said, I shall keep my ways; that I trespass not in my tongue. I setted [or put] keeping to my mouth; when a sinner stood against me.

<sup>2</sup> I was dumb, and I was meeked full greatly, and was still, even from goods; and my sorrow was renewed.

<sup>3</sup> Mine heart was hot within me; and fire shall burn out in my thinking. I spake in my tongue;

<sup>4</sup> Lord, make thou mine end known to me. And the number of my days, what it is; that I know, what faileth to me.

<sup>5</sup> Lo! thou hast set [or put] my days measurable; and my substance is as nought before thee. Nevertheless all vanity; each man living.

<sup>6</sup> Nevertheless a man passeth in an image; but also he is troubled vainly. He treasureth; and he know not, to whom he shall gather those things.

<sup>7</sup> And now which is mine abiding? whether not the Lord? and my substance is at thee.

<sup>8</sup> Deliver thou me from all my wickednesses; thou hast given me as a shame to the unknowing.

<sup>9</sup> I was dumb, and opened not my mouth; for thou hast made this happen,

<sup>10</sup> remove thou thy wounds from me. From the strength of thine hand I failed in blamings;

<sup>11</sup> for wickedness thou hast chastised [a] man. And thou madest his life to fail as a spider; nevertheless each man is troubled in vain.

<sup>12</sup> Lord, hear thou my prayer, and my beseeching; perceive thou with ears my tears. Be thou not still, for I am a comeling with thee; and a pilgrim, as all my fathers.

<sup>13</sup> Forgive thou to me, that I be refreshed, before that I go; and I shall no more be.

PSALM 40

<sup>1</sup> For victory, the psalm of David. I abiding abode the Lord; and he gave attention to me. And he heard my prayers;

<sup>2</sup> and he led out me from the pit of wretchedness, and from the filth of dregs. And he ordained my feet on a stone; and he dressed my goings.

<sup>4</sup> Blessed is the man, of whom the name of the Lord is his hope; and he beheld not into vanities, and into false vengeance.

<sup>5</sup> My Lord God, thou hast made thy marvels many; and in thy thoughts none is, that is like thee toward us. I told and I spake; and they be multiplied above number.

<sup>6</sup> Thou wouldest or desiredest not sacrifice and offering; but thou madest perfectly ears to me. Thou askedest not burnt sacrifice, and other sacrifice for sin;

<sup>7</sup> then I said, Lo! I come. In the head of the book it is written of me,

<sup>8</sup> that I should do thy will; my God, I would also to do it; and thy law in the midst of mine heart.

<sup>9</sup> I told thy rightfulness [or rightwise-ness] in a great church; lo! I shall not refrain my lips, Lord, thou knewest.

<sup>10</sup> I hid not thy rightfulness [or right-wiseness] in mine heart; I said thy truth and thine health. I hid not thy mercy, and thy truth, from a much council.

<sup>11</sup> But thou, Lord, make not far thy merciful doings from me; thy mercy and truth ever[more] take me up.

<sup>12</sup> For why evils, of which is no number, encompassed me; my wicked-nesses have taken me, and I might not, that I should see. Those [or They] be multiplied above the hairs of mine head; and mine heart forsook me.

<sup>13</sup> Lord, please it to thee, that thou deliver me; Lord, behold thou to help me*.

<sup>14</sup> Be they shamed, and ashamed together; that seek my life, to take away it. Be they turned aback, and be they shamed or ashamed; that will or desire evils to me.

<sup>15</sup> Bear they their confusion anon; that say to me, Well! well! in scorn.

<sup>16</sup> All men that seek thee, be fully joyful [or full out joy], and be glad in thee; and say they, that love thine health, The Lord be magnified ever-[more].

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth I am a beggar and poor; the Lord is busy of me. Thou art mine helper and my defender; my God, tarry thou not.

PSALM 41

<sup>1</sup> For victory, the song of David. Blessed is he that understandeth of the needy man and poor; the Lord shall deliver him in the evil day.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord keep him, and quicken him, and make him blessing in the land; and betake not him into the will of his enemies.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord shall bear help to him on the bed of his sorrow; thou hast oft turned all his bedstraw in his sickness.

<sup>4</sup> I said, Lord, have thou mercy on me; heal thou my soul, for I have sinned against thee.

<sup>5</sup> Mine enemies said evils to me; When shall he die, and his name shall perish?

<sup>6</sup> And if he entered for to see me, he spake vain things; his heart gathered wickedness to himself. He went with-outforth; and spake to the same thing or the same end.

<sup>7</sup> All mine enemies backbited privily against me; against me they thought evils to me.

---

* PSALM 40:13 Compare Psalm 40:13-17 to Psalm 70:1-5.

<sup>8</sup> They ordained an evil word against me; Whether he that sleepeth, shall not lie to, that he rise again?

<sup>9</sup> For why the man of my peace, in whom I hoped, he that ate my loaves; made great deceit on me.

<sup>10</sup> But thou, Lord, have mercy on me, and raise me up again; and I shall yield to them.

<sup>11</sup> In this thing I knew, that thou wouldest or delightest in me; for mine enemy shall not have joy on me.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth thou hast taken me up for mine innocence; and hast confirmed me in thy sight without end.

<sup>13</sup> Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, from the world, and into the world; be it done, be it done.

PSALM 42

<sup>1</sup> To victory, [by the understanding], to the sons of Korah. As an hart desireth to the wells of waters; so thou, God, my soul desireth to thee.

<sup>2</sup> My soul thirsted to God, the quick well or well of life; when shall I come, and appear before the face of God?

<sup>3</sup> My tears were loaves to me day and night; while it is said to me each day, Where is thy God?

<sup>4</sup> I bethought of these things, and I poured out in me my soul; for I shall pass into the place of the wonderful tabernacle, till to the house of God. In the voice of full out joying, and ac-knowledging; is the sound of the eater.

<sup>5</sup> My soul, why art thou sorry; and why troublest thou me? Hope thou in God, for yet I shall acknowledge to him; he is the health of my cheer, and my God.

<sup>6</sup> My soul is troubled within myself; therefore, God, I shall be mindful of thee from the land of Jordan, and from the little hill of Hermonites.

<sup>7</sup> Depth calleth depth; in the voice of thy windows. All thine high things, and thy waves; passed over me.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord sent his mercy in the day; and his song in the night. With me is the prayer to God of my life;

<sup>9</sup> I shall say to God, Thou art mine up-taker. Why forgettest thou me; and why go I sorrowful, while the enemy tormenteth me?

<sup>10</sup> While my bones be broken altogether; mine enemies, that trouble me, despised me. While they say to me, by all days; Where is thy God?

<sup>11</sup> My soul, why art thou sorry; and why troublest thou me? Hope thou in God, for yet I shall acknowledge to him; he is the health of my cheer, and my God.

PSALM 43

<sup>1</sup> God, deem thou me, and separate thou my cause from a folk not holy; deliver thou me from a wicked man, and guileful [or treacherous].

<sup>2</sup> For thou art God, my strength; why hast thou put me aback, and why go I sorrowful, while the enemy tormenteth me?

<sup>3</sup> Send out thy light, and thy truth; those led me forth, and brought me into thine holy hill, and into thy tabernacles.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall enter to the altar of God; to God, that gladdeth my youth. God, my God, I shall acknowledge to thee in an harp;

<sup>5</sup> my soul, why art thou sorry, and why troublest thou me? Hope thou in God, for yet I shall acknowledge to him; that is the health of my cheer, and my God.

PSALM 44

<sup>1</sup> To victory, learning to the sons of Korah. God, we heard with our ears; our fathers told to us. The work, which thou wroughtest in the days of them; and in the old days.

<sup>3</sup> For the children of Israel wielded the land not by their sword; and the arm of them saved not them. But thy right hand, and thine arm, and the lightening of thy cheer; for thou were pleased in them.

<sup>4</sup> Thou art thyself, my king, and my God; that sendest healths to Jacob.

<sup>5</sup> By thee we shall winnow our enemies with [the] horn; and in thy name we shall despise them, that rise against us.

<sup>6</sup> For I shall not hope in my bow; and my sword shall not save me.

<sup>7</sup> For thou hast saved us from men tormenting us; and thou hast shamed men hating us.

<sup>8</sup> We shall be pleased in God all day; and in thy name we shall acknowledge to thee into the world.

<sup>9</sup> But now thou hast put us aback, and hast shamed us; and thou, Lord, shalt not go out in our virtues.

<sup>10</sup> Thou hast turned us away behind after our enemies; and they, that hated us, ravished diversely to themselves.

<sup>11</sup> Thou hast given us as sheep of meats; and among heathen men thou hast scattered us.

<sup>12</sup> Thou hast sold thy people without price; and multitude there was not in the exchanging of them.

<sup>13</sup> Thou hast set [or put] us as a shame to our neighbours; mocking and scorn to them that be in our compass.

<sup>14</sup> Thou hast set [or put] us into like-ness to heathen men; and wagging of the head among peoples.

<sup>15</sup> All day my shame is against me; and the shame of my face covered me.

<sup>16</sup> From the voice of [the] despiser, and evil speaker; from the face of the enemy, and [the] pursuer.

<sup>17</sup> All these things came on us, and we have not forgotten thee; and we did not wickedly in thy testament.

<sup>18</sup> And our heart went not away behind; and thou hast not bowed away our paths from thy way.

<sup>19</sup> For thou hast made us low in the place of torment; and the shadow of death covered us.

<sup>20</sup> If we forgot the name of our God; and if we held forth our hands to an alien God.

<sup>21</sup> Whether God shall not seek these things? for he knoweth the hid things of heart.

<sup>22</sup> For why we be slain all day for thee; we be deemed as sheep of slaying.

PSALM 45

<sup>2</sup> Christ, thou art fairer in shape than the sons of men; grace is spread abroad in thy lips; therefore God blessed thee without end.

<sup>3</sup> Be thou gird with thy sword; on thy hip most mightily. Behold thou in thy shapeliness and thy fairness;

<sup>10</sup> Daughter, hear thou, and see, and bow down thine ear; and forget thy people, and the house of thy father.

<sup>11</sup> And the king shall covet thy fair-ness; for he is thy Lord God, and they shall worship him.

<sup>12</sup> And the daughters of Tyre in gifts; all the rich men of the people shall beseech thy cheer.

<sup>13</sup> All the glory of that daughter of the king is within, adorned in golden hems;

<sup>14</sup> she is clothed about with diversities. Virgins shall be brought to the king after her; her neighbouresses shall be brought to thee.

<sup>15</sup> They shall be brought in gladness, and full out joying; they shall be brought into the temple of the king.

<sup>16</sup> Sons be born to thee, for thy fathers; thou shalt ordain them princes on all earth.

<sup>17</sup> Lord, they shall be mindful of thy name; in each generation, and into generation. Therefore peoples shall acknowledge to thee without end; and into the world of world.

PSALM 46

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer; the song of the sons of Korah, for youths. Our God, thou art refuge, and virtue; helper in tribulations, that have found us greatly.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore we shall not dread, while the earth shall be troubled; and the hills shall be borne over into the heart of the sea.

<sup>3</sup> The waters of them sounded, and were troubled; hills were troubled altogether in the strength of him.

<sup>4</sup> The fierceness of [the] flood maketh glad the city of God; the highest God hath hallowed his tabernacle.

<sup>5</sup> God in the midst thereof shall not be moved; God shall help it early in the gray morrowtide.

<sup>6</sup> Heathen men were troubled alto-gether, and realms were bowed down; God gave his voice, the earth was moved.

<sup>8</sup> Come ye, and see the works of the Lord; which wonders he hath set on the earth.

<sup>9</sup> He doing away battles till to the end of the land; shall all-bruise bow, and he shall break altogether armours [or arms], and he shall burn shields with fire.

<sup>10</sup> Give ye attention, and see ye, that I am God; I shall be enhanced among heathen men; and I shall be enhanced in earth.

PSALM 47

<sup>1</sup> To victory, a psalm to the sons of Korah. All ye folks, make joy with hands; sing ye heartily to God in the voice of full out joying.

<sup>9</sup> The princes of peoples be gathered together with God of Abraham; for the strong gods of earth be raised greatly.

PSALM 48

<sup>1</sup> The song of psalm, of the sons of Korah. The Lord is great, and worthy to be praised full much; in the city of our God, in the holy hill of him.

<sup>2</sup> It is founded in the full out joying of all earth; the hill of Zion, the sides of the north, the city of the great king.

<sup>3</sup> God shall be known in the houses thereof; when he shall take it.

<sup>4</sup> For lo! the kings of earth were gathered together; they came into one place.

<sup>5</sup> They seeing, so wondered; they were troubled, they were moved altogether;

<sup>8</sup> As we heard, so we saw, in the city of the Lord of virtues, in the city of our God; God hath founded that city without end.

<sup>9</sup> God, we have received thy mercy; in the midst of thy temple.

<sup>11</sup> The hill of Zion be glad, and the daughters of Judah be fully joyful [or full out joy]; for thy dooms, Lord.

<sup>13</sup> Set ye your hearts in the virtue of him; and part ye the houses of him, that ye tell out in another generation.

<sup>14</sup> For this is God, our God, into without end, and into the world of world; he shall govern us into worlds.

PSALM 49

<sup>1</sup> To victory, a psalm to the sons of Korah. All ye folks, hear these things; all ye that dwell in the world, perceive with ears.

<sup>2</sup> All the sons of earth, and the sons of men; together the rich man, and the poor into one.

<sup>3</sup> My mouth shall speak wisdom; and the thinking of mine heart shall speak prudence.

<sup>4</sup> I shall bow down mine ear into a parable; I shall open my reason set forth in a psaltery.

<sup>5</sup> Why shall I dread in the evil day? the wickedness of mine heel shall encompass me.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall not be able to give the price of ransom for his soul; and he shall travail into without end,

<sup>9</sup> and he shall live yet into the end. He shall not see perishing,

<sup>10</sup> when he shall see wise men dying; the unwise man and the fool shall perish together. And they shall leave their riches to aliens;

<sup>11</sup> and the sepulchres of them be the houses of them without end. The tabernacles of them be in generation and in generation; they called their names in their lands.

<sup>12</sup> A man/Man, when he was in honour, understood not; he is compar-isoned to unwise beasts, and is made like to those [or them].

<sup>13</sup> This way of them is cause of stumbling to them; and afterward they shall please altogether in their mouth.

<sup>14</sup> As sheep they be put in hell; death shall gnaw them. And just men shall be lords of them in the morrow-tide; and the help of them shall wax eld [or old] in hell, for or from the glory of them.

<sup>15</sup> Nevertheless God shall again-buy my soul from the power of hell; when he shall take me.

<sup>16</sup> Dread thou not, when a man is made rich; and when the glory of his house is multiplied.

<sup>17</sup> For when he shall die, he shall not take all things with him; and his glory shall not go down with him.

<sup>18</sup> For his soul shall be blessed in his life; he shall acknowledge to thee, when thou hast done well to him.

<sup>19</sup> He shall enter till into the gener-ations of his fathers; and till into with-out end he shall not see light.

<sup>20</sup> A man/Man, when he was in honour, understood not; he is com-parisoned to unwise beasts, and is made like to those [or them].

PSALM 50

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of Asaph. God, the Lord of gods or God of gods, spake; and called the earth, from the rising of the sun till to the going down.

<sup>7</sup> My people, hear thou, and I shall speak to Israel; and I shall witness to thee, I am God, thy God.

<sup>8</sup> I shall not reprove thee in thy sacrifices; and thy burnt sacrifices be ever[more] before me.

<sup>9</sup> I shall not take calves of thine house; neither goat bucks of thy flocks.

<sup>10</sup> For all the wild beasts of woods be mine; work beasts, and oxes [or oxen] in hills.

<sup>11</sup> I have known all the volatiles of the firmament; and the fairness of the field is with me.

<sup>12</sup> If I shall be hungry, I shall not say to thee; for the world and the fullness thereof is mine.

<sup>13</sup> Whether I shall eat the flesh of bulls? either shall I drink the blood of goat bucks?

<sup>14</sup> Offer thou to God the sacrifice of praising; and yield thine avows [or vows] to the highest God.

<sup>15</sup> And inwardly call thou me in the day of tribulation; and I shall deliver thee, and thou shalt honour me.

<sup>16</sup> But God said to the sinner, Why tellest thou out my rightfulnesses; and takest my testament by thy mouth?

<sup>17</sup> Soothly thou hatedest lore, or discipline; and hast cast away my words behind thee.

<sup>18</sup> If thou sawest a thief, thou rannest with him; and thou settedest thy part with adulterers.

<sup>21</sup> thou didest these things, and I was still. Thou guessedest wickedly, that I shall be like thee; I shall reprove thee, and I shall set against thy face.

<sup>22</sup> Ye that forget God, understand these things; lest sometime he ravish, and none be that shall deliver.

<sup>23</sup> The sacrifice of praising shall honour me; and there is the way, wherein I shall show to him the health of God.

PSALM 51

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David, when Nathan the prophet came to him, when he entered to Bathsheba. God, have thou mercy on me; by thy great mercy. And by the muchliness of thy merciful doings; do thou away my wickedness.

<sup>2</sup> Moreover wash thou me from my wickedness; and cleanse thou me from my sin.

<sup>3</sup> For I acknowledge my wickedness; and my sin is ever[more] against me.

<sup>4</sup> I have sinned to thee alone, and I have done evil before thee; that thou be justified in thy words, and overcome when thou art deemed.

<sup>5</sup> For lo! I was conceived in wicked-nesses; and my mother conceived me in sins.

<sup>6</sup> For lo! thou lovedest truth; thou hast showed to me the uncertain things, and privy things of thy wisdom.

<sup>7</sup> Lord, sprinkle thou me with hyssop, and I shall be cleansed; wash thou me, and I shall be made white more than snow.

<sup>8</sup> Give thou joy, and gladness to mine hearing; and bones made meek shall full out make joy.

<sup>9</sup> Turn away thy face from my sins; and do away all my wickednesses.

<sup>10</sup> God, make thou a clean heart in me; and make thou new a rightful spirit in my entrails.

<sup>11</sup> Cast thou me not away from thy face; and take thou not away from me thine holy spirit.

<sup>12</sup> Give thou to me the gladness of thine health; and confirm thou me with the principal spirit.

<sup>13</sup> I shall teach wicked men thy ways; and unfaithful men shall be converted to thee.

<sup>14</sup> God, the God of mine health, deliver thou me from bloods, or sins; and my tongue shall joyfully sing of thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>15</sup> Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall tell thy praising.

<sup>17</sup> A sacrifice to God is a spirit troubled, that is, sorry for sin; God, thou shalt not despise a contrite heart, and made meek.

<sup>18</sup> Lord, do thou benignly in thy good will to Zion; that the walls of Jerusalem be builded.

<sup>19</sup> Then thou shalt take pleasantly the sacrifice of rightfulness [or rightwise-ness], offerings, and burnt sacrifices; then they shall put calves on thine altar.

PSALM 52

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David, when Doeg the Idumaeen came, and told to Saul, and said to him, David came into the house of Ahimelech. What hast thou glory in malice; which art mighty in wickedness?

<sup>2</sup> All day thy tongue thought unright-fulness; as a sharp razor thou hast done guile [or treachery].

<sup>6</sup> Just [or Rightwise] men shall see, and shall dread; and they shall laugh on him,

<sup>7</sup> and they shall say, Lo! the man that setted [or put] not God his helper. But he hoped in the multitude of his riches; and had mastery in his vanity.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth I, as a fruitful olive tree in the house of God; hoped in the mercy of God without end, and into the world of world.

<sup>9</sup> I shall acknowledge to thee into the world, for thou hast done mercy to me; and I shall abide thy name, for it is good in the sight of thy saints.

PSALM 53

<sup>2</sup> God beheld from heaven on the sons of men; that he see, if there is any understanding, either seeking God.

<sup>3</sup> All bowed away, they be made unprofitable altogether; none is that doeth good, there is not till to one.

<sup>4</sup> Whether all men, that work wicked-ness, shall not know; which devour my people, as the meat of bread? They called not God;

<sup>5</sup> there they trembled for dread, where no dread was. For God hath scattered the bones of them, that please men; they be shamed, for God hath forsaken them.

<sup>6</sup> Who shall give from Zion health to Israel? when the Lord hath turned the captivity of his people, Jacob shall full out make joy, and Israel shall be glad.

PSALM 54

<sup>1</sup> To victory, in organs, either in psalms, the learning of David, when Ziphims came, and said to Saul, Whether David is not hid at us? God, in thy name, make thou me safe; and in thy virtue, deem thou me.

<sup>2</sup> God, hear thou my prayer; with ears perceive thou the words of my mouth.

<sup>3</sup> For aliens have risen against me, and strong men sought my life; and they setted not God before their sight.

<sup>4</sup> For lo! God helpeth me; and the Lord is the up-taker of my soul.

<sup>6</sup> Willfully I shall sacrifice to thee; and, Lord, I shall acknowledge to thy name, for it is good.

---

* PSALM 53:1 Compare Psalm 53:1-6 to Psalm 14:1-7.

<sup>7</sup> For thou deliverdest me from all tribulation; and mine eye despised on mine enemies.

PSALM 55

<sup>1</sup> To victory, in organs, the learning of David. God, hear thou my prayer, and despise thou not my beseeching;

<sup>2</sup> give thou attention to me, and hear thou me. I am sorrowful in mine exercising;

<sup>3</sup> and I am disturbed of the face of the enemy, and of the tribulation of the sinner. For they bowed wicked-nesses into me; and in ire they were dis-easeful to me.

<sup>4</sup> Mine heart was troubled in me; and the dread of death felled on me.

<sup>5</sup> Dread and trembling came on me; and darkneses covered me.

<sup>6</sup> And I said, Who shall give to me feathers, as of a culver; and I shall fly, and shall take rest?

<sup>7</sup> Lo! I went far away, and fled; and I dwelled in wilderness.

<sup>8</sup> I abode him, that made me safe from the littleness, either dread, of spirit; and from tempest.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, cast thou down, [and] part thou the tongues of them; for I saw wickedness and against-saying in the city.

<sup>10</sup> By day and night wickedness shall encompass it on the walls thereof; and travail and unrightfulness be in the midst of them.

<sup>11</sup> And usury and guile [or treachery] failed not; from the streets thereof.

<sup>12</sup> For if mine enemy had cursed me; soothly I had suffered. And if he, that hated me, had spoken great things on me; in hap I had hid me from him.

<sup>13</sup> But thou art a man of one will; my leader, and my known.

<sup>14</sup> Which tookest together sweet meats and fellowship with me; we went with consent in the house of God.

<sup>17</sup> In the eventide, and [the] morrow-tide, and in midday, I shall tell, and show; and he shall hear my voice.

<sup>18</sup> He shall again-buy my soul in peace from them, that nigh to me; for among many they were with me.

<sup>19</sup> God shall hear; and he that is before the worlds shall make them low. For changing is not to them, and they dreaded not God;

<sup>21</sup> the cheers thereof were parted from ire; and his heart nighed. The words thereof were softer than oil; and they be darts.

<sup>22</sup> Cast thy care, or thought, [or thy busyness], on the Lord, and he shall fully nourish thee; and he shall not give without end fluttering to a just [or rightwise] man.

<sup>23</sup> But thou, God, shalt lead them forth; into the pit of death. Men-quellers and beguilers shall not have half their days; but, Lord, I shall hope in thee.

PSALM 56

<sup>1</sup> To the overcoming, on the dumb culver of far drawing away, the comely song of David, when the Philistines held him in Gath. God, have mercy on me, for a man hath defouled me; all day he impugned, and troubled me.

<sup>4</sup> In God I shall praise my words; I hoped in God, I shall not dread what thing flesh, or man, shall do to me.

<sup>6</sup> They shall dwell, and they shall hide; they shall ambush mine heel. As they abide my life,
<sup>8</sup> God, I showed my life to thee; thou hast set [or puttest] my tears in thy sight. As and in thy promise, Lord;
<sup>9</sup> then mine enemies shall be turned aback. In whatever day I shall inwardly call thee; lo! I have known, that thou art my God.
<sup>10</sup> In God I shall praise a word; in the Lord I shall praise a word.
<sup>11</sup> I shall hope in God; I shall not dread what thing man shall do to me.
<sup>12</sup> God, thine avows [or vows] be in me; which I shall yield praisings to thee.
<sup>13</sup> For thou hast delivered my life from death, and my feet from sliding; that I please before God in the light of them that live.

PSALM 57

<sup>1</sup> To the victory, lose thou not the seemly song, either the sweet song, of David, when he fled from the face of Saul into the den. God, have mercy on me, have thou mercy on me; for my soul trusteth in thee. And I shall hope in the shadow of thy wings; till wickedness pass.
<sup>2</sup> I shall cry to God alder-highest; to God that did well to me.
<sup>3</sup> He sent from heaven, and delivered me; he gave into shame them that defoul me. God sent his mercy and his truth,
<sup>4</sup> and delivered my soul from the midst of whelps of lions; I slept troubled or disturbed. The sons of men, the teeth of them be armours [or arms] and arrows; and their tongue is a sharp sword.
<sup>6</sup> They made ready a snare to my feet; and they greatly bowed my life. They delved a ditch before my face; and they felled [or fell] down into it.
<sup>7</sup> God, mine heart is ready, mine heart is ready; I shall sing, and I shall say psalm*.
<sup>8</sup> My glory, rise thou up; psaltery and harp, rise thou up; I shall rise up early.
<sup>9</sup> Lord, I shall acknowledge to thee among peoples; and I shall say psalm [to thee] among heathen men.
<sup>10</sup> For thy mercy is magnified till to heavens; and thy truth till to the clouds.

PSALM 58

<sup>2</sup> For in heart ye work wickedness in earth; your hands make ready unrightfulnesses [or unrightwisenesses].
<sup>4</sup> Strong vengeance is to them, by the likeness of a serpent; as of a deaf snake, and stopping his ears.
<sup>5</sup> Which shall not hear the voice of charmers; and of a venom-maker charming ever so wisely.

* PSALM 57:7 Compare Psalm 57:7-11 to Psalm 108:1-5.

<sup>7</sup> They shall come to nought, as water running away; he bent his bow, till they be made sick.

<sup>8</sup> As wax that floateth [or floweth] away, they shall be taken away; fire fell above, and they saw not the sun.

<sup>10</sup> The just [or rightwise] man shall be glad, when he shall see vengeance; he shall wash his hands in the blood of a sinner.

<sup>11</sup> And a man shall say truly, For fruit is to a just [or rightwise] man; truly God is deeming them in earth.

PSALM 59

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer; lose thou not the seemly song of David, when Saul sent men and kept the house, to slay him. My God, deliver thou me from mine enemies; and deliver thou me from them that rise against me.

<sup>2</sup> Deliver thou me from them that work wickedness; and save thou me from men-quellers.

<sup>3</sup> For lo! they have taken my soul; strong men fell in on me. Neither for my wickedness, neither for my sin;

<sup>4</sup> Lord, I ran without wickedness, and dressed my works. Rise up into my meeting, and see;

<sup>5</sup> and thou, Lord God of virtues, art God of Israel. Give thou attention to visit all folks; do thou not mercy to all that work wickedness.

<sup>7</sup> Lo! they shall speak in their mouth, and a sword in their lips; for who heard?

<sup>9</sup> I shall keep my strength to thee; for God is mine up-taker,

<sup>10</sup> my God, his mercy shall come before me. God showed to me my desire on mine enemies,

<sup>11</sup> slay thou not them; lest any time my peoples forget. Scatter thou them in thy virtue; and, Lord, my defender, put thou them down.

<sup>12</sup> Put down the trespass of their mouth, and the word of their lips; and be they taken in their pride. And of cursing and of leasing; they shall be showed in the ending.

<sup>13</sup> In the ire of ending, and they shall not be; and they shall know, that the Lord shall be Lord of Jacob, and of the ends of earth.

<sup>15</sup> They shall be scattered abroad, for to eat; soothly if they be not [ful] filled, and they shall grutch.

<sup>16</sup> But I shall sing of thy strength; and early I shall enhance thy mercy. For thou art made mine up-taker; and my refuge, in the day of my tribulation.

<sup>17</sup> Mine helper, I shall sing to thee; for thou art God, mine up-taker, my God, my mercy.

PSALM 60

<sup>1</sup> To victory, on the witnessing of the rose, the sweet song of David, to teach men, when he fought against Aram of floods, and Syria of Zobah; and Joab turned again, and smote Edom in the valley of salt pits, twelve thousand. God, thou hast put away us, and thou hast destroyed us; thou were wroth, and thou hast done mercy to us.

<sup>2</sup> Thou movedest the earth, and thou troubledest it; make thou whole the sorrows thereof, for it is moved.

<sup>6</sup> God spake by [or in] his holy place; I shall be glad, and I shall part Shechem, and I shall mete [or measure] the great valley of tabernacles.

<sup>7</sup> Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine; and Ephraim is the strength of mine head. Judah is my king;

<sup>8</sup> Moab is the pot of mine hope. Into Idumea I shall stretch forth my shoe; aliens be made subject to me.

<sup>9</sup> Who shall lead me into a city made strong; who shall lead me into Idumea?

<sup>10</sup> Whether not thou, God, that hast put away us; and shalt thou not, God, go out in our virtues?

<sup>12</sup> In God we shall make virtue; and he shall bring to nought them that trouble or disturb us.

PSALM 61

<sup>1</sup> To victory, on organs, to David himself. God, hear thou my beseech-ing; give thou attention to my prayer.

<sup>2</sup> From the ends of the land I cried to thee; the while mine heart was anguished, thou enhancedest me in a stone. Thou leddest me forth, <sup>3</sup> for thou art made mine hope; a tower of strength from the face of the enemy.

<sup>4</sup> I shall dwell in thy tabernacle into worlds; I shall be covered in the covering of thy wings.

<sup>5</sup> For thou, my God, hast heard my prayer; thou hast given heritage to them that dread thy name.

<sup>6</sup> Thou shalt add, either increase, days on[to] the days of the king; his years till into the day of generation and of generation.

<sup>7</sup> He dwelleth without end in the sight of God; who shall seek the mercy and truth of him?

<sup>8</sup> So I shall say psalm to thy name into the world of world; that I yield my vows from day into day.

PSALM 62

<sup>1</sup> To victory, over Jeduthun, the psalm of David. Whether my soul shall not be subject to God; for mine health is of him.

<sup>2</sup> For why he is both my God, and mine health; mine up-taker, I shall no more be moved.

<sup>3</sup> How long fall ye on a man? all ye slain; as to a wall bowed, and as a wall of stone without mortar cast down.

<sup>4</sup> Nevertheless they thought to put away my price, I ran in thirst; with their mouth they blessed, and in their heart they cursed.

<sup>5</sup> Nevertheless, my soul, be thou subject to God; for my patience is of him.

<sup>6</sup> For he is my God, and my saviour; mine helper, I shall not pass out.

---

* PSALM 60:5 Compare Psalm 60:5-12 to Psalm 108:6-13.

<sup>7</sup> Mine health, and my glory is in God; God is the giver of mine help, and mine hope is in God.

<sup>8</sup> All the gathering together of the people, hope ye in God, pour ye out your hearts before him; God is our helper without end.

<sup>9</sup> Nevertheless the sons of men be vain; the sons of men be liars in balances, that they deceive of vanity into the same thing.

<sup>10</sup> Do not ye have hope in wicked-ness, and do not ye covet ravens; if riches be plenteous, do not ye set the heart thereto.

<sup>11</sup> God spake once, I heard these two things; that power is of God, <sup>12</sup> and, thou Lord, mercy is to thee; for thou shalt yield to each man by his works.

PSALM 63

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David, when he was in the desert of Judah. God, my God, I wake to thee full early. My soul thirsted to thee; my flesh thirsted to thee full manyfold. In a land forsaken without way, and without water, <sup>2</sup> so I appeared to thee in holy; that I should see thy virtue, and thy glory.

<sup>3</sup> For thy mercy is better than lives or life itself; my lips shall praise thee.

<sup>4</sup> So I shall bless thee in my life; and in thy name I shall raise mine hands.

<sup>5</sup> My soul be [ful] filled as with inner fatness and uttermore fatness; and my mouth shall praise with lips of full out joying.

<sup>6</sup> So I had mind on thee on my bed, in the morrowtides I shall think of thee;

<sup>7</sup> for thou hast been mine helper. And in the covering of thy wings I shall make full out joy,

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth they sought in vain my life, they shall enter into the lower things of earth;

<sup>10</sup> they shall be betaken into the hands of sword, they shall be made the parts of foxes.

<sup>11</sup> But the king shall be glad in God; and all men shall be praised that swear in him; for the mouth of them, that speak wicked things, is stopped.

PSALM 64

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of David. God, hear thou my prayer, when I beseech; deliver thou my soul from dread of the enemy.

<sup>2</sup> Thou hast defended me from the covent or convent of evil-doers; from the multitude of them that work wickedness.

<sup>5</sup> they made steadfast to themselves a wicked word. They told, that they should hide snares; they said, Who shall see them?

<sup>6</sup> They sought wickednesses; they sought, and failed not in seeking. A man nighed to [a] deep heart;

<sup>7</sup> and God shall be enhanced. The arrows of little men, that is, of envious men, be made the wounds of them;

<sup>8</sup> and the tongues of them be made sick against them. All men be troubled, that saw them;

<sup>9</sup> and each man dreaded. And they told the works of God; and they understood the deeds of him.

<sup>10</sup> The just [or rightwise] man shall be glad in the Lord, and shall hope in him; and all men of rightful heart shall be praised.

PSALM 65

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of the song of David. God, praising becometh thee in Zion; and a vow shall be yielded to thee in Jerusalem.

<sup>3</sup> The words of wicked men had the mastery over us; and thou shalt do mercy to our wickednesses.

<sup>4</sup> Blessed is he, whom thou hast chosen, and hast taken; he shall dwell in thy foreyards. We shall be [ful] filled with the goods of thine house; thy temple is holy,

<sup>5</sup> wonderful in equity. God, our health, hear thou us; thou art hope of all coasts of earth, and in the sea afar.

<sup>7</sup> which troublest the depth of the sea, the sound of the waves thereof. Folks shall be troubled,

<sup>8</sup> and they that dwell in the ends shall dread of thy signs; thou shalt delight the outgoings of the morrow-tide and eventide.

<sup>9</sup> Thou hast visited the land, and hast greatly filled it; thou hast multiplied to make it rich. The flood of God was *[full-]*filled with waters; thou madest ready the meat of them, for the making ready thereof is so.

<sup>10</sup> Thou filling greatly the streams thereof, multiply the fruits thereof; the land bringing forth fruits shall be glad in the gutters of it.

<sup>11</sup> Thou shalt bless the crown of the year of thy good will; and thy fields shall be *[full-]*filled with plenty of fruits.

<sup>12</sup> The fair things of desert shall wax fat; and little hills shall be encom-passed with full out joying.

<sup>13</sup> The wethers of sheep be clothed, and valleys shall be plenteous of wheat; they shall cry out, and soothly they shall say praising or psalm.

PSALM 66

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the song off[the]psalm. All the earth, make ye joy heartily to God,

<sup>3</sup> Say ye to God, Lord, thy works be full dreadful; in the multitude of thy virtue thine enemies shall lie down to thee.

<sup>5</sup> Come ye and see ye the works of God; fearedful in counsels on the sons of men.

<sup>6</sup> Which turned the sea into dry land; in the flood they shall pass [through] with foot, there we shall be glad in him.

<sup>7</sup> The which is Lord in his virtue without end, his eyes behold on folks; they that make sharp be not enhanced in themselves.

<sup>9</sup> That hath set my soul to life, and gave not my feet into stirring.

<sup>10</sup> For thou, God, hast proved us; thou hast examined us by fire, as silver is examined.

<sup>12</sup> thou settedest [or puttest] men on our heads. We passed by [or through] fire and water; and thou leddest us out into refreshing.

<sup>13</sup> I shall enter into thine house in burnt sacrifices; I shall yield to thee my vows,

<sup>14</sup> which my lips spake distinctly. And my mouth spake in my tribulation;

<sup>15</sup> I shall offer to thee burnt sacrifices full of marrow, with the burning of rams; I shall offer to thee oxen [or oxen] with bucks of goats.

<sup>16</sup> All ye that dread God, come and hear, and I shall tell; how great things he hath done to my soul.

<sup>17</sup> I cried to him with my mouth; and I joyed fully [or full out joyed] under my tongue.

<sup>19</sup> Therefore God heard; and he perceived the voice of my beseeching.

<sup>20</sup> Blessed be God; that removed not my prayer, nor his mercy from me.

PSALM 67

<sup>1</sup> To victory in organs, the psalm of the song. God have mercy on us, and bless us; lighten he his cheer on us, and have he mercy on us.

<sup>4</sup> Heathen men be glad, and make fully joy [or and full out joy], for thou deemest peoples in equity; and dressest heathen men in earth.

<sup>6</sup> the earth hath given his fruit. God, our God, bless us,

<sup>7</sup> God bless us; and all the coasts of earth dread him.

PSALM 68

<sup>1</sup> To victory, the psalm of the song of David. God rise up, and his enemies be scattered; and they that hate him, flee from his face.

<sup>2</sup> As smoke faileth, fail they; as wax floateth [or floweth] from the face of fire, so perish [the] sinners from the face of God.

<sup>3</sup> And just [or rightwise] men eat, and make they fully joy [or full out glad they] in the sight of God; and delight they in gladness.

<sup>4</sup> Sing ye to God, say ye psalm to his name; make ye [a] way to him, that ascendeth [or goeth up] on the going down, the Lord is name of him. Make ye fully joy [or Full out joyeth] in his sight, his enemies shall be troubled from the face of him,

<sup>5</sup> which is the father of fatherless and motherless children; and the judge of widows. God is in his holy place;

<sup>6</sup> God that maketh men of one will to dwell in the house. Which leadeth out by strength them that be bound; in like manner them that make sharp [or that stir], that dwell in sepulchres.

<sup>7</sup> God, when thou wentest out in the sight of thy people; when thou passedest forth in the desert.

<sup>8</sup> The earth was moved, for heavens dropped down from the face of God of Sinai; from the face of God of Israel.

<sup>9</sup> God, thou shalt impart willful rain to thine heritage, and it was sick; but thou madest it perfect.

<sup>10</sup> Thy beasts shall dwell therein; God, thou hast made ready in thy sweetness to the poor man.

<sup>12</sup> The kings of virtues be made loved of the darling; and to the fair-ness of the house to part spoils.

<sup>14</sup> While the king of heaven deemeth kings thereon, they shall be made whiter than snow in Zalmon;

<sup>17</sup> The chariot of God is manyfold with ten thousand, a thousand of them that be glad; the Lord was in them, in Sinai, in the holy place.

<sup>18</sup> Thou ascendedest on high, thou tookest captivity captive; thou receiv-est gifts among men. For why thou tookest also from them that believed not; for to dwell in the Lord God.

<sup>19</sup> Blessed be the Lord each day; the God of our healths shall make an easy way to us.

<sup>20</sup> Our God is God to make men safe; and outgoing [or the going-out] from death is of the Lord God.

<sup>23</sup> That thy foot be dipped in blood; the tongue of thy dogs be dipped in blood of the enemies of him.

<sup>24</sup> God, they saw thy goings in; the goings-in [or in-goings] of my God, of my king, which is in the holy place.

<sup>28</sup> God, command thou to thy virtue; God, confirm thou this thing, which thou hast wrought in us.

<sup>30</sup> Blame thou the wild beasts of the reed, the gathering together of bulls is among the kine of peoples; that they exclude them that be proved by silver. Destroy thou folks that will or desire battles,

<sup>32</sup> Realms of the earth, sing ye to God; say ye psalm to the Lord. Sing ye to God;

<sup>33</sup> that ascended [or went up] on the heaven of heaven at the east. Lo! he shall give to his voice the voice of virtue,

<sup>34</sup> give ye glory to God on Israel; his great doing and his virtue is in the clouds.

<sup>35</sup> God is wonderful in his saints; God of Israel, he shall give virtue, and strength, to his people; blessed be God.

PSALM 69

<sup>1</sup> To victory, on the roses of David. God, make thou me safe; for waters have entered unto my soul.

<sup>2</sup> I am set in the slime of the depth; and there is no substance. I came into the depth of the sea; and the tempest drenched or drowned me [down].

<sup>3</sup> I travailed crying, my cheeks were made hoarse; mine eyes failed, the while I hope/d into my God.

<sup>4</sup> They that hated me without cause; were multiplied above the hairs of mine head. Mine enemies that pursued me unjustly were comforted; I paid then for those things, which I ravished not.

<sup>5</sup> God, thou knowest mine unknow-ing; and my trespasses be not hid from thee.

<sup>6</sup> Lord, Lord of virtues; they, that abide thee, be not ashamed in me. God of Israel; they, that seek thee, be not shamed on me.

<sup>8</sup> I am made a stranger to my brethren; and a pilgrim to the sons of my mother.

<sup>9</sup> For the fervent love of thine house ate me; and the shames of men saying shames to thee fell on me.

<sup>10</sup> And I covered my soul with fasting; and it was made into shame to me.

<sup>11</sup> And I putted [or put]for my cloth an hair-shirt; and I am made to them into a parable.

<sup>12</sup> They, that sat in the gate, spake against me; and they, that drank wine, sang of me.

<sup>13</sup> But Lord, I dress my prayer to thee; God, I abide the time of good pleasance. Hear thou me in the multitude of thy mercy; in the truth of thine health.

<sup>14</sup> Deliver thou me from the clay, that I be not fast set-in; deliver thou me from them that hate me, and from [the] depths or deepness of waters.

<sup>15</sup> The tempest of water drench not me [down], neither the depth swallow me; neither the pit make strait his mouth on me.

<sup>16</sup> Lord, hear thou me, for thy mercy is benign; after the multitude of thy merciful doings behold thou into me.

<sup>17</sup> And turn not away thy face from thy servant; for I am in tribulation, hear thou me swiftly.

<sup>18</sup> Give thou attention to my soul, and deliver thou it; for mine enemies, deliver thou me.

<sup>19</sup> Thou knowest my reproof, and my despising; and my shame. All that trouble me be in thy sight;

<sup>20</sup> mine heart abode in shame, and wretchedness. And I abode him, that was sorry together with me, and none was; and that should comfort me, and I found not.

<sup>21</sup> And they gave gall into my meat; and in my thirst they gave to me drink with vinegar.

<sup>22</sup> The board of them be made before them into a snare; and into yieldings, and into cause of stumbling.

<sup>23</sup> Their eyes be made dark, that they see not; and ever[more] bow down the back of them.

<sup>24</sup> Shed [or Pour] out thine ire [or wrath] on them; and the strong vengeance of thine ire take them.

<sup>25</sup> The habitation of them be made forsaken; and be there none that dwell in the tabernacles of them.

<sup>26</sup> For they pursued him, whom thou hast smitten; and they added on the sorrow of my wounds.

<sup>27</sup> Add thou wickedness on the wickedness of them; and enter they not into thy rightwiseness.

<sup>28</sup> Be they done away from the book of living men; and be they not written with just [or rightwise] men.

<sup>29</sup> I am poor and sorrowful; God, thine health [or salvation] took me up.

<sup>30</sup> I shall praise the name of God with song; and I shall magnify him with praising.

<sup>31</sup> And it shall please God more than a new calf bringing forth horns and claws.

<sup>35</sup> For God shall make safe Zion; and the cities of Judah shall be builded. And they shall dwell there; and they shall get it by heritage.

<sup>36</sup> And the seed of his servants shall have it in possession; and they that love his name, shall dwell therein.

PSALM 70

<sup>1</sup> To the victory, [the psalm] of David, to have mind. God, behold thou into mine help; Lord, haste thou to help me*.

<sup>2</sup> Be they shamed, and ashamed; that seek my life. Be they turned aback; and shame they, that will or desire evils to me.

<sup>3</sup> Be they turned away anon, and shame they; that say to me, Well! well!

<sup>4</sup> All men that seek thee, make fully joy [or full out joy they], and be glad in thee; and they that love thine health, say ever[more], The Lord be magnified.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth I am a needy man, and poor; God help thou me. Thou art mine helper and my deliverer; Lord, tarry thou not.

PSALM 71

<sup>2</sup> in thy rightwiseness deliver thou me, and ravish me out. Bow down thine ear to me; and make me safe.

<sup>3</sup> Be thou to me into God a defender; and into a strengthened place, that thou make me safe. For thou art my steadfastness; and my refuge.

<sup>4</sup> My God, deliver thou me from the hand of the sinner; and from the hand of a man doing against the law, and of the wicked man.

<sup>6</sup> In thee I am confirmed, that is, defended, from the womb; thou art my defender from the womb of my mother. My singing is ever[more] in thee;

<sup>7</sup> I am made as a great wonder to many men; and thou art a strong helper.

<sup>8</sup> My mouth be filled with praising; that I sing thy glory, all day thy great-ness.

<sup>9</sup> Cast thou not away me in the time of eld age /in the time of oldness; when my strength faileth, forsake thou not me.

<sup>10</sup> For mine enemies said of me; and they that kept my life made counsel together.

<sup>11</sup> Saying, God hath forsaken him; pursue ye, and take him; for none there is that shall deliver.

<sup>12</sup> God, be thou not made afar from me; my God, behold thou into mine help.

<sup>13</sup> Men that backbite my soul, be shamed, and fail they; and be they covered with reproof and shame, that seek evils to me.

<sup>14</sup> But I shall hope ever[more]; and I shall add to ever over all thy praising.

<sup>15</sup> My mouth shall tell thy rightful-ness [or rightwiseness]; all day thine health. For I knew not by literature, that is, by man's teaching, but by God's revelation, <sup>16</sup> I shall enter into the powers of the Lord; Lord, I shall bethink on thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness] alone.

<sup>17</sup> God, thou hast taught me from my youth, and till to now; I shall tell out thy marvels.

<sup>18</sup> And till into eld age /into oldness, and the last age; God, forsake thou not me. Till I tell thine arm, or power, to each generation that shall come.

<sup>19</sup> Till I tell of thy might, and thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness], God, till into the highest great deeds which thou hast done; God, who is like thee?

<sup>20</sup> How great tribulations, many and evil, hast thou showed to me; and thou converted, hast quickened me, and hast again-brought me again from the depths of earth.

<sup>22</sup> For why and I shall acknowledge to thee, thou God, thy truth in the instruments of psalm; I shall sing in an harp to thee, that art the holy of Israel.

---

* PSALM 70:1 Compare Psalm 70:1-5 to Psalm 40:13-17.

<sup>23</sup> My lips shall make fully joy [or full out joy], when I shall sing to thee; and my soul, which thou again-boughtest.

<sup>24</sup> But and my tongue shall think all day on thy rightfulness [or rightwise-ness]; when they shall be shamed and ashamed, that seek evils to me.

PSALM 72

<sup>1</sup> To Solomon. God, give thy doom to the king; and thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness] to the son of the king.

<sup>4</sup> He shall deem the poor men of the people, and he shall make safe the sons of poor men; and he shall make low the false challenger.

<sup>5</sup> And he shall dwell with the sun, and before the moon, that is, without beginning, and end; in generation and into generation.

<sup>6</sup> He shall come down as rain into a fleece; and as gutters dropping on the earth.

<sup>7</sup> Rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall come forth in his days; and the abundance of peace, till the moon be taken away.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall be lord from the sea till to the sea; and from the flood till to the ends of the world.

<sup>12</sup> For he shall deliver a poor man from the mighty; and a poor man to whom there was none helper.

<sup>13</sup> He shall spare a poor man and needy; and he shall make safe the souls of poor men.

<sup>14</sup> He shall again-buy the souls of them from usuries, and wickedness; and the name of them is honourable before him.

<sup>15</sup> And he shall live, and men shall give to him of the gold of Arabia; and they shall ever worship of him, all day they shall bless him.

<sup>19</sup> And blessed be the name of his majesty without end; and all earth shall be filled with his majesty; be it done, be it done.

PSALM 73

<sup>2</sup> But my feet were moved almost; my steps were shed [or poured] out almost.

<sup>9</sup> They putted [or put] their mouth into heaven; and their tongue passed in [the] earth.

<sup>13</sup> And I said, Therefore without cause I justified mine heart; and washed mine hands among innocents.

<sup>14</sup> And I was beaten all day; and my chastising was in morrowtides.

<sup>15</sup> If I said, I shall tell thus; lo! I [have] reprov'd the nation of thy sons.

<sup>16</sup> I guessed, that I should know this; but too much travail is before me.

<sup>17</sup> Till I enter into the saintuary of God; and understand in the last things of them.

<sup>19</sup> How be they made into desolation; they failed suddenly, they perished for their wickedness or waywardness.

<sup>20</sup> As the dream of men that rise; Lord, thou shalt drive their image to nought, in thy city.

<sup>22</sup> and I am driven to nought, and I knew not. As a work beast I am made with thee;

<sup>23</sup> and I am ever with thee. Thou heldest my right hand, <sup>24</sup> and in thy will thou leddest me forth; and with glory thou tookest me up.

<sup>25</sup> For why what is to me in heaven; and what would or desire I of thee on earth?

<sup>26</sup> My flesh and mine heart failed; God of mine heart, and my part is God without end.

<sup>27</sup> For lo! they that draw away far themselves from thee shall perish; thou hast lost all men that do forni-cation from thee.

<sup>28</sup> But it is good to me to cleave to God; and to set [or put] mine hope in the Lord God. That I tell all thy preachings, in the gates of the daughter of Zion.

PSALM 74

<sup>1</sup> The learning of Asaph. God, why hast thou put us away into the end; thy strong vengeance is wroth on the sheep of thy pasture?

<sup>3</sup> Raise thine hands into the prides of them; how great things the enemy did wickedly in the holy place.

<sup>4</sup> And they that hated thee; had glory in the midst of thy solemnity. They setted their signs, either banners, to be signs on the highest place, as in the outgoing [or going out]; and they knew not.

<sup>5</sup> As in a wood of trees, they hewed down with axes the gates thereof into itself;

<sup>8</sup> The kindred of them said together in their heart; Make we all the feast days of God to cease in the earth.

<sup>9</sup> We have not seen our signs, now there is no prophet; and he shall no more know us.

<sup>10</sup> God, how long shall the enemy say despite? the adversary stirreth to ire thy name into the end.

<sup>13</sup> Thou madest firm the sea by thy virtue; thou hast troubled the heads of the dragons in waters.

<sup>14</sup> Thou hast broken the heads of the dragon; thou hast given him to be meat to the peoples of Ethiopians.

<sup>15</sup> Thou hast broken wells, and strands [or streams]; thou madest dry the floods of Eitan.

<sup>16</sup> The day is thine, and the night is thine; thou madest the morrowtide and the sun.

<sup>18</sup> Be thou mindful of this thing, the enemy hath said shame to the Lord; and the unwise people hath excited to ire thy name.

<sup>19</sup> Betake thou not to beasts men acknowledging to thee; and forget thou not into the end the souls of thy poor men.

<sup>20</sup> Behold into thy testament; for they that be made dark of earth, be [full-]filled with the houses of wickednesses.

<sup>21</sup> A meek man be not turned away made ashamed; a poor man and needy shall praise thy name.

<sup>22</sup> God, rise up, deem thou thy cause; be thou mindful of thy shames, either upbraidings, of those that be all day of the unwise man.

<sup>23</sup> Forget thou not the voices of thine enemies; the pride of them that hate thee ascendeth [or goeth up] ever-[more].

PSALM 75

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer; lose thou not the psalm of the song of Asaph. God, we shall acknowledge to thee, we shall acknowledge; and we shall inwardly call thy name. We shall tell thy marvels;

<sup>4</sup> I said to wicked men, Do not ye do wickedly; and to trespassers, Do not ye enhance the horn.

<sup>7</sup> for God is the judge. He meeketh this man, and enhanceth him;

<sup>8</sup> for a cup of clean wine, full of meddling [or mingling], is in the hand of the Lord. And he bowed of this into that; nevertheless the dregs thereof is not diminished, either made less, for all [the] sinners of [the] earth shall drink thereof.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth I shall tell into the world; I shall sing to God of Jacob.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall break all the horns of sinners; and the horns of the just [or rightwise] man shall be enhanced.

PSALM 76

<sup>1</sup> To the victory in organs, the psalm of the song of Asaph. God is known in Judah; his name is great in Israel.

<sup>2</sup> And his place is made in peace; and his dwelling is in Zion.

<sup>6</sup> They that ascended [or went up] on horses; slept for thy blaming, thou God of Jacob.

<sup>9</sup> When God rose up into doom; to make safe all the mild men of earth.

<sup>10</sup> For the thought of man shall acknowledge to thee; and the remnants or leavings of thought shall make a feast day to thee.

<sup>11</sup> Make ye a vow, and yield ye to your Lord God; all that bring gifts in the compass of it. To God fearedful, <sup>12</sup> and to him that taketh away the spirit of princes; to the fearedful at the kings of earth.

PSALM 77

<sup>1</sup> To the victory on Jeduthun, the psalm of Asaph. With my voice I cried to the Lord, with my voice to God; and he gave attention to me.

<sup>2</sup> In the day of my tribulation I sought God with mine hands; in the night before or toward him, and I am not deceived. My soul forsook to be comforted;

<sup>3</sup> I was mindful of God, and I delighted, and I was exercised; and my spirit failed.

<sup>4</sup> Mine eyes before took wakings; I was troubled, and I spake not.

<sup>5</sup> I thought on eld [or old] days; and I had in mind everlasting years.

<sup>6</sup> And I thought in the night with mine heart; and I was exercised, and I cleansed my spirit.

<sup>7</sup> Whether God shall cast away with-out end; either shall he not lay to, that he be more pleased yet?

<sup>8</sup> Either shall he cut away his mercy into the end; from generation into generation?

<sup>9</sup> Either shall God forget to do mercy; either shall he withhold his mercies in his ire [or wrath]?

<sup>10</sup> And I said, Now I began; this is the changing of the right hand of the high God.

<sup>11</sup> I had mind on the works of the Lord; for I shall have mind from the beginning of thy marvels.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall think on all thy works; and I shall be exercised, either occupied, in thy findings.

<sup>13</sup> God, thy way was in the holy place; what God is great as our God?

<sup>14</sup> thou art God, that doest marvels. Thou madest thy virtue known among peoples;

<sup>15</sup> thou again-boughtest in thine arm thy people, the sons of Jacob and of Joseph.

<sup>16</sup> God, waters saw thee, waters saw thee, and dreaded; and depths of waters were troubled.

<sup>18</sup> the voice of thy thunder was in a wheel. Thy lightnings shined to the world; the earth was moved, and trembled.

<sup>19</sup> Thy way in the sea, and thy paths in many waters; and thy steps shall not be known.

<sup>20</sup> Thou leddest forth thy people as sheep; in the hand of Moses and Aaron.

PSALM 78

<sup>1</sup> The learning of Asaph. My people, perceive ye my law; bow your ear into the words of my mouth.

<sup>2</sup> I shall open my mouth in parables; I shall speak perfect reasons [or propositions] from the beginning.

<sup>3</sup> How great things have we heard, and we have known those [or them]; and our fathers told to us.

<sup>4</sup> Those [or They] be not hid from the sons of them; in another generation. And they told the praisings of the Lord, and the virtues of him; and his marvels, which he did.

<sup>5</sup> And he raised witnessing in Jacob; and he setted law in Israel. How great things commanded he to our fathers, to make those known to their sons;

<sup>6</sup> that another generation know. Sons, that shall be born, and shall rise up; shall tell out to their sons.

<sup>7</sup> That they set [or put] their hope in God, and forget not the works of God; and that they seek or search his commandments.

<sup>8</sup> Lest they be made a shrewd generation; and stirring to wrath, as the fathers of them. A generation that dressed not his heart; and his spirit was not believed with God.

<sup>9</sup> The sons of Ephraim, bending a bow, and sending arrows; were turned in the day of battle.

<sup>10</sup> They kept not the testament of God; and they would not go in his law.

<sup>11</sup> And they forgot his beneficences [or benefits]; and his marvels, which he showed to them.

<sup>12</sup> He did marvels before the fathers of them, in the land of Egypt; in the field of Tanis.

<sup>13</sup> He brake the sea, and led them through it; and he ordained the waters as in a bouget [or bottle].

<sup>14</sup> And he led them forth in a cloud of the day; and all night in the lightening of fire.

<sup>15</sup> He brake a stone in desert; and he gave water to them as in a much depth.

<sup>16</sup> And he led water out of the stone; and he led forth waters as floods.

<sup>17</sup> And they putted yet to do sin against him; they excited the high God into ire, in a place without water.

<sup>18</sup> And they tempted God in their hearts; that they asked meats to their lives.

<sup>19</sup> And they spake evil of God; they said, Whether God may make ready a board in desert?

<sup>20</sup> For he smote a stone, and waters flowed; and streams went out in abundance. Whether also he may give bread; either make ready a board to his people?

<sup>21</sup> Therefore the Lord heard, and delayed; and fire was kindled in Jacob, and the ire of God ascended [or went up] on Israel.

<sup>25</sup> Man ate the bread of angels; he sent to them meats in abundance.

<sup>26</sup> He turned over the south wind from heaven; and he brought in by his virtue the west wind.

<sup>27</sup> And he rained flesh as dust on them; and also volatiles feathered, as the gravel of the sea.

<sup>28</sup> And those felled in the midst of their castles [or they fell in the middle of the tents of them]; about the tabernacles of them.

<sup>29</sup> And they ate, and were filled greatly, and he brought their desire to them;

- <sup>30</sup> they were not defrauded of their desire. Yet their meats were in their mouth;
<sup>31</sup> and the wrath of God ascended [or went up] on them. And he killed the fat men of them; and he hindered the chosen men of Israel.
<sup>32</sup> In all these things they sinned yet; and believed not in the marvels of God.
<sup>33</sup> And the days of them failed in vanity; and the years of them failed with haste.
<sup>34</sup> When he killed them, they sought him; and they turned again, and early they came to him.
<sup>35</sup> And they bethought, that God is the helper of them; and the high God is the again-buyer of them.
<sup>37</sup> Forsooth the heart of them was not rightful [or right] with him; neither they were had faithful in his testament.
<sup>38</sup> But he is merciful, and he shall be made merciful to the sins of them; and he shall not destroy them. And he did greatly, to turn away his ire; and he kindled not all his ire.
<sup>39</sup> And he bethought, that they be flesh; a spirit going, and not turning again.
<sup>40</sup> How oft made they him wroth in desert; they stirred him into ire in a place without water.
<sup>41</sup> And they were turned, and tempted God; and they wrathed the Holy of Israel.
<sup>42</sup> They bethought not on his hand; in the day in which he again-bought them from the hand of the troubler.
<sup>43</sup> As he setted [or put] his signs in Egypt; and his great wonders in the field of Tanis.
<sup>44</sup> And he turned the floods of them, and the rains of them, into blood; that they should not drink.
<sup>45</sup> He sent a flesh fly [or hound flea] into them, and it ate them; and he sent a paddock [or frog], and it lost them.
<sup>46</sup> And he gave the fruits of them to rust; and he gave the travails of them to locusts.
<sup>47</sup> And he killed the vines of them with hail; and the sycamore trees of them with frost.
<sup>48</sup> And he betook the beasts of them to hail; and the possessions of them to fire.
<sup>49</sup> He sent into them the ire of his indignation; indignation, and ire, and tribulation, sendings-in by evil angels.
<sup>50</sup> He made a way to the path of his ire, and he spared not from the death of their lives; and he enclosed alto-gether in death the beasts of them.
<sup>51</sup> And he smote all the first engen-dered things [or first begotten] in the land of Egypt; the first fruits of all the travail of them in the tabernacles of Ham.
<sup>52</sup> And he took away his people as sheep; and he led them forth as a flock in desert.
<sup>53</sup> And he led them forth in hope, and they dreaded not; and the sea covered the enemies of them.
<sup>55</sup> And he casted out heathen men from the face of them; and by lot he parted to them the land in a cord of dealing. And he made the lineages of Israel to dwell in the tabernacles of them.
<sup>56</sup> And they tempted, and wrathed the high God; and they kept not his witnessings.
<sup>57</sup> And they turned away themselves, and they kept not covenant; as their fathers they were turned into a shrewd bow.
<sup>58</sup> They stirred him into ire in their little hills; and they stirred him to indignation in their graven images.

<sup>60</sup> And he putted [or put] away the tabernacle of Shiloh; his tabernacle in which he dwelled among men.

<sup>61</sup> And he betook the virtue of them into captivity; and the fairness of them into the hands of the enemy.

<sup>62</sup> And he enclosed altogether his people in sword; and he despised his heritage.

<sup>63</sup> Fire ate the young men of them; and the virgins of them were not bewailed or bewept.

<sup>64</sup> The priests of them fell down by sword; and the widows of them were not bewept.

<sup>65</sup> And the Lord was raised, as sleeping; as mighty greatly filled [or drunk] of wine.

<sup>66</sup> And he smote his enemies on the hinder parts; he gave to them ever-lasting shame.

<sup>67</sup> And he putted [or put] away the tabernacle of Joseph; and he chose not the lineage of Ephraim.

<sup>68</sup> But he chose the lineage of Judah; he chose the hill of Zion, which he loved.

<sup>69</sup> And he as an unicorn builded his holy place; in the land, which he founded into worlds.

<sup>70</sup> And he chose David his servant, and took him up from the flocks of sheep;

<sup>72</sup> And he fed them in the inno-cence of his heart; and he led them forth in the understandings of his hands.

PSALM 79

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of Asaph. God, heathen men came into thine heritage; they defouled thine holy temple, they setted [or put] Jerusalem into the keeping of apples.

<sup>2</sup> They setted [or put] the slain bodies of thy servants to be meats to the volatiles of heavens; the fleshs of thy saints to the beasts of the earth.

<sup>3</sup> They shedded out the blood of them, as water in the compass of Jerusalem; and none there was that buried them.

<sup>4</sup> We be made a shame to our neighbours; mocking and scorning to them, that be in our compass.

<sup>5</sup> Lord, how long shalt thou be wroth into the end? shall thy vengeance be kindled as fire?

<sup>6</sup> Pour out thine ire into heathen men, that know not thee; and into realms, that called not thy name.

<sup>8</sup> Have thou not mind on our eld [or old] wickednesses; thy mercies before take us soon, for we be made poor greatly.

<sup>9</sup> God, our health, help thou us, and, Lord, for the glory of thy name, deliver thou us; and be thou merciful to our sins, for thy name.

<sup>10</sup> Lest peradventure they say among heathen men, Where is the God of them? and be he known among nations before our eyes. The vengeance of the blood of thy servants, which is shed [or poured] out;

<sup>11</sup> the wailing of fettered men enter into thy sight. After the greatness of thine arm; wield thou the sons of slain men.

<sup>12</sup> And yield thou to our neighbours sevenfold in the bosom of them; the shame of them, which they did shame-fully to thee, thou Lord.

<sup>13</sup> But we that be thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture; shall acknowledge to thee into the world. In generation and into generation, we shall tell thy praising.

PSALM 80

<sup>3</sup> God of virtues, turn [or convert] thou us; and show thy face, and we shall be safe.

<sup>4</sup> Lord God of virtues, how long shalt thou be wroth on the prayer of thy servants?

<sup>5</sup> How long shalt thou feed us with the bread of tears; and shalt give drink to us with tears in great measure?

<sup>6</sup> Thou hast set [or put] us into against-saying to our neighbours; and our enemies have scorned us.

<sup>7</sup> God of virtues, turn [or convert] thou us; and show thy face, and we shall be safe.

<sup>8</sup> Thou translatedest or brought over a vine from Egypt; thou castedest out heathen men, and plantedest it.

<sup>10</sup> The shadow thereof covered hills; and the branches thereof filled the cedars of God.

<sup>11</sup> It stretched forth his scions till to the sea, and the generations thereof till to the flood.

<sup>12</sup> Why hast thou destroyed the wall thereof; and all men that go forth by the way, gather away the grapes thereof?

<sup>14</sup> God of virtues, be thou turned again to us; behold from heaven, and see, and visit this vine.

<sup>15</sup> And make thou it perfect, which thy right hand planted; and behold thou on the son of man, which thou hast confirmed to thee.

<sup>16</sup> Things were burnt with fire, and undermined; they who did this shall perish for the blaming of thy cheer.

<sup>17</sup> Thine hand be made on the man of thy right hand; and on the son of man, whom thou hast confirmed to thee.

<sup>18</sup> And we departed not from thee; thou shalt quicken us, and we shall inwardly call thy name.

<sup>19</sup> Lord God of virtues, turn thou us; and show thy face, and we shall be safe.

PSALM 81

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer; on the pressers[or wine presses], [the psalm]of Asaph. Make ye fully joy [or Full out joyeth] to God, our helper; sing ye heartily to God of Jacob.

<sup>5</sup> He setted [or put] that witnessing in Joseph; when he went out of the land of Egypt, he heard a language, that he knew not.

<sup>7</sup> In tribulation thou inwardly called-est me, and I delivered thee; I heard thee in the hid place of tempest, I proved thee at the waters of against-saying.

<sup>8</sup> My people, hear thou me, and I shall be witness against thee; Israel, if thou hearest me, <sup>9</sup> a fresh God shall not be in thee; and thou shalt not worship an alien god.

<sup>10</sup> For I am thy Lord God, that led thee out of the land of Egypt; make large thy mouth, and I shall fill it.

<sup>11</sup> And my people heard not my voice; and Israel gave not attention to me.

<sup>12</sup> And I let them go after the desires of their heart; they shall go in their findings.

<sup>13</sup> If my people had heard me; if Israel had gone in my ways.

<sup>14</sup> For not in hap I had made low their enemies; and I had sent mine hand on men doing tribulation to them.

<sup>15</sup> The enemies of the Lord lied or lay down to him; and their time shall be into worlds.

<sup>16</sup> And he fed them with the fatness of wheat; and he [ful] filled them with honey of the stone.

PSALM 82

<sup>5</sup> They know not, neither under-stand, they go in darkneses; all the foundations of [the] earth shall be moved.

<sup>6</sup> I said, Ye be gods; and all ye be the sons of the high God.

<sup>8</sup> Rise, thou God, deem thou the earth; for thou shalt have heritage in all folks.

PSALM 83

<sup>1</sup> The song of the psalm of Asaph. God, who shall be like thee? God, be thou not still, neither be thou peaced.

<sup>4</sup> They said, Come ye, and lose we them from the folk; and the name of Israel be no more had in mind.

<sup>7</sup> Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek; and the aliens with them that dwell in Tyre.

<sup>8</sup> For Assur cometh with them; they be made into help to the sons of Lot.

<sup>9</sup> Make thou to them as to Midian, and Sisera; as to Jabin, in the strand [or stream] of Kishon.

<sup>10</sup> They perished in Endor; they were made as a turd of earth.

<sup>12</sup> All the princes of them, that said, Hold we by heritage the saintuary of God.

<sup>13</sup> My God, put thou them as a wheel; and as stubble before the face of the wind.

<sup>14</sup> As fire that burneth a wood; and as flame burning hills.

<sup>15</sup> So thou shalt pursue them in thy tempest; and thou shalt trouble them in thine ire.

<sup>17</sup> Be they ashamed, and be they troubled into the world of world; and be they shamed, and perish they.

<sup>18</sup> And know they, that Lord is name to thee; thou alone art the Highest in every land.

PSALM 84

<sup>1</sup> To victory, on the pressers[or wine presses]. The psalm of the sons of Korah. Lord of virtues, thy tabernacles be greatly loved;

<sup>2</sup> my soul coveteth, and faileth into the porches of the Lord. Mine heart, and my flesh; full out joyed into quick God [or God alive].

<sup>3</sup> For why a sparrow findeth an house to itself; and a turtle findeth a nest to itself, where it shall keep his birds. Lord of virtues, thine altars; my king, and my God.

<sup>4</sup> Lord, blessed be they that dwell in thine house; they shall praise thee into the worlds of worlds.

<sup>5</sup> Blessed is the man, whose help is of thee; he hath ordained thy goings in his heart,

<sup>6</sup> in the valley of tears, in the place which he hath set. For the giver of the law shall give blessing,

<sup>8</sup> Lord God of virtues, hear thou my prayer; God of Jacob, perceive thou with ears.

<sup>9</sup> God, our defender, behold thou; and behold into the face of thy christ or thine anointed.

<sup>10</sup> For why one day in thine halls is better; than a thousand elsewhere. I choose to be abject, either an outcast, in the house of my God; more than to dwell in the tabernacles of sinners.

<sup>11</sup> For God loveth mercy and truth; the Lord shall give grace and glory. He shall not deprive them from goods, that go in innocence;

<sup>12</sup> Lord of virtues, blessed is the man, that hopeth in thee.

PSALM 85

<sup>1</sup> To the overcomer; the song of the sons of Korah. Lord, thou hast blessed thy land; thou hast turned away the captivity of Jacob.

<sup>5</sup> Whether thou shalt be wroth to us without end; either shalt thou hold forth thine ire from generation into generation?

<sup>8</sup> I shall hear what the Lord God shall speak in me; for he shall speak peace to his people. And on his holy men; and on them that be turned to heart.

<sup>9</sup> Nevertheless his health is nigh men dreading him; that glory dwell in our land.

<sup>10</sup> Mercy and truth met themselves; rightwiseness and peace were kissed.

<sup>13</sup> Rightfulness [or Rightwiseness] shall go before him; and shall set his steps in the way.

PSALM 86

<sup>1</sup> The prayer of David. Lord, bow down thine ear, and hear me; for I am needy and poor.

<sup>2</sup> Keep thou my life, for I am holy; my God, make thou safe thy servant hoping in thee.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, have thou mercy on me, for I cried all day to thee;

<sup>4</sup> make thou glad the soul of thy servant; for why, Lord, I have raised my soul to thee.

<sup>5</sup> For thou, Lord, art sweet and mild; and of much mercy to all men inwardly calling thee.

<sup>6</sup> Lord, perceive thou my prayer with ears; and give thou attention to the voice of my beseeching.

<sup>7</sup> In the day of my tribulation I cried to thee; for thou heardest me.

<sup>8</sup> Lord, none among gods is like thee; and none is even to thy works.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, all folks, whichever thou madest, shall come, and worship before thee; and they shall glorify thy name.

<sup>11</sup> Lord, lead thou me forth in thy way, and I shall enter in thy truth; mine heart be glad, that it dread thy name.

<sup>12</sup> My Lord God, I shall acknowledge to thee in all mine heart; and I shall glorify thy name without end.

<sup>13</sup> For thy mercy is great on me; and thou deliveredest my soul from the lower hell.

<sup>14</sup> God, wicked men have risen upon me; and the synagogue of mighty men have sought my life; and they have not set forth thee in their sight.

<sup>15</sup> And thou, Lord God, doing mercy, and merciful; patient, and of much mercy, and soothfast.

<sup>16</sup> Behold on me, and have mercy on me, give thou the empire to thy servant; and make thou safe the son of thine handmaid.

<sup>17</sup> Make thou with me a sign in good, that they see, that hate me, and be ashamed; for thou, Lord, hast helped or holpen me, and hast comforted me.

PSALM 87

<sup>4</sup> I shall be mindful of Rahab, and Babylon; knowing me. Lo! aliens, and Tyre, and the people of Ethiopians; they were there.

<sup>5</sup> Whether a man shall say to Zion, And a man is born therein; and that man, alder Highest, founded it?

<sup>6</sup> The Lord shall tell in the scriptures of these peoples; and of these princes, that were therein.

<sup>7</sup> As the dwelling of all that be glad; is in thee.

PSALM 88

<sup>1</sup> The song of the psalm, to the sons of Korah, to victory on Mahalath, for to answer the learning of Heman the Ezrahite. Lord God of mine health; I cried in day and night before thee.

<sup>2</sup> My prayer enter before thy sight; bow down thine ear to my prayer.

<sup>3</sup> For my soul is *[full-]*filled with evils; and my life nighed to hell.

<sup>4</sup> I am guessed with them that go down into the pit; I am made as a man without help, <sup>5</sup> and free among dead men. As men wounded sleeping in sepulchres, of which men none thou is mindful of after; and they be put away from thine hand.

<sup>6</sup> They have put me in the lower pit; in dark places, and in the shadow of death.

<sup>7</sup> Thy strong vengeance is confirmed on me; and thou hast brought in all thy waves on me.

<sup>8</sup> Thou hast made far from me my known; they have set [or put] me abom-ination to themselves. I am taken in, and I went not out;

<sup>9</sup> mine eyes were sick [or enfeebled] for poverty. Lord, I cried to thee; all day I spreaded abroad mine hands to thee.

<sup>10</sup> Whether thou shalt do marvels to dead men; either leeches shall raise them up, and they shall acknowledge to thee?

<sup>14</sup> Lord, why putteth thou away my prayer; thou turnest away thy face from me?

<sup>15</sup> I am poor, and in travails from my youth; soothly I am enhanced, and I am made low, and troubled.

<sup>16</sup> Thy wraths passed on me; and thy dreads troubled me.

<sup>17</sup> They encompassed me as water all day; they encompassed me altogether.

<sup>18</sup> Thou madest far from me a friend and neighbour; and my known from wretchedness.

PSALM 89

<sup>1</sup> The learning of Ethan the Ezrahite. I shall sing without end; the mercies of the Lord. In generation and into generation; I shall tell thy truth with my mouth.

<sup>2</sup> For thou saidest, Without end mercy shall be builded in heavens; thy truth shall be made ready in those [or them].

<sup>3</sup> Thou saidest, I disposed a testa-ment to my chosen men; I swore to David, my servant,

<sup>4</sup> till into without end I shall make ready thy seed. And I shall build thy seat; in generation, and into generation.

<sup>6</sup> For who in the clouds shall be made even to the Lord; shall be like God among the sons of God?

<sup>7</sup> God, that is glorified in the council of saints; is great, and dreadful over all that be in his compass.

<sup>8</sup> Lord God of virtues, who is like thee? Lord, thou art mighty, and thy truth is in thy compass.

<sup>9</sup> Thou art Lord of the power of the sea; forsooth thou assuageth the stirring of the waves thereof.

<sup>10</sup> Thou madest low the proud, as wounded; in the arm of thy strength thou hast scattered thine enemies.

<sup>11</sup> Heavens be thine, and the earth is thine; thou hast founded the world, and the fullness thereof;

<sup>12</sup> thou madest of nought the north and the sea. Tabor and Hermon shall make full out joy in thy name;

<sup>14</sup> rightfulness [or rightwiseness] and doom is the making ready of thy seat. Mercy and truth shall go before thy face;

<sup>15</sup> blessed is the people that know a hearty song. Lord, they shall go in the light of thy cheer;

<sup>16</sup> and in thy name they shall make full out joy all day; and they shall be enhanced in thy rightfulness [or right-wiseness].

<sup>17</sup> For thou art the glory of the virtue of them; and in thy good pleasance our horn shall be enhanced.

<sup>19</sup> Then thou spakest in revelation to thy saints, and saidest, I have set [or put] help in the mighty; and I have enhanced the chosen man of my people.

<sup>20</sup> I found David, my servant; I anointed him with mine holy oil.

<sup>22</sup> The enemy shall nothing profit in him; and the son of wickedness shall not lay to or put to, for to annoy him.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall slay his enemies from his face; and I shall turn into flight them that hate him.

<sup>24</sup> And my truth and mercy shall be with him; and his horn shall be enhanced in my name.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall set [or put] his hand in the sea; and his right hand in floods.

<sup>26</sup> He shall inwardly call me, Thou art my father; my God, and the up-taker of mine health.

<sup>27</sup> And I shall set him the first be-gotten son; higher than the kings of earth.

<sup>28</sup> Without end I shall keep my mercy to him; and my testament faithful to him.

<sup>29</sup> And I shall set his seed into the world of world; and his throne as the days of heaven.

<sup>30</sup> Forsooth if his sons forsake my law; and go not in my dooms.

<sup>31</sup> If they make unholy my rightful-nesses; and keep not my command-ments.

<sup>32</sup> I shall visit in a rod the wicked-nesses of them; and in beatings the sins of them.

<sup>33</sup> But I shall not scatter my mercy from him; and in my truth I shall not annoy him.

<sup>34</sup> Neither I shall make unholy my testament; and I shall not make void those things that come forth of my lips.

<sup>35</sup> Once I swore in mine holiness, I shall not lie to David;

<sup>36</sup> his seed shall dwell without end. And his throne as [the] sun in my sight,

<sup>47</sup> Bethink thou what is my substance; for whether thou hast ordained vainly all the sons of men?

<sup>48</sup> Who is a man, that shall live, and shall not see death; shall he deliver his soul from the hand of hell?

<sup>49</sup> Lord, where be thine eld [or old] mercies; as thou hast sworn to David in thy truth?

<sup>50</sup> Lord, be thou mindful of the shame of thy servants; of the insults of many heathen men, which I held together in my bosom.

<sup>51</sup> Which thine enemies, Lord, did shamefully; for they despised the changing of thy christ.

<sup>52</sup> Blessed be the Lord without end; be it done, be it done.

PSALM 90

<sup>1</sup> The prayer of Moses, the man of God. Lord, thou art made help to us; from generation into generation.

<sup>2</sup> Before that hills were made, either the earth and the world was formed; from the world and into the world, thou art God.

<sup>3</sup> Turn thou not away a man into lowness; and thou saidest, Ye sons of men, be turned again.

<sup>4</sup> For a thousand years be before thine eyes; as yesterday, which is passed, and as [the] keeping in the night.

<sup>5</sup> The years of them shall be; that be had for nought. Early pass he, as an herb, <sup>6</sup> early flourish he, and pass; in the eventide fall he down, be he hard, and wax he dry.

<sup>7</sup> For we have failed in thine ire; and we be troubled in thy strong vengeance.

<sup>8</sup> Thou hast set [or put] our wicked-nesses in thy sight; our world in the lightening of thy cheer.

<sup>9</sup> For all our days have failed; and we have failed in thine ire. Our years we shall bethink upon as a spider;

<sup>10</sup> the days of our years be those seventy years. Forsooth, if fourscore or eighty years be in mighty men; and the more time of them is travail and sorrow. For mildness came above; and we shall be chastised.

<sup>11</sup> Who knew the power of thine ire; and durst number thine ire for thy dread?

<sup>12</sup> Make thy right hand so known; and make men learned in heart by wisdom.

<sup>13</sup> Lord, be thou converted some-deal; and be thou able to be prayed of by thy servants.

<sup>14</sup> We were [ful] filled early with thy mercy; we made full out joy, and we delighted in all our days.

<sup>15</sup> We were glad for the days in which thou madest us meek; for the years in which we saw evils.

<sup>16</sup> Lord, behold thou into thy servants, and into thy works; and dress thou the sons of them.

<sup>17</sup> And the shining of our Lord God be on us; and dress thou the works of our hands on us; and dress thou the works of our hands.

PSALM 91

<sup>1</sup> He that dwelleth in the help of the highest God; shall dwell in the protection of God of heaven.

<sup>2</sup> He shall say to the Lord, Thou art mine up-taker, and my refuge; my God, I shall hope in him.

<sup>3</sup> For he delivered me from the snare of hunters; and from a sharp word.

<sup>4</sup> With his shoulders he shall make shadow to thee; and thou shalt have hope under his feathers. His truth shall encompass thee with a shield;

<sup>10</sup> Evil shall not come to thee; and a scourge shall not come nigh to thy tabernacle.

<sup>11</sup> For God hath commanded to his angels of thee; that they keep thee in all thy ways.

<sup>13</sup> Thou shalt go upon a snake, and a cockatrice; and thou shalt defoul a lion, and a dragon.

<sup>14</sup> For God saith, For he hoped in me, I shall deliver him; I shall defend him, for he knew my name.

<sup>15</sup> He cried to me, and I shall hear him; I am with him in tribulation; I shall deliver him, and I shall glorify him.

<sup>16</sup> I shall [ful] fill him with the length of days; and I shall show mine health to him.

PSALM 92

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of song, in the day of sabbath. It is good to acknowledge to the Lord; and to sing to thy name, thou Highest.

<sup>4</sup> For thou, Lord, hast delighted me in the works of thy making; and I shall make full out joy in the works of thine hands.

<sup>9</sup> For lo! Lord, thine enemies, for lo! thine enemies shall perish; and all they shall be scattered that work wickedness.

<sup>10</sup> And mine horn shall be raised as an unicorn; and mine eld age shall be in plenteous mercy.

<sup>11</sup> And mine eye despised mine enemies; and when wicked men rise against me, mine ear shall hear of their downfall.

<sup>12</sup> A just [or rightwise] man shall flower as a palm tree; he shall be multiplied as a cedar of Lebanon.

<sup>13</sup> Men planted in the house of the Lord; shall flower in the porches of the house of our God.

<sup>14</sup> Yet they shall be multiplied in plenteous eld age; and they shall be suffering well.

<sup>15</sup> That they tell, that our Lord God is rightful [or right]; and no wicked-ness is in him.

PSALM 93

<sup>5</sup> Thy witnessings be made able to be believed greatly; Lord, holiness be-cometh thine house, into the length of days.

PSALM 94

<sup>2</sup> Be thou enhanced that deemest the earth; yield thou yielding to proud men.

- <sup>3</sup> Lord, how long sinners; how long shall sinners have glory?
<sup>4</sup> They shall tell out, and shall speak wickedness; all men shall speak that work unrightfulness.
<sup>5</sup> Lord, they have made low thy people; and they have dis-eased thine heritage.
<sup>6</sup> They killed a widow and a come-ling; and they have slain fatherless children and motherless.
<sup>7</sup> And they said, The Lord shall not see it; and, God of Jacob shall not understand.
<sup>9</sup> Shall not he hear, that planted the ear; either beholdeth not he, that made the eye?
<sup>10</sup> Shall not he reprove, that chastiseth folks; shall he not know, which teacheth man knowing?
<sup>11</sup> The Lord knoweth the thoughts of men; that those [or they] be vain.
<sup>12</sup> Blessed is the man, whom thou, Lord, hast learned; and hast taught him of thy law.
<sup>13</sup> That thou assuage him from evil days; till a ditch be digged to the sinner.
<sup>14</sup> For the Lord shall not put away his people; and he shall not forsake his heritage.
<sup>15</sup> Till rightfulness [or rightwiseness] be turned into doom; and who be nigh it, all that be of rightful heart.
<sup>16</sup> Who shall rise with me against mis-doers; either who shall stand with me against them that work wickedness?
<sup>17</sup> No but for the Lord helped me; almost my soul had dwelled in hell.
<sup>18</sup> If I said, My foot was stirred; Lord, thy mercy helped me.
<sup>19</sup> After the multitude of my sorrows in mine heart; thy comforts made glad my soul.
<sup>20</sup> Whether the seat of wickedness cleaveth to thee; that makest travail in commandment?
<sup>21</sup> They shall take hold against the soul of a just [or rightwise] man; and they shall condemn innocent blood.
<sup>22</sup> And the Lord was made to me into refuge; and my God was made into the help of mine hope.
<sup>23</sup> And he shall yield to them the wickedness of them; and in the malice of them he shall lose them, our Lord God shall lose them.

PSALM 95

- <sup>1</sup> Come ye, make ye full out joy to the Lord; heartily sing we to God, our health.
<sup>4</sup> For all the ends of [the] earth be in his hand; and the highness, [or the heights], of hills be his.
<sup>5</sup> For the sea is his, and he made it; and his hands formed the dry land.
<sup>6</sup> Come ye, praise we, and fall we down before God; weep we before the Lord that made us;
<sup>7</sup> for he is our Lord God. And we be the people of his pasture; and the sheep of his hand. If ye have heard his voice today;
<sup>8</sup> do not ye make hard your hearts. As in the stirring to wrath; by the day of temptation in desert.
<sup>9</sup> Where your fathers tempted me; they proved and saw my works.

<sup>10</sup> Forty years I was offended to this generation; and I said, Ever[more] they err in heart. And these men knew not my ways;

<sup>11</sup> to whom I swore in mine ire, they shall not enter into my rest.

PSALM 96

<sup>5</sup> For all the gods of heathen men be fiends; but the Lord made heavens.

<sup>7</sup> Ye countries of heathen men, bring to the Lord, bring ye glory and honour to the Lord;

<sup>8</sup> bring ye to the Lord glory to his name. Take ye sacrifices, and enter ye into the halls of him;

<sup>9</sup> praise ye the Lord in his holy hall. All earth be moved of his face;

<sup>10</sup> say ye among heathen men, that the Lord hath reigned. And he hath amended the world, that shall not be moved; he shall deem peoples in equity.

<sup>11</sup> Heavens be glad, and the earth make full out joy, the sea and the fullness thereof be moved altogether;

<sup>12</sup> fields shall make joy, and all things that be in those [or them]. Then all the trees of woods shall make full out joy, <sup>13</sup> for the face of the Lord, for he cometh; for he cometh to deem the earth. He shall deem the world in equity; and peoples in his truth.

PSALM 97

<sup>2</sup> Cloud and darkness in his compass; rightfulness [or rightwiseness] and doom is[the] amending [or correction] of his seat.

<sup>5</sup> Hills as wax floated [or flowed] down from the face of the Lord; all earth from the face of the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> All they that worship graven things, or images, be shamed, and they that have glory in their simu-lacra; all ye angels of the Lord, worship him.

<sup>8</sup> Zion heard, and was glad; and the daughters of Judah made full out joy, for thy dooms, Lord.

<sup>9</sup> For thou, Lord, art the highest on all earth; thou art greatly enhanced over all gods.

<sup>10</sup> Ye that love the Lord, hate evil; the Lord keepeth the souls of his saints; he shall deliver them from the hand of the sinner.

<sup>11</sup> Light is risen to the rightful [or rightwise] man; and gladness to rightful men of heart.

<sup>12</sup> Just [or rightwise] men, be ye glad in the Lord; and acknowledge ye to the mind of his hallowing.

PSALM 98

<sup>1</sup> A psalm. Sing ye a new song to the Lord; for he hath done marvels. His right hand and his holy arm; hath made health to him.

<sup>4</sup> All earth, make ye heartily joy to God; sing ye, and make ye full out joy, and say ye psalm.

<sup>5</sup> Sing ye to the Lord in an harp, in harp and in voice of psalm;

<sup>7</sup> the sea and the fullness thereof be moved; the world, and they that dwell therein.

<sup>9</sup> for the sight of the Lord; for he cometh to deem the earth. He shall deem the world in rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and peoples in equity.

PSALM 99

<sup>1</sup> The Lord hath reigned, [the] peoples be wroth; thou that sittest on cherubim, the earth be moved.

<sup>3</sup> Acknowledge they to thy great name, for it is fearedful and holy;

<sup>5</sup> Enhance ye our Lord God; and worship ye at the stool of his feet, for it is holy.

<sup>6</sup> Moses and Aaron were among his priests; and Samuel was among them that inwardly call his name. They inwardly called the Lord, and he heard them;

<sup>7</sup> in a pillar of cloud he spake to them. They kept his witnessings; and the commandment which he gave to them.

<sup>8</sup> Our Lord God, thou heardest them; God, thou were merciful to them, and thou tookest vengeance on all their findings.

<sup>9</sup> Enhance ye our Lord God, and worship ye in his holy hill; for our Lord God is holy.

PSALM 100

<sup>3</sup> Know ye, that the Lord himself is God; he made us, and not we made us. His people, and the sheep of his pasture,

<sup>4</sup> enter ye into his gates in acknowl-edging; enter ye into his porches, acknowledge ye to him in hymns. Praise ye his name,

<sup>5</sup> for the Lord is sweet, his mercy is without end; and his truth is in generation and into generation.

PSALM 101

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. Lord, I shall sing to thee; mercy and doom. I shall sing,

<sup>2</sup> and I shall understand in a way without wem; when thou shalt come to me. I went perfectly in the inno-cence of mine heart; in the middle of mine house.

<sup>3</sup> I setted not forth before mine eyes an unjust thing; I hated them that made trespassings.

<sup>4</sup> A shrewd heart cleaved not to me; I knew not a wicked man bowing away from me.

<sup>5</sup> I pursued him that backbited privily his neighbour. With the proud eye and an heart unable to be filled; I ate not with this.

<sup>6</sup> Mine eyes were to the faithful men of earth, that they sit with me; he that went in a way without wem, ministered [or served] to me.

<sup>7</sup> He that doeth pride, shall not dwell in the middle of mine house; he that speaketh wicked things, served not in the sight of mine eyes.

<sup>8</sup> In the morrowtide I killed all the sinners of earth; that I should lose from the city of the Lord all men working wickedness.

PSALM 102

<sup>1</sup> The prayer of a poor man, when he was anguished, and shedded out his speech before the Lord. Lord, hear thou my prayer; and my cry come to thee.

<sup>2</sup> Turn not away thy face from me; in whatever day I am troubled, bow down thine ear to me. In whatever day I shall inwardly call thee; hear thou me swiftly.

<sup>3</sup> For my days have failed as smoke; and my bones have dried up as croutons or cracklings, either leavings of frying.

<sup>4</sup> I am smitten as hay, and mine heart dried up; for I have forgotten to eat my bread.

<sup>5</sup> Of the voice of my wailing; my bone cleaved to my flesh.

<sup>6</sup> I am made like a pelican of wilderness; I am made as a night crow in an house.

<sup>7</sup> I waked; and I am made as a solitary sparrow in the roof.

<sup>8</sup> All day mine enemies despised me; and they that praised me swore against me.

<sup>9</sup> For I ate ashes as bread; and I meddled [or mingled] my drink with weeping.

<sup>10</sup> From the face of the ire of thine indignation; for thou raising me [up] hast hurtled me down.

<sup>11</sup> My days bowed away as a shadow; and I waxed dry as hay.

<sup>12</sup> But, Lord, thou dwellest without end; and thy memorial in generation and into generation.

<sup>13</sup> Lord, thou rising up, shalt have mercy on Zion; for the time to have mercy thereof cometh, for the time cometh.

<sup>14</sup> For the stones thereof pleased thy servants; and they shall have mercy on the land thereof.

<sup>15</sup> And, Lord, heathen men shall dread thy name; and all kings of earth shall dread thy glory.

<sup>17</sup> He beheld on the prayer of meek men; and he despised not the prayer of them.

<sup>18</sup> Be these things written in another generation; and the people that shall be made shall praise the Lord.

<sup>19</sup> For he beheld from his high holy place; the Lord looked from heaven into earth.

<sup>20</sup> For to hear the wailings of fettered men; and for to unbind the sons of slain men.

<sup>23</sup> It answered to him in the way of his virtue; Tell thou to me the few-ness of my days.

<sup>24</sup> Again-call thou not me in the middle of my days; thy years be in generation and into generation.

<sup>26</sup> Those shall perish, but thou dwellest perfectly; and all shall wax eld [or old] as a cloth. And thou shalt change them as a covering, and those shall be changed;

<sup>27</sup> but thou art the same thyself, and thy years shall not fail.

<sup>28</sup> The sons of thy servants shall dwell; and the seed of them shall be dressed into the world.

PSALM 103

<sup>1</sup> A psalm of David. My soul, bless thou the Lord, and all things that be within me, bless his holy name.

<sup>2</sup> My soul, bless thou the Lord; and do not thou forget all the yieldings of him.

<sup>5</sup> Which [ful] filleth thy desire in goods; thy youth shall be renewed as the youth of an eagle.

<sup>7</sup> He made his ways known to Moses; his wills or deeds to the sons of Israel.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord is a merciful doer; and merciful in will; long abiding, and much merciful.

<sup>9</sup> He shall not be wroth without end; and he shall not threaten without end.

<sup>10</sup> He did not to us after our sins; neither he yielded to us after our wickednesses.

<sup>11</sup> For by the highness of heaven from earth; he made strong his mercy on men dreading him.

<sup>12</sup> As much as the east is from the west; he made [a] far our wicked-nesses from us.

<sup>13</sup> As a father hath mercy on his sons, the Lord had mercy on men dreading him;

<sup>14</sup> for he knew our making. He bethought that we be dust,

<sup>15</sup> a man is as hay; his day[s] shall flower out so as a flower of the field.

<sup>16</sup> For the spirit shall pass in him, and it shall not abide; and it shall no more know his place.

<sup>17</sup> But the mercy of the Lord is from without beginning, and till into with-out end; on men dreading him. And his rightfulness [or rightwiseness]is into the sons of sons;

<sup>18</sup> to them that keep his testament. And be mindful of his command-ments; to do those [or them].

<sup>19</sup> The Lord hath made ready his seat in heaven; and his realm shall be lord of all.

<sup>21</sup> All virtues or hosts of the Lord, bless ye the Lord; ye ministers of him, that do his will.

<sup>22</sup> All works of the Lord, bless ye the Lord, in each place of his lord-ship; my soul, bless thou the Lord.

PSALM 104

<sup>1</sup> My soul, bless thou the Lord; my Lord God, thou art magnified greatly. Thou hast clothed acknowledging and fairness;

<sup>2</sup> and thou art clothed with light, as with a cloth. And thou stretchest forth heaven as a skin;

<sup>3</sup> and thou coverest with waters the higher parts thereof. Which settest a cloud thy ascending; which goest on the feathers of winds.

<sup>5</sup> Which hast founded the earth on his stableness; it shall not be bowed into the world of world.

<sup>7</sup> Those [or they] shall flee from thy blaming; men shall be afeared of the voice of thy thunder.

<sup>8</sup> Hills go up, and fields go down; into the place which thou hast founded to those [or them].

<sup>9</sup> Thou hast set a term, which they shall not pass; neither those [or they] shall be turned, for to cover the earth.

<sup>12</sup> [The] Birds of the air shall dwell on those; from the midst of the stones they shall give voices.

<sup>13</sup> And thou moistest [the] hills of their higher things; the earth shall be [ful] filled of the fruit of thy works.

<sup>14</sup> And thou bringest forth hay to beasts; and herb to the service of men. That thou bring forth bread of the earth;

<sup>15</sup> and that wine make glad the heart of men. That he make glad the face with oil; and that bread make steadfast the heart of man.

<sup>16</sup> The trees of the field shall be *[full-]*filled, and the cedars of the Lebanon, which he planted;

<sup>17</sup> sparrows shall make nest there. The house of the gyrfalcon is the leader of those [or them];

<sup>18</sup> high hills be refuge to harts; the stone is refuge to urchins.

<sup>19</sup> He made the moon into times; the sun knew his going down.

<sup>20</sup> Thou hast set darkneses, and night is made; all beasts of the wood shall go therein.

<sup>21</sup> Lions' whelps roaring for to ravish; and to seek of God meat to them-selves.

<sup>24</sup> Lord, thy works be magnified full much, thou hast made all things in wisdom; the earth is filled with thy possessions.

<sup>25</sup> This sea is great and large to hands; there be creeping beasts, of which is no number. Little beasts with [the] great;

<sup>26</sup> ships shall pass there. This dragon which thou hast formed, for to scorn him.

<sup>27</sup> All things abide of thee; that thou give to them meat in time.

<sup>28</sup> When thou shalt give to them, they shall gather; when thou shalt open thine hand, all things shall be filled with goodness.

<sup>29</sup> But when thou shalt turn away thy face, they shall be troubled; thou shalt take away the spirit of them, and they shall fail; and they shall turn again into their dust.

<sup>30</sup> Send out thy spirit, and they shall be formed of the new or reformed of new; and thou shalt renew the face of the earth.

<sup>31</sup> The glory of the Lord be into the world; the Lord shall be glad in his works.

<sup>32</sup> Which beholdeth the earth, and maketh it to tremble; which toucheth hills, and those [or they] smoke.

<sup>33</sup> I shall sing to the Lord in my life; I shall say psalm to my God, as long as I am.

<sup>34</sup> My speech be merry or mirth to him; forsooth I shall delight in the Lord.

<sup>35</sup> Sinners fail from the earth, and wicked men fail, so that they be not; my soul, bless thou the Lord.

PSALM 105

<sup>2</sup> Sing ye to him, and say ye psalm to him, and tell ye all his marvels;

<sup>3</sup> be ye praised in his holy name. The heart of men seeking the Lord be glad;

<sup>8</sup> He was mindful of his testament into the world; of the word which he commanded into a thousand gener-ations.

<sup>9</sup> Which he disposed to Abraham; and of his oath to Isaac.

<sup>10</sup> And he ordained it to Jacob into a commandment; and to Israel into everlasting testament.

<sup>11</sup> And he said, I shall give to thee the land of Canaan; the cord of your heritage.

<sup>12</sup> When they were in a little number; and the comelings of them were full few.

<sup>16</sup> And God called hunger on earth; and he wasted all the steadfastness of bread.

<sup>18</sup> They made low his feet in fetters, iron passed by [or through] his soul;

<sup>19</sup> till the word of him came. The speech of the Lord enflamed him;

<sup>23</sup> And Israel entered into Egypt; and Jacob was a comeling in the land of Ham.

<sup>27</sup> He putted [or put] in them to tell and to do the words of his miracles; and of his great wonders in the land of Ham.

<sup>28</sup> He sent darknesses, and made it dark; and he made not bitter his words.

<sup>29</sup> He turned the waters of them into blood; and he killed the fishes of them.

<sup>30</sup> And the land of them gave pad-docks; in the privy places of the kings of them.

<sup>31</sup> God said, and a flesh fly [or hound flea] came; and gnats in all the coasts of them.

<sup>32</sup> He setted [or put] their rains into hail; fire burning in the land of them.

<sup>33</sup> And he smote the vines of them, and the fig trees of them; and all-brake the trees of the coasts of them.

<sup>34</sup> He said, and the locust came; and a bruchus of which there was no number.

<sup>35</sup> And it ate all the hay in the land of them; and it ate all the fruit of the land of them.

<sup>36</sup> And he killed each the first engen-dered thing in the land of them; the first fruits of all the travail of them.

<sup>37</sup> And he led out them with silver and gold; and none was sick in the lineages of them.

<sup>38</sup> Egypt was glad in the going out of them; for the dread of them lay on Egyptians.

* PSALM 105:1 Compare Psalm 105:1-15 to 1st Chronicles 16:8-22.

<sup>39</sup> He spread abroad a cloud, into the covering of them; and fire, that it shined to them by night.

<sup>40</sup> They asked, and a curlew came; and he [ful] filled them with the bread of heaven.

<sup>41</sup> He brake the stone, and waters flowed; floods went forth in the dry place.

<sup>42</sup> For he was mindful of his holy word; which he had to Abraham, his servant.

<sup>44</sup> And he gave to them the countries of heathen men; and they had in possession the travails of peoples.

<sup>45</sup> That they keep his justifying; and keep his law.

PSALM 106

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Acknowledge ye to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy is without end.

<sup>3</sup> Blessed be they that keep doom; and do rightfulness [or rightwiseness] in all time.

<sup>4</sup> Lord, have thou mind on us, in the good pleasanse of thy people; visit thou us in thine health.

<sup>5</sup> To see in the goodness of thy chosen men, to be glad in the gladness of thy folk; that thou be praised with thine heritage.

<sup>6</sup> We have sinned with our fathers; we have done unjustly, we have done wickedness.

<sup>7</sup> Our fathers in Egypt understood not thy marvels; they were not mindful of the multitude of thy mercy. And they going into the sea, into the Red Sea, stirred him to wrath;

<sup>8</sup> and he saved them for his name, that he should make known his power.

<sup>9</sup> And he parted the Red Sea, and it was dried; and he led forth them in the depths of waters, as in desert.

<sup>10</sup> And he saved them from the hand of haters; and he again-bought them from the hand of the enemy.

<sup>12</sup> And they believed to his words; and they praised the praising of him.

<sup>14</sup> And they coveted covetousness in desert; and tempted God in a place without water.

<sup>15</sup> And he gave to them the asking of them; and he sent fullness into the souls of them.

<sup>17</sup> The earth was opened, and swallowed [down] Dathan; and covered on the congregation of Abiram.

<sup>18</sup> And fire burnt on high in the synagogue of them; flame burnt [the] sinners.

<sup>23</sup> And God said, that he would lose them; and he would have, if Moses, his chosen man, had not stood in the breaking of his sight. That he should turn away his ire; lest he lost them.

<sup>24</sup> And they had the desirable land for nought, for they believed not to his word,

<sup>25</sup> and they grutched in their tabernacles; they heard not the voice of the Lord.

<sup>27</sup> And to cast away their seed in nations; and to lose them in countries.

<sup>28</sup> And they made sacrifice to Baal-peor; and they ate the sacrifices of dead beasts.

<sup>29</sup> And they wrathed God in their findings; and falling, either death, was multiplied in them.

<sup>30</sup> And Phinehas stood, and pleased God; and the vengeance ceased.

<sup>31</sup> And it was areckoned to him to rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; in generation and into generation, till into without end.

<sup>32</sup> And they wrathed God at the waters of against-saying; and Moses was travailed for them, that is, troubled in soul, <sup>33</sup> for they made bitter his spirit, and he parted [or ordained] in his lips.

<sup>34</sup> They lost not [the] heathen men; which the Lord said to them to do.

<sup>35</sup> And they were meddled [or mingled] among heathen men, and learned the works of them;

<sup>36</sup> and served the graven images of them; and it was made to them into cause of stumbling.

<sup>38</sup> And they shedded out innocent blood, the blood of their sons and of their daughters; which they sacrificed to the graven images of Canaan. And the earth was slain in bloods, <sup>39</sup> and was defouled in the works of them; and they did fornication in their findings.

<sup>40</sup> And the Lord was wroth by strong vengeance against his people; and he had abomination of his heritage.

<sup>41</sup> And he betook them into the hands of heathen men; and they that hated them, were lords of them.

<sup>42</sup> And their enemies did tribulation to them, and they were meeked under the hands of enemies;

<sup>43</sup> oft he delivered them. But they wrathed him in their counsel; and they were made low in their wicked-nesses.

<sup>44</sup> And he saw, when they were set in tribulation; and he heard the prayer of them.

<sup>45</sup> And he was mindful of his testa-ment; and it repented him by the multitude of his mercy.

<sup>46</sup> And he gave them into mercies; in the sight of all men, that had taken them.

<sup>47</sup> Our Lord God, make thou us safe; and gather together us from nations. That we acknowledge to thine holy name; and have glory in thy praising.

<sup>48</sup> Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from the world and till into the world; and all the people shall say, Be it done, be it done.

PSALM 107

<sup>2</sup> Say they, that be again-bought of the Lord; which he again-bought from the hand of the enemy, <sup>3</sup> from countries he gathered them together. From the rising of the sun, and from the going down; from the north, and from the sea.

<sup>4</sup> They erred in wilderness, in a place without water; they found not way of the city of dwelling place.

<sup>6</sup> And they cried to the Lord, when they were set in tribulation; and he delivered them from their needinesses.

<sup>7</sup> And he led forth them into the right way; that they should go into the city of dwelling.

<sup>8</sup> The mercies of the Lord, acknowl-edge to him; and his marvels acknowl-edge to the sons of men.

<sup>9</sup> For he [ful] filled a void man; and he filled with goods an hungry man.

<sup>10</sup> God delivered men sitting in dark-ness, and in the shadow of death; and men imprisoned in beggary, and in irons.

<sup>11</sup> For they made bitter the speeches of God; and wrathed the counsel of the Highest.

<sup>12</sup> And the heart of them was made meek in travails; and they were sick, and none was that helped.

<sup>14</sup> And he led them out of dark-nesses, and [the] shadow of death; and brake the bonds of them.

<sup>15</sup> The mercies of the Lord, ac-knowledge to him; and his marvels, acknowledge to the sons of men.

<sup>16</sup> For he all-brake [the] brazen gates; and he brake [the] iron bars.

<sup>17</sup> He up-took them from the way of their wickedness; for they were made low for their unrightfulnesses.

<sup>18</sup> The soul of them loathed all meat; and they nighed unto the gates of death.

<sup>19</sup> And they cried to the Lord, when they were set in tribulation; and he delivered them from their needinesses.

<sup>20</sup> He sent his word, and healed them; and delivered them from the perishings of them.

<sup>25</sup> He said, and the spirit of tempest stood; and the waves thereof were areared.

<sup>26</sup> They ascend [or go up] till to heavens, and go down unto the depths; the soul of them failed in evils.

<sup>27</sup> They were troubled, and they were moved as a drunken man; and all the wisdom of them was devoured.

<sup>28</sup> And they cried to the Lord, when they were set in tribulation; and he led them out of their needinesses.

<sup>29</sup> And he ordained the tempest there-of into a soft wind, either peaceability; and the waves thereof were stilled.

<sup>30</sup> And they were glad, for those [or they] were still; and he led them forth into the haven of their will.

<sup>31</sup> The mercies of the Lord, acknowl-edge to him; and his marvels to the sons of men.

<sup>32</sup> And enhance they him in the church of the people; and praise they him in the chairs of the elder men.

<sup>33</sup> He hath set floods into desert; and the outgoings of waters into thirsty ground.

<sup>35</sup> He hath set desert into ponds of waters; and [the] earth without water into [the] outgoings of waters.

<sup>36</sup> And he set there hungry men; and they made a city of dwelling.

<sup>37</sup> And they sowed fields, and planted vines; and made fruit of birth.

<sup>38</sup> And he blessed them, and they were multiplied greatly; and he made not less their work beasts.

<sup>39</sup> And they were made few; and were travailed of tribulation of evils and of sorrow.

<sup>40</sup> Strife was shed [or poured] out on princes; and he made them for to err without the way, and not in the way.

<sup>41</sup> And he helped the poor man from poverty; and setted [or put] families as a sheep bringing forth lambs.

<sup>42</sup> Rightful men shall see, and shall be glad; and all wickedness shall stop his mouth.

<sup>43</sup> Who is wise, and shall keep these things; and shall understand the mercies of the Lord?

PSALM 108

<sup>1</sup> The song of the psalm of David. Mine heart is ready, God, mine heart is ready; I shall sing, and I shall say psalm in my glory*.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, I shall acknowledge to thee among peoples; and I shall say psalm to thee among nations.

<sup>4</sup> For why, God, thy mercy is great on heavens; and thy truth is till to the clouds.

<sup>7</sup> God spake in his holy place. I shall make full out joy, and I shall part Shechem; and I shall mete [or measure] the great valley of tabernacles.

<sup>8</sup> Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine; and Ephraim is the up-taking of mine head. Judah is my king;

<sup>9</sup> Moab is the cauldron of mine hope. Into Idumea I shall stretch forth my shoe; aliens be made friends to me.

<sup>10</sup> Who shall lead me forth into a strong city; who shall lead me forth till into Idumea?

<sup>11</sup> Whether not thou, God, that hast put us away; and, God, shalt thou not go out in our virtues or hosts?

<sup>13</sup> We shall make virtue in God; and he shall bring our enemies to nought.

PSALM 109

<sup>2</sup> for the mouth of the sinner, and the mouth of the guileful man, is opened on me. They spake against me with a guileful [or treacherous] tongue, <sup>3</sup> and they encompassed me with words of hatred; and fought against me without cause.

<sup>4</sup> For that thing that they should love me, they backbited me; but I prayed for them.

<sup>7</sup> When he is deemed, go he out condemned; and his prayer be made into sin.

<sup>13</sup> His sons be made into perishing; the name of him be done away in one generation.

<sup>14</sup> The wickedness of his fathers come again into mind in the sight of the Lord; and the sin of his mother be not done away.

* PSALM 108:1 Compare Psalm 108:1-5 to Psalm 57:7-11. † PSALM 108:6 Compare Psalm 108:6-13 to Psalm 60:5-12.

<sup>15</sup> Be they made ever[more] against the Lord; and the mind of them perish from earth.

<sup>16</sup> For that thing that he thought not to do mercy, and he pursued a poor man and a beggar; and to slay a man compunct in heart.

<sup>17</sup> And he loved cursing, and it shall come to him; and he would not give blessing, and it shall be made far from him.

<sup>18</sup> And he clothed cursing as a cloth, and it entered as water into his inner things; and as oil in his bones.

<sup>19</sup> Be it made to him as a cloth, with which he is covered; and as a girdle, with which he is ever[more] girded.

<sup>20</sup> This is the work of them that back-bite me with the Lord; and that speak evils against my life.

<sup>21</sup> And thou, Lord God, do with me for thy name; for thy mercy is sweet. Deliver thou me, <sup>22</sup> for I am needy and poor; and mine heart is troubled within me.

<sup>23</sup> I am taken away as a shadow, when it boweth away; and I am shaken away as locusts.

<sup>24</sup> My knees be made feeble with fasting; and my flesh was changed for oil.

<sup>25</sup> And I am made a shame to them; they saw me, and moved their heads.

<sup>26</sup> My Lord God, help thou me; make thou me safe by thy mercy.

<sup>27</sup> And they shall know, that this is thine hand; and thou, Lord, hast done it.

<sup>28</sup> And they shall curse, and thou shalt bless, they that rise against me, be shamed; but thy servant shall be glad.

<sup>29</sup> They that backbite me, be clothed with shame; and be they covered with their shame, as with a double cloth.

<sup>30</sup> I shall acknowledge to the Lord greatly with my mouth; and I shall praise him in the middle of many men.

<sup>31</sup> Which stood nigh on the right half of a poor man; to make safe my soul from pursuers.

PSALM 110

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. The Lord said to my Lord; Sit thou on my right side. Till I put thine enemies a stool of thy feet.

<sup>3</sup> The beginning is with thee in the day of thy virtue, in the brightnesses of saints; I begat thee of the womb, before the day star.

<sup>6</sup> He shall deem among nations, he shall fill the land with fallings; he shall shake heads in the land of many men.

<sup>7</sup> He drank of the strand [or stream] in the way; therefore he enhanced the head.

PSALM 111

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Lord, I shall acknowledge to thee in all mine heart; in the council, and congregation of just men.

<sup>3</sup> His work is acknowledging and great doing; and his rightfulness [or rightwiseness] dwelleth into the world of world.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord, merciful in will, and a merciful doer, hath made a mind of his marvels;

<sup>5</sup> he hath given meat to men dreading him. He shall be mindful of his testament into the world;

<sup>6</sup> he shall tell to his people the strength of his works. That he give to them the heritage of folks;

<sup>7</sup> the works of his hands be truth and doom. All his commandments be faithful,

<sup>8</sup> confirmed into the world of world; made in truth and equity.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord sent redemption to his people; he commanded his testament without end. His name is holy and dreadful;

<sup>10</sup> the beginning of wisdom is the dread of the Lord. Good understanding is to all that do it; his praising dwelleth into the world of world.

PSALM 112

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Blessed is the man that dreadeth the Lord; he shall delight full much in his commandments.

<sup>2</sup> His seed shall be mighty in [the] earth; the generation of rightful [or right] men shall be blessed.

<sup>3</sup> Glory and riches be in his house; and his rightfulness [or rightwiseness] dwelleth into the world of world.

<sup>4</sup> Light is risen up in darkneses to rightful [or right] men; the Lord is merciful in will, and a merciful doer, and rightful [or rightwise].

<sup>5</sup> The man is merry, that doeth mercy, and lendeth; he disposeth his words in doom;

<sup>6</sup> for he shall not be moved without end. A just [or rightwise] man shall be in everlasting mind;

<sup>7</sup> he shall not dread of an evil hearing. His heart is ready for to hope in the Lord;

<sup>8</sup> his heart is confirmed, he shall not be moved, till he despise his enemies.

<sup>9</sup> He spreaded abroad, he gave to poor men; his rightwiseness dwelleth into the world of world; his horn shall be raised in glory.

<sup>10</sup> A sinner shall see, and shall be wroth; he shall gnash with his teeth, and shall fail, either shall wax rotten; the desire of sinners shall perish.

PSALM 113

<sup>3</sup> From the rising of the sun till to the going down; the name of the Lord is worthy to be praised.

<sup>6</sup> and beholdeth meek things in heaven and in earth?

<sup>9</sup> Which maketh a barren woman dwell in the house; a glad mother of sons.

PSALM 114

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. In the going out of Israel from Egypt; of the house of Jacob from the heathen people.

<sup>5</sup> Thou sea, what was to thee, for thou fleddest; and thou, Jordan, for thou were turned aback?

<sup>7</sup> The earth was moved from the face of the Lord; from the face of God of Jacob.

<sup>8</sup> Which turned a stone into a pond of waters; and an hard rock into wells of waters.

PSALM 115

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Lord, not to us, Lord, not to us; but give thou glory to thy name. Of thy mercy, and of thy truth;

<sup>2</sup> lest any time heathen men say, Where is the God of them?

<sup>5</sup> They have mouths, and shall not speak; they have eyes, and shall not see.

<sup>6</sup> They have ears, and shall not hear; they have nostrils, and shall not smell.

<sup>7</sup> They have hands, and shall not grope; they have feet, and shall not go; they shall not cry in their throat.

<sup>8</sup> They that make those simulacra be made like those [or them]; and all that trust in them.

<sup>9</sup> The house of Israel hoped in the Lord; he is the helper of them, and the defender of them.

<sup>10</sup> The house of Aaron hoped in the Lord; he is the helper of them, and the defender of them.

<sup>11</sup> They that dread the Lord, hoped in the Lord; he is the helper of them, and the defender of them.

<sup>12</sup> The Lord was mindful of us; and blessed us. He blessed the house of Israel; he blessed the house of Aaron.

<sup>13</sup> He blessed all men that dread the Lord; both little and greater.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord add, either increase, on you; on you, and on your sons.

<sup>15</sup> Blessed be ye of the Lord; that made heaven and earth.

<sup>16</sup> Heaven of heaven is to the Lord/ Heaven of heavens to the Lord; but he gave the earth to the sons of men.

<sup>18</sup> But we that live, bless the Lord; from this time now, and till into the world.

PSALM 116

<sup>2</sup> For he bowed down his ear to me; and I shall inwardly call him in my days.

<sup>3</sup> The sorrows of death encompass-ed me; and the perils of hell found me. I found tribulation and sorrow;

<sup>4</sup> and I called inwardly the name of the Lord. Thou, Lord, deliver my soul;

<sup>5</sup> the Lord is merciful, and just [or rightwise]; and our God doeth mercy.

<sup>6</sup> And the Lord keepeth little children; I was meeked, and he delivered me.

<sup>7</sup> My soul, turn thou into thy rest; for the Lord hath done well to thee.

<sup>8</sup> For he hath delivered my soul from death; mine eyes from weepings, and my feet from falling down.

<sup>9</sup> I shall please the Lord; in the country of them that live.

<sup>10</sup> I believed, for which thing I spake; forsooth I was made low full much.

<sup>11</sup> I said in my passing; Each man is a liar.

<sup>12</sup> What shall I yield to the Lord; for all things which he hath yielded to me?

<sup>13</sup> I shall take the cup of health; and I shall inwardly call the name of the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> I shall yield my vows to the Lord before all his people;

<sup>16</sup> O! Lord, for I am thy servant; I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid. Thou hast broken my bonds, <sup>17</sup> to thee I shall offer a sacrifice of praising; and I shall inwardly call the name of the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> I shall yield my vows to the Lord, in the sight of all his people;

<sup>19</sup> in the foreyards of the house of the Lord, in the midst of thee, Jerusalem.

PSALM 117

<sup>2</sup> For his mercy is confirmed on us; and the truth of the Lord dwelleth without end.

PSALM 118

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Acknowledge ye to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy is without end.

<sup>2</sup> Israel say now, for he is good; for his mercy is without end.

<sup>5</sup> Out Of tribulation I inwardly called the Lord; and the Lord heard me in largeness.

<sup>6</sup> The Lord is an helper to me; I shall not dread what man shall do to me.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord is an helper to me; and I shall despise mine enemies.

<sup>8</sup> It is better to trust in the Lord; than for to trust in man.

<sup>9</sup> It is better for to hope in the Lord; than to hope in princes.

<sup>10</sup> All folks encompassed me; and in the name of the Lord it befelled, for I am avenged on them.

<sup>11</sup> They compassing encompassed me; and in the name of the Lord, for I am avenged on them.

<sup>12</sup> They encompassed me as bees, and they burnt out as fire among thorns; and in the name of the Lord, for I am avenged on them.

<sup>13</sup> I was hurled, and turned upside-down, that I should fall down; and the Lord took me up.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord is my strength, and my praising; and he is made to me into health.

<sup>15</sup> The voice of full out joying and of health; be in the tabernacles of just [or rightwise] men. The right hand of the Lord hath done virtue,

<sup>17</sup> I shall not die, but I shall live; and I shall tell the works of the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> The Lord chastising hath chastised me; and he gave not me to death.

<sup>19</sup> Open ye to me the gates of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and I shall enter by those [or them], and I shall acknowledge to the Lord;

<sup>20</sup> this gate is of the Lord, and just [or rightwise] men shall enter by it.

<sup>21</sup> I shall acknowledge to thee, for thou heardest me; and art made to me into health.

<sup>22</sup> The stone which the builders reproved; this is made into the head of the corner.

<sup>23</sup> This thing is made of the Lord; and it is wonderful before our eyes.

<sup>24</sup> This is the day which the Lord made; make we full out joy, and be we glad therein.

<sup>26</sup> blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. We blessed you of the house of the Lord;

<sup>27</sup> God is Lord, and he hath given light to us. Ordain ye a solemn day in thick peoples; till to the horns of the altar.

<sup>28</sup> Thou art my God, and I shall acknowledge to thee; thou art my God, and I shall enhance thee. I shall acknowledge to thee, for thou heardest me; and thou art made to me into health.

<sup>29</sup> Acknowledge ye to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy is without end.

PSALM 119

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. [Aleph.] Blessed be men without wem in the way; that go in the law of the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> Blessed be they, that seek his wit-nessings; and seek him in all the heart.

<sup>5</sup> I would that my ways were dressed; to keep thy justifying.

<sup>6</sup> Then I shall not be shamed; when I shall behold perfectly in all thy behests.

<sup>7</sup> I shall acknowledge to thee in the dressing [or right ruling] of mine heart; in that that I learned the dooms of thy rightfulnesses [or rightwiseness].

<sup>8</sup> I shall keep thy justifying; forsake thou not me on each side.

<sup>9</sup> [Beth.] In what thing amendeth a young waxing man his way? in keep-ing thy words.

<sup>15</sup> I shall be exercised, either busily occupied, in thy behests; and I shall behold thy ways.

<sup>16</sup> I shall bethink in thy justifying; I shall not forget thy words.

<sup>17</sup> [Gimel.] Yield to thy servant; quicken thou me, and I shall keep thy words.

<sup>18</sup> Lighten thou mine eyes; and I shall behold the marvels of thy law.

<sup>19</sup> I am a comeling in earth; hide thou not thy behests from me.

<sup>23</sup> For why princes sat, and spake against me; but thy servant was exercised in thy justifying.

<sup>24</sup> For why and thy witnessings is my thinking; and my counsel is thy justifying.

<sup>25</sup> [Daleth.] My soul cleaved to the pavement; quicken thou me by thy word.

<sup>26</sup> I told out my ways, and thou heardest me; teach thou me thy justifying.

<sup>27</sup> Learn [or Inform] thou me the way of thy justifying; and I shall be exercised in thy marvels.

<sup>28</sup> My soul napped for annoyance; confirm thou me in thy words.

<sup>29</sup> Remove thou from me the way of wickedness; and in thy law have thou mercy on me.

<sup>30</sup> I chose the way of truth; I forgot not thy dooms.

<sup>32</sup> I ran the way of thy command-ments; when thou alargedest mine heart.

<sup>33</sup> [He.] Lord, set thou to me a law, the way of thy justifying; and I shall seek it ever[more].

<sup>34</sup> Give thou understanding to me, and I shall seek thy law; and I shall keep it in all mine heart.

<sup>35</sup> Lead me forth in the path of thy behests; for I would or delight in it.

<sup>41</sup> [Vau.] And, Lord, thy mercy come [up] on me; thine health come by thy speech.

- 42 And I shall answer a word to men saying shame to me; for I hoped in thy words.
43 And take thou not away from my mouth the word of truth utterly; for I hoped above in thy dooms.
44 And I shall keep thy law ever-[more]; into the world, and into the world of world.
45 And I went in largeness; for I sought thy commandments.
46 And I spake of thy witnessings in the sight of kings; and I was not shamed.
47 And I bethought in thy behests; which I loved.
48 And I raised mine hands to thy commandments, which I loved; and I shall be exercised in thy justifiings.
49 [Zain.] Lord, have thou mind on thy word to thy servant; in which word thou hast given hope to me.
50 This comforted me in my lowness; for thy word quickened me.
51 Proud men did wickedly to me by all things; but I bowed not away from thy law.
52 Lord, I was mindful of thy dooms from the world; and I was comforted.
53 Failing held me; for sinners for-saking thy law.
54 Thy justifiings were delightful to me to be sung; in the place of my pilgrimage.
55 Lord, I had mind of thy name by night; and I kept thy law.
56 This thing was made to me; for I sought thy justifiings.
57 [Cheth.] Lord, my part; I said to keep thy law.
58 I besought thy face in all mine heart; have thou mercy on me by thy speech.
59 I bethought on my ways; and I turned my feet into thy witnessings.
60 I am ready, and I am not troubled; to keep thy commandments.
61 The cords of sinners have em-braced me; and I have not forgotten thy law.
62 At midnight, I rose to acknowl-edge to thee; on the dooms of thy justifiings.
63 I am partner of all that dread thee; and keep thy behests.
64 Lord, the earth is full of thy mercy; teach thou me thy justifiings.
65 [Teth.] Lord, thou hast done good-ness with thy servant; by thy word.
66 Teach thou me goodness, and lore, either chastising, and knowing; for I believed to thy behests.
67 Before that I was made meek, I trespassed; therefore I kept thy speech.
68 Thou art good; and in thy good-ness teach thou me thy justifiings.
69 The wickedness of them that be proud, is multiplied on me; but in all mine heart I shall seek thy behests.
70 The heart of them is crudded, either made hard, as milk; but I be-thought on thy law.
71 It is good to me, that thou hast made me meek; that I learn thy justifiings.
72 The law out of thy mouth is better to me; than thousands of gold and silver.
73 [Jod.] Thine hands made me, and formed me; give thou understanding to me, that I learn thy behests.
74 They that dread thee shall see me, and they shall be glad; for I hoped more on thy words.
75 Lord, I knew, that thy dooms be equity; and in thy truth thou hast made me meek.
76 Thy mercy be made, that it comfort me; by thy speech to thy servant.
77 Thy merciful doings come to me, and I shall live; for thy law is my thinking.
78 They that be proud be shamed, for unjustly they did wickedness against me; but I shall be exercised in thy behests.
79 They that dread thee be turned to me; and they that know thy witnessings.
80 Mine heart be made unwemmed in thy justifiings; that I be not shamed.
81 [Caph.] My soul failed into thine health; and I hoped more in thy word.
82 Mine eyes failed into thy speech; saying, When shalt thou comfort me?

- 83 For I am made as a bouget [or bottle] in frost; I have not forgotten thy justifyingings.
84 How many be the days of thy servant; when thou shalt make doom of them that pursue me?
85 Wicked men told to me janglings; but not as thy law.
86 All thy commandments be truth; wicked men have pursued me, help thou me.
87 Almost they ended me in [the] earth; but I forsook not thy command-ments.
88 By thy mercy quicken thou me; and I shall keep the witnessings of thy mouth.
89 [Lamed.] Lord, thy word dwelleth in heaven; without end.
90 Thy truth dwelleth in generation, and into generation; thou hast founded the earth, and it dwelleth.
91 The day lasteth continually by thy ordinances; for all things serve to thee.
92 But for thy law was my thinking; then peradventure I had perished in my lowness.
93 Without end I shall not forget thy justifyingings; for in those [or them] thou hast quickened me.
94 I am thine, make thou me safe; for I have sought thy justifyingings.
95 Sinners abode me, for to lose me; I understood thy witnessings.
96 I saw the end of all end; thy commandment is full large.
97 [Mem.] Lord, how loved I [or I loved] thy law; all day it is my thinking.
98 Above mine enemies thou madest me prudent by thy commandment; for it is to me without end.
99 I understood over all men teaching me; for thy witnessings is my thinking.
100 I understood above eld [or old] men; for I sought thy commandments.
101 I forbade my feet from all evil way; that I keep thy words.
102 I bowed not from thy dooms; for thou hast set law to me.
103 Thy speeches be full sweet to my cheeks; above honey to my mouth.
104 I understood of thy behests; there-fore I hated all the ways of wickedness.
105 [Nun.] Thy word is a lantern to my feet; and a light to my paths.
106 I swore, and purposed steadfastly; to keep the dooms of thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness].
107 I am made low by all things; Lord, quicken thou me by thy word.
108 Lord, make thou well pleasing the willful things of my mouth; and teach thou me thy dooms.
109 My soul is ever[more] in mine hands; and I forgot not thy law.
110 Sinners setted a snare to me; and I erred not from thy commandments.
111 I purchased thy witnessings by heritage without end; for those [or they] be the full [out] joying of mine heart.
112 I bowed mine heart to do thy justifyingings without end; for reward.
113 [Samech.] I hated wicked men; and I loved thy law.
114 Thou art mine helper, and mine up-taker; and I hoped more in thy word.
115 Ye wicked men, bow away from me; and I shall seek the command-ments of my God.
116 Up-take thou me by thy word, and I shall live; and shame thou not me for mine abiding.
117 Help thou me, and I shall be safe; and I shall bethink ever[more] in thy justifyingings.
118 Thou hast forsaken all men going away from thy dooms; for the thought of them is unjust.
119 I areckoned all the sinners of earth to be breakers of the law; therefore I loved thy witnessings.
120 Nail thou my flesh with thy dread; for I dreaded of thy dooms.

121 [Ain.] I did doom and rightwise-ness; betake thou not me to them that falsely challenge me.

122 Take up thy servant into goodness; they that be proud challenge not me.

123 Mine eyes failed into thine health; and into the speech of thy rightful-ness [or rightwiseness].

124 Do thou with thy servant after thy mercy; and teach thou me thy justify-ings.

125 I am thy servant; give thou under-standing to me, that I know thy witnessings.

126 Lord, it is time to do; they have destroyed thy law.

127 Therefore I loved thy command-ments; more than gold and topaz.

128 Therefore I was dressed to all thy behests; I hated all wicked way.

129 [Pe.] Lord, thy witnessings be wonderful; therefore my soul sought those [or them].

130 Declaring of thy words lighteneth; and it giveth understanding to meek men.

131 I opened my mouth, and drew the spirit; for I desired thy commandments.

132 Behold thou on me, and have mercy on me; by the doom of them that love thy name.

133 Dress thou my goings by thy speech; that all unrightfulness have not lordship on me.

134 Again-buy thou me from the false challenges of men; that I keep thy behests.

135 Lighten thy face on thy servant; and teach thou me thy justifying.

136 Mine eyes led forth the outgoings of waters; for they kept not thy law.

137 [Tzaddi.] Lord, thou art just [or rightwise]; and thy doom is rightful [or right].

138 Thou hast commanded rightfulness [or rightwiseness], thy witnessings; and thy truth greatly to be kept.

139 My fervent love made me to be melted, either languished; for mine enemies forgot thy words.

140 Thy speech is set afire; and thy servant loved it.

141 I am young, and despised; I forgot not thy justifying.

142 Lord, thy rightfulness [or rightwise-ness] is rightfulness [or rightwiseness] without end; and thy law is truth.

143 Tribulation and anguish have found me; thy behests is my thinking.

144 Thy witnessings is equity without end; give thou understanding to me, and I shall live.

145 [Koph.] I cried in all mine heart, Lord, hear thou me; I shall seek thy justifying.

146 I cried to thee, make thou me safe; that I keep thy commandments.

147 I before came in ripeness, and I cried; I hoped above on thy words.

148 Mine eyes before came to thee full early; that I should bethink on thy speeches.

149 Lord, hear thou my voice by thy mercy; and quicken [or enliven] thou me by thy doom.

150 They that pursue me nighed to wickedness; forsooth they be made far from thy law.

151 Lord, thou art nigh; and all thy ways be truth.

152 In the beginning I knew of thy witnessings; for thou hast founded those [or them] without end.

153 [Resh.] See thou my meekness, and deliver thou me; for I forgot not thy law.

154 Deem thou my doom, and again-buy thou me; quicken thou me for thy speech.

155 Health is far from sinners; for they sought not thy justifying.

156 Lord, thy mercies be many; quicken thou me by thy doom.

157 They be many that pursue me, and do tribulation to me; I bowed not away from thy witnessings.

<sup>158</sup> I saw breakers of the law, and I was melted, either languished; for they kept not thy speeches.

<sup>159</sup> Lord, see thou, for I loved thy commandments; quicken thou me in thy mercy.

<sup>162</sup> I shall be glad on thy speeches; as he that findeth many spoils.

<sup>164</sup> I said praising to thee seven times in the day; on the dooms of thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>165</sup> Much peace is to them that love thy law; and no cause of stumbling is to them.

<sup>168</sup> I kept thy commandments, and thy witnessings; for all my ways be in thy sight.

<sup>169</sup> [Tau.] Lord, my beseeching come nigh in thy sight; by thy speech give thou understanding to me.

<sup>172</sup> My tongue shall pronounce thy speech; for why all thy command-ments be equity.

<sup>173</sup> Thine hand be made, that it save me; for I have chosen thy behests.

<sup>174</sup> Lord, I coveted thine health; and thy law is my thinking.

<sup>175</sup> My soul shall live, and it shall praise thee; and thy dooms shall help me.

<sup>176</sup> I erred as a sheep that perished; Lord, seek thy servant, for I forgot not thy commandments.

PSALM 120

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. When I was set in tribulation, I cried to the Lord; and he heard me.

<sup>3</sup> What shall be given to thee, either what shall be laid to thee; to a guileful [or treacherous] tongue?

<sup>5</sup> Alas to me! for my dwelling in an alien land is made long, I dwelled with men dwelling in Kedar;

<sup>6</sup> my soul was much time a come-ling. I was peaceable with them that hated peace;

<sup>7</sup> when I spake to them, they impugned, either against-said, me with-out cause.

PSALM 121

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. I raised mine eyes to the hills; from whence help shall come to me.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord keep thy going in and thy going out; from this time now and into the world.

PSALM 122

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees of David. I am glad in these things, that be said to me; We shall go into the house of the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> For the lineages, the lineages of the Lord, ascended [or went up] thither, the witnessing of Israel; to acknowl-edge to the name of the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> For they sat there on seats in doom; seats on the house of David.

<sup>6</sup> Pray ye those things, that be to the peace of Jerusalem; and abundance be to them that love thee.

<sup>7</sup> Peace be made in thy strength; and abundance in thy towers.

<sup>8</sup> For my brethren and my neigh-bours; I spake peace of thee.

<sup>9</sup> For the house of our Lord God; I sought goods to thee.

PSALM 123

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. To thee I have raised mine eyes; that dwellest in heavens.

<sup>2</sup> Lo! as the eyes of servants be in the hands of their lords. As the eyes of the handmaid be in the hands of her lady; so our eyes be to our Lord God, till he have mercy on us.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, have thou mercy on us, have thou mercy on us; for we be much filled with despising.

<sup>4</sup> For our soul is much filled; we be shame to them that be abundant with riches, and despising to proud men.

PSALM 124

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees of David. Israel say now, No but for the Lord was in us;

<sup>2</sup> no but for the Lord was in us. When men rose up against us;

<sup>3</sup> in hap they had swallowed us quick. When the strong vengeance of them was wroth against us;

<sup>4</sup> in hap water had swallowed us up. Our soul passed through a strand [or stream];

<sup>5</sup> in hap our soul had passed through a water unsufferable.

<sup>6</sup> Blessed be the Lord; that gave not us into taking [or catching] of the teeth of them.

<sup>7</sup> Our soul, as a sparrow, is delivered; from the snare of hunters. The snare is all-broken; and we be delivered.

<sup>8</sup> Our help is in the name of the Lord; that made heaven and earth.

PSALM 125

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. They that trust in the Lord be as the hill of Zion; he shall not be moved without end, that dwelleth in Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> Hills be in the compass of it, and the Lord is in the compass of his people; from this time now, and into the world.

<sup>3</sup> For the Lord shall not leave the rod of sinners on the part of just [or rightwise] men; that just men hold not forth their hands to wickedness.

<sup>5</sup> But the Lord shall lead them that bow into obligations, with them that work wickedness; peace be upon Israel.

PSALM 126

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. When the Lord turned the captivity of Zion; we were made as comforted.

<sup>2</sup> Then our mouth was filled with joy; and our tongue with full out joying. Then they shall say among heathen men; The Lord magnified to do with them.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord magnified to do with us; we be made glad.

<sup>4</sup> Lord, turn thou our captivity; as a strand [or stream] in the south.

<sup>6</sup> They going, went, and wept; sending their seeds. But they coming, shall come with full out joying; bearing their handfuls.

PSALM 127

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees of Solomon. No but or But if the Lord build the house; they that built it have travailed in vain. No but or But if the Lord keepeth the city; he waketh in vain that keepeth it.

<sup>2</sup> It is vain to you to rise before the light; rise ye after ye have set, that eat the bread of sorrow. When he shall give sleep to his loved;

<sup>3</sup> lo! the heritage of the Lord is sons, the meed is the fruit of [the] womb.

<sup>4</sup> As arrows be in the hand of the mighty; so the sons of them that be shaken out.

<sup>5</sup> Blessed is the man, that hath [full-]filled his desire of those [or them]; he shall not be shamed, when he shall speak to his enemies in the gate.

PSALM 128

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. Blessed be all men, that dread the Lord; that go in his ways.

<sup>2</sup> For thou shalt eat the travails of thine hands; thou art blessed, and it shall be well to thee.

<sup>4</sup> Lo! so a man shall be blessed; that dreadeth the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord bless thee from Zion; and see thou the goods of Jerusalem in all the days of thy life.

<sup>6</sup> And see thou the sons of thy sons; see thou peace on Israel.

PSALM 129

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. Israel say now; Oft they have fought against me from my youth.

<sup>2</sup> Oft they [have] fought against me from my youth; and soothly they might not to me

<sup>4</sup> The Lord is just [or rightwise], he shall beat the nolls of sinners;

<sup>6</sup> Be they made as the hay of housetops; that dried up, before that it be drawn up.

<sup>7</sup> Of which hay he that shall reap, shall not fill his hand; and he that shall gather handfuls, shall not fill his bosom.

<sup>8</sup> And they that passed forth said not, The blessing of the Lord be on you; we blessed you in the name of the Lord.

PSALM 130

<sup>5</sup> and, Lord, for thy law I abode thee. My soul sustained in his word;

<sup>6</sup> my soul hoped in the Lord. From the morrowtide keeping till to the night;
<sup>7</sup> Israel hope in the Lord. For why mercy is at the Lord; and plenteous redemption is at him.
<sup>8</sup> And he shall again-buy Israel; from all the wickednesses thereof.

PSALM 131

<sup>2</sup> If I feeled not meekly; but [I] en-hanced my soul. As a child weaned on his mother; so yielding be in my soul.
<sup>3</sup> Israel, hope in the Lord; from this time now and into the world.

PSALM 132

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. Lord, have thou mind on David; and of all his mildness.
<sup>2</sup> As he swore to the Lord; he made a vow to [the] God of Jacob.
<sup>3</sup> I shall not enter into the tabernacle of mine house; I shall not ascend [or go up] into the bed of my resting.
<sup>4</sup> I shall not give sleep to mine eyes; and napping to mine eyelids.
<sup>5</sup> And rest to my temples, till I find a place to the Lord; a tabernacle to [the] God of Jacob.
<sup>6</sup> Lo! we heard that the ark of the testament is in Ephratah [or we have heard of it in Ephratah]; we found it in the fields of the wood.
<sup>7</sup> We shall enter into the tabernacle of him; we shall worship in the place, where his feet stood.
<sup>10</sup> For David, thy servant; turn thou not away the face of thy christ.
<sup>11</sup> The Lord swore in truth to David, and he shall not make him [in] vain; Of the fruit of thy womb I shall set on thy seat.
<sup>12</sup> If thy sons shall keep my testament; and my witnessings, these which I shall teach them. And the sons of them till into the world; they shall set on thy seat.
<sup>13</sup> For the Lord chose Zion; he chose it into a dwelling to himself.
<sup>14</sup> This is my rest into the world of world; I shall dwell here, for I chose it.
<sup>15</sup> I blessing shall bless the widow of it; I shall [ful] fill with loaves the poor men of it.
<sup>16</sup> I shall clothe with health the priests thereof; and the holy men thereof shall make full out joy in full out joying or rejoicing.
<sup>17</sup> Thither I shall bring forth the horn of David; I [have] made ready a lantern to my christ.
<sup>18</sup> I shall clothe his enemies with shame; but mine hallowing shall flower out on him.

PSALM 133

<sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. Lo! how good and how merry it is; that brethren dwell together.
<sup>2</sup> As ointment in the head; that goeth down into the beard, into the beard of Aaron. That goeth down into the collar of his cloth;
<sup>3</sup> as the dew of Hermon, that goeth down into the hill of Zion. For there the Lord sent blessing; and life till into the world, that is, without end.

PSALM 134

- <sup>1</sup> The song of degrees. Lo! now bless ye the Lord; all the servants of the Lord. Ye that stand in the house of the Lord; in the halls or foreyards of the house of our God.
<sup>3</sup> The Lord bless thee from Zion; the which Lord made heaven and earth.

PSALM 135

- <sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Praise ye the name of the Lord; ye servants of the Lord, praise ye.
<sup>2</sup> Ye that stand in the house of the Lord; in the halls or foreyards of the house of our God.
<sup>4</sup> For the Lord chose Jacob to him-self; [and] Israel into possession to himself.
<sup>5</sup> For I have known, that the Lord is great; and our God before all gods.
<sup>6</sup> The Lord made all things, what-ever things he would, in heaven and in earth; in the sea, and in all depths of waters.
<sup>7</sup> He led out clouds from the farthest part of [the] earth; and made light-nings into rain. Which bringeth forth winds from his treasures [or treasures];
<sup>9</sup> He sent out signs and great wonders, in the middle of thee, thou Egypt; into Pharaoh, and into all his servants.
<sup>12</sup> And he gave the land of them heritage; to be heritage to Israel, his people.
<sup>13</sup> Lord, thy name is without end; Lord, thy memorial be in generation and into generation.
<sup>14</sup> For the Lord shall deem his people; and he shall be prayed in his servants.
<sup>16</sup> Those images have a mouth, and shall not speak; those [or they] have eyes, and shall not see.
<sup>17</sup> Those [or they] have ears, and shall not hear; for there is no spirit in the mouth of them.
<sup>18</sup> They that make those [things], be made like them; and all that trust in them.
<sup>19</sup> The house of Israel, bless ye the Lord; the house of Aaron, bless ye the Lord.
<sup>20</sup> The house of Levi, bless ye the Lord; ye that dread the Lord, bless ye the Lord.
<sup>21</sup> Blessed be the Lord of Zion; that dwelleth in Jerusalem.

PSALM 136

- <sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Acknowledge ye to the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy is without end.
<sup>5</sup> Which made heavens by under-standing.
<sup>8</sup> The sun into the power of the day.
<sup>9</sup> The moon and the stars into [the] power of the night.

14 And led out Israel through the midst thereof.
15 And he cast adown Pharaoh and his power, or virtue, in the Red Sea.
16 Which led over his people through [the] desert.
17 Which smote great kings.
18 And killed strong kings.
19 Sihon, the king of Amorites.
20 And Og, the king of Bashan.
21 And he gave the land of them to be heritage.
22 Heritage to Israel, his servant.
23 For in our lowness he had mind on us.
24 And he again-bought us from our enemies.
25 Which giveth meat to each flesh.
26 Acknowledge ye to the God of heaven. Acknowledge ye to the Lord of lords; for his mercy is without end.

PSALM 137

1 On the floods of Babylon, there we sat, and wept; while we bethought on Zion.
2 In sallows in the midst thereof; we hanged up our organs.
3 For they that led us prisoners; asked us there the words of songs. And they that led away us said; Sing ye to us an hymn of the songs of Zion.
4 How shall we sing a song of the Lord; in an alien land?
5 If I forget thee, Jerusalem; my right hand be given to forgetting.
6 My tongue cleave to my cheeks; if I bethink not on thee. If I purposed not of thee, Jerusalem; in the beginning of my gladness.
7 Lord, have thou mind on the sons of Edom; for the day of Jerusalem. Which say, Extinguish ye, extinguish ye; till to the fundament therein.
8 Thou wretched daughter of Bab-ylon; he is blessed, that yieldeth to thee thy yielding, which thou yieldest to us.
9 He is blessed, that shall hold; and hurtle down his little children at the stone.

PSALM 138

1 [The psalm of David.] Lord, I shall acknowledge to thee in all mine heart; for thou heardest the words of my mouth. My God, I shall sing to thee in the sight of angels;
2 I shall worship toward thine holy temple, and I shall acknowledge to thy name. On thy mercy and thy truth; for thou hast magnified thine holy name above all things.
3 In whatever day I shall inwardly call thee, hear thou me; thou shalt multiply virtue in my soul.
4 Lord, all the kings of earth acknowl-edge to thee; for they heard all the words of thy mouth.
5 And sing they in the ways of the Lord; for the glory of the Lord is great.
6 For the Lord is high, and behold-eth meek things; and knoweth afar high things.
7 If I shall go in the midst of tribu-lation, thou shalt quicken me; and thou stretchedest forth thine hand on the ire of mine enemies, and thy right hand made me safe.
8 The Lord shall yield for me, Lord, thy mercy is without end; despise thou not the works of thine hands.

PSALM 139

1 To victory, the psalm of David. Lord, thou hast proved me, and hast known me;
2 thou hast known my sitting, and my rising again. Thou hast understood my thoughts from [a] far;

<sup>3</sup> thou hast inquired of my path and my cord. And thou hast before-seen all my ways;

<sup>4</sup> for no word is in my tongue. Lo! Lord, thou hast known all things, <sup>5</sup> the new things and eld [or old]; thou hast formed me, and hast set thine hand on me.

<sup>6</sup> Thy knowing is made wonderful of me; it is comforted, and I shall not be able to it.

<sup>7</sup> Whither shall I go from thy spirit; and whither shall I flee from thy face?

<sup>8</sup> If I shall ascend [or go up] into heaven, thou art there; if I shall go down into hell, thou art present.

<sup>9</sup> If I shall take my feathers full early; and shall dwell in the last parts of the sea.

<sup>11</sup> And I said, In hap darknesses shall defoul me; and the night is my lightening in my delights.

<sup>12</sup> For why darknesses shall not be made dark from thee, and the night shall be lightened as the day; as the darknesses thereof, so and the light thereof.

<sup>13</sup> For thou haddest in possession my reins; thou tookest me up from the womb of my mother.

<sup>14</sup> I shall acknowledge to thee, for thou art magnified dreadfully; thy works be wonderful, and my soul shall know that full much.

<sup>15</sup> My bone, which thou madest in private, is not hid from thee; and my substance formed in the lower parts of [the] earth.

<sup>16</sup> Thine eyes saw mine unperfect thing, and all men shall be written in thy book; days shall be formed, and no man is in those [or them].

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth, God, thy friends be made honourable full much to me; the prince-hood of them is comforted full much.

<sup>18</sup> I shall number them, and they shall be multiplied above the gravel; I rose up, and yet I am with thee.

<sup>19</sup> For thou, God, shalt slay sinners; ye men-quellers, bow away from me.

<sup>21</sup> Lord, whether I hated not them that hated thee; and I failed, that is, mourned greatly, on thine enemies?

<sup>22</sup> By perfect hatred I hated them; they were made enemies to me.

<sup>23</sup> God, prove thou me, and know thou mine heart; ask thou me, and know thou my paths.

<sup>24</sup> And see thou, if way of wicked-ness is in me; and lead thou me forth in [the] everlasting way.

PSALM 140

<sup>4</sup> Lord, keep thou me from the hand of the sinner; and deliver thou me from wicked men. Which thought to deceive my goings;

<sup>5</sup> proud men hid a snare to me. And they laid forth cords into a snare; they setted a trap to me beside the way.

<sup>6</sup> I said to the Lord, Thou art my God; Lord, hear thou the voice of my beseeching.

<sup>8</sup> Lord, betake thou not me from my desire to the sinner; they thought against me, forsake thou not me, lest peradventure they be enhanced.

<sup>10</sup> Coals shall fall on them, thou shalt cast them down into fire; into wretchednesses where they shall not be able to stand.

<sup>11</sup> A man that is a great jangler shall not be dressed [or rightforth ruled] in earth; evils shall take an unjust man into perishing.

<sup>12</sup> I have known, that the Lord shall make doom of a needy man; and the vengeance of poor men.

<sup>13</sup> Nevertheless just [or rightwise] men shall acknowledge to thy name; and rightful [or right] men shall dwell with thy cheer.

PSALM 141

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. Lord, I cried to thee, hear thou me; give thou attention to my voice, when I shall cry to thee.

<sup>2</sup> My prayer be dressed as incense in thy sight; the raising up of mine hands be as the eventide sacrifice.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, set thou a keeping to my mouth; and a door of standing about to my lips.

<sup>4</sup> Bow thou not [down] mine heart into words of malice; to excuse excusings in sin. With men working wickedness; and I shall not commune with the chosen men of them.

<sup>5</sup> A just [or rightwise] man shall reprove me in mercy, and he shall blame me; but the oil of a sinner make not fat mine head. For why and yet my prayer is in the well pleasant [or well pleased] things of them;

<sup>6</sup> for the doomsmen of them joined to the stone were sopped up. Hear they my words, for they were mighty.

<sup>8</sup> Lord, Lord, for mine eyes be to thee, I hoped in thee; take thou not away my soul.

<sup>9</sup> Keep thou me from the snare which they ordained to me; and from the traps of them that work wickedness.

<sup>10</sup> Sinners shall fall in the net thereof; I am alone till I pass by.

PSALM 142

<sup>1</sup> The learning of David; his prayer; when he was in the den. With my voice I cried to the Lord; with my voice I prayed heartily to the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> I shedded [or poured] out my prayer in his sight; and I pronounced my tribulation before him.

<sup>3</sup> While my spirit faileth of me; and thou hast known my paths. In this way in which I went; proud men hid a snare to me.

<sup>4</sup> I beheld to the right side, and I saw; and none there was that knew me. Flight perished from me; and none there is that seeketh to help my soul.

<sup>5</sup> Lord, I cried to thee; I said, Thou art mine hope; my part in the land of livers.

<sup>6</sup> Give thou attention to my beseech-ing; for I am made low full greatly. Deliver thou me from them that pur-sue me; for they be comforted on or over me.

<sup>7</sup> Lead my soul out of keeping to acknowledge to thy name; just [or rightwise] men abide me, till thou yield to me.

PSALM 143

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. Lord, hear thou my prayer, with ears perceive thou my beseeching; in thy truth hear thou me, in thy rightwiseness.

<sup>2</sup> And enter thou not into doom with thy servant; for each man living shall not be made just [or justified] in thy sight.

<sup>3</sup> For the enemy pursued my soul; he made low my life in [the] earth. He hath set me in dark places, as the dead men of the world, <sup>4</sup> and my spirit was anguished on me; mine heart was troubled in me.

<sup>5</sup> I was mindful of eld [or old] days, I bethought in all thy works; I be-thought in the deeds of thine hands.

<sup>6</sup> I held forth mine hands to thee; my soul was as earth without water to thee.

<sup>7</sup> Lord, hear thou me swiftly; my spirit failed. Turn thou not away thy face from me; and I shall be like them that go down into the pit.

<sup>8</sup> Make thou early thy mercy heard to me; for I hoped in thee. Make thou known to me the way in which I shall go; for I raised my soul to thee.

<sup>9</sup> Deliver thou me from mine enemies; Lord, I fled to thee;

<sup>10</sup> teach thou me to do thy will, for thou art my God. Thy good spirit shall lead me forth into a rightful [or right] land;

<sup>11</sup> Lord, for thy name thou shalt quicken me in thine equity. Thou shalt lead my soul out of tribulation;

<sup>12</sup> and in thy mercy thou shalt scatter mine enemies. And thou shalt lose all them, that trouble my soul; for I am thy servant.

PSALM 144

<sup>1</sup> A psalm of David. Blessed be my Lord God, that teacheth mine hands to war; and my fingers to battle.

<sup>2</sup> My mercy, and my refuge; my taker-up, and my deliverer. My defender, and I hoped in him; and thou makest subject my people under me.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, what is a man, for thou hast made thyself known to him; either the son of man, for thou areckonest him of some value?

<sup>5</sup> Lord, bow down thine heavens, and come thou down; touch thou [the] hills, and they shall make smoke.

<sup>6</sup> Light thou shining, and thou shalt scatter them; send thou out thine arrows, and thou shalt trouble them.

<sup>7</sup> Send out thine hand from on high, ravish me out, and deliver thou me from many waters; and from the hand of alien sons.

<sup>8</sup> The mouth of whom spake vanity; and the right hand of them is the right hand of wickedness.

<sup>9</sup> God, I shall sing to thee a new song; I shall say psalm to thee in psaltery of ten strings.

<sup>10</sup> Which givest health to kings, which again-boughtest David, thy servant; from the wicked sword ravish thou out me.

<sup>11</sup> And deliver thou me from the hand of alien sons; the mouth of which spake vanity, and the right hand of them is the right hand of wickedness.

<sup>12</sup> Whose sons be as new plantings in their youth. The daughters of them be arrayed; adorned about as the likeness of a temple.

<sup>14</sup> their kine be fat. There is no falling of their wall, neither passing over of it; neither cry is in the streets of them.

<sup>15</sup> They said, The people is blessed, that hath these things; blessed is the people, whose Lord is the God of it.

PSALM 145

<sup>1</sup> The psalm of David. My God, king, I shall enhance thee; and I shall bless thy name into the world, and into the world of world.

<sup>2</sup> By all days I shall bless thee; and I shall praise thy name into the world, and into the world of the world.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord is great, and worthy to be praised full much; and none end there is of his greatness.

<sup>5</sup> They shall speak of the magnifi-cence of the glory of thine holiness; and they shall tell of all thy marvels.

<sup>6</sup> And they shall say of the strength of thy fearedful things; and they shall tell of thy greatness.

<sup>12</sup> That they make thy power known to the sons of men; and the glory of the magnificence of thy realm.

<sup>13</sup> Thy realm is the realm of all worlds; and thy lordship is in all generation and into generation. The Lord is faithful in all his words; and holy in all his works.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord lifteth up all that fall down; and raiseth up all men hurtled down.

<sup>15</sup> Lord, the eyes of all beasts hope in thee; and thou givest the meat of them in covenable time.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord is just [or rightwise] in all his ways; and holy in all his works.

<sup>18</sup> The Lord is nigh to all that inward-ly call him; to all that inwardly call him in truth.

<sup>19</sup> He shall do the will of them, that dread him; and he shall hear the beseeching of them, and he shall make them safe.

<sup>20</sup> The Lord keepeth all men loving him; and he shall lose all sinners.

<sup>21</sup> My mouth shall speak the praising of the Lord; and each man bless his holy name into the world, and into the world of world.

PSALM 146

<sup>2</sup> I shall praise the Lord in my life; I shall sing to my God as long as I shall be.

<sup>3</sup> Do not ye trust in princes; neither in the sons of men, in whom is no health.

<sup>4</sup> The spirit of him shall go out, and he shall turn again into his earth; in that day all the thoughts of them shall perish.

<sup>5</sup> He is blessed, of whom the God of Jacob is his helper; his hope is in his Lord God,

<sup>6</sup> that made heaven, and earth; the sea, and all things that be in those [or them]. Which keepeth truth into the world,

<sup>7</sup> he maketh doom to them that suffer wrong; he giveth meat to them that be hungry. The Lord unbindeth fettered men;

<sup>8</sup> the Lord lighteneth blind men. The Lord raiseth men hurled or hurtled down; the Lord loveth just men.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord keepeth comelings; he shall take up a motherless child, and a widow; and he shall destroy the ways of sinners.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord shall reign into the worlds; Zion, thy God shall reign in generation and into generation.

PSALM 147

<sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Praise ye the Lord, for the psalm is good; let our praising be merry, and fair to our God.

<sup>3</sup> The which Lord maketh whole men contrite in heart; and bindeth together the sorrows of them.

<sup>4</sup> Which numbereth the multitude of stars; and calleth names to all those [or them].

<sup>6</sup> The Lord taketh up mild men; forsooth he maketh low sinners till to the earth.

<sup>7</sup> Before sing ye to the Lord in acknowledging; say ye psalm to our God in an harp.

<sup>8</sup> Which covereth heaven with clouds; and maketh ready rain to the earth. Which bringeth forth hay in hills; and herb to the service of men.

<sup>9</sup> Which giveth meat to their work beasts; and to the birds of crows calling him.

<sup>10</sup> He shall not have will in the strength of an horse; neither it shall be well pleasant [or well pleased] to him in the legs of a man.

<sup>11</sup> It is well pleasant [or well pleased] to the Lord on men that dread him; and in them that hope in his mercy.

<sup>13</sup> For he hath comforted the locks of thy gates; he hath blessed thy sons in thee.

<sup>17</sup> He sendeth his crystal as morsels; who shall be able to suffer before the face of his coldness?

<sup>18</sup> He shall send out his word, and shall melt those [or them]; his spirit shall blow, and waters shall flow.

<sup>20</sup> He did not so to each nation; and he showed not his dooms to them.

PSALM 148

<sup>5</sup> praise they the name of the Lord. For he said, and things were made; he commanded, and things were made of nought.

<sup>6</sup> He ordained those things into the world, and into the world of world; he setted a commandment, and it shall not pass.

<sup>11</sup> The kings of earth, and all peoples; the princes, and all judges of earth.

<sup>13</sup> praise the name of the Lord; for the name of him alone is enhanced. His acknowledging be on heaven and earth;

<sup>14</sup> and he hath enhanced the horn of his people. An hymn be to all his saints; to the children of Israel, to a people nighing to him.

PSALM 149

- <sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Sing ye to the Lord a new song; his praising be in the church of saints.
<sup>2</sup> Israel be glad in him that made him; and the daughters of Zion make full out joy in their king.
<sup>3</sup> Praise they his name in a quire or choir; say they psalm to him in a tympan, and psaltery.
<sup>4</sup> For the Lord is well pleased in his people; and he hath raised mild men into health.
<sup>6</sup> The full out joyings of God in the throat of them; and swords sharp on both sides in the hands of them.
<sup>8</sup> To bind the kings of them in stocks; and the noble men of them in iron manacles.
<sup>9</sup> That they make in them the doom written; this is the glory to all his saints.

PSALM 150

- <sup>1</sup> Alleluia. Praise ye the Lord in his saints; praise ye him in the firmament of his virtue.

PROVERBS

- <sup>1</sup> The parables of Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel;
<sup>2</sup> to know wisdom and knowing; to understand the words of prudence;
<sup>3</sup> and to take the learning of teach-ing; to take rightfulness [or rightwise-ness], and doom, and equity;
<sup>4</sup> that fellness, or wariness, be given to little children, and knowing and understanding to a young waxing man.
<sup>6</sup> He shall perceive a parable, and the expounding; the words of wise men, and the dark figurative speeches of them.
<sup>7</sup> The dread of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; fools despise wisdom and teaching.
<sup>8</sup> My son, hear thou the teaching of thy father, and forsake thou not the law of thy mother;
<sup>9</sup> that grace be added, either increased, to thine head, and a bie to thy neck.
<sup>10</sup> My son, if sinners flatter thee, assent thou not to them.
<sup>11</sup> If they say, Come thou with us, set we ambush to shed blood, hide we snares of deceits against an innocent without cause;
<sup>12</sup> swallow we him, as hell swallow-eth a man living; and all-whole, as going down into a pit;
<sup>13</sup> we shall find all precious chattel [or substance], we shall fill our houses with spoils;
<sup>14</sup> put thou lot with us, one purse be there of us all;
<sup>15</sup> my son, go thou not with them; forbid thy foot from the paths of them.
<sup>16</sup> For the feet of them run to evil; and they hasten to shed out blood.
<sup>17</sup> But a net is laid in vain before the eyes of birds, that have wings.
<sup>18</sup> Also they set ambush against their own blood; and make ready frauds, or guiles, against their own souls.
<sup>19</sup> So the paths of each avaricious man ravish, or take away, the souls of them that wield.
<sup>21</sup> It crieth oft in the head of companies; in the leaves of [the] gates of the city it bringeth forth his words, and saith,
<sup>22</sup> How long, little men in wit, love young childhood, and fools shall covet those things, that be harmful to themselves, and unprudent men shall hate knowing?
<sup>23</sup> Be ye converted at my reprov-ing; lo, I shall bring forth to you my spirit, and I shall show my words.
<sup>24</sup> For I called, and ye forsook; I held forth mine hand, and none there was that beheld.
<sup>25</sup> Ye have despised all my counsel; and charged not my blamings.
<sup>26</sup> And I shall laugh in your perishing; and I shall scorn you, when that, that ye dread, cometh to you.
<sup>27</sup> When sudden wretchedness falleth in, and perishing befalleth as tempest; when tribulation and anguish cometh on you.
<sup>28</sup> Then they shall call me, and I shall not hear; they shall rise early, and they shall not find me.
<sup>29</sup> For they hated teaching, and they took not the dread of the Lord, <sup>30</sup> neither they assented to my counsel, and they depraved all mine amending.

<sup>32</sup> The turning away of little men in wit shall slay them; and the prosperity of fools shall lose them.

<sup>33</sup> But he that heareth me, shall rest without dread; and he shall use abundance, when the dread of evils is taken away.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> My son, if thou receivest my words, and hidest my behests with thee;

<sup>3</sup> For if thou inwardly callest wisdom, and bowest thine heart to prudence;

<sup>4</sup> if thou seekest it as money, and diggest it out as treasures;

<sup>5</sup> then thou shalt understand the dread of the Lord, and shalt find the knowing of God.

<sup>7</sup> He shall keep the health of rightful [or rightwise] men, and he shall defend them that go simply.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall keep the paths of rightwiseness, and he shall keep the ways of holy men.

<sup>9</sup> Then thou shalt understand rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and doom, and equity, and each good path.

<sup>10</sup> If wisdom entereth into thine heart, and knowing pleaseth thy soul,

<sup>12</sup> that thou be delivered from an evil way, and from a man that speaketh wayward things.

<sup>14</sup> which be glad, when they have done evil, and make full out joy in worst things;

<sup>16</sup> That thou be delivered from an alien woman, and from a strange woman, that maketh soft her words;

<sup>17</sup> and forsaketh the duke of her time of marriage, and hath forgotten the covenant of her God.

<sup>19</sup> All that enter to her, shall not turn again, neither they shall catch the paths of life.

<sup>20</sup> That thou go in a good way, and keep the paths of just [or rightwise] men.

<sup>22</sup> But unfaithful men shall be lost from the land; and they that do wickedly, shall be taken away from it.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> My son, forget thou not my law; and thine heart keep my command-ments.

<sup>2</sup> For they shall set to thee the length of days, and the years of life, and peace.

<sup>3</sup> Mercy and truth forsake thee not; bind thou those to thy throat, and write them in the tables of thine heart.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt find grace, and good teaching before God and men.

<sup>5</sup> Have thou trust in the Lord, of all thine heart; and lean thou not to thy prudence.

<sup>6</sup> In all thy ways think on him, and he shall dress thy goings.

<sup>9</sup> Honour thou the Lord of thy chattel [or substance], and of the best of all thy fruits give thou to poor men;

<sup>10</sup> and thy barns shall be filled with abundance, and thy pressers [or presses] shall flow with wine.

<sup>11</sup> My son, cast thou not away the teaching of the Lord; and fail thou not, when thou art chastised of him.

<sup>12</sup> For the Lord chastiseth him, whom he loveth; and as a father in the son he pleaseth him.

<sup>14</sup> The getting thereof is better than the merchandise [or chaffering] of gold and of silver; the fruits thereof be the first and the cleanest.

<sup>15</sup> It is more precious than all riches; and all things that be desired, may not be comparised to this.

<sup>18</sup> It is a tree of life to them that take it; and he that holdeth it, is blessed.

<sup>19</sup> The Lord founded the earth by wisdom; he stablished heavens by prudence.

<sup>21</sup> My son, these things float not away [or not flow away] from thine eyes; keep thou my law, and my counsel;

<sup>22</sup> and life shall be to thy soul, and grace to thy cheeks.

<sup>24</sup> If thou shalt sleep, thou shalt not dread; thou shalt rest, and thy sleep shall be soft [or and sweet shall be thy sleep].

<sup>25</sup> Dread thou not of sudden fear, and the powers of wicked men falling in on thee.

<sup>26</sup> For the Lord shall be at thy side; and he shall keep thy foot, that thou be not taken.

<sup>27</sup> Do not thou forbid to do well him that may; if thou mayest, also do thou well.

<sup>28</sup> Say thou not to thy friend, Go, and turn again, and tomorrow I shall give to thee; when thou mayest give anon.

<sup>29</sup> Imagine thou not evil to thy friend, when he hath trust in thee.

<sup>30</sup> Strive thou not against a man without cause, when he doeth none evil to thee.

<sup>31</sup> Pursue thou not an unjust [or unrightwise] man, pursue [or follow] thou not his ways.

<sup>33</sup> Neediness is sent of the Lord in the house of a wicked man; but the dwelling places of just [or rightwise] men shall be blessed.

<sup>34</sup> He shall scorn [the] scorers; and he shall give grace to mild men.

<sup>35</sup> Wise men shall have glory; [the] enhancing of fools is shame.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Sons, hear ye the teaching of your father; and perceive ye, that ye know prudence.

<sup>3</sup> For why and I was the son of my father, a tender son, and one begotten, before my mother.

<sup>4</sup> And my father taught me, and said, Thine heart receive my words; keep thou my behests, and thou shalt live.

<sup>5</sup> Wield thou wisdom, wield thou prudence; forget thou not, neither bow thou away from the words of my mouth.

<sup>6</sup> Forsake thou not it, and it shall keep thee; love thou it, and it shall keep thee.

<sup>8</sup> Take thou it, and it shall enhance thee; thou shalt be glorified of it, when thou hast embraced it.

<sup>10</sup> My son, hear thou, and take my words; that the years of life be multiplied to thee.

<sup>11</sup> I shall show to thee the way of wisdom; and I shall lead thee by the paths of equity.

<sup>12</sup> Into which when thou hast entered, thy goings shall not be made strait; and thou shalt run, and shalt not have hurting.

<sup>13</sup> Hold thou teaching, and forsake [thou] it not; keep thou it, for it is thy life.

<sup>14</sup> Delight thou not in the paths of wicked men; and the way of evil men please not thee.

<sup>15</sup> Flee thou from it, and pass thou not thereby; bow thou away, and forsake it.

<sup>16</sup> For they sleep not, no but they have done evil; and sleep is ravished from them, no but they have deceived simple men.

<sup>18</sup> But the path of just [or rightwise] men goeth forth as light shining, and increaseth till to [a] perfect day.

<sup>20</sup> My son, hearken thou to my words; and bow down thine ears to my speeches.

<sup>21</sup> Go not they away from thine eyes; keep thou them in the middle of thine heart.

<sup>22</sup> For those be life to men finding those, and health of all flesh.

<sup>26</sup> Address thou [the] paths to thy feet, and all thy ways shall be stablished.

<sup>27</sup> Bow thou not to the right side, neither to the left side; turn away thy foot from evil.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> My son, perceive thou my wisdom, and bow down thine ear to my prudence;

<sup>4</sup> but the last things [of her]be bitter as wormwood, and her tongue is sharp as a sword carving, or cutting, on each side.

<sup>5</sup> Her feet go down into death; and her steps pierce to hells [or to hell].

<sup>6</sup> Those [or they] go not by the path of life; her steps be uncertain, and may not be sought out.

<sup>7</sup> Now therefore, my son, hear thou me, and go thou not away from the words of my mouth.

<sup>8</sup> Make far thy way from her, and nigh thou not to the doors of her house.

<sup>9</sup> Give thou not thine honour to aliens, and thy years to the cruel;

<sup>10</sup> lest peradventure strangers be filled with thy strengths, and lest thy travails be in an alien's house;

<sup>11</sup> and thou bewail in the last days, when thou hast wasted thy flesh, and thy body;

<sup>12</sup> and say, Why loathed I teaching, and mine heart assented not to blamings;

<sup>13</sup> neither I heard the voice of men teaching me, and I bowed not down mine ear to masters?

<sup>14</sup> Almost I was in all-evil, in the midst of the church, and of the synagogue.

<sup>17</sup> Have thou alone them [or them alone]; and aliens be not thy partners.

<sup>18</sup> Thy vein be blessed; and be thou glad with the woman of thy young waxing age.

<sup>19</sup> An hind most dearworthy; and an hart calf most acceptable. Her teats fill thee in all time; and delight thou continually in the love of her.

<sup>20</sup> My son, why art thou deceived of an alien woman; and art fostered in the bosom of another?

<sup>22</sup> The wickednesses of a wicked man take him; and he is bound with the ropes of his sins.

<sup>23</sup> He shall die, for he had not learning, and he shall be deceived in the muchliness of his folly.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> My son, if thou hast promised for thy friend, thou hast fastened thine hand at a stranger.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore, my son, do thou that that I say, and deliver thyself; for thou hast fallen into the hand of thy neighbour. Run thou about, haste thou, raise thy friend;

<sup>5</sup> Be thou ravished, as a doe from the hand; and as a bird from [the] ambushings of the fowler.

<sup>6</sup> O! thou slow man, go to the ant; and behold thou his ways, and learn thou wisdom.

<sup>8</sup> maketh ready in summer meat to himself, and gathereth together in harvest that, that he shall eat.

<sup>9</sup> How long shalt thou, slow man, sleep? when shalt thou rise from thy sleep?

<sup>10</sup> A little thou shalt sleep, a little thou shalt nap; a little thou shalt join together thine hands that thou sleep.

<sup>11</sup> And then neediness, as a way-goer, shall come to thee; and poverty, as an armed man. Forsooth if thou art not slow, thy ripe corn shall come as a well; and neediness shall flee far from thee.

<sup>13</sup> he beckoneth with eyes, he trampeth with the foot, he speaketh with the finger,

<sup>14</sup> by shrewd heart he imagineth evil, and in all time he soweth dissensions.

<sup>15</sup> His perdition shall come to him anon, and he shall be broken suddenly; and he shall no more have medicine.

<sup>16</sup> Six things there be, which the Lord hateth; and his soul curseth the seventh thing.

<sup>17</sup> High eyes, a tongue liar, that is, accustomable to deadly leasing, hands shedding out innocent blood,

<sup>18</sup> an heart imagining full wicked thoughts, feet swift to run into evil,

<sup>20</sup> My son, keep the commandments of thy father; and forsake [thou] not the law of thy mother.

<sup>22</sup> When thou goest, go they with thee; when thou sleepest, keep they thee; and thou waking, speak with them.

<sup>23</sup> For the commandment of God is a lantern, and the law is light, and the blaming of teaching is the way of life;

<sup>24</sup> that they keep thee from an evil woman, and from a flattering tongue of a strange woman.

<sup>26</sup> For the price of a whore is scarcely a gobbet of bread; but such a woman taketh the precious soul of a man.

<sup>27</sup> Whether a man may hide fire in his bosom, that his clothes burn not;

<sup>29</sup> So he that entereth to the wife of his neighbour; shall not be clean, when he hath touched her.

<sup>30</sup> It is no great sin, when a man stealeth; for he stealeth to fill an hungry soul.

<sup>31</sup> And he taken shall yield the seventhfold; and he shall give all the chattel [or substance] of his house, and shall deliver himself.

<sup>32</sup> But he that is an adulterer, shall lose his soul, for the poverty of heart, that is, wanting of reason.

<sup>33</sup> He gathereth filth, and scandal to himself; and his shame shall not be done away.

<sup>34</sup> For the fervent love and strong vengeance of the man shall not spare in the day of vengeance, <sup>35</sup> neither shall assent to the prayers of any; neither he shall take many gifts for ransom.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> My son, keep thou my words; and keep my behests to thee.

<sup>2</sup> Keep thou my behests, and thou shalt live; and my law, as the apple of thine eye.

<sup>3</sup> Bind thou it in thy fingers; write thou it in the tables of thine heart.

<sup>4</sup> Say thou to wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call thou prudence thy love.

<sup>5</sup> That it keep thee from a strange woman; and from an alien woman, that maketh her words sweet.

<sup>6</sup> For she saith, For why from the window of mine house, by the lattice, I beheld;

<sup>7</sup> and I see little children, that is, fools that have little wit. I behold a young man coward [or the sorry-hearted young man],

<sup>8</sup> that passeth by [or through] the streets, beside the corner; and he goeth nigh the way of her house,

<sup>9</sup> in dark time, when the day draweth to night, in the darkness and mist in the night.

<sup>10</sup> And lo! a woman, made ready with ornament of an whore to deceive souls, meeteth him,

<sup>11</sup> and she is a jangler, and going about, and impatient of rest, and may not stand in the house with her feet;

<sup>12</sup> and now withoutforth, now in [the] streets, now beside [the] corners, she ambusheth.

<sup>13</sup> And she taketh, and kisseth the young man; and flattereth with wooing cheer, that is, unrestfully, and without shame, and saith,

<sup>14</sup> I owed sacrifices for health; today I have yielded my vows.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore I went out into thy meeting, and I desired to see thee; and I have found thee.

<sup>16</sup> I have made my bed with cords, I have arrayed it with tapets painted [or with painted tapets] of Egypt;

<sup>18</sup> Come thou, be we filled with touching of teats, and use we embracings that be coveted; till the day begin to be clear.

<sup>19</sup> For mine husband is not in his house; he is gone a full long way.

<sup>20</sup> He took with him a bag of money; he shall turn again into his house in the day of [the] full moon.

<sup>21</sup> She bound him with many words; and she drew forth him with flatterings of lips.

<sup>22</sup> Anon he as an ox led to slain sacrifice pursueth [or followeth] her, and as a jolly lamb and unknowing; and the fool knoweth not, that he is drawn to bonds,

<sup>23</sup> till an arrow pierce his maw. As if a bird hasteth to the snare; and knoweth not, that it is done of the peril of his life.

<sup>24</sup> Now therefore, my son, hear thou me; and perceive the words of my mouth.

<sup>25</sup> Lest thy soul be drawn away in the ways of her; neither be thou deceived in the paths of her.

<sup>26</sup> For she hath cast down many wounded men; and all [the] strongest men were slain of her.

<sup>27</sup> The ways of hell is her house; and pierce into the inner things of death.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>3</sup> and it standeth beside the gates of the city, in those enclosings, and speaketh, and saith,

<sup>4</sup> A! ye men, I cry oft to you; and my voice is to the sons of men.

<sup>7</sup> My throat shall bethink truth; and my lips shall curse a wicked man.

<sup>9</sup> They be rightful [or right] to them that understand; and they be even to them that find knowing.

<sup>10</sup> Take ye my chastising [or my discipline], and not money; choose ye teaching, more than treasure.

<sup>11</sup> For wisdom is better than all riches most precious; and all desirable thing may not be comparisoned thereto.

<sup>12</sup> I, wisdom, dwell in counsel; and I am among learned thoughts.

<sup>13</sup> The dread of the Lord hateth evil; I curse boast, and pride, and a shrewd way, and a double-tongued mouth.

<sup>16</sup> Princes command by me; and mighty men deem rightfulness [or rightwiseness] by me.

<sup>17</sup> I love them that love me; and they that wake early to me, shall find me.

<sup>18</sup> With me be riches, and glory; sovereign riches, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>19</sup> My fruit is better than gold, and precious stone; and my seeds [or my burgeonings] be better than chosen silver.

<sup>20</sup> I go in the ways of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], in the midst of the paths of doom;

<sup>21</sup> that I make rich them that love me, and that I fill their treasures or their treasuries.

<sup>22</sup> The Lord wielded me in the beginning of his ways; before that he made anything, at the beginning.

<sup>23</sup> From without beginning I was ordained; and from eld [or old] times, before that the earth was made.

<sup>24</sup> [The] Depths of waters were not yet; and I was conceived then. The wells of waters had not broken out yet, <sup>25</sup> and hills stood not altogether yet by firm heaviness; before little hills I was born.

<sup>26</sup> Yet he had not made [the] earth; and floods, and the earths of the world.

<sup>27</sup> When he made ready heavens, I was present; when he compassed [or enclosed] the depths of waters by certain law and compass.

<sup>29</sup> When he compassed to the sea his mark; and setted [or put] law to waters, that they should not pass their coasts. When he weighed the foundations of [the] earth;

<sup>30</sup> I was making all things with him. And I delighted by all days, and played before him in all time,

<sup>31</sup> and I played in the world; and my delights be to be with the sons of men.

<sup>32</sup> Now, therefore, sons, hear ye me; blessed be they that keep my ways.

<sup>33</sup> Hear ye teaching, and be ye wise men; and do not ye cast it away.

<sup>34</sup> Blessed is the man that heareth me, and that watcheth at my gates all day; and keepeth [or waiteth] at the posts of my door[s].

<sup>35</sup> He that findeth me, shall find life; and he shall draw health of the Lord.

<sup>36</sup> But he that sinneth against me shall hurt his soul; all that hate me, love death.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> Wisdom builded an house to himself; he hewed out seven pillars, <sup>2</sup> he offered his slain sacrifices, he meddled [or mingled] wine, and setted [or set] forth his table.

<sup>3</sup> He sent his handmaids, that they should call to the tower; and to the walls of the city.

<sup>4</sup> If any man is little in wit, come he to me. And wisdom spake to unwise men, <sup>5</sup> Come ye, eat ye my bread; and drink ye the wine, which I have meddled [or mingled] to you.

<sup>6</sup> Forsake ye young childhood, and live ye; and go ye by the way of prudence.

<sup>7</sup> He that teacheth a scorner, doeth wrong to himself; and he that reproveth a wicked man, engendereth a wem to himself.

<sup>8</sup> Do not thou reprove a scorner; lest he hate thee. Reprove thou a wise man; and he shall love thee.

<sup>9</sup> Give thou occasion to a wise man; and wisdom shall be increased to him. Teach thou a just [or rightwise] man; and he shall hasten to take it.

<sup>10</sup> The beginning of wisdom is the dread of the Lord; and prudence is the knowing of saints.

<sup>11</sup> For thy days shall be multiplied by me; and [the] years of life shall be increased to thee.

<sup>12</sup> If thou art wise, thou shalt be wise to thyself, and to thy neighbours. Forsooth if thou art a scorner, thou alone shalt bear evil.

<sup>13</sup> A fond [or foolish] woman, and full of cry, and full of unleaveful lusts, and that knoweth nothing utterly,

<sup>14</sup> sitteth in the doors of her house, on a seat, in an high place of the city;

<sup>16</sup> Who is a little man in wit; bow he to me. And she spake to a coward [or to the sorry-hearted],

<sup>17</sup> Waters of theft be sweeter, and bread hid is sweeter. [Stolen waters be sweeter, and hid bread more sweet.]

<sup>18</sup> And [he] knew not that giants be there; and the guests of her be in the depths of hell. Soothly he that shall be applied, either fastened, to her, shall go down to hells [or shall fall down into hell]. For why he that goeth away from her shall be saved.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>3</sup> The Lord shall not torment the soul of a just [or rightwise] man with hunger; and he shall destroy the treasons of unpius men.

<sup>4</sup> A slow hand hath wrought needi-ness; but the hand of strong men maketh ready riches. Forsooth he that enforceth or endeavoureth to get any-thing by leasings, feedeth the winds; soothly the same man pursueth birds flying [or followeth flying birds].

<sup>5</sup> He that gathereth together in harvest, is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in summer, is a son of confusion.

<sup>6</sup> The blessing of God is over the head of a just [or rightwise] man; but wickedness covereth the mouth of wicked men.

<sup>7</sup> The mind or memory of a just [or rightwise] man shall be with praisings; and the name of wicked men shall wax rotten.

<sup>9</sup> He that goeth simply, goeth trustily; but he that maketh shrewd his ways, shall be [made] open.

<sup>10</sup> He that beckoneth with the eye, shall give sorrow; a fool shall be beaten with his own lips.

<sup>11</sup> The vein of life is the mouth of a just [or rightwise] man; but the mouth of wicked men covereth wickedness.

<sup>13</sup> Wisdom is found in the lips of a wise man; and a rod in the back of him that is needy of heart.

<sup>15</sup> The chattel [or substance] of a rich man is the city of his strength; the dread of poor men is the neediness of them.

<sup>16</sup> The work of a just [or rightwise] man is to life; but the fruit of a wicked man is to sin.

<sup>17</sup> The way of life is to him that keepeth chastising [or discipline]; but he that forsaketh blamings, erreth.

<sup>19</sup> Sin shall not fail in much speaking; but he that measureth his lips, is most prudent.

<sup>20</sup> Chosen silver is the tongue of a just [or rightwise] man; the heart of wicked men is for nought.

<sup>21</sup> The lips of a just [or rightwise] man teach full many men; but they that be unlearned shall die in neediness of heart.

<sup>22</sup> The blessing of the Lord maketh rich men; and torment shall not be fellowshiped to them.

<sup>23</sup> A fool worketh wickedness as by laughing; but wisdom is prudence to a man or but prudence is to a wise man.

<sup>24</sup> That that a wicked man dreadeth, shall come [up] on him; the desire of just [or rightwise] men shall be given to them.

<sup>25</sup> As a tempest passing, a wicked man shall not be; but a just [or rightwise] man shall be as an ever-lasting foundation.

<sup>26</sup> As vinegar annoyeth the teeth, and smoke the eyes; so a slow man annoyeth them that sent him in the way.

<sup>27</sup> The dread of the Lord increaseth days; and the years of wicked men shall be made short.

<sup>28</sup> Abiding of just [or rightwise] men is gladness; but the hope of wicked men shall perish.

<sup>29</sup> The strength of a simple man is the way of the Lord; and dread to them that work evil.

<sup>30</sup> A just [or rightwise] man shall not be moved without end; but wicked men shall not dwell on the earth.

<sup>31</sup> The mouth of a just [or rightwise] man shall bring forth wisdom; the tongue of shrews shall perish.

<sup>32</sup> The lips of a just [or rightwise] man behold pleasant things; and the mouth of wicked men beholdeth wayward [or perverted] things.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>2</sup> Where pride is, there also despising shall be; but where meekness is, there also is wisdom.

<sup>4</sup> Riches shall not profit in the day of vengeance; but righteousness [or rightwiseness] shall deliver from death.

<sup>7</sup> When a wicked man is dead, none hope shall be further of him; and [the] abiding of busy men in evil shall perish.

<sup>8</sup> A just [or rightwise] man is delivered from anguish; and a wicked man shall be given for him.

<sup>9</sup> A feigner by mouth deceiveth his friend; but just [or rightwise] men shall be delivered by [or with] knowing.

<sup>10</sup> A city shall be enhanced in the goods of just [or rightwise] men; and praising shall be in the perdition of wicked men.

<sup>11</sup> A city shall be enhanced by [the] blessing of just [or rightwise] men; and it shall be destroyed by the mouth of wicked men.

<sup>12</sup> He that despiseth his friend, is needy in heart; but a prudent man shall be still.

<sup>13</sup> He that goeth guilefully, sheweth privates; but he that is faithful, covereth the private matter of a friend.

<sup>15</sup> He that maketh faith, that is, obligation, for a stranger, shall be tormented with evil; but he that escheweth snares, shall be secure.

<sup>17</sup> A merciful man doeth well to his soul; but he that is cruel, casteth away, yea, kinsmen.

<sup>18</sup> A wicked man maketh unstable work; but faithful meed is to him, that soweth rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>19</sup> Mercy shall make ready life; and the pursuing [or the following] of evil, death.

<sup>20</sup> A shrewd heart is abominable to the Lord; and his will is in them, that go simply.

<sup>25</sup> A soul that blesseth, shall be made fat; and he that filleth, shall be filled also.

<sup>26</sup> He that hideth wheat, shall be cursed among the peoples; but blessing shall come[up] on the heads of sellers.

<sup>27</sup> Well be he who riseth early, that seeketh good things; but he that is a searcher of evils, shall be oppressed of those [or of them].

<sup>28</sup> He that trusteth in his riches, shall fall; but just [or rightwise] men shall burgeon as a green leaf.

<sup>29</sup> He that troubleth his house, shall have winds in possession; and he that is a fool, shall serve a wise man.

<sup>30</sup> The fruit of a rightful [or rightwise] man is the tree of life; and he that taketh souls, is a wise man.

<sup>31</sup> If a just [or rightwise] man receiveth in [the] earth, how much more an unfaithful man, and a sinner.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> He that loveth chastising [or discipline], loveth knowing; but he that hateth blamings, is unwise.

<sup>2</sup> He that is good, shall draw to himself grace of the Lord; but he that trusteth in his thoughts, doeth wickedly.

<sup>3</sup> A man shall not be made strong by wickedness; and the root of just [or rightwise] men shall not be moved.

<sup>4</sup> A diligent woman is a crown to her husband; and rot is in the bones of that woman, that doeth things worthy of confusion.

<sup>5</sup> The thoughts of just [or rightwise] men be dooms; and the counsels of wicked men be guileful.

<sup>6</sup> The words of wicked men set treason to blood; the mouth of just [or rightwise] men shall deliver them.

<sup>7</sup> Overturn thou wicked men, and they shall not be; but the houses of just [or rightwise] men shall dwell perfectly.

<sup>8</sup> A man shall be known by his teaching; but he that is vain and heartless, shall be open to despising.

<sup>9</sup> Better is a poor man, and sufficient to himself, than a glorious man, and needy of bread.

<sup>10</sup> A just [or rightwise] man knoweth the lives of his work beasts; but the entrails of wicked men be cruel.

<sup>11</sup> He that worketh his land, shall be filled with loaves; but he that pursueth [or followeth] idleness, is most foolish. He that is sweet, that is mild, liveth in temperances; and in his admonishings he forsaketh despisings.

<sup>13</sup> For the sins of lips, falling down nigheth to an evil man; but a just [or rightwise] man shall escape from anguish.

<sup>14</sup> Of the fruit of his mouth each man shall be [ful] filled with goods; and by the works of his hands it shall be yielded to him.

<sup>15</sup> The way of a fool is rightful [or right] in his eyes; but he that is wise, heareth counsels.

<sup>17</sup> He that speaketh that, that he knoweth, is a judge of rightfulness [or of rightwiseness]; but he that lieth, is a guileful witness.

<sup>18</sup> A man is that promiseth, and he is pricked as with the sword of conscience; but the tongue of wise men is health.

<sup>19</sup> The lip of truth shall be steadfast without end; but he that is a sudden witness, maketh ready the tongue of leasing.

<sup>20</sup> Guile is in the heart of them that think evils; but joy pursueth [or followeth] them that make counsels of peace.

<sup>21</sup> Whatever befalleth to a just [or rightwise] man, it shall not make him sorry [or sorrow]; but wicked men shall be filled with evil.

<sup>22</sup> False lips is abomination to the Lord; but they that do faithfully, please him.

<sup>24</sup> The hand of strong men shall have lordship; but the hand that is slow, shall serve to tributes.

<sup>25</sup> Mourning in the heart of a just [or rightwise] man shall make him meek; and he shall be made glad by a good word.

<sup>26</sup> He that despiseth harm for a friend, is a just [or rightwise] man; but the way of wicked men shall deceive them.

<sup>27</sup> A guileful man shall not find winning; and the substance of a diligent man shall be the price of gold, that is, preciouser than gold.

<sup>28</sup> Life is in the path of rightwiseness; but the wrong way leadeth to death.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> A wise son is the teaching of the father; but he that is a scorner, heareth not, when he is reproved.

<sup>3</sup> He that keepeth his mouth, keepeth his soul; but he that is unwary to speak, shall feel evils.

<sup>4</sup> A slow man will, and will not; but the soul of them that work shall be made fat.

<sup>5</sup> A just [or rightwise] man shall loathe a false word; but a wicked man shameth, and shall be shamed.

<sup>6</sup> Rightfulness [or Rightwiseness] keepeth the way of an innocent man; but wickedness deceiveth a sinner.

<sup>7</sup> A man is as rich, when he hath nothing; and a man is as poor, when he is in many riches.

<sup>8</sup> [The] Redemption of the soul of [a] man is his riches; but he that is poor, suffereth not blaming.

<sup>9</sup> The light of just [or rightwise] men maketh glad; but the lantern of wicked men shall be quenched.

<sup>10</sup> Strives be ever among proud men; but they that do all things with counsel, be governed by wisdom.

<sup>11</sup> Hasted chattel [or substance], that is, gotten hastily, shall be made less; but that that is gathered little and little with hand, shall be multiplied.

<sup>12</sup> Hope which is delayed, tormenteth the soul; a tree of life is desire coming.

<sup>13</sup> He that backbiteth anything, bindeth himself into [the] time to coming [or to come]; but he that dreadeth the commandment, shall live in peace.

<sup>16</sup> A fell [or witting] man doeth all things with counsel; but he that is a fool, shall open folly.

<sup>18</sup> Neediness and shame is to him that forsaketh teaching; but he that assenteth to a blamer, shall be glorified.

<sup>19</sup> Desire, if it is [ful] filled, delighteth the soul; fools loathe them that flee evils.

<sup>20</sup> He that goeth with wise men, shall be wise; the friend of fools shall be made like them.

<sup>22</sup> A good man shall leave after him heirs, sons, and the sons of sons; and the chattel [or substance] of a sinner is kept to a just [or rightwise] man.

<sup>23</sup> Many meats be in the newly-tilled fields of fathers; and be gathered to other men without doom.

<sup>24</sup> He that spareth the rod, hateth his son; but he that loveth him, teacheth busily.

<sup>25</sup> A just [or rightwise] man eateth, and [ful] filleth his soul; but the womb of wicked men is unable to be filled.

<sup>2</sup> A man going in rightful [or right] way, and dreading God, is despised of him that goeth in the way of evil fame.

<sup>4</sup> Where oxen be not, the cratch is void; but where full many corns appear, there the strength of the ox is [made] open.

<sup>6</sup> A scorner seeketh wisdom, and he findeth it not; the teaching of prudent men is easy.

<sup>8</sup> The wisdom of a fell [or witting] man is to understand his way; and the unwariness of fools erreth.

<sup>10</sup> The heart that knoweth the bitter-ness of his soul; a stranger shall not be meddled [or mingled] in the joy thereof.

<sup>11</sup> The house of wicked men shall be done away; the tabernacles of just [or rightwise] men shall burgeon.

<sup>12</sup> Soothly a way is, that seemeth just [or rightwise] to a man; but the last things thereof lead forth to death.

<sup>13</sup> Laughing shall be meddled [or mingled] with sorrow; and mourning occupieth the last things of joy.

- <sup>18</sup> Little men of wit shall hold folly; and fell [or witting] men shall abide knowing.
- <sup>19</sup> Evil men shall lie down before good men; and unpious men before the gates of just [or rightwise] men.
- <sup>20</sup> A poor man shall be hateful, yea, to his neighbour; but many men be friends of rich men.
- <sup>21</sup> He that despiseth his neighbour, doeth sin; but he that doeth mercy to a poor man, shall be blessed.
- <sup>22</sup> He that believeth in the Lord, loveth mercy; they err that work evil. Mercy and truth make ready goods;
- <sup>23</sup> abundance shall be in each good work or in every good work. Soothly where full many words be, there neediness is oft.
- <sup>24</sup> The crown of wise men is the riches of them; the folly of fools is unwariness.
- <sup>25</sup> A faithful witness delivereth souls; and a false man bringeth forth leasings.
- <sup>26</sup> In the dread of the Lord is trust of strength; and hope shall be to the sons of him.
- <sup>27</sup> The dread of the Lord is a well of life; that it bow away from the falling of death.
- <sup>28</sup> The dignity of the king is in the multitude of people; and the shame of a prince is in the fewness of people.
- <sup>29</sup> He that is patient, is governed by much wisdom; but he that is impatient, enhanceth his folly.
- <sup>30</sup> Health of heart is the life of flesh; envy is[the] rot of bones.
- <sup>31</sup> He that falsely challengeth a needy man, despiseth his Maker; but he that hath mercy on a poor man, honoureth his Maker.
- <sup>32</sup> A wicked man is put out for his malice; but a just [or rightwise] man hopeth in his death.
- <sup>33</sup> Wisdom resteth in the heart of a wise man; and he shall teach all unlearned men.
- <sup>34</sup> Rightfulness [or Rightwiseness] raiseth [up] a folk; sin maketh peoples wretches.
- <sup>35</sup> A servant understanding is accept-able to a king; a servant unprofitable shall suffer the wrathfulness of him.

- <sup>1</sup> A soft answer breaketh ire; an hard word raiseth strong vengeance.
- <sup>2</sup> The tongue of wise men honoureth knowing; the mouth of fools boileth out folly.
- <sup>3</sup> In each place the eyes of the Lord behold good men, and evil men.
- <sup>4</sup> A pleasant tongue is the tree of life; but the tongue that is unmeasurable [or untempered], shall defoul the spirit.
- <sup>5</sup> A fool scorneth the teaching of his father; but he that keepeth blamings, shall be made wiser. Most virtue shall be in plenteous rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; but the thoughts of wicked men shall be drawn up by the root.
- <sup>6</sup> The house of a just [or rightwise] man is full great strength; and troubling is in the fruits of a wicked man.
- <sup>7</sup> The lips of wise men shall sow abroad knowing; the hearts of fools shall be unlike, that is, they shall be full of ignorance.
- <sup>8</sup> The sacrifices of wicked men be abominable to the Lord; the avows of just men [or the vows of rightwise men]be pleasant.
- <sup>9</sup> The life of the unpious man is abomination to the Lord; he that pur-sueth rightfulness [or followeth right-wiseness], shall be loved of the Lord.
- <sup>10</sup> Evil teaching is of men that forsake the way of life; he that hateth blamings shall die.
- <sup>11</sup> Hell and perdition be open before the Lord; how much more the hearts of [the] sons of men.

<sup>12</sup> A man full of pestilence loveth not him that reproveth him; and he goeth not to wise men.

<sup>13</sup> A joyful heart maketh glad the face; the spirit is cast down in the mourning of soul.

<sup>14</sup> The heart of a wise man seeketh teaching; and the mouth of fools is fed with unknowing.

<sup>15</sup> All the days of a poor man be evil; a secure soul is a continual feast.

<sup>17</sup> It is better to be called to worts with charity, than with hatred to a calf made fat.

<sup>18</sup> A wrathful man raiseth chidings; he that is patient, assuageth chidings that were raised.

<sup>25</sup> The Lord shall destroy the house of proud men; and he shall make steadfast the coasts of a widow.

<sup>26</sup> Evil thoughts is abomination of the Lord; and a clean word most fair shall be made steadfast of him.

<sup>27</sup> He that pursueth [or followeth] avarice, troubleth his house; but he that hateth gifts shall live. Sins be purged by mercy and faith; each man boweth away from evil by the dread of the Lord.

<sup>28</sup> The soul of a just [or rightwise] man bethinketh obedience; the mouth of wicked men is full of evils.

<sup>29</sup> The Lord is far from wicked men; and he shall hear the prayers of just [or rightwise] men.

<sup>32</sup> He that casteth away chastising [or discipline], despiseth his soul; but he that assenteth to blamings, is a peaceable holder of the heart.

<sup>33</sup> The dread of the Lord is teaching of wisdom; and meekness goeth before glory.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> It pertaineth to man to make ready the soul; and it pertaineth to the Lord to govern the tongue.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord wrought all things for himself; and he made ready a wicked man to the evil day.

<sup>5</sup> Abomination of the Lord is each proud man; yea, though the hand is to the hand, he shall not be innocent. The beginning of [the] good way is to do rightwiseness; forsooth it is more acceptable with God, than to offer sacrifices.

<sup>6</sup> Wickedness is again-bought by mercy and truth; and men boweth away from evil by the dread of the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> When the ways of a man please the Lord, he shall convert, yea, his enemies to peace.

<sup>9</sup> The heart of a man shall dispose his way; but it pertaineth to the Lord to dress his steps.

<sup>13</sup> The will of kings is just [or rightwise] lips; he that speaketh rightful [or right] things, shall be addressed.

<sup>14</sup> [The] Indignation of the king is messengers of death; and a wise man shall please him.

<sup>16</sup> Wield thou wisdom, for it is better than gold; and get thou prudence, for it is preciouser than silver.

<sup>19</sup> It is better to be made meek with mild men, than to part spoils with proud men.

<sup>20</sup> A learned man in word shall find goods; and he that hopeth in the Lord is blessed.

<sup>21</sup> He that is wise in heart, shall be called prudent; and he that is sweet in speech, shall find greater things.

<sup>22</sup> The well of life is the learning of him that wieldeth; the teaching of fools is folly.

<sup>25</sup> A way there is that seemeth rightful [or right] to a man; and the last things thereof lead to death.

<sup>26</sup> The soul of a man travailing travailleth to himself; for his mouth compelled him.

<sup>30</sup> He that thinketh shrewd things with eyes astonished, biteth his lips, and performeth evil.

<sup>31</sup> A crown of dignity is eld age, that shall be found in the ways of rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>32</sup> A patient man is better than a strong man; and he that is lord of his soul, is better than an overcomer of cities.

<sup>33</sup> Lots be sent into the bosom; but they be tempered of the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> A wise servant shall be lord of fond [or foolish] sons; and he shall part heritage among brethren.

<sup>3</sup> As silver is proved by fire, and gold is proved by a chimney, so the Lord proveth hearts.

<sup>4</sup> An evil man obeyeth to a wicked tongue; and a false man obeyeth to false lips.

<sup>5</sup> He that despiseth a poor man, reproveth his maker; and he that is glad in the falling of another man, shall not be unpunished.

<sup>6</sup> The crown of eld [or old] men is the sons of sons; and the glory of sons is the fathers of them.

<sup>8</sup> A precious stone most acceptable is the abiding of him that seeketh; whither ever he turneth himself, he understandeth prudently.

<sup>9</sup> He that covereth trespass, seeketh friendships; he that rehearseth by an high word, separateth them that be knit together in peace.

<sup>13</sup> Evil shall not go away from the house of him, that yieldeth evils for goods.

<sup>14</sup> He that letteth out water, is the head of strives; and before that he suffereth wrong, he forsaketh doom.

<sup>15</sup> Both he that justifieth a wicked man, and he that condemneth a just [or rightwise] man, ever either is abominable to God.

<sup>16</sup> What profiteth it to a fool to have riches, since he may not buy wisdom? He that maketh his house high, seeketh falling; and he that escheweth to learn, shall fall into evils.

<sup>17</sup> He that is a friend, loveth in all time; and a brother is proved in anguishes.

<sup>18</sup> A fond [or foolish] man shall make joy with hands, when he hath promised for his friend.

<sup>19</sup> He that bethinketh discords, loveth chidings; and he that enhanceth his mouth, seeketh falling.

<sup>20</sup> He that is of wayward heart, shall not find good; and he that turneth the tongue, shall fall into evil.

<sup>21</sup> A fool is born in his shame; but neither the father shall be glad in a fool.

<sup>24</sup> Wisdom shineth in the face of a prudent man; the eyes of fools be in the ends of earth.

<sup>25</sup> A fond [or foolish] son is the ire [or the wrath] of the father, and the sorrow of the mother that bare him.

<sup>26</sup> It is not good to bring in harm to a just [or rightwise] man; neither to smite the prince that deemeth rightfully.

<sup>27</sup> He that measureth his words, is wise and prudent; and a learned man is of precious spirit.

<sup>28</sup> Also a fool, if he is still, shall be guessed a wise man; and, if he presseth together his lips, he is guessed an understanding man.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>1</sup> He that will go away from a friend, seeketh occasions, that is, feigneth causes; in all time he shall be despicable.

<sup>2</sup> A fool receiveth not the words of prudence; no but thou say those things, that be turned in his heart.

<sup>3</sup> A wicked man, when he cometh into depth of sins, despiseth whole-some lore, and commandment; but scandal and shame pursueth [or followeth] him.

<sup>4</sup> Deep water is the words of the mouth of a man; and a strand floating over is the well of wisdom.

<sup>5</sup> It is not good to take the person of a wicked man in doom, that thou bow away from the truth of doom.

<sup>7</sup> The mouth of a fool is[the] defouling of him; and his lips be the falling of his soul.

<sup>8</sup> The words of a double-tongued man be as simple; and they come unto the inner things of the womb. Dread casteth down a slow man; forsooth the souls of men turned into women's condition shall have hunger.

<sup>9</sup> He that is nesh, and dissolute, either unsteadfast, in his work, is the brother of a man destroying his works.

<sup>10</sup> A full strong tower is the name of the Lord; a just [or rightwise] man runneth to him, and [he] shall be enhanced.

<sup>11</sup> The chattel [or substance] of a rich man is the city of his strength; and as a strong wall compassing him.

<sup>12</sup> The heart of man is enhanced, before that it be broken; and it is made meek, before that it be glorified.

<sup>13</sup> He that answereth before that he heareth, sheweth himself to be a fool; and worthy of shame.

<sup>14</sup> The spirit of a man sustaineth his feebleness; but who may sustain a spirit light to be wroth?

<sup>15</sup> The heart of a prudent man shall hold steadfastly knowing; and the ear of wise men seeketh teaching.

<sup>17</sup> A just [or rightwise] man is the first accuser of himself; his friend cometh, and shall search him.

<sup>19</sup> A brother that is helped of a brother, is as a steadfast city; and [the] dooms be as the bars of cities.

<sup>20</sup> A man's womb shall be [ful] filled of the fruit of his mouth; and the seeds of his lips shall fill him.

<sup>21</sup> Death and life be in the works of [the] tongue; they that love it, shall eat the fruits thereof.

<sup>22</sup> He that findeth a good woman, findeth a good thing; and of the Lord he shall draw up mirth. He that putteth away a good woman, putteth away a good thing; but he that holdeth an adulteress, is a fool and unwise.

<sup>2</sup> Where is not knowing of the soul, there is not good; and he that is hasty, in feet hurteth [or stumbleth].

<sup>4</sup> Riches increase full many friends; forsooth also they be departed from a poor man, which he had.

<sup>5</sup> A false witness shall not be unpunished; and he that speaketh leasings, shall not escape.

<sup>6</sup> Many men honour the person of a mighty man; and they be friends of him that dealeth gifts.

<sup>7</sup> The brethren of a poor man hate him; furthermore and the friends went away far from him. He that pursueth [or followeth] words only, shall have nothing;

<sup>8</sup> but he that holdeth stably the mind, loveth his soul, and the keeper of prudence shall find goods.

<sup>9</sup> A false witness shall not be unpunished; and he that speaketh leasings, shall perish.

<sup>10</sup> Delights become not a fool; neither it becometh a servant to be lord of princes.

<sup>11</sup> The teaching of a man is known by patience; and his glory is to pass over wicked things.

<sup>12</sup> As the gnashing of a lion, so and the ire of the king; and as dew on herb, so and the gladness of the king.

<sup>13</sup> The sorrow of the father is a fond [or foolish] son; and roofs dropping continually is a woman full of chiding.

<sup>14</sup> Houses and riches be given of father and mother; but a prudent wife is given properly of the Lord.

<sup>16</sup> He that keepeth the commandment of God, keepeth his soul; but he that chargeth not [or despiseth] his way, shall be slain.

<sup>17</sup> He that hath mercy on a poor man, lendeth to the Lord; and he shall yield his while to him.

<sup>18</sup> Teach thy son, and despair thou not; but set [or put] thou not thy soul to the slaying of him.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth he that is unpatient, shall suffer harm; and when he hath ravished, he shall lay to another thing.

<sup>20</sup> Hear thou counsel, and take thou doctrine; that thou be wise in thy last things.

<sup>21</sup> Many thoughts there be in the heart of a man; but the will of the Lord shall dwell.

<sup>23</sup> Dread of the Lord leadeth to life; and he that dreadeth God shall dwell in plenty, without visiting of the worst or without full evil visiting.

<sup>25</sup> When a man full of pestilence is beaten, a fool shall be the wiser. If thou blamest a wise man, he shall understand teaching.

<sup>26</sup> He that tormenteth his father, and fleeth from his mother, shall be full of evil fame, and shall be cursed.

<sup>27</sup> Son, cease thou not to hear teaching; and know thou the words of knowing.

<sup>29</sup> Dooms be made ready to scorners; and hammers smiting be made ready to the bodies of fools.

CHAPTER 20

<sup>2</sup> As the roaring of a lion, so and the dread of a king; he that stirreth him to ire, sinneth against his soul.

<sup>3</sup> It is honour to a man that separateth himself from strivings; but fond men be meddled [or fools shall be mingled] with despisings.

<sup>4</sup> A slow man would not ear for cold; therefore he shall beg in summer, and men shall not give to him.

<sup>5</sup> As deep water, so counsel is in the heart of a man; but a wise man shall draw it out.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth a just [or rightwise] man that goeth in his simpleness, shall leave blessed sons after him.

<sup>9</sup> Who may say, Mine heart is clean; I am clean of sin?

<sup>10</sup> A weight, greater in buying, and a weight, lesser in selling, a measure and a measure, ever either is abominable at God.

<sup>12</sup> An ear hearing, and an eye seeing, [or The hearing ear; and the seeing eye], God made ever either.

<sup>13</sup> Do not thou love sleep, lest needi-ness oppress thee; open thine eyes, and be thou [ful] filled with loaves.

<sup>14</sup> Each buyer saith, It is evil, it is evil; and when he hath gone away, then he shall have glory.

<sup>15</sup> Gold, and the multitude of gems, and a precious vessel, be the lips of knowing.

<sup>16</sup> Take thou away the cloth of him that was a borrow of another man; and for strangers take thou away a wed from him.

<sup>17</sup> The bread of a leasing, that is, gotten by a leasing, is sweet to a man; and afterward his mouth shall be filled with reckoning [or with little pebble stones].

<sup>18</sup> Thoughts be made strong by counsels; and battles shall be treated by governances.

<sup>19</sup> Be thou not meddled [or mingled] with him that showeth privates, and goeth guilefully, and alargeth his lips.

<sup>20</sup> The light of him that curseth his father and mother, shall be quenched in the midst of darknesses.

<sup>21</sup> Heritage to which men hasteth in the beginning, shall want blessing in the last time.

<sup>22</sup> Say thou not, I shall yield evil for evil; abide thou the Lord, and he shall deliver thee.

<sup>25</sup> Falling of man is to make avow [or vow] to saints, and afterward to withdraw the vows.

<sup>26</sup> A wise king scattereth wicked men; and boweth a bow of victory, that is, a stone bow, over them.

<sup>27</sup> The lantern of the Lord is the spirit of man, that seeketh out all the privates of the womb.

<sup>28</sup> Mercy and truth keep a king; and his throne is made strong by meekness.

<sup>29</sup> The full out joying of young men is the strength of them; and the dignity of eld [or old] men is hoariness.

<sup>30</sup> The wanness of wound shall wipe away evils, and wounds in the privier things of the womb.

CHAPTER 21

<sup>1</sup> As partings of waters, so the heart of the king is in the power of the Lord; whither ever he will, he shall bow it.

<sup>2</sup> Each way of a man seemeth rightful [or right] to himself; but the Lord weigheth the hearts.

<sup>4</sup> Enhancing of eyes is [the] alarging of the heart; the lantern of wicked men is sin.

<sup>5</sup> The thoughts of a strong man be ever in abundance; but each slow man is ever in neediness.

<sup>6</sup> He that gathereth treasures by the tongue of a lie maker, is vain, and without heart; and he shall be hurled to the snares of death.

<sup>7</sup> The ravens of unpious men shall draw them down; for they would not do doom.

<sup>8</sup> The wayward way of a man is alien from God; but the work of him that is clean of sin, is rightful [or right].

<sup>9</sup> It is better to sit in the corner of an house without roof, than with a woman full of chiding, and in a common house.

<sup>10</sup> The soul of an unpious man desireth evil; he shall not have mercy on his neighbour.

<sup>12</sup> A just [or rightwise] man of the house of a wicked man thinketh, to withdraw wicked men from evil.

<sup>13</sup> He that stoppeth his ear at the cry of a poor man, shall cry also, and he shall not be heard.

<sup>15</sup> It is joy to a just [or rightwise] man to make doom; and it is dread to them that work wickedness.

<sup>16</sup> A man that erreth from the way of doctrine, shall dwell in the company of giants, that is, of men evil ruled, either of fiends.

<sup>17</sup> He that loveth meats, shall be in neediness; he that loveth wine and fat things, shall not be made rich.

<sup>19</sup> It is better to dwell in a desert land, than with a woman full of chiding, and wrathful.

<sup>20</sup> Desirable treasure and oil is in the dwelling place of a just [or rightwise] man; and an unprudent man shall destroy it.

<sup>21</sup> He that pursueth rightfulness [or followeth rightwiseness] and mercy, shall find life [and rightwiseness] and glory.

<sup>22</sup> A wise man ascended into the city of strong men, and destroyed the strength of [the] trust thereof.

<sup>29</sup> A wicked man maketh firm his cheer unshamefastly; but he that is rightful [or right], amendeth his way.

<sup>30</sup> No wisdom there is, no prudence there is, no counsel there is, against the Lord.

<sup>31</sup> An horse is made ready to the day of battle; but the Lord shall give health.

<sup>3</sup> A fell man seeth evil, and hideth himself; and an innocent man passed, and he was tormented by harm.

<sup>4</sup> The end of temperance is the dread of the Lord; riches, and glory, and life.

<sup>5</sup> Armours [or Arms] and swords be in the way of a wayward man; but the keeper of his soul goeth away far from those [or from them].

<sup>6</sup> It is a proverb, A young waxing man after his way, and when he hath waxed eld [or eldeth], he shall not go away from it.

<sup>7</sup> A rich man commandeth to poor men; and he that taketh borrowing, is servant of the lender.

<sup>8</sup> He that soweth wickedness shall reap evils; and the rod of his ire [or his wrath] shall be ended.

<sup>9</sup> He that is ready to give mercy shall be blessed; for of his loaves he gave some to a poor man.

<sup>10</sup> Cast thou out a scorner, and strife shall go out with him; and causes and despisings shall cease.

<sup>11</sup> He that loveth the cleanness of heart, shall have the king for a friend, for the grace of his lips.

<sup>12</sup> The eyes of the Lord keep knowing; and the words of a wicked man be deceived.

<sup>13</sup> A slow man shall say, A lion is withoutforth; I shall be slain in the midst of the streets.

<sup>14</sup> The mouth of an alien woman is a deep ditch; he to whom the Lord is wroth shall fall into it.

<sup>15</sup> Folly is bound together in the heart of a child; and a rod of chastising [or discipline] shall drive it away.

<sup>16</sup> He that falsely challengeth a poor man, to increase his own riches, shall give to a richer man, and he shall be needy.

<sup>17</sup> My son, bow down thine ear, and hear thou the words of wise men; but set thou the heart to my teaching.

<sup>18</sup> That shall be fair to thee, when thou hast kept it in thine heart, and it shall flow again in thy lips.

<sup>19</sup> That thy trust be in the Lord; wherefore and I have showed it to thee today.

<sup>20</sup> Lo! I have described it in three manners*, in thoughts and knowing,

<sup>21</sup> that I should show to thee the firmness and speeches of truth; to answer of these things to them that sent thee.

<sup>26</sup> Do not thou be with them that fasten, or bind, their hands, and that proffer themselves to be borrows for debts;

<sup>27</sup> for if he hath not whereof he shall restore, what of cause is, that thou take away covering from thy bed?

<sup>28</sup> Go thou not over the eld marks [or the old terms], or the boundary stones, which thy fathers have set.

<sup>29</sup> Thou hast seen a man smart in his work; he shall stand before kings, and he shall not be before unnoble men.

CHAPTER 23

<sup>1</sup> When thou sittest to eat with the prince, perceive thou diligently what things be set before thy face,

---

* CHAPTER 22:20 That is, in three parts of the Old Testament, that be, the law, holy stories, and prophets. (From a "Later Version" gloss.)

- <sup>2</sup> and set thou a coultter in thy throat. If nevertheless thou hast power on thy soul,
<sup>4</sup> Do not thou travail to be made rich, but set thou measure to thy prudence.
<sup>5</sup> Raise not thine eyes to riches, which thou mayest not have; for those [or they] shall make to them-selves pens or wings, as of an eagle, and they shall fly into heaven.
<sup>7</sup> for at the likeness of a false diviner, and of a conjecturer, that is, expounder of dreams, he guesseth that, that he knoweth not. He shall say to thee, Eat thou and drink; and his soul is not with thee.
<sup>8</sup> Thou shalt spew out the meat, which thou hast eaten; and thou shalt lose thy fair words.
<sup>9</sup> Speak thou not in the ears of unwise men; for they shall despise the teaching of thy speech.
<sup>10</sup> Touch thou not the terms, or the boundary stones, of little children; and enter thou not into the field of fatherless and motherless children.
<sup>13</sup> Do not thou withdraw chastising or discipline, from a child; for though thou smitest him with a rod, he shall not die.
<sup>15</sup> My son, if thy soul is wise, mine heart shall have joy with thee;
<sup>16</sup> and my reins shall make full out joy, when thy lips speak rightful [or right] things.
<sup>17</sup> Thine heart pursue [or follow] not sinners; but be thou in the dread of the Lord all day.
<sup>18</sup> For thou shalt have hope at the last, and thine abiding shall not be done away.
<sup>19</sup> My son, hear thou, and be wise, and address thy soul in the way.
<sup>20</sup> Do not thou be in the feasts of drinkers, neither in the oft eatings of them, that bring together fleshs to eat.
<sup>22</sup> Hear thy father, that begat thee; and despise not thy mother, when she is eld.
<sup>23</sup> Buy thou truth, and do not thou sell wisdom, and doctrine, and understanding.
<sup>24</sup> The father of a just [or rightwise] man joyeth full out with joy; he that begat a wise man, shall be glad in him.
<sup>25</sup> Thy father and thy mother have joy, and he that begat thee, make full out joy.
<sup>26</sup> My son, give thine heart to me, and thine eyes keep my ways.
<sup>27</sup> For a whore is a deep ditch, and an alien woman, is a strait pit.
<sup>28</sup> She setteth ambush in the way, as a thief; and shall add despisers in men, that is, shall multiply despisers of God among men.
<sup>29</sup> To whom is woe? to whose father is woe? to whom be chidings? to whom be ditches? to whom be wounds without cause? to whom is putting out of eyes?
<sup>30</sup> Whether not to them, that dwell in wine, and study to drink [up] all of cups?
<sup>31</sup> Behold thou not [the] wine, when it sparkleth, when the colour thereof shineth in a glass cup. It entereth sweetly, <sup>32</sup> but at the last it shall bite as an adder, and as a cockatrice it shall shed abroad venoms.
<sup>34</sup> And thou shalt be as a man sleeping in the midst of the sea, and as a governor asleaped [or sleeping], when the steering, either the instrument of governance, is lost.
<sup>35</sup> And thou shalt say, They beat me, but I had not sorrow; they drew me, and I feelled not; when shall I wake out, and I shall find wines again?

CHAPTER 24

- <sup>1</sup> Pursue [or follow] thou not evil men, desire thou not to be with them.
- <sup>2</sup> For the soul of them bethinketh on ravens, and their lips speak frauds.
- <sup>3</sup> An house shall be builded by wisdom, and it shall be made strong by prudence, or understanding.
- <sup>4</sup> [The] Cellars shall be filled in teaching, with all riches precious and full fair.
- <sup>5</sup> A wise man is strong, and a learned man is stalworth[y] and mighty.
- <sup>6</sup> For why battle is begun with ordinance; and health shall be, where many counsels be.
- <sup>7</sup> Wisdom is high to a fool; in the gate he shall not open his mouth.
- <sup>8</sup> He that thinketh to do evils, shall be called a fool.
- <sup>9</sup> The thought of a fool is sin; and a backbiter is abomination of men.
- <sup>10</sup> If thou hast slid, despairest in the day of anguish, thy strength shall be made less.
- <sup>11</sup> Deliver thou them, that be led to death; and cease thou not to deliver them, that be drawn to death.
- <sup>12</sup> If thou sayest, Strengths or Strong-holds suffice not; he that is [the] beholder of the heart, understandeth, and nothing deceiveth the keeper of thy soul, and he shall yield to a man after his works.
- <sup>13</sup> My son, eat thou honey, for it is good; and the honeycomb for it is full sweet to thy throat.
- <sup>14</sup> So and the teaching of wisdom is good to thy soul; and when thou hast found it, thou shalt have hope in the last things, and thine hope shall not perish.
- <sup>15</sup> Ambush thou not, and seek not wickedness in the house of a just [or rightwise] man, neither waste thou, his resting place.
- <sup>16</sup> For a just [or rightwise] man shall fall seven times in the day, and shall rise again; but wicked men shall fall into evil.
- <sup>17</sup> When thine enemy falleth, have thou not joy; and thine heart have not full out joying in his falling;
- <sup>18</sup> lest peradventure the Lord see, and it displease him, and he take away his ire [or his wrath] from him.
- <sup>19</sup> Strive thou not with the worst men, neither pursue [or follow] thou wicked men.
- <sup>20</sup> For why evil men have not hope of things to come, and the lantern of wicked men shall be quenched.
- <sup>21</sup> My son, dread thou God, and the king; and be thou not meddled [or mingled] with backbiters.
- <sup>22</sup> For their perdition shall rise together suddenly, and who knoweth the fall of ever either?
- <sup>23</sup> Also these things that pursue be to wise men. It is not good to know a person in doom.
- <sup>24</sup> Peoples shall curse them that say to a wicked man, Thou art just [or rightwise]; and lineages shall hold them abominable.
- <sup>25</sup> They that reprove justly sinners, shall be praised; and blessing shall come [up] on them.
- <sup>26</sup> He that answereth with rightful [or right] words, shall kiss lips.
- <sup>27</sup> Make ready thy work withoutforth, and work thy field diligently, that thou build thine house afterward.
- <sup>28</sup> Be thou not a witness without reasonable cause against thy neighbour; neither flatter thou any man with thy lips.
- <sup>29</sup> Say thou not, As he did to me, so I shall do to him, and I shall yield to each man after his work.
- <sup>30</sup> I passed by the field of a slow man, and by the vinery [or the vineyard] of a fond [or foolish] man;

<sup>31</sup> and lo! nettles had filled all, thorns had covered the higher part thereof, and the wall of stones without mortar was destroyed.

<sup>32</sup> And when I had seen this thing, I setted [or put] in mine heart, and by ensample, I learned teaching.

<sup>33</sup> How long sleepest thou, slow man? when shalt thou rise from sleep? Soothly thou shalt sleep a little, thou shalt nap a little, thou shalt join together the hands a little, to take rest;

<sup>34</sup> and then thy neediness as a courier shall come to thee, and thy beggary as an armed man.

<sup>2</sup> The glory of God is to cover a word; and the glory of kings is to seek out a word.

<sup>5</sup> Do thou away unpiety from the cheer of the king, and his throne shall be made steadfast by rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>7</sup> For it is better, that it be said to thee, Ascend thou [or Go up] hither, than that thou be made low before the prince.

<sup>8</sup> Bring thou not forth soon those things in strife, which thine eyes saw; lest afterward thou mayest not amend, when thou hast made thy friend dishonest or he hath shamed thee.

<sup>9</sup> Treat thy cause with thy friend, and show thou not private matter to a strange man;

<sup>10</sup> lest peradventure he have joy of thy fall, when he hath heard, and cease not to do shame to thee.

<sup>11</sup> A golden pomme or pommel in beds of silver is he, that speaketh a word in his time.

<sup>12</sup> A golden earring, and a shining pearl is he, that reproveth a wise man, and an ear obeying.

<sup>13</sup> As the cold of snow in the day of harvest, so a faithful messenger to him that sent him, maketh his soul to have rest.

<sup>14</sup> A cloud and wind, and rain not pursuing [or following], is a glorious man, and not [ful] filling promises.

<sup>16</sup> Thou hast found honey, eat thou that that sufficeth to thee; lest per-adventure thou be [full]-filled, and spew it out.

<sup>17</sup> Withdraw thy foot from the house of thy neighbour; lest sometime he be filled, that is, annoyed, and hate thee.

<sup>19</sup> A rotten tooth, and a faint foot is he, that hopeth on an unfaithful man in the day of anguish,

<sup>20</sup> and loseth his mantle in the day of cold. Vinegar in a vessel of salt is he, that singeth songs to the worst heart. As a moth annoyeth or harmeth a cloth, and a worm a tree, so the sorrow of a man annoyeth the heart.

<sup>21</sup> If thine enemy hungereth, feed thou him; if he thirsteth, give thou him water to drink;

<sup>27</sup> As it is not good to him that eateth much honey; so he that is a searcher of majesty, shall be put down from glory.

<sup>28</sup> As a city open, and without compass of walls; so is a man that may not refrain his spirit in speaking.

CHAPTER 26

<sup>3</sup> Beating be to an horse, and a bridle to an ass; and a rod to the back of unprudent men.

<sup>4</sup> Answer thou not to a fool after his folly, lest thou be made like him.

<sup>5</sup> Answer thou a fool after his folly, lest he seem to himself to be wise.

<sup>6</sup> An halting man in feet, and drinking wickedness, he that sendeth words by a fond [or foolish] messenger.

<sup>7</sup> As an halting man hath fair legs in vain; so a parable is unseemly in the mouth of fools.

<sup>8</sup> As he that sendeth a stone into the broad place of the sling; so he that giveth honour to an unwise man.

<sup>9</sup> As if a thorn groweth in the hand of a drunken man; so is a parable in the mouth of fools.

<sup>10</sup> Doom determineth causes; and he that setteth silence to a fool, assuageth ires [or wraths].

<sup>11</sup> As a dog that turneth again to his spewing [or As an hound that turneth again to his vomit]; so is an unprudent man, that rehearseth his folly.

<sup>12</sup> Thou hast seen a man seem wise to himself; an unknowing man shall have hope more than he.

<sup>13</sup> A slow man saith, A lion is in the way, a lioness is in the footpaths.

<sup>15</sup> A slow man hideth his hands under his armpit; and he travaileth, if he turneth them up to his mouth.

<sup>17</sup> As he that taketh a dog by the ears; so he that passeth, and is impatient, and is meddled [or mingled] with the chiding of another man.

<sup>18</sup> As he is guilty, that sendeth spears and arrows into death,

<sup>19</sup> so a man that annoyeth guilefully his friend, and when he is taken, he shall say, I did playing.

<sup>20</sup> When trees [or woods shall] fail, the fire shall be quenched; and when a privy backbiter is withdrawn, strives rest.

<sup>21</sup> As dead coals at [or to] quick coals, and trees at the fire [or wood to fire]; so a wrathful man raiseth chidings.

<sup>22</sup> The words of a privy backbiter be as simple; and those [or they] come till to the innerest things of the heart.

<sup>23</sup> As if thou wouldest adorn a vessel of earth with the dross of silver, so be swelling lips fellowshipped with a full wicked heart.

<sup>24</sup> An enemy is understood by his lips, when he treateth guiles in his heart.

<sup>25</sup> When he maketh low his voice, believe thou not to him; for seven wickednesses be in his heart.

<sup>27</sup> He that delveth a ditch, shall fall into it; and if a man walloweth a stone, it shall turn again to him.

<sup>28</sup> A false tongue loveth not [the] truth; and a slippery mouth worketh fallings.

CHAPTER 27

<sup>1</sup> Have thou not glory of the morrow, that knowest not what thing the day coming shall bring forth.

<sup>3</sup> A stone is heavy, and gravel is chargeous; but the ire [or the wrath] of a fool is heavier than ever either.

<sup>4</sup> Ire [or Wrath] hath no mercy, and strong vengeance breaking out hath no mercy; and who may suffer the fierceness of a spirit stirred?

<sup>6</sup> Better be the wounds of him that loveth, than the guileful kisses of him that hateth.

<sup>9</sup> The heart delighteth in ointment, and diverse odours; and a soul is made sweet by the good counsels of a friend.

<sup>10</sup> Forsake thou not thy friend, and the friend of thy father; and enter thou not into the house of thy brother, in the day of thy torment. Better is a neighbour nigh, than a brother afar.

<sup>11</sup> My son, study thou about wisdom, and make thou glad mine heart; that thou mayest answer a word to a despiser.

<sup>13</sup> Take thou away his cloth, that promised for a stranger; and take thou away a wed from him for an alien man.

<sup>14</sup> He that blesseth his neighbour with [a] great voice; and riseth by night, shall be like him that curseth.

<sup>16</sup> He that withholdeth her, as if he holdeth [or held the] wind; and voideth [out] the oil of his right hand.

<sup>18</sup> He that keepeth a fig tree, shall eat the fruits thereof; and he that is a keeper of his lord, shall be glorified.

<sup>19</sup> As the cheers of men beholding themselves shine in waters; so the hearts of men be open to prudent men.

<sup>20</sup> Hell and perdition shall not be filled; so and the eyes of men be not able to be filled [or be unfillable].

<sup>21</sup> As silver is proved in a welling place, and gold is proved in a furnace; so a man is proved by the mouth of his praisers.

<sup>24</sup> For thou shalt not have power continually; but a crown shall be given to thee in generation and into generation[s].

<sup>26</sup> Lambs be to thy clothing; and kids be to the price of the field.

<sup>27</sup> The milk of goats suffice to thee for thy meats; into the necessary things of thine house, and to lifelode of thine handmaidens.

CHAPTER 28

<sup>1</sup> A wicked man fleeth, when no man pursueth; but a just [or rightwise] man as a lion trusting shall be without fearedfulness.

<sup>2</sup> For the sins of the land there be many princes of it; and for the wisdom of a man, and for the knowing of these things that be said, the life of the duke shall be the longer.

<sup>4</sup> They that forsake the law, praise the wicked man; they that keep the law, be kindled, or stirred[up], against him.

<sup>5</sup> Wicked men think not on doom; but they that seek the Lord, perceive all things.

<sup>7</sup> He that keepeth the law, is a wise son; but he that feedeth gluttons, shameth his father.

<sup>8</sup> He that gathereth together riches by usuries, and free increases, gathereth those [or them] together against poor men.

<sup>9</sup> His prayer shall be made cursed, that boweth away his ear, that he hear not the law.

<sup>10</sup> He that deceiveth just [or rightwise] men in an evil way, shall fall in his perishing; and just [or rightwise] men shall wield his goods.

<sup>11</sup> A rich man seemeth wise to himself; but a poor man prudent shall search him out or know his counsel.

<sup>12</sup> In [the] enhancing of just [or rightwise] men is much glory; when wicked men reign, fallings of men be.

<sup>13</sup> He that hideth his great trespasses, shall not be made rightful; but he that acknowledgeth and forsaketh them, shall get mercy.

<sup>14</sup> Blessed is the man, which is ever dreadful; but he that is of hard heart, shall fall into evil.

<sup>16</sup> A duke needy of prudence shall oppress many men by false challenge; but the days of him that hateth avarice shall be made long.

<sup>17</sup> No man sustain a man that falsely challengeth the blood of a man, if he fleeth till to the pit.

<sup>18</sup> He that goeth simply shall be safe; he that goeth by wayward ways, shall fall down [at] once.

<sup>19</sup> He that worketh his land, shall be filled with loaves; he that pursueth [or followeth] idleness, shall be filled with neediness.

<sup>20</sup> A faithful man shall be praised much; but he that hasteth to be made rich, shall not be innocent.

<sup>21</sup> He that knoweth a face in doom, doeth not well; this man forsaketh truth, yea, for a morsel of bread.

<sup>22</sup> A man that hasteth to be made rich, and hath envy to other men, knoweth not that neediness shall come [up] on him.

<sup>23</sup> He that reproveth a man, shall find grace afterward with him; more than he that deceiveth by flatterings of tongue.

<sup>24</sup> He that withdraweth anything from his father and from his mother, and saith that this is no sin, is partner of a man-queller.

<sup>25</sup> He that avaunteth himself, and alargeth, raiseth up strives; but he that hopeth in the Lord, shall be saved.

<sup>26</sup> He that trusteth in his heart, is a fool; but he that goeth wisely, shall be praised.

<sup>27</sup> He that giveth to a poor man, shall not be needy; he that despiseth a poor man beseeching, shall suffer neediness.

<sup>28</sup> When unpius men rise, men shall be hid; and when they have perished, just [or rightwise] men shall be multiplied.

CHAPTER 29

<sup>1</sup> Sudden perishing shall come [up] on that man, that with hard noll, that is, an obstinate soul, despiseth a blamer; and health shall not follow him.

<sup>2</sup> The commonality shall be glad in the multiplying of just [or rightwise] men; when wicked men have taken princehood, the people shall wail.

<sup>3</sup> A man that loveth wisdom, maketh glad his father; but he that nourisheth a strumpet, shall lose his chattel [or substance].

<sup>5</sup> A man that speaketh by flattering and feigned words to his friend, spreadeth abroad a net to his steps.

<sup>6</sup> A snare shall wrap a wicked man doing sin; and a just [or rightwise] man shall praise, and make joy.

<sup>7</sup> A just [or rightwise] man knoweth the cause of poor men; and an unpius man knoweth not knowing.

<sup>9</sup> If a wise man striveth with a fool, whether he be wroth, or laugh, he shall not find rest.

<sup>12</sup> A prince that heareth willfully the words of leasing, shall have all his servants unfaithful.

<sup>14</sup> If a king deemeth poor men in truth, his throne shall be made steadfast [into] without end.

<sup>16</sup> Great trespasses shall be multiplied in the multiplying of wicked men; and just [or rightwise] men shall see the fallings of them.

<sup>17</sup> Teach thy son, and he shall comfort thee; and he shall give delights to thy soul.

<sup>18</sup> When prophecy faileth, the people shall be destroyed; but he that keepeth the law, is blessed.

<sup>19</sup> A servant may not be taught by words; for he understandeth that that thou sayest, and he despiseth to answer.

<sup>20</sup> Thou hast seen a man swift to speak; folly shall be hoped more than his amending [or folly more is to be hoped for than the correction of him].

<sup>21</sup> He that nourisheth his servant delicately from childhood, shall find him a rebel [or unobedient] afterward.

<sup>22</sup> A wrathful man stirreth chidings; and he that is light to have indignation, shall be more inclined to sins.

<sup>24</sup> He that taketh part with a thief, hateth his soul; he heareth a man charging greatly, and showeth not.

<sup>25</sup> He that dreadeth a man, shall fall soon; he that hopeth in the Lord, shall be raised [up].

<sup>26</sup> Many men seek the face of the prince; and the doom of all men shall go forth of the Lord.

<sup>27</sup> Just [or Rightwise] men have abomination of a wicked man; and wicked men have abomination of them, that be in a rightful [or the right] way.

CHAPTER 30

<sup>1</sup> The words of him that gathereth, of the son spewing. The prophecy which a man spake, with whom God was, and which man was comforted by God dwelling with him, and said,

<sup>2</sup> I am the most foolish of men; and the wisdom of men is not with me.

<sup>3</sup> I learned not wisdom; and I knew not the knowing of holy men.

<sup>4</sup> Who ascended [or went up] into heaven, and came down? Who held together the spirit or wind in his hands? who bound together waters as in a cloth? Who raised up all the ends of [the] earth? What is the name of him? and what is the name of his son, if thou knowest?

<sup>5</sup> Each word of God is a shield set afire, to all that hope in him.

<sup>6</sup> Add thou not anything to the words of him, and thou be reprov'd, and be found a liar.

<sup>7</sup> I prayed thee for two things; deny not thou them to me, before that I die.

<sup>8</sup> Make thou far from me vanity and words of leasing; give thou not to me begging and riches; but give thou only necessities to my lifelode;

<sup>9</sup> lest peradventure I be full-filled, and be drawn to deny, and say, Who is the Lord? and lest I be compelled by neediness, and steal, and forswear the name of my God.

<sup>10</sup> Accuse thou not a servant to his lord, lest peradventure he curse thee, and thou fall down.

<sup>12</sup> A generation that seemeth clean to itself, and nevertheless is not washed from his filths.

<sup>13</sup> A generation whose eyes be high, and the eyelids thereof be raised [up] into high things.

<sup>14</sup> A generation that hath swords for teeth, and eateth with his cheek teeth; that it eat [the] needy men of [the] earth, and the poor-alls [or the poor] of men.

<sup>15</sup> The water leach hath two daughters, saying, Bring, bring. Three things be unable to be filled, and the fourth, that saith never, It sufficeth;

<sup>16</sup> hell; and the mouth of the womb; and the earth that is never filled with water; but fire that saith never, It sufficeth.

<sup>17</sup> Crows of the strand [or the streams] peck out that eye, that scorneth the father, and that despiseth the child-bearing of his mother; and the young of an eagle eat that eye.

<sup>18</sup> Three things be hard to me, and utterly I know not the fourth thing;

<sup>19</sup> the way of an eagle in heaven; the way of a serpent on a stone; the way of a ship in the middle of the sea; and the way of a man in his young waxing age.

<sup>20</sup> Such is the way of a woman adulteress, which eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I wrought not evil.

<sup>21</sup> The earth is moved by three things, and by the fourth thing, which it may not sustain;

<sup>22</sup> by a servant, when he reigneth; by a fool, when he is filled with meat;

<sup>23</sup> by an hateful woman, when she is taken in matrimony; and by an handmaid, when she is heir of her lady.

<sup>24</sup> Four [things] be the least things of [the] earth, and those be wiser than wise men;

<sup>25</sup> ants, a feeble people, that make ready meat in harvest to themselves;

<sup>26</sup> a hare, a people unmighty, that setteth his bed in a stone;

<sup>29</sup> Three things there be, that go well, and the fourth thing, that goeth richly, either by prosperity.

<sup>31</sup> a cock, girded [up] the loins; and a ram, and a king, and none there is that shall against-stand him.

<sup>32</sup> He that appeareth a fool, after that he is raised [up] on high; for if he had understood, he had set his hand on his mouth.

<sup>33</sup> Forsooth he that thrusteth strongly teats, to draw out milk, thrusteth out butter; and he that smiteth greatly, draweth out blood; and he that stirreth ires, bringeth forth discords.

CHAPTER 31

<sup>2</sup> What, my darling? what, the darling of my womb? what, the darling of my desires?

<sup>3</sup> Give thou not thy chattel [or thy substance] to women, and thy riches to do away kings.

<sup>4</sup> A! Lemuel, do not thou give wine to kings; for no privacy there is, where drunkenness reigneth.

<sup>5</sup> Lest peradventure they drink, and forget dooms, and change the cause of the sons of a poor man.

<sup>6</sup> Give ye cider to them that mourn, and wine to them that be of bitter soul.

<sup>7</sup> Drink they, and forget they their neediness; and think they no more on their sorrow.

<sup>8</sup> Open thy mouth for a dumb man, and open thy mouth for the causes of all sons that pass forth.

<sup>9</sup> Deem thou that that is just, and deem thou a needy man and a poor man.

<sup>10</sup> Who shall find a strong woman? the price of her is[a] far, and from the last [or utmost] ends.

<sup>11</sup> The heart of her husband trusteth in her; and he shall not have need to robberies.

<sup>12</sup> She shall yield to him good, and not evil, in all the days of her life.

<sup>14</sup> She is made as the ship of a merchant, that beareth his bread from [a] far.

<sup>15</sup> And she rose by night, and gave lifelode to her menials, and meats to her handmaidens.

<sup>16</sup> She beheld a field, and bought it; of the fruit of her hands she planted a vinery [or a vineyard].

<sup>18</sup> She tasted, and saw, that her merchandise was good; her lantern shall not be quenched in the night.

- <sup>19</sup> She put her hands to the wharve, and her fingers took the spindle.
- <sup>20</sup> She opened her hand to the needy man, and stretched forth her hands to a poor man.
- <sup>21</sup> She shall not dread for her house of the colds of snow; for all her menials be clothed with double clothes.
- <sup>22</sup> She made to her a ray-cloth; bis, either white silk, and purple is the cloth[ing] of her.
- <sup>23</sup> Her husband is noble in the gates, when he sitteth with the senators of [the] earth.
- <sup>24</sup> She made linen cloth, and sold it; and gave a girdle to a merchant.
- <sup>25</sup> Strength and fairness is the clothing of her; and she shall laugh in the last day.
- <sup>26</sup> She opened her mouth to wisdom; and the law of mercy is in her tongue.
- <sup>27</sup> She beheld the paths of her house; and she ate not bread idly.
- <sup>28</sup> Her sons rose up, and preached her most blessed; her husband rose, and praised her.
- <sup>29</sup> Many daughters gathered riches; thou passedest them all.
- <sup>30</sup> Fairness is deceivable grace, and vain; that woman, that dreadeth the Lord, [she] shall be praised.
- <sup>31</sup> Give ye to her of the fruit of her hands; and her works praise her in the gates.

ECCLESIASTES

<sup>3</sup> What hath a man more[over] of all his travail, by which he travaileth under the sun?

<sup>4</sup> A generation passeth away, [and] another generation cometh; but the earth standeth without end.

<sup>5</sup> The sun riseth [up], and goeth down, and turneth again to his place; and there it riseth again,

<sup>6</sup> and compasseth by the south, and turneth again to the north. The spirit compassing all things goeth about, and turneth again into his circles.

<sup>7</sup> All floods enter into the sea, and the sea floweth not over the marks set of God; the floods turn again to the place from whence they come forth, that they flow [out] again.

<sup>8</sup> All things be hard; a man may not declare those things by word; the eye is not filled by sight, neither the ear is filled by hearing.

<sup>9</sup> What is that thing that was, that that shall come? What is that thing that is made, that that shall be made? Nothing under the sun is new,

<sup>10</sup> neither any man may say, Lo! this thing is new; for now it went before in worlds, that were before us.

<sup>11</sup> Mind of the former things is not, but soothly neither thinking of those things, that shall come afterward, shall be at them that shall come in the last time.

<sup>12</sup> I Ecclesiastes was king of Israel in Jerusalem;

<sup>13</sup> and I purposed in my soul to seek and ensearch wisely of all things, that be made under the sun. God gave this evil occupation to the sons of men, that they should be occupied therein.

<sup>14</sup> I saw all things that be made under the sun, and lo! all things be vanity and torment of spirit.

<sup>15</sup> Wayward men be amended of hard; and the number of fools is great without end.

<sup>16</sup> I spake in mine heart, and I said, Lo! I am made great, and I passed in wisdom all men, that were before me in Jerusalem; and my soul saw many things wisely, and I learned.

<sup>17</sup> And I gave mine heart, that I should know prudence and doctrine, and errors and folly. And I knew that in these things also was travail and torment of spirit;

<sup>18</sup> for in much wisdom is much indignation, and he that increaseth knowing, increaseth also travail.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Therefore I said in mine heart, I shall go, and I shall flow in delights, and I shall use goods; and I saw also that this was vanity.

<sup>2</sup> And laughing I areckoned error, and I said to joy, What art thou, deceived in vain?

<sup>3</sup> I thought in mine heart to withdraw my flesh from wine, that I should lead over my soul to wisdom, and that I would eschew folly, till I should see, what were profitable to the sons of men; in which deed the number of days of their life under the sun is needful.

---

* CHAPTER 1:1 That is, of Solomon, for 'Ecclesiastes' is said, 'a speaker to the people'.

<sup>4</sup> I magnified, either made great, my works, I builded houses to me, and I planted vines;

<sup>5</sup> I made yards [or gardens] and orchards, and I set those with trees of all kinds;

<sup>6</sup> and I made cisterns of waters, for to water the wood of [the] trees growing.

<sup>7</sup> I had in possession servants and handmaids; and I had much meine, and droves of great beasts, and great flocks of sheep, over all men that were before me in Jerusalem.

<sup>8</sup> I gathered together to me silver and gold, and the castles of kings and of provinces; I made to me singers and singeresses, and [the] delights of the sons of men, and cups and vessels in service, to pour out wines;

<sup>9</sup> and I passed in riches all men that were before me in Jerusalem. Also wisdom dwelled stably with me,

<sup>10</sup> and all things which mine eyes desired, I denied not to them; neither I refrained mine heart, that not it used all lust, and delighted itself in these things which I had made ready; and I deemed this my part, if I used my travail.

<sup>11</sup> And when I had turned me to all the works which mine hands had made, and to the travails in which I had sweated in vain, I saw in all things vanity and torment of soul, and that nothing under [the] sun dwelleth.

<sup>12</sup> I passed forth to behold wisdom, and errors, and folly; I said, What is a man, that he may pursue [or follow] the king, his maker?

<sup>13</sup> And I saw, that wisdom went so much before folly, as much as light is diverse from darkneses.

<sup>14</sup> The eyes of a wise man be in his head, a fool goeth in darkneses; and I learned, that one perishing was of ever either.

<sup>15</sup> And I said in mine heart, If one death shall be both of the fool and of me, what profiteth it to me, that I gave more busyness to wisdom? And I spake with my soul, and perceived, that this also was vanity.

<sup>16</sup> For the mind of a wise man shall not be, in like manner as neither that of a fool, without end, and [the] times to coming [or to come] shall cover all things altogether with forgetting; a learned man dieth in like manner as an unlearned man.

<sup>17</sup> And therefore it annoyed me of my life, seeing that all things under [the] sun be evil, and that all things be vanity and torment of the spirit.

<sup>18</sup> Again I cursed all my busyness, by which I travailed most studiously under [the] sun; and I shall have an heir after me,

<sup>19</sup> whom I know not, whether he shall be wise either a fool; and he shall be lord in my travails, for which I sweated greatly, and was busy; and is there anything so vain?

<sup>20</sup> Wherefore I ceased, and mine heart forsook for to travail further under [the] sun.

<sup>21</sup> For why when another man travaileth in wisdom, and teaching, and busyness, he leaveth things gotten to an idle man; and therefore this is vanity, and great evil.

<sup>22</sup> For why what shall it profit to a man of all his travail, and torment of spirit, with which he was tormented under [the] sun?

<sup>23</sup> All his days be full of sorrows and mischiefs, and by night he resteth not in soul; and whether this is not vanity?

<sup>24</sup> Whether it is not better to eat and drink, and to show to his soul [the] goods of his travails? and this thing is of the hand of God.

<sup>25</sup> Who shall devour so, and shall flow in delights, as I have?

<sup>26</sup> God gave wisdom, and knowing, and gladness to a good man in his sight; but he gave torment, and superfluous busyness to a sinner, that he increase, and gather together, and give to him that pleaseth God; but also this is vanity, and vain busyness of soul.

CHAPTER 3

- <sup>1</sup> All things have time, and all things under [the] sun pass by their spaces.
- <sup>2</sup> Time of birth, and time of dying; time to plant, and time to draw up that that is planted.
- <sup>3</sup> Time to slay, and time to make whole; time to destroy, and time to build.
- <sup>4</sup> Time to weep, and time to laugh; time to bewail, and time to dance.
- <sup>5</sup> Time to scatter stones, and time to gather together; time to embrace, and time to be far from embracings, or embraces.
- <sup>6</sup> Time to get, and time to lose; time to keep, and time to cast away.
- <sup>7</sup> Time to cut, and time to sew together; time to be still, and time to speak.
- <sup>8</sup> Time to love, and time of hatred; time of battle, and time of peace.
- <sup>9</sup> What hath a man more of his travail?
- <sup>10</sup> I saw the torment, which God gave to the sons of men, that they be occupied therein.
- <sup>11</sup> God made all things good in their time, and gave the world to disputing of them, that a man find not the work that God hath wrought from the beginning unto the end.
- <sup>12</sup> And I knew that nothing was better to a man, but to be glad, and to do good works in his life.
- <sup>13</sup> For why each man that eateth and drinketh, and seeth good of his travail; this is the gift of God.
- <sup>14</sup> I have learned that all the works, that God made, last steadfastly unto without end; we may not add anything to those works, neither take away from those things, which God made, that he be dreaded.
- <sup>15</sup> That thing that is made, dwelleth perfectly; those things that shall come, were before; and God restoreth that, that is gone.
- <sup>16</sup> I saw under [the] sun unfaithfulness in the place of doom; and wickedness in the place of rightfulness.
- <sup>17</sup> And I said in mine heart, The Lord shall deem a just [or rightwise] man, and an unfaithful man; and the time of each thing shall be then.
- <sup>18</sup> I said in mine heart of the sons of men, that God should prove them, and show that they be like beasts.
- <sup>19</sup> Therefore one is the perishing of man and of beasts, and even condition is of ever either; as a man dieth, so and those beasts die; all those breathe in like manner, and a man hath nothing more than a beast. All things be subject to vanity,
- <sup>20</sup> and all things go to one place; those be made of earth, and those turn again altogether into earth.
- <sup>21</sup> Who knoweth, if the spirit[s] of the sons of Adam goeth upward, and if the spirits of beasts goeth downward?
- <sup>22</sup> And I perceived that nothing is better, than that a man be glad in his work, and that this be his part; for who shall bring him, that he know things that shall come after him?

CHAPTER 4

- <sup>1</sup> I turned me to other things, and I saw false challenges, that be done under the sun, and the tears of the guiltless, and no man a comforter; and that they destitute, either forsaken, of the help of all men, may not against-stand the violence of them.
- <sup>2</sup> And I praised more dead men than living men;
- <sup>3</sup> and I deemed him, that was not born yet, and saw not the evils that be done under the sun, to be more blessed than ever either.

<sup>4</sup> Again I beheld all the travails of men, and busynesses; and I perceived that those be open to [the] envy of the neighbour; and therefore in this is vanity, and superfluous busyness.

<sup>6</sup> and saith, Better is an handful, with rest, than ever either hand full, with travail and torment of soul.

<sup>7</sup> I beheld and found also another vanity under the sun;

<sup>8</sup> one there is, and he hath not a second; neither a son, nor a brother; and nevertheless he ceaseth not to travail, neither his eyes be filled with riches; neither he bethinketh him, and saith, To whom travail I, and deceive my soul in goods? In this also is vanity, and the worst torment.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore it is better, that two be together than one; for they have profit of their fellowship.

<sup>10</sup> If one falleth down, he shall be underset of the tother; woe to him that is alone, for when he falleth, he hath none to raise him up.

<sup>11</sup> And if twain sleep together, they shall be nourished together; how shall one be made hot?

<sup>12</sup> And if any man hath [the] mastery against one, twain [or two] against-stand him; a threefold cord is broken of hard.

<sup>13</sup> A poor man and wise is better than an eld [or old] king and foolish, that cannot before-see into time to coming [or after].

<sup>14</sup> For sometime a man goeth out, both from prison and chains, to a realm; and another, born into a realm, is wasted by neediness.

<sup>15</sup> I saw all men living that go under the sun, with the second young waxing man, that shall rise for him.

<sup>16</sup> The number of people, of all that were before him, is great without measure, and they that shall come afterward, shall not be glad in him; but also this is vanity and torment of the spirit.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Thou that enterest into the house of God, keep thy foot, and nigh thou for to hear; for why much better is obedience, than the sacrifice of fools, that know not what evil they do.

<sup>2</sup> Speak thou not anything follily, neither thine heart be swift to bring forth a word before God; for God is in heaven, and thou art on earth, therefore thy words be few.

<sup>4</sup> If thou hast avowed anything to God, tarry thou not to yield it; for an unfaithful and fond promise displeaseth him; but yield thou whatever thing thou hast avowed;

<sup>5</sup> and it is much better to make not a vow, than after a vow to yield not the promises.

<sup>6</sup> Give thou not thy mouth, that thou make thy flesh to do sin; neither say thou before an angel, No purvey-ance there is; lest peradventure the Lord be wroth on thy words, and destroy all the works of thine hands.

<sup>7</sup> Where be many dreams, be full many vanities, and words without number; but dread thou God.

<sup>8</sup> If thou seest false challenges of needy men, and violent dooms, and that rightfulness is destroyed in the province, wonder thou not on this doing; for another is higher than an high man, and also other men be more high above these men;

<sup>9</sup> and furthermore the king of all earth commandeth to the servant.

<sup>10</sup> An avaricious man shall not be [ful] filled of money; and he that loveth riches shall not take fruits of them; and therefore this is vanity.

<sup>11</sup> Where there be many riches, also many men there be, that eat those; and what profiteth it to the holder, but that he seeth [the] riches with his eyes?

<sup>12</sup> Sleep is sweet to him that worketh, whether he eat little either much; but the fullness of a rich man suffereth not him to sleep.

<sup>13</sup> Also another sickness is full evil, which I saw under the sun; riches be kept into the harm of their lord.

<sup>14</sup> For they perish in the worst torment; he begat a son, that shall be in sovereign neediness.

<sup>15</sup> As he went naked out of his mother's womb, so he shall turn again; and he shall take away with him nothing of his travail.

<sup>16</sup> Utterly it is a wretched sickness; as he came, so he shall turn again. What profiteth it to him, that he travailed into the wind?

<sup>17</sup> In all the days of his life he ate in darkneses, and in many busynesses, and in neediness, and sorrow.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore this seemed good to me, that a man eat, and drink, and use gladness of his travail, in which he travailed under the sun, in the number of [the] days of his life, which God gave to him; and this is his part.

<sup>19</sup> And to each man, to whom God gave riches, and chattel [or substance], and gave power to him to eat of those, and to use his part, and to be glad of his travail; this is the gift of God.

<sup>20</sup> For he shall not think much on the days of his life, for God occupieth his heart with delights.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Also another evil there is, which I saw under the sun; and certainly it is oft used with men.

<sup>2</sup> A man is, to whom God gave riches, and chattel [or substance], and honour; and nothing faileth to his soul of all things which he desireth; and God giveth not power to him, that he eat thereof, but a strange man shall devour it*. This is vanity, and a great wretchedness.

<sup>3</sup> If a man engendereth an hundred free sons, and hath many days of age, and his soul useth not the goods of his chattel [or substance], and wanteth burying; I pronounce of this man, that a dead-born child is better than he.

<sup>4</sup> For he cometh in vain, and goeth to darkneses; and his name shall be done away by forgetting.

<sup>5</sup> He saw not the sun, neither knew the diversity of good and of evil;

<sup>6</sup> also though he live two thousand years, and useth not [the] goods; whether all things hasten not to one place?

<sup>7</sup> All the travail of a man is in his mouth, but the soul of him shall not be [ful] filled with goods.

<sup>8</sup> What hath a wise man more than a fool? and what hath a poor man, but that he go thither, where is life?

<sup>9</sup> It is better to see that, that thou covetest, than to desire that, that thou knowest not; but also this is vanity, and presumption of spirit.

<sup>10</sup> The name of him that shall come, is called now, and it is known, that he is a man, and he may not strive in doom against a stronger than himself.

<sup>11</sup> Words be full many, and have much vanity in disputing. What need is it to a man to seek greater things than himself;

---

* CHAPTER 6:2 For God draweth him away suddenly from present life.

<sup>12</sup> since he knoweth not, what shall befall to him in his life, in the number of days of his pilgrimage, and in the time that passeth as shadow? either who may show to him, what thing under [the] sun shall come after him?

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> A good name is better than precious ointments; and the day of death is better than the day of birth.

<sup>2</sup> It is better to go to the house of mourning, than to the house of a feast; for in that house of mourning the end of all men is warned of, and a man living thinketh, what is to coming [or to come].

<sup>3</sup> Ire [or wrath] is better than laugh-ing; for the soul of a trespasser is amended by the heaviness of his cheer.

<sup>4</sup> The heart of wise men is where sorrow is; and the heart of fools is where folly gladness is.

<sup>5</sup> It is better to be reprov'd of a wise man, than to be deceived by the flattering of fools;

<sup>6</sup> for as the sound of thorns burning under a pot, so is the laughing of a fool. But also this is vanity.

<sup>7</sup> False challenge troubleth a wise man, and it shall lose the strength of his heart.

<sup>9</sup> Be thou not swift to be wroth; for ire resteth in the bosom of a fool.

<sup>10</sup> Say thou not, What guessest thou is the cause, that the former times were better than be now? for why such asking is fond or foolish.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth wisdom with riches is more profitable, and profiteth more to men seeing the sun.

<sup>12</sup> For as wisdom defendeth, so money defendeth; but learning and wisdom have this moreover, that those give life to them that have them.

<sup>13</sup> Behold thou the works of God, and see that no man may amend him, whom God hath despised.

<sup>14</sup> In a good day use thou goods, and before eschew thou an evil day; for God made so this day as that day, that a man find not just complainings against him.

<sup>15</sup> Also I saw these things in the days of my nativity*; a just [or rightwise] man perisheth in his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and a wicked man liveth much time in his malice.

<sup>16</sup> Do not thou be just [or rightwise] over much, neither understand thou more than is needful; lest thou be astonied.

<sup>17</sup> Do thou not wickedly much, and do not thou be a fool; lest thou die in a time not thine.

<sup>18</sup> It is good, that thou sustain a just [or rightwise] man; but also withdraw thou not thine hand from him; for he that dreadeth God, is not negligent of anything.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth no just [or rightwise] man there is in [the] earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not.

<sup>21</sup> But also give thou not thine heart to all words, that be said; lest peradventure thou hear thy servant cursing thee;

<sup>22</sup> for thy conscience knoweth, that also thou hast cursed oft other men.

<sup>23</sup> I assayed all things in wisdom; I said, I shall be made wise, and it went away further from me,

---

* CHAPTER 7:15 That is, of present life, that passeth soon away, so it is not no but vanity.

<sup>24</sup> much more than it was; and the depth is low, who shall find it?

<sup>25</sup> I compassed all things with my soul, to know, and to behold, and seek wisdom, and reason, and to know the wickedness of a fool, and the error of unprudent men.

<sup>26</sup> And I found a woman bitterer than death, the which is the snare of hunters, and her heart is a net, and her hands be bonds; he that pleaseth God shall escape her, but he that is a sinner, shall be taken of her.

<sup>27</sup> Lo! I found this, said Ecclesiastes, one and other, that I should find reason, <sup>28</sup> which my soul seeketh yet; and I found not. I found one man of a thousand; and I found not a woman of all.

<sup>29</sup> I found this only, that God made a man rightful [or made man right]; and he meddled himself with questions without number.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> Who is such as a wise man? and who knoweth the solving, either expounding, of a word? The wisdom of a man shineth in his cheer; and the mightiest shall change his face.

<sup>2</sup> I keep the mouth of the king, and the commandments and [the] swearings of God.

<sup>3</sup> Haste thou not to go away from his face, and dwell thou not in evil work. For he shall do all thing, that he will;

<sup>4</sup> and his word is full of power, and no man may say to him, Why doest thou so?

<sup>5</sup> He that keepeth the commandment of God, shall not feel anything of evil; the heart of a wise man understandeth time and answer.

<sup>6</sup> Time and season is to each work; and much torment is of a man, <sup>7</sup> for he knoweth not [the] things passed, and he may not know by any messenger [the] things to come.

<sup>8</sup> It is not in the power of man to forbid the spirit, that is, his soul, from going out from the body, neither he hath power in the day of death, neither he is suffered to have rest, when the battle nigheth; neither wickedness shall save a wicked man.

<sup>9</sup> I beheld all these things, and I gave mine heart in all works, that be done under the sun. Sometime a man is lord of a man, to his evil.

<sup>10</sup> I saw wicked men buried, which, when they lived yet, were in holy place; and they were praised in the city, as men of just [or rightwise] works; but also this is vanity.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth for the sentence is not brought forth soon against evil men, the sons of men do evils without any dread.

<sup>12</sup> Nevertheless of that, that a sinner doeth evil an hundred times, and is suffered by patience, I knew that good it shall be to men dreading God, that reverence his face, or presence.

<sup>13</sup> Good be not to the wicked man, neither his days be made long; but pass they as shadow, that dread not the face of the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> Also another vanity there is, that is done on earth. Just [or rightwise] men there be, to whom evils come, as if they did the works of wicked men; and wicked men there be, that be as secure, as if they had done the deeds of just [or rightwise] men; but I deem also this most vain.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore I praised gladness, that no good was to a man under the sun, but to eat, and drink, and to be joyful; and that he should bear away with himself only this of his travail, in the days of his life, which God gave to him under the sun.

<sup>16</sup> And I setted mine heart to know wisdom, and to understand the parting, which is turned in earth. A man is, that by days and nights, taketh not sleep with his eyes.

<sup>17</sup> And I understood, that of all the works of God, a man may find no reason of those things, that be done under the sun; and inasmuch as he travaileth more to seek, by so much he shall find less; yea, though a wise man say that he knoweth, he shall not be able to find.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> I treated all these things in mine heart, to understand diligently. Just [or rightwise] men, and wise men there be, and their works be in the hand of God; and nevertheless a man knoweth not, whether he is worthy of love or of hate.

<sup>2</sup> But all things be kept uncertain into the time to coming [or to come]; for all things befall evenly to a just [or rightwise] man and to a wicked man, to a good man and to an evil man, to a clean man and to an unclean man, to a man offering offerings and sacrifices, and to a man despising sacrifices; as a good man, so and a sinner; as a forsworn man, so and he that greatly sweareth truth.

<sup>3</sup> This thing is the worst among all things, that be done under the sun, that the same thing befall to all men; wherefore and the hearts of the sons of men be filled with malice and with despising in their life; and after these things, they shall be led down into hells [or to hell].

<sup>4</sup> No man there is, that liveth ever, and that hath trust of this thing; better is a quick dog than a dead lion.

<sup>5</sup> For they that live know that they shall die; but dead men know nothing more, neither have meed further; for their mind is given to forgetting.

<sup>6</sup> Also their love, and hatred, and envy, perished altogether; and they have no part in this world, and in the work that is done under the sun.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore go thou, just man, and eat thy bread in gladness, and drink thy wine with joy; for thy works please God.

<sup>8</sup> In each time thy clothes be white, and oil fail not from thine head.

<sup>9</sup> Use thou life with the wife which thou lovest, in all the days of the life of thine unstableness, that be given to thee under the sun, in all the time of thy vanity; for this is thy part in thy life and [thy] travail, by which thou travailest under the sun.

<sup>10</sup> Work thou busily, whatever thing thine hand may do; for neither work, neither reason, nor knowing, nor wisdom, shall be at hells [or with hell], whither thou hastest.

<sup>11</sup> I turned me to another thing, and I saw under [the] sun, that running [or course] is not of swift men, neither battle is of strong men, neither bread is of wise men, neither riches be of teachers, nor grace is of craftsmen; but time and hap is in all things*.

<sup>12</sup> A man knoweth not his end; but as fishes be taken with an hook, and as birds be taken with a snare, so men be taken in evil time, when it cometh suddenly [up] on them.

<sup>13</sup> Also I saw this wisdom under the sun, and I proved it the most.

<sup>15</sup> And a poor man and a wise was found therein; and he delivered the city by his wisdom, and no man bethought afterward on that poor man.

<sup>16</sup> And I said, that wisdom is better than strength; how therefore is the wisdom of a poor man despised, and his words be not heard?

<sup>17</sup> The words of wise men be heard in silence, more than the cry of a prince among fools.

<sup>18</sup> Better is wisdom than armours [or arms] of battle; and he that sinneth in one thing, shall lose many goods.

---

* CHAPTER 9:11 That is, uncertainty, that oweth to refrain a man from pride.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Flies that die in it, lose the sweetness of [the] ointment. A little folly at some time is more precious than wisdom and glory.

<sup>4</sup> If the spirit of him, that hath power, goeth upon thee, forsake thou not thy place; for curing, or caring, or taking heed, shall make greatest sins to cease.

<sup>5</sup> An evil there is, that I saw under the sun, and going out as by error from the face of the prince;

<sup>7</sup> I saw servants on horses, and princes as servants going on the earth.

<sup>8</sup> He that diggeth a ditch, shall fall into it; and an adder shall bite him, that destroyeth a hedge.

<sup>9</sup> He that beareth over stones, shall be tormented in those; and he that cutteth trees, shall be wounded of those [or them].

<sup>10</sup> If iron is folded again, and it is not as before, but is made blunt, it shall be made sharp with much travail; and wisdom shall follow after busyness.

<sup>11</sup> If a serpent biteth, it biteth in silence; he that backbiteth privily, hath nothing less than it.

<sup>12</sup> The words of the mouth of a wise man be grace; and the lips of an unwise man shall cast him down.

<sup>14</sup> A fool multiplieth words; a man knoweth not, what was before him, and who may show to him that, that shall come after him?

<sup>18</sup> The highness of houses shall be made low in sloths; and the house shall drop rain in the feebleness of hands.

<sup>19</sup> In laughing, they dispose bread and wine, that they drinking eat largely; and all things obey to money.

<sup>20</sup> In thy thought backbite thou not the king, and in the private of thy bed, curse thou not a rich man; for the birds of heaven shall bear thy voice, and he that hath pens or wings, shall tell the sentence.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>2</sup> Give thou parts seven, and also eight; for thou knowest not, what evil shall come [up] on earth.

<sup>3</sup> If clouds be filled, they shall shed [or pour] out rain on the earth; if a tree falleth down to the south, either to the north, in whatever place it falleth down, there it shall be.

<sup>4</sup> He that espieth the wind, soweth not; and he that beholdeth the clouds, shall never reap.

<sup>5</sup> As thou knowest not, which is the way of the spirit, and by what reason bones be joined together in the womb of a woman with child, so thou knowest not the works of God, which is maker of all things.

<sup>7</sup> The light is sweet, and delightable to the eyes to see the sun.

<sup>8</sup> If a man liveth many years, and is glad in all these, he oweth to have mind of [the] dark time, and of many days; and when those shall come, [the] things passed shall be reproved of vanity.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore, thou young man, be glad in thy youth, and thine heart be in goodness in the days of thy youth, and go thou in the ways of thine heart, and in the beholding of thine eyes; and know thou, that for all these things God shall bring thee into doom.

<sup>10</sup> Do thou away ire [or wrath] from thine heart, and remove thou malice from thy flesh; for why youth and lust be vain things, or vanity.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Have thou mind on thy Creator* in the days of thy youth, before that the time of thy torment come, and the years of thy death nigh, of which thou shalt say, Those please not me.

<sup>2</sup> Before that the sun be dark, and the light, and stars, and the moon; and the clouds turn again after rain.

<sup>3</sup> When the doorkeepers of the house shall be moved, and [the] strongest men shall tremble; and [the] grinders shall be idle, when the number shall be made less, and seers by the holes shall wax dark;

<sup>4</sup> and shall close the doors in the street, in the lowness of [the] voice of a grinder; and they shall rise at the voice of a bird, and all the daughters of song shall wax deaf.

<sup>5</sup> And high things shall dread, and shall be afeared in the way; and an almond tree shall flower, a locust shall be made fat, and capers shall be destroyed; for a man shall go into the house of his everlastingness, and wailers shall go about in the street.

<sup>6</sup> Have thou mind on thy Creator, before that a silveren rope be broken, and a golden lace run against, and a water pot be all-broken on the well, and a wheel be broken altogether on the cistern;

<sup>7</sup> and dust turn again into his earth, whereof it was, and the spirit turn again to God, that gave it.

<sup>8</sup> The vanity of vanities, said Ecclesiastes, the vanity of vanities, and all things be vanity. [Vanity of vanities, said Ecclesiastes, vanity of vanities, and all things vanity.]

<sup>9</sup> And when Ecclesiastes was most wise, he taught the people, and he told out the things which he did, and he sought out wisdom, and made many parables;

<sup>10</sup> he sought profitable words, and he wrote most rightful [or right] words, and full of truth.

<sup>11</sup> The words of wise men be as pricks, and as nails fastened deep, which be given of one shepherd by the counsels of masters.

<sup>12</sup> My son, seek thou no more than these; none end there is to make many books, and oft thinking is torment of [the] flesh.

<sup>13</sup> All we hear together the end of speaking. Dread thou God, and keep his behests; that is to know, every man.

<sup>14</sup> God shall bring all things into doom, that be done; for each thing covered, either privy, whether it be good, or evil.

---

* CHAPTER 12:1 The Hebrew for 'thy creator' sounds much like the Hebrew for 'thy grave'. (Good News Bible)

SONG OF SONGS

<sup>2</sup> Kiss he me with the kiss of his mouth. For thy loves be better than wine†,

<sup>3</sup> and give odour with best oint-ments. Thy name is like oil shed [or poured] out; therefore [the] young damsels loved thee.

<sup>4</sup> Draw thou me after thee; we shall run. The king led me into his cellars; we mindful of thy loves above wine, shall make full out joy, and we shall be glad in thee; rightful men love thee.

<sup>5</sup> Ye daughters of Jerusalem, I am black, but fair, as the tabernacles of Kedar, as the skins of Solomon.

<sup>6</sup> Do not ye behold me, that I am black, for the sun hath discoloured me; the sons of my mother fought against me, they set me a keeper in vineries; I kept not my vinery.

<sup>7</sup> Thou spouse, whom my soul loveth, show to me, where thou pasturest, where thou restest in mid-day; lest I begin to wander, after the flocks of thy fellows.

<sup>9</sup> My love, I likened thee to mine host of knights in the chariots of Pharaoh.

<sup>12</sup> When the king was in his resting place, my nard gave his odour.

<sup>13</sup> My darling is a bundle of myrrh to me; he shall dwell betwixt my teats.

<sup>14</sup> My darling is to me a cluster of cypress trees, among the vineries of Engedi.

<sup>15</sup> Lo! my love, thou art fair; lo! thou art fair, thine eyes be the eyes of culvers.

<sup>16</sup> Lo! my darling, thou art fair and shapely; our bed is fair as flowers.

<sup>17</sup> The beams of our houses be of cedar; our couplings be of cypress.

<sup>1</sup> I am a flower of the field, and a lily of great valleys.

<sup>3</sup> As an apple tree among the trees of woods, so is my darling among sons. I sat under the shadow of him, whom I desired; and his fruit was sweet to my throat.

<sup>4</sup> The king led me into the wine cellar; he ordained charity in me.

<sup>5</sup> Beset ye me with flowers, en-compass ye me with apples; for I am sick for love.

<sup>7</sup> Ye daughters of Jerusalem, I charge you greatly, by caprets, and harts of fields, that ye raise not, neither make to awake the dear-worthy spousess, till she will.

<sup>9</sup> My darling is like a capret, and a calf of harts; lo! he standeth behind our wall, and beholdeth by the windows, and looketh through the lattice.

<sup>10</sup> Lo! my darling speaketh to me, My love, my culver, my fair spousess, rise thou, haste thou, and come thou;

---

* CHAPTER 1:1 One manuscript adds, 'that were made of (or by) Solomon, to be sung in the temple of the Lord, into everlasting worshipping, and needeth none other prologue'. † CHAPTER 1:2 The "Early Version" of the "Wycliffe Bible", and one copy of the "Later Version" labeled "X", present this book as an allegorical dialogue between Christ and the Church. For example, this verse is introduced as: 'The Church, of the coming of Christ speaketh (or The Church speaketh of the coming of Christ), saying,...'.

<sup>11</sup> for winter is passed now, rain is gone, and is departed away.

<sup>12</sup> Flowers have appeared in our land, and the time of cutting is come; the voice of a turtle is heard in our land,

<sup>13</sup> the fig tree hath brought forth his buds; the vineries flowering have given their odour. My love, my fair spousess, rise thou, haste thou, and come thou.

<sup>15</sup> Catch ye little foxes to us, that destroy the vineries; for our vinery hath flowered.

<sup>16</sup> My darling is to me, and I am to him, which is fed among lilies;

<sup>17</sup> till the day spring, and shadows be bowed down. My darling, turn thou again; be thou like a capret, and a calf of harts, on the hills of Bether.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> In my little bed, I sought him by nights, whom my soul loveth; I sought him, and I found not.

<sup>2</sup> So I said, I shall rise, and I shall compass the city, by little streets and large streets; I shall seek him, whom my soul loveth; I sought him, and I found not.

<sup>3</sup> Watchmen, that keep the city, found me. I asked, Whether ye saw him, whom my soul loveth?

<sup>4</sup> A little when I had passed them, I found him, whom my soul loveth; I held him, and I shall not leave him, till I bring him into the house of my mother, and into the [bed-]closet of my mother.

<sup>5</sup> Ye daughters of Jerusalem, I charge you greatly, by the caprets, and harts of fields, that ye raise not, neither make to awake the dearworthy spousess, till she will.

<sup>6</sup> Who is this woman, that goeth up by the desert, as a rod of smoke of sweet smelling spices, of myrrh, and of incense, and of all powder of an ointment maker?

<sup>8</sup> and all they hold swords, and be most witting to battles; the sword of each man is on his hip, for the dread of nights.

<sup>10</sup> he made the pillars thereof of silver; he made a golden resting place, a going up of purple; and he arrayed the middle things with charity, for the daughters of Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> My friendess, thou art full fair; thou art full fair; thine eyes be of culvers, without that, that is hid within; thine hairs be as the flocks of goats, that went up from the hills of Gilead.

<sup>2</sup> Thy teeth be as the flocks of shorn sheep, that went up from [the] washing; all be with double lambs, and no barren is among those.

<sup>3</sup> Thy lips be as a red lace, and thy speech is sweet; as the remnant of an apple of Punic, so be thy cheeks, without that, that is hid within.

<sup>4</sup> Thy neck is as the tower of David, which is builded with strong-holds made before for defence; a thousand shields hang on it, all [the] armour of strong men.

<sup>5</sup> Thy two teats be as two kids, twins of a capret, that be fed among lilies, <sup>6</sup> till the day spring, and [the] shadows be bowed down. I shall go to the mountain of myrrh, and to the little hill of incense.

<sup>9</sup> My sister spousess, thou hast wounded mine heart; thou hast wounded mine heart, in one of thine eyes, and in one hair of thy neck.

<sup>10</sup> My sister spousess, thy loves be full fair; thy loves be fairer than wine, and the odour of thy clothes is above all sweet smelling ointments.

<sup>11</sup> Spousess, thy lips be as an honeycomb dropping; honey and milk be under thy tongue, and the odour of thy clothes is as the odour of incense.

<sup>13</sup> Thy sendings-out be as a paradise of apples of Punic, with the fruits of apples, cypress trees, with nard;

<sup>14</sup> nard and saffron, an herb called fistula, and canel, with all [the] trees of the Lebanon, myrrh, and aloes, with all the best, either first, ointments.

<sup>16</sup> Rise thou, north wind, and come thou, south wind; blow thou through my garden, and the sweet smelling ointments thereof shall flow. My darling, come he into his garden, to eat the fruit of his apples.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> My sister spousess, come thou into my garden. I have reaped my myrrh, with my sweet smelling spices; I have eaten an honeycomb, with mine honey; I have drunk my wine, with my milk. Friends, eat ye, and drink; and most dear friends, be ye filled greatly.

<sup>2</sup> I sleep, and mine heart waketh. The voice of my darling knocking; my sister, my love, my culver, my spousess unwemmed, open thou to me; for mine head is full of dew, and mine hairs be full of [the] drops of nights.

<sup>3</sup> I have unclothed me of my coat; how shall I be clothed therein? I have washed my feet; how shall I defoul them?

<sup>4</sup> My darling put his hand by an hole in the door; and my womb trembled at the touching thereof.

<sup>5</sup> I rose, for to open to my darling; mine hands dropped myrrh, and my fingers were full of myrrh most proved.

<sup>6</sup> I opened the wicket of my door to my darling; and he had bowed away, and had passed forth. My soul was melted, as the darling spake; I sought, and I found not him; I called, and he answered not to me.

<sup>7</sup> The keepers that compassed the city found me; they smote me, and wounded me; the keepers of [the] walls took away my mantle.

<sup>8</sup> Ye daughters of Jerusalem, I beseech you by an holy thing, if ye have found my darling, that ye tell to him, that I am sick for love.

<sup>9</sup> A! thou fairest of women, of what manner condition is thy darling of the beloved? of what manner condition is thy darling of a darling? for thou hast so besought us by an holy thing.

<sup>11</sup> His head is best gold; his hairs be as the boughs of palm trees, and be black as a crow.

<sup>13</sup> His cheeks be as gardens of sweet smelling spices, set of ointment makers; his lips be as lilies, dropping down the best myrrh.

<sup>15</sup> His hips be pillars of marble, that be founded on foundations of gold; his shapeliness is as the Lebanon, he is chosen as cedars.

<sup>16</sup> His throat is most sweet, and he is all desirable. Ye daughters of Jerusalem, such is my darling, and this is my friend.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Thou fairest of women, whither went [away] thy darling? whither bowed [down] thy darling? and we shall seek him with thee.

<sup>2</sup> My darling went down into his orchard, to the garden of sweet smelling spices, that he be fed there in [the] orchards, and gather lilies.

<sup>3</sup> I to my darling; and my darling, that is fed among the lilies, be to me.

<sup>4</sup> My love, thou art fair, sweet and shapely as Jerusalem, thou art fearedful as the battle array of hosts set in good order.

<sup>5</sup> Turn away thine eyes from me, for they made me to flee away; thine hairs be as the flocks of goats, that appeared from Gilead.

<sup>6</sup> Thy teeth be as a flock of sheep, that went up from [the] washing; all be with double lambs, either twins, and no barren there is among them.

<sup>7</sup> As the rind of a pomegranate, so be thy cheeks, without thy privates.

<sup>8</sup> Sixty be queens, and eighty be secondary wives; and of young damsels is none number.

<sup>9</sup> One is my culver, my perfect spousess, one is to her mother, and is the chosen of her mother; the daughters of Zion saw her, and preached her most blessed; queens, and secondary wives, praised her.

<sup>10</sup> Who is this, that goeth forth, as the morrowtide rising, fair as the moon, chosen as the sun, fearedful as the battle array of hosts set in good order?

<sup>11</sup> I came down into mine orchard, to see the apples of great valleys, and to behold, if vineries had flowered, and if the pomegranate trees had burgeoned.

<sup>12</sup> I knew not; my soul troubled me, for the chariots of Amminadib.

<sup>13</sup> Turn again, turn again, thou Shulamite; turn again, turn again, that we behold thee. What shalt thou see in the Shulamite, but companies of hosts?

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Daughter of the prince, thy goings be full fair in shoes; the jointures of thy hips be as brooches, that be made by the hand of a craftsman.

<sup>2</sup> Thy navel is as a round cup, and well-formed, that hath never need to drinks; thy womb is as an heap of wheat, beset about with lilies.

<sup>5</sup> Thine head is as Carmel; and the hairs of thine head be as the king's purple, joined to troughs.

<sup>8</sup> I said, I shall go up into a palm tree, and I shall take the fruits thereof. And thy teats shall be as the clusters of grapes of a vinery; and the odour of thy mouth as the odour of pom-egranates;

<sup>9</sup> thy throat shall be as best wine. Worthy to my darling for to drink, and to his lips and teeth to chew.

<sup>10</sup> I shall cleave by love to my darling, and his turning shall be to me.

<sup>11</sup> Come thou, my darling, go we out into the field; dwell we together in towns.

<sup>12</sup> Rise we early to the vinery; see we, if the vine hath flowered, if the flowers bring forth fruit, if [the] pomegranates have flowered; there I shall give to thee my loves.

<sup>13</sup> [The] Mandrakes have given their odour in our gates; my darling, I have kept to thee all apples, new and eld [or old].

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> Who may grant to me thee, my brother, sucking the teats of my mother, that I find thee alone without-forth, and that I kiss thee, and no man despise me then?

<sup>2</sup> I shall take thee, and I shall lead thee into the house of my mother, and into the bed-closet of my mother; there thou shalt teach me, and I shall give to thee drink of wine made sweet, and of the must of my pomegranates.

<sup>4</sup> Ye daughters of Jerusalem, I charge you greatly, that ye raise not, neither make the dearworthy spousess to awake, till she will.

<sup>5</sup> Who is this spousess, that goeth up from desert, and floweth in delights, and resteth on her darling? I raised thee under a pomegranate tree; there thy mother was corrupted, there thy mother was defouled.

<sup>6</sup> Set thou me as a signet on thine heart, as a signet on thine arm; for love is strong as death, envy is hard as hell; the lamps thereof be[the] lamps of fire, and of flames.

<sup>8</sup> Our sister is little, and hath no teats; what shall we do to our sister, in the day when she shall be spoken to?

<sup>9</sup> If it is a wall, build we thereon silveren towers; if it is a door, join we together with boards of cedar.

<sup>10</sup> I am a wall, and my teats be as a tower; since I am made as finding peace before him.

<sup>11</sup> A vinery was to the peaceable; in that city, that hath peoples, he betook it to keepers; a man bringeth a thousand pieces of silver for the fruit thereof.

<sup>12</sup> The vinery is before me; a thousand be of thee peaceable, and two hundred to them that keep the fruits thereof.

<sup>13</sup> Friends hearken to thee, that dwellest in orchards; make thou me to hear thy voice.

<sup>14</sup> My darling, fly thou; be thou made like a capret, and a calf of harts, on the hills of sweet smelling spices.

ISAIAH

<sup>2</sup> Ye heavens, hear, and thou earth, perceive with ears, for the Lord spake. I have nourished and I have enhanced sons; soothly they have despised me.

<sup>3</sup> An ox knew his lord, and an ass knew the cratch of his lord; but Israel knew not me, and my people under-stood not.

<sup>4</sup> Woe to the sinful folk, to the people heavy in wickedness, to the wayward seed, to the cursed sons; they have forsaken the Lord, they have blasphemed the Holy of Israel, they be alienated [away] backward.

<sup>5</sup> On what thing shall I smite you more, that increase trespassing? Each head is sick, and each heart is mourning.

<sup>6</sup> From the sole of the foot till to the noll, health is not therein; wound, and wanness, and beating swelling that is not bound about, neither cured by medicine, neither nursed with oil.

<sup>7</sup> Your land is forsaken, your cities be burnt by fire; aliens devour your country before you, and it shall be desolate as in the destroying of enemies.

<sup>8</sup> And the daughter of Zion, that is, Jerusalem, shall be forsaken as a shadowing place in a vineyard, and as an hulk in a place where gourds waxed, and as a city which is wasted.

<sup>9</sup> If the Lord of hosts had not left seed to us, we had been as Sodom, and we had been like as Gomorrah.

<sup>10</sup> Ye princes of men of Sodom, hear the word of the Lord; and ye people of Gomorrah, perceive with ears the law of your God.

<sup>11</sup> Whereto offer ye to me [or What to me] the multitude of your sacrifices? saith the Lord. I am full; I would not the burnt sacrifices of wethers, and the inner fatness of fat beasts, and the blood of calves, and of lambs, and of bucks of goats.

<sup>12</sup> When ye came before my sight, who asked of your hands these things, that ye should go in my foreyards?

<sup>13</sup> Offer ye no more sacrifice in vain; incense is abomination to me; I shall not suffer new moon, and sabbath, and other feasts. For your companies be wicked;

<sup>14</sup> my soul hateth your calends and your solemnities; those be dis-easeful to me, I travailed with suffering.

<sup>15</sup> And when ye stretch forth your hands, I shall turn away mine eyes from you; and when ye multiply prayer, I shall not hear; for why your hands be full of blood.

<sup>16</sup> Be ye washed, be ye clean; do ye away the evil of your thoughts from mine eyes; cease ye to do waywardly,

<sup>17</sup> learn ye to do well. Seek ye doom, help ye him that is oppressed, deem ye to the fatherless and motherless child, defend ye a widow.

<sup>18</sup> And come ye, and prove ye me, saith the Lord. Though your sins be as blood-red, those shall be made white as snow; and though they be red as vermilion, they shall be white as wool.

<sup>19</sup> If ye will, and hear me, ye shall eat the goods of [the] earth.

<sup>20</sup> That if ye do not, and ye stir me to wrathfulness [or wrath], sword shall devour you; for why the mouth of the Lord spake.

<sup>21</sup> How is the faithful city full of doom made an whore? rightfulness [or rightwiseness] dwelled therein; but now men-quellers dwel therein.

<sup>23</sup> Thy princes be unfaithful, the fellows of thieves; all love gifts, and follow yieldings, either meeds; they deem not to a fatherless child, and the cause of a widow entereth not to them.

<sup>24</sup> For this thing, saith the Lord God of hosts, the Strong of Israel, Alas! I shall be comforted on mine enemies, and I shall be avenged of mine enemies.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall turn mine hand to thee, and I shall seethe out thy filth to the clean, and I shall do away all thy tin.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall restore thy judges, as they were before, and thy counsellors, as in eld [or old] time. After these things thou shalt be called the city of the rightful [or rightwise], a faithful city.

<sup>27</sup> Zion shall be again-bought in doom, and they shall bring it again into rightfulness [or rightwiseness];

<sup>28</sup> and God shall all-break [the] cursed men and [the] sinners together, and they that forsake the Lord, shall be wasted.

<sup>29</sup> For they shall be ashamed of [the] idols, to which they made sacrifice; and ye shall be ashamed on the orchards, which ye choosed.

<sup>30</sup> When ye shall be as an oak, when the leaves fall down, and as an orchard without water.

<sup>31</sup> And your strength shall be as a dead spark of stubble, either of hards of flax, and your work shall be as a quick spark; and ever either shall be burnt together, and none shall be that shall quench.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>2</sup> And in the last days the hill of the house of the Lord shall be made ready in the top of hills [or the mountains], and shall be raised above little hills. And all heathen men shall flow to him;

<sup>3</sup> and many peoples shall go, and shall say, Come ye, ascend we [or go we up] to the hill of the Lord, and to the house of God of Jacob; and he shall teach us his ways, and we shall go in the paths of him. For why the law shall go out of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

<sup>5</sup> Come ye, the house of Jacob, and go we in the light of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth thou hast cast away thy people, the house of Jacob, for they be [full-]filled as sometime before; and they had false diviners by the chittering of birds, as Philistines, and they cleaved to alien children.

<sup>7</sup> The land is filled with silver and gold, and none end is of the treasures thereof; and the land thereof is filled with horses, and the four-horsed carts thereof be unnumberable.

<sup>8</sup> And the land thereof is filled with idols, and they worship the work of their hands, which their fingers made;

<sup>9</sup> and a man bowed himself, and a man of full age was made low. Therefore forgive thou not to them.

<sup>10</sup> Enter thou, people of Judah, into a stone, be thou hid in a ditch in earth, from the face of the dread of the Lord, and from the glory of his majesty.

---

* CHAPTER 2:4 In other writings, John Wycliffe renders this word in this verse as 'plowghschares' ('ploughshares'/'plowshares').

<sup>11</sup> The eyes of an high man be made low, and the highness of men shall be bowed down; forsooth the Lord alone shall be enhanced in that day.

<sup>12</sup> For the day of the Lord of hosts shall be on each proud man and high, and on each boaster, and he shall be made low;

<sup>13</sup> and on all the cedars of the Lebanon high and raised, and on all the oaks of Bashan,

<sup>14</sup> and on all high mountains, and on all little hills, that be raised [up];

<sup>15</sup> and on each high tower, and on each strong wall;

<sup>16</sup> and on all [the] ships of Tarshish, and on all thing which is fair in sight.

<sup>17</sup> And all the highness of men shall be bowed down, and the highness of men shall be made low; and the Lord alone shall be raised [up] in that day,

<sup>19</sup> And they shall enter into the dens of stones, and into the swallows of [the] earth, from the face of the inward dread of the Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise to smite the land.

<sup>20</sup> In that day a man shall cast away the idols of his silver, and the simulacra of his gold, which he had made to himself, for to worship mouldwarps and bats.

<sup>21</sup> And he shall enter into [the] chinks, either crazings, of stones, and into the caves of hard rocks, from the face of the inward dread of the Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he shall rise to smite the land.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore cease ye from a man, whose spirit is in his nostrils, for he is areckoned high.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> For lo! the lordly governor, the Lord of hosts, shall take away from Jerusalem and from Judah a mighty man, and strong, and all the strength of bread, and all the strength of water;

<sup>2</sup> a strong man, and a man a warrior, and a doomsman, and a prophet, and a false diviner in altars, and an eld [or old] man,

<sup>3</sup> a prince over fifty men, and a worshipful man in cheer, and a counsellor, and a wise man of principal craftsmen, and a prudent man of mystic, either ghostly, speech.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall give children to be the princes of them, and men of women's conditions shall be lords of them.

<sup>5</sup> And the people shall fall down, a man to a man, each man to his neighbour; a child shall make noise against an eld [or old] man, and an unnoble man against a noble man.

<sup>6</sup> For a man shall take his brother, the menial of his father, and shall say, A cloth is to thee, be thou our prince; forsooth this falling be under thine hand.

<sup>7</sup> And he shall answer in that day, and say, I am no leech, and neither bread, neither cloth is in mine house; do not ye make me prince of the people.

<sup>8</sup> For why Jerusalem fell down, and Judah fell down altogether; for the tongue of them, and the findings of them, were against the Lord, for to stir to wrath the eyes of his majesty.

<sup>9</sup> The knowing of their cheer hall answer to them; and they preached their sin, as Sodom did, and hid not. Woe to the soul of them, for why evils be yielded to them.

<sup>10</sup> Say ye to the just [or rightwise] man, that it shall be to him well; for he shall eat the fruit of his findings.

<sup>11</sup> Woe to the wicked man into evil; for why the yielding of his hands shall be made to him.

<sup>12</sup> The wrongful askers of my people robbed it, and women were lords thereof. My people, they that say thee blessed, deceive thee, and destroy the way of thy steps.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord standeth for to deem, and he standeth for to deem [the] peoples;

<sup>14</sup> the Lord shall come to doom, with the elder men of his people, and with his princes; for ye have wasted my vineyard, and the raven of a poor man is in your house.

<sup>15</sup> Why all-break ye my people, and grind together the faces of poor men? saith the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>16</sup> And the Lord God said, For that that the daughters of Zion were raised, and went with neck stretched forth, and went by signs of eyes, and clapped with hands, and went, and with their feet went in well-arrayed going,

<sup>17</sup> the Lord shall make bald the noll of the daughters of Zion, and the Lord shall make naked the hair of them.

<sup>18</sup> In that day the Lord shall take away the ornament of shoes, and golden little bells like the moon,

<sup>19</sup> and ribbons, and brooches, and ornaments of arms nigh the shoulders,

<sup>20</sup> and mitres, either chaplets, and combs, and ornaments of arms nigh the hands, and golden ornaments like lampreys, and little vessels of ointments, and earrings,

<sup>21</sup> and rings, and precious stones hanging in the forehead,

<sup>22</sup> and changing clothes, and mantles, and sheets, either smocks, and needles [or pins],

<sup>23</sup> and mirrors, and small linen clothes about the shoulders, and kerchiefs, and rochets.

<sup>26</sup> And the gates thereof shall wail, and mourn; and it shall sit desolate in [the] earth.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And seven women shall catch one man in that day, and shall say, We shall eat our bread, and we shall be covered with our clothes; only thy name be called on us, do thou away our shame.

<sup>2</sup> In that day the burgeoning of the Lord shall be in great worship and glory; and the fruit of [the] earth shall be high, and full out joy to them that shall be saved of Israel.

<sup>3</sup> And it shall be, each that is left in Zion, and is residue in Jerusalem, shall be called holy; each that is written in life in Jerusalem;

<sup>4</sup> for the Lord washeth away the filths of the daughters of Zion, and washeth the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof, in the spirit of doom, and in the spirit of heat.

<sup>5</sup> And the Lord made on each place of the hill of Zion, and where he was called to help, a cloud by day, and smoke, and brightness of fire flaming in the night; for why covering, either defending, shall be above all glory.

<sup>6</sup> And a tabernacle shall be into a shadowing place of the day, from heat, and into secureness, and into hiding, from whirlwind and from rain.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> I shall sing for my darling the song of mine uncle's son, of his vineyard. A vinery [or vineyard] was made to my darling, in the horn, that is, in an high place and excellent, in the son of oil, that is, in a place full of olives, of whose fruit is wrung out oil.

<sup>2</sup> And he hedged it, and chose stones thereof, and planted a chosen vinery [or vineyard]; and he builded a tower in the midst thereof, and reared a wine press therein; and he abode, that it should make grapes, and it made wild grapes.

<sup>3</sup> Now therefore, ye dwellers of Jerusalem, and ye men of Judah, deem between me and my vinery [or vineyard].

<sup>4</sup> What is it that I ought to do more to my vinery [or vineyard], and I did not to it? whether that I abode, that it should make grapes, and it made wild grapes?

<sup>5</sup> And now I shall show to you, what I shall do to my vinery [or vineyard]. I shall take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be into ravishing; I shall cast down the wall thereof, and it shall be into defouling;

<sup>6</sup> and I shall set it deserted, either forsaken. It shall not be cut, and it shall not be digged, and briars and thorns shall grow upon it; and I shall command to [the] clouds, that they rain not rain on it.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth the vinery [or vineyard] of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah be the delightful burgeoning of him. I abode, that it shall make doom, and lo! wickedness; and that it should do rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and lo! cry.

<sup>8</sup> Woe to you that join house to house, and couple field to field, till to the end of [a] place. Whether ye alone shall dwell in the midst of the land?

<sup>9</sup> These things be in the ears of me, the Lord of hosts; If many houses be not forsaken, great and fair, without dweller, believe ye not to me.

<sup>10</sup> For why ten acres of vines [or vineyards] shall make one pottle, and thirty bushels of seed shall make three bushels.

<sup>11</sup> Woe to you that rise altogether early to follow drunkenness, and to drink till to eventide, that ye burn with wine.

<sup>12</sup> Harp, and gittern, and tympan, and pipe, and wine be in your feasts; and ye behold not the work of the Lord, neither ye behold the works of his hands.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore my people is led captive, either prisoner, for it had not knowing; and the noblemen thereof perished in hunger, and the multitude thereof was dry in thirst.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore hell hath alarged his soul, and opened his mouth without any end; and the strong men thereof, and the people thereof, and the high men, and the glorious men thereof, shall go down to it.

<sup>15</sup> And a man shall be bowed down, and a man of age shall be made low; and the eyes of high men shall be pressed down.

<sup>16</sup> And the Lord of hosts shall be enhanced in doom, and [the] holy God shall be hallowed in rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>17</sup> And lambs shall be fed by their order, and comelings shall eat of the desert places turned into plenty.

<sup>18</sup> Woe to you that draw wickedness in the cords of vanity, and draw sin as the bond of a wain;

<sup>19</sup> and ye say, The work of him hasten, and come soon, that we see; and the counsel of the Holy of Israel nigh, and come, and we shall know it.

<sup>20</sup> Woe to you that say evil good, and good evil; and put darknesses light, and light darknesses; and put bitter thing into sweet, and sweet thing into bitter.

<sup>21</sup> Woe to you that be wise men in your eyes, and be prudent before yourselves.

<sup>22</sup> Woe to you that be mighty to drink wine, and be strong to meddle [or mingle] drunkenness;

<sup>23</sup> and ye justify a wicked man for gifts, and ye take away the rightfulness [or rightwiseness] of a just [or rightwise] man from him.

<sup>24</sup> For this thing, as the tongue of fire devoureth stubble, and the heat of flame burneth, so the root of them shall be as a dead spark, and the seed of them shall ascend [or go up] as dust; for they casted away the law of the Lord of hosts, and blasphemed the speech of the Holy of Israel.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore the strong vengeance of the Lord was wroth against his people, and he stretched forth his hand on it, and smote it; and hills were troubled [or the mountains be disturbed], and the dead bodies of them were made as a turd in the midst [or the middle] of streets. In all these things the strong vengeance of him was not turned away, but yet his hand was stretched forth.

<sup>26</sup> And he shall raise [up] a sign among nations afar, and he shall hiss to him from the ends of [the] earth; and lo! he shall hasten, and shall come swiftly.

<sup>28</sup> His arrows be sharp, and all his bows be bent; the hoofs of his horses be as flint, and his wheels be as the fierceness of tempest.

<sup>29</sup> His roaring shall be as of a lion; he shall roar as the whelps of lions; and he shall gnash, and shall hold prey, and shall embrace, and none shall be, that shall deliver.

<sup>30</sup> And he shall sound on it in that day, as doeth the sound of the sea; we shall behold into the earth, and lo! darkneses of tribulation, and light is made dark in the darkness thereof.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> In the year in which the king Uzziah was dead, I saw the Lord sitting on an high seat, and raised [up]; and the house of the Lord was full of his majesty, and those things that were under him filled the temple.

<sup>2</sup> Seraphim stood [up] on it, six wings were to one, and six wings to the other; with two wings they covered the face of him, and with two wings they covered the feet of him, and with two wings they flew.

<sup>3</sup> And they cried the one to the tother, and said, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God of hosts; all [the] earth is full of his glory.

<sup>4</sup> And the lintels above of the hinges were moved altogether of the voice of the crier, and the house of the Lord was filled with smoke.

<sup>5</sup> And I said, Woe to me, for I was still; for I am a man defouled in lips, and I dwell in the midst of the people having defouled lips, and I saw with mine eyes the King, Lord of hosts.

<sup>6</sup> And one of [the] seraphim flew to me, and a burning coal was in his hand, which coal he had taken with a tong from the altar.

<sup>7</sup> And he touched my mouth, and said, Lo! I have touched thy lips with this coal, and thy wickedness shall be done away, and thy sin shall be cleansed.

<sup>8</sup> And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who shall go to you? And I said, Lo! I; send thou me.

<sup>9</sup> And he said, Go thou, and thou shalt say to this people, Ye hearing hear, and ye do not understand; and see ye the prophesy, and do not ye know.

<sup>10</sup> Make thou blind the heart of this people, and aggrieve thou the ears thereof, and close thou the eyes thereof; lest peradventure it see with his eyes, and hear with his ears, and understand with his heart, and it be converted, and I make it whole.

<sup>11</sup> And I said, Lord, how long? And he said, Till [the] cities be made desolate, without dweller, and houses without man. And the land shall be left desert,

<sup>12</sup> and the Lord shall make men afar. And that that was forsaken in the middle of [the] earth, shall be multiplied, <sup>13</sup> and yet the tithing, either tenth part, shall be therein; and it shall be converted, and it shall be into showing, as a terebinth is, and as an oak, that spreadeth abroad his boughs; that shall be holy seed, that shall stand therein.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the days of Ahaz, the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, Rezin, the king of Syria, and Pekah, the son of Remaliah, the king of Israel, ascended [or went up] to Jerusalem, for to fight against it; and they might not overcome it.

<sup>2</sup> And they told to the house of David, and said, Syria hath rested on Ephraim, that is, the king of Syria and the king of Israel be confederated, to come together against the realm of Judah, and the heart of him and of his people was moved altogether, as the trees of woods be moved of the face of the wind.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt say to him, See thou, that thou be still; do not thou dread, and thine heart be not afeared of the two tails of these brands smoking, in the wrath of the strong vengeance of Rezin, king of Syria, and of the son of Remaliah.

<sup>5</sup> For Syria, and Ephraim, and the son of Remaliah, have begun evil counsel against thee, and say, <sup>6</sup> Go we up to Judah, and raise we him, and draw we him out to us; and set we a king in the midst thereof, the son of Tabeal.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord God saith these things, This shall not be, and it shall not stand;

<sup>8</sup> but Damascus shall be the head of Syria, and Rezin shall be the head of Damascus; and yet sixty years and five, and Ephraim shall fail to be a people;

<sup>9</sup> and Samaria shall fail to be the head of Ephraim, and the son of Remaliah to be[the] head of Samaria. Forsooth if ye shall not believe, ye shall not dwell.

<sup>10</sup> And the Lord added to speak to Ahaz, and said,

<sup>11</sup> Ask thou to thee a sign of thy Lord God, into the depth of hell, either into [the] height above.

<sup>12</sup> And Ahaz said, I shall not ask, and I shall not tempt the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> And Isaiah said, Therefore the house of David, hear ye; whether it is little to you to be dis-easeful to men, for ye be dis-easeful also to my God?

<sup>14</sup> For this thing the Lord himself shall give a sign to you. Lo! a virgin shall conceive, and shall bear a son; and his name shall be called Immanuel. [For that he the Lord shall give to you a token. Behold! a maiden shall conceive, and bare a son; and thou shalt call his name Immanuel.]

<sup>15</sup> He shall eat butter and honey, that he know how to reprove evil, and choose good.

<sup>16</sup> For why before the child know how to reprove evil, and choose good, the land, which thou loathest, shall be forsaken of the face of their two kings.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord shall bring on thee, and on thy people, and on the house of thy father, days that came not from the days of [the] departing of Ephraim from Judah, with the king of Assyrians.

<sup>18</sup> And it shall be, in that day the Lord shall hiss to a fly, which is in the last part of the floods of Egypt; and to a bee, which is in the land of Assur;

<sup>19</sup> and all those shall come, and shall rest in the strands [or streams] of valleys, and in the caves of stones, and in all [the] places of bushes, and in all holes.

<sup>20</sup> And in that day the Lord shall shave with a sharp razor in these men, that be beyond the flood, of the king of Assyrians, the head, and the hairs of the feet, and all the beard.

<sup>21</sup> And it shall be, in that day, a man shall nourish a cow of oxes, and two sheep,

<sup>22</sup> and for the plenty of milk he shall eat butter; for why each man that shall be left in the midst of the land, shall eat butter and honey.

<sup>23</sup> And it shall be, in that day each place where a thousand vineries [or vines] shall be worth a thousand pieces of silver, and shall be into thorns and briars,

<sup>24</sup> men shall enter thither with bows and arrows; for why briars and thorns shall be in all the land.

<sup>25</sup> And all hills that shall be purged with a briar hook, the dread of thorns and of briars shall not come thither; and it shall be into pasture of oxen, and into the treading of sheep.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> And the Lord said to me, Take to thee a great book, and write therein with the pointel or stylus of man, Swiftly draw thou away spoils, take thou prey soon.

<sup>2</sup> And I gave to me faithful witnesses, Uriah, the priest, and Zechariah, the son of Jeberechiah.

<sup>3</sup> And I nighed to the prophetess; and she conceived, and childed a son. And the Lord said to me, Call thou his name, Haste thou to draw away spoils, haste thou for to take prey.

<sup>4</sup> For why before that the child know how to call his father and his mother, the strength of Damascus shall be done away, and the spoils of Samaria, before the king of Assyrians.

<sup>5</sup> And the Lord added to speak yet to me, and he said,

<sup>6</sup> For that thing that this people hath cast away the waters of Shiloah, that go with silence, and hath taken more [to] Rezin, and the son of Remaliah,

<sup>7</sup> for this thing lo! the Lord shall bring [up] on them the strong and many waters of the flood, the king of Assyrians, and all his glory; and he shall ascend [or go up] on all the streams thereof, and he shall flow on all the rivers thereof.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall go flowing by Judah, and he shall pass till to the neck, and shall come; and the spreading forth of his wings shall be, and shall fill the breadth of thy land, thou Immanuel.

<sup>9</sup> Peoples, be ye gathered together, and be ye overcome; and all lands afar, hear ye. Be ye comforted, and be ye overcome; gird ye you, and be ye overcome;

<sup>10</sup> take ye counsel, and it shall be destroyed; speak ye a word, and it shall not be done, for God is with us.

<sup>11</sup> For why the Lord saith these things to me, as he taught me in a strong hand, that I should not go into the way of this people, and said,

<sup>12</sup> Say ye not, It is swearing together, for why all things which this people speaketh is swearing together; and dread ye not the fearedfulness thereof, neither be ye afeared.

<sup>13</sup> Hallow ye the Lord himself of hosts; and he shall be your inward dread, and he shall be your feared-fulness, and he shall be to you into hallowing.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth he shall be into a stone of hurting, and into a stone of stumbling, to twain [or the two] houses of Israel; into a snare, and into falling, to them that dwell in Jerusalem.

<sup>15</sup> And full many of them shall stumble, and shall fall, and they shall be all-broken, and they shall be bound, and shall be taken.

<sup>16</sup> Bind thou [the] witnessing, mark thou the law in my disciples.

<sup>17</sup> I shall abide the Lord, that hath hid his face from the house of Jacob, and I shall abide him.

<sup>18</sup> Lo! I and my children, which the Lord gave to me into a sign, and great wonder to Israel, of the Lord of hosts that dwelleth in the hill of Zion.

<sup>19</sup> And when they say to you, Ask ye of conjurers, and of false diviners, that gnash in their enchantings, whether the people shall not ask of their God a revelation, for quick men and [the] dead?

<sup>20</sup> It is to go to the law more rather, and to the witnessing, that if they say not after this word, morrowtide light shall not be to them.

<sup>21</sup> And it shall pass by that, and it shall fall down, and it shall hunger. And when it shall hunger, it shall be wroth, and shall curse his king and his God, and it shall behold upward.

<sup>22</sup> And it shall look to the earth, and lo! tribulation, and darkneses, and unbinding, either discomfort, and anguish, and mist pursuing; and it shall not be able to flee away from his anguish.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> In the first time, the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali was alighted, either released; and at the last, the way of the sea beyond Jordan, of Galilee of heathen men, was made heavy.

<sup>2</sup> The people that went in darkneses saw a great light; when men dwelled in the country of [the] shadow of death, light rose up to them.

<sup>3</sup> Thou multipliedest folk, thou magnifiedest not gladness; they shall be glad before thee, as they that be glad in harvest, as overcomers make full out joy, when they have taken a prey, when they part the spoils.

<sup>4</sup> For thou hast overcome the yoke of his burden, and the rod of his shoulder, and the sceptre of his wrongful asker, as in the day of Midian.

<sup>5</sup> For why all violent raven with noise, and a cloth meddled [or mingled] with blood, shall be into burning, and the meat of fire.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth a little child is born to us, and a son is given to us, and prince-hood is made [up] on his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, A counsellor, God, Strong, Father of the world to coming, A prince of peace, [or Marvellous, Counsellor, God, Strong, Father of the world to come, Prince of peace].

<sup>7</sup> His empire shall be multiplied, and none end shall be of his peace; he shall sit on the seat of David, and on the realm of him, that he confirm it, and make strong in doom and rightfulness [or rightwiseness], from henceforth and till into without end. The fervent love of the Lord of hosts shall make this.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord sent a word into Jacob, and it fell in Israel.

<sup>9</sup> And all the people of Ephraim shall know, and they that dwell in Samaria, saying in the pride and greatness of heart,

<sup>10</sup> Tilestones fell down, but we shall build with square stones; they have cut down sycamores, but we shall change to cedars.

<sup>11</sup> And the Lord shall raise the enemies of Rezin on him, and he shall turn the enemies of him into noise;

<sup>12</sup> God shall make Syria to come from the east, and Philistines from the west; and with all the mouth they shall devour Israel. In all these things the strong vengeance of the Lord is not turned away, but yet his hand is stretched forth;

<sup>13</sup> and the people is not turned again to the Lord smiting it, and they sought not the Lord of hosts.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord shall lose from Israel the head and the tail, [the] crooking and [the] beshrewing, either refraining, in one day.

<sup>15</sup> An eld man and honourable, he is the head; and a prophet teaching leasing, he is the tail.

<sup>16</sup> And they that bless his people, shall be deceivers, and they that be blessed, shall be cast down.

<sup>17</sup> For this thing the Lord shall not be glad on the young men thereof, and he shall not have mercy on the fatherless children and widows thereof; for each man is an hypocrite and wayward, and each mouth spake folly. In all these things the strong vengeance of him is not turned away, but yet his hand is stretched forth; and the people is not turned again to the Lord smiting it.

<sup>18</sup> For why wickedness is kindled as fire; it shall devour the briars and thorns, and it shall be kindled in the thickness of the forest, and it shall be wrapped altogether in the pride of smoke.

<sup>19</sup> In the wrath of the Lord of hosts the land shall be troubled, and the people shall be as the meat of fire; a man shall not spare his brother.

<sup>20</sup> And he shall bow to the right half, and he shall hunger, and he shall eat at the left half, and he shall not be [ful] filled; each man shall devour the flesh of his arm.

<sup>21</sup> Manasseh shall devour Ephraim, and Ephraim shall devour Manasseh, and they together against Judah. In all these things the strong vengeance of him is not turned away, but yet his hand is stretched forth.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Woe to them that make wicked laws, and they writing have written unrightfulness [or unrightwiseness],

<sup>2</sup> for to oppress poor men in doom, and to do violence to the cause of meek men of my people; that widows shall be the prey of them, and that they should ravish fatherless children.

<sup>5</sup> Woe to Assur, he is the rod and staff of my strong vengeance; mine indignation is in the hand of them.

<sup>6</sup> I shall send him to a false folk, and I shall command to him against the people of my strong vengeance; that he take away the spoils, and part prey, and that he set [or put] that people into defouling, as the fen of streets.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth he shall not deem so, and his heart shall not guess so, but his heart shall be for to all-break, and to the slaying of many folks.

<sup>8</sup> For he shall say, Whether my princes be not kings altogether?

<sup>9</sup> Whether not as Carchemish, so Calno; and as Arpad, so Hamath? whether not as Damascus, so Samaria?

<sup>10</sup> As mine hand found the realms of idols, so and the simulacra of them of Jerusalem and of Samaria.

<sup>11</sup> Whether not as I did to Samaria, and to the idols thereof, so I shall do to Jerusalem, and to the simulacra thereof?

<sup>12</sup> And it shall be, when the Lord hath [ful] filled all his works in the hill [or the mount] of Zion and in Jerusalem, I shall visit on the fruit of the great doing heart of the king of Assur, and on the glory of the highness of his eyes.

<sup>13</sup> For he said, I have done in the strength of mine hand, and I have understood in my wisdom; and I have taken away the ends of [the] peoples, and I have robbed the princes of them, and I as a mighty man have drawn down them that sat on high.

<sup>14</sup> And mine hand found the strength of peoples as a nest, and as eggs be gathered together that be forsaken, so I gathered together all [the] earth; and none there was that moved a feather, and opened the mouth, and grutched.

<sup>15</sup> Whether an ax shall have glory against him that cutteth with it? either a saw shall be enhanced against him of whom it is drawn? as if a rod is raised against him that raiseth it, and a staff is enhanced, which soothly is a tree.

<sup>16</sup> For this thing the lordly governor, Lord of hosts, shall send thinness into the fat men of him; and his glory kindled under shall burn as the burning of fire.

<sup>17</sup> And the light of Israel shall be in fire, and the Holy of it in flame; and the thorn of him and briar shall be kindled and devoured in one day.

<sup>18</sup> And the glory of his forest, and of his Carmel, shall be wasted, from the soul unto [the] flesh; and he shall be fleeing away for dread.

<sup>20</sup> And it shall be in that day, the remnant of Israel, and they that fled of the house of Jacob, shall not add for to trust on him that smiteth them; but it shall trust on the holy Lord of Israel, in truth.

<sup>21</sup> The remnants, I say, the remnants of Jacob, shall be converted to the strong Lord.

<sup>22</sup> For why, Israel, if thy people is as the gravel of the sea, the remnants shall be turned thereof; an ending made short shall make rightfulness [or rightwiseness] to be plenteous.

<sup>23</sup> For why the Lord God of hosts shall make an ending and abridging, in the midst of all earth.

<sup>24</sup> For this thing the Lord God of hosts saith these things, My people, the dweller of Zion, do not thou dread of Assur, for he shall smite thee in a rod, and he shall raise [up] his staff on thee in the way of Egypt.

<sup>25</sup> For why yet a little, and a little, and mine indignation and my strong vengeance shall be ended on the great trespass of them.

<sup>26</sup> And the Lord of hosts shall raise [up] a scourge on him by the vengeance of Midian in the stone of Oreb, and by his rod on the sea; and he shall raise that rod in the way of Egypt.

<sup>27</sup> And it shall be in that day, his burden shall be taken away from thy shoulder, and his yoke from thy neck; and the yoke shall wax [all] rotten from the face of oil.

<sup>28</sup> He shall come into Aiath, he shall pass into Migron, at Michmash he shall betake his vessels to keeping.

<sup>33</sup> Lo! the Lordly Governor, the Lord of hosts, shall break a pottle in dread, and high men of stature shall be cut down. And proud men shall be made low, <sup>34</sup> and the thick things of the forest shall be destroyed by iron; and the Lebanon with high things shall fall down.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> And a rod shall go out of the root of Jesse, and a flower shall ascend [or go up] of the root of it.

<sup>2</sup> And the Spirit of the Lord shall rest on him, the spirit of wisdom and of understanding, the spirit of counsel and of strength, the spirit of knowing and of piety;

<sup>3</sup> and the spirit of the dread of the Lord shall fill him. He shall deem not by the sight of eyes, neither he shall reprove, either convict, by the hearing of ears;

<sup>4</sup> but he shall deem in rightfulness [or rightwiseness] poor men, and he shall reprove in equity, for the mild men of [the] earth. And he shall smite the land with the rod of his mouth, and with the spirit of his lips he shall slay the wicked man.

<sup>5</sup> And rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall be the girdle of his loins, and faith shall be the girding of his reins.

<sup>7</sup> A calf and a bear shall be pastured together; the whelps of them shall rest together, and a lion as an ox shall eat straw.

<sup>8</sup> And a young sucking child from the teat shall delight on the hole of a snake, and he that is weaned shall put his hand in the cave of the cockatrice.

<sup>9</sup> They shall not annoy, and shall not slay, in all mine holy hill [or holy mountain]; for why the earth is filled with the knowing of the Lord, as [the] waters of the sea covering.

<sup>10</sup> In that day the root of Jesse, that standeth into the sign of peoples; heathen men shall beseech him, and his sepulchre shall be glorious.

<sup>11</sup> And it shall be in that day, the Lord shall add the second time his hand to have in possession the residue of his people that shall be left, of [the] Assyrian, and of Egypt, and of Pathros, and of Ethiopia, and of Elam, and of Shinar, and of Hamath, and of [the] isles of the sea.

<sup>12</sup> And he shall raise a sign to nations, and shall gather together the fleers-away of Israel; and he shall gather together the scattered men of Judah from [the] four coasts of [the] earth.

<sup>13</sup> And the envy of Ephraim shall be done away, and the enemies of Judah shall perish; Ephraim shall not have envy to Judah, and Judah shall not fight against Ephraim.

<sup>14</sup> And they shall fly into the shoulders of Philistines by the sea, they shall take prey together of the sons of the east; Idumea and Moab shall be under the commandment of the hand of them, and the sons of Ammon shall be obedient.

<sup>15</sup> And the Lord shall make desolate the tongue of the sea of Egypt, and he shall raise his hand on the flood in the strength of his spirit; and he shall smite, either part, it into seven rivers, so that shod men pass by it.

<sup>16</sup> And a way shall be to my residue people that shall be left, of the Assyrians, as it was to Israel, in the day in which it ascended [or went up] from the land of Egypt.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> And thou shalt say in that day, Lord, I shall acknowledge to thee, for thou were wroth to me; thy strong vengeance is turned, and thou hast comforted me.

<sup>2</sup> Lo! God is my saviour, I shall do faithfully, and I shall not dread. For why the Lord is my strength and my praising, and he is made to me into health.

<sup>5</sup> Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath done worshipfully; tell ye this [out] in all [the] earth.

<sup>6</sup> Thou dwelling of Zion, make full out joy, and praise; for why the Holy of Israel is great in the midst of thee.

<sup>3</sup> I have commanded to mine hallowed men, and I called my strong men in my wrath, that make full out joy in my glory.

<sup>5</sup> to men coming from a far land. The Lord cometh from the highness of heaven, and the vessels of his strong vengeance, that he destroy all the land.

<sup>6</sup> Yell ye, for the day of the Lord is nigh; as wasting, either destroying, it shall come of the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> For this thing all hands shall be unmighty, and each heart of man shall fail, and shall be all-broken.

<sup>9</sup> Lo! the day of the Lord shall come, cruel, and full of indignation, and of wrath, and of strong vengeance; to set the land into wilderness, and to all-break the sinners thereof from that land.

<sup>10</sup> For why the stars of heaven and the shining of them shall not spread abroad their light; the sun is made dark in his rising, and the moon shall not shine in her light.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall visit on the evils of the world, and I shall visit against wicked men the wickedness of them; and I shall make the pride of unfaithful men for to rest, and I shall make low the boast of strong men.

<sup>12</sup> A man of full age shall be preciouser than gold, and a man shall be preciouser than pure gold and shining.

<sup>13</sup> On this thing I shall trouble heaven, and the earth shall be moved from his place; for the indignation of the Lord of hosts, and for the day of wrath of his strong vengeance.

<sup>14</sup> And it shall be as a doe fleeing, and as a sheep, and none shall be that shall gather together; each man shall turn to his people, and all by themselves shall flee to their land.

<sup>15</sup> Each man that is found, shall be slain; and each man that cometh above, shall fall down by sword.

<sup>16</sup> The young children of them shall be hurtled down before the eyes of them; their houses shall be ravished, and their wives shall be defouled.

<sup>17</sup> Lo! I shall raise on them Medes, that seek not silver, neither will gold;

<sup>18</sup> but they shall slay little children with arrows, and they shall not have mercy on wombs giving milk, and the eye of them shall not spare on sons.

<sup>19</sup> And Babylon, that glorious city in realms, noble in the pride of Chaldees, shall be destroyed, as God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah.

<sup>20</sup> It shall not be inhabited till into the end, and it shall not be founded till to generation and generation; a man of Arabia shall not set tents there, and shepherds shall not rest there.

<sup>21</sup> But wild beasts shall rest there, and the houses of them shall be filled with dragons; and ostriches shall dwell there, and hairy beasts shall skip there.

<sup>22</sup> And bitterns shall answer there in the houses thereof, and flying serpents in the temples of lust. It is nigh that the time thereof come, and the days thereof shall not be made far;

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> for why the Lord shall have mercy of Jacob, and he shall choose yet of Israel, and shall make them for to rest on their land; a comeling shall be joined to them, and shall cleave to the house of Jacob.

<sup>2</sup> And peoples shall hold them, and shall bring them into their place. And the house of Israel shall have them in possession into servants and hand-maids on the land of the Lord; and they shall take those men that took them, and they shall make subject their wrongful askers.

<sup>3</sup> And it shall be in that day, when God shall give to thee rest of thy travail, and of thy shaking, and of hard servage, in which thou servedest before,

<sup>4</sup> thou shalt take this parable against the king of Babylon, and thou shalt say, How ceased the wrongful asker, rested [the] tribute?

<sup>6</sup> that beat peoples in indignation, with uncurable wound, that subjected folks in strong vengeance, that pursued cruelly.

<sup>7</sup> Each land rested, and was still; it was joyful, and made full out joy.

<sup>8</sup> Also fir trees and cedars of the Lebanon were glad on thee; Since thou sleptest, none ascendeth [or went up] that cutteth us down.

<sup>9</sup> Hell under thee is troubled for the meeting of thy coming; he shall raise giants to thee; all the princes of [the] earth have risen from their seats, all the princes of nations.

<sup>10</sup> All they shall answer, and they shall say to thee, And thou art wounded as we, thou art made like us.

<sup>11</sup> Thy pride is drawn down to hells [or to hell], thy dead carrion fell down; a moth shall be strewed under thee, and thy covering shall be worms.

<sup>12</sup> A! Lucifer, that risedest early, how fellest thou down from heaven; thou that woundedest folks, felledest down altogether into [the] earth.

<sup>14</sup> I shall ascend [or go up] on the highness of clouds; I shall be like the Highest.

<sup>15</sup> Nevertheless thou shalt be drawn down to hell, into the depth of the pit.

<sup>16</sup> They that shall see thee, shall be bowed down to thee, and shall behold thee. And they shall say, Whether this is the man, that troubled [the] earth, that shook together realms?

<sup>17</sup> that setted [or put] the world desert, and destroyed the cities thereof, and opened not the prison to the bound men of him?

<sup>18</sup> All the kings of heathen men, all slept in glory, a man in his house.

<sup>19</sup> But thou art cast out of thy sepulchre, as an unprofitable stock, as defouled with rot; and wrapped with them that be slain with sword, and went down to the fundament of the pit. As a rotten carrion,

<sup>20</sup> thou shalt not have fellowship, neither with them in sepulchre, for thou hast lost thy land, thou hast slain the people; the seed of the worst men shall not be called without end.

<sup>21</sup> Make ye ready his sons to slaying, for the wickedness of their fathers; they shall not rise, neither they shall inherit the land, neither they shall fill the face of the roundness of cities.

<sup>22</sup> And I shall rise [up] on them, saith the Lord of hosts, and I shall lose the name of Babylon, and the remnants, and generation, and seed, saith the Lord.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall set [or put] that Babylon into possession of an urchin, and into marishes of waters; and I shall sweep it with a besom, and I shall stamp, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>24</sup> The Lord of hosts swore, saying, Whether it shall not be so, as I guessed, and it shall befall so, as I treated in soul?

<sup>25</sup> That I all-break the king of Assyrians in my land, and that I defoul him in mine hills [or my mountains]; and his yoke shall be taken away from them, and his burden shall be taken away from the shoulder of them.

<sup>26</sup> This is the counsel which I thought on all the land, and this is the hand stretched forth on all folks.

<sup>27</sup> For why the Lord of hosts hath deemed, and who may make unsteadfast? and his hand is stretched forth, and who shall turn it away?

<sup>28</sup> The burden of Philistines. In the year wherein king Ahaz died, this burden was made.

<sup>30</sup> And the first engendered of poor men shall be fed, and poor men shall rest faithfully; and I shall make thy root to perish in hunger, and I shall slay thy remnants.

<sup>31</sup> Yell, thou gate; cry, thou city; all Philistia is cast down; for why smoke shall come from the north, and none is that shall escape his host.

<sup>32</sup> And what shall be answered to the messengers of [the] folk? for the Lord hath founded Zion, and the poor men of his people shall hope in him.

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> The burden of Moab. For Ar was destroyed in night, Moab was still; for the wall was destroyed in the night, Moab was still.

<sup>2</sup> The king's house, and Dibon ascended [or went up] to high places, into wailing; on Nebo, and on Medeba, Moab shall yell. In all heads thereof shall be baldness, and each beard shall be shaved.

<sup>3</sup> In the meeting of three ways thereof they be girded in a sackcloth, all yelling on the houses thereof, and in the streets thereof; it shall go down into weeping.

<sup>4</sup> Heshbon shall cry, and Elealeh, the voice of them is heard till to Jahaz; on this thing the ready men of Moab shall yell, the soul thereof shall yell to itself.

<sup>5</sup> Mine heart shall cry to Moab, the bars thereof till to Zoar, a cow calf of three years. For why a weeper shall go up by the going up of Luhith, and in the way of Horonaim they shall raise cry of sorrow [or contrition].

<sup>6</sup> For why the waters of Nimrim shall be forsaken; for the herb dried up, burgeoning failed, all greenness perished.

<sup>7</sup> By the greatness of work, and the visiting of them, to the strand [or stream] of shallows they shall lead them.

<sup>8</sup> For why their cry compassed the end of Moab; till to Eglaim the yelling thereof, and the cry thereof till to the well of Elim.

<sup>9</sup> For the waters of Dimon be filled with blood; for I shall set increasings on Dimon, to those men of Moab that fled from the lion, and to the remnants of the land.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> Lord, send thou out a lamb, the lordly governor of [the] earth, from the stone of desert, to the hill of the daughter of Zion.

<sup>2</sup> And it shall be, as a fowl flying, and birds flying away from the nest, so shall be the daughters of Moab, in the passing over of Arnon.

<sup>4</sup> My fleers-away shall dwell at thee. Moab, be thou the hiding place of them from the face of the destroyer. For why dust is ended, the wretched is wasted; he that defouled the land failed.

<sup>5</sup> And the king's seat shall be made ready in mercy, and he shall sit on it in truth, in the tabernacle of David, deeming, and seeking doom, and yielding swiftly that that is just.

<sup>6</sup> We have heard the pride of Moab, he is full proud; his pride, and his boast, and his indignation is more than his strength.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore Moab shall yell to Moab, all Moab shall yell to them that be glad on the walls of baken tilestone; speak ye their wounds.

<sup>8</sup> For why the suburbs of Heshbon and the vinery [or vineyard] of Sibmah be forsaken. The lords of heathen men have cut down the scions thereof; they came unto Jazer; they erred in desert. The boughs thereof be forsaken, they passed the sea.

<sup>9</sup> On this thing I shall weep in the weeping of Jazer, and on the vinery [or vineyard] of Sibmah. Heshbon and Elealeh, I shall fill thee with my tears; for the voice of defoulers fell on thy vintage, and on thy harvest.

<sup>10</sup> And gladness and full out joying shall be taken away from Carmel; and none shall make full out joy, neither shall sing heartily song in vineries [or vineyards]. He that was wont to wring out, shall not wring out wine in a presser [or wine press]; I have taken away the voice of [the] wringers-out.

<sup>11</sup> On this thing my womb shall sound as an harp to Moab, and mine entrails to the wall of baken tilestone.

<sup>12</sup> And it shall be, when it shall appear, that Moab hath travailed on his high places, it shall enter to his holy things, that it beseech, and it shall not be worthy.

<sup>13</sup> This is the word which the Lord spake to Moab from that time.

<sup>14</sup> And now the Lord spake, saying, In three years, that were as the years of an hired man, the glory of Moab shall be taken away on all the much people; and there shall be left in it as a little raisin, and a little, and not much.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>1</sup> The burden of Damascus. Lo! Damascus shall fail to be a city, and it shall be as an heap of stones in falling.

<sup>2</sup> The forsaken cities of Aroer shall be to flocks; and they shall rest there, and none shall be that shall make afeared.

<sup>3</sup> And help shall cease from Ephraim, and a realm from Damascus; and the remnants of Syria shall be as the glory of the sons of Israel, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>4</sup> And it shall be, in that day, the glory of Jacob shall be made thin, and the fatness of his flesh shall fade.

<sup>5</sup> And it shall be as gathering together that that is left in harvest, and his arm shall gather ears of corn, and it shall be as seeking ears of corn in the valley of Rephaim.

<sup>6</sup> And there shall be left in it as a raisin, that is, a little bow, with a little fruit, and as the shaking down of the fruit of olive tree, as of two either of three olive trees in the highness of a branch, either of four or of five; in the tops thereof shall be the fruit thereof, saith the Lord God of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> In that day a man shall be bowed to his maker, and his eyes shall behold to the Holy of Israel.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall not be bowed to the altars, which his hands made, and which his fingers wrought; he shall not behold woods, and [the] temples of idols.

<sup>9</sup> In that day the cities of strength thereof shall be forsaken as plows, and [the] corns that were forsaken of the face of the sons of Israel; and thou shalt be forsaken.

<sup>10</sup> For thou hast forgotten God, thy saviour, and haddest not mind on thy strong helper; therefore thou shalt plant a faithful planting, and thou shalt sow an alien seed.

<sup>11</sup> In the day of thy planting shall be a wild vine, and early thy seed shall flower; ripe corn is taken away in the day of heritage, and Israel shall make sorrow grievously.

<sup>12</sup> Woe to the multitude of many peoples, as the multitude of the sea sounding, and the noise of companies as the sound of many waters.

<sup>13</sup> Peoples shall sound as the sound of flowing waters, and God shall blame him; and he shall flee far, and he shall be ravished as the dust of hills [or mountains] from the face of the wind, and as a whirlwind before [the] tempest.

<sup>14</sup> In the time of eventide, and lo! troubling; in the morrowtide, and he shall not abide. This is the part of them that destroyed us, and the part of them that ravished us.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>1</sup> Woe to the land, the cymbal of wings, which is beyond the flood of Ethiopia;

<sup>2</sup> that sendeth messengers by the sea, and in vessels of papyrus on waters. Go, ye messengers, to the folk drawn up and rent; to a fearedful people, after which is none other; to the folk abiding and defouled, whose land the floods have ravished; to the hill [or mount] of the name of the Lord of hosts, to the hill [or mount] of Zion.

<sup>3</sup> All ye dwellers of the world, that dwell in the land, shall see when a sign shall be raised [up] in the hills [or mountains], and ye shall hear the cry of a trump.

<sup>4</sup> For why the Lord saith these things to me, I shall rest, and I shall behold in my place, as the midday light is clear, and as a cloud of dew in the day of harvest.

<sup>5</sup> For why all flowered out before harvest, and unripe perfection burgeoned; and the little branches thereof shall be cut down with scythes, and those that be left, shall be cut away.

<sup>6</sup> They shall be shaken out, and shall be left together to the birds of hills [or mountains], and to the beasts of earth; and birds shall be on him by a summer everlasting, and all the beasts of earth shall dwell by winter on him.

<sup>7</sup> In that time a gift shall be brought to the Lord of hosts, of the people drawn up and rent; of the people fearedful, after which was none other; of the folk abiding and defouled, whose land floods ravished; the gift shall be brought to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, to the hill [or mount] of Zion.

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup> The burden of Egypt. Lo! the Lord shall ascend on a light cloud, and he shall enter into Egypt; and the simulacra of Egypt shall be moved from his face, and the heart of Egypt shall fail in the midst thereof.

<sup>3</sup> And the spirit of Egypt shall be broken in the entrails thereof, and I shall cast down the counsel thereof; and they shall ask their simulacra, and their false diviners, and their men that have unclean spirits speaking in the womb, and their diviners by sacrifices made on altars to fiends.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall betake Egypt into the hand of cruel lords, and a strong king shall be lord of them, saith the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>5</sup> And [the] water of the sea shall wax dry, and the flood shall be desolate, and shall be dried.

<sup>6</sup> And the floods shall fail, and the strands [or rivers] of the fields shall be made thin, and shall be dried; a reed and spire shall fade.

<sup>7</sup> The bottom of water shall be made naked, and streams from their wells; and the moist place of all seed shall be dried, it shall wax dry, and it shall not be.

<sup>8</sup> And [the] fishers shall mourn, and all that cast hook into the flood shall wail; and they that spread abroad a net on the face of waters shall fade.

<sup>9</sup> They shall be shamed, that wrought flax, folding and ordaining subtle things.

<sup>10</sup> And the water places thereof shall be dry; all that made ponds to take fishes, shall be shamed.

<sup>11</sup> The fond princes [or fools] of Tanis, the wise counsellors of Pharaoh, gave unwise counsel; how shall ye say to Pharaoh, I am the son of wise men, the son of eld [or old] kings?

<sup>12</sup> Where be now thy wise men? Tell they to thee, and show they, what the Lord of hosts thought on Egypt.

<sup>13</sup> The princes of Tanis be made fools; the princes of Memphis faded; they deceived Egypt, a cornerstone of the peoples thereof.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord meddled [or mingled] a spirit of error in the midst thereof; and they made Egypt for to err in all his work, as a drunken man and spewing erreth.

<sup>15</sup> And work shall not be to Egypt, that it make an head and tail bowing and refraining.

<sup>16</sup> In that day Egypt shall be as women, and they shall be astonied, and shall dread of the face of the moving of the hand of the Lord of hosts, which he moved on it.

<sup>17</sup> And the land of Judah shall be to Egypt into dread; each that shall think on it, shall dread of the face of the counsel of the Lord of hosts, which he thought on it.

<sup>18</sup> In that day five cities shall be in the land of Egypt, and shall speak with the tongue of Canaan, and shall swear by the Lord of hosts; the city of the sun shall be called one.

<sup>19</sup> In that day the altar of the Lord shall be in the midst of the land of Egypt, and the title of the Lord shall be beside the end thereof;

<sup>20</sup> and it shall be into a sign and witnessing to the Lord of hosts, in the land of Egypt. For they shall cry to the Lord from the face of the troubler, and he shall send a saviour to them, and a for-fighter, that shall deliver them.

<sup>21</sup> And the Lord shall be known of Egypt, and [the] Egyptians shall know the Lord in that day; and they shall worship him in sacrifices and gifts, and they shall make vows to the Lord, and they shall pay.

<sup>22</sup> And the Lord shall smite Egypt with a wound, and shall make it whole; and [the] Egyptians shall turn again to the Lord, and he shall be pleased in them, and he shall make them whole.

<sup>23</sup> In that day a way shall be from Egypt into Assyrians, and Egyptians shall serve Assur; and Assur shall enter into Egypt, and Egypt into Assyrians.

<sup>24</sup> In that day Israel shall be the third to Egypt and to Assur, the blessing in the middle of [the] earth;

<sup>25</sup> whom the Lord of hosts blessed, saying, Blessed be my people of Egypt, and the work of mine hands be to Assyrians; but mine heritage be to Israel.

CHAPTER 20

<sup>1</sup> In the year wherein Tartan entered into Ashdod, when Sargon, the king of Assyrians, had sent him, and he had fought against Ashdod, and had taken it;

<sup>2</sup> in that time the Lord spake in the hand of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, and said, Go thou, and unbind the sack-cloth from thy loins, and take away thy shoes from thy feet. And he did so, going naked and unshod.

<sup>3</sup> And the Lord said, As my servant Isaiah went naked and unshod, a sign and great wonder of three years shall be on Egypt, and on Ethiopia;

<sup>4</sup> so the king of Assyrians shall drive the captivity of Egypt, and the passing over of Ethiopia, a young man and an eld [or old] man, naked and unshod, with the buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt.

<sup>5</sup> And they shall dread, and shall be ashamed of Ethiopia, their hope, and of Egypt, their glory.

<sup>6</sup> And a dweller of this isle shall say on that day, This was our hope, to which we fled for help, that they should deliver us from the face of the king of Assyrians; and how may we escape?

CHAPTER 21

<sup>1</sup> The burden of the forsaken sea. As whirlwinds come from the south-west, it cometh from [the] desert, from the horrible land.

<sup>2</sup> An hard revelation is told to me; he that is unfaithful, doeth unfaithfully; and he that is a destroyer, destroyeth. Thou Elam, go up, and thou Media, beseech [or besiege]; I made all the wailing thereof for to cease.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore my loins be filled with sorrow; anguish wielded me, as the anguish of a woman travailing of child; I fell down, when I heard; I was troubled, when I saw.

<sup>4</sup> Mine heart faded, darknesses astonished me; Babylon, my darling, is set [or put] to me into miracle.

<sup>5</sup> Set thou a board, behold thou into a looking place; rise, ye princes, eating and drinking, take ye [the] shield.

<sup>6</sup> For why the Lord said these things to me, Go thou, and set a looker; and tell he, whatever thing he seeth.

<sup>7</sup> And he saw the chariot of two horsemen, the rider of an ass, and the rider of a camel; and he beheld diligently with much looking,

<sup>8</sup> and [he] cried as a lion, I stand continually by day on the looking place of the Lord, and I stand by all nights on my keeping.

<sup>9</sup> Lo! this cometh, a man-rider of a cart of horsemen. And Isaiah cried, and said, Babylon fell down, fell down; and all the graven images of gods thereof be all-broken into [the] earth.

<sup>10</sup> My threshing, and the daughter of my cornfloor, I have told to you what things I heard of the Lord of hosts, of God of Israel.

<sup>11</sup> The burden of Dumah. It crieth from Seir to me, Keeper, what hour of the night? keeper, what hour of the night?

<sup>12</sup> The keeper said, The morrowtide cometh, and night; if ye seek, seek ye, and be ye converted, and come ye.

<sup>14</sup> Ye that dwell in the land of the south, run, and bear water to the thirsty; and run ye with loaves to him that fleeth.

<sup>16</sup> For the Lord saith these things to me, Yet in one year, as in the year of an hired man, and all the glory of Kedar shall be taken away.

<sup>17</sup> And the remnants of the number of strong archers of the sons of Kedar shall be made less; for why the Lord God of Israel spake.

CHAPTER 22

<sup>1</sup> The burden of the valley of vision. What also is to thee, for and all thou ascendedest [or wentest up] into [the] roofs,

<sup>2</sup> thou full of cry, a city of much people, a city full out joying? thy slain men were not slain by sword, neither thy dead men were dead in battle.

<sup>3</sup> All thy princes fled together, and were bound hard; all that were found, were bound together, they fled far.

<sup>4</sup> Therefore I said, Go ye away from me, I shall weep bitterly; do not ye be busy to comfort me on the destroying of the daughter of my people.

<sup>5</sup> For why a day of slaying, and of defouling, and of weepings, is ordained of the Lord God of hosts, in the valley of vision; and he searcheth the wall, and is worshipful on the hill [or the mountain].

<sup>6</sup> And Elam took an arrow case, or a quiver, and the chariot of an horseman; and the shield made naked the wall.

<sup>8</sup> And the covering of Judah shall be showed; and thou shalt see in that day the place of armours of the house of the forest;

<sup>9</sup> and ye shall see the crazings of the city of David, for those be multiplied. Ye gathered together the waters of the lower cistern,

<sup>10</sup> and ye numbered the houses of Jerusalem, and ye destroyed [the] houses, to make strong the wall;

<sup>11</sup> and ye made a pit betwixt two walls, and ye restored the water of the eld [or old] cistern; and ye beheld not to him, that made that Jerusalem, and ye saw not the worker thereof afar.

<sup>12</sup> And the Lord of hosts shall call in that day to weeping, and to mourning, and to baldness, and to a girdle of sackcloth;

<sup>13</sup> and lo! joy and gladness is to slay calves, and to strangle wethers, to eat flesh, and to drink wine; eat we, and drink we, for we shall die tomorrow.

<sup>14</sup> And the voice of the Lord of hosts is showed in mine ears, This wicked-ness shall not be forgiven to you, till ye die, saith the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord God of hosts saith these things, Go thou, and enter to him that dwelleth in the tabernacle, to Shebna, the sovereign of the temple; and thou shalt say to him,

<sup>17</sup> Lo! the Lord shall make thee to be borne out, as a capon is borne out, and as a cloth, so he shall raise thee.

<sup>18</sup> He crowning shall crown thee with tribulation; he shall send thee as a ball into a large land and wide; there thou shalt die, and there shall be the chariot of thy glory, and the shame of the house of thy Lord.

<sup>19</sup> And I shall cast thee out of thy standing, and I shall put thee down of thy service.

<sup>20</sup> And it shall be, in that day I shall call my servant Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah;

<sup>21</sup> and I shall clothe him in thy coat, and I shall comfort him with thy girdle, and I shall give thy power into the hands of him; and he shall be as a father to them that dwell in Jeru-salem, and to the house of Judah.

<sup>22</sup> And I shall give the key of the house of David on his shoulder; and he shall open, and none shall be that shall shut; and he shall shut, and none shall be that shall open.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall set him a stake, either a perch, in a faithful place, and he shall be into a seat of glory of the house of his father.

<sup>24</sup> And thou shalt hang on him all the glory of the house of his father, diverse kinds of vessels, each little vessel, from the vessels of cups, till to each vessel of musics.

<sup>25</sup> In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, the stake that was set [or fixed] in the faithful place, shall be taken away, and it shall be broken, and shall fall down; and shall perish that hanged therein, for the Lord spake.

CHAPTER 23

<sup>1</sup> The burden of Tyre. Ye ships of the sea, yell, for the house is destroyed, from whence comfort was wont to come; from the land of Chittim, and [it] was showed to them.

<sup>2</sup> Be ye still, that dwell in the isle, the merchants of Sidon; [the] men passing [over] the sea filled thee in many waters;

<sup>3</sup> the seed of Nile is [the] harvest, the flood is the corn thereof, and it is made the merchandise of heathen men.

<sup>4</sup> Thou, Sidon, be ashamed, said the sea, the strength of the sea, and said, I travailed not of child, and I childed not, and I nourished not young men, and I brought not fully virgins to increasing.

<sup>5</sup> When it shall be heard in Egypt, they shall make sorrow, when they hear of Tyre.

<sup>8</sup> Who thought this thing on Tyre, sometime crowned, whose merchants were princes, the sellers of merchandise thereof were noble men of [the] earth?

<sup>9</sup> The Lord of hosts thought this thing, that he should draw down the pride of all glory, and that he should bring to shame all the noble men of earth.

<sup>10</sup> Thou daughter of the sea, pass [over] thy land as a flood; a girdle is no more to thee.

<sup>12</sup> and he said, Thou maiden, the daughter of Sidon, that sufferest challenge, shalt no more add, that thou have glory. Rise thou, and pass over the sea into Chittim; there also no rest shall be to thee.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! the land of Chaldees, such a people was not; Assur founded that Tyre; they led over into captivity the strong men thereof; they [under] mined the houses thereof; they setted [or put] it into falling.

<sup>14</sup> Yell, ye ships of the sea, for your strength be destroyed.

<sup>15</sup> And it shall be, in that day, thou, Tyre, shalt be in forgetting by seventy years, as the days of one king; but after seventy years, as the song of a whore shall be to Tyre.

<sup>16</sup> Thou whore, given to forgetting, take an harp, compass the city; sing thou well, use thou oft a song, that mind be of thee.

<sup>17</sup> And it shall be, after seventy years, the Lord shall visit Tyre, and shall bring it again to his hire; and again it shall be, when it shall do fornication with all [the] realms of [the] earth, on the face of [the] earth.

<sup>18</sup> And the merchandises thereof and the meeds thereof shall be hallowed to the Lord; they shall not be hid, neither shall be laid up; for why the merchandise thereof shall be to them that dwell before the Lord, that they eat to fullness, and be clothed till to eldness [or oldness].

CHAPTER 24

<sup>1</sup> Lo! the Lord shall destroy the earth, and shall make it naked, and shall torment the face thereof; and he shall scatter abroad the dwellers thereof.

<sup>2</sup> And it shall be, as the people, so the priest; as the servant, so his lord; as the handmaid, so the lady of her; as a buyer, so he that selleth; as the lender, so he that taketh borrowing; as he that asketh again, so he that oweth.

<sup>3</sup> By destroying the land shall be destroyed, and shall be made naked by ravishing; for why the Lord spake this word.

<sup>4</sup> The earth mourned, and floated away, and is made sick; the world floated away, the highness of the people of [the] earth is made sick,

<sup>5</sup> and the earth is slain of his dwellers. For they passed [the] laws, changed [the] right, destroyed [the] everlasting bond of peace.

<sup>7</sup> [The] Vintage mourned, the vine is sick; all men that were glad in heart wailed.

<sup>8</sup> The joy of tympanes ceased, the sound of glad men rested; the sweet-ness of [the] harp with song was stilled.

<sup>11</sup> Cry shall be on wine in [the] streets, all gladness is forsaken, the joy of [the] earth is taken away.

<sup>14</sup> These men shall raise [up] their voice, and shall praise, when the Lord shall be glorified; they shall show signs of gladness from the sea.

<sup>15</sup> For this thing glorify ye the Lord in teachings; in the isles of the sea glorify ye the name of the Lord God of Israel.

<sup>16</sup> From the ends of [the] earth we have heard praisings, the glory of the just [or the rightwise]. And I said, My private to me, my private to me. Woe to me, [the] trespassers have trespassed, and have trespassed by [the] trespassing of breakers of the law.

<sup>17</sup> Fearedfulness, and a ditch, and a snare on thee, that art a dweller of [the] earth.

<sup>18</sup> And it shall be, he that shall flee from the face of fearedfulness, shall fall into the ditch; and he that shall deliver himself from the ditch, shall be holden of the snare; for why the windows of high things be opened, and the foundations of [the] earth shall be shaken together.

<sup>19</sup> The earth shall be broken with breaking, the earth shall be defouled with defouling, the earth shall be moved with moving,

<sup>20</sup> the earth shall be shaken with shaking, as a drunken man. And it shall be taken away, as the tabernacle of one night, and the wickedness thereof shall grieve it; and it shall fall down, and it shall not add, for to rise again.

<sup>21</sup> And it shall be, in that day the Lord shall visit on the knighthood of heaven on high, and on the kings of earth, that be on earth.

<sup>22</sup> And they shall be gathered together in the gathering together of a bundle into the pit, and they shall be enclosed there in prison; and after many days they shall be visited.

<sup>23</sup> And the moon shall be ashamed, and the sun shall be confounded, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in the hill of Zion, and in Jerusalem, and shall be glorified in the sight of his elder men.

CHAPTER 25

<sup>1</sup> Lord, thou art my God, I shall enhance thee, and I shall acknowledge to thy name; for thou hast done marvels, thine eld [or old] faithful thoughts. Amen.

<sup>2</sup> For thou hast set the city into a burial, a strong city into falling, the house of aliens, that it be not a city, and be not builded without end.

<sup>3</sup> For this thing a strong people shall praise thee, the city of strong folks shall dread thee.

<sup>5</sup> As by heat in thirst, thou shalt make meek the noise of aliens; and as by heat under a cloud burning, thou shalt make the scions of strong men to fade.

<sup>7</sup> And he shall cast down in this hill the face of [the] bond, bound altogether on all peoples, and the web which he weaved on all nations.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall cast down death [into] without end, and the Lord God shall do away each tear from each face; and he shall do away the shame of his people from each land, for the Lord spake.

<sup>9</sup> And they shall say in that day, Lo! this is our God; we abided him, and he shall save us; this is the Lord; we suffered him, and we shall make full out joy, and shall be glad in his health.

<sup>10</sup> For why the hand of the Lord shall rest in this hill, and Moab shall be threshed under him, as chaffs be stamped in a wain.

<sup>11</sup> And he shall stretch forth his hands under him, as a swimmer stretcheth forth to swim; and he shall make low the glory of him with [the] hurtling down of his hands.

<sup>12</sup> And the strongholds of thine high walls shall fall down, and shall be made low, and shall be drawn down to the earth, till to the dust.

CHAPTER 26

<sup>3</sup> The eld [or old] error is gone away; thou shalt keep peace, peace, for thou, Lord, we hoped in thee.

<sup>4</sup> Ye have hoped in the Lord, in everlasting worlds, in the Lord God, strong without end.

<sup>5</sup> For he shall bow down them that dwell on high, and he shall make low an high city; he shall make it low till to the earth; he shall draw it down till to the dust.

<sup>7</sup> The way of a just man is rightful, the path of a just man is rightful to go. [The way of the rightwise is even, even the path of the rightwise to go.]

<sup>8</sup> And in the way of thy dooms, Lord, we suffered thee; thy name, and thy memorial is in desire of soul.

<sup>9</sup> My soul shall desire thee in the night, but also with my spirit in mine entrails; from the morrowtide I shall wake to thee. When thou shalt make thy dooms in [the] earth, all dwellers of the world shall learn rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>10</sup> Do we mercy to the wicked man, and he shall not learn to do rightwise-ness; in the land of saints he did wicked things, and he shall not see the glory of the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> Lord, thine hand be enhanced, that they see not; peoples having envy see, and be shamed, and fire devour thine enemies.

<sup>12</sup> Lord, thou shalt give peace to us, for thou hast wrought all our works in us.

<sup>13</sup> Our Lord God, lords had us in possession, without thee; only in thee have we mind of thy name.

<sup>14</sup> They that die, live not, and giants, rise not again. Therefore thou hast visited, and hast all-broken them, and thou hast lost all the mind of them;

<sup>16</sup> Lord, in anguish they sought thee; in the tribulation of grutching, thy doctrine to them.

<sup>17</sup> As she that conceived, when she nigheth sorrowful to the child bearing, crieth in her sorrows, so we be made, Lord, of thy face.

<sup>18</sup> We have conceived, and we have as travailed of child, and we have childed the spirit of health; we did not rightfulness [or rightwiseness] in earth. Therefore the dwellers of [the] earth fell not down;

<sup>19</sup> thy dead men shall live, and my slain men shall rise again. Ye that dwell in dust, awake, and praise; for why the dew of light is thy dew, and thou shalt draw down the land of giants into falling.

<sup>20</sup> Go thou, my people, enter into thy beds, close thy doors on thee, be thou hid a little at a moment, till indignation pass.

<sup>21</sup> For lo! the Lord shall go out of his place, to visit the wickedness of the dwellers of [the] earth against him; and the earth shall show his blood, and shall no more cover his slain men.

CHAPTER 27

<sup>1</sup> In that day the Lord shall visit in his hard sword, and great, and strong, on leviathan, serpent, a bar [or a lever], and on leviathan, the crooked serpent; and he shall slay the whale, which is in the sea.

<sup>2</sup> In that day the vinery [or the vineyard] of clean wine and good shall sing to him.

<sup>3</sup> I am the Lord that keep that vinery; suddenly I shall give drink to it, lest peradventure it be visited against it; night and day I keep it,

<sup>4</sup> indignation is not to me. Who shall give me a thorn and [a] briar? In battle I shall go on it, I shall burn it altogether.

<sup>5</sup> Whether rather I shall hold my strength? It shall make peace to me, it shall make peace to me,

<sup>6</sup> for the merit of them that shall go out with fierceness from Jacob. Israel shall flower and bring forth seed, and they shall fill the face of the world with seed.

<sup>7</sup> Whether he smote it by the wound of the people of Jews smiting him? either as it killed the slain men of him, so it was slain?

<sup>8</sup> In measure against measure, when it shall be cast away, he shall deem it; he bethought in his hard spirit, by the day of heat.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore on this thing wickedness shall be forgiven to the house of Jacob, and this shall be all the fruit, that the sin thereof be done away, when it hath set all the stones of the altar as the stones of ashes hurtled down. Woods and temples shall not stand.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth the strong city shall be desolate, the fair city shall be left, and shall be forsaken as a desert; there a calf shall be pastured, and shall lie there, and shall waste the highness thereof.

<sup>11</sup> In the dryness of ripe corn thereof women coming, and they that teach it, shall be all-broken. Forsooth it is not a wise people; therefore he that made it, shall not have mercy on it, and he that formed it, shall not spare it.

<sup>12</sup> And it shall be, in that day the Lord shall smite thee, from the bottom of the flood till to the strand [or stream] of Egypt; and ye sons of Israel, shall be gathered one and one.

<sup>13</sup> And it shall be, in that day men shall come with a great trump, and they that were lost, shall come from the land of Assyrians, and they that were cast out, shall come from the land of Egypt; and they shall worship the Lord, in the holy hill of Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 28

<sup>1</sup> Woe to the crown of pride, to the drunken men of Ephraim, and to the flower falling down of the glory of the full out joying thereof, that were in the top of the fattest valley, and erred of wine.

<sup>2</sup> Lo! the mighty and strong Lord, as the fierceness of hail, and whirlwind breaking altogether, as the fierceness of many waters flowing, and sent out on a large land.

<sup>4</sup> and the flower of [the] glory of the full out joying of him, that is on the top of the valley of fat things, shall be falling down, as a timely thing before the ripeness of harvest; which when a man seeing beholdeth, anon as he taketh with hand, he shall devour it.

<sup>5</sup> In that day the Lord of hosts shall be a crown of glory, and a garland of full out joying, to the residue of his people;

<sup>6</sup> and a spirit of doom to him that sitteth on the throne, and strength to them that turn again from [the] battle to the gate.

<sup>7</sup> But also they knew not for wine, and erred for drunkenness; the priest and prophet knew not for drunken-ness; they were sopped up of wine, they erred in drunkenness; they knew not a prophet, they knew not doom.

<sup>8</sup> For why all boards were filled with spewing and filths, so that there was no more place.

<sup>9</sup> Whom shall he teach knowing, and whom shall he make to understand [the] hearing? Men weaned from milk, men drawn away from teats.

<sup>10</sup> For why command thou, command thou again; command thou, command thou again; abide thou, abide thou again; abide thou, abide thou again; a little there, a little there.

<sup>11</sup> For why in [the] speech of lip, and in other language, he shall speak to this people,

<sup>12</sup> to which he said, This is my rest; refresh ye a weary man, and this is my refreshing; and they would not hear.

<sup>13</sup> And the word of the Lord shall be to them, Send thou, send thou again; send thou, send thou again; abide thou, abide thou again; abide thou, abide thou again; a little there, a little there; that they go, and fall backward, and be all-broken, and be snared, and be taken.

<sup>14</sup> For this thing, ye men scorers, that be lords over my people which is in Jerusalem, hear the word of the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> For ye said, We have smitten a bond of peace with death, and we have made covenant with hell; a scourge flowing, when it shall pass, shall not come [up] on us, for we have set a leasing our hope, and we be covered with a leasing.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall send in the foundations of Zion a cornerstone precious, proved, founded in the fundament; he that believeth, shall not hasten.

<sup>17</sup> And I shall set doom in weight, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] in measure; and hail shall destroy the hope of leasing, and waters shall flow on protection.

<sup>18</sup> And your bond of peace with death shall be done away, and your covenant with hell shall not stand; when the scourge flowing shall pass, ye shall be to it into defouling.

<sup>19</sup> Whenever it shall pass, it shall take away you; for why early in the gray morrowtide it shall pass, in day and night; and only travail alone shall give understanding to [the] hearing.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth the bed is strait, so that the tother fall down; and a short mantle shall not cover ever either.

<sup>21</sup> For as in the hill of partings [or divisions] the Lord shall stand, as in the valley, which is in Gibeon, he shall be wroth, that he do his work; his work alien [or alien is his work], that he work his work; his work is strange from him.

<sup>22</sup> And now do not ye scorn, lest peradventure your bonds be made strait together; for I heard of the Lord God of hosts, ending and abridging on all earth.

<sup>23</sup> Perceive ye with ears, and hear ye my voice; perceive ye, and hear ye my speech.

<sup>24</sup> Whether he that eareth, shall ear all day, for to sow, and shall he carve, and purge his land?

<sup>25</sup> Whether when he hath made even the face thereof, shall he not sow gith, and sprinkle abroad cumin? and he shall not set wheat by order, and barley, and millet, and fitches in his coasts?

<sup>26</sup> And his God shall teach him, in doom he shall teach him.

<sup>28</sup> Soothly bread shall be made less, but he that thresheth shall not thresh it without end, neither shall travail it with a wheel of a wain, neither shall make it less with his claws.

<sup>29</sup> And this thing went out of the Lord God of hosts, that he should make wonderful counsel, and magnify rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

CHAPTER 29

<sup>1</sup> Woe! [to] Ariel, Ariel, the city which David overcame; year is added to year, solemnities be passed.

<sup>2</sup> And I shall compass Ariel, and it shall be sorrowful and mourning; and Jerusalem shall be to me as Ariel.

<sup>3</sup> And I shall compass as a round spear, either trundle, in thy compass, and I shall cast [an heap of] earth against thee, and I shall set strongholds, either engines, into thy besieging.

<sup>4</sup> Thou shalt be made low, thou shalt speak of [the] earth, and thy speech shall be heard from the earth; and thy voice shall be as the voice of a dead man raised by conjuring, and thy speech shall oft grutch of the earth.

<sup>5</sup> And the multitude of them that winnowed thee, shall be as thin dust; and the multitude of them that had the mastery against thee, shall be as [a] dead spark passing. And it shall be suddenly,

<sup>6</sup> anon it shall be visited of the Lord of hosts, in thunder, and in moving of the earth, and in great voice of whirlwind, and of tempest, and of flame of fire devouring.

<sup>7</sup> And the multitude of all folks that fought against Ariel shall be as the dream of a night's vision; and all men that fought, and besieged, and had the mastery against it.

<sup>8</sup> And as an hungry man dreameth, and eateth, but when he is awakened, his soul is void; and as a thirsty man dreameth, and drinketh, and after that he is awakened, he is weary, and thirsteth yet, and his soul is void; so shall be the multitude of all folks, that fought against the hill of Zion.

<sup>9</sup> Be ye astonied, and wonder; wake ye, and doubt ye; be ye drunk, and not of wine; be ye moved, and not with drunkenness.

<sup>10</sup> For the Lord hath meddled [or mingled] to you the spirit of sleep; he shall close your eyes, and [he] shall cover your prophets, and princes that see visions.

<sup>11</sup> And the vision of all prophets shall be to you as the words of a book asealed; which when they shall give to him that knoweth letters, they shall say, Read thou this book; and he shall answer, I may not, for it is asealed.

<sup>12</sup> And the book shall be given to him that knoweth not letters, and it shall be said to him, Read thou; and he shall answer, I know no letters.

<sup>13</sup> And the Lord said, For that this people nigheth with their mouth, and glorifieth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me; and they dreaded me for the commandment and teachings of men, <sup>14</sup> therefore lo! I shall add, that I make [great] wondering to this people, in a great miracle and wonderful; for why wisdom shall perish from wise men thereof, and the understanding of prudent men thereof shall be hid.

<sup>15</sup> Woe to you that be deep of heart, that ye hide counsel from the Lord; the works of which be in darkneses, and they say, Who seeth us, and who knoweth us?

<sup>16</sup> This thought of you is wayward, as if clay think against a potter, and the work say to his maker, Thou madest not me; and a thing made, say to his maker, Thou understandest not.

<sup>17</sup> Whether not yet in a little time and short, the Lebanon shall be turned into Carmel, and Carmel shall be areckoned into the forest?

<sup>18</sup> And in that day deaf men shall hear the words of the book, and the eyes of blind men shall see from darkneses and misty;

<sup>19</sup> and mild men shall increase gladness in the Lord, and poor men shall make full out joy in the Holy of Israel.

<sup>20</sup> For he that had the mastery, failed, and the scorner is ended, and all they be cut down that waked on wickedness;

<sup>21</sup> which made men to do sin in word, and deceived a reprovener in the gate, and bowed away in vain from a just [or rightwise] man.

<sup>22</sup> For this thing the Lord, that again-bought Abraham, saith these things to the house of Jacob, Jacob shall not be confounded now, neither now his cheer shall be ashamed;

<sup>23</sup> but when he shall see his sons, the works of mine hands, hallowing my name in the midst of him. And they shall hallow the Holy of Jacob, and they shall preach [the] God of Israel;

<sup>24</sup> and they that err in spirit, shall know understanding, and idle men, either grutchers, shall learn the law.

CHAPTER 30

<sup>1</sup> Woe! sons forsakers, saith the Lord, that ye shall make a counsel, and not of me; and weave a web, and not by my spirit, that ye should increase sin on sin.

<sup>2</sup> Which go, to go down into Egypt, and ye asked not my mouth; ye hoping help in the strength of Pharaoh, and ye having trust in the shadow of Egypt.

<sup>3</sup> And the strength of Pharaoh shall be to you into confusion, and the trust of the shadow of Egypt into shame.

<sup>4</sup> For why thy princes were in Tanis, and thy messengers came till to Hanes.

<sup>5</sup> All they were shamed on the people, that might not profit to them; they were not into help, and into any profit, but into shame and shame.

<sup>6</sup> The burden of [the] work beasts of the south. In the land of tribulation and of anguish, a lioness, and a lion, of them a serpent, and a [flying] cockatrice; they were bearing their riches on the shoulders of work beasts, and their treasures on the botch of camels, to a people that might not profit to them.

<sup>7</sup> For why Egypt shall help in vain, and idly. Therefore I cried on this thing, It is pride only; cease thou.

<sup>8</sup> Now therefore enter thou, and write to it on [a] box [table], and write thou it diligently in a book; and it shall be in the last day into witnessing, till into without end.

<sup>9</sup> For it is a people stirring me to wrathfulness [or wrath], and sons liars, sons that will not hear the law of God.

<sup>10</sup> Which say to prophets, Do not ye prophesy; and to beholders, Do not ye behold to us those things that be rightful [or right]; speak ye things pleasing to us, see ye errors to us.

<sup>11</sup> Do ye away from me the way, bow ye away from me the path; the Holy of Israel cease from our face.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore the Holy of Israel saith these things, For that that ye reprov'd this word, and hoped on false challenge, and on noise, and trusted on it,

<sup>13</sup> therefore this wickedness shall be to you as a breaking falling down, and sought in an high wall; for suddenly while it is not hoped, the breaking thereof shall come.

<sup>14</sup> And it shall be made less, as a vessel of a potter is broken with full strong breaking; and a shard shall not be found of the gobbets, either remnants, thereof, in which shard a little fire shall be borne of burning, either a little of water shall be drawn of the ditch.

<sup>15</sup> For why the Lord God, the Holy of Israel, saith these things, If ye turn again, and rest, ye shall be safe; in stillness and in hope shall be your strength. And ye would not.

<sup>16</sup> And ye said, Nay, but we shall flee to horses; therefore ye shall flee. And we shall ascend [or go up] on swift horses; therefore they shall be swifter, that shall pursue you.

<sup>17</sup> A thousand men shall flee from the face of the dread of one; and ye shall flee from the face of [the] dread of five, till ye be left as the mast of a ship in the top of a mountain, and as a sign on a little hill.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore the Lord abideth, that he have mercy on you, and therefore he shall be enhanced sparing you; for why God is Lord of doom, blessed be all they that abide him.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth the people of Zion shall dwell in Jerusalem; thou weeping shalt not weep, he doing mercy shall have mercy on thee; at the voice of thy cry, anon as he heareth, he shall answer to thee.

<sup>20</sup> And the Lord shall give to thee strait bread, and short water; and shall no more make thy teacher to flee away from thee; and thine eyes shall be seeing thy commander, <sup>21</sup> and thine ears shall hear a word behind the back of him that admonisheth; This is the way, go ye therein, neither to the right half, neither to the left half.

<sup>22</sup> And thou shalt defoul the plates of the graven images of thy silver, and the cloth of the molten image of thy gold; and thou shalt scatter them, as the uncleanness of a woman in unclean blood; Go thou out, and thou shalt say to it.

<sup>23</sup> And rain shall be given to thy seed, wherever thou shalt sow in [the] earth, and the bread of [the] fruits of [the] earth shall be most plenteous and fat; in that day a lamb shall be fed largely in thy possession.

<sup>25</sup> And strands [or rivers] of running waters shall be on each high mountain, and on each little hill raised, in the day of slaying of many men, when towers fall down.

<sup>26</sup> And the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day in which the Lord shall bind together the wound of his people, and shall make whole the smiting of the wounds thereof.

<sup>28</sup> His spirit is as a stiff stream, flowing till to the midst of the neck, to lose folks into nought, and the bridle of error, that was in the cheeks of peoples.

<sup>29</sup> Song shall be to you, as the voice of an hallowed solemnity; and gladness of heart, as he that goeth with a pipe, for to enter into the hill of the Lord, to the Strong of Israel.

<sup>30</sup> And the Lord shall make heard the glory of his voice, and he shall show the fearedfulness of his arm in menacing [or threatening] of strong vengeance, and in flame of fire burning; he shall hurtle down in whirlwind, and in [the] stone of hail.

<sup>32</sup> and the passing of the rod shall be founded, which rod the Lord shall make for to rest on him. In tympan, and harp, and in sovereign battles he shall overcome them.

<sup>33</sup> For why Tophet, that is, hell, deep and alarged, is made ready of the king from yesterday; the nourishings thereof be fire and many trees; the blast of the Lord, as a stream of brimstone, kindleth it.

CHAPTER 31

<sup>1</sup> Woe to them that go down into Egypt to help, and hope in horses, and have trust on carts, for they be many, and on knights, for they be full strong; and they trust not on the Holy of Israel, and they sought not the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> Forsooth he that is wise, hath brought evil, and took not away his words; and he shall rise altogether against the house of worst men, and against the help of them that work wickedness.

<sup>3</sup> Egypt is a man, and not God; and the horses of them be flesh, and not spirit; and the Lord shall bow down his hand, and the helper shall fall down, and he shall fall, to whom help is given, and all shall be wasted together,

<sup>4</sup> For why the Lord saith these things to me, If a lion roareth, and a whelp of a lion on his prey, when the multitude of shepherds cometh against him, he shall not dread of the voice of them, and he shall not dread of the multitude of them; so the Lord of hosts shall come down, for to fight on the mountain [or mount] of Zion, and on the little hill thereof.

<sup>5</sup> As birds flying, so the Lord of hosts shall defend Jerusalem; he defending and delivering, passing forth and saving.

<sup>6</sup> Ye sons of Israel, be converted, as ye had gone away into depth.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth in that day a man shall cast away the idols of his silver, and the idols of his gold, which your hands made to you into sin.

<sup>8</sup> And Assur shall fall by sword, not of man; and a sword, not of man, shall devour him; and he shall flee, not from the face of [the] sword, and his young men shall be tributaries;

<sup>9</sup> and the strength of him shall pass from fearedfulness, and his princes fleeing shall dread. The Lord said, whose fire is in Zion, and his chimney is in Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 32

<sup>2</sup> And a man shall be, as he that is hid from [the] wind, and hideth himself from tempest; as streams of waters in thirst, and the shadow of a stone standing far out in a desert land.

<sup>3</sup> The eyes of seers, that is, prophets, shall not dim, and the ears of hearers shall hearken diligently;

<sup>4</sup> and the heart of fools shall understand knowing, and the tongue of stuttering men shall speak swiftly, and plainly.

<sup>5</sup> He that is unwise shall no more be called prince, and a guileful man shall not be called the greater.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth a fool shall speak folly things, and his heart shall do wicked-ness, that he perform feigning, and speak to the Lord guilefully; and he shall make void the soul of an hungry man, and shall take away drink from a thirsty man.

<sup>7</sup> The vessels of a guileful man be worst; for he shall make ready thoughts to lose mild men in the word of a lie, when a poor man spake doom.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth a prince shall think those things that be worthy to a prince, and he shall stand over dukes.

<sup>9</sup> Rich women, rise ye, and hear my voice; daughters trusting, perceive ye with ears my speech.

<sup>10</sup> For why after days and a year, and ye that trust shall be troubled; for why [the] vintage is ended, gathering shall no more come.

<sup>11</sup> Ye rich women, be astonied; ye that trust, be troubled; unclothe ye you, and be ye ashamed; gird your loins;

<sup>12</sup> wail ye on breasts, on the desirable country, on the plenteous vinery [or vineyard].

<sup>13</sup> Thorns and briars shall ascend [or go up] on the earth of my people; how much more on all the houses of joy of the city making full out joy?

<sup>14</sup> For why the house is left, the multitude of the city is forsaken; darkneses and groping be made on [the] dens, till into without end. The joy of wild asses is the pasture of flocks;

<sup>15</sup> till the spirit be shed [or poured] out on us from on high, and the desert shall be into Carmel, and Carmel shall be areckoned into a forest.

<sup>16</sup> And doom shall dwell in wilder-ness, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall sit in Carmel;

<sup>17</sup> and the work of rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall be peace, and the tilth of rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall be stillness and secureness, till into without end.

<sup>18</sup> And my people shall sit in the fairness of peace, and in the tabernacles of trust, and in rich rest.

<sup>19</sup> But hail shall be in the coming down of the forest, and by lowness the city shall be made low.

<sup>20</sup> Blessed be ye, that sow on all waters, and send in the foot of an ox and of an ass.

CHAPTER 33

<sup>1</sup> Woe to thee, that robbest; whether and thou shalt not be robbed? and that despisest, whether and thou shalt not be despised? When thou hast ended robbing, thou shalt be robbed; and when thou made weary ceasest to despise, thou shalt be despised.

<sup>2</sup> Lord, have thou mercy on us, for we abided thee; be thou our arm in the morrowtide, and our health in the time of tribulation.

<sup>4</sup> And your spoils shall be gathered together, as a bruchus, that is, fruit of locusts, is gathered together, as when ditches be full thereof.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord is magnified, for he dwelled on high, he filled Zion with doom and rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>6</sup> And faith shall be in thy times; the riches of health is wisdom and knowing; the dread of the Lord, that is the treasure of him.

<sup>8</sup> [The] Ways be destroyed, a goer by the path ceased; the covenant is made void, he casted down [the] cities, he areckoned not men.

<sup>9</sup> The land mourned, and was sick; the Lebanon was shamed, and was foul; and Sharon is made as desert, and Bashan is shaken, and Carmel.

<sup>10</sup> Now I shall rise, saith the Lord, now I shall be enhanced, and now I shall be raised up.

<sup>11</sup> Ye shall conceive heat, ye shall bring forth stubble; your spirit, as fire, shall devour you.

<sup>14</sup> Sinners be all-broken in Zion, trembling wielded hypocrites; who of you may dwell with fire devouring? who of you shall dwell with everlasting burnings?

<sup>15</sup> He that goeth in rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses], and speaketh truth; he that casteth away avarice of false challenge, and shaketh away his hands from all gifts, or bribes; he that stoppeth his ears, that he hear not blood, and closeth his eyes, that he see not evil.

<sup>16</sup> This man shall dwell in high things, the strongholds of stones be the highness of him; bread is given to him, his waters be faithful.

<sup>18</sup> Eliakim, thine heart shall bethink dread; where is the lettered man? Where is he that weigheth the words of the law? where is the teacher of little children?

<sup>19</sup> Thou shalt not see a people unwise, a people of deep word, so that thou mayest not understand the fair speaking of his tongue, in which people is no wisdom.

<sup>21</sup> For only the worshipful doer, our Lord God, is there; the place of floods is strands [or rivers] full large and open; the ship of rowers shall not enter by it, neither a great ship shall pass over it.

<sup>22</sup> For why the Lord is our judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our king; he shall save us.

<sup>23</sup> Thy ropes be slacked, but those shall not avail; thy mast shall be so, that thou may not alarge a sign. Then the spoils of many preys shall be parted, crooked men shall ravish raven.

<sup>24</sup> And a neighbour shall say, I was not sick; the people that dwelleth in that Jerusalem, wickedness shall be taken away from it.

CHAPTER 34

<sup>1</sup> Nigh, ye heathen men, to hear; ye peoples, perceive; the earth, and the fullness thereof, the world, and all burgeoning thereof, hear ye.

<sup>2</sup> For why [the] indignation of the Lord is on all folks, and strong vengeance on all the chivalry of them; he killed them, and gave them into slaying.

<sup>3</sup> The slain men of them shall be cast forth, and stink shall ascend [or go up] of the carrions of them; hills [or the mountains] shall flow of the blood of them.

<sup>4</sup> And all the chivalry of heavens shall fail, and heavens shall be folded together as a book, and all the knighthood of those shall float down, as the leaf of a vinery [or a vine] and of a fig tree falleth down.

<sup>5</sup> For my sword is filled in heaven; lo! it shall come down on Idumea, and on the people of my slaying, to doom.

<sup>6</sup> The sword of the Lord is filled of blood, it is made fat of the inner fatness of the blood of lambs and of bucks of goats, of the blood of rams full of marrow; for why the slain sacrifice of the Lord is in Bozrah, and great slaying is in the land of Edom.

<sup>7</sup> And unicorns shall go down with them, and bulls with them that be mighty; the land of them shall be filled with blood, and the earth of them with [the] inner fatness of fat beasts;

<sup>8</sup> for it is a day of vengeance of the Lord, a year of yielding of the doom of Zion.

<sup>9</sup> And the strands [or streams] thereof shall be turned into pitch, and the earth thereof into brimstone; and the land thereof shall be into burning pitch, night and day.

<sup>10</sup> It shall not be quenched without end, the smoke thereof shall go up from generation into generation, and it shall be desolate into worlds of worlds; none shall pass thereby.

<sup>11</sup> And an onocrotalus, and an urchin, shall wield it; and a capret, and a crow shall dwell therein; and a measure shall be stretched forth thereon, that it be driven to nought, and an hanging plummet into desolation.

<sup>12</sup> The noble men thereof shall not be there; rather they shall call the king into help, and all the princes thereof shall be into nought.

<sup>13</sup> And thorns and nettles shall grow in the houses thereof, and a teasel in the strongholds thereof; and it shall be the couch of dragons, and the pasture of ostriches.

<sup>14</sup> And fiends, and wonderful beasts, like men in the higher part, and like asses in the nether part, and an hairy, shall meet; one shall cry to another. Lamia shall lie there, and find rest there to herself;

<sup>15</sup> there an urchin had ditches, and nourished out whelps, and digged about, and fostered in the shadow thereof; there kites were gathered together, one to another.

<sup>16</sup> Seek ye diligently in the book of the Lord, and read ye; one of those things failed not, one sought not another; for he commanded that thing, that goeth forth of my mouth, and his spirit, he gathered them together.

<sup>17</sup> And he sent to them heritage, and his hand parted it in measure; till into without end they shall wield that land, in generation and into generation they shall dwell therein.

CHAPTER 35

<sup>1</sup> The forsaken Judah and without a way shall be glad, and [the] wilder-ness shall make full out joy, and shall flower as a lily.

<sup>2</sup> It burgeoning shall burgeon, and it glad and praising shall make full out joy. The glory of Lebanon is given to it, the fairness of Carmel and of Sharon; they shall see the glory of the Lord, and the fairness of our God.

<sup>4</sup> Say ye, Men of little comfort, be ye comforted, and do not ye dread; lo! our God shall bring the vengeance of yielding, God himself shall come, and shall save us.

<sup>5</sup> Then the eyes of blind men shall be opened, and the ears of deaf men shall be open[ed].

<sup>6</sup> Then a crooked man shall skip as an hart, and the tongue of dumb men shall be opened; for why waters be broken out in desert, and streams in wilderness.

<sup>7</sup> And that that was dry, is made into a pond, and the thirsty is made into wells of waters. [The] Greenness of [the] reed, and of [the] spire shall grow in [the] dens, in which dwelled dragons before.

<sup>8</sup> And a path and a way shall be there, and it shall be called an holy way, he that is defouled shall not pass thereby; and this shall be a straight [right] way to you, so that fools err not thereby.

<sup>9</sup> A lion shall not be there, and an evil beast shall not ascend [or go up] thereby, neither shall be found there. And they shall go, that be delivered;

<sup>10</sup> and again-bought of the Lord; and they shall be converted, and shall come into Zion with praising; and everlasting gladness shall be on the heads of them; they shall have joy and gladness, and sorrow and wailing shall flee away.

CHAPTER 36

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, Sennacherib, the king of Assyrians, ascended [or went up] on all the strong cities of Judah, and took them.

<sup>2</sup> And the king of Assyrians sent Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem, to king Hezekiah, with great power; and he stood at the water conduit of the higher cistern, in the way of the field of a fuller, or tucker.

<sup>3</sup> And Eliakim, the son of Hilkiyah, that was on the house, went out to him, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, the son of Asaph, the chancellor.

<sup>4</sup> And Rabshakeh said to them, Say ye to Hezekiah, The great king, the king of Assyrians, saith these things, What is the trust, in which thou trustest?

<sup>5</sup> either by what counsel either strength disposest thou for to rebel? on whom hast thou trust, for thou hast gone away from me?

<sup>6</sup> Lo! thou trustest on this broken staff of reed, on Egypt, on which if a man leaneth, either resteth, it shall enter into his hand, and shall pierce it; so doeth Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, to all men that trust in him.

<sup>7</sup> That if thou answerest to me, We trust in our Lord God [or in the Lord our God]; whether it is not he, whose high places and altars Hezekiah did away, and he said to Judah and to Jerusalem, Ye shall worship before this altar?

<sup>8</sup> And now betake thee to my lord, the king of Assyrians, and I shall give to thee two thousand horses, and thou mayest not give of thee riders of those horses.

<sup>9</sup> And how shalt thou abide the face of the judge of one place of the less servants of my lord? That if thou trustest in Egypt, and in carts, and in knights;

<sup>10</sup> and now whether I ascended [or went up] to this land without the Lord, that I should destroy it? The Lord said to me, Ascend thou [or Go up] on this land, and destroy thou it.

<sup>11</sup> And Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joah, said to Rabshakeh, Speak thou to thy servants by the language of Syria, for we understand; speak thou not to us by the language of Jews, in the ears of the people, which is on the wall.

<sup>12</sup> And Rabshakeh said to them, Whether my lord sent me to thy lord, and to thee, that I should speak all these words, and not rather to the men that sit on the wall, that they eat their turds, and drink the piss off their feet, with you?

<sup>13</sup> And Rabshakeh stood, and cried with [a] great voice in the language of Jews, and said, Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyrians.

<sup>14</sup> The king saith these things, Hezekiah deceive not you, for he may not deliver you;

<sup>15</sup> and Hezekiah give not to you trust on the Lord, and say, The Lord delivering shall deliver us; this city shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyrians.

<sup>16</sup> Do not ye hear Hezekiah. For why the king of Assyrians saith these things, Make ye blessing with me, and go ye out to me; and eat ye each man his vinery [or his vine], and each man his fig tree, and drink ye each man the water of his cistern, <sup>17</sup> till I come, and take away you to a land which is as your land; to a land of wheat and of wine, to a land of loaves and of vineries [or vines].

<sup>18</sup> Hezekiah trouble not you, and say, The Lord shall deliver us. Whether the gods of folks delivered each his land from the hand of the king of Assyrians?

<sup>19</sup> Where is the god of Hamath, and of Arphad? Where is the god of Sepharvaim? Whether they delivered Samaria from mine hand?

<sup>20</sup> Who is of all [the] gods of these lands, that delivered his land from mine hand, that the Lord deliver Jerusalem from mine hand?

<sup>21</sup> And they were still, and answered not to him a word. For why the king commanded to them, and said, Answer ye not to him.

<sup>22</sup> And Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah, that was on the house, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, the son of Asaph, chancellor, entered with rent clothes to Hezekiah, and told to him the words of Rabshakeh.

CHAPTER 37

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, when king Hezekiah had heard, he rent his clothes, and he was wrapped in a sackcloth, and entered into the house of the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> And he sent Eliakim, that was on the house, and Shebna, the scribe, and the elder men of priests, covered with sackcloths, to Isaiah, the prophet, the son of Amoz.

<sup>3</sup> And they said to him, Hezekiah saith these things, A day of tribulation, and of anguish, and of chastising, and of blasphemy is this day; for children came unto childbearing, and strength of childbearing is not.

<sup>4</sup> Therefore raise thou [up] prayer for the remnants that be found, if in any manner thy Lord God [or the Lord thy God] hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyrians, his lord, sent, for to blaspheme [the] living God, and to despise by the words, which thy Lord God heard.

<sup>5</sup> And the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah;

<sup>6</sup> and Isaiah said to them, Ye shall say these things to your lord, The Lord saith these things, Dread thou not of the face of [the] words which thou heardest, by which the servants of the king of Assyrians blasphemed me.

<sup>7</sup> Lo! I shall give to him a spirit, and he shall hear a messenger; and he shall turn again to his land, and I shall make him to fall down by sword in his land.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth Rabshakeh turned again, and found the king of Assyrians fighting against Libnah; for he had heard, that the king was gone from Lachish.

<sup>9</sup> And the king heard messengers saying of Tirhakah, king of Ethiopians, He is gone out to fight against thee. And when he had heard this thing, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, and said,

<sup>11</sup> Lo! thou heardest all things which the kings of Assyrians did to all lands which they destroyed; and mayest thou be delivered?

<sup>12</sup> Whether the gods of folks delivered them, which my fathers destroyed; Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the sons of Eden, that were in Telassar?

<sup>13</sup> Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, and of Hena, and of Ivah?

<sup>14</sup> And Hezekiah took the books from the hand of the messengers, and read them; and he went up into the house of the Lord, and spreaded abroad them before the Lord;

<sup>15</sup> and prayed to the Lord, and said,

<sup>16</sup> Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that sittest on cherubim, thou art God alone of all the realms of [the] earth; thou madest heaven and earth.

<sup>17</sup> Lord, bow down thine ear, and hear; Lord, open thine eyes, and see; and hear thou all the words of Sennacherib, which he sent for to blaspheme living God.

<sup>18</sup> For verily, Lord, the kings of Assyrians made lands desert, and the countries of them,

<sup>19</sup> and gave the gods of them to fire; for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands, wood and stones; and they all-brake those gods.

<sup>20</sup> And now, our Lord God, save thou us from the hand of him; and all [the] realms of earth know, that thou art the Lord God alone.

<sup>21</sup> And Isaiah, the son of Amoz, sent to Hezekiah, and said, The Lord God of Israel saith these things, For which things thou prayedest me of Sennacherib, the king of Assyrians,

<sup>22</sup> this is the word which the Lord spake on him, Thou virgin, the daughter of Zion, he despised thee, he scorned thee; thou virgin, the daughter of Jerusalem, he moved his head after thee.

<sup>23</sup> Whom despisest thou, and whom blasphemedest thou? and on whom raisedest thou thy voice, and raisedest the highness of thine eyes? To the Holy of Israel.

<sup>24</sup> By the hand of thy servants thou despisedest the Lord, and saidest, In the multitude of my carts, I ascended [or went up] on the highnesses of hills, on the yokes of Lebanon; and I shall cut down the high things of cedars thereof, and the chosen beeches thereof; and I shall enter into the highness of the top thereof, into the forest of Carmel thereof.

<sup>25</sup> I digged, and drank water; and I made dry with the step of my foot all the strands [or rivers] of [the] fields.

<sup>26</sup> Whether thou, Sennacherib, heardest not what things I did some-time? From eld days I formed that thing, and now I have brought; and it is made into the drawing up by the root of little hills fighting together, and of strong cities.

<sup>27</sup> The dwellers of those cities trembled together with hand made short, and be ashamed; they be made as hay of the field, and as the grass of [the] pasture, and as herb of house roofs, either ridges, that dried up before that it waxed ripe.

<sup>28</sup> I knew thy dwelling, and thy going out, and thine entering, and thy strong vengeance against me.

<sup>29</sup> When thou were wroth against me, thy pride ascended [or went up] into mine ears; therefore I shall set a ring in thy nostrils, and a bridle in thy lips; and I shall lead thee into the way, by which thou camest.

<sup>30</sup> Forsooth to thee, Hezekiah, this shall be a sign; eat thou in this year those things that grow by their free will, and in the second year eat thou apples; but in the third year, sow ye, and reap ye, and plant ye vineries [or vines], and eat ye the fruit of them.

<sup>31</sup> And that that is saved of the house of Judah, and that, that is left, shall send [the] root beneath, and shall make fruit above;

<sup>32</sup> for why remnants shall go out of Jerusalem, and salvation from the hill of Zion; the fervent love of the Lord of hosts shall do this thing.

<sup>33</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things of the king of Assyrians, He shall not enter into this city, and he shall not shoot there an arrow; and a shield shall not occupy it, and he shall not send [an heap of] earth in the compass thereof.

<sup>34</sup> In the way in which he came, he shall turn again by it; and he shall not enter into this city, saith the Lord.

<sup>35</sup> And I shall defend this city, that I save it, for me, and for David, my servant.

<sup>36</sup> Forsooth the angel of the Lord went out, and killed an hundred thousand and fourscore and five thousand in the tents of Assyrians; and they rose early, and lo! all men were[the] carrions of dead men.

<sup>37</sup> And Sennacherib went out of Judah, and went away. And Sennach-erib, the king of Assyrians, turned again, and dwelled in Nineveh.

<sup>38</sup> And it was done, when he worshipped Nisroch, his god, in the temple, Adrammelech and Sharezer, his sons, killed him with sword, and fled into the land of Ararat, that is, Armenia; and Esarhaddon, his son, reigned for him.

CHAPTER 38

<sup>1</sup> In those days Hezekiah was sick unto the death; and Isaiah, the prophet, the son of Amoz, entered to him, and said to him, The Lord saith these things, Dispose thy house, for thou shalt die, and thou shalt not live.

<sup>3</sup> and said, Lord, I beseech; have thou mind, I beseech, how I went before thee in truth, and in perfect heart, and I did that that was good before thine eyes. And Hezekiah wept with great weeping.

<sup>4</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Isaiah, and said,

<sup>5</sup> Go thou, and say to Hezekiah, The Lord God of David, thy father, saith these things, I have heard thy prayer, and I saw thy tears. Lo! I shall add on thy days fifteen years;

<sup>6</sup> and I shall deliver thee and this city from the hand of the king of Assyrians, and I shall defend it.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth this shall be to thee a sign of the Lord, that the Lord shall do this word, which he hath spoken.

<sup>8</sup> Lo! I shall make the shadow of lines, by which it went down in the horologe of Ahaz, in the sun, to turn again backward by ten lines. And the sun turned again by ten lines, by [the] degrees by which it had gone down.

<sup>9</sup> The scripture of Hezekiah, king of Judah, when he had been sick, and had recovered of his sickness.

<sup>10</sup> I said, in the middle of my days, I shall go to the gates of hell. I sought the residue of my years;

<sup>11</sup> I said, I shall not see the Lord God in the land of livers; I shall no more behold a man, and a dweller of rest.

<sup>12</sup> My generation is taken away, and is folded together from me, as the tabernacle of shepherds is folded together. My life is cut down as of a web; he cutted down me, the while I was woven yet.

<sup>13</sup> From the morrowtide till to the eventide I felt like thou shalt end me; I hoped till to the morrowtide; as a lion, so he all-brake my bones. From the morrowtide till to the eventide I felt like thou shalt end me;

<sup>14</sup> as the young of a swallow, so I shall cry; I shall bethink as a culver. Mine eyes beholding on high, be made feeble. Lord, I suffer violence, answer thou for me;

<sup>15</sup> what shall I say, either what shall he answer to me, when he hath done? I shall bethink to thee all my years, in the bitterness of my soul.

<sup>16</sup> Lord, if men liveth so, and the life of my spirit is in such things, thou shalt chastise me, and shalt quicken me.

<sup>17</sup> Lo! my bitterness is most bitter in peace; forsooth thou hast delivered my soul, that it perished not; thou hast cast away behind thy back all my sins.

<sup>18</sup> For not hell shall acknowledge to thee, neither death shall praise thee; they that go down into the pit, shall not abide thy truth.

<sup>19</sup> A living man, a living man, he shall acknowledge to thee, as and I today; the father shall make known thy truth to [the] sons.

<sup>20</sup> Lord, make thou me safe, and we shall sing our psalms in all the days of our life in the house of the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> And Isaiah commanded, that they should take a gobbet of figs, and make a plaster on the wound; and it should be healed.

<sup>22</sup> And Hezekiah said, What sign shall be, that I shall ascend [or go up] into the house of the Lord?

CHAPTER 39

<sup>1</sup> In that time Merodachbaladan, the son of Baladan, the king of Babylon, sent books and gifts to Hezekiah; for he had heard, that Hezekiah had been sick, and was recovered.

<sup>2</sup> Forsooth Hezekiah was glad on them, and showed to them the cells of sweet smelling spices, and of silver, and of gold, and of smelling things, and of best ointment, and all the shops of his appurtenance of household, and all things that were found in his treasures; no word was, which Hezekiah showed not to them in his house, and in all his power.

<sup>3</sup> Soothly Isaiah, the prophet, entered to king Hezekiah, and said to him, What said these men, and from whence came they to thee? And Hezekiah said, From a far land they came to me, from Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> And Isaiah said, What saw they in thine house? And Hezekiah said, They saw all things that be in mine house; nothing was in my treasures, which I showed not to them.

<sup>5</sup> And Isaiah said to Hezekiah, Hear thou the word of the Lord of hosts.

<sup>7</sup> And they shall take [away] of thy sons, that shall go out of thee, which thou shalt engender; and they shall be honest servants and chaste in the palace of the king of Babylon.

<sup>8</sup> And Hezekiah said to Isaiah, The word of the Lord is good, which he spake. And Hezekiah said, Peace and truth be made only in my days.

CHAPTER 40

<sup>2</sup> Speak ye to the heart of Jeru-salem, and call ye [to] it, for the malice thereof is [ful] filled, the wickedness thereof is forgiven; it hath received of the hand of the Lord double things for all his sins.

<sup>4</sup> Each valley shall be enhanced, and each mountain and little hill shall be made low; and shrewd things shall be into straight things, and sharp things shall be into plain ways.

<sup>5</sup> And the glory of the Lord shall be showed, and each man shall see together, that the mouth of the Lord hath spoken.

<sup>6</sup> The voice of God, saying, Cry thou. And I said, What shall I cry? Each flesh is hay, and all the glory thereof is as the flower of the field.

<sup>7</sup> The hay is dried up, and the flower fell down, for the spirit of the Lord blew therein. Verily the people is hay;

<sup>8</sup> the hay is dried up, and the flower fell down; but the word of the Lord dwelleth, either shall stand, without end.

<sup>9</sup> Thou that preachest to Zion, go upon an high hill; thou that preachest to Jerusalem, enhance thy voice in strength; enhance thou, do not thou dread; say thou to the cities of Judah, Lo! your God.

<sup>10</sup> Lo! the Lord God shall come in strength, and his arm shall hold lordship; lo! his meed is with him, and his work is before him.

<sup>11</sup> As a shepherd he shall feed his flock, he shall gather [the] lambs in his arms, and he shall raise in his bosom; he shall bear [the] sheep with lamb.

<sup>12</sup> Who meted [or measured] waters in a fist, and weighed heavens with a span? Who weighed the heaviness of the earth with three fingers, and weighed [the] mountains in a weigh, and [the] little hills in a balance?

<sup>13</sup> Who helped the Spirit of the Lord, either who was his counsellor, and showed to him?

<sup>14</sup> With whom took he counsel, and who learned him, and taught him the path of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and learned him in knowing, and showed to him the way of prudence?

<sup>15</sup> Lo! folks be as a drop of a bucket, and be areckoned as the tongue of a balance; lo! isles be as a little dust,

<sup>16</sup> and the Lebanon shall not suffice to burn his sacrifice, and the beasts thereof shall not suffice to burnt sacrifice.

<sup>17</sup> All folks be so before him, as if they be not; and they be reckoned as nothing and vain thing to him.

<sup>18</sup> To whom therefore made ye God like? either what image shall ye set to him?

<sup>20</sup> A wise craftsman chooseth a strong tree, and unable to be rotten; he seeketh how he shall ordain a simulacrum, that shall not be moved.

<sup>21</sup> Whether ye know not? whether ye heard not? whether it was not told to you from the beginning? whether ye understood not the foundations of [the] earth?

<sup>22</sup> Which sitteth on the compass of [the] earth, and the dwellers thereof be as locusts; which stretcheth forth heavens as nought, and spreadeth abroad those as a tabernacle to dwell.

<sup>23</sup> Which giveth the searchers of privates, as if they be not, and [he] made the judges of [the] earth as a vain thing.

<sup>24</sup> And soothly when the stock of them is neither planted, neither is sown, neither is rooted in [the] earth, he blew suddenly on them, and they dried up, and a whirlwind shall take them away as stubble.

<sup>25</sup> And to what thing have ye likened me, and have made [me] even? saith the Holy.

<sup>26</sup> Raise [up] your eyes on high, and see ye, who made these things of nought; which leadeth out in number the knighthood of them, and calleth all by name, for the multitude of his strength, and stalworth<sup>[y]</sup> ness, and might; neither one residue thing was.

<sup>27</sup> Why sayest thou, Jacob, and speakest thou, Israel, My way is hid from the Lord, and my doom passed from my God?

<sup>29</sup> That giveth strength to the weary, and strength to them that be not, and multiplieth stalworth[y] ness.

<sup>31</sup> But they that hope in the Lord, shall change strength, they shall take feathers as eagles; they shall run, and shall not travail; they shall go, and shall not fail.

CHAPTER 41

<sup>1</sup> Isles, be still to me, and folks change strength; nigh they, and then speak they; nigh we together to doom.

<sup>2</sup> Who raised the just [or rightwise] man from the east, and called him to follow himself? He shall give folks in his sight, and he shall wield kings; he shall give as dust to his sword, and as stubble ravished of the wind to his bow.

<sup>3</sup> He shall pursue them, he shall go in peace; a path shall not appear in his feet.

<sup>4</sup> Who wrought and did these things? calling generations at the beginning. I am the Lord; and I am the first, and the last.

<sup>5</sup> Isles saw, and dreaded; the last parts of [the] earth were astonished; they came nigh, and nighed.

<sup>7</sup> A smith of metal smiting with an hammer comforted him that polished, either made fair, in that time, saying, It is good to [the] glue; and he fastened him with nails, that he should not be moved.

<sup>8</sup> And thou, Israel, my servant, Jacob, whom I chose, the seed of Abraham, my friend,

<sup>9</sup> in whom I took thee; from the last parts of [the] earth, and from the far parts thereof I called thee; and I said to thee, Thou art my servant; I chose thee, and casted not away thee.

<sup>10</sup> Dread thou not, for I am with thee; bow thou not away, for I am thy God. I comforted thee, and helped thee; and the right hand of my just [or rightwise] man up-took thee.

<sup>11</sup> Lo! all men shall be shamed, and shall be ashamed, that fight against thee; they shall be as if they be not, and men shall perish, that against-say thee.

<sup>12</sup> Thou shalt seek them, and thou shalt not find thy rebel men; they shall be as if they be not, and as the wasting of a man fighting against thee.

<sup>13</sup> For I am thy Lord God, taking thine hand, and saying to thee, Dread thou not, I helped thee.

<sup>14</sup> Do not thou, worm of Jacob, dread, ye that be dead of Israel. I helped thee, saith the Lord, and thine again-buyer, the Holy of Israel.

<sup>15</sup> I have set thee as a new wain threshing, having sawing bills; thou shalt thresh mountains, and shalt make small, and thou shalt set little hills as dust.

<sup>16</sup> Thou shalt winnow them, and the wind shall take them away, and a whirlwind shall scatter them; and thou shalt make full out joy in the Lord, and thou shalt be glad in the Holy of Israel.

<sup>17</sup> Needy men and poor seek waters, and those be not; the tongue of them dried for thirst. I the Lord shall hear them, I God of Israel shall not forsake them.

<sup>18</sup> I shall open floods in high hills, and wells in the midst of fields; I shall set the desert into ponds of waters, and the land without a way into rivers of waters.

<sup>19</sup> I shall give in wilderness a cedar, and a thorn, and a myrtle tree, and the tree of an olive; I shall set in the desert a fir tree, an elm, and a box tree together.

<sup>20</sup> That they see, and know, and bethink, and understand together; that the hand of the Lord did this thing, and the Holy of Israel made that of nought.

<sup>21</sup> Make ye nigh your doom, saith the Lord; bring ye, if in hap ye have anything, saith the King of Jacob.

<sup>22</sup> Nigh, and tell to us, whatever things shall come; tell ye the former things that were, and we shall set our heart, and shall know; show ye to us the last things of them, and those things that shall come.

<sup>23</sup> Tell ye what things shall come in time to coming [or to come], and we shall know, that ye be gods; also do ye well, either evil, if ye may; and speak we, and see we together.

<sup>24</sup> Lo! ye be of nought, and your work is of that that is not; he that choose you, is abomination.

<sup>25</sup> I raised from the north, and he shall come from the rising of the sun; he shall call my name. And he shall bring magistrates as clay, and as a potter defouling [the] earth.

<sup>26</sup> Who told from the beginning, that we know, and from the beginning, that we say, Thou art just? none is telling, neither before-saying, neither hearing your words.

<sup>27</sup> The first shall say to Zion, Lo! I am present; and I shall give a gospeller to Jerusalem.

<sup>28</sup> And I saw, and none was of these, that took counsel, and he that was asked, answered a word.

<sup>29</sup> Lo! all men be unjust, and their works be wind and vain; the simulacra of them be wind, and void thing.

CHAPTER 42

<sup>1</sup> Lo! my servant, I shall up-take him; my chosen, my soul pleased to itself in him. I gave my spirit on him, he shall bring forth doom to heathen men.

<sup>3</sup> He shall not break a shaken reed, and he shall not quench smoking flax; he shall bring out doom in truth.

<sup>4</sup> He shall not be sorrowful, neither troubled, till he set doom in [the] earth, and isles shall abide his law.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord God saith these things, making heavens of nought, and stretching forth them, making steadfast the earth, and those things that burgeon [out] of it, giving breath to the people, that is on it, and giving spirit to them that tread on it.

<sup>6</sup> I the Lord have called thee in rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and I took thine hand, and kept thee, and I gave thee into a bond of peace of the people, and into light of folks.

<sup>7</sup> That thou shouldest open the eyes of blind men; that thou shouldest lead out of enclosing together a bound man, from the house of prison men sitting in darkneses.

<sup>8</sup> I am the Lord, this is my name; I shall not give my glory to another, and my praising to graven images.

<sup>9</sup> Lo! those things that were the first, be come, and I tell new things; I shall make heard to you, before that those [or they] begin to be made.

<sup>10</sup> Sing ye a new song to the Lord; his praising is from the last parts of the earth; ye that go down into the sea, and the fullness thereof, isles, and the dwellers of those.

<sup>11</sup> The desert be raised [up], and the cities thereof; he shall dwell in the houses of Kedar; ye dwellers of the stone, praise ye; they shall cry from the top of hills.

<sup>12</sup> They shall set glory to the Lord, and they shall tell his praising in isles.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord as a strong man shall go out, as a man a warrior he shall raise fervent love; he shall speak, and shall cry; he shall be comforted on his enemies.

<sup>14</sup> I was still, ever I held [my] silence; I was patient, I shall speak as a woman travailing of child; I shall scatter, and I shall swallow together.

<sup>15</sup> I shall make desert high mountains and little hills, and I shall dry up all the burgeoning of them; and I shall set floods into isles, and I shall make ponds dry.

<sup>16</sup> And I shall lead out blind men into the way, which they know not, and I shall make them to go in paths, which they knew not; I shall set the darknesses of them before them into light, and shrewd things into rightful [or even] things; I did these words to them, and I forsook not them.

<sup>17</sup> They be turned aback; be they shamed with shame, that trust in a graven image; which say to a molten image, Ye be our gods.

<sup>19</sup> Who is blind, no but my servant? and deaf, but he to whom I sent my messengers? Who is blind, but he that is sold? and who is blind, but the servant of the Lord?

<sup>20</sup> Whether thou that seest many things, shalt not keep? Whether thou that hast open ears, shalt not hear?

<sup>21</sup> And the Lord would, that he should hallow it, and magnify the law, and enhance it.

<sup>22</sup> But that people was ravished, and wasted; all they be the snare of young men, and be hid in the houses of prisons. They be made into raven, and none is that delivereth; into ravishing, and none there is that saith, Yield thou.

<sup>23</sup> Who is among you, that heareth this, perceiveth, and hearkeneth things to coming [or to come]?

<sup>24</sup> Who gave Jacob into ravishing, and Israel to destroyers? Whether not the Lord? He it is, against whom they sinned; and they would not go in his ways, and they heard not his law.

<sup>25</sup> And he shedded [or poured] out on them the indignation of his strong vengeance, and strong battle; and he burnt it in compass, and it knew not; and he burnt it, and it understood not.

CHAPTER 43

<sup>1</sup> And now the Lord God, making of nought thee, Jacob, and forming thee, Israel, saith these things, Do not thou dread, for I again-bought thee, and I called thee by thy name; thou art my servant.

<sup>3</sup> For I am thy Lord God, the Holy of Israel, thy saviour. I gave thy mercy Egypt; Ethiopia, and Seba, for thee.

<sup>4</sup> Since thou art made honourable, and glorious in mine eyes; I loved thee, and I shall give men for thee, and peoples for thy soul.

<sup>5</sup> Do not thou dread, for I am with thee; I shall bring thy seed from the east, and I shall gather thee together from the west.

<sup>6</sup> I shall say to the north, Give thou, and to the south, Do not thou forbid; bring thou my sons from afar, and my daughters from the last parts of [the] earth.

<sup>7</sup> And each that calleth my name to help, into my glory I made him of nought; I formed him, and made him.

<sup>8</sup> Lead thou forth the blind people, and having eyes; the deaf people, and ears be to it.

<sup>9</sup> All heathen men be gathered together, and lineages be gathered together. Who among you, who shall tell this, and shall make you to hear those things, that be the first? give they [the] witnesses of them, and be they justified, and hear they, and say.

<sup>10</sup> Verily ye be my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servants, whom I chose; that ye know, and believe to me, and understand, for I myself am; before me is no God former [or before me is not formed God], and after me shall none be.

<sup>11</sup> I am, I am the Lord, and without me is no Saviour [or and there is not without me a saviour].

<sup>12</sup> I told, and saved; I made hearing, and none alien God was among you. Ye be my witnesses, saith the Lord; and I am God, <sup>13</sup> from the beginning, I myself am, and none there is that delivereth from mine hand; I shall work, and who shall destroy it?

<sup>14</sup> The Lord, your again-buyer, the Holy of Israel, saith these things, For you I sent out into Babylon, and I drew down all [the] bars, and [the] Chaldees having glory in their ships.

<sup>15</sup> I am the Lord, your Holy, your king, making Israel of nought.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord saith these things, that gave [a] way in the sea, and a path in running waters;

<sup>17</sup> which led out a cart, and horse, a company, and strong man; they slept together, neither they shall rise again; they be all-broken as flax, and be quenched.

<sup>19</sup> Lo! I make new things, and now those shall begin to be made; soothly ye shall know them. I shall set [a] way in desert, and floods in a land without a way.

<sup>20</sup> And a beast of the field shall glorify me, dragons and ostriches shall glorify me; for I gave waters in desert, and floods in the land without a way, that I should give drink to my people, to my chosen people.

<sup>21</sup> I formed this people to me, it shall tell my praising.

<sup>22</sup> Jacob, thou calledest not me to help; and thou, Israel, travailedest not for me.

<sup>23</sup> Thou offeredest not to me the ram of thy burnt sacrifice, and thou glorifiedest not me with thy slain sacrifices. I made not thee to serve in offering, neither I gave to thee travail in incense.

<sup>24</sup> Thou boughtest not to me sweet smelling spicery for silver, and thou filledest not me with [the] fatness of thy slain sacrifices; nevertheless thou madest me to serve in thy sins, thou gavest travail to me in thy wicked-nesses.

<sup>25</sup> I am, I myself am, that do away thy wickednesses for me, and I shall not have mind on thy sins.

<sup>26</sup> Bring me again into mind, and be we deemed together; tell thou, if thou hast anything, that thou be justified.

<sup>28</sup> And I made foul holy princes, and I gave Jacob to death, and Israel into blasphemy.

CHAPTER 44

<sup>2</sup> The Lord making and forgiving thee, thine helper from the womb, saith these things, My servant, Jacob, do not thou dread, and thou most rightful [or most right], whom I chose.

<sup>3</sup> For I shall shed [or pour] out waters on the thirsty, and floods on the dry land; I shall shed [or pour] out my spirit on thy seed, and my blessing on thy generation.

<sup>5</sup> This man shall say, I am of the Lord, and he shall call in the name of Jacob; and this man shall write with his hand to the Lord, and shall be likened in the name of Israel.

<sup>6</sup> The Lord, King of Israel, and again-buyer thereof, the Lord of hosts saith these things, I am the first, and I am the last, and without me is no God.

<sup>7</sup> Who is like me? call he, and tell, and declare order to me, since I made eld people [or I ordained the old people]; tell he to them things to coming [or to come], and that shall be.

<sup>8</sup> Do not ye dread, neither be ye troubled; from that time I made thee for to hear, and I told; ye be my witnesses. Whether a God is without me [or Whether is God without me], and a former, whom I knew not?

<sup>9</sup> All the formers of an idol be nothing, and the most loved things of them shall not profit; they be witnesses of them, that they see not, neither understand, that they be shamed.

<sup>10</sup> Who formed a god, and melted out an image, not profitable to anything?

<sup>11</sup> Lo! all the partners thereof shall be shamed; for the smiths be of men. When all shall come, they shall stand, and shall dread, and shall be shamed together.

<sup>12</sup> A smith wrought with a file; he formed it in coals, and in hammers, and he wrought with the arm of his strength. He shall be hungry, and he shall fail; he shall not drink water, and he shall be faint.

<sup>13</sup> A carpenter stretched forth a rule, he formed it with an adze or an awl, either a joiner's hook; he made it in the corner places, and he turned it in compass; and he made the image of a man, as a fair man, dwelling in the house.

<sup>14</sup> He cutted down cedars, he took an hawthorn, and an oak, that stood among the trees of the forest; he planted a pine apple tree [or the pine tree], which he nourished with rain,

<sup>15</sup> and it was made into fire to men. He took of those [or them], and was warmed, and he burnt, and baked loaves; but of the residue he wrought a god, and worshipped it, and he made a graven image, and he was bowed before that.

<sup>16</sup> He burnt the half thereof with fire, and of the half thereof he seethed flesh, and ate; he seethed pottage, and was filled; and he was warmed, and he said, Well! I am warmed; I saw [the] fire.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth the residue thereof he made a god, and a graven image to himself; he is bowed before that, and worshippeth that, and beseecheth, and saith, Deliver thou me, for thou art my god.

<sup>18</sup> They knew not, neither under-stood, for they have forgotten, that their eyes see not, and that they understand not with their heart.

<sup>19</sup> They bethink not in their soul, neither they know, neither they feel, that they say, I burnt the half thereof in fire, and I baked loaves on the coals thereof, and I seethed flesh, and ate; and of the residue thereof shall I make an idol? shall I fall down before the stock of a tree?

<sup>20</sup> A part thereof is ashes; an unwise heart shall worship it, and he shall not deliver his soul, neither he shall say, A strong leasing is in my right hand.

<sup>21</sup> Thou, Jacob, and Israel, have mind of these things, for thou art my servant; I formed thee, Israel, thou art my servant; thou shalt not forget me.

<sup>22</sup> I did away thy wickednesses as a cloud, and thy sins as a mist; turn thou again to me, for I again-bought thee.

<sup>23</sup> Ye heavens, praise, for the Lord hath done mercy; the last parts of [the] earth, sing ye heartily song; hills, sound ye praising; the forest, and each tree thereof, praise God; for the Lord again-bought Jacob, and Israel shall have glory.

<sup>24</sup> The Lord, thine again-buyer, and thy former from the womb, saith these things, I am the Lord, making all things, and I alone stretch forth heavens, and stablish the earth, and none is with me;

<sup>25</sup> and I make void the signs of false diviners, and I turn into madness diviners that divine by sacrifices offered to fiends; and I turn wise men back-ward, and I make their science fond [or folly].

<sup>26</sup> And the Lord raiseth the word of his servant, and [ful] filleth the counsel of his messengers; and I say to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be inhabited; and to the cities of Judah, Ye shall be builded, and I shall raise the deserts thereof;

<sup>27</sup> and I say to the depth, Be thou desolate, and I shall make dry thy floods;

<sup>28</sup> and I say to Cyrus, Thou art my shepherd, and thou shalt fill all my will; and I say to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be builded; and to the temple, Thou shalt be founded.

CHAPTER 45

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things to my christ, Cyrus, whose right hand I took, that I make subject folks before his face, and turn the backs of kings; and I shall open [the] gates before him, and [the] gates shall not be closed.

<sup>2</sup> I shall go before thee, and I shall make low the glorious men of earth; I shall all-break [the] brazen gates, and I shall break altogether [the] iron bars.

<sup>3</sup> And I shall give hid treasures to thee, and the privy things of privates, that thou know, that I am the Lord, that call thy name, God of Israel, <sup>4</sup> for my servant Jacob, and Israel my chosen, and I called thee by thy name; I likened thee, and thou knewest not me.

<sup>5</sup> I am the Lord, and there is no more; without me is no God. I have girded thee, and thou knewest not me.

<sup>6</sup> That they that be at the rising of the sun, and they that be at the west, know, that without me is no God. I am the Lord, and none other God is;

<sup>7</sup> forming light, and making dark-nesses, making peace, and forming evil; I am the Lord, doing all these things.

<sup>8</sup> Heavens, send ye out dew from above, and clouds, rain on a just [or rightwise] man; the earth be opened, and bring forth the saviour, and righteousness [or rightwiseness] be born together; I the Lord have made him of nought.

<sup>9</sup> Woe to him that against-saith his maker, a tilestone of [the] earth of sands. Whether [the] clay saith to his potter, What makest thou, and thy work is without hands?

<sup>10</sup> Woe to him that saith to the father, What engenderest thou? and to a woman, What chiddest thou?

<sup>11</sup> The Lord, the Holy of Israel, the former thereof, saith these things, Ask ye me things to coming [or to come] on my sons, and send ye to me on the works of mine hands.

<sup>12</sup> I made earth, and I made a man on it; mine hands held abroad heavens, and I commanded to all the knighthood of them.

<sup>13</sup> I raised him to righteousness [or rightwiseness], and I shall address all his ways; he shall build my city, and he shall deliver my prisoners, not in price, neither in gifts, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord God saith these things, The travail of Egypt, and the mer-chandise of Ethiopia, and of Sabeans; [the] high men shall go to thee, and shall be thine; they shall go after thee, they shall go bound in manacles, and shall worship thee, and shall beseech thee. They shall say, God is only in thee, and without thee is no God.

<sup>16</sup> All makers of errors, that is, idols, be shamed, and were ashamed; they went together into confusion.

<sup>17</sup> Israel is saved in the Lord, by everlasting health; ye shall not be shamed, and ye shall not be ashamed, till into the world of world.

<sup>18</sup> For why the Lord making heavens of nought, saith these things; he is God forming earth, and making it, he is the maker thereof; he made it of nought, not in vain, but he formed it, that it be inhabited; I am the Lord, and none other is.

<sup>19</sup> I spake not in hid place, not in a dark place of earth; I said not to the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me in vain. I am the Lord speaking rightfulness [or rightwiseness], telling rightful [or right] things.

<sup>20</sup> Be ye gathered, and come ye, and nigh ye together, that be saved of heathen men; they that raise a sign of their engraving, knew not, and they pray a god that saveth not.

<sup>21</sup> Tell ye, and come ye, and take ye counsel together. Who made this heard from the beginning? from that time I before-said it. Whether I am not the Lord, and no God is further without me? [a] God rightful [or rightwise] and saving is none, besides me.

<sup>22</sup> All the coasts of earth, be ye converted to me, and ye shall be safe; for I am the Lord, and none other there is [or and there is not another].

<sup>23</sup> I swore in myself, a word of rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall go out of my mouth, and it shall not turn again; for each knee shall be bowed to me, and each tongue shall swear.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore they shall say in the Lord, Rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses] and empire be mine; all that fight against him shall come to him, and shall be ashamed.

<sup>25</sup> All the seed of Israel shall be justified and praised in the Lord.

CHAPTER 46

<sup>1</sup> Bel is broken, Nebo is all-broken; their simulacra like to wild beasts and work beasts be broken; your burdens with heavy charge till to weariness were rotten,

<sup>2</sup> and be all-broken together; those might not save the bearer, and the soul of them shall go into captivity.

<sup>3</sup> The house of Jacob, and all the residue of the house of Israel, hear ye me, which be borne of my womb, which be borne of my womb.

<sup>4</sup> Till to eld I myself, and till to hoar hairs, I shall bear; I made, and I shall bear, and I shall save.

<sup>5</sup> To whom have ye likened me, and made even, and have comparisoned me, and have made like?

<sup>6</sup> Which bear together gold from the bag, and weigh silver with a balance, and hire a goldsmith to make a god, and they fall down, and worship;

<sup>7</sup> they bearing bear in shoulders, and setting in his place; and he shall stand, and shall not be moved from his place; but also when they cry to him, he shall not hear, and he shall not save them from tribulation.

<sup>8</sup> Have ye mind of this, and be ye ashamed; ye trespassers, go again to the heart.

<sup>9</sup> Bethink ye on the former world, for I am God, no God is over me, neither is like me.

<sup>10</sup> And I tell from the beginning the last thing, and from the beginning those things that be not made yet; and I say, My counsel shall stand, and all my will shall be done.

<sup>11</sup> And I call a bird from the east, and the man of my will from a far land; and I spake, and I shall bring that thing; I have made of nought, and I shall make that thing.

<sup>12</sup> Ye of hard heart, hear me, that be far from rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>13</sup> I made nigh mine rightfulness [or rightwiseness], it shall not be drawn afar, and mine health shall not tarry; I shall give health in Zion, and my glory in Israel.

CHAPTER 47

<sup>2</sup> Take thou a quernstone, and grind thou meal; make thou naked thy filth-hood, discover the shoulder, show the hips, pass thou [over the] floods.

<sup>3</sup> Thy shame shall be showed, and thy shame shall be seen; I shall take vengeance, and no man shall against-stand me.

<sup>4</sup> Our again-buyer, the Lord of hosts is his name, the Holy of Israel.

<sup>5</sup> Daughter of Chaldees, sit thou, be thou still, and enter into darknesses, for thou shalt no more be called the lady of realms.

<sup>6</sup> I was wroth on my people, I defouled mine heritage, and I gave them in thine hand, and thou settedest not mercies to them; thou madest grievous the yoke greatly on an eld [or old] man, <sup>7</sup> and thou saidest, Without end I shall be [a] lady; thou puttedest not these things on thine heart, neither thou bethoughtest on thy last thing.

<sup>8</sup> And now, thou delicate, and dwelling trustily, hear these things, which sayest in thine heart, I am, and besides me there is no more; I shall not sit [a] widow, and I shall not know barrenness.

<sup>9</sup> These two things, barrenness and widowhood, shall come to thee suddenly in one day; all things came on thee for the multitude of thy witchcrafts, and for the great hardness of thine enchanters, either tregetours.

<sup>10</sup> And thou haddest trust in thy malice, and saidest, None is that seeth me; this, thy wisdom and thy knowing, deceived thee; and thou saidest in thine heart, I am, and besides me there is none other.

<sup>11</sup> Evil shall come [up] on thee, and thou shalt not know the beginning thereof; and wickedness or wretched-ness shall fall [up] on thee, which thou shalt not be able to cleanse; wretched-ness which thou knowest not, shall come [up] on thee suddenly.

<sup>12</sup> Stand thou with thine enchanters, and with the multitude of thy witches, in which thou travailedest from thy youth; if in hap they profit anything to thee, either if thou mayest be made the stronger.

<sup>13</sup> Thou failedest in the multitude of thy counsels; the false diviners of heaven stand, and save thee, which beheld stars, and numbered months, that they should tell by them things to coming [or to come] to thee.

<sup>14</sup> Lo! they be made as stubble, the fire hath burnt them; they shall not deliver their life from the power of flame; coals be not, by which they shall be warmed, neither fire, that they sit at it.

<sup>15</sup> So those things be made to thee in which ever thou travailedest; thy merchants from thy youth erred, each man in his way; none is, that shall save thee.

CHAPTER 48

<sup>1</sup> The house of Jacob, that be called by the name of Israel, and went out of the waters of Judah, hear these things, which swear in the name of the Lord, and have mind on God of Israel, not in truth, neither in rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>2</sup> For they be called of the holy city, and be stablished on the God of Israel, the Lord of hosts is his name.

<sup>3</sup> From that time I told [out] the former things, and those went out of my mouth; and I made them known; suddenly I wrought, and those things came.

<sup>4</sup> For I knew that thou art hard, and thy noll is a sinew of iron, and thy forehead is of brass.

<sup>5</sup> I before-said to thee from that time; before that those things came, I showed to thee; lest peradventure thou wouldest say, Mine idols did these things, and my graven images, and my molten images, sent these things,

<sup>6</sup> which thou heardest. See thou all things, but ye told not. I made heard new things to thee from that time, and things be kept which thou knowest not;

<sup>7</sup> now those be made of nought, and not from that time, and before the day, and thou heardest not those things; lest peradventure thou say, Lo! I knew those things.

<sup>8</sup> Neither thou heardest, neither thou knewest, neither thine ear was opened from that time; for I know, that thou trespassing shalt trespass, and I called thee a trespasser from the womb.

<sup>9</sup> For my name I shall make far my strong vengeance, and with my praising I shall refrain [or bridle] thee, lest thou perish.

<sup>10</sup> Lo! I have sodden thee, but not as silver; I chose thee in the chimney of poverty.

<sup>11</sup> I shall do for me, that I be not blasphemed, and I shall not give my glory to another.

<sup>12</sup> Jacob and Israel, whom I call, hear thou me; I myself, I am the first, and I am the last.

<sup>13</sup> And mine hand founded the earth, and my right hand meted [or measured] heavens; I shall call them, and they shall stand together.

<sup>14</sup> All ye be gathered together, and hear; who of them told [out] these things? The Lord loved him, he shall do his will in Babylon, and his arm in Chaldees.

<sup>15</sup> I, I spake, and called him; I brought him, and his way was addressed.

<sup>16</sup> Nigh ye to me, and hear ye these things; at the beginning I spake not in huddles, either private; from time, before that things were made, I was there, and now the Lord God, and his Spirit, sent me.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord, thine again-buyer, the Holy of Israel, saith these things, I am thy Lord God, teaching thee profitable things, and I govern thee in the way, wherein thou goest.

<sup>18</sup> I would that thou haddest perceived my commandments, thy peace had been made as [a] flood, and thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness] as the swells of the sea;

<sup>19</sup> and thy seed had been as gravel, and the generation of thy womb, as the little stones thereof; the name of it had not perished, and had not been all-broken from my face.

<sup>20</sup> Go ye out of Babylon, flee ye from Chaldees; tell ye in the voice of full out joying; make ye this heard, and bear ye it unto the last parts of [the] earth; say ye, The Lord again-bought his servant Jacob.

<sup>21</sup> They thirsted not in the desert, when he led them out; he brought forth to them water of a stone, and he parted the stone, and waters flowed.

<sup>22</sup> Peace is not to wicked men, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 49

<sup>1</sup> Isles, hear ye, and peoples afar, perceive ye; the Lord called me from the womb, he thought on my name from the womb of my mother.

<sup>2</sup> And he hath set [or put] my mouth as a sharp sword, he defended me in the shadow of his hand, and setted [or put] me as a chosen arrow; he hid me in his arrow case,

<sup>3</sup> and said to me, Israel, thou art my servant, for I shall have glory in thee.

<sup>4</sup> And I said, I travailed in vain, I wasted my strength without cause, and vainly; therefore my doom is with the Lord, and my work is with my God.

<sup>5</sup> And now the Lord, forming me a servant to himself from the womb, saith these things, that I bring again Jacob to him. And Israel shall not be gathered together; and I am glorified in the eyes of the Lord, and my God is made my strength.

<sup>6</sup> And he said, It is little, that thou be a servant to me, to raise the lineages of Jacob, and to convert the dregs of Israel; I gave thee into the light of heathen men, that thou be mine health till to the last part of [the] earth.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord, [the] again-buyer of Israel, the Holy thereof, saith these things to a despicable soul, and to a folk had in abomination, to the servant of lords, Kings shall see, and princes shall rise together, and shall worship, for the Lord, for he is faithful, and for the Holy of Israel, that chose thee.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord saith these things, In a pleasant time I heard thee, and in the day of health I helped thee; and I kept thee, and gave thee into a bond of peace of the people, that thou shouldest raise tillage upon the earth, and have in possession heritages, that be destroyed;

<sup>9</sup> that thou shouldest say to them that be bound, Go ye out, and to them that be in darkneses, Be ye showed. They shall be fed in ways, and the pastures of them shall be in all plain things.

<sup>10</sup> They shall not hunger, and they shall no more thirst; and heat, and the sun shall not smite them; for the merciful doer of them shall govern them, and shall give drink to them at the wells of waters.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall set all mine hills [or put my mountains] into [a] way, and my paths shall be enhanced.

<sup>12</sup> Lo! these men shall come from [a] far, and lo! they shall come from the north, and from the sea, and these from the south land.

<sup>13</sup> Heavens, praise ye, and thou earth, make full out joy; hills, sing ye heartily praising; for the Lord [hath] comforted his people, and shall have mercy on his poor men.

<sup>14</sup> And Zion said, The Lord hath forsaken me, and the Lord hath forgotten me.

<sup>15</sup> Whether a woman may forget her young child, that she have not mercy on the son of her womb? though she forget, nevertheless I shall not forget thee.

<sup>16</sup> Lo! I have written thee in mine hands; thy walls, be ever before mine eyes.

<sup>17</sup> The builders be come; they that destroy thee, and scatter, shall go away from thee.

<sup>18</sup> Raise [up] thine eyes in compass, and see; all these men be gathered together, they be come to thee. I live, saith the Lord, for thou shalt be clothed with all these as with an ornament, and thou as a spouses shalt bind them to thee.

<sup>19</sup> For why thy deserts, and thy wildernesses, and the land of thy falling, now shall be strait for [the] inhabitants; and they shall be driven away [a] far, that swallowed thee.

<sup>20</sup> Yet the sons of thy barrenness shall say in thine ears, The place is strait to me, make thou a space to me for to dwell.

<sup>21</sup> And thou shalt say in thine heart, Who engendered these sons to me? I am barren, not bearing child; I am led over, and prisoner; and who nourished these sons? I am destitute, and alone; and where were these?

<sup>22</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I raise mine hand to heathen men, and I shall enhance my sign to peoples; and they shall bring thy sons in arms, and they shall bear thy daughters on shoulders.

<sup>23</sup> And kings shall be thy nursers or nourishers, and queens shall be thy nurses; with cheer cast down into [the] earth they shall worship thee, and they shall lick the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know, that I am the Lord, on whom they shall not be shamed, that abide him.

<sup>25</sup> For the Lord saith these things, Soothly and [the] captivity shall be taken away from the strong man, and that that is taken away of a stalworthy man, shall be saved. Forsooth I shall deem them that deemed thee, and I shall save thy sons.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall feed thine enemies with their fleshs, and they shall be greatly filled with their blood, as with must; and each man shall know, that I am the Lord, saving thee, and thine again-buyer, the Strong of Jacob.

CHAPTER 50

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things, What is this book of forsaking of your mother, by which I let go her? either who is he, to whom I owe, to whom I sold you? For lo! ye be sold for your wickednesses, and for your great trespasses I let go your mother.

<sup>2</sup> For I came, and no man was; I called, and none was that heard. Whether mine hand is abridged, and made little, that I may not again-buy? either strength is not in me for to deliver? Lo! in my blaming I shall make the sea forsaken, either desert, I shall set floods in the dry place; fishes without water shall wax rotten, and shall die for thirst.

<sup>3</sup> I shall clothe heavens with dark-nesses, and I shall set a sackcloth the covering of them.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord gave to me a learned tongue, that I know how to sustain him by word that failed; early the father raiseth [up], early he raiseth [up] an ear to me, that I hear as a master.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord God opened an ear to me; forsooth I against-say not, I went not aback.

<sup>6</sup> I gave my body to [the] smiters, and my cheeks to [the] pullers; I turned not away my face from men blaming, and spitting on me.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord God is mine helper, and therefore I am not shamed; therefore I have set my face as a stone made hard, and I know that I shall not be shamed.

<sup>8</sup> He is nigh, that justifieth me; who against-saith me? stand we together. Who is mine adversary? nigh he to me.

<sup>9</sup> Lo! the Lord God is mine helper; who therefore is he that condemneth me? Lo! all shall be defouled as a cloth, and a moth shall eat them.

<sup>10</sup> Who of you dreadeth the Lord, and heareth the voice of his servant? Who went in darkenesses, and light is not to him, hope he in the name of the Lord, and trust he on his God.

<sup>11</sup> Lo! all ye kindling fire, and gird with flames, go in the light of your fire, and in the flames which ye have kindled to you. This is made of mine hand to you, ye shall sleep in sorrows.

CHAPTER 51

<sup>1</sup> Hear ye me, that follow that that is just, and seek the Lord. Take ye heed to the stone, from whence ye be hewn down, and to the cave of the pit, from which ye be cut down.

<sup>2</sup> Take ye heed to Abraham, your father, and to Sarah, that childed you; for I called him when he was but one, or without an heir, and I blessed him, and I multiplied him.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore the Lord shall comfort Zion, and he shall comfort all the fallings thereof; and he shall set the desert thereof in delights, and the wilderness thereof as a garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, the doing of thankings and the voice of praising.

<sup>4</sup> My people, take ye heed to me, and, my lineage, hear ye me; for why a law shall go out from me, and my doom shall rest into the light of peoples.

<sup>5</sup> My just [or rightwise]man is nigh, my saviour is gone out, and mine arms shall deem peoples; isles shall abide me, and shall suffer mine arm.

<sup>6</sup> Raise your eyes to heaven, and see ye under earth beneath; for why heavens shall melt away as smoke, and the earth shall be all-broken as a cloth, and the dwellers thereof shall perish as these things; but mine health shall be without end, and my rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall not fail.

<sup>7</sup> Ye people, that know the just [or rightwise]man, hear me, my law is in the heart of them; do not ye dread the shame of men, and dread ye not the blasphemies of them.

<sup>8</sup> For why a worm shall eat them so as a cloth, and a moth shall devour them so as wool; but mine health shall be without end, and my rightfulness [or rightwiseness] into generations of generations.

<sup>9</sup> Rise thou, rise thou, arm of the Lord, be thou clothed in strength; rise thou, as in [the] eld days, in generations of worlds. Whether thou smitedest not the proud man, wound-est not the dragon?

<sup>10</sup> Whether thou driedest not the sea, the water of the great depth, which settedest [or puttest] the depth of the sea to be a way, that men that were delivered, should pass [over]?

<sup>11</sup> And now they that be again-bought of the Lord shall turn again, and shall come praising into Zion, and everlasting gladness on the heads of them; they shall hold joy and gladness, and sorrow and wailing shall flee away.

<sup>12</sup> I, I myself, that is, I am he, I am he, that shall comfort you; who art thou, that thou dredest of a deadly man, and of the son of man, that shall wax dry so as hay?

<sup>13</sup> And thou hast forgotten the Lord, thy Creator, that stretched abroad heavens, and founded the earth; and thou dredest continually all day of the face of his strong vengeance, that did tribulation to thee, and made ready for to lose. Where is now the strong vengeance of the troubler?

<sup>14</sup> Soon he shall come, going for to open; and he shall not slay till to death, neither his bread shall fail.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth I am thy Lord God, that trouble the sea, and the waves thereof wax great; the Lord of hosts is my name.

<sup>16</sup> I have put my words in thy mouth, and I defended thee in the shadow of mine hand; that thou plant heavens, and found the earth, and say to Zion, Thou art my people.

<sup>17</sup> Be thou raised, be thou raised, rise thou, Jerusalem, that hast drunk of the hand of the Lord the cup of his wrath; thou hast drunk unto the bottom of the cup of sleep, thou hast drunk of unto the dregs.

<sup>18</sup> None there is that sustaineth it, of all the sons which it engendered; and none there is that taketh the hand thereof, of all the sons which it nourished.

<sup>19</sup> Two things there be that came to thee; who shall be sorry on thee? destroying, and defouling, and hunger, and sword. Who shall comfort thee?

<sup>22</sup> The Lordly Governor, thy Lord, and thy God, that fought for his people, saith these things, Lo! I have taken from thine hand the cup of sleep, the bottom of the cup of mine indignation; I shall not lay to, that thou drink it any more.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall set it in the hand of them that made thee low, and said to thy soul, Be thou bowed, that we pass; and thou hast set thy body as earth, and as a way to them that go forth.

CHAPTER 52

<sup>3</sup> For the Lord saith these things, Ye be sold without cause, and ye shall be again-bought without silver.

<sup>4</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, My people in the beginning went down into Egypt, that it should be there an earth-tiller, either a comeling, and Assur falsely challenged it without any cause.

<sup>5</sup> And now what is to me here? saith the Lord; for my people is taken away without cause; the lords thereof do wickedly, saith the Lord, and my name is blasphemed continually all day.

<sup>6</sup> For this thing my people shall know my name in that day, for lo! I myself that spake, am present.

<sup>7</sup> Full fair be the feet of him that telleth, and preacheth peace on hills [or mountains], of him that telleth good tidings, of him that preacheth health, and saith, Zion, thy God shall reign.

<sup>8</sup> The voice of thy beholders; they raised the voice, they shall praise together; for they shall see with eye to eye, when the Lord hath converted Zion.

<sup>9</sup> The deserted, either forsaken, things of Jerusalem, make ye joy, and praise ye together; for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath again-bought Jerusalem.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord hath made ready his holy arm in the eyes of all folks, and all the ends of the earth shall see the health of our God.

<sup>11</sup> Go ye away, go ye away, go ye out from thence; do not ye touch [the] defouled thing, go ye out from the midst thereof; be ye cleansed, that bear the vessels of the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> For ye shall not go out in noise, neither ye shall haste in flying away; for why the Lord shall go before you, and the God of Israel shall gather you together.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! my servant shall understand, and he shall be enhanced, and he shall be raised, and he shall be full high.

<sup>14</sup> As many men wondered on him, so his beholding shall be without glory among men, and the form, either shape, of him among the sons of men.

<sup>15</sup> He shall besprinkle many folks; kings shall hold together their mouth on him; for they shall see, to which it was not told of him, and they that heard not, beheld.

CHAPTER 53

<sup>1</sup> Who believed to our hearing? and to whom is the arm of the Lord showed?

<sup>2</sup> And he shall go up as a rod before him, and as a root from [the] thirsty land. And neither shape neither fairness was to him; and we saw him, and no beholding was; and we desired him, <sup>3</sup> despised, and the last of men, a man of sorrows, and knowing sickness. And his cheer was as hid, and despised; wherefore and we areckoned not him.

<sup>4</sup> Verily he suffered our sicknesses, and he bare our sorrows; and we areckoned him as a mesel, and smitten of God, and made low.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth he was wounded for our wickednesses, he was defouled for our great trespasses; the learning of our peace was on him, and we be made whole by his wanness.

<sup>6</sup> All we erred as sheep, each man bowed into his own way, and the Lord putted [or put] in him the wickedness of us all.

<sup>7</sup> He was offered, for he would, and he opened not his mouth; as a sheep he shall be led to slaying, and he shall be dumb as a lamb before him that clippeth it, and he shall not open his mouth.

<sup>8</sup> He is taken away from anguish and from doom; who shall tell out the generation of him? For he was cut down from the land of livers. I smote him for the great trespass of my people.

<sup>9</sup> And he shall give unfaithful men for burying, and rich men for his death; for he did not wickedness, neither guile was in his mouth;

<sup>10</sup> and the Lord would defoul him in sickness. If he putteth his life for sin, he shall see his seed long enduring, and the will of the Lord shall be addressed in his hand.

<sup>11</sup> For that that his soul travailed, he shall see, and shall be filled, [or For-thy that he travailed, his soul shall see, and be fulfilled]. That my just [or rightwise] servant shall justify many men in his knowing, and he shall bear the wickednesses of them.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore I shall yield, either deal, to him full many men, and he shall part the spoils of the strong fiends; for that that he gave his life into death, and was areckoned with felonious men; and he did away the sin of many men, and he prayed for trespassers.

CHAPTER 54

<sup>2</sup> Alarge thou the place of thy tent, and stretch forth the skins of thy tabernacles; spare thou not, make long thy ropes, and make firm thy nails.

<sup>4</sup> Do not thou dread, for thou shalt not be shamed, neither thou shalt be ashamed. For it shall not shame thee; for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and thou shalt no more think on the shame of thy widowhood.

<sup>5</sup> For he that made thee, shall be lord of thee; the Lord of hosts is his name; and thine again-buyer, the Holy of Israel, shall be called God of all earth.

<sup>6</sup> For the Lord hath called thee as a woman forsaken and mourning in spirit, and a wife, that is cast away from youth. Thy Lord God said, <sup>7</sup> At a point in little time, I forsook thee, and I shall gather thee together in great merciful doings.

<sup>8</sup> In a moment of indignation I hid my face a little from thee, and in mercy everlasting I had mercy on thee, said thine again-buyer, the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> As in the days of Noah, this thing is to me, to whom I swore, that I should no more bring waters of the great flood on the earth; so I swore, that I shall be no more wroth to thee, and that I blame not thee.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth hills [or mountains] shall be moved together, and little hills shall tremble together; but my mercy shall not go away from thee, and the bond of my peace shall not be moved, saith the merciful doer, the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> Thou little and poor, drawn out by tempest, without any comfort, lo! I shall strew thy stones by order, and I shall found thee in sapphires;

<sup>12</sup> and I shall set jasper thy towers, and thy gates into engraved stones, and all thine ends into desirable stones.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall set all thy sons taught of the Lord; and the multitude of peace to thy sons, <sup>14</sup> and thou shalt be founded in rightfulness [or rightwiseness]. Go thou away far from false challenge, for thou shalt not dread; and from dread, for it shall not nigh to thee.

<sup>15</sup> Lo! a stranger shall come, that was not with me; he, that was some-time thy comeling, shall be joined to thee.

<sup>16</sup> Lo! I made a smith blowing coals in [the] fire, and bringing forth a vessel into his work; and I have made a slayer, for to lose.

<sup>17</sup> Each vessel which is made against thee, shall not be addressed; and in the doom thou shalt deem each tongue against-standing thee. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and the rightfulness [or rightwiseness] of them at me, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 55

<sup>1</sup> All that thirst, come ye to waters, [or All ye thirsting, cometh to waters], and ye that have not silver, haste, buy ye, and eat ye; come ye, buy ye, without silver and without any exchanging, wine and milk.

<sup>2</sup> Why weigh ye silver, and not in loaves, and your travail, not in fullness? Ye hearing hear me, and eat ye good things, and your soul shall delight in fatness.

<sup>3</sup> Bow ye [in] your ear, and come ye to me; hear ye, and your soul shall live; and I shall smite with you a covenant everlasting, the faithful mercies of David.

<sup>4</sup> Lo! I gave him a witness to peoples, a duke and a commander to folks.

<sup>5</sup> Lo! thou shalt call folks, which thou knewest not; and folks, that knew not thee, shall run to thee; for thy Lord God, and the Holy of Israel, for he glorified thee.

<sup>6</sup> Seek ye the Lord, while he may be found; call ye him to help, while he is nigh.

<sup>7</sup> An unfaithful man forsake his way, and a wicked man forsake his thoughts; and turn he again to the Lord, and he shall have mercy on him, and to our God, for he is much to forgive.

<sup>8</sup> For why my thoughts be not your thoughts, and my ways be not your ways, saith the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> For as heavens be raised from earth, so my ways be raised from your ways, and my thoughts from your thoughts.

<sup>10</sup> And as rain and snow cometh down from heaven, and turneth no more again thither, but it filleth, or maketh moist, the earth, and beshed-deth it [or poureth into it], and maketh it to burgeon, and giveth seed to him that soweth, and bread to him that eateth,

<sup>11</sup> so shall be my word, that shall go out of my mouth. It shall not turn again void to me, but it shall do whatever things I would, and it shall have prosperity in these things to which I sent it.

<sup>12</sup> For ye shall go out in gladness, and ye shall be led forth in peace; mountains and little hills shall sing praising before you, and all the trees of the country shall make joy with hands.

<sup>13</sup> A fir tree shall grow or go up for a gorse, either furze, and a myrtle tree shall wax for a nettle; and the Lord shall be named into a sign everlasting, that shall not be done away.

CHAPTER 56

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things, Keep ye doom, and do ye rightfulness [or rightwiseness], for why mine health is nigh, that it come, and my rightfulness [or rightwiseness], that it be showed.

<sup>2</sup> Blessed is the man, that doeth this, and the son of a man, that shall take this; keeping the sabbath, that he defoul not it, keeping his hands, that he do not any evil.

<sup>3</sup> And say not the son of a comeling, that cleaveth fast to the Lord, saying, By parting the Lord shall part me from his people; and a gelding, either a chaste man, say not, Lo! I am a dry tree.

<sup>4</sup> For the Lord saith these things to geldings, that keep my sabbaths, and choose what things I would, and hold my bond of peace.

<sup>5</sup> I shall give to them a place in mine house, and within my walls, and the best name, of sons and daughters; I shall give to them a name everlasting, that shall not perish.

<sup>6</sup> And I shall bring in to bless the sons of a comeling, that cleave fast to the Lord, that they worship him, and love his name, that they be to him into servants; each man keeping the sabbath, that he defoul it not, and holding my bond of peace;

<sup>7</sup> I shall bring them into mine holy hill, and I shall make them glad in the house of my prayer; their burnt sacrifices and their slain sacrifices shall please me on mine altar; for why mine house shall be called an house of prayer to all peoples,

<sup>8</sup> saith the Lord God, that gathereth together the scattered men of Israel. Yet I shall gather together to him all the gathered men thereof.

<sup>9</sup> All beasts of the field, come ye to devour, all beasts of the forest.

<sup>10</sup> All the beholders thereof be blind, all they knew not; dumb dogs, that may not bark; seeing vain things, sleeping, and loving dreams;

<sup>11</sup> and most unshamefast dogs knew not fullness. Those shepherds knew not understanding; all they bowed into their way, each man to his avarice, from the highest till to the last.

<sup>12</sup> Come ye, take we wine, and be we filled of drunkenness; and it shall be as today, so and tomorrow, and much more.

CHAPTER 57

<sup>1</sup> A just [or rightwise] man perisheth, and none is that thinketh in his heart; and men of mercy be gathered together, for none there is that understandeth; for why a just [or rightwise] man is gathered from the face of malice.

<sup>3</sup> But ye, sons of the seeker of false divining by chittering of birds, nigh hither, the seed of adulteress, and of a whore.

<sup>4</sup> On whom scorned ye? on whom made ye great the mouth, and putteth out the tongue? Whether ye be not cursed sons, a seed of leasings?

<sup>5</sup> which be comforted in gods, under each tree full of boughs, and offer little children in strands [or streams], under high stones.

<sup>6</sup> Thy part is in the parts of the strand [or stream], this is thy part; and to them thou sheddest [or pourest] out moist [or liquor] offering, thou offeredest sacrifice. Whether I shall not have indignation on these things?

<sup>7</sup> Thou puttdest thy bed on an high hill and enhanced, and thither thou ascendedest to offer sacrifices;

<sup>8</sup> and thou settedest thy memorial behind the door, and behind the post. For besides me, thou uncoveredest thee, and tookest [the] adulterer; thou alargedest thy bed, and madest a bond of peace with them; thou lovedest the bed of them with open hand,

<sup>9</sup> and adornedest thee with [the] king's ointment, and thou multipliedest thy pigments; thou sentest far thy messengers, and thou art made low till to hells [or hell].

<sup>10</sup> Thou travailedest in the multitude of thy ways, and saidest not, I shall rest; thou hast found the way of thine hand, therefore thou prayedest not.

<sup>11</sup> For what thing dreadedest thou busy, for thou liedest, and thoughtest not on me? And thou thoughtest not in thine heart, that I am still, and as not seeing; and thou hast forgotten me.

<sup>12</sup> I shall tell [out] thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and thy works shall not profit to thee.

<sup>13</sup> When thou shalt cry, thy gathered treasures deliver thee; and the wind shall take away all them, a blast shall do away them; but he that hath trust on me, shall inherit the land, and shall have in possession mine holy hill [or holy mountain].

<sup>14</sup> And I shall say, Make ye way, give ye journey, bow ye from the path, do ye away hurtings from the way of my people.

<sup>15</sup> For the Lord high, and enhanced, saith these things, that dwelleth in everlastingness, and his holy name in high place, and that dwelleth in holy-ness, and with a contrite, either full sorry, and meek spirit, that he quicken the spirit of meek men, and quicken the heart of contrite men.

<sup>16</sup> For I shall not strive without end, neither I shall be wroth till to the end; for why a spirit shall go out from my face, and I shall make blasts.

<sup>17</sup> I was wroth for the wickedness of his avarice, and I smote him. I hid my face from thee, and I had indignation; and he went without steadfast dwelling, in the way of his heart.

<sup>18</sup> I saw his ways, and I healed him, and I brought him again; and I gave comfortings to him, and to the mourners of him.

<sup>19</sup> I made the fruit of lips peace, peace to him that is far, and to him that is nigh, said the Lord; and I healed him.

<sup>20</sup> But wicked men be as the boiling sea, that may not rest; and the waves thereof float again into defouling, and fen.

<sup>21</sup> The Lord God said, Peace is not to wicked men.

CHAPTER 58

<sup>1</sup> Cry thou, cease thou not; as a trump enhance thy voice, and show thou to my people their great trespasses, and to the house of Jacob their sins.

<sup>2</sup> For they seek me from day into day, and they will to know my ways; as a folk, that hath done rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and that hath not forsaken the doom of their God; they pray me dooms of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and they will to nigh to God.

<sup>3</sup> Why fasted we, and thou beheldest not; we meeked our souls, and thou knewest not? Lo! your will is found in the day of your fasting, and ye ask all your debtors.

<sup>4</sup> Lo! ye fast to chidings and strivings, and smite with the fist wickedly. Do not ye fast, as ye have unto this day, that your cry be heard on high.

<sup>5</sup> Whether such is the fasting which I choose, a man to torment his soul by day? whether to bind his head as a circle, and to make ready a sackcloth and ashes? Whether thou shalt call this a fasting, and a day acceptable to the Lord?

<sup>6</sup> Whether not this is more the fasting, which I choose? Unbind thou the bindings together of unpity, either of cruelty, release thou [the] burdens pressing down; deliver thou them free, that be broken, and break thou each burden.

<sup>8</sup> Then thy light shall break out as the morrowtide, and thine health shall rise full soon; and thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall go before thy face, and the glory of the Lord shall gather thee to rest.

<sup>9</sup> Then thou shalt call to help, and the Lord shall hear; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Lo! I am present, for I am merciful, thy Lord God. If thou takest away the chain from the midst of thee, and ceasest to hold forth the finger, and to speak that that profiteth not;

<sup>10</sup> when thou sheddest [or shalt pour] out thy soul, either thy will, to an hungry man, and [ful] fillest a soul that is tormented, thy light shall rise in darkneses, and thy darkneses shall be as midday.

<sup>11</sup> And the Lord thy God shall give ever rest to thee, and shall [ful] fill thy soul with shinings, and shall deliver thy bones; and thou shalt be as a watered garden, and as a well of waters, whose waters shall not fail.

<sup>12</sup> And the forsaken things of world's shall be builded in thee, and thou shalt raise the foundations of generation and generation; and thou shalt be called, A builder of hedges, turning away the paths of wicked-nesses.

<sup>13</sup> If thou turnest away thy foot from the sabbath, to do thy [own] will in mine holy day; and callest the sabbath delicate, and holy, the glorious of the Lord; and glorifiest him, while thou doest not thy ways, and thy will is not found, that thou speak a word;

<sup>14</sup> then thou shalt delight on the Lord, and I shall raise thee [up] on the highness of the earth, and I shall feed thee with the heritage of Jacob, thy father; for why the mouth of the Lord spake.

CHAPTER 59

<sup>1</sup> Lo! the hand of the Lord is not abridged, that he may not save, neither his ear is made hard, that he hear not;

<sup>2</sup> but your wickednesses have parted betwixt you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he should not hear.

<sup>3</sup> For why your hands be defouled with blood, and your fingers with wickedness; your lips spake leasing, and your tongue speaketh wickedness.

<sup>4</sup> None there is, that calleth rightful-ness to help, and none is, that deemeth verily; but they trust in nought, and speak vanities; they conceived travail, and childed wickedness.

<sup>5</sup> The have broken eggs of snakes, and made webs of an araneid; he that eateth of the eggs of them, shall die, and that that is nursed, or hatched, shall break out into a cockatrice.

<sup>7</sup> The feet of them run to evil, and haste to shed out innocent blood; the thoughts of them be unprofitable thoughts; destroying and defouling be in the ways of them.

<sup>8</sup> They knew not the way of peace, and doom is not in the goings of them; the paths of them be bowed to them; each that treadeth in those [or in them], knoweth not peace.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore doom is made far from us, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall not take us; we abided light, and lo! darkneses be; we abided shining, and we went in darkneses.

<sup>10</sup> We groped as blind men the wall, and we as without eyes touched; we stumbled in midday, as in darkneses, in dark places, as dead men.

<sup>11</sup> All we shall roar as bears, and we shall wail thinking as culvers; we abided doom, and none there is; we abided health, and it is made far from us.

<sup>12</sup> For why our wickednesses be multiplied before thee, and our sins answered to us; for our great trespasses be with us, and we knew our wickednesses,

<sup>13</sup> to do sin, and to lie against the Lord. And we be turned away, that we went not after the back of our God, that we speak false challenge, and trespassing. We conceived, and spake of heart, words of leasing;

<sup>14</sup> and doom was turned aback, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] stood [a] far; for why truth fell down in the street, and equity, either evenness, might not enter.

<sup>15</sup> And truth was made into forgetting, and he that went away from evil, was open to prey, either robbing. And the Lord saw, and it appeared evil in his eyes, for there is no doom.

<sup>16</sup> And God saw, that a man is not, and he was anguished, for none there is that runneth to. And his arm shall save to himself, and his rightfulness [or rightwiseness] itself shall confirm him.

<sup>17</sup> He is clothed with rightfulness [or rightwiseness] as with an habergeon, and the helmet of health is in his head; he is clothed with [the] clothes of vengeance, and he is covered as with a mantle of fervent working.

<sup>18</sup> As to vengeance, as to yielding of indignation to his enemies, and to requiting of time to his adversaries, he shall yield while to [the] isles.

<sup>19</sup> And they that be at the west, shall dread the name of the Lord, and they that be at the rising of the sun, shall dread the glory of him; when he shall come as a violent flood, whom the spirit of the Lord compelleth.

<sup>20</sup> When [the] again-buyer shall come to Zion, and to them that go again from wickedness in Jacob, saith the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> This is my bond of peace with them, saith the Lord; My spirit which is in thee, and my words which I have set in thy mouth, shall not go away from thy mouth, and from the mouth of thy seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and till into without end.

CHAPTER 60

<sup>1</sup> Rise thou, Jerusalem, be thou lightened [or lighted], for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen on thee.

<sup>2</sup> For lo! darknesses shall cover the earth, and mist shall cover peoples; but the Lord shall rise [up] on thee, and his glory shall be seen in thee.

<sup>5</sup> Then thou shalt see, and shalt flow; and thine heart shall wonder, and shall be alarged, when the multitude of the sea is converted to thee, the strength of heathen men is come to thee;

<sup>6</sup> the flowing of camels shall cover thee, the leaders of dromedaries of Midian and of Ephah; all men of Sheba shall come, bringing gold and incense, and telling praising to the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> Each sheep of Kedar shall be gathered to thee, the rams of Nebaioth shall minister to thee; they shall be offered on mine acceptable altar, and I shall glorify the house of my majesty.

<sup>8</sup> Who be these, that fly as clouds, and as culvers at their windows?

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth isles abide me, and the ships of the sea in the beginning; that I bring thy sons from [a] far, the silver of them, and the gold of them is with them, to the name of thy Lord God, and to the Holy of Israel; for he shall glorify thee.

<sup>10</sup> And the sons of pilgrims shall build thy walls, and the kings of them shall minister to thee. For I smote thee in mine indignation, and in my reconciling I had mercy on thee.

<sup>11</sup> And thy gates shall be opened continually, day and night those [or they] shall not be closed; that the strength of heathen men be brought to thee, and the kings of them be brought.

<sup>12</sup> For why the folk and realm that serveth not thee, shall perish, and heathen men shall be destroyed by wilderness.

<sup>13</sup> The glory of the Lebanon shall come to thee, a fir tree, and box tree, and pine apple tree [or pine tree] together, to adorn the place of mine hallowing; and I shall glorify the place of my feet.

<sup>14</sup> And the sons of them that made thee low, shall come low to thee, and all that backbited thee, shall worship the steps of thy feet; and they shall call thee, A city of the Lord of Zion, of the Holy of Israel.

<sup>15</sup> For that that thou were forsaken, and hated, and none was that passed by thee, I shall set thee into pride, that is, glory and honour, of worlds, joy in generation and into generation.

<sup>16</sup> And thou shalt suck the milk of folks, and thou shalt be suckled with the teat of kings; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord, saving thee, and thine again-buyer, the Strong of Jacob.

<sup>17</sup> For brass I shall bring gold, and for iron I shall bring silver; and brass for wood, and iron for stones; and I shall set thy visitation peace, and thy prelates [or provosts], either sovereigns, rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>18</sup> Wickedness shall no more be heard in thy land, neither destroying and defouling in thy coasts; and health shall occupy thy walls, and praising shall occupy thy gates.

<sup>19</sup> The sun shall no more be to thee for to shine by day, neither the brightness of the moon shall lighten thee; but the Lord shall be into everlasting light to thee, and thy God shall be into thy glory.

<sup>20</sup> Thy sun shall no more go down, and thy moon shall not be decreased; for the Lord shall be into everlasting light to thee, and the days of thy mourning shall be [ful] filled.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth thy people, all just [or rightwise] men, without end shall inherit the land, the seed of my planting, the work of mine hand for to be glorified.

<sup>22</sup> The least shall be into a thousand, and a little man shall be into a full strong folk. I, the Lord, shall make this thing suddenly, in the time thereof.

CHAPTER 61

<sup>1</sup> The spirit of the Lord is[up] on me, for the Lord anointed me; he sent me to tell [out] to mild men, that I should heal men contrite in heart, and preach forgiveness to captives, and opening to prisoners;

<sup>2</sup> and preach a pleasant year to the Lord, and a day of vengeance to our God; that I should comfort all that mourn;

<sup>3</sup> that I should set comfort to the mourners of Zion, and that I should give to them a crown for ashes, oil of joy for mourning, a mantle of praising for the spirit of wailing. And strong men of rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall be called therein, the planting of the Lord, for to glorify.

<sup>4</sup> And they shall build things that be forsaken from the world, and they shall raise eld [or old] fallings, and they shall restore cities that be forsaken and destroyed, in generation and into generation.

<sup>5</sup> And aliens shall stand, and feed your beasts; and the sons of pilgrims shall be your earth-tillers and vine-tillers.

<sup>6</sup> But ye shall be called the priests of the Lord; it shall be said to you, Ye be ministers of our God. Ye shall eat the strength of heathen men, and ye shall be honoured in the glory of them.

<sup>7</sup> For your double shame and shame, they shall praise the part of them; for this thing they shall have peaceably double things in their land, and everlasting gladness shall be to them.

<sup>8</sup> For I am the Lord, loving doom, and hating raven in burnt sacrifices. And I shall give the work of them in truth, and I shall smite to them an everlasting bond of peace.

<sup>9</sup> And the seed of them shall be known among folks, and the bur-geoning of them in the midst of peoples. All men that see them, shall know them, for these be the seed, whom the Lord blessed.

<sup>10</sup> I joying shall have joy in the Lord, and my soul shall make full out joying in my God. For he hath clothed me with [the] clothes of health, and he hath compassed me with [the] clothes of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], as a spouse made fair with a crown, and as a spousess adorned with her brooches.

<sup>11</sup> For as the earth bringeth forth his fruit, and as a garden burgeoneth his seed, so the Lord God shall make to grow rightfulness [or rightwiseness] and praising before all folks.

CHAPTER 62

<sup>1</sup> For Zion I shall not be still, and for Jerusalem I shall not rest, till the just [or rightwise]man thereof go out as shining, and the saviour thereof be tended as a lamp.

<sup>2</sup> And heathen men shall see thy just [or rightwise]man, and all kings shall see thy noble man; and a new name, which the mouth of the Lord named, shall be called to thee.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a diadem of the realm in the hand of thy God.

<sup>4</sup> Thou shalt no more be called forsaken, and thy land shall no more be called desolate; but thou shalt be called My will in that, and thy land That that shall be inhabited; for it pleased the Lord in thee, and thy land shall be inhabited.

<sup>5</sup> For a young man shall dwell with a virgin, and thy sons shall dwell in thee; and the spouse shall have joy on the spousess, and thy God shall have joy on thee.

<sup>6</sup> Jerusalem, I have ordained keepers on thy walls, all day and all night without end they shall not be still. Ye that think on the Lord, be not still,

<sup>7</sup> and give ye not silence to him, till he stablish, and till he set Jeru-salem praising in [the] earth.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord swore in his right hand, and in the arm of his strength, I shall no more give thy wheat to be meat to thine enemies, and alien sons shall not drink thy wine, in which thou hast travailed.

<sup>10</sup> Pass ye, pass ye by the gates; make ye ready a way to the people, make ye a plain path; and choose ye [the] stones, and raise ye [up] a sign to peoples.

<sup>11</sup> Lo! the Lord made heard in the last parts of the earth. Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Lo! thy saviour cometh; lo! his meed is with him, and his work is before him.

<sup>12</sup> And they shall call them the holy people, again-bought of the Lord. Forsooth thou shalt be called a city sought, and not forsaken.

CHAPTER 63

<sup>2</sup> Why therefore is thy clothing red? and thy clothes as of men stamping in a presser [or the wine press]?

<sup>3</sup> I alone stamped the press, and of folks, either Gentiles, no man is, either was, with me; I stamped them in my strong vengeance, and I defouled them in my wrath; and their blood is sprinkled on my clothes, and I made foul all my clothes.

<sup>4</sup> For why a day of vengeance is in mine heart, and the year of my yielding cometh.

<sup>5</sup> I looked about, and none helper was; I sought, and none was that helped; and mine arm saved to me, and mine indignation, that helped me.

<sup>6</sup> And I defouled peoples in my strong vengeance; and I made them drunken in mine indignation, and I drew down their strength into the earth.

<sup>7</sup> I shall have mind on the merciful doings of the Lord, I shall preach the praising of the Lord, on all things which the Lord [hath] yielded to us, and the multitude of [the] goods of the house of Israel, which he gave to them, by his forgiveness, and by the multitude of his mercies.

<sup>8</sup> And the Lord said, Nevertheless it is my people, sons not denying, and he was made a saviour to them,

<sup>9</sup> in all the tribulation of them. It was set in tribulation, and the angel of his face saved them. In his love and in his forgiveness he again-bought them, and he bare them, and raised them in all [the] days of the world.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth they excited him to wrathfulness [or wrath], and tormented the spirit of his holy or his Holy Spirit; and he was turned into an enemy of them, and he overcame them in battle.

<sup>11</sup> And he had mind on the days of the world, of Moses, and of his people. Where is he, that led them out of the sea, with the shepherds of his flock? Where is he, that setted [or set] the spirit of his holy or his Holy Spirit in the middle thereof;

<sup>12</sup> which led out Moses to the right half in the arm of his majesty? which parted waters before them, that he should make to himself a name ever-lasting;

<sup>13</sup> which led them out through depths of waters, as an horse not stumbling in desert,

<sup>14</sup> as a beast going down in the field? The Spirit of the Lord was the leader thereof; so thou leddest thy people, that thou madest to thee a name of glory.

<sup>15</sup> Behold thou from heaven, and see from thine holy dwelling place, and from the seat of thy glory. Where is thy fervent love, and thy strength, the multitude of thine entrails, and of thy merciful doings? They withheld themselves on me.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth thou art our father, and Abraham knew not us, and Israel knew not us. Thou, Lord, art our father, and our again-buyer; thy name is from the world.

<sup>17</sup> Lord, why hast thou made us to err from thy ways? thou hast made hard our heart, that we dreaded not thee? be thou converted, for thy servants, the lineages of thine heritage.

<sup>18</sup> They had as nought thine holy people in possession, and our enemies defouled thine hallowing.

<sup>19</sup> We be made as in the beginning, when thou were not Lord of us, neither thy name was called to help on us.

CHAPTER 64

<sup>1</sup> I would that thou brakest heavens, and camest down, that hills floated away from thy face,

<sup>2</sup> and failed [or vanish away], as the burning of fire, and [waters] burnt in [or with] fire; that thy name were made known to thine enemies, and folks were troubled of thy face.

<sup>3</sup> When thou shalt do marvels, we shall not abide. Thou camest down, and hills [or mountains] floated away from thy face.

<sup>4</sup> From the world they heard not, neither perceived with ears; God, none eye saw, without thee, what things thou hast made ready to them that abide thee.

<sup>5</sup> Thou mettest him that is glad, and doeth rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; in thy ways they shall bethink on thee. Lo! thou art wroth, and we sinned; in those sins we were ever, and we shall be saved.

<sup>6</sup> And all we be made as an unclean man; all our rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses]be as the cloth of a woman in menstruation, or unclean blood; and all we fell down as a leaf, and our wickednesses, as wind, have taken away us.

<sup>7</sup> None is, that calleth thy name to help, that riseth, and holdeth thee; thou hast hid thy face from us, and thou hast hurtled down us in the hand of our wickedness.

<sup>8</sup> And now, Lord, thou art our father; forsooth we be clay, and thou art our maker, and all we be the works of thine hands.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, be thou not wroth enough, and have thou no more mind on our wickedness. Lo! Lord, behold thou, all we be thy people.

<sup>10</sup> The city of thy holy, either thy saintuary, is forsaken, Zion is made desert, Jerusalem is made desolate;

<sup>11</sup> the house of our hallowing and of our glory, where our fathers praised thee, is made into burning of fire; and all our desirable things be turned into fallings.

<sup>12</sup> Lord, whether on these things thou shalt withhold thee? shalt thou be still, and shalt thou torment us greatly?

CHAPTER 65

<sup>1</sup> They sought me, that asked not before; they that sought not me, found me. I said, Lo! I, lo! I, to heathen men that knew not me, and that called not my name to help.

<sup>2</sup> I stretched forth mine hands all day to a people unbelievful, that goeth in a way not good, after their thoughts.

<sup>3</sup> It is a people that stirreth me to wrathfulness [or wrath], ever before my face; which offer in gardens, and make sacrifice on tilestones;

<sup>4</sup> which dwell in sepulchres, and sleep in the temples of idols; which eat swine's flesh, and unholy juice, either broth, is in the vessels of them;

<sup>5</sup> which say to an heathen man, Go thou away from me, nigh thou not to me, for thou art unclean; these shall be smoke in my strong vengeance, fire burning all day.

<sup>6</sup> Lo! it is written before me; I shall not be still, but I shall yield, and I shall requite into the bosom of them

<sup>7</sup> your wickednesses, and the wickednesses of your fathers together, saith the Lord, which made sacrifice on mountains, and did shame to me on little hills; and I shall mete [or measure] again the first work of them in their bosom.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord saith these things, As if a grape be found in a cluster, and it is said, Destroy thou not it, for it is blessing; so I shall do for my servants, that I lose not all.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall lead out of Jacob a seed, and of Judah a man having in possession mine holy hills [or holy mountains]; and my chosen men shall inherit it, and my servants shall dwell there.

<sup>10</sup> And the field places shall be into folds of flocks, and the valley of Achor into a resting place of droves of neat, to my people that sought me.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall number you in sword, that forsook the Lord, that forgot mine holy hill [or holy mountain], which set a board to fortune, and make sacrifice thereon,

<sup>12</sup> and all ye shall fall by slaying; for that that I called, and ye answered not; I spake, and ye heard not; and ye did evil before mine eyes, and ye choosed those things which I would not.

<sup>13</sup> For these things, the Lord God saith these things, Lo! my servants shall eat, and ye shall have hunger; lo! my servants shall drink, and ye shall be thirsty; lo! my servants shall be glad, and ye shall be ashamed;

<sup>14</sup> lo! my servants shall praise, for the full joy of heart, and ye shall cry, for the sorrow of heart, and ye shall yell, for [the] desolation of spirit.

<sup>15</sup> And ye shall leave your name into an oath to my chosen men; and the Lord God shall slay thee, and he shall call his servants by another name.

<sup>16</sup> In which he that is blessed on earth, shall be blessed in God, amen; and he that sweareth in earth, shall swear in God faithfully; for the former anguishes be given to forgetting, and for those be hid from your eyes.

<sup>17</sup> For lo! I make new heavens and a new earth, and the former things shall not be in mind, and shall not ascend [or go up] on the heart.

<sup>18</sup> But ye shall have joy, and make full out joying till into without end, in these things which I make; for lo! I make Jerusalem full out joying, and the people thereof joy.

<sup>19</sup> And I shall make full out joying in Jerusalem, and I shall have joy in my people; and the voice of weeping and the voice of cry shall no more be heard therein.

<sup>21</sup> And they shall build houses, and shall inhabit them, and they shall plant vines, and shall eat the fruits of those [or them].

<sup>22</sup> They shall not build houses, and another shall inhabit, they shall not plant, and another shall eat; for why the days of my people shall be after the days of the tree, and the works of their hands shall be eld to my chosen men.

<sup>23</sup> They shall not travail in vain, neither they shall engender in troubling; for it is the seed of them that be blessed of the Lord, and the cousins of them be with them.

<sup>24</sup> And it shall be, before that they cry, I shall hear; yet while they speak, I shall hear.

<sup>25</sup> The wolf and the lamb shall be fed together, and a lion and an ox shall eat straw, and to a serpent dust shall be his bread; they shall not harm, neither shall slay, in all mine holy hill [or holy mountain], saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 66

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things, Heaven is my seat, and the earth is the stool of my feet. Which is this house, which ye shall build to me, and which is this place of my rest?

<sup>2</sup> Mine hand made all these things, and all these things be made, saith the Lord; but to whom shall I behold, no but to a poor man and contrite in spirit, and greatly dreading my words?

<sup>3</sup> He that offereth an ox, is as he that slayeth a man; he that slayeth a sheep, is as he that braineth a dog; he that offereth an offering, is as he that offereth swine's blood; he that thinketh on incense, is as he that blesseth an idol; they choosed all these things in their ways, and their soul delighted in their abominations.

<sup>4</sup> Wherefore and I shall choose the scornings of them, and I shall bring to them those things which they dreaded; for I called, and none there was that answered; I spake, and they heard not; and they did evil before mine eyes, and choosed those things, which I would not.

<sup>5</sup> Hear ye the word of the Lord, which quake at his word; your brethren hating you, and casting away for my name, said, The Lord be glorified, and we shall see in your gladness; forsooth they shall be shamed.

<sup>7</sup> Before that she travailed of child, she childed; before that the sorrow of her childbearing came, she childed a son.

<sup>8</sup> Who heard ever such a thing, and who saw a thing like this? Whether the earth shall travail of child in one day, either a folk shall be childed together? For why Zion travailed of child, and childed her sons.

<sup>9</sup> Whether that I make others to bear child, shall not bear child myself? saith the Lord. Whether I that give generation to other men, shall be barren? saith thy Lord God.

<sup>10</sup> Be ye glad with Jerusalem, and all ye that love that, make full out joy therein; all ye that mourn on that Jerusalem, make ye joy with it in joy;

<sup>11</sup> that both ye suck, and be [ful] filled of the teats and comfort thereof, that ye milk, and flow in delights, of all manner glory thereof.

<sup>12</sup> For why the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall bow down on it, as a flood of peace, and as a flowing stream, the glory of heathen men, which ye shall suck; ye shall be borne at teats, and on knees, they shall speak pleasantly to you.

<sup>13</sup> As if a mother speaketh fair to any child, so I shall comfort you, and ye shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

<sup>14</sup> Ye shall see, and your heart shall have joy, and your bones shall burgeon as an herb. And the hand of the Lord shall be known in his servants, and he shall have indignation to his enemies.

<sup>16</sup> For why the Lord shall deem in fire, and in his sword to each flesh; and slain men of the Lord shall be multiplied, <sup>17</sup> that were hallowed, and guessed them clean, in gardens after one gate within; that eat swine's flesh, and abomination, and a mouse, they shall be wasted together, saith the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth I come to gather together the works of them, and the thoughts of them, with all folks and languages; and they shall come, and shall see my glory.

<sup>19</sup> And I shall set [or put] a sign in them, and I shall send of them that be saved to heathen men, into the sea, into Africa, and into Lydia, and to them that hold [an] arrow, into Italy, and Greek land [or Greece], to isles far, to them that heard not of me, and saw not my glory. And they shall tell my glory to heathen men, <sup>20</sup> and they shall bring all your brethren out of [or from] all folks as a gift to the Lord, in horses, and [in] chariots, and in litters, and in mules, and in carts, to mine holy hill [or holy mountain], Jerusalem, saith the Lord; as if the sons of Israel bring a gift in a clean vessel into the house of the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall take of them into priests and deacons [or Levites], saith the Lord.

<sup>22</sup> For as new heavens and new earth, which I make to stand before me, saith the Lord, so your seed shall stand, and your name.

<sup>23</sup> And a month shall be of month, and a sabbath of sabbath; each man shall come for to worship before my face, saith the Lord.

<sup>24</sup> And they shall go out, and shall see the carrions of men, that trespassed against me; the worm of them shall not die, and the fire of them shall not be quenched; and they shall be unto filling of sight to each man.

JEREMIAH

<sup>1</sup> The words of Jeremy, son of Hilkiah, of the priests that were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin.

<sup>2</sup> For the word of the Lord was made to him in the days of Josiah, the son of Amon, king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his realm.

<sup>3</sup> And it was done in the days of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, unto the ending of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, son of Josiah, king of Judah, till to the passing over, either captivity, of Jerusalem, in the fifth month.

<sup>4</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>5</sup> Before that I formed thee in the womb, I knew thee; and before that thou wentest out of the womb, I hallowed thee; and I gave thee to be a prophet among folks.

<sup>6</sup> And I said, A! A! A! Lord God, lo! I cannot speak, for I am a child.

<sup>7</sup> And the Lord said to me, Do not thou say, that I am a child; for thou shalt go to all things, to which I shall send thee, and thou shalt speak all things, whatever things I shall command to thee.

<sup>8</sup> Dread thou not of the face of them; for I am with thee, to deliver thee, saith the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> And the Lord sent his hand, and touched my mouth; and the Lord said to me, Lo! I have given my words in thy mouth;

<sup>10</sup> lo! I have ordained thee today on folks, and on realms, that thou draw up, and destroy, and lose, and scatter, and build, and plant.

<sup>11</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said, What seest thou, Jeremy? And I said, I see a rod waking or watching.

<sup>12</sup> And the Lord said to me, Thou hast seen well, for I shall wake or watch* on my word, to do it.

<sup>13</sup> And the word of the Lord was made the second time to me, and said, What seest thou? [And I said], I see a pot boiling, and the face thereof from the face of the north.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord said to me, From the north shall be showed all evil on all the dwellers of the land.

<sup>15</sup> For lo! I shall call together all the nations of [the] realms of the north, saith the Lord; and they shall come, and set each man his seat in the entering of the gates of Jerusalem, and on all the walls thereof in compass, and on all the cities of Judah.

<sup>16</sup> And I shall speak my dooms with them on all the malice of them, that forsook me, and made sacrifice to alien gods, and worshipped the work of their hands.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore gird [up] thou thy loins, and rise thou, and speak to them all things which I command to thee; dread thou not of the face of them, for I shall not make thee for to dread the cheer of them.

<sup>18</sup> For I gave thee today into a strong city, and into an iron pillar, and into a brazen wall, on all the land, to the kings of Judah, and to the princes thereof, and to the priests thereof, and to all the people of the land.

<sup>19</sup> And they shall fight against thee, and they shall not have the mastery; for I am with thee, saith the Lord, that I deliver thee.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Go thou, and cry in the ears of Jerusalem, and say, The Lord saith these things, I had mind on thee, and I had mercy on thee in thy young waxing age, and on the charity of thy espousing, when thou followedest me in desert, in the land which is not sown.

<sup>3</sup> Israel was holy to the Lord, the first of fruits of him; men that devour that Israel, trespass; evils shall come [up] on them, saith the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> The house of Jacob, and all the lineages of the house of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord saith these things, What of wickedness found your fathers in me, for they went far away from me, and went after vanity, and were made vain?

<sup>6</sup> And they said not, Where is the Lord, that made us to go up from the land of Egypt, that led us over through desert, by the land uninhabitable and without way, by the land of thirst, and by the image of death, by the land in which a man went not, neither a man dwelled.

<sup>7</sup> And I brought you into the land of Carmel, that ye should eat the fruit thereof, and the goods thereof; and ye entered, and defouled my land, and setted mine heritage into abomination.

<sup>8</sup> Priests said not, Where is the Lord? and they that held the law, knew not me; and shepherds trespassed against me, and prophets prophesied in Baal, and followed idols.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore yet I shall strive with you in doom, saith the Lord, and I shall dispute with your sons.

<sup>10</sup> Go ye to the isles of Chittim, and see ye; and send ye into Kedar, and behold ye greatly; and see ye, if such a thing is done, <sup>11</sup> if a folk changed his gods; and certainly they be no gods; but my people changed his glory into an idol.

<sup>12</sup> Heavens, be ye astonied on this thing, and, ye gates of heaven, be ye desolate greatly, saith the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> For why my people hath done twain [or two] evils; they have forsaken me, the well of quick water, and have digged to them cisterns, that were destroyed, that may not hold waters.

<sup>14</sup> Whether Israel is a bondman, either is born bond? Why therefore is he made into prey?

<sup>15</sup> Lions roared on him, and gave their voice; they have set the land of him into wilderness, the cities of him be burnt [up], and none there is that dwelleth in those [or them].

<sup>16</sup> Also the sons of Memphis and Tahpanhes have defouled thee, unto the top of the head.

<sup>17</sup> Whether this is not done to thee, for thou forsookest thy Lord God, in that time in which he led thee by the way?

<sup>18</sup> And now what wilt thou to thee in the way of Egypt, that thou drink troubled water? And what is to thee with the way of Assyrians, that thou drink water of the flood?

<sup>19</sup> Thy malice shall reprove thee, and thy turning away shall blame thee; know thou and see, that it is evil and bitter, that thou hast forsaken thy Lord God, and that his dread is not at thee, saith the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>20</sup> From the world thou hast broken my yoke, thou hast broken my bonds, and saidest, I shall not serve. For thou whore didest whoredom in each high little hill, and under each tree full of boughs.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth I planted thee a chosen vinery [or vine], all true seed; how therefore art thou, an alien vinery [or vine], turned to me into a shrewd thing?

<sup>22</sup> Though thou wash thee with fuller's clay, and multiplieth to thee the [cleansing] herb boreth, thou art defouled in thy wickedness before me, saith the Lord God.

<sup>25</sup> Forbid thy foot from nakedness, and thy throat from thirst; and thou saidest, I despaired, I shall not do; for I loved burningly alien gods, and I shall go after them.

<sup>26</sup> As a thief is shamed, when he is taken, so the house of Israel be shamed; they, and [the] kings of them, the princes, and priests, and the prophets of them,

<sup>27</sup> that say to a tree, Thou art my father; and to a stone, Thou hast engendered me. They turned to me the back, and not the face; and in the time of their torment they shall say, Rise thou, and deliver us.

<sup>28</sup> Where be thy gods, which thou madest to thee? Rise they, and deliver thee in the time of thy torment; for after the number of thy cities were thy gods, thou Judah.

<sup>29</sup> What, will ye strive with me in doom? All ye have forsaken me, saith the Lord.

<sup>30</sup> In vain I smote your sons, they received not chastising; your sword devoured your prophets, your gener-ation is destroyed as a lion.

<sup>31</sup> See ye the word of the Lord, whether I am made a wilderness to Israel, either a land late bringing forth fruit? Why therefore said my people, We have gone away, we shall no more come to thee?

<sup>32</sup> Whether a virgin shall forget her ornament? and a spouses her breast-girdle? But my people hath forgotten me by days without number.

<sup>33</sup> What enforcest or endeavourest thou to show thy way good to seek love, which furthermore both hast taught thy malices thy ways,

<sup>34</sup> and the blood of poor men and innocents is found in thy wings? I found not them in ditches, but in all things which I remembered before.

<sup>35</sup> And thou saidest, I am without sin and innocent; and therefore thy strong vengeance be turned away from me. Lo! I shall strive with thee in doom; for thou saidest, I sinned not.

<sup>36</sup> How vile art thou made, rehearsing thy ways? and thou shalt be shamed of Egypt, as thou were shamed of Assur.

<sup>37</sup> For why and thou shalt go out of this land, and thine hands shall be on thine head; for why the Lord hath all-broken thy trust, and thou shalt have nothing to prosperity.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> It is said commonly, If a man forsaketh his wife, and she go away from him, and be wedded to another husband, whether he shall turn again [any] more to her? whether that woman shall not be defouled, and made unclean? Forsooth thou hast done fornication with many lovers; nevertheless turn thou again to me, saith the Lord, and I shall receive thee.

<sup>2</sup> Raise thine eyes into straight, and see, where thou art not cast down. Thou hast sat in ways, abiding them as a thief in wilderness, and thou hast defouled the earth in thy fornications and in thy malices.

<sup>3</sup> Wherefore the drops of rains were forbidden, and no late rain was. The forehead of a woman whore is made to thee; thou wouldest not be ashamed.

<sup>4</sup> Namely from this time forth call thou me, Thou art my father, the leader of my virginity.

<sup>5</sup> Whether thou shalt be wroth without end, either shalt continue into the end? Lo! thou hast spoken, and hast done evils, and thou were mighty. And for words of penance thou blasphemedest by words of pride; and thou filledest thine evil thought, and showedest thy strength against thy husband, that thou mayest do that thing that thou treatedest by word.

<sup>6</sup> And the Lord said to me, in the days of Josiah, the king, Whether thou hast seen what thing the adversary, Israel, hath done? She went [away] to herself on each high hill, and under each tree full of boughs, and did fornication there.

<sup>7</sup> And I said, when she had done all these things, Turn thou again to me; and she turned not again. And her sister, Judah, breaker of the law, saw,

<sup>8</sup> that for the adversary, Israel, did adultery, I had let her go, and I had given to her a libel, or a little book, of forsaking; and Judah, her sister, breaker of the law, dreaded not, but also she went, and did fornication.

<sup>9</sup> And by lightness of her fornication she defouled the earth, and did adultery with a stone, and with a tree.

<sup>10</sup> And in all these things her sister, Judah, breaker of the law, turned not again to me, in all her heart, but in a leasing, saith the Lord God.

<sup>11</sup> And the Lord said to me, The adversary, Israel, hath justified her soul, in comparison of Judah, breaker of the law.

<sup>12</sup> Go thou, and cry these words against the north; and thou shalt say, Thou adversary, Israel, turn again, saith the Lord, and I shall not turn away my face from you; for I am holy, saith the Lord, and I shall not be wroth without end.

<sup>13</sup> Nevertheless know thou thy wickedness; for thou hast trespassed against thy Lord God, and thou hast spread abroad thy ways to aliens under each tree full of boughs; and thou heardest not my voice, saith the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> Be ye converted, sons, turning again, saith the Lord, for I am your husband; and I shall take you, one of a city, and twain [or two] of a kindred, and I shall lead you into Zion;

<sup>15</sup> and I shall give to you shepherds after mine heart, and they shall feed you with knowing and teaching.

<sup>16</sup> And when ye shall be multiplied, and increase in the land, in those days, saith the Lord, they shall no more say, The ark of [the] testament of the Lord; neither it shall ascend [or go up] on the heart, neither they shall think on it, neither it shall be visited, neither it shall be further.

<sup>17</sup> In that time they shall call Jerusalem The seat of the Lord, and all heathen men shall be gathered together to it, in the name of the Lord, in Jerusalem; and they shall not go after the shrewdness of their worst heart.

<sup>18</sup> In those days the house of Judah shall go to the house of Israel; and they shall come together from the land of the north to the land which I gave to your fathers.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth I said, How shall I set [or put] thee among sons, and shall give to thee a desirable land, a full clear heritage of the hosts of heathen men? And I said, Thou shalt call me, Father, and thou shalt not cease to enter after me.

<sup>20</sup> But as if a woman despiseth her lover, so the house of Israel despised me, saith the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> A voice is heard in ways, the weeping and yelling of the sons of Israel; for they made wicked their way, they forgot their Lord God.

<sup>22</sup> Be ye converted, sons, turning again, and I shall heal your turnings away. Lo! we come to thee; for thou art our Lord God.

<sup>23</sup> Verily the little hills were liars, the multitude of mountains was false; verily in our Lord God is the health of Israel.

<sup>24</sup> Shame ate the travail of our fathers, from our youth; shame ate the flocks of them, and the droves of them, the sons of them, and the daughters of them.

<sup>25</sup> We shall sleep in our shame, and our shame shall cover us; for we sinned to our Lord God, both we and our fathers, from our youth unto this day; and we have not heard the voice of our Lord God.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Israel, if thou turnest again, saith the Lord, turn thou to me; if thou takest away thine offendings from my face, thou shalt not be moved.

<sup>2</sup> And thou shalt swear, The Lord liveth, in truth, and in doom, and in rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and all folks shall bless him, and shall praise him.

<sup>3</sup> For the Lord God saith these things to a man of Judah, and to a dweller of Jerusalem, Make ye new to you a land tilled of new, either a fallow, and do not ye sow on thorns.

<sup>4</sup> Men of Judah, and dwellers of Jerusalem, be ye circumcised to the Lord, and do ye away the prepuces, either filths, of your hearts; lest peradventure mine indignation go out as fire, and be kindled, and none there be that quench, for the malice of your thoughts.

<sup>5</sup> Tell ye in Judah, and make ye heard in Jerusalem; speak ye, and sing ye with a trump in the land; cry ye strongly, and say ye, Be ye gathered together, and enter we into [the] strong cities.

<sup>6</sup> Raise ye a sign in Zion, comfort ye, and do not ye stand; for I [shall] bring evil from the north, and a great sorrow.

<sup>8</sup> On this thing gird you with hair-shirts; wail ye, and yell, for the wrath of the strong vengeance of the Lord is not turned away from you.

<sup>9</sup> And it shall be, in that day, saith the Lord, the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of princes; and the priests shall wonder, and the prophets shall be astonished.

<sup>10</sup> And I said, Alas! alas! alas! Lord God; therefore whether thou hast deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, Peace shall be to you, and lo! a sword is come unto the soul?

<sup>11</sup> In that time it shall be said to this people and to Jerusalem, A burning wind in the ways that be in desert, be the ways of the daughter of my people, not to winnow, and not to purge.

<sup>12</sup> A spirit full of them shall come to me; and now I, but I shall speak my dooms with them.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! he shall ascend [or go up] as a cloud, and his chariots as a tempest; his horses be swifter than eagles; woe to us, for we be destroyed.

<sup>14</sup> Thou Jerusalem, wash thine heart from malice, that thou be made safe. How long shall harmful thoughts dwell in thee?

<sup>15</sup> For why the voice of a teller from Dan, and making known an idol from the hill or mount of Ephraim.

<sup>16</sup> Raise, ye folks; lo! it is heard in Jerusalem, that keepers be come from a far land, and give their voice on the cities of Judah.

<sup>17</sup> As the keepers of fields, they be made on it in compass; for it stirred me to wrathfulness [or to wrath], saith the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> Thy ways and thy thoughts have made this to thee; this malice of thee, for it is bitter, for it touched thine heart.

<sup>19</sup> My womb acheth, my womb acheth; the wits of mine heart be troubled in me. I shall not be still, for my soul heard the voice of a trump, the cry of battle.

<sup>20</sup> Sorrow is called on sorrow, and all the land is destroyed; my tabernacles be wasted suddenly, my skins be wasted suddenly.

<sup>21</sup> How long shall I see them that flee, shall I hear the voice of a clarion?

<sup>22</sup> For my fond [or foolish] people knew not me; they be unwise sons, and cowards; they be wise to do evils, but they know not to do well.

<sup>23</sup> I beheld the land, and lo! it was void, and nought; and I beheld heavens, and no light there was in them.

<sup>24</sup> I saw mountains, and lo! they were moved, and all little hills were troubled.

<sup>25</sup> I looked, and no man there was, and each bird of heaven was gone away.

<sup>26</sup> I beheld, and lo! Carmel is forsaken, and all cities thereof be destroyed from the face of the Lord, and from the face of the ire [or the wrath] of his strong vengeance.

<sup>27</sup> For the Lord saith these things, All the land shall be forsaken, but nevertheless, I shall not make a [full] ending.

<sup>28</sup> The earth shall mourn, and heavens above shall make sorrow, for that I spake; I thought, and it repented not me, neither I am turned away from it.

<sup>29</sup> Each city fled from the voice of a knight, and a man shooting an arrow; they entered into hard places, and ascended [or went up] into rocks of stone; all [the] cities be forsaken, and no man dwelleth in them.

<sup>30</sup> But what shalt thou destroyed, do? When thou shalt clothe thee with red scarlet, when thou shalt be adorned with a golden brooch, and shalt anoint thine eyes with woman's ointment, thou shalt be arrayed in vain; thy lovers have despised thee, they shall seek thy soul.

<sup>31</sup> For I heard a voice as a woman travailing of child, the anguishes as of a woman childing; the voice of the daughter of Zion among them that die, and spread abroad her hands; Woe to me, for my soul failed for them that be slain.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Compass ye the ways of Jerusalem, and look, and behold ye, and seek ye in the streets thereof, whether ye find a man doing doom, and seeking faith; and I shall be merciful to them.

<sup>2</sup> That if also they say, The Lord liveth, yea, they shall swear this falsely.

<sup>3</sup> Lord, thine eyes behold faith; thou hast smitten them, and they made not sorrow; thou hast all-broken them, and they forsook to take chastising; they made their faces harder than a stone, and would not turn again.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth I said, In hap they be poor men, and fools, that know not the way of the Lord, and the doom of their God.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore I shall go to the principal men, and I shall speak to them; for they knew the way of the Lord, and the doom of their God. And lo! they have more broken together the yoke, and have broken [the] bonds.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore a lion of the wood smote them; a wolf at eventide wasted them, a leopard waking or watching on the cities of them. Each man that goeth out of them, shall be taken; for the trespassings of them be multiplied, the turnings away of them be comforted.

<sup>7</sup> On what thing may I be merciful to thee? Thy sons have forsaken me, and swear by them that be not gods. I [full]-filled them, and they did adultery, and in the house of an whore they did lechery.

<sup>8</sup> They be made horses, and stallions, lovers to women; each man neighed to the wife of his neighbour.

<sup>9</sup> Whether I shall not visit on these things, saith the Lord, and shall not my soul take vengeance on such a folk?

<sup>10</sup> Go ye up on the walls thereof, and destroy ye; but do not ye make an ending. Do ye away the scions thereof, for they be not servants of the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> For why the house of Israel and the house of Judah hath trespassed by trespassing against me, saith the Lord;

<sup>12</sup> they denied the Lord, and said, He is not, neither evil shall come [up] on us; we shall not see sword and hunger.

<sup>13</sup> The prophets spake against the wind, and none answer was in them; therefore these things shall come to them.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord God of hosts saith these things, For ye spake this word, lo! I give my words in thy mouth into fire, and this people into trees, and it shall devour them.

<sup>15</sup> Lo! thou house of Israel, saith the Lord, I shall bring on you a folk from [a] far; a strong folk, an eld [or old] folk, a folk whose language thou shalt not know, neither shalt understand what it speaketh.

<sup>18</sup> Nevertheless in those days, saith the Lord, I shall not make you into [full] ending.

<sup>19</sup> That if ye say, Why hath our Lord God done all these things to us? thou shalt say to them, As ye forsook me, and served an alien god in your land, so ye shall serve alien gods in a land not yours.

<sup>20</sup> Tell ye this to the house of Jacob, and make ye heard in Judah, and say ye, <sup>21</sup> Hear, thou fond [or foolish] people, that hast none heart; which have eyes, and see not, and ears, and hear not.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore shall not ye dread me, saith the Lord, and shall not ye make sorrow for my face? Which have set gravel to be a term, either end, to the sea, an everlasting commandment, which it shall not pass; and the waves thereof shall be moved, and shall not have power; and shall wax great, and shall not pass it.

<sup>23</sup> Forsooth an heart unbelievful and stirring to wrath is made to this people; they departed, and went away,

<sup>24</sup> and they said not in their heart, Dread we our Lord God, that giveth to us rain timeful, and lateful in his time; that keepeth to us the plenty of harvest of the year.

<sup>25</sup> Your wickednesses did away these things, and your sins forbidded good from you.

<sup>26</sup> For there be found wicked men in my people, setting treason, as fowlers setting snares and traps, to take men.

<sup>27</sup> As a net, either a trap, full of birds, so the houses of them be full of guile.

<sup>28</sup> Therefore they be magnified, and made rich, made fat within, and made fat without, and they passed worst my words; they deemed not the cause of a widow, they dressed not the cause of a fatherless child, and they deemed not the doom of poor men.

<sup>29</sup> Whether I shall not visit on these things, saith the Lord, either shall not my soul take vengeance on such a folk?

<sup>31</sup> prophets prophesied leasing, and priests joyed with their hands, and my people loved such things. What therefore shall be done in the last thing thereof?

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Sons of Benjamin, be ye comforted in the middle of Jerusalem, and make ye noise with a clarion in Tekoa, and raise ye a banner on Bethhaccerem; for why evil and great sorrow is seen from the north.

<sup>3</sup> Shepherds and their flocks shall come to it; they have pitched tents in it in compass; each man shall feed them, that be under his hand.

<sup>4</sup> Hallow ye battle on it. Rise ye together, and ascend we [or go we up] in midday. Woe to us, for the day hath bowed down, for shadows be made longer in the eventide.

<sup>5</sup> Rise ye, and ascend we [or go we up] in the night, and destroy we the houses thereof.

<sup>6</sup> For the Lord of hosts saith these things, Cut ye down the tree thereof, and shed ye earth about Jerusalem; this is the city of visitation; all false challenge is in the midst thereof.

<sup>7</sup> As a cistern maketh his water cold, so it made his malice cold; wickedness and destroying shall ever be heard therein before me, sickness and wound.

<sup>8</sup> Jerusalem, be thou taught, lest peradventure my soul go away from thee; lest peradventure I set thee forsaken, a land uninhabitable.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, They shall gather till to a raisin, they shall gather the remnants of Israel as in a vinery [or a vine]; turn thine hand, as a gatherer of grapes to the basket.

<sup>10</sup> To whom shall I speak, and to whom shall I say witnessing, that he hear? Lo! the ears of them be uncircumcised, and they may not hear; lo! the word of the Lord is made to them into despite, and they shall not receive it.

<sup>12</sup> And the houses of them, the fields and wives together, shall go to other men; for I shall stretch forth mine hand on the dwellers of the land, saith the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> For from the less unto the greater, all study to avarice; and all do guile, from the prophet unto the priest.

<sup>14</sup> And they healed the sorrow of the daughter of my people with evil fame, saying, Peace, peace, and no peace was.

<sup>15</sup> They be shamed, that did abomination; yea, rather they were not shamed by confusion, and they could not be ashamed. Wherefore they shall fall down among them that shall fall down; they shall fall down in the time of their visitation, saith the Lord.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord saith these things, Stand ye on ways, and see ye, and ask ye of [the] eld [or old] paths, which is the good way; and go ye therein, and ye shall find refreshing to your souls. And they said, We shall not go.

<sup>17</sup> And I ordained espysers, either beholders, on you, and I said, Hear ye the voice of a trump. And they said, We shall not hear.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore, heathen men, hear ye, and, thou congregation, know, how great things I shall do to them.

<sup>19</sup> Thou earth, hear, lo! I shall bring evils on this people, the fruit of their thoughts; for they heard not my words, and casted away my law.

<sup>20</sup> Whereto bring ye to me incense from Sheba, and a tree of spicery smelling sweetly from a far land? Your burnt sacrifices be not accepted, and your slain sacrifices pleased not me.

<sup>22</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Lo! a people cometh from the land of the north, and a great folk shall rise together from the ends of [the] earth.

<sup>23</sup> It shall take arrow and shield; it is cruel, and shall not have mercy; the voice thereof shall sound as the sea, and they made ready as a man to battle shall ascend [or go up] on horses against thee, thou daughter of Zion.

<sup>24</sup> We [have] heard the fame thereof, our hands be made numb; tribulation hath taken us, sorrows have taken us as a woman travailing of child.

<sup>25</sup> Do not ye go out to the fields, and go ye not in the way, for the sword of the enemy, dread in compass.

<sup>26</sup> The daughter of my people, be thou girded with hair-shirt, and be thou sprinkled together with ashes; make to thee mourning of [the] one alone begotten son, a bitter wailing, for why a waster shall come suddenly [up] on you.

<sup>27</sup> I gave thee to be a strong prover in my people, and thou shalt know, and prove the way of them.

<sup>29</sup> The bellow failed, lead is wasted in the fire, the weller welled in vain; for the malices of them be not wasted.

<sup>30</sup> Call ye them reprovably silver, for the Lord hath cast them away.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Stand in the gate of the house of the Lord, and preach there this word, and say, All Judah, that enter [in] by these gates for to worship the Lord, hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Make ye good your ways, and your studies, and I shall dwell with you in this place.

<sup>4</sup> Do not ye trust in the words of leasing, and say, The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord is.

<sup>5</sup> For if ye bless your ways, and your studies; if ye do doom betwixt a man and his neighbour;

<sup>6</sup> if ye make not false challenge to a comeling, and to a fatherless child, and to a widow; neither shed out innocent blood in this place, and go not after alien gods, into evil to yourselves,

<sup>7</sup> I shall dwell with you in this place, in the land which I gave to your fathers, from the world and till into the world.

<sup>8</sup> Lo! ye trust to you in the words of leasing, that shall not profit to you;

<sup>9</sup> to steal, to slay, to do adultery, to swear falsely, to make sacrifice to Baalim, and to go after alien gods, which ye know not.

<sup>10</sup> And ye came, and stood before me in this house, in which my name is called to help; and ye said, We be delivered, for we have done all these abominations.

<sup>11</sup> Whether therefore this house, wherein my name is called to help before your eyes, is made a den of thieves? I, I am, I saw, saith the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> Go ye to my place in Shiloh, where my name dwelled at the beginning, and see ye what things I did to it, for the malice of my people Israel.

<sup>13</sup> And now, for ye have done all these works, saith the Lord, and I spake to you, and rose early, and I spake, and ye heard not, and I called you, and ye answered not;

<sup>14</sup> I shall do to this house, wherein my name is called to help, and in which house ye have trust, and to the place which I gave to you and to your fathers, as I did to Shiloh.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall cast you forth from my face, as I casted forth all your brethren, all the seed of Ephraim.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore do not thou pray for this people, neither take thou praising and prayer for them; and against-stand thou not me, for I shall not hear thee.

<sup>17</sup> Whether thou seest not, what these men do in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem?

<sup>18</sup> The sons gather sticks, and the fathers kindle a fire; and women sprinkle together inner fatness, to make cakes to the queen of heaven, to make sacrifice to alien gods, and to stir me to wrathfulness [or to wrath].

<sup>19</sup> Whether they stir me to wrathful-ness [or to wrath]? saith the Lord; whether they stir not themselves into [the] shame of their cheer?

<sup>20</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! my strong vengeance and mine indignation is welled together on this place, on men, and on beasts, and on the tree of the country, and on the fruits of [the] earth; and it shall be kindled, and it shall not be quenched.

<sup>21</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Heap ye your burnt sacrifices to your slain sacrifices, and eat ye flesh.

<sup>22</sup> For I spake not with your fathers, and I commanded not to them of the word of burnt sacrifices, and of slain sacrifices, in the day in which I led them out of the land of Egypt.

<sup>23</sup> But I commanded this word to them, and I said, Hear ye my voice, and I shall be God to you, and ye shall be a people to me; and go ye in all the way which I commanded to you, that it be well to you.

<sup>24</sup> And they heard not, neither bowed down their ear, but they went in their lusts, and in the shrewdness of their evil heart; and they be made behind, and not before,

<sup>25</sup> from the day in which their fathers went out of the land of Egypt till to this day. And I sent to you all my servants prophets, and I rose early by the day, and I sent.

<sup>26</sup> And they heard not me, neither bowed down their ear; but they made hard their noll, and wrought worse than the fathers of them.

<sup>27</sup> And thou shalt speak to them all these words, and they shall not hear thee; and thou shalt call them, and they shall not answer to thee.

<sup>29</sup> Clip thine hair, and cast away, and take thou wailing straightly; for the Lord hath cast away, and hath forsaken the generation of his strong vengeance.

<sup>30</sup> For the sons of Judah have done evil before mine eyes, saith the Lord; they have set their offendings in the house, in which my name is called to help, that they should defoul that house;

<sup>31</sup> and they builded high things in Tophet, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, that they should burn their sons and their daughters by fire, which things I commanded not, neither thought in mine heart.

<sup>32</sup> Therefore lo! days come, saith the Lord, and it shall no more be said Tophet, and the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of slaying; and they shall bury in Tophet, for there is no place.

<sup>33</sup> And the dead carrion of this people shall be into meat to the birds of heaven, and to the beasts of earth; and none there shall be that shall drive away.

<sup>34</sup> And I shall make to cease the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, and the voice of [the] spouse, and the voice of [the] spouses from the cities of Judah, and from the streets of Jerusalem; for the land shall be in desolation.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> In that time, saith the Lord, they shall cast out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of princes thereof, and the bones of priests, and the bones of prophets, and the bones of them that dwelled in Jerusalem, from their sepulchres;

<sup>2</sup> and they shall lay abroad those bones to the sun, and [the] moon, and to all the knighthood of heaven, which they loved, and which they served, and after which they went, and which they sought, and worshipped; they shall not be gathered, and shall not be buried; they shall be into a dunghill on the face of [the] earth.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord saith these things, Whether he that shall fall, shall not rise again? and whether he that is turned away, shall not turn again?

<sup>5</sup> Why therefore is this people in Jerusalem turned away by turning away full of strife? They have taken leasing, and would not turn again.

<sup>6</sup> I perceived, and hearkened; no man speaketh that that is good, none there is that doeth penance for his sin, and saith, What have I done? All be turned together to their course, as an horse going by fierceness to battle.

<sup>7</sup> A kite in the air knew his time; a turtle, and a swallow, and a ciconia, kept the time of their coming; but my people knew not the doom of the Lord,

<sup>8</sup> How say ye, We be wise men, and the law of the Lord is with us? Verily the false stylus, either writing, of scribes wrought leasing.

<sup>9</sup> [The] Wise men be shamed, they be made afeared and taken. For they cast away the word of the Lord, and no wisdom is in them.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore I shall give the women of them to strangers, and the fields of them to alien heirs; for from the least unto the most all follow avarice, from a prophet unto the priest all make leasing;

<sup>11</sup> and they healed the sorrow of the daughter of my people to shame, saying, Peace, peace, when no peace was.

<sup>12</sup> They be shamed, for they did abomination; yea, rather they were not shamed by shame, and could not be ashamed. Therefore they shall fall among fallers, in the time of their visitation they shall fall, saith the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> I gathering shall gather them, saith the Lord; no grape is in the vines, and figs be not in the fig tree; a leaf fell down, and I gave to them those things that be gone out over.

<sup>14</sup> Why sit we? come ye together, enter we into a strong city, and be we still there; for our Lord hath made us to be still, and gave to us drink the water of gall; for we have sinned to the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> We abided peace, and no good was; we abided time of medicine, and lo! dread is.

<sup>16</sup> [The] Gnashing of horses thereof is heard from Dan; all the land is moved of the voice of neighings of his warriors; and they came, and devoured the land, and the plenty thereof, the city, and the dwellers thereof.

<sup>17</sup> For lo! I shall send to you the worst serpents, to which is no charming; and they shall bite you, saith the Lord.

<sup>19</sup> And lo! the voice of cry of the daughter of my people cometh from a far land. Whether the Lord is not in Zion, either the king thereof is not therein? Why therefore stirred they me to wrathfulness [or to wrath] by their graven images, and by alien vanities?

<sup>21</sup> I am tormented, and sorry on the sorrow of the daughter of my people; astonishing held me.

<sup>22</sup> Whether resin, that is, a gum of great odour and medicinal, is not in Gilead, either a leech is not there? Why therefore the wound of the daughter of my people is not healed perfectly?

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> Who shall give water to mine head, and a well of tears to mine eyes? And I shall bewEEP day and night the slain men of the daughter of my people.

<sup>2</sup> Who shall give me into a wilderness of diverse way-goers? And I shall forsake my people, and I shall go away from them. For why all be adulterers, and the companies of trespassers against the law;

<sup>3</sup> and they held forth their tongue as a bow of leasing, and not of truth. They be comforted in earth, for they went out from evil to evil, and they knew not me, saith the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> Each man keep him from his neighbour, and have no trust in any brother of him; for why each brother deceiving shall deceive, and each friend shall go guilefully.

<sup>5</sup> And a man shall scorn his brother, and shall not speak truth; for they taught their tongue to speak leasing; they travailed to do wickedly.

<sup>6</sup> Thy dwelling is in the midst of guile; in guile they forsook to know me, saith the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts saith these things, Lo! I shall well together, and I shall prove them; for why what other thing shall I do from the face of the daughter of my people?

<sup>8</sup> The tongue of them is an arrow wounding, and [it] spake guile; in his mouth he speaketh peace with his friend, and privily he setteth treasons to him.

<sup>9</sup> Whether I shall not visit on these things, saith the Lord, either shall not my soul take vengeance on such a folk?

<sup>10</sup> On hills [or mountains] I shall take weeping and mourning, and wailing on the fair things of desert, for they be burnt [up]; for no man is passing forth, and they heard not the voice of him that wieldeth; from a bird of the air unto [the] sheep, they passed over, and went away.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall give Jerusalem into heaps of gravel, and into dens of dragons; and I shall give the cities of Judah into desolation, for there is no dweller.

<sup>12</sup> Who is a wise man that shall understand these things, and to whom the word of the mouth of the Lord shall be made, that he tell this? Why the earth perished, it is burnt as desert, for none is that passeth?

<sup>13</sup> And the Lord said, For they forsook my law, which I gave to them, and they heard not my voice, and they went not therein;

<sup>14</sup> and they went after the shrewd-ness of their heart, and after Baalim, which they learned of their fathers;

<sup>15</sup> therefore the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall feed this people with wormwood, and I shall give to them drink the water of gall.

<sup>16</sup> And I shall scatter them among heathen men, which they and their fathers knew not; and I shall send sword after them, till they be wasted.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Behold ye, and call ye women that wail, and come they; and send ye to those women that be wise, and haste they.

<sup>18</sup> Haste they, and take they wailing on you; your eyes bring down tears, and your eyelids flow with waters;

<sup>19</sup> for the voice of wailing is heard from Zion. How be we destroyed, and shamed greatly? for we have forsaken the land, for our tabernacles be forsaken.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore, women, hear ye the word of the Lord, and your ears take the word of his mouth; and teach ye your daughters wailing, and each woman teach her neighbour mourning.

<sup>21</sup> For why death ascended [or went up] by your windows, it entered into your houses, to lose little children withoutforth, and young men from the streets.

<sup>22</sup> Speak thou, The Lord saith these things, And the dead body of a man shall fall down as a turd on the face of the country, and as hay behind the back of the mower, and none there is that gathereth.

<sup>23</sup> The Lord saith these things, A wise man have not glory in his wisdom, and a strong man have not glory in his strength, and a rich man have not glory in his riches;

<sup>24</sup> but he that hath glory, have glory in this, to know and know me, for I am the Lord, that do mercy, and doom, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] in [the] earth. For why these things please me, saith the Lord.

<sup>25</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall visit on each man that hath prepuce uncircumcised;

<sup>26</sup> on Egypt, and on Judah, and on Edom, and on the sons of Ammon, and on Moab, and on all men that be clipped on long hair, and dwell in desert; for why all heathen men have prepuce, forsooth all the house of Israel be uncircumcised in heart.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> The house of Israel, hear ye the word which the Lord spake on you.

<sup>4</sup> He made it fair with silver and gold; with nails and hammers he joined it together, that it be not loosed [atwain].

<sup>5</sup> Idols be made in the likeness of a palm tree, and shall not speak; those [or they] shall be taken and be borne, for those [or they] may not go; there-fore do not ye dread those [or them], for they may neither do evil, neither well.

<sup>7</sup> A! thou king of folks, who shall not dread thee? for why honour is thine among all wise men of heathen men, and in all the realms of them none is like thee.

<sup>8</sup> They shall be proved unwise and fools together; the teaching of their vanity is a tree.

<sup>9</sup> Silver wrapped is brought from Tarshish, and gold from Uphaz; it is the work of a craftsman, and of the hand of a worker in metal; jacinth and purple be the clothing of them; all these things be the work of workmen.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth the Lord is very God; he is God living, and a king everlasting; the earth shall be moved together of his indignation, and heathen men shall not suffer the menacing of him [or his threatening].

<sup>11</sup> Therefore thus ye shall say to them, Gods that made not heaven and earth, perish from the earth, and from these things that be under heaven.

<sup>12</sup> He is God, that maketh the earth in his strength, that maketh ready the world in his wisdom, and stretcheth forth heavens by his prudence.

<sup>14</sup> Each man is made a fool of [his] knowing, each craftsman is shamed in a graven image; for why that that he welled together is false, and no spirit is in them.

<sup>15</sup> Those [or they] be vain, and a work worthy of scorn; those [or they] shall perish in the time of their visitation.

<sup>16</sup> The part of Jacob is not like these [or them], for he that formed all things is God of Jacob, and Israel is the rod of his heritage; the Lord of hosts is name to him.

<sup>18</sup> for the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall cast away far the dwellers of the land in this while; and I shall give tribulation to them, so that they be not found.

<sup>19</sup> Woe to me on my sorrow, my wound is full evil; forsooth I said, Plainly this is my sickness, and I shall bear it.

<sup>20</sup> My tabernacle is destroyed, all my ropes be broken; my sons went out from me, and be not; none is that shall stretch forth more my tent, and shall raise [up] my skins.

<sup>21</sup> For the shepherds did follily, and sought not the Lord; therefore they understood not, and all the flock of them is scattered.

<sup>22</sup> Lo! the voice of hearing cometh, and a great moving together from the land of the north, that it set the cities of Judah into wilderness, and a dwelling place of dragons.

<sup>23</sup> Lord, I know, that the way of a man is not of him, neither it is of a man that he go, and dress his steps.

<sup>24</sup> Lord, chastise thou me; never-theless in doom, and not in thy strong vengeance, lest peradventure thou drive me to nought.

<sup>25</sup> Pour out thine indignation on heathen men that knew not thee, and on provinces that called not thy name to help; for they ate Jacob, and devoured him, and wasted him, and destroyed the honour of him.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak ye to the men of Judah, and to the dwellers of Jerusalem;

<sup>3</sup> and thou shalt say to them, The Lord God of Israel saith these things, Cursed be the man that heareth not the words of this covenant,

<sup>4</sup> which I commanded to your fathers, in the day in which I led them out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace; and I said, Hear ye my voice, and do ye all things which I commanded to you, and ye shall be into a people to me, and I shall be into God to you;

<sup>5</sup> that I raise the oath which I swore to your fathers, that I should give to them a land flowing with milk and honey, as this day is. And I answered, and said, Amen, Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And the Lord said to me, Cry thou [out] all these words in the cities of Judah, and without[forth] Jerusalem, and say thou, Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do ye them;

<sup>7</sup> for I witnessing have witnessed to your fathers, in the day in which I led them out of the land of Egypt, unto this day; I rose early, and witnessed, and said, Hear ye my voice.

<sup>8</sup> And they heard not, neither bowed down their ear, but they went forth each man in the shrewdness of his evil heart; and I brought in on them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded that they should do, and they did not.

<sup>9</sup> And the Lord said to me, Swearing together is found in the men of Judah, and in the dwellers of Jerusalem;

<sup>10</sup> they turned again to the former wickednesses of their fathers, that would not hear my words; and therefore these men went after alien gods, for to serve them; the house of Israel and the house of Judah made void my covenant, which I made with the fathers of them.

<sup>11</sup> Wherefore the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall bring in on them evils, of which they shall not be able to go out; and they shall cry to me, and I shall not hear them.

<sup>12</sup> And the cities of Judah and the dwellers of Jerusalem shall go, and shall cry to them to which they offer sacrifices; and they shall not save them in the time of their torment.

<sup>13</sup> For thou, Judah, thy gods were by the number of thy cities, and thou settedest altars of shame, by the number of the ways of Jerusalem, altars to offer sacrifices to Baalim.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore do not thou pray for this people, and take thou not praising and prayer for them; for I shall not hear in the time of the cry of them to me, in the time of the torment of them.

<sup>15</sup> What is it, that my darling doeth many great trespasses in mine house? whether holy flesh shall do away from thee thy malice, in which thou hast glory?

<sup>16</sup> The Lord called thy name an olive tree, fair, full of fruit, shapely; at the voice of a great speech, fire burnt on high therein, and the bushes thereof be burnt.

<sup>17</sup> And the Lord of hosts that planted thee, spake evil on thee, for the evils of the house of Israel, and of the house of Judah, which they did to themselves, and offered to Baalim, to stir me to wrath.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth, Lord, thou showedest to me, and I knew; thou showedest to me the studies of them.

<sup>19</sup> And I am as a mild lamb, which is borne to slain sacrifice; and I knew not, that they thought counsels on me, and said, Send we a tree into the bread of him, and raze we him away from the land of livers, and his name be no more had in mind.

<sup>20</sup> But thou, Lord of hosts, that deemest justly [or rightwisely], and provest reins and hearts, see I thy vengeance of them; for to thee I showed my cause.

<sup>21</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things to the men of Anathoth, that seek thy life, and say, Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of the Lord, and thou shalt not die in our hands.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts saith these things, Lo! I shall visit on them; the young men of them shall die by sword, the sons of them, and the daughters of them, shall die for hunger;

<sup>23</sup> and no remnants, either children left, shall be of them; for I shall bring in evil on the men of Anathoth, the year of the visitation of them.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth, Lord, thou art just [or rightwise]; if I dispute with thee, nevertheless I shall speak just [or right] things to thee. Why hath the way of wicked men prosperity? It is well to all men that break the law, and do wickedly?

<sup>2</sup> Thou hast planted them, and they sent root; they increase, and make fruit; thou art nigh to the mouth of them, and far from the reins of them.

<sup>3</sup> And thou, Lord, hast known me, thou hast seen me, and hast proved mine heart with thee. Gather thou them together as a flock to slain sacrifice, and hallow thou them in the day of slaying.

<sup>4</sup> How long shall the earth mourn, and each herb of the field shall be dried, for the malice of them that dwell therein? A beast is wasted, and a bird, for they said, The Lord shall not see our last things.

<sup>5</sup> If thou travailest running with footmen, how shalt thou be able to strive with horses? but when thou art secure in the land of peace, what shalt thou do in the pride of Jordan?

<sup>6</sup> For why both thy brethren and the house of thy father, yea, they fought against thee, and cried with full voice after thee; believe thou not to them, when they speak goods to thee.

<sup>7</sup> I have left mine house, I have forsaken mine heritage; I gave my beloved soul into the hands of enemies thereof.

<sup>8</sup> Mine heritage is made as a lion in the wood to me; it gave voice against me, therefore I hated it.

<sup>10</sup> Many shepherds destroyed my vinery [or vineyard], defouled my part, gave my desirable portion into desert of wilderness;

<sup>11</sup> they setted it into scattering, and it mourned on me; all the land is desolate by desolation, for none is that again-thinketh in heart.

<sup>12</sup> All destroyers of the land came on all the ways of desert, for the sword of the Lord shall devour from the last part of the land unto the last part thereof; no peace is to all flesh.

<sup>13</sup> They sowed wheat, and reaped thorns; they took heritage, and it shall not profit to them. Ye shall be shamed of your fruits, for the wrath of the strong vengeance of the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord saith these things against all my worst neighbours, that touch the heritage which I parted to my people Israel, Lo! I shall draw them out of their land, and I shall draw the house of Judah out of the midst of them.

<sup>15</sup> And when I shall draw out those Jews, I shall turn again, and have mercy on them; and I shall lead them again, a man to his heritage, and a man into his land.

<sup>16</sup> And it shall be, if they that be taught learn the ways of my people, that they swear in my name, The Lord liveth, as they taught my people to swear in Baal, they shall be builded in the midst of my people.

<sup>17</sup> That if they hear not, I shall draw out that folk by drawing out and perdition, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things to me, Go, and take in possession to thee a linen breech-girdle; and thou shalt put it on thy loins, and thou shalt not bear it into water.

<sup>2</sup> And I took in possession a breech-girdle, by the word of the Lord; and I putted about my loins.

<sup>3</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me in the second time, and said,

<sup>4</sup> Take the breech-girdle, which thou haddest in possession, which is about thy loins; and rise thou, and go to Euphrates, and hide thou it there, in the hole of a stone.

<sup>5</sup> And I went, and hid it in Euphrates, as the Lord commanded to me.

<sup>6</sup> And it was done after full many days, the Lord said to me, Rise thou, and go to Euphrates, and take from thence the breech-girdle, which I commanded to thee, that thou shouldest hide it there.

<sup>7</sup> And I went to Euphrates, and digged out, and I took the breech-girdle from the place, where I had hid it; and lo! the breech-girdle was rotten, so that it was not able to any use.

<sup>8</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>9</sup> The Lord saith these things, So I shall make rotten the pride of Judah, and the much pride of Jerusalem,

<sup>10</sup> and this worst people, that will not hear my words, and go in the shrewdness of their heart; and they went after alien gods, to serve them, and to worship them; and they shall be as this breech-girdle, which is not able to any use.

<sup>11</sup> For as a breech-girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man, so I joined fast to me all the house of Israel, and all the house of Judah, saith the Lord, that they should be to me into a people, and into name, and into praising, and into glory; and they heard not.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore thou shalt say to them this word, The Lord God of Israel saith these things, Each pottle shall be filled of wine. And they shall say to thee, Whether we know not, that each pottle shall be filled of wine?

<sup>13</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall fill with drunkenness all the dwellers of this land, and the kings of the generation of David, that sit on his throne, and the priests, and prophets, and all the dwellers of Jerusalem.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall scatter them, a man from his brother, and the fathers and sons together, saith the Lord; I shall not spare, and I shall not grant, neither I shall do mercy, that I lose not them.

<sup>16</sup> Give ye glory to your Lord God, before that it wax dark, and before that your feet hurt at [the] dark hills; ye shall abide light, and he shall set [or put] it into the shadow of death, and into darkness.

<sup>18</sup> Say thou to the king, and to the lady, Be ye meeked, sit ye, for the crown of your glory shall go down from your head.

<sup>19</sup> The cities of the south be closed, and none is that openeth; all Judah is translated by perfect passing over, either going out of their land.

<sup>20</sup> Raise ye your eyes, and see ye, what men come from the north; where is the flock which is given to thee, thy noble sheep?

<sup>22</sup> That if thou sayest in thine heart, Why came these things to me? for the multitude of thy wickedness thy shamefuller things be showed, thy feet be defouled.

<sup>23</sup> If a man of Ethiopia may change his skin, either a leopard may change his diversities, and ye may do well, when ye have learned evil.

<sup>24</sup> And I shall sow them abroad, as stubble which is ravished, or taken away, of the wind in desert.

<sup>25</sup> This is thy lot, and the part of thy measure of me, saith the Lord; for thou forgettest me, and trustedest in a leasing.

<sup>26</sup> Wherefore and I made naked thine hips against thy face, and thy shame appeared,

<sup>27</sup> thine adulteries, and thine neighing, and the felony of thy fornication on little hills in the field; I saw thine abominations. Jerusalem, woe to thee, thou shalt not be cleansed after me till yet.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> The word of the Lord, that was made to Jeremy, of the words of dryness.

<sup>2</sup> Judah wailed, and the gates thereof fell down, and be made dark in [the] earth, and the cry of Jerusalem went up.

<sup>3</sup> Greater men sent their lesser men to water; they came to draw water, and they found no water; they brought again their vessels void; they were shamed and tormented, and they covered their heads,

<sup>4</sup> for [the] destroying of the land, for rain came not in the land. Earth-tillers were shamed, they covered their heads.

<sup>6</sup> and wild asses stood in rocks, and drew wind as dragons; their eyes failed, for none herb was.

<sup>7</sup> If our wickednesses answer to us, Lord, do thou for thy name, for our turnings away be many; we have sinned against thee.

<sup>8</sup> Thou abiding of Israel, the saviour thereof in the time of tribulation, why shalt thou be as a comeling in the land, and as a way-goer bowing [down] to dwell?

<sup>9</sup> why shalt thou be as a man of unstable dwelling, as a strong man that may not save? Forsooth, Lord, thou art in us, and thine holy name is called to help on us; forsake thou not us.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord saith these things to this people, that loved to stir his feet, and rested not, and pleased not the Lord; now he shall have mind on the wickednesses of them, and he shall visit the sins of them.

<sup>11</sup> And the Lord said to me, Do not thou pray for this people into good.

<sup>12</sup> When they shall fast, I shall not hear the prayers of them; and if they offer burnt sacrifices and slain sacrifices, I shall not receive them, for I shall waste them by sword and hunger and pestilence.

<sup>13</sup> And I said, A! A! A! Lord God, [the] prophets say to them, Ye shall not see sword, and hunger shall not be in you, but he shall give to you very peace in this place.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord said to me, The prophets prophesy falsely in my name; I sent not them, and I commanded not to them, neither I spake to them; they prophesy to you a false revelation, and a guileful divining, and the deceiving of their heart.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things of the prophets that prophesy in my name, which I sent not, and say, Sword and hunger shall not be in this land; Those prophets shall be wasted by sword and hunger.

<sup>16</sup> And the peoples, to which they prophesied, shall be cast forth in the ways of Jerusalem, for hunger and sword, and none there shall be, that shall bury them; they and the wives of them, the sons and the daughters of them; and I shall shed [or pour] out on them their evil.

<sup>17</sup> And thou shalt say to them this word, Mine eyes lead down a tear by night and day, and be it not still; for the virgin, the daughter of my people, is defouled by great defouling, with the worst wound greatly.

<sup>18</sup> If I go out to [the] fields, lo! men be slain with sword; and if I enter into the city, lo! men be made lean for hunger; also a prophet and a priest went into the land which they knew not.

<sup>19</sup> Whether thou casting away hast cast away Judah, either thy soul hath loathed Zion? why therefore hast thou smitten us, so that no health there is? We abided peace, and no good is; and we abided time of healing, and lo! troubling is.

<sup>20</sup> Lord, we have known our unfaithfulness, and the wickednesses of our fathers, for we have sinned to thee.

<sup>21</sup> Give thou not us into shame, for thy name, neither do thou despise to us; have thou mind on the seat of thy glory, make thou not void thy bond of peace with us.

<sup>22</sup> Whether in graven images of heathen men be they that rain, either heavens may give rains? whether thou art not our Lord God, whom we abided? For thou madest all these things.

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> And the Lord said to me, Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, my soul is not to this people; cast thou them out from my face, and go they out.

<sup>2</sup> That if they say to thee, Whither shall we go out? thou shalt say to them, The Lord saith these things, They that to death, to death, and they that to sword, to sword, and they that to hunger, to hunger, and they that to captivity, to captivity.

<sup>3</sup> I shall visit on them four species, saith the Lord; a sword to slaying, and dogs for to rend, and volatiles [or fowls] of the air, and beasts of the earth, to devour and to destroy.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall give them into fervor to all realms of earth, for Manasseh, the son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, on all things which he did in Jerusalem.

<sup>5</sup> For why who shall have mercy on thee, Jerusalem, either who shall be sorry for thee, either who shall go to pray for thy peace?

<sup>6</sup> Thou hast forsaken me, saith the Lord, thou hast gone aback; and I shall stretch forth mine hand on thee, and I shall slay thee; I travailed praying.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall scatter them with a winnowing instrument in the gates of [the] earth; I killed, and lost my people, and nevertheless they turned not again from their ways.

<sup>8</sup> The widows thereof be multiplied to me above the gravel of the sea; and I brought into them a destroyer in midday on the mother of a young man, I sent dread suddenly on [the] cities.

<sup>9</sup> She was sick that childed seven, her soul failed; the sun went down to her, when day was yet. She was shamed, and was ashamed; and I shall give the residue thereof into sword in the sight of their enemies, saith the Lord.

<sup>10</sup> My mother, woe to me; why engenderedest thou me a man of chiding, a man of discord in all the land? I lent not, neither any man lent to me; all men curse me,

<sup>11</sup> the Lord saith. No man believe to me, if thy remnants be not into good, if I run not to thee in the time of torment, and in the time of tribulation and of anguish, against the enemy.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall give freely thy riches and thy treasures into ravishing, for all thy sins, and in all thine ends.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall bring thine enemies from the land which thou knowest not; for fire is kindled in my strong vengeance, and it shall burn on you.

<sup>15</sup> Lord, thou knowest, have thou mind on me, and visit me, and deliver me from them that pursue me; do not thou take me in thy patience, know thou, that I suffered shame for thee.

<sup>16</sup> Thy words be found, and I ate those [or them]; and thy word was made to me into joy, and into gladness of mine heart; for thy name, Lord God of hosts, is called to help on me.

<sup>17</sup> I sat not in the council of players, and I had glory for the face of thine hand; I sat alone, for thou filledest me with bitterness.

<sup>18</sup> Why is my sorrow made ever-lasting, and my wound despaired, forsook to be cured? it is made to me, as a leasing of unfaithful waters.

<sup>19</sup> For this thing the Lord saith these things, If thou turnest, I shall turn thee, and thou shalt stand before my face; and if thou partest precious thing from vile thing, thou shalt be as my mouth; and they shall be turned to thee, and thou shalt not be turned to them.

<sup>20</sup> And I shall give thee into a brazen wall and strong to this people, and they shall fight against thee, and they shall not have the victory; for I am with thee, to save thee, and to deliver thee, saith the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall deliver thee from the hand of the worst men, and I shall again-buy thee from the hand of strong men.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou shalt not take a wife, and sons and daughters shall not be to thee in this place.

<sup>3</sup> For the Lord saith these things on sons and daughters, that be engendered in this place, and on the mothers of them, that engendered them, and on the fathers of them, of whose generation they be born in this land.

<sup>4</sup> They shall die by deaths of sicknesses, they shall not be bewailed, and they shall not be buried; they shall be into a dunghill on the face of [the] earth, and they shall be wasted by sword and hunger; and the carrion of them shall be into meat to the volatiles [or fowls] of heaven, and to [the] beasts of the earth.

<sup>5</sup> For the Lord saith these things, Enter thou not into an house of feast, neither go thou to bewail, neither comfort thou them; for I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the Lord, and mercy and merciful doings.

<sup>6</sup> And great and small shall die in this land; they shall not be buried, neither shall be bewailed; and they shall not cut themselves, neither bald-ness shall be made for them.

<sup>7</sup> And they shall not break bread among them to him that mourneth, to comfort on a dead man, and they shall not give to them drink of a cup, to comfort on their father and mother.

<sup>8</sup> And thou shalt not enter into the house of feast, that thou sit with them, and eat, and drink.

<sup>9</sup> For why the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall take away from this place, before your eyes, and in your days, the voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, the voice of the spouse, and the voice of spouses.

<sup>10</sup> And when thou shalt tell all these words to this people, and they shall say to thee, Why spake the Lord all this great evil on us? what is our wickedness, either what is our sin which we sinned to our Lord God?

<sup>11</sup> thou shalt say to them, For your fathers forsook me, saith the Lord, and went after alien gods, and served them, and worshipped them, and they forsook me, and kept not my law.

<sup>12</sup> But also ye wrought worse than your fathers; for lo! each man goeth after the shrewdness of his evil heart, that he hear not me.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall cast you out of this land, into the land which ye and your fathers know not; and ye shall serve there to alien gods day and night, which shall not give rest to you.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore lo! days come, saith the Lord, and it shall no more be said, The Lord liveth, that led the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

<sup>15</sup> but, The Lord liveth, that led [out] the sons of Israel from the land of the north, and from all lands to which I casted them out; and I shall lead them again into their land which I gave to the fathers of them.

<sup>16</sup> Lo! I shall send many fishers to them, saith the Lord, and they shall fish them; and after these things I shall send many hunters to them, and they shall hunt them from each mountain, and from each little hill, and from the caves of stones.

<sup>17</sup> For mine eyes be on all the ways of them; those ways be not hid from my face, and the wickedness of them was not privy from mine eyes.

<sup>18</sup> And I shall yield first the double wickednesses and [the] sins of them, for they defouled my land in the slain beasts of their idols, and filled mine heritage with their abominations.

<sup>19</sup> Lord, my strength, and my stal-worth[y] ness, and my refuge in the day of tribulation, heathen men shall come to thee from the farthest places of earth, and shall say, Verily our fathers held a leasing in possession, vanity that profited not to them.

<sup>20</sup> Whether a man shall make gods to himself? and those [or they] be no gods.

<sup>21</sup> Therefore lo! I shall show to them by this while, I shall show to them mine hand, and my strength; and they shall know, that the name to me is [the] Lord.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>1</sup> The sin of Judah is written with an iron pointel, in a nail of adamant; it is written on the breadth of the heart of them, and in the horns of the altars of them.

<sup>2</sup> When the sons of them bethink on their altars, and [maumet] woods, and on the trees full of boughs,

<sup>3</sup> making sacrifice in the field in high mountains, I shall give thy strength and all thy treasures into ravishing, thine high things for sins in all thine ends.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt be left alone from thine heritage which I gave to thee; and I shall make thee to serve thine enemies, in the land which thou knowest not; for thou hast kindled fire in my strong vengeance, it shall burn till into without end.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord saith these things, Cursed is the man that trusteth in man, and setteth [or putteth] flesh his arm, and his heart goeth away from the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> For he shall be as brooms in desert, and he shall not see, when good shall come; but he shall dwell in dryness in desert, in the land of saltness, and uninhabitable.

<sup>7</sup> Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and the Lord shall be his trust.

<sup>8</sup> And he shall be as a tree, which is planted over waters, which sendeth his roots to moisture; and it shall not dread, when heat shall come; and the leaf thereof shall be green, and it shall not be moved in the time of dryness, neither any time it shall fail to make fruit.

<sup>9</sup> The heart of man is shrewd, and unsearchable; who shall know it?

<sup>10</sup> I am the Lord seeking the heart, and proving the reins, either kidneys, and I give to each man after his way, and after the fruit of his findings.

<sup>11</sup> A partridge nourished those things which she breedeth not; he made riches, and not in doom; in the midst of his days he shall forsake them, and in his last time he shall be unwise.

<sup>12</sup> The seat of glory of highness was at the beginning the place of our hallowing, the abiding of Israel.

<sup>13</sup> Lord, all they that forsake thee, shall be shamed; they that go away from thee, shall be written in [the] earth, for they have forsaken the Lord, a vein of quick waters.

<sup>14</sup> Lord, heal me, and I shall be healed; make thou me safe, and I shall be safe; for thou art my praising.

<sup>15</sup> Lo! they say to me, Where is the word of the Lord? come it.

<sup>16</sup> And I am not troubled, pursuing [or following] thee shepherd, and I desired not the day of man, thou knowest. That that went out of my lips was rightful [or right] in thy sight.

<sup>17</sup> Be thou not to dread to me; thou art mine hope in the day of torment.

<sup>18</sup> Be they shamed, that pursue me, and be I not shamed; dread they, and dread not I; bring in on them a day of torment, and defoul thou them by double defouling.

<sup>19</sup> The Lord saith these things to me, Go thou, and stand in the gate of the sons of the people, by which the kings of Judah enter [in], and go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem.

<sup>20</sup> And thou shall say to them, Hear the word of the Lord, ye kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the dwellers of Jerusalem, that enter [in] by these gates.

<sup>22</sup> And do not ye cast burdens out of your houses in the day of sabbath, and ye shall not do any work; hallow ye the day of sabbath, as I commanded to your fathers.

<sup>23</sup> And they heard not, neither bowed down their ear, but they made hard their noll, that they should not hear me, and that they should not take chastising.

<sup>24</sup> And it shall be, if ye hear me, saith the Lord, that ye bear not in burdens by the gates of this city in the day of sabbath, and if ye hallow the day of sabbath, that ye do not work therein,

<sup>25</sup> kings and princes sitting on the seat of David shall enter [in] by the gates of this city, and ascending [or going] in chariots and horses; they, and the princes of them, the men of Judah, and the dwellers of Jerusalem; and this city shall be inhabited without end.

<sup>26</sup> And they shall come from the cities of Judah, and from the compass of Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from [the] field places, and from [the] hilly [or mountainous] places, and from the south, bearing burnt sacrifice, and slain sacrifice, and incense; and they shall bring offering into the house of the Lord.

<sup>27</sup> Forsooth if ye hear not me, that ye hallow the day of sabbath, and that ye bear not a burden, and that ye bring not in by the gates of Jerusalem in the day of sabbath, I shall kindle fire in the gates thereof; and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem, and it shall not be quenched.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Rise thou, and go down into the house of a potter, and there thou shalt hear my words.

<sup>3</sup> And I went down into the house of a potter, and lo! he made a work on a wheel.

<sup>4</sup> And the vessel was destroyed, which he made of clay with his hands; and he turned it, and made it another vessel, as it pleased in his eyes to make.

<sup>5</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>6</sup> Whether as this potter doeth, I may not do to you, the house of Israel? saith the Lord. Lo! as clay is in the hand of a potter; so ye, the house of Israel, be in mine hand.

<sup>7</sup> Suddenly I shall speak against a folk, and against a realm, that I draw out, and destroy, and lose [or scatter] it.

<sup>8</sup> If that folk doeth penance of his evil, which I spake against it, also I shall do penance on the evil, which I thought to do to it.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall speak suddenly of a folk, and of a realm, that I build, and plant it.

<sup>10</sup> If it doeth evil before mine eyes, that it hear not my voice, I shall do penance on the good which I spake, that I should do to it.

<sup>11</sup> Now therefore say thou to a man of Judah, and to the dweller of Jerusalem, and say, The Lord saith these things, Lo! I make evil against you, and I think a thought against you; each man turn again from his evil way, and dress ye your ways and your studies.

<sup>12</sup> Which said, We have despaired, for we shall go after our thoughts, and we shall do each man the shrewdness of his evil heart.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Ask ye heathen men, who heard such horrible things, which the virgin of Israel hath done greatly?

<sup>14</sup> Whether [the] snow of the Lebanon shall fail from the stone of the field? either cold waters breaking out, and floating down, may be taken away?

<sup>15</sup> For my people hath forgotten me, and they offered sacrifices in vain, and stumbled in their ways, and in the paths of the world, that they went by those [or them] in a way not trodden;

<sup>16</sup> that the land of them should be into desolation, and into an hissing everlasting; for why each that passeth by it, shall be astonied, and shall move his head.

<sup>17</sup> As a burning wind I shall scatter them before the enemy; I shall show to them the back and not the face, in the day of the perdition of them.

<sup>18</sup> And they said, Come ye, and think we thoughts against Jeremy; for why the law shall not perish from a priest, neither counsel shall perish from a wise man, neither word shall perish from a prophet; come ye, and smite we him with tongue, and take we none heed to all the words of him.

<sup>20</sup> Whether evil is yielded for good, for they have digged a pit to my soul; have thou mind, that I stood in thy sight, to speak good for them, and to turn away thine indignation from them.

<sup>21</sup> Therefore give thou the sons of them into hunger, and lead forth them into the hands of [the] sword; the wives of them be made without children, and be made widows, and the husbands of them be slain by death; the young men of them be pierced together by sword in battle.

<sup>22</sup> Cry be heard of the houses of them, for thou shalt bring suddenly a thief on them; for they digged a pit to take me, and hid snares to my feet.

<sup>23</sup> But thou, Lord, knowest all the counsel of them against me into death; do thou not mercy to the wickedness of them, and the sin of them be not done away from thy face; be they made falling down in thy sight, in the time of thy strong vengeance; use thou them to other thing than they were ordained.

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things, Go thou, and take an earthen pottle of a potter, [and] of the elder men of the people, and of the elder men of the priests.

<sup>2</sup> And go thou out to the valley of the sons of Hinnom, which is beside the entering of the earthen gate; and there thou shalt preach the words which I shall speak to thee;

<sup>3</sup> and thou shalt say, Kings of Judah, and the dwellers of Jerusalem, hear ye the word of the Lord. The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall bring in torment on this place, so that each man that heareth it, his ears tingle.

<sup>4</sup> For they have forsaken me, and made alien this place, and offered sacrifices to alien gods therein, which they, and the fathers of them, and the kings of Judah, knew not; and they filled this place with the blood of innocents,

<sup>5</sup> and builded high things to Baalim, to burn their sons in fire, into burnt sacrifice to Baalim; which things I commanded not, neither spake, neither those ascended [or went up] into mine heart.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore the Lord saith, Lo! days shall come, and this place shall no more be called Tophet, and the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of slaying.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall destroy the counsel of Judah and of Jerusalem in this place, and I shall destroy them by sword, in the sight of their enemies, and in the hand of men seeking the lives of them; and I shall give their dead bodies to be meat to the birds of the air, and to [the] beasts of earth.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall set this city into wondering, and into hissing; each that passeth by it, shall wonder, and hiss on all the vengeance thereof.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall feed them with the flesh of their sons, and with the flesh of their daughters; and each man shall eat the flesh of his friend in the besieging and anguish, in which the enemies of them, and they that seek the lives of them, shall enclose them altogether.

<sup>10</sup> And thou shalt all-break the pottle before the eyes of the men, that shall go with thee.

<sup>11</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord of hosts saith these things, So I shall all-break this people, and this city, as the vessel of a potter is all-broken, which may no more be restored; and they shall be buried in Tophet, for none other place is to bury.

<sup>12</sup> So I shall do to this place, saith the Lord, and to dwellers thereof, that I set this city as Tophet.

<sup>13</sup> And the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall be as the place of Tophet; all the unclean houses, in whose roofs they sacrificed to all the chivalry of heaven, and offered moist sacrifices to alien gods.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth Jeremy came from Tophet, whither the Lord had sent him for to prophesy; and he stood in the porch of the house of the Lord, and said to all the people,

<sup>15</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall bring in on this city, and on all the cities thereof, all the evils which I spake against it; for they made hard their noll, that they heard not my words.

CHAPTER 20

<sup>1</sup> And Pashur, the son of Immer, the priest, that was ordained prince in the house of the Lord, heard Jeremy prophesying these words.

<sup>2</sup> And Pashur smote Jeremy, the prophet, and sent him into the stocks, that were in the higher gate of Benjamin, in the house of the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> And when it was clear in the morrow, Pashur led Jeremy out of the stocks. And Jeremy said to him, The Lord called not Pashur thy name, but Dread on each side.

<sup>4</sup> For the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall give thee and all thy friends into dread, and they shall fall down by the sword of their enemies; and thine eyes shall see; and I shall give all Judah in the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall lead them over into Babylon, and he shall smite them with sword.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall give all the chattel [or substance] of this city, and all the travail thereof, and all the price; and I shall give all the treasures of the kings of Judah in the hand of their enemies; and they shall ravish them, and shall take, and lead [them] forth into Babylon.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth thou, Pashur, and all the dwellers of thine house, shall go into captivity; and thou shalt come into Babylon, and thou shalt die there; and thou shalt be buried there, thou and all thy friends, to which thou prophesiedest leasing.

<sup>7</sup> Lord, thou deceivedest me, and I am deceived; thou were stronger than I, and thou haddest the mastery; I am made into scorn all day. All men bemoock me,

<sup>8</sup> for now a while ago I spake, crying [out] wickedness, and I cried destroying. And the word of the Lord is made to me into shame, and into scorn all day.

<sup>9</sup> And I said, I shall not have mind on him, and I shall no more speak in his name. And the word of the Lord was made, as fire swelling in mine heart, and enclosed in my bones; and I failed, not suffering to bear.

<sup>10</sup> For I heard despisings of many men, and dread in compass, Pursue ye, and pursue we him, of all men that were peaceable to me, and keeping my side; if in any manner he be deceived, and we have the mastery against him, and get vengeance of him.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth the Lord as a strong warrior is with me, therefore they that pursue me shall fall, and they shall be feeble; and they shall be shamed greatly, for they understood not everlasting shame, that shall never be done away.

<sup>12</sup> And thou, Lord of hosts, the prover of a just [or rightwise] man, which seest the reins and [the] heart, I beseech, see I thy vengeance of them; for I have showed my cause to thee.

<sup>13</sup> Sing ye to the Lord, praise ye the Lord, for he delivered the soul of a poor man from the hand of evil men.

<sup>14</sup> Cursed be the day wherein I was born, the day wherein my mother childed me be not blessed.

<sup>15</sup> Cursed be the man, that told to my father, and said, A knave child is born to thee, and made him glad as with joy.

<sup>16</sup> That man be as the cities be, which the Lord destroyed, and it repented not him; [Be that man as be the cities, that the Lord turned upside-down, and it repented him not; hear he cry early, and yelling in midday time,]

<sup>17</sup> he that killed not me from the womb, hear cry early, and yelling in the time of midday; that my mother were [made] a sepulchre to me, and her womb were an everlasting conceiving. [that me he slew not from the privy womb; that made were to me my mother a sepulchre, and her privy womb conceiving everlasting.]

<sup>18</sup> Why went I out of the womb, that I should see travail and sorrow, and that my days shall be wasted in shame?

CHAPTER 21

<sup>1</sup> The word which was made of the Lord to Jeremy, when king Zedekiah sent to him Pashur, the son of Melchiah, and Zephaniah, the priest, the son of Maaseiah, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Ask thou the Lord for us, for Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, fighteth against us; if in hap the Lord do with us by all his marvels, and he go away from us.

<sup>3</sup> And Jeremy said to them, Thus ye shall say to Zedekiah,

<sup>4</sup> The Lord God of Israel saith these things, Lo! I shall turn the instruments of battle that be in your hands, and with which ye fight against the king of Babylon, and against Chaldees, that besiege you in the compass of [the] walls; and I shall gather those [or them] together in the midst of this city.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall overcome you in [a] hand stretched forth, and in [a] strong arm, and in strong vengeance, and in indignation, and in great wrath;

<sup>6</sup> and I shall smite the dwellers of this city, men and beasts shall die by great pestilence.

<sup>7</sup> And after these things, saith the Lord, I shall give Zedekiah, king of Judah, and his servants, and his people, and that be left in this city from pestilence, and sword, and hunger, in the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and in the hand of their enemies, and in the hand of men seeking the life of them; and he shall smite them by the sharpness of sword; and he shall not be bowed, neither shall spare, neither shall have mercy.

<sup>8</sup> And thou shalt say to this people, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I give before you the way of life, and the way of death.

<sup>9</sup> He that dwelleth in this city, shall die by sword, and hunger, and pestilence; but he that goeth out, and fleeth over to [the] Chaldees that besiege you, shall live, and his life shall be as a prey to him.

<sup>10</sup> For I have set my face on this city into evil, and not into good, saith the Lord; it shall be given in the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.

<sup>11</sup> And thou shall say to the house of the king of Judah, the house of David, Hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> The Lord saith these things, Deem ye early doom, and deliver ye him that is oppressed by violence from the hand of the false challenger; lest peradventure mine indignation go out as fire, and be kindled, and none be that quench, for the malice of your studies.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! I do to thee, dwelleress of the firm valley, and plain, saith the Lord, [ye] which say, Who shall smite us, and who shall enter into our houses?

<sup>14</sup> And I shall visit on you by the fruit of your studies, saith the Lord; and I shall kindle fire in the forest thereof, and it shall devour all things in the compass thereof.

CHAPTER 22

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things, Go thou down into the house of the king of Judah, and thou shalt speak there this word,

<sup>2</sup> and shalt say, Hear thou the word of the Lord, thou king of Judah, that sittest on the seat of David, thou, and thy servants, and thy people, that enter [in] by these gates.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord saith these things, Do ye doom, and rightfulness [or right-wiseness], and deliver ye him that is oppressed by violence from the hand of the false challenger; and do not ye make sorry, neither oppress ye wickedly a comeling, and a fatherless child, and a widow, and shed ye not out innocent blood in this place.

<sup>4</sup> For if ye doing do this word, kings of the kin of David sitting on his throne shall enter [in] by the gates of this house, and shall ascend or go upon chariots and horses, they, and the servants, and the people of them.

<sup>5</sup> That if ye hear not these words, I swore in myself, saith the Lord, that this house shall be into wilderness.

<sup>6</sup> For the Lord saith these things on the house of the king of Judah; Gilead, thou art to me the head of the Lebanon; credence be not given to me, if I set not thee a wilderness, cities unhabitable.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall hallow on thee a man slaying, and his arms; and they shall cut down thy chosen cedars, and shall cast down into fire.

<sup>8</sup> And many folks shall pass by this city, and each man shall say to his neighbour, Why did the Lord thus to this great city?

<sup>9</sup> And they shall answer, For they forsook the covenant of their Lord God, and worshipped alien gods, and served them.

<sup>10</sup> Do not ye bewEEP him that is dead, neither wail ye on him by weeping; bewail ye him that goeth out, for he shall no more turn again, neither he shall see the land of his birth.

<sup>11</sup> For the Lord saith these things to Shallum, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, that reigned for Josiah, his father, He that went out of this place, shall no more turn again hither;

<sup>12</sup> but in the place to which I have translated him, there he shall die, and he shall no more see this land.

<sup>13</sup> Woe to him that buildeth his house in unrightfulness [or unrightwise-ness], and his solars not in doom; he shall oppress his friend in vain, and he shall not yield his hire to him.

<sup>14</sup> Which saith, I shall build to me a large house, and wide solars; which openeth windows to himself, and maketh couples of cedar, and painteth with red colour.

<sup>15</sup> Whether thou shalt reign, for thou comparisonest thee to a cedar? whether thy father ate not, and drank, and did doom and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] then, when it was well to him?

<sup>16</sup> He deemed the cause of a poor man, and needy, into his good; whether not therefore for he knew me? saith the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth thine eyes and heart be to avarice, and to shed innocent blood, and to false challenge, and to the performing of evil work.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things to Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, They shall not bewail him, Woe brother! and woe sister! they shall not sound together to him, Woe lord! and woe noble man!

<sup>19</sup> He shall be buried with the burying of an ass, he shall be rotten, and cast forth without the gates of Jerusalem.

<sup>20</sup> Ascend [or Go] thou [up] on the Lebanon, and cry thou, and give thy voice in Bashan, and cry to them that pass forth, for all thy lovers be all-broken.

<sup>21</sup> I spake to thee in thy plenty, and thou saidest, I shall not hear; this is thy way from thy youth, for thou heardest not my voice.

<sup>23</sup> and then thou that sittest in the Lebanon, and makest nest in cedars, shalt be shamed, and ashamed of all thy malice. How wailedest thou, when sorrows were come to thee, as the sorrow of a woman travailing of child?

<sup>24</sup> I live, saith the Lord, for thou Jeconiah*, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, were a ring in my right hand, from thence I shall draw away him.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall give thee in the hand of them that seek thy life, and in the hand of them whose face thou darest, and in the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and in the hand of Chaldees.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall send thee, and thy mother that engendered thee, into an alien land, in which ye were not born, and there ye shall die;

<sup>27</sup> and they shall not turn again into the land, to which they raise their soul, that they turn again thither.

<sup>29</sup> Earth, earth, earth, hear thou the word of the Lord.

<sup>30</sup> The Lord saith these things, Write thou this man barren, a man that shall not have prosperity in his days; for of his seed shall be no man, that shall sit on the seat of David, and have power further in Judah.

CHAPTER 23

<sup>2</sup> Therefore the Lord God of Israel saith these things to the shepherds that feed my people, Ye have scattered my flock, and have cast them out, and have not visited them; lo! I shall visit on you the malice of your studies, saith the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> And I shall gather together the remnants of my flock from all lands, to which I shall cast them out thither; and I shall turn them to their fields, and they shall increase, and shall be multiplied.

---

* CHAPTER 22:24 Also known as Coniah and Jehoiachin.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall raise up shepherds on them, and they shall feed them; they shall no more dread, and shall not be afeared; and none shall be sought of the number, saith the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall raise a just [or rightwise] burgeoning, either seed, to David; and he shall reign a king, and he shall be wise, and he shall make doom and rightfulness [or rightwiseness] in earth.

<sup>6</sup> In those days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell trustily; and this is the name which they shall call him, The Lord our rightful [or Our rightwise Lord].

<sup>7</sup> For this thing lo! days come, saith the Lord, and they shall no more say, The Lord liveth, that led the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt;

<sup>8</sup> but, The Lord liveth, that led out, and brought the seed of the house of Israel from the land of the north, and from all lands to which I had cast them out thither; and they shall dwell in their [own] land.

<sup>9</sup> To the prophets; Mine heart is contrite, either all-broken for sorrow, in the midst of me, all my bones trembled together; I am made as a man drunken, and as a man wet of wine, of the face of the Lord, and of the face of the holy words of him;

<sup>10</sup> for the land is filled with adulterers. For the earth mourned of the face of cursing; the fields of desert be made dry, the course of them is made evil, and their strength is unlike.

<sup>11</sup> For why the prophet and the priest be defouled; and in mine house, saith the Lord, I found the evil of them.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore the way of them shall be as slidery thing in darkneses, for they shall be hurtled, either shoved, and shall fall down therein; for I shall bring on them evils, the year of [the] visitation of them, saith the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> And in the prophets of Samaria I saw fondness [or folly], and they prophesied in Baal, and deceived my people Israel.

<sup>14</sup> And in the prophets of Jerusalem I saw, likeness, adultery, and the way of leasing; and they comforted the hands of the worst men, that each man should not convert from his malice; all they be made as Sodom to me, and all the dwellers thereof be made as Gomorrah.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts saith these things to the prophets, Lo! I shall feed them with wormwood, and I shall give drink to them with gall; for why defouling is gone out of the prophets of Jerusalem on all the land.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Do not ye hear the words of [the] prophets, that prophesy to you, and deceive you; they speak the vision of their heart, not of the mouth of the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> They say to them that blaspheme me, The Lord spake, Peace shall be to you; and they said to each man that goeth in the shrewdness of his heart, Evil shall not come [up] on you.

<sup>18</sup> For why who is present in the counsel of the Lord, and saw, and heard his word? who beheld, and heard the word of him?

<sup>19</sup> Lo! the whirlwind of the Lord's indignation shall go out, and tempest breaking [out] shall come [up] on the head of wicked men.

<sup>20</sup> The strong vengeance of the Lord shall not turn again, till that he do, and till that he [ful] fill the thought of his heart. In the last days ye shall understand the counsel of him.

<sup>21</sup> I sent not the prophets, and they ran; I spake not to them, and they prophesied.

<sup>22</sup> If they had stood in my counsel, and had made known my words to my people, forsooth I had turned them away from their evil way, and from their worst thoughts.

<sup>23</sup> Guessest thou, whether I am God of nigh, saith the Lord, and not God afar?

<sup>24</sup> A man shall not be privy in hid places, and I shall not see him, saith the Lord. Whether I fill not heaven and earth? saith the Lord.

<sup>25</sup> I heard what things the prophets said, prophesying leasing in my name, and saying, I dreamed dreams.

<sup>26</sup> How long is this thing in the heart of prophets, prophesying leasing, and prophesying the deceit of their heart?

<sup>27</sup> Which will make, that my people forget my name for the dreams of them, which each man telleth to his neighbour; as the fathers of them forgat my name for Baal.

<sup>28</sup> A prophet that hath a dream, tell a dream; and he that hath my word, speak verily my word. What is with [the] chaffs to the wheat? saith the Lord.

<sup>29</sup> Whether my words be not as fire burning, saith the Lord, and as an hammer all-breaking a stone?

<sup>30</sup> Therefore lo! I am ready to the prophets, saith the Lord, that steal my words, each man from his neighbour.

<sup>31</sup> Lo! I to the prophets, saith the Lord, that take their tongues, and say, The Lord saith.

<sup>32</sup> Lo! I to the prophets, dreaming leasing, saith the Lord; which told them, and deceived my people in their leasing, and in their miracles, when I had not sent them, neither had commanded to them; which profited nothing to this people, saith the Lord.

<sup>33</sup> Therefore if this people, either prophet, either priest, asketh thee, and saith, What is the burden of the Lord? thou shalt say to them, Ye be the burden, for I shall cast you away, saith the Lord;

<sup>34</sup> and a prophet, and a priest, and the people, that saith, The burden of the Lord, I shall visit on that man, and on his house.

<sup>35</sup> Ye shall say these things, each man to his neighbour, and to his brother, What answered the Lord? and, What spake the Lord?

<sup>36</sup> For the burden of the Lord shall no more be remembered, and the word of each man shall be a burden to him; and ye have perverted the words of [the] living God, of the Lord of hosts, your God.

<sup>37</sup> Thou shalt say these things to the prophet, What answered the Lord to thee? and, What spake the Lord?

<sup>38</sup> Forsooth if ye say, The burden of the Lord, for this thing the Lord saith these things, For ye said this word, The burden of the Lord, and I sent to you, and I said, Do not ye say, The burden of the Lord;

<sup>39</sup> therefore lo! I shall take you away, and shall bear, and I shall forsake you, and the city which I gave to you, and to your fathers, from my face.

<sup>40</sup> And I shall give you into everlasting shame, and into everlasting scandal, that shall never be done away by forgetting.

CHAPTER 24

<sup>1</sup> The Lord showed to me, and lo! two panniers full of figs were set before the temple of the Lord, after that Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, translated Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, and the princes of him, and a subtle craftsman, and a goldsmith, from Jerusalem, and brought them into Babylon.

<sup>2</sup> And one pannier had full good figs, as figs of the first time be wont to be; and one pannier had full evil figs, that might not be eaten, for those [or they] were evil figs.

<sup>3</sup> And the Lord said to me, Jeremy, what thing seest thou? And I said, Figs, good figs, full good; and evil figs, full evil, that may not be eaten, for those [or they] be evil figs.

<sup>4</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>5</sup> The Lord God of Israel saith these things, As these figs be good, so I shall know the transmigration of Judah, which I sent out from this place into the land of Chaldees, into good.

<sup>6</sup> And I shall set [or put] mine eyes on them to please, and I shall bring them again into this land; and I shall build them, and I shall not destroy them; and I shall plant them, and I shall not draw up by the root.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall give to them an heart, that they know me, for I am the Lord; and they shall be into a people to me, and I shall be into God to them, for they shall turn again to me in all their heart.

<sup>8</sup> And as the worst figs be, that may not be eaten, for those [or they] be evil figs, the Lord saith these things, So I shall give Zedekiah, the king of Judah, and the princes of him, and other men of Jerusalem, that dwell in this city, and that dwell in the land of Egypt.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall give them into travailing and torment in all realms of earth, into reproof, and into parable, and into a proverb, and into cursing, in all places to which I casted them out.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall send in them sword, and hunger, and pestilence, till they be wasted from the land which I gave to them, and to the fathers of them.

CHAPTER 25

<sup>1</sup> The word of the Lord, that was made to Jeremy, of all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, after that Jeconiah was translated into Babylon; that is the first year of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon;

<sup>2</sup> which word Jeremy, the prophet, spake to all the people of Judah, and to all the dwellers of Jerusalem, and said,

<sup>3</sup> From the thirteenth year of the realm of Josiah, the son of Amon, the king of Judah, unto this day, this is the three and twentieth year, the word of the Lord was made to me; and I spake to you, and I rose by night and spake, and ye heard not.

<sup>4</sup> And the Lord sent to you all his servants prophets, and rose full early, and sent, and ye heard not, neither ye bowed [in] your ears, for to hear;

<sup>5</sup> when he said, Turn ye again, each man from his evil way, and from your worst thoughts, and ye shall dwell in the land which the Lord gave to you, and to your fathers, from the world and till into the world.

<sup>6</sup> And do not ye go after alien gods, that ye serve them, and worship them, neither stir ye me to wrath-fulness [or to wrath], in the works of your hands, and I shall not torment you.

<sup>7</sup> And ye heard not me, saith the Lord, that ye stirred me to wrathful-ness [or to wrath] in the works of your hands, into your [own] evil.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts saith these things, For that that ye heard not my words,

<sup>9</sup> lo! I shall send, and take all the kindreds of the north, saith the Lord, and Nebuchadnezzar, my servant, the king of Babylon; and I shall bring them on this land, and on the dwellers thereof, and on all nations, that be in the compass thereof; and I shall slay them, and I shall set them into wondering, and into hissing, and into everlasting wildernesses.

<sup>11</sup> And all the land thereof shall be into wilderness, and into wondering; and all these folks shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years.

<sup>12</sup> And when seventy years be [ful] filled, I shall visit on the king of Babylon, and on that folk, the wicked-ness of them, saith the Lord, and on the land of Chaldees, and I shall set [or put] it into everlasting wildernesses.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall bring on that land all my words which I spake against it, all thing that is written in this book; whatever things Jeremy prophesied against all folks;

<sup>14</sup> for they served to them, when they were many folks, and great kings; and I shall yield to them after the works of them, and after the deeds of their hands.

<sup>15</sup> For the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith thus, Take thou the cup of wine of this strong vengeance from mine hand, and thou shall pour out drink thereof to all heathen men, to which I shall send thee.

<sup>16</sup> And they shall drink, and shall be troubled [or disturbed], and shall be mad, of the face of sword, which I shall send among them.

<sup>17</sup> And I took the cup from the hand of the Lord, and I poured out drink to all folks, to which the Lord sent me;

<sup>18</sup> to Jerusalem, and to all the cities of Judah, and to the kings thereof, and to the princes thereof; that I should give them into wilderness, and into wondering, and into hissing, and into cursing, as this day is;

<sup>19</sup> to Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and to his servants, and to his princes, and to all his people;

<sup>20</sup> and to all men generally, to all the kings of the land Uz, and to all the kings of the land of Philistines, and to Ashkelon, and to Azzah, and to Ekron, and to the residues of Ashdod;

<sup>21</sup> to Idumea, and to Moab, and to the sons of Ammon;

<sup>22</sup> and to all the kings of Tyre, and to all the kings of Sidon, and to the kings of the land of isles that be beyond the sea;

<sup>23</sup> and to Dedan, and Tema, and Buz, and to all men that be clipped on the long hair;

<sup>24</sup> and to all the kings of Arabia, and to all the kings of the west, that dwell in desert;

<sup>25</sup> and to all the kings of Zimri, and to all the kings of Elam, and to all the kings of Medes;

<sup>26</sup> and to all the kings of the north, of nigh and of far, to each man against his brother; and to all the realms of earth, that be on the face thereof; and the king of Sheshach* shall drink after them.

<sup>27</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Drink ye, and be ye drunken, and spew ye, and fall ye down, and do not ye rise from the face of [the] sword which I shall send among you.

<sup>28</sup> And when they will not take the cup from thine hand, that they drink, thou shalt say to them, The Lord of hosts saith these things, Ye drinking shall drink;

<sup>29</sup> for lo! in the city in which my name is called to help, I begin to torment, and shall ye as innocents be without pain? ye shall not be without pain, for I call sword on all the dwellers of earth, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>30</sup> And thou shalt prophesy to them all these words, and thou shalt say to them, The Lord shall roar from on high, and from his holy dwelling place he shall give his voice; he roaring shall roar on his fairness; a merry song, as of men treading in pressers [or in wine presses], shall be sung against all [the] dwellers of earth.

<sup>32</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Lo! torment shall go out from folk into folk, and a great whirlwind shall go out from the ends of [the] earth.

---

* CHAPTER 25:26 Sheshach is another name for Babylon.

<sup>33</sup> And the slain men of the Lord shall be in that day from the end of the earth unto the end thereof; they shall not be bewailed, neither shall be gathered together, neither shall be buried; they shall lie into a dunghill on the face of [the] earth.

<sup>37</sup> And the fields of peace were stilled, for the face of [the] wrath of the strong vengeance of the Lord.

<sup>38</sup> He as a lion hath forsaken his tabernacle, for the land of them is made into desolation, of the face of wrath of the culver, and of the face of wrath of the strong vengeance of the Lord.

CHAPTER 26

<sup>1</sup> In the beginning of the realm of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word was made of the Lord, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord said these things, Stand thou in the foreyard of the house of the Lord, and thou shalt speak to all the cities of Judah, from which they come for to worship in the house of the Lord, all the words which I command to thee, that thou speak to them; do not thou withdraw a word;

<sup>3</sup> if peradventure they hear, and be converted, each man from his evil way, and it repent me of the evil, which I thought to do to them, for the malices of their studies.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord saith these things, If ye hear not me, that ye go in my law which I gave to you,

<sup>5</sup> that ye hear the words of my servants, prophets, which I rising by night, and dressing, sent to you, and ye heard not;

<sup>6</sup> I shall give this house as Shiloh, and I shall give this city into cursing to all folks of earth.

<sup>7</sup> And the priests, and prophets, and all the people heard Jeremy speaking these words in the house of the Lord.

<sup>8</sup> And when Jeremy had [ful] filled speaking all things, which the Lord had commanded to him, that he should speak to all the people, the priests, and [the] prophets, and all the people took him, and said, Die he by death;

<sup>9</sup> why prophesied he in the name of the Lord, and said, This house shall be as Shiloh, and this city shall be desolate, for no dweller there is? And all the people was gathered together against Jeremy, in the house of the Lord.

<sup>10</sup> And the princes of Judah heard all these words; and they ascended [or went up] from the king's house into the house of the Lord, and sat in the entering [or the entry] of the new gate of the house of the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> And the priests and [the] prophets spake to the princes, and to all the people, and said, Doom of death is to this man, for he prophesied against this city, as ye heard with your ears.

<sup>12</sup> And Jeremy said to all the princes, and to all the people, saying, The Lord sent me, that I should prophesy to this house, and to this city, all the words which ye heard.

<sup>13</sup> Now therefore make ye good your ways, and your studies, and hear ye the voice of your Lord God; and it shall repent the Lord of the evil which he spake against you.

<sup>14</sup> Lo! forsooth I am in your hands; do ye to me, as it is good and rightful [or right] before your eyes.

<sup>15</sup> Nevertheless know ye, and [well] know, that if ye slay me, ye shall betray innocent blood against yourselves, and against this city, and the dwellers thereof; for in truth the Lord sent me to you, that I should speak in your ears all these words.

<sup>16</sup> And the princes and all the people said to the priests and prophets, Doom of death is not to this man; for he spake to us in the name of our Lord God.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore men of the elder men of the land rose up, and said to all the company of the people, and spake,

<sup>18</sup> Micah of Moresheth was a prophet in the days of Hezekiah, king of Judah; and he said to all the people of Judah, saying, The Lord of hosts saith these things, Zion shall be eared as a field, and Jerusalem shall be into an heap of stones, and the hill of the house of the Lord shall be into high things of woods.

<sup>19</sup> Whether Hezekiah, king of Judah, and all Judah condemned him by death? Whether they dreaded not the Lord, and besought the face of the Lord? and it repented the Lord of the evil which he spake against them. Therefore do we not great evil against our souls.

<sup>20</sup> Also Urijah, the son of Shemaiah, of Kiriathjearim, was a man prophesying in the name of the Lord; and he prophesied against this city, and against this land, by all the words of Jeremy.

<sup>21</sup> And king Jehoiakim, and all the mighty men, and princes of them, heard these words; and the king sought to slay him; and Urijah heard, and dreaded, and he fled, and entered into Egypt.

<sup>22</sup> And king Jehoiakim sent men into Egypt, Elnathan, the son of Achbor, and men with him, into Egypt;

<sup>23</sup> and they led Urijah out of Egypt, and brought him to king Jehoiakim; and the king killed him with sword, and casted forth his carrion in the sepulchres of the common people un noble.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore the hand of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, was with Jeremy, that he was not betaken into the hands of the people, and that it killed not him.

CHAPTER 27

<sup>1</sup> In the beginning of the realm of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord saith these things to me, Make thou to thee bonds and chains, and thou shalt put them in thy neck;

<sup>3</sup> and thou shalt send those [or them] to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the sons of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon, by the hand of [the] messengers that came to Jerusalem, and to Zedekiah, king of Judah.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt command to them, that they speak to their lords, The Lord of hosts, God of Israel saith these things, Ye shall say these things to your lords,

<sup>5</sup> I made earth, and man, and beasts that be on the face of all earth, in my great strength, and in mine arm holden forth; and I gave it to him that pleased before mine eyes.

<sup>6</sup> And now therefore I gave all these lands in the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, my servant, the king of Babylon; furthermore and I gave to him the beasts of the field, that they serve him.

<sup>7</sup> And all folks shall serve him, and his son, and the son of his son, till the time of his land and of him come; and many folks and great kings shall serve him.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth the folk and realm that serveth not Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and whoever boweth not his neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, I shall visit on that folk in sword, and hunger, and pestilence, saith the Lord, till I waste them in his hand.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore do not ye hear your prophets, and false diviners, and dreamers, and diviners by chittering and flying of birds, and witches, that say to you, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon;

<sup>10</sup> for they prophesy a leasing to you, that they make you far from your land, and cast out you [for cast you out], and ye perish.

<sup>11</sup> Certainly the folk that maketh subject their noll under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serveth him, I shall leave, either deliver, it in his land, saith the Lord; and it shall till that land, and shall dwell therein.

<sup>12</sup> And I spake by all these words to Zedekiah, king of Judah, and I said, Make ye subject your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve ye him, and his people, and ye shall live.

<sup>13</sup> Why shall ye die, thou and thy people, by sword, and hunger, and pestilence, as the Lord spake to the folk, that would not serve to the king of Babylon?

<sup>14</sup> Do not ye hear the words of prophets saying to you, Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon; for they speak leasing to you,

<sup>15</sup> for I sent not them, saith the Lord; and they prophesy falsely in my name, that they cast out you [for throw you out], and that ye perish, both ye and the prophets that prophesy to you.

<sup>16</sup> And I spake to the priests, and to this people, and I said, The Lord God saith these things, Do not ye hear the words of your prophets, that prophesy to you, and say, Lo! the vessels of the Lord shall turn again now soon from Babylon; for they prophesy a leasing to you.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore do not ye hear them, but serve ye the king of Babylon, that ye live; why is this city given into wilderness?

<sup>18</sup> And if they be prophets, and if the word of God is in them, run they to the Lord of hosts, that the vessels, which were left in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem, come not into Babylon.

<sup>19</sup> For the Lord of hosts saith these things to the pillars, and to the sea, that is, a great washing vessel, and to the foundations, and to the remnants of [the] vessels, that were left in this city,

<sup>20</sup> which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, took not, when he translated Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, from Jerusalem into Babylon, and all the principal men of Judah and of Jerusalem.

<sup>21</sup> For the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things to the vessels that be left in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem, <sup>22</sup> They shall be translated, either led over, into Babylon, and shall be there unto the day of their visitation, saith the Lord; and I shall make those [or them] to be brought, and to be restored in this place.

CHAPTER 28

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in that year, in the beginning of the realm of Zedekiah, king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, Hananiah, the son of Azur, a prophet of Gibeon, said to me in the house of the Lord, before the priests, and all the people, saying,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, I have all-broken the yoke of the king of Babylon.

<sup>3</sup> Yet two years of days there be, and I shall make to be brought again to this place all the vessels of the Lord, which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, took from this place, and translated them into Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall turn to this place, saith the Lord, Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, and all the passing over of Judah, that entered into Babylon; for I shall all-break the yoke of the king of Babylon.

<sup>5</sup> And Jeremy, the prophet, said to Hananiah, the prophet, before the eyes of priests, and before the eyes of all the people that stood in the house of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And Jeremy, the prophet, said to Hananiah, Amen! so do the Lord; the Lord raise thy words which thou prophesiedest, that the vessels be brought again into the house of the Lord, and all the passing over from Babylon, to this place.

<sup>7</sup> Nevertheless hear thou this word, which I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people.

<sup>8</sup> Prophets that were before me, and before thee, from the beginning, and prophesied on many lands, and on many realms, of battle, and of torment, and of hunger.

<sup>9</sup> The prophet that prophesied peace, when his word cometh, shall be known the prophet whom the Lord sent in truth.

<sup>10</sup> And Hananiah, the prophet, took the chain from the neck of Jeremy, the prophet, and brake it.

<sup>11</sup> And Hananiah, the prophet, spake in the sight of all the people, saying, The Lord saith these things, So I shall break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, after two years of days, from the neck of all folks. And Jeremy, the prophet, went into his way.

<sup>12</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, after that Hananiah, the prophet, brake the chain from the neck of Jeremy; and the Lord said,

<sup>13</sup> Go thou, and say to Hananiah, The Lord saith these things, Thou hast all-broken the chains of wood, and thou shalt make iron chains for them.

<sup>14</sup> For the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, I have set an iron yoke on the neck of all these folks, that they serve Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and they shall serve him; furthermore and I gave to him the beasts of [the] earth.

<sup>15</sup> And Jeremy, the prophet, said to Hananiah, the prophet, Hananiah, hear thou; the Lord sent not thee, and thou madest this people for to trust in leasing.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall send thee out from the face of [the] earth; in this year thou shalt die, for thou spakest against the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> And Hananiah, the prophet, died in that year, in the seventh month.

CHAPTER 29

<sup>1</sup> And these be the words of the book, which Jeremy, the prophet, sent from Jerusalem to the residues of [the] elder men of [the] passing over, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had led over from Jerusalem into Babylon,

<sup>2</sup> after that Jeconiah, the king, went out, and the lady, and the honest servants and chaste, and the princes of Judah went out of Jerusalem, and a subtle craftsman, and a goldsmith of Jerusalem,

<sup>3</sup> in the hand of Elasah, son of Shaphan, and of Gemariah, the son of Hilkiah, which Zedekiah, king of Judah, sent to Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, into Babylon. And Jeremy said,

<sup>4</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things to all the passing over, which I translated from Jerusalem into Babylon,

<sup>5</sup> Build ye houses, and inhabit, and plant ye orchards, and eat ye [the] fruit of them;

<sup>6</sup> take ye wives, and engender ye sons and daughters, and give ye wives to your sons, and give ye your daughters to husbands, and bear they sons and daughters; and be ye multiplied there, and do not ye be few in number.

<sup>7</sup> And seek ye [the] peace of the cities, to which I made you to pass over; and pray ye the Lord for it, for in the peace thereof shall be peace to you.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Your prophets, that be in the midst of you, and your diviners, deceive you not; and take ye none heed to your dreams, which ye dream;

<sup>9</sup> for they prophesy falsely to you in my name, and I sent not them, saith the Lord.

<sup>10</sup> For the Lord saith these things, When seventy years begin to be [ful] filled in Babylon, I shall visit you, and I shall raise on you my good word, and I shall bring you again to this place.

<sup>11</sup> For I know the thoughts which I think on you, saith the Lord, the thoughts of peace, and not of torment, that I give to you an end and patience.

<sup>12</sup> And ye shall call me to help, and ye shall go, and shall worship me, and I shall hear you;

<sup>13</sup> ye shall seek me, and ye shall find, when ye seek me in all your heart.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall be found of you, saith the Lord, and I shall bring again your captivity, and I shall gather you from all folks, and from all places, to which I casted out you [or put you out], saith the Lord; and I shall make you to turn again from the place, to which I made you to pass over.

<sup>15</sup> For ye said, The Lord shall raise prophets to us in Babylon.

<sup>16</sup> For the Lord saith these things to the king, that sitteth on the seat of David, and to all the people, dweller of this city, to your brethren, that went not out with you into the passing over,

<sup>17</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Lo! I shall send among them sword, and hunger, and pestilence; and I shall set them as evil figs, that may not be eaten, for those be full evil [or they be worst].

<sup>18</sup> And I shall pursue them in sword, and in hunger, and in pestilence; and I shall give them into travailing in all realms of earth, into cursing, and into wondering, and into scorning, and into shame to all folks, to which I casted [or cast] them out.

<sup>19</sup> For they heard not my words, saith the Lord, which I sent to them by my servants, prophets, and rose by night, and sent, and ye heard not, saith the Lord.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore all the passing over, which I sent out from Jerusalem into Babylon, hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things to Ahab, the son of Kolaiah, and to Zedekiah, the son of Maaseiah, that prophesy to you leasing in my name, Lo! I shall betake them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and he shall smite them before your eyes.

<sup>22</sup> And cursing shall be taken of them to all the passing over of Judah, which is in Babylon, of men saying, The Lord set [or put] thee as Zedekiah, and as Ahab, which the king of Babylon fried in fire, <sup>23</sup> for they did folly in Israel, and did adultery on the wives of their friends; and they spake a word falsely in my name, which I commanded not to them; I am judge and witness, saith the Lord.

<sup>25</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, For that that thou sentest books in my name to all the people, which is in Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah, the son of Maaseiah, the priest, and to all the priests, and saidest,

<sup>26</sup> The Lord gave thee priest for Jehoiada, the priest, that thou be duke in the house of the Lord on each man that is travailed of the fiend, and prophesying, that thou send him into stocks, and into prison.

<sup>27</sup> And now why blamest thou not Jeremy of Anathoth, that prophesieth to you?

<sup>28</sup> For on this thing he sent to us into Babylon, and said, It is long; build ye houses, and inhabit, and plant ye orchards, and eat ye the fruit of them.

<sup>29</sup> Therefore Zephaniah, the priest, read this book in the ears of Jeremy, the prophet.

<sup>30</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>31</sup> Send thou to all the passing over, and say, The Lord saith these things to Shemaiah the Nehelamite, For that that Shemaiah prophesied to you, and I sent not him, and he made you to trust in a leasing;

<sup>32</sup> therefore the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall visit on Shemaiah the Nehelamite, and on his seed; and no man sitting in the midst of this people shall be to him; and he shall not see the good, which I shall do to my people, saith the Lord, for he spake trespassing against the Lord.

CHAPTER 30

<sup>1</sup> This is the word, that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord God of Israel saith these things, and speaketh, Write to thee in a book, all these words which I spake to thee.

<sup>3</sup> For lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall turn the turning of my people Israel and Judah, saith the Lord; and I shall turn them to the land which I gave to the fathers of them, and they shall have it in possession.

<sup>4</sup> And these be the words, which the Lord spake to Israel, and to Judah, <sup>5</sup> For the Lord saith these things, We heard a word of dread; inward dread is, and peace is not.

<sup>6</sup> Ask ye, and see, if a male beareth child; why therefore saw I the hand of each man on his loins, as of a woman travailing of child, and all faces be turned into yellow colour?

<sup>7</sup> Woe! for that day is great, neither any is like it; and it is a time of tribulation to Jacob, and of him [he] shall be saved.

<sup>8</sup> And it shall be, in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, I shall all-break the yoke of him from thy neck, and I shall break his bonds; and aliens shall no more be lords of it,

<sup>9</sup> but they shall serve to their Lord God, and to David, their king, whom I shall raise for them.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore, Jacob, my servant, dread thou not, saith the Lord, and Israel, dread thou not; for lo! I shall save thee from a far land, and thy seed from the land of the captivity of them. And Jacob shall turn again, and shall rest, and shall flow with all goods; and none shall be whom he shall dread.

<sup>11</sup> For I am with thee, saith the Lord, for to save thee. For I shall make [full] ending in all folks, in which I scattered thee; soothly I shall not make thee into [full] ending, but I shall chastise thee in doom, that thou be not seen to thee to be guiltless.

<sup>13</sup> None is, that deemeth thy doom to bind together; the profit of healings is not to thee.

<sup>15</sup> What criest thou on thy breaking? thy sorrow is uncurable; for the multitude of thy wickedness, and for thine hard sins, I have done these things to thee.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore all that eat thee, shall be devoured, and all thine enemies shall be led into captivity; and they that destroy thee, shall be destroyed, and I shall give all thy robbers into raven.

<sup>17</sup> For I shall heal perfectly thy wound, and I shall make thee whole of thy wounds, saith the Lord; for thou, Zion, they called thee Cast out; this is it that had no seeker.

<sup>18</sup> The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall turn the turning of the tabernacles of Jacob, and I shall have mercy on the houses of him; and the city shall be builded [up] in his highness, and the temple shall be founded by his order.

<sup>19</sup> And praising and the voice of players shall go out of them, and I shall multiply them, and they shall not be decreased; and I shall glorify them, and they shall not be made thin.

<sup>20</sup> And the sons thereof shall be as at the beginning, and the company thereof shall dwell before me; and I shall visit against all that do tribulation to it.

<sup>21</sup> And the duke thereof shall be of it, and a prince shall be brought forth of the midst thereof; and I shall join him, and he shall nigh to me; for who is this, that shall join his heart, that he nigh to me? saith the Lord.

<sup>22</sup> And ye shall be into a people to me, and I shall be into God to you.

<sup>23</sup> Lo! the whirlwind of the Lord, a strong vengeance going out, a tempest falling down, shall rest in the head of wicked men.

<sup>24</sup> The Lord shall not turn away the ire [or the wrath] of indignation, till he do, and [ful] fill the thought of his heart; in the last days ye shall understand those things.

CHAPTER 31

<sup>1</sup> In that time, saith the Lord, I shall be God to all the kindreds of Israel; and they shall be into a people to me.

<sup>3</sup> Far the Lord appeared to me, and in everlasting charity I loved thee; therefore I doing mercy drew thee.

<sup>4</sup> And again I shall build thee, and thou, virgin Israel, shalt be builded; yet thou shalt be adorned with thy tympan, and shalt go out in the quire, either company, of players.

<sup>5</sup> Yet thou shalt plant vines in the hills [or the mount] of Samaria; men planting shall plant, and till the time come, they shall not gather grapes.

<sup>6</sup> For why a day shall be, wherein keepers shall cry in the hill [or the mount] of Samaria, and in the hill [or the mount] of Ephraim, Rise ye, and ascend we [or go we up] into Zion, to our Lord God.

<sup>7</sup> For the Lord saith these things, Jacob, make ye full out joy in gladness, and neigh ye against the head of heathen men; sound ye, sing ye, and say ye, Lord, save thy people, the residues of Israel.

<sup>8</sup> Lo! I shall bring them from the land of the north, and I shall gather them from the farthest parts of [the] earth; among which shall be a blind man, and crooked, and a woman with child, and travailing of child together; a great company of them that shall turn again hither.

<sup>9</sup> They shall come in weeping, and I shall bring them again in mercy; and I shall bring them by the strands [or streams] of waters in a rightful [or right] way, they shall not spurn therein; for I am made a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my engendered son.

<sup>10</sup> Ye heathen men, hear the word of the Lord, and tell ye in isles that be [a] far, and say, He that scattered Israel, shall gather it, and shall keep it, as a shepherd keepeth his flock.

<sup>11</sup> For the Lord again-bought Jacob, and delivered him from the hand of the mightier.

<sup>12</sup> And they shall come, and praise in the hill [or the mount] of Zion; and they shall flow together to the goods of the Lord, on wheat, wine, and oil, and on the fruit of sheep, and of neat; and the soul of them shall be as a watery garden, and they shall no more hunger.

<sup>13</sup> Then a virgin shall be glad in a company, young men and eld together; and I shall turn the mourning of them into joy, and I shall comfort them, and I shall make them glad of their sorrow.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall greatly fill the soul of [the] priests with fatness, and my people shall be [ful] filled with my goods, saith the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord saith these things, A voice of wailing, and of weeping, and of mourning, was heard on high; the voice of Rachel beweeeping her sons, and not willing to be comforted on them, for they be not.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord saith these things, Thy voice rest of weeping, and thine eyes rest of tears; for why meed is to thy work, saith the Lord; and they shall turn again from the land of the enemy.

<sup>17</sup> And hope is to thy last things, saith the Lord; and thy sons shall turn again to their ends.

<sup>18</sup> I hearing heard Ephraim passing over; saying, thou chastisedest me, and I am learned as a young one untamed, either wild; turn thou me, and I shall be turned again, for thou art my Lord God.

<sup>19</sup> For after that thou convertedest me, I did penance; and after that thou showedest to me, I smote mine hip; I am ashamed, and I am shamed, for I suffered the shame of my youth.

<sup>20</sup> For Ephraim is a worshipful son to me, for he is a delicate child; for since I spake of him, yet I shall have mind on him; therefore mine entrails be troubled on him, I doing mercy shall have mercy on him, saith the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> Ordain to thee an high lookout place, set to thee bitternesses; dress thine heart into a straight way, in which thou went; turn again, thou virgin of Israel, turn again to these thy cities.

<sup>22</sup> How long, daughter of unsteadfast dwelling, art thou made dissolute in delights? for the Lord hath made a new thing on earth, a woman shall compass a man.

<sup>23</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Yet they shall say this word in the land of Judah, and in the cities thereof, when I shall turn the captivity of them, The Lord bless thee, thou fairness of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], thou holy hill [or mount].

<sup>24</sup> And Judah, and all the cities thereof shall dwell in it together, earth-tillers, and they that drive flocks.

<sup>25</sup> For I filled greatly a faint soul, and I have [full-]filled each hungry soul.

<sup>26</sup> Therefore I am as raised from sleep, and I saw; and my sleep was sweet to me.

<sup>27</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of men, and with the seed of work beasts.

<sup>28</sup> And as I waked on them, to draw up by the root, and to destroy, and to scatter, and to lose, and to torment; so I shall wake on or watch over them, to build, and to plant, saith the Lord.

<sup>29</sup> In those days they shall no more say, The fathers ate a sour grape, and the teeth of [the] sons were astonished;

<sup>30</sup> but each man shall die in his wickedness, each man that eateth a sour grape, his teeth shall be astonished.

<sup>31</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall smite a new bond of peace to the house of Israel, and to the house of Judah;

<sup>32</sup> not by the covenant which I made with your fathers, in the day in which I took the hand of them, to lead them out of the land of Egypt, the covenant which they made void; and I was Lord of them, saith the Lord.

<sup>33</sup> But this shall be the covenant, which I shall smite with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I shall give my law in the entrails of them, and I shall write it in the heart of them, and I shall be into God to them, and they shall be into a people to me.

<sup>34</sup> And a man shall no more teach his neighbour, and a man his brother, and say, Know thou the Lord; for all shall know me, from the least of them unto the most, saith the Lord; for I shall be merciful to the wickednesses of them, and I shall no more be mindful on the sin of them.

<sup>35</sup> The Lord saith these things, that giveth the sun in the light of day, the order of the moon and of the stars in the light of the night, which troubleth the sea, and the waves thereof sound, the Lord of hosts is name to him.

<sup>36</sup> If these laws fail before me, saith the Lord, then and the seed of Israel shall fail, that it be not a folk before me in all days.

<sup>37</sup> The Lord saith these things, If heavens above may be measured, and the foundations of [the] earth beneath be sought out, and I shall cast away all the seed of Israel, for all things which they did, saith the Lord.

<sup>38</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and a city shall be builded to the Lord, from the tower of Hananeel unto the gate of the corner.

<sup>39</sup> And it shall go out over the rule of [the] measure, in the sight thereof, on the hill [of] Gareb, and it shall compass Goath, <sup>40</sup> and all the valley of carrions, and it shall compass[the] ashes, and all the country of death, unto the strand [or stream] of Kidron, and to the corner of the east gate of horses; the holy thing of the Lord shall not be drawn out, and it shall no more be destroyed without end.

CHAPTER 32

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, in the tenth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah; that is the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar.

<sup>2</sup> Then the host of the king of Babylon besieged Jerusalem; and Jeremy, the prophet, was enclosed in the porch of the prison, that was in the house of the king of Judah.

<sup>3</sup> For why Zedekiah, the king of Judah, had enclosed him, and said, Why prophesiest thou, saying, The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall give this city in[to] the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it;

<sup>4</sup> and Zedekiah, king of Judah, shall not escape from the hand of Chaldees, but he shall be betaken into the hand of the king of Babylon; and his mouth shall speak with the mouth of him, and his eyes shall see the eyes of him;

<sup>5</sup> and he shall lead Zedekiah into Babylon, and he shall be there, till I visit him, saith the Lord; forsooth if ye fight against [the] Chaldees, ye shall have nothing in prosperity?

<sup>6</sup> And Jeremy said, The word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>7</sup> Lo! Hanameel, the son of Shallum, the son of thy father's brother, shall come to thee, and say, Buy thou to thee my field, which is in Anathoth; for it befalleth to thee by nigh kindred, that thou buy it.

<sup>8</sup> And Hanameel, the son of my father's brother, came to me, by the word of the Lord, to the porch of the prison, and said to me, Wield thou my field, which is in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin; for why the heritage befalleth to thee, and thou art the next of blood, that thou wield it. Forsooth I understood, that it was the word of the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> And I bought the field, which is in Anathoth, of Hanameel, the son of my father's brother. And I paid to him silver, seven staters, and ten pieces of silver;

<sup>10</sup> and I wrote in a book, and I sealed, and I gave witnesses. And I weighed silver in a balance;

<sup>11</sup> and I took the book asealed of possession, and [the] askings and [the] answerings of the seller and [the] buyer, and [the] covenants, and [the] seals withoutforth.

<sup>12</sup> And I gave the book of possession to Baruch, the son of Neriah, son of Maaseiah, before the eyes of Hanameel, the son of my father's brother, and before the eyes of witnesses that were written in the book of [the] buying, before the eyes of all Jews, that sat in the porch of the prison.

<sup>13</sup> And I commanded to Baruch before them, and I said,

<sup>14</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Take thou these books, this sealed book of buying, and this book which is open, and put thou those [or them] in an earthen vessel, that they may dwell many days.

<sup>15</sup> For why the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Yet houses, and fields, and vines shall be wielded in this land.

<sup>16</sup> And I prayed to the Lord, after that I betook the book of possession to Baruch, the son of Neriah; and I said,

<sup>17</sup> Alas! alas! alas! Lord God, Lord, thou madest heaven and earth in thy great strength, and in thine arm stretched forth; each word shall not be hard to thee;

<sup>18</sup> which doest mercy in thousands, and yieldest the wickedness of fathers into the bosom of their sons after them. Thou strongest, great, mighty, Lord of hosts is name to thee;

<sup>19</sup> great in counsel, and uncompre-hensible in thought, whose eyes be open on all the ways of the sons of Adam, that thou yield to each after his ways, and after the fruit of his findings;

<sup>20</sup> which settedest signs and great wonders in the land of Egypt, unto this day, both in Israel, and in men; and madest to thee a name, as this day is.

<sup>21</sup> And thou leddest thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt, in signs and in great wonders, and in a strong hand, and in an arm holden forth, and in great dread;

<sup>22</sup> and thou gavest to them this land, which thou sworedest to the fathers of them, that thou wouldest give to them, a land flowing with milk and honey.

<sup>23</sup> And they entered, and had it in possession; and they obeyed not to thy voice, and they went not in thy law; all things which thou commandedest to them to do, they did not; and all these evils befell to them.

<sup>24</sup> Lo! strongholds be builded against the city, that it be taken, and the city is given into the hands of Chaldees, and into the hands of the king of Babylon, that fight against it, of the face of [the] sword, and of hunger, and of pestilence; and whatever things thou spakest, befell, as thou thyself seest.

<sup>25</sup> And thou saidest to me, Lord God, Buy thou a field for silver, and give thou witnesses, when the city is given in the hands of Chaldees.

<sup>26</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>27</sup> Lo! I am the Lord God of all flesh. Whether any word shall be hard to me?

<sup>28</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall betake this city into the hands of Chaldees, and into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it.

<sup>29</sup> And Chaldees shall come, and fight against this city, and they shall burn it with fire, and they shall burn it, and [the] houses, in whose roofs they sacrificed to Baal, and offered moist sacrifices to alien gods, to stir me to wrath.

<sup>30</sup> For why the sons of Israel, and the sons of Judah, did evil continually, from their young waxing age, before mine eyes; the sons of Israel, which till to now wrathed me by the work of their hands, saith the Lord.

<sup>31</sup> For why this city is made to me in my strong vengeance and indignation, from the day in which they built it, unto this day, in which it shall be taken away from my sight;

<sup>32</sup> for the malice of the sons of Israel, and of the sons of Judah, which they did, stirring me to wrath-fulness, they, and the kings of them, the princes of them, and the priests, and prophets of them, the men of Judah, and the dwellers of Jerusalem.

<sup>33</sup> And they turned to me the backs, and not the faces, when I taught, and informed them early; and they would not hear, that they should take teaching.

<sup>34</sup> And they setted their idols in the house, in which my name is called to help, that they should defoul it.

<sup>35</sup> And they builded high things to Baal, that be in the valley of the sons of Hinnom, that they should hallow their sons and their daughters to Molech, which thing I commanded not to them, neither it ascended [or went up] into mine heart, that they should do this abomination, and bring [down] Judah into sin.

<sup>36</sup> And now for these things, the Lord God of Israel saith these things to this city, of which ye say, that it shall be betaken into the hands of the king of Babylon, in sword, and in hunger, and in pestilence,

<sup>37</sup> Lo! I shall gather them from all lands, to which I casted them out in my strong vengeance, and in my wrath, and in great indignation; and I shall bring them again to this place, and I shall make them to dwell trustily.

<sup>38</sup> And they shall be into a people to me, and I shall be into God to them.

<sup>39</sup> And I shall give to them one heart, and one soul, that they dread me in all days, and that it be well to them, and to their sons after them.

<sup>40</sup> And I shall smite to them a covenant everlasting, and I shall not cease to do well to them, and I shall give my dread in the heart of them, that they go not away from me.

<sup>41</sup> And I shall be glad on them, when I shall do well to them; and I shall plant them in this land in truth, in all mine heart, and in all my soul.

<sup>42</sup> For the Lord saith these things, As I brought on this people all this great evil, so I shall bring on them all the good, which I shall speak to them.

<sup>43</sup> And fields shall be wielded in this land, of which ye say, that it is desert, for no man and beast is left; and it is given into the hands of Chaldees.

<sup>44</sup> Fields shall be bought for money, and shall be written in a book, and a seal shall be imprinted; and witnesses shall be given, in the land of Benjamin, and in the compass of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, and in the cities in [the] hilly places, and in the cities in [the] field places, and in the cities that be at the south; for I shall turn the captivity of them, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 33

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, in the second time, when he was enclosed yet in the porch of the prison, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord saith these things, The Lord is name of him that shall do, and form, and make ready that thing;

<sup>3</sup> Cry thou to me, and I shall hear thee, and I shall tell to thee great things, and steadfast, which thou knowest not.

<sup>4</sup> For the Lord God of Israel saith these things to the houses of this city, and to the houses of the king of Judah, that be destroyed, and to the strongholds, and to the sword of men

<sup>5</sup> coming to fight with Chaldees, and to fill those houses with carrions of men, which I smote in my strong vengeance, and in mine indignation; and I hid my face from this city, for all the malice of them.

<sup>6</sup> Lo! I shall close together to them a wound and health, and I shall make them whole, and I shall show to them the beseeching of peace and of truth;

<sup>7</sup> and I shall convert the conversion of Judah, and I shall convert the conversion of Jerusalem, and I shall build them [up], as at the beginning.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall cleanse them from all their wickedness, in which they sinned to me, and I shall be merciful to all the wickednesses of them, in which they trespassed to me, and forsook me.

<sup>9</sup> And they shall be to me into a name, and into joy, and into praising, and into full out joying to all folks of earth, that heard all the goods which I shall do to them; and they shall dread, and shall be troubled in all goods, and in all the peace, which I shall do to them.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord saith these things, Yet in this place, which ye say to be forsaken, for no man is, neither beast, in the cities of Judah, and in the gates of Jerusalem, that be desolate, without man, and without dweller, and without beast,

<sup>12</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Yet in this forsaken place, without man, and without beast, and in all cities thereof, shall be a dwelling place of shepherds, of flocks lying.

<sup>13</sup> And in the cities in [the] hilly places, and in the cities in [the] field places, and in the cities that be at the south, and in the land of Benjamin, and in the compass of Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, yet flocks shall pass, at the hand of the numberer, saith the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall raise the good word, which I spake to the house of Israel, and to the house of Judah.

<sup>15</sup> In those days, and in that time, I shall make the seed of rightfulness [or rightwiseness] to burgeon to David, and he shall make doom and rightful-ness [or rightwiseness] in [the] earth.

<sup>16</sup> In those days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell trustily; and this is the name which they shall call him, Our rightful Lord [or The Lord our rightwiseness].

<sup>17</sup> For the Lord saith these things, A man of David shall not perish, that shall sit on the throne of the house of Israel;

<sup>18</sup> and of [the] priests and deacons, a man shall not perish from my face, that shall offer burnt sacrifices, and burn sacrifices, and slay sacrifices, in all days.

<sup>19</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>20</sup> The Lord saith these things, If my covenant with the day, and my covenant with the night, may be made void, that the day and the night be not in his time;

<sup>21</sup> and my covenant with David, my servant, may be voided, that of him be no son, that shall reign in his throne, and no deacons, and priests, my ministers;

<sup>22</sup> as the stars of heaven may not be numbered, and the gravel of the sea may not be meted [or measured], so I shall multiply the seed of David, my servant, and deacons, my ministers.

<sup>23</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>24</sup> Whether thou hast not seen, that this people spake, saying, Two kindreds which the Lord chose, be cast away, and they despised my people, for it is no more a folk before them.

<sup>25</sup> The Lord saith these things, If I setted not my covenant betwixt day and night, and if I setted not laws to heaven and earth;

<sup>26</sup> soothly and I shall cast away the seed of Jacob, and of David, my servant, that I take not of the seed of him princes of the seed of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob; for I shall bring again the conversion of them, and I shall have mercy on them.

CHAPTER 34

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, when Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and all his host, and all the realms of [the] earth, that were under the power of his hand, and all peoples fought against Jerusalem, and against all cities thereof; and he said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord God of Israel saith these things, Go thou, and speak to Zedekiah, king of Judah; and thou shalt say to him, The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall betake this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it by fire.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt not escape from his hand, but thou shalt be taken by taking, and thou shalt be betaken into his hand; and thine eyes shall see the eyes of the king of Babylon, and his mouth shall speak with thy mouth, and thou shalt enter into Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> Nevertheless Zedekiah, the king of Judah, hear thou the word of the Lord; the Lord saith these things to thee, Thou shalt not die by sword, <sup>5</sup> but thou shalt die in peace; and by the burnings of thy fathers, the former kings that were before thee, so they shall burn thee, and they shall bewail thee, Woe! lord; for I spake a word, saith the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And Jeremy, the prophet, spake to Zedekiah, king of Judah, all these words in Jerusalem.

<sup>8</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, after that king Zedekiah smote bond of peace with all the people in Jerusalem, and preached,

<sup>9</sup> that each man should deliver his servant, and each man his handmaid, an Hebrew man and an Hebrew woman, free, and that they should not be lords of them, that is, in a Jew, and their brother.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore all the princes and all the people heard, which made covenant, that they should deliver each man his servant, and each man his handmaid, free, and should no more be lords of them; therefore they heard, and delivered;

<sup>11</sup> and they were turned afterward, and drew again their servants, and handmaids, which they had let go free, and they made them subject into servants, and into servantesses.

<sup>12</sup> And the word of the Lord was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>13</sup> The Lord God of Israel saith these things, I smote a bond of peace with your fathers, in the day in which I led them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of servage; and I said,

<sup>14</sup> When seven years be [ful] filled, each man deliver his brother, an Hebrew man, which is sold to him, and he shall serve thee six years, and thou shalt deliver him from thee; and your fathers heard not me, neither bowed [in] their ear.

<sup>15</sup> And ye be converted today, and ye did that, that is rightful [or right] before mine eyes, that ye preached each man freedom to his friend, and ye made covenant in my sight, in the house wherein my name is called to help on that freedom.

<sup>16</sup> And ye turned again, and defouled my name, and ye brought again each man his servant, and each man his handmaid, which ye delivered, that they should be free, and of their own power; and ye made them subject, that they be servants and handmaids to you.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Ye heard not me, that ye preached freedom, each man to his brother, and each man to his friend; lo! I preach to you freedom, saith the Lord, and to sword, and to hunger, and to pestilence; and I shall give you into stirring to all realms of earth.

<sup>18</sup> And I shall give the men, that brake my bond of peace, and kept not the words of [the] bond of peace, to which they assented in my sight, and kept not the calf which they cutted into two parts;

<sup>19</sup> and the princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, and the honest servants, and priests went between the partings thereof, and all the people of the land, that went between the partings of the calf;

<sup>20</sup> and I shall give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life; and the dead carrion of them shall be into meat to the volatiles [or fowls] of the air, and to the beasts of earth.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall give Zedekiah, the king of Judah, and his princes, into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and into the hand of the hosts of the king of Babylon, that went away from you.

<sup>22</sup> Lo! I command, saith the Lord, and I shall bring them again into this city; and they shall fight against it, and shall take it, and shall burn it with fire; and I shall give the cities of Judah into wilderness, for there is no dweller.

CHAPTER 35

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, in the days of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Go thou to the house of Rechabites, and speak thou to them; and thou shalt bring them into the house of the Lord, into one chamber of [the] treasuries [or treasures], and thou shalt give to them to drink wine.

<sup>3</sup> And I took Jaazaniah, the son of Jeremy, son of Habaziniaah, and his brethren, and all the sons of him, and all the house of Rechabites.

<sup>4</sup> And I led them into the house of the Lord, to the treasury of the sons of Hanan, son of Igdaliah, the man of God; which treasury was beside the treasury of [the] princes, above the treasury of Maaseiah, son of Shallum, that was keeper of the vestiary.

<sup>5</sup> And I setted before the sons of the house of Rechabites pecks, and great cups full of wine; and I said to them, Drink ye wine.

<sup>6</sup> And they answered, We shall not drink wine; for why Jonadab, our father, the son of Rechab, commanded to us, and said, Ye shall not drink wine, ye and your sons, till into without end;

<sup>7</sup> and ye shall not build an house, and ye shall not sow seed, and ye shall not plant vines, neither shall have, but ye shall dwell in tabernacles in all your days, that ye live many days on the face of [the] earth, in which ye go in pilgrimage.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore we obeyed to the voice of Jonadab, our father, the son of Rechab, in all things which he commanded to us; so that we drank not wine in all our days, we, and our women, our sons, and daughters;

<sup>9</sup> and we builded not houses to dwell, and we had not a vinery [or vineyards], and a field, and seed;

<sup>10</sup> but we dwelled in tabernacles, and were obeying, and did by all things, which Jonadab, our father, commanded to us.

<sup>11</sup> But when Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had ascended [or gone up] to this land, we said, Come ye, and enter we into Jerusalem, from the face of the host of Chaldees, and from the face of the host of Syria; and we dwelled in Jerusalem.

<sup>12</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>13</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Go thou, and say to the men of Judah, and to the dwellers of Jerusalem, Whether ye shall not take teaching, that ye obey to my words, saith the Lord?

<sup>14</sup> The words of Jonadab, son of Rechab, had the mastery, which he commanded to his sons, that they should not drink wine; and they drink not, unto this day; for they obeyed to the commandment of their father; but I spake to you, and I rose full early, and spake, and ye obeyed not to me.

<sup>15</sup> And I sent to you all my servants prophets, and I rose full early, and I sent, and said, Be ye converted, each man from his worst way, and make ye good your studies, and do not ye follow alien gods, neither worship ye them, and ye shall dwell in the land, which I gave to you, and to your fathers; and ye bowed not [in] your ear, neither heard me.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the sons of Jonadab, son of Rechab, made steadfast the commandment of their father, which he commanded to them; but this people obeyed not to me.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall bring on Judah, and on all the dwellers of Jerusalem, all the torment which I spake against them; for I spake to them, and they heard not; I called them, and they answered not to me.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth Jeremy said to the house of Rechabites, The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, For that that ye obeyed to the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his commandments, and did all things, which he commanded to you;

<sup>19</sup> therefore the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, A man of the generation of Jonadab, son of Rechab, shall not fail standing in my sight in all days.

CHAPTER 36

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word was made of the Lord to Jeremy, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Take thou the volume of a book, and thou shalt write therein all the words, which I spake to thee against Israel and Judah, and against all folks, from the day in which I spake to thee, from the days of Josiah unto this day.

<sup>3</sup> If peradventure when the house of Judah heareth all the evils which I think to do to them, each man turn again from his worst way, and I shall be merciful to the wickedness and sin of them.

<sup>4</sup> Therefore Jeremy called Baruch, the son of Neriah; and Baruch wrote of the mouth of Jeremy in the volume of a book all the words of the Lord, which he spake to him.

<sup>5</sup> And Jeremy commanded to Baruch, and said, I am enclosed, and I may not enter into the house of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore enter thou, and read of the book, in which thou hast written of my mouth the words of the Lord, in hearing of the people, in the house of the Lord, in the day of fasting; furthermore and in hearing of all Judah, that come from their cities, thou shalt read to them;

<sup>7</sup> if peradventure the prayer of them fall in the sight of the Lord, and each man turn again from his worst way; for why the strong vengeance and indignation is great, which the Lord spake against this people.

<sup>8</sup> And Baruch, the son of Neriah, did after all things, which Jeremy, the prophet, commanded to him; and he read of the book the words of the Lord, in the house of the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth it was done, in the fifth year of Jehoiakim, son of Josiah, king of Judah, in the ninth month, they preached fasting in the sight of the Lord, to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the multitude, that came together from the cities of Judah into Jerusalem.

<sup>10</sup> And Baruch read of the volume the words of Jeremy, in the house of the Lord, in the treasury of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, scribe, in the higher porch, in the entering of the new gate of the house of the Lord, in audience of all the people.

<sup>11</sup> And when Michaiah, the son of Gemariah, son of Shaphan, had heard all the words of the Lord, of the book,

<sup>12</sup> he went down into the house of the king, to the treasury of the scribe. And lo! all the princes sat there, Elishama, the scribe, and Delaiah, the son of Shemaiah, and Elnathan, the son of Achbor, and Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah, the son of Hananiah, and all [the] princes.

<sup>13</sup> And Michaiah told to them all the words, which he heard Baruch reading of the book, in the ears of the people.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore all the princes sent to Baruch Jehudi, the son of Nethaniah, son of Shelemiah, son of Cushi, and said, Take in thine hand the book, of which thou readest in audience of the people, and come thou. Therefore Baruch, the son of Neriah, took the book in his hand, and came to them.

<sup>15</sup> And they said to him, Sit thou, and read these things in our ears; and Baruch read in the ears of them.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore when they had heard all the words, they wondered each man to his neighbour, and they said to Baruch, Ought we to tell to the king all these words?

<sup>17</sup> And they asked him, and said, Show thou to us, how thou hast written all these words of his mouth.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth Baruch said to them, Of his mouth he spake, as reading to me, all these words; and I wrote in a book with ink.

<sup>19</sup> And all the princes said to Baruch, Go, be thou hid, thou and Jeremy; and no man know where ye be.

<sup>20</sup> And they entered to the king, into the hall; forsooth they betook the book to be kept into the treasury of Elishama, the scribe. And they told all the words, in audience of the king.

<sup>21</sup> Therefore the king sent Jehudi, that he should take the book. Which took the book from the treasury of Elishama, the scribe, and read in audience of the king, and of all the princes that stood about the king.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth the king sat in the winter house, in the ninth month; and a pan full of coals was set before him.

<sup>23</sup> And when Jehudi had read three pages, either four, he cutted it with the knife of a scribe, and casted into the fire, that was in the pan, till all the book was wasted by the fire, that was in the pan.

<sup>24</sup> And the king, and all his servants, that heard all these words, dreaded not, neither rent their clothes.

<sup>25</sup> Nevertheless Elnathan, and Delaiah, and Gemariah against-said [to] the king, that he should not burn the book; and he heard not them.

<sup>26</sup> And the king commanded to Jerahmeel, son of Hammelech, and to Seraiah, son of Azriel, and to Shelem-iah, son of Abdeel, that they should take Baruch, the writer, and Jeremy, the prophet; forsooth the Lord hid them.

<sup>27</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, the prophet, after that the king had burnt the book, and [the] words, which Baruch had written of Jeremy's mouth; and he said,

<sup>28</sup> Again take thou another book, and write therein all the former words, that were in the first book, which Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, burnt.

<sup>29</sup> And thou shalt say to Jehoiakim, king of Judah, The Lord saith these things, Thou burnttest that book, and saidest, What hast thou written therein, telling, The king of Babylon shall come hasting, and shall destroy this land, and shall make man and beast to cease thereof?

<sup>30</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things against Jehoiakim, king of Judah, None there shall be of him, that shall sit on the seat of David; and his carrion shall be cast forth to the heat by day, and to the frost by night.

<sup>31</sup> And I shall visit against him, and against his seed, and against his servants, their wickednesses. And I shall bring on them, and on the dwellers of Jerusalem, and on the men of Judah, all the evil which I spake to them, and they heard not.

<sup>32</sup> Forsooth Jeremy took another book, and gave it to Baruch, the writer, the son of Neriah, which wrote therein of Jeremy's mouth all the words of the book, which book Jehoiakim, king of Judah, had burnt by fire; and furthermore many more words were added than were before.

CHAPTER 37

<sup>1</sup> And king Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, reigned for Jeconiah*, the son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, made king in the land of Judah.

<sup>2</sup> And he, and his servants, and his people obeyed not to the words of the Lord, which he spake in the hand of Jeremy, the prophet.

<sup>3</sup> And king Zedekiah sent Jehucal, the son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah, the priest, the son of Maaseiah, to Jeremy, the prophet, and said, Pray thou for us our Lord God.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth Jeremy went freely in the midst of the people; for they had not sent him into the keeping of the prison.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore the host of Pharaoh went out of Egypt, and [the] Chaldees, that besieged Jerusalem, heard such a message, and went away from Jeru-salem.

<sup>6</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, the prophet, and said,

<sup>7</sup> The Lord God of Israel saith these things, Thus ye shall say to the king of Judah, that sent you to ask me, Lo! the host of Pharaoh, which went out to you into help, shall turn again into his land, into Egypt.

<sup>8</sup> And Chaldees shall come again, and shall fight against this city, and shall take it, and shall burn it with fire.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore when the host of Chaldees had gone away from Jerusalem, for the host of Pharaoh,

---

* CHAPTER 37:1 Also known as Coniah and Jehoiachin.

<sup>12</sup> Jeremy went out of Jerusalem, to go into the land of Benjamin, and to part there the possession in the sight of [the] citizens.

<sup>13</sup> And when he was come to the gate of Benjamin, there was a keeper of the gate by whiles, Irijah by name, the son of Shelemiah, son of Hananiah; and he took Jeremy, the prophet, and said, Thou fleest to [the] Chaldees.

<sup>14</sup> And Jeremy answered, It is false; I flee not to [the] Chaldees. And he heard not Jeremy, but Irijah took Jeremy, and brought him to the princes.

<sup>15</sup> Wherefore the princes were wroth against Jeremy, and beat him, and sent him into the prison, that was in the house of Jonathan, the scribe; for he was sovereign on the prison.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore Jeremy entered into the house of the pit, and into the prison of travail; and Jeremy sat there many days.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore king Zedekiah sent, and took him away, and asked him privily in his house, and said, Guessest thou, whether a word is of the Lord? And Jeremy said, There is. And Jeremy said, Thou shalt be betaken into the hand of the king of Babylon.

<sup>18</sup> And Jeremy said to Zedekiah, the king, What have I sinned to thee, and to thy servants, and to thy people, for thou hast sent me into the house of [the] prison?

<sup>19</sup> Where be your prophets, that prophesied to you, and said, The king of Babylon shall not come [up] on you, and on this land?

<sup>20</sup> Now therefore, my lord the king, I beseech, hear thou, my prayer be worthy in thy sight, and send thou not me again into the house of Jonathan, the scribe, lest I die there.

<sup>21</sup> Therefore Zedekiah commanded, that Jeremy should be betaken into the porch of the prison, and that a cake of bread should be given to him each day, without stew, till all the loaves of the city were wasted; and Jeremy dwelled in the porch of the prison.

CHAPTER 38

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth Shephatiah, son of Mattan, and Gedaliah, son of Pashur, and Jucal, son of Shelemiah, and Pashur, son of Malchiah, heard the words which Jeremy spake to all the people, saying,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord saith these things, Who-ever dwelleth in this city, shall die by sword, and hunger, and pestilence; but he that fleeth to [the] Chaldees, shall live, and his soul shall be whole and living.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord saith these things, This city to be betaken shall be betaken into the hand of the host of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it.

<sup>4</sup> And the princes said to the king, We pray, that this man be slain; for of before-casting he discomforteth or weakeneth the hands of men warriors, that dwelled in this city, and the hands of all the people, and speaketh to them by all these words. For why this man seeketh not peace to this people, but evil.

<sup>5</sup> And king Zedekiah said, Lo! he is in your hands, for it is not leaveful that the king deny anything to you.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore they took Jeremy, and casted him down into the pit of Malchiah, the son of Hammelech, which was in the porch of the prison; and they sent down Jeremy by cords into the pit, wherein was no water, but fen; therefore Jeremy went down into the filth.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth Ebedmelech the Ethiopian, a chaste man and honest, heard, that was in the king's house, that they had sent Jeremy into the pit; soothly the king sat in the gate of Benjamin.

<sup>8</sup> And Ebedmelech went out of the king's house, and spake to the king, and said,

<sup>9</sup> My lord the king, these men did evil all things, whatever things they did against Jeremy, the prophet, sending him into the pit, that he die there for hunger; for why loaves be no more in the city.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore the king commanded to Ebedmelech the Ethiopian, and said, Take with thee thirty men from hence, and raise thou [up] Jeremy, the prophet, from the pit, before that he die.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore when Ebedmelech had taken men with him, he entered into the house of the king, that was under the cellar; and he took from thence old clothes, and old rags, that were rotten; and he sent them down to Jeremy, into the pit, by cords.

<sup>13</sup> And they drew out Jeremy with cords, and led him out of the pit. Forsooth Jeremy dwelled in the porch of the prison.

<sup>14</sup> And king Zedekiah sent, and took [to] him Jeremy, the prophet, at the third door that was in the house of the Lord. And the king said to Jeremy, I ask of thee a word; hide thou not anything from me.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth Jeremy said to Zedekiah, If I tell to thee, whether thou shalt not slay me? And if I give counsel to thee, thou shalt not hear me.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore Zedekiah the king swore to Jeremy privily, and said, The Lord liveth, that made to us this soul, I shall not slay thee, and I shall not betake thee into the hands of these men, that seek thy life.

<sup>17</sup> And Jeremy said to Zedekiah, The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, If thou goest forth, and goest out to the princes of the king of Babylon, thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burnt with fire, and thou shalt be safe, thou and thine house.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth if thou goest not out to the princes of the king of Babylon, this city shall be betaken into the hands of Chaldees; and they shall burn it with fire, and thou shalt not escape from the hand of them.

<sup>19</sup> And king Zedekiah said to Jeremy, I am anguished for the Jews that fled over to [the] Chaldees, lest peradventure I be betaken into the hands of them, and they scorn me.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth Jeremy answered, and said to him, They shall not betake thee; I beseech, hear thou the voice of the Lord, which I shall speak to thee, and it shall be well to thee, and thy soul shall live.

<sup>21</sup> That if thou wilt not go out, this is the word which the Lord showed to me,

<sup>22</sup> Lo! all the women, that were left in the house of the king of Judah, shall be led out to the princes of the king of Babylon; and those women shall say, Thy peaceable men deceived thee, and had the mastery against thee; they drowned thee [down] in [the] filth, and thy feet in sliderness, and [they] went away from thee.

<sup>23</sup> And all thy wives and thy sons shall be led out to [the] Chaldees, and thou shalt not escape the hands of them; but thou shalt be betaken into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn this city with fire.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore Zedekiah said to Jeremy, No man know these words, and thou shalt not die.

<sup>25</sup> Soothly if the princes hear, that I spake with thee, and they come to thee, and say to thee, Show thou to us what thou spakest with the king, hide thou not from us, and we shall not slay thee; and what the king spake with thee,

<sup>26</sup> thou shalt say to them, Kneelingly I setted forth my prayers before the king, that he should not command me to be led again into the house of Jonathan, and I should die there.

<sup>27</sup> Therefore all the princes came to Jeremy, and asked him, and he spake to them by all the words which the king had commanded to him, and they ceased from him; for why nothing was heard.

<sup>28</sup> Therefore Jeremy dwelled in the porch of the prison, till to the day in which Jerusalem was taken; and it was done, that Jerusalem should be taken.

CHAPTER 39

<sup>1</sup> In the ninth year of Zedekiah, king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and all his host, came to Jerusalem, and they besieged it.

<sup>2</sup> Forsooth in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, the city was opened;

<sup>3</sup> and all the princes of the king of Babylon entered, and sat in the middle gate, Nergalsharezer, Samgarnebo, Sarsechim, Rabсарis, Nergalsharezer, Rabmag, and all [the] other princes of the king of Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> And when Zedekiah, the king of Judah, and all the men warriors had seen them, they fled, and went out by night from the city, by the way of the garden of the king, and by the gate that was betwixt two walls; and they went out to the way of desert.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth the host of Chaldees pursued them, and they took Zedekiah in the field of wilderness of Jericho; and they took him, and brought to Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in Riblah, which is in the land of Hamath; and Nebuchadnezzar spake dooms to him.

<sup>6</sup> And the king of Babylon killed the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah, before his eyes; and the king of Babylon killed all the noble men of Judah.

<sup>7</sup> Also he putted out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him in fetters, that he should be led into Babylon.

<sup>8</sup> And [the] Chaldees burnt with fire the house of the king, and the houses of the common people, and destroyed the wall of Jerusalem.

<sup>9</sup> And Nebuzaradan, the master of knights, translated into Babylon the residues of the people, that dwelled in the city, and the fleers-away, that had fled over to him, and the super-fluous men of the common people, that were left.

<sup>10</sup> And Nebuzaradan, the master of knights, left in the land of Judah, of the people of poor men, and gave to them vineries [or vineyards] and cisterns in that day.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, had commanded of Jeremy to Nebuzaradan, master of the chivalry, and said,

<sup>12</sup> Take thou him, and set thine eyes on him, and do thou nothing of evil to him; but as he will, so do thou to him.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore Nebuzaradan, the prince of [the] chivalry, sent Nebushazban, and Rabсарis, and Nergalsharezer, and Rabmag, and all the principal men of the king of Babylon,

<sup>14</sup> sent, and took Jeremy from the porch of the prison, and they betook him to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, that he should enter into the house, and dwell among the people.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, when he was enclosed in the porch of the prison, and said,

<sup>16</sup> Go thou, and say to Ebedmelech the Ethiopian, and speak thou, The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall bring my words on this city into evil, and not into good; and those [or they] shall be in thy sight in that day.

<sup>17</sup> And I shall deliver thee in that day, saith the Lord, and thou shalt not be betaken into the hands of [the] men, which thou darest;

<sup>18</sup> but I delivering shall deliver thee, and thou shalt not fall down by sword; but thy soul shall be into health to thee, for thou haddest trust in me, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 40

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made of the Lord to Jeremy, after that he was delivered of Nebuzaradan, master of the chivalry, from Ramah, when he took him bound with chains, in the midst of all men that passed from Jerusalem, and from Judah, and were led into Babylon.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore the prince of the chivalry took Jeremy, and said to him, Thy Lord God spake this evil on this place, <sup>3</sup> and the Lord hath brought, and hath done, as he spake; for ye sinned to the Lord, and heard not the voice of him, and this word is done to you.

<sup>4</sup> Now therefore lo! I have released thee today from the chains that be in thine hands; if it pleaseth thee to come with me into Babylon, come thou, and I shall set mine eyes on thee; soothly if it displeaseth thee to come with me into Babylon, sit thou here; lo! all the land is in thy sight, that that thou choosest, and whither it pleaseth thee to go, thither go thou,

<sup>5</sup> and do not thou come with me. But dwell thou with Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon made sovereign to the cities of Judah; therefore dwell thou with him in the midst of the people, either go thou, whither ever it pleaseth thee to go. And the master of [the] chivalry gave to him meats, and gifts, and let him go.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth Jeremy came to Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, in Mizpah, and dwelled with him, in the midst of the people that was left in the land.

<sup>7</sup> And when all princes of the host had heard, that were scattered by countries, they and the fellows of them, that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah sovereign of the land, the son of Ahikam, and that he had betaken to Gedaliah men, and women, and little children, and of [the] poor men of the land, that were not translated into Babylon,

<sup>8</sup> they came to Gedaliah, in Mizpah; and Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and Jonathan, and Seraiah, the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai, that were of the Netophathites, and Jezaniah, the son of Maachathite; both they and their men came to Gedaliah.

<sup>9</sup> And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, swore to them, and to the fellows of them, and said, Do not ye dread to serve [the] Chaldees; but dwell ye in the land, and serve ye the king of Babylon, and it shall be well to you.

<sup>10</sup> Lo! I dwell in Mizpah, for to answer to the commandment of [the] Chaldees, that be sent to us; forsooth gather ye vintage, and ripe corn, and oil, and keep ye in your vessels, and dwell ye in your cities which ye hold.

<sup>11</sup> But also all the Jews, that were in Moab, and in the hosts of Ammon, and in Idumea, and in all the countries, when it is heard, that the king of Babylon had given residues, either remnants, in Judah, and that he had made sovereign on them Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan,

<sup>12</sup> soothly all [the] Jews turned again from all [the] places, to which they had fled; and they came into the land of Judah, to Gedaliah, in Mizpah, and gathered wine and ripe corn full much.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of the host, that were scattered in the countries, came to Gedaliah in Mizpah, <sup>14</sup> and said to him, Know thou, that Baalis, king of the sons of Ammon, hath sent Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, to smite thy life. And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, believed not to them.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth Johanan, the son of Kareah, said to Gedaliah asides half in Mizpah, and spake, I shall go, and slay Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, while no man knoweth, lest he slay thy life, and all the Jews be scattered, that be gathered to thee, and the remnants of Judah shall perish.

<sup>16</sup> And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, said to Johanan, the son of Kareah, Do not thou do this word, for thou speakest false of Ishmael.

CHAPTER 41

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the seventh month, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of the king's seed, and the principal men of the king, and ten men with him, came to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, in Mizpah; and they ate there loaves together in Mizpah.

<sup>2</sup> Forsooth Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men that were with him, rose up, and killed with sword Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan; and they killed him, whom the king of Babylon had made sovereign of the land.

<sup>3</sup> Also Ishmael killed all the Jews, that were with Gedaliah in Mizpah, and the Chaldees, that were found there, and the men warriors.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth in the second day, after that he had slain Gedaliah, while no man knew yet,

<sup>5</sup> fourscore men with shaven beards, and rent clothes, and pale men, came from Shechem, and from Shiloh, and from Samaria; and they had gifts and incense in the hand, for to offer in the house of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, went out of Mizpah into the meeting of them; and he went going and weeping. Soothly when he had met them, he said to them, Come ye to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam;

<sup>7</sup> and when they were come to the midst of the city, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, killed them about the midst of the pit, he and the men that were with him.

<sup>8</sup> But ten men were found among them, that said to Ishmael, Do not thou slay us, for we have treasures of wheat, and of barley, and of oil, and of honey, in the field. And he ceased, and killed not them with their brethren.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth the pit into which Ishmael casted forth all the carrions of [the] men, which he killed for Gedaliah, is that pit, which king Asa made for Baasha, the king of Israel; Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, filled that pit with slain men.

<sup>10</sup> And Ishmael led prisoners all the remnants of the people, that were in Mizpah, the daughters of the king, and all the people that dwelled in Mizpah, which Nebuzaradan, the prince of [the] chivalry, had betaken to keeping to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam. And Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, took them, and went to pass over to the sons of Ammon.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of warriors, that were with him, heard all the evil, which Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, had done.

<sup>12</sup> And when they had taken all [the] men, they went forth to fight against Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah; and they found him at the many waters, that be in Gibeon.

<sup>13</sup> And when all the people, that was with Ishmael, had seen Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of warriors, that were with him, they were glad.

<sup>14</sup> And all the people, whom Ishmael had taken in Mizpah, turned again; and it turned again, and went to Johanan, the son of Kareah.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, fled with eight men from the face of Johanan, and went to the sons of Ammon.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of warriors, that were with him, took all the remnants of the common people, which they brought again from Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, that were of Mizpah, after that he killed Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam; he took strong men to battle, and women, and children, and geldings, which he had brought again from Gibeon.

<sup>17</sup> And they went, and sat being pilgrims in Chimham, which is beside Bethlehem, that they should go, and enter into Egypt, from the face of Chaldees;

<sup>18</sup> for they dreaded those Chaldees, for Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, had slain Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, whom the king Nebuchadnezzar had made sovereign in the land of Judah.

CHAPTER 42

<sup>1</sup> And all the princes of warriors nighed, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and Jezaniah, the son of Hoshaiah, and the residue common people, from a little man unto a great man.

<sup>2</sup> And they said to Jeremy, the prophet, Our prayer fall in thy sight, and pray thou for us to thy Lord God, for all these remnants; for we be left a few of many, as thine eyes behold us;

<sup>3</sup> and thy Lord God tell to us the way, by which we shall go, and the word which we shall do.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth Jeremy, the prophet, said to them, I have heard; lo! I pray to our Lord God, by your words; I shall show to you each word, whatever word the Lord shall answer to me, neither I shall hide anything from you.

<sup>5</sup> And they said to Jeremy, The Lord be witness of truth and of faith betwixt us; if not by each word, in which thy Lord God shall send thee to us, so we shall do, <sup>6</sup> whether it be good either evil. We shall obey to the voice of our Lord God, to whom we send thee, that it be well to us, when we have heard the voice of our Lord God.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth when ten days were [ful] filled, the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy.

<sup>8</sup> And he called Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of warriors, that were with him, and all the people from the least unto the most;

<sup>9</sup> and he said to them, The Lord God of Israel saith these things, to whom ye sent me, that I should meekly set forth your prayers in his sight.

<sup>10</sup> If ye rest, and dwell in this land, I shall build you, and I shall not destroy; I shall plant, and I shall not draw out; for now I am pleased on the evil which I did to you.

<sup>11</sup> Do not ye dread of the face of the king of Babylon, whom ye that be fearful, dread; do not ye dread him, saith the Lord, for I am with you, to make you safe, and to deliver [you] from his hand.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall give mercies to you, and I shall have mercy on you, and I shall make you dwell in your land.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth if ye say, We shall not dwell in this land, neither we shall hear the voice of our Lord God,

<sup>14</sup> and say, Nay, but we shall go to the land of Egypt, where we shall not see battle, and shall not hear the noise, either sound, of trump, and we shall not suffer hunger, and there we shall dwell;

<sup>15</sup> for this thing, ye remnants of Judah, hear now the word of the Lord. The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, If ye set your face, for to enter into Egypt, and if ye enter, to dwell there,

<sup>16</sup> the sword which ye dread shall take you there in the land of Egypt, and the hunger for which ye be anguished shall cleave to you in Egypt; and there ye shall die.

<sup>17</sup> And all the men that setted their face, to enter into Egypt, and to dwell there, shall die by sword, and hunger, and pestilence; no man of them shall dwell still, neither shall escape from the face of [the] evil, which I shall bring on them.

<sup>18</sup> For why the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, As my strong vengeance and mine indignation is welled together on the dwellers of Jerusalem, so mine indignation shall be welled together on you, when ye have entered into Egypt; and ye shall be into swearing, and into wondering, and into cursing, and into shame; and ye shall no more see this place.

<sup>19</sup> The word of the Lord is on you, ye remnants of Judah; do not ye enter into Egypt; ye witting shall know, that I have witnessed to you today;

<sup>20</sup> for ye have deceived your souls, for ye sent me to your Lord God, and said, Pray thou for us to our Lord God, and by all things whatever things our Lord [God] shall say to thee, so tell thou to us, and we shall do.

<sup>21</sup> And I told to you today, and ye heard not the voice of your Lord God, on all things for which he sent me to you.

<sup>22</sup> Now therefore, ye witting shall know, for ye shall die by sword, and hunger, and pestilence, in the place to which ye would enter, to dwell there.

CHAPTER 43

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth it was done, when Jeremy, speaking to the people, had [ful] filled all the words of the Lord God of them, for which the Lord God of them sent him to them, all these words,

<sup>2</sup> Azariah, the son of Hoshaiah, said, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all proud men, saying to Jeremy, Thou speakest leasing; our Lord God sent not thee, and said, Enter ye not into Egypt, to dwell there;

<sup>3</sup> but Baruch, the son of Neriah, stirreth thee against us, that he betake us in the hands of Chaldees, that he slay us, and make to be led over into Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> And Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of warriors, and all the people, heard not the voice of the Lord, that they dwell in the land of Judah.

<sup>5</sup> But Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the princes of warriors, took all of the remnants of Judah, that turned again from all folks, to which they were scattered before, that they should dwell in the land of Judah;

<sup>6</sup> they took men, and women, and little children, and the daughters of the king, and each person, whom Nebuzaradan, the prince of [the] chivalry, had left with Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan. And they took Jeremy, the prophet, and Baruch, the son of Neriah,

<sup>7</sup> and they entered into the land of Egypt; for they obeyed not to the voice of the Lord, and they came unto Tahpanhes.

<sup>8</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy in Tahpanhes, and said,

<sup>9</sup> Take in thine hand great stones, and hide thou those in a den [or hide them in the cave], which is under the wall of tilestone, in the gate of the house of Pharaoh, in Tahpanhes, while all the Jews see it.

<sup>10</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall send, and I shall take Nebuchadnezzar, my servant, the king of Babylon; and I shall set his throne on these stones, which I [have] hid; and he shall set his seat on those stones.

<sup>11</sup> And he shall come, and smite the land of Egypt, which in death into death, and which in captivity into captivity, and which in sword into sword.

<sup>12</sup> And he shall kindle fire in the temples of [the] gods of Egypt, and he shall burn those temples, and shall lead them prisoners; and the land of Egypt shall be wrapped, as a shepherd is wrapped in his mantle; and he shall go out from thence in peace.

<sup>13</sup> And he shall all-break the images of the house of the sun, that be in the land of Egypt; and he shall burn in fire the temples of the gods of Egypt.

CHAPTER 44

<sup>1</sup> The word that was made to Jeremy, and to all the Jews, that dwelled in the land of Egypt, dwelling in Migdol, and in Tahpanhes, and in Memphis, and in the land of Pathros, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Ye saw all this evil, which I brought on Jerusalem, and on all the cities of Judah; and lo! those [or they] be forsaken today, and no dweller is in them;

<sup>3</sup> for the malice which they did, to stir me to wrathfulness [or to wrath], and that they went, and made sacrifice, and worshipped alien gods, which they knew not, both ye, and they, and your fathers.

<sup>4</sup> And I sent to you all my servants prophets; and I rose by night, and sent, and said, Do not ye do the word of such abomination.

<sup>5</sup> And they heard not, neither bowed down their ear, that they shall be converted from their evils, and should not make sacrifice to alien gods.

<sup>6</sup> And mine indignation and my strong vengeance is welled together, and is kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they be turned into wilderness, and wasteness, by this day.

<sup>7</sup> And now the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Why do ye this great evil against your souls, that a man of you perish and a woman, a little child and a sucking infant, from the midst of Judah, neither any residue thing be left in you,

<sup>8</sup> that stir me to wrath by the works of your hands, in making sacrifice to alien gods in the land of Egypt, into which ye entered, that ye dwell there, and that ye perish, and be into cursing, and into shame to all the folks of earth?

<sup>9</sup> Whether ye have forgotten the evils of your fathers, and the evils of the kings of Judah, and the evils of their wives, and your evils, and the evils of your wives, which they did in the land of Judah, and in the countries of Jerusalem?

<sup>10</sup> They be not cleansed unto this day, and they dreaded not, and they went not in the law of the Lord, and in my behests, which I gave before you, and before your fathers.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall set my face in you into evil, and I shall lose all Judah,

<sup>12</sup> and I shall take the remnants of Judah, that setted their faces, to go into the land of Egypt, and to dwell there; and all shall be wasted in the land of Egypt, they shall fall down by sword, and shall be wasted in hunger, from the least unto the most, they shall die by sword and hunger, and shall be into swearing, and into miracle, or wonder, and into cursing, and into shame.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall visit on the dwellers of Egypt, as I visited on Jerusalem, in sword, and in hunger, and in pestilence.

<sup>14</sup> And none shall be, that shall escape, and be [the] residue of the remnants of Jews, that go to be pilgrims in the land of Egypt, and to turn again to the land of Judah, to which they raise [up] their souls, that they turn again, and dwell there; they shall not turn again thither, no but they that fled.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth all men answered to Jeremy, and knew, that their wives made sacrifice to alien gods, and all [the] women, of which a great multitude stood, and all the people of dwellers in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, and said,

<sup>16</sup> We shall not hear of thee the word which thou speakest to us in the name of our Lord God,

<sup>17</sup> but we doing shall do each word that shall go out of our mouth, that we make sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and that we offer to it moist sacrifices, as we did, and our fathers, our kings, and our princes, in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem; and we were *[full-]*filled with loaves, and it was well to us, and we saw none evil.

<sup>18</sup> But from that time, in which we ceased to make sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to offer to it moist sacrifices, we had need to all things, and we were wasted by sword and hunger.

<sup>19</sup> That if we make sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and offer to it moist sacrifices, whether without our hus-bands we made to it cakes, to worship it, and loaves to be offered?

<sup>20</sup> And Jeremy said to all the people, against the men, and against the women, and against all the people, that answered to him the word, and he said,

<sup>21</sup> Whether not the sacrifices which ye sacrificed in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye, and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land, stirred God to vengeance? The Lord had mind on these things, and it ascended [or went up] on his heart;

<sup>22</sup> and the Lord might no more bear, for the malice of your studies, and for the abominations which ye did. And your land is made into desolation, and into wondering, and into curse, for no dweller is, as this day is.

<sup>23</sup> Therefore for ye made sacrifice to idols, and sinned to the Lord, and heard not the voice of the Lord, and went not in the law, and in the commandments, and in the witnesses of him, therefore these evils befell to you, as this day is.

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth Jeremy said to all the people, and to all the women, All Judah, that be in the land of Egypt, hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>25</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, and speaketh, Ye and your wives spake with your mouths, and [ful] filled with your hands, and said, Make we our vows which we vowed, that we make sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and offer to it moist sacrifices; ye [ful] filled your vows, and did those [or them] in work.

<sup>26</sup> Therefore, all Judah, that dwell in the land of Egypt, hear ye the word of the Lord; Lo! I swore in my great name, saith the Lord, that my name shall no more be called by the mouth of each man Jew, saying, The Lord God liveth, in all the land of Egypt.

<sup>27</sup> Lo! I shall wake on them into evil, and not into good; and all the men of Judah, that be in the land of Egypt, shall be wasted, by sword and hunger, till they be wasted utterly.

<sup>28</sup> And a few men that fled the sword, shall turn again from the land of Egypt into the land of Judah; and all the remnants of Judah, of them that enter into the land of Egypt, to dwell there, shall know, whose word shall be [ful] filled, mine either theirs.

<sup>29</sup> And this shall be a sign to you, saith the Lord, that I shall visit on you in this place, that ye know, that verily my words shall be [ful] filled against you into evil.

<sup>30</sup> The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall betake Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that seek his life, as I betook Zedekiah, king of Judah, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, his enemy, and seeking his life.

CHAPTER 45

<sup>1</sup> The word that Jeremy, the prophet, spake to Baruch, the son of Neriah, when he had written these words in the book, of the mouth of Jeremy, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, and said,

<sup>3</sup> Thou saidest, Woe to me wretch, for the Lord increased sorrow to my sorrow; I travailed in my wailing, and I found not rest.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord saith these things, Thus thou shalt say to him, Lo! I destroy them, which I builded, and I draw out them, which I planted, and all this land.

<sup>5</sup> And seekest thou great things to thee? do not thou seek, for lo! I shall bring evil on each man, saith the Lord, and I shall give to thee thy life into health, in all places, to which ever places thou shalt go.

CHAPTER 46

<sup>5</sup> What therefore? I saw them dreadful, either afeared, and turning the backs, the strong men of them slain; and they fled swiftly, and beheld not; dread was on each side, saith the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> A swift man shall not flee, and a strong man guess not himself to be saved; at the north, beside the flood Euphrates, they were overcome, and fell down.

<sup>7</sup> Who is this, that ascendeth [or goeth up] as a flood, and his swells waxed great as of floods?

<sup>8</sup> Egypt ascended [or goeth up] at the likeness of a flood, and his waves shall be moved as [the] floods; and it shall say, I shall ascend, and cover the earth; I shall lose the city, and dwellers thereof.

<sup>9</sup> Ascend ye [or Goeth] upon horses, and make ye full out joy in chariots; and strong men, come forth, Ethiopia and Libya, holding shield, and Lydia, taking and shooting arrows.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth that day of the Lord God of hosts is a day of vengeance, that he take vengeance of his enemies; the sword shall devour, and shall be [full]-filled, and shall greatly be filled with the blood of them; for why the slain sacrifice of the Lord of hosts is in the land of the north, beside the flood Euphrates.

<sup>11</sup> Thou virgin, the daughter of Egypt, go up into Gilead, and take medicine. In vain thou shalt multiply medicines; health shall not be to thee.

<sup>12</sup> Heathen men heard thy shame, and thy yelling filled the earth; for a strong man hurtled against a strong man, and both fell down together.

<sup>13</sup> The word which the Lord spake to Jeremy, the prophet, on that that Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, was to coming, and to smiting the land of Egypt.

<sup>14</sup> Tell ye to Egypt, and make ye heard in Migdol, and sound it in Memphis, and say ye in Tahpanhes, Stand thou, and make thee ready, for a sword shall devour those things that be by thy compass.

<sup>15</sup> Why hath thy strong man waxed rotten? He stood not, for the Lord underturned him.

<sup>16</sup> He multiplied fallers, and a man fell down to his neighbour; and they shall say, Rise ye, and turn we again to our people, and to the land of our birth, from the face of sword of the culver.

<sup>17</sup> Call ye the name of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, The time hath brought noise.

<sup>18</sup> I live, saith the king, the Lord of hosts is his name; for it shall come as Tabor in hills, and as Carmel in the sea.

<sup>19</sup> Thou dwelleress, the daughter of Egypt, make to thee vessels of passing over; for why Memphis shall be into wilderness, and it shall be forsaken [and] uninhabitable.

<sup>20</sup> Egypt is a shapely cow calf, and fair; a pricker from the north shall come to it.

<sup>21</sup> Also the hired men thereof, that lived as calves made fat in the midst thereof, be turned, and fled together, and might not stand; for the day of slaying of them shall come [up] on them, the time of the visiting of them.

<sup>22</sup> The voice of them shall sound as of brass, for they shall hasten with host, and with axes they shall come to it. As men cutting down trees, <sup>23</sup> they cutted down the forest thereof, saith the Lord, which may not be numbered; they be multiplied over locusts, and no number is in them.

<sup>24</sup> The daughter of Egypt is shamed, and betaken into the hand of the people of the north,

<sup>25</sup> said the Lord of hosts, God of Israel. Lo! I shall visit on the noise of Alexandria, and on Pharaoh, and on Egypt, and on the gods thereof, and on the kings thereof, and on them that trust in him.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall give them into the hands of men that seek the life of them, and into the hands of Nebu-chadnezzar, king of Babylon, and into the hands of his servants; and after these things it shall be inhabited, as in the former days, saith the Lord.

<sup>27</sup> And thou, Jacob, my servant, dread thou not, and Israel, dread thou not; for lo! I shall make thee safe from a far place, and thy seed from the land of his captivity; and Jacob shall turn again, and shall rest, and shall have prosperity, and none shall be, that shall make him afearred.

<sup>28</sup> And Jacob, my servant, do not thou dread, saith the Lord, for I am with thee; for I shall waste all folks, to which I casted thee out; but I shall not waste thee, but I shall chastise thee in doom, and I shall not spare thee as innocent.

CHAPTER 47

<sup>2</sup> The Lord saith these things, Lo! waters shall ascend [or go up] from the north, and they shall be as a strand [or stream] overflowing, and they shall cover the land, and the fullness thereof, the city, and the dwellers thereof. Men shall cry, and all the dwellers of the land shall yell,

<sup>3</sup> for the noise of boast of armed men, and of warriors of him, and for moving of his carts, and multitude of his wheels. Fathers beheld not sons with benumbed hands,

<sup>5</sup> Baldness came on Gaza; Ashkelon was still, and the remnants of the valley of them. How long shalt thou fall down, <sup>6</sup> O! sword of the Lord, how long shalt thou not rest? Enter thou into thy sheath, be thou refreshed, and be still.

<sup>7</sup> How shall it rest, when the Lord commanded to it against Ashkelon, and against the sea coasts thereof, and there [he] hath said to it?

CHAPTER 48

<sup>1</sup> To Moab, the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things. Woe on Nebo, for it is destroyed, and shamed; Kiriathaim is taken, the strong city is shamed, and trembled.

<sup>2</sup> And full out joying is no more in Moab; they thought evil against Hesh-bon. Come ye, and lose we it from [the] folk. Therefore thou being still, [thou] shalt be stilled, and sword shall follow thee.

<sup>7</sup> For that that thou haddest trust in thy strongholds, and in thy treasures, also thou shalt be taken. And Chemosh shall go into passing over, the priests thereof and the princes thereof together.

<sup>8</sup> And a robber shall come to each city, and no city shall be saved; and valleys shall perish, and field places shall be destroyed, for the Lord said.

<sup>9</sup> Give ye the flower of Moab, for it shall go out flowering; and the cities thereof shall be forsaken, and uninhabitable.

<sup>10</sup> He is cursed, that doeth the work of God guilefully; and he is cursed, that forbiddeth his sword from blood.

<sup>11</sup> Moab was plenteous from his young waxing age, and rested in his dregs, neither was shed [or poured] out from vessel into vessel, and went not into passing over; therefore his taste dwelled in him, and his odour is not changed.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall send to it ordainers, and arrayers of pottles; and they shall array it, and they shall waste the vessels thereof, and hurtle together the pottles of them.

<sup>13</sup> And Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel, in which it had trust.

<sup>14</sup> How say ye, We be strong, and stalworthy men to fight?

<sup>15</sup> Moab is destroyed, and they have burnt the cities thereof, and the chosen young men thereof went down into slaying, saith the king, the Lord of hosts is his name.

<sup>16</sup> The perishing of Moab is nigh, that it come, and the evil thereof runneth full swiftly.

<sup>17</sup> All ye that be in the compass thereof, comfort it; and all ye that know the name thereof, say, How is the strong rod broken, the glorious staff?

<sup>19</sup> Thou dwelling of Aroer, stand in the way, and behold; ask thou him that fleeth, and him that escaped; say thou, What befell?

<sup>20</sup> Moab is shamed, for he is over-come; yell ye, and cry; tell ye in Arnon, that Moab is destroyed.

<sup>21</sup> And doom is come to the land of the field, on Holon, and on Jahazah, and on Mephaath,

<sup>22</sup> and on Dibon, and on Nebo, and on the house of Diblathaim,

<sup>23</sup> and on Kiriathaim, and on Beth-gamul, and on Bethmeon,

<sup>24</sup> and on Kerioth, and on Bozrah, and on all the cities of the land of Moab, that be far, and that be nigh.

<sup>25</sup> The horn of Moab is cut away, and the arm thereof is all-broken, saith the Lord.

<sup>26</sup> Fill ye him greatly, for he is raised against the Lord; and he shall hurtle down the hand of Moab in his spewing, and he also shall be into scorn.

<sup>27</sup> For why, Israel, he was into scorn to thee, as if thou haddest found him among thieves; therefore for thy words which thou spakest against him, thou shalt be led prisoner.

<sup>28</sup> Ye dwellers of Moab, forsake cities, and dwell in the stone, and be ye as a culver making nest in the highest mouth of an hole.

<sup>29</sup> We have heard the pride of Moab; he is full proud. I know, saith the Lord, the highness thereof, and pride in word, and pride in bearing, and the highness of heart, <sup>30</sup> and the boast thereof, and that the virtue thereof is not nigh, either like it, neither it enforced or endeavoured to do after that that it might.

<sup>31</sup> Therefore I shall wail on Moab, and I shall cry to all Moab, to the men of the earthen wall, that wail.

<sup>32</sup> Of the wailing of Jazer I shall weep to thee, thou vine of Sibmah; thy scions passed the sea, those [or they] came unto the sea of Jazer; a robber fell in on thy ripe corn, and on thy vintage.

<sup>35</sup> And I shall take away from Moab, saith the Lord, him that offereth in high places, and him that maketh sacrifice to the gods thereof.

<sup>36</sup> Therefore mine heart shall sound as a pipe of brass to Moab, and mine heart shall give sound of pipes to the men of the earthen wall; for it did more than it might, therefore they perished.

<sup>37</sup> For why each head shall be bald-ness, and each beard shall be shaved; in all hands shall be binding together, and an hair-shirt shall be on each back.

<sup>38</sup> And all wailing shall be on all the roofs of Moab, and in the streets thereof, for I have all-broken Moab as an unprofitable vessel, saith the Lord.

<sup>39</sup> How is it overcome, and they yelled? how hath Moab cast down the noll, and is shamed? And Moab shall be into scorn, and into ensample to all men in his compass.

<sup>40</sup> The Lord saith these things, Lo! as an eagle he shall fly out, and he shall stretch forth his wings to Moab.

<sup>41</sup> Kerioth is taken, and strongholds be taken; and the heart of strong men of Moab shall be in that day, as the heart of a woman travailing of child.

<sup>42</sup> And Moab shall cease to be a people, for it had glory against the Lord.

<sup>43</sup> Dread, and ditch, and snare is on thee, thou dweller of Moab, saith the Lord.

<sup>44</sup> He that fleeth from the face of dread, shall fall into a ditch; and they that ascend [or go up] from the ditch, shall be taken with a snare. For I shall bring on Moab the year of the visitation of them, saith the Lord.

<sup>46</sup> Moab, woe to thee; thou people of Chemosh, hast perished, for why thy sons and thy daughters be taken into captivity.

<sup>47</sup> And I shall turn the captivity of Moab in the last days, saith the Lord. Hitherto be the dooms of Moab.

CHAPTER 49

<sup>1</sup> To the sons also of Ammon. The Lord saith these things. Whether no sons be of Israel, either an heir is not to it? why therefore wielded Malcham the heritage of Gad, and the people thereof dwelled in the cities of Gad?

<sup>2</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall make the gnashing of battle heard on Rabbah of the sons of Ammon; and it shall be destroyed into noise, and the villages thereof shall be burnt with fire, and Israel shall wield his wielders, saith the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> Yell, ye Heshbon, for Ai is destroyed; cry, ye daughters of Rabbah, gird you with hair-shirts, wail ye, and compass by hedges; for why Malcham shall be led into passing over, the priests thereof and princes thereof together.

<sup>4</sup> What hast thou glory in valleys? Thy valleys floated away [or flowed down], thou delicate daughter, that haddest trust in thy treasures, and saidest, Who shall come to me?

<sup>5</sup> Lo! I shall bring in dread on thee, saith the Lord God of hosts, God of Israel, of all men that be in thy compass; and ye shall be scattered, each by himself, from your sight, and none shall be, that gather them that flee.

<sup>6</sup> And after these things I shall make the fleers and [the] prisoners of the sons of Ammon to turn again, saith the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> To Idumea, the Lord of hosts saith these things. Whether wisdom is no more in Teman? Counsel perished from sons, the wisdom of them is made unprofitable.

<sup>8</sup> Flee ye, and turn ye the backs; go down into a swallow, ye dwellers of Dedan, for I have brought the perdition of Esau on him, the time of his visitation.

<sup>9</sup> If gatherers of grapes had come [up] on thee, they should have left a cluster; if thieves in the night, they should have ravished that that sufficed to them.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth I have uncovered Esau, and I have showed the hid things of him, and he may not be able to be hid; his seed is destroyed, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and it shall not be.

<sup>11</sup> Forsake thy fatherless children, and I shall make them to live, and thy widows shall hope in me.

<sup>12</sup> For the Lord saith these things, Lo! they drinking shall drink, to whom was no doom, that they should drink the cup. And shalt thou be left as innocent? thou shalt not be innocent, but thou drinking shalt drink.

<sup>13</sup> For I swore by myself, saith the Lord, that Bozrah shall be into wilderness, and into shame, and into forsaking, and into cursing; and all the cities thereof shall be into everlasting wildernesses.

<sup>14</sup> I heard an hearing of the Lord, and I am sent a messenger to heathen men; Be ye gathered together, and come ye against them, and rise we together into battle.

<sup>15</sup> For lo! I have given thee a little one among heathen men, despicable among men.

<sup>16</sup> Thy boast, and the pride of thine heart, hath deceived thee, that dwellest in the caves of stone, and enforcest or endeavourest to take the highness of a little hill; when thou as an eagle hast raised thy nest, from thence I shall draw thee down, saith the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> And Idumea shall be forsaken; each man that shall pass by it, shall wonder, and shall hiss on all the wounds thereof;

<sup>18</sup> as Sodom and Gomorrah is destroyed, and the nigh cities thereof, saith the Lord. A man shall not dwell there, and the son of man shall not inhabit it.

<sup>19</sup> Lo! as a lion he shall ascend [or go up] from the pride of Jordan to the strong fairness; for I shall make him run suddenly to it; and who shall be the chosen man whom I shall set [or put] before him? For who is like to me, and who shall suffer me? and who is this shepherd, that shall against-stand my cheer?

<sup>20</sup> Therefore hear ye the counsel of the Lord, which he took to Edom, and his thoughts, which he thought of the dwellers of Teman. If the little of the flock cast not them down, if they destroy not with them the dwelling of them, else no man give credence to me.

<sup>21</sup> The earth was moved of the voice of [the] falling of them; the cry of voice thereof was heard in the Red Sea.

<sup>22</sup> Lo! as an eagle he shall ascend [or go up], and fly out, and he shall spread abroad his wings on Bozrah; and the heart of the strong men of Idumea shall be in that day, as the heart of a woman travailing of child.

<sup>23</sup> To Damascus. Hamath is shamed, and Arpad, for they heard a full wicked hearing; they were troubled in the sea, for anguish they might not have rest.

<sup>24</sup> Damascus was discomfited, it was turned into flight; trembling took it, anguishes and sorrows held it, as a woman travailing of child.

<sup>26</sup> Therefore the young men thereof shall fall in the streets thereof, and all men of battle shall be stilled in that day, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>27</sup> And I shall kindle fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the buildings of Benhadad.

<sup>28</sup> To Kedar, and to the realm[s] of Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, smote, the Lord saith these things. Rise ye, and ascend [or goeth up] to Kedar, and destroy ye the sons of the east.

<sup>29</sup> They shall take the tabernacles of them, and the flocks of them; they shall take to them the skins of them, and all the vessels of them, and the camels of them; and they shall call on them inward dread in compass.

<sup>31</sup> Rise ye together, and ascend ye [or goeth up] to a peaceable folk, and dwelling trustily, saith the Lord; not doors nor bars be to it, and they dwell alone.

<sup>32</sup> And the camels of them shall be into ravishing, and the multitude of their beasts into prey; and I shall scatter them into each wind, that be beclipped on the long hair, and by each coast of them I shall bring perishing on them, saith the Lord.

<sup>33</sup> And Hazor shall be into a dwelling place of dragons; it shall be forsaken till into without end; a man shall not dwell there, neither the son of man shall inhabit it.

<sup>34</sup> The word of the Lord that was made to Jeremy, the prophet, against Elam, in the beginning of the realm of Zedekiah, king of Judah, and said,

<sup>35</sup> The Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall break the bow of Elam, and I shall take the strength of them.

<sup>36</sup> And I shall bring on Elam four winds, from [the] four coasts of heaven, and I shall winnow them into all these winds, and no folk shall be, to whom the fleers of Elam shall not come.

<sup>37</sup> And I shall make Elam for to dread before their enemies, and in the sight of men seeking the life of them; and I shall bring on them evil, the wrath of my strong vengeance, saith the Lord; and I shall send after them a sword, till I waste them.

<sup>38</sup> And I shall set my king's seat in Elam, and I shall lose thereof kings, and princes, saith the Lord.

<sup>39</sup> But in the last days I shall make the prisoners of Elam to turn again, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 50

<sup>2</sup> Tell ye among heathen men, and make ye heard; raise ye [up] a sign; preach ye, and do not ye hold still; say ye, Babylon is taken, Bel is shamed, Merodach is overcome; the graven images thereof be shamed, the idols of them be overcome.

<sup>3</sup> For a folk shall ascend [or go up] from the north against it, which folk shall set the land thereof into wilder-ness; and none shall be that shall dwell therein, from man unto beast; and they be moved, and went away.

<sup>4</sup> In those days, and in that time, saith the Lord, the sons of Israel shall come, they and the sons of Judah together, going and weeping; they shall haste, and seek their Lord God in Zion,

<sup>5</sup> and they shall ask the way. Hither the faces of them shall come, and they shall be set to the Lord with bond of peace everlasting, which shall not be done away by any forgetting.

<sup>6</sup> My people is made a lost flock, the shepherds of them deceived them, and made them to go unstably in hills; they passed from mountain into a little hill, they forgot their bed.

<sup>7</sup> All men that found, ate them, and the enemies of them said, We sinned not, for that they sinned to the Lord, the fairness of rightfulness, and to the Lord, the abiding of their fathers.

<sup>8</sup> Go ye away from the midst of Babylon, and go ye out of the land of Chaldees, and be ye as kids before the flock.

<sup>9</sup> For lo! I shall raise, and bring into Babylon the gathering together of great folks, from the land of the north; and they shall be made ready against it, and it shall be taken in the day; the arrows thereof as of a strong man, a slayer, shall not turn again [void].

<sup>10</sup> And Chaldea shall be into prey, all that destroy it, shall be [ful] filled, saith the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> For ye make full out joy, and speak great things, and ravish mine heritage; for ye be shed [or poured] out as calves on herb, and lowed, or bellowed, as bulls.

<sup>12</sup> Your mother is shamed greatly, and she that engendered you, is made even to dust; lo! she shall be the last among folks, and forsaken, without way, and dry.

<sup>13</sup> For the wrath of the Lord it shall not be inhabited, but it shall be driven all into wilderness; each that shall pass by Babylon, shall wonder, and shall hiss on all the wounds thereof.

<sup>14</sup> All ye that bend bow, be made ready against Babylon by compass; overcome ye it, spare ye not arrows, for it sinned to the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> Cry ye against it, everywhere it gave hand; the foundations thereof fell down, and the walls thereof be destroyed; for it is the vengeance of the Lord. Take ye vengeance of it; as it did, do ye to it.

<sup>16</sup> Lose ye a sower of Babylon, and him that holdeth a sickle in the time of harvest, from the face of [the] sword of the culver; each man shall be turned to his people, and each man shall flee to his land.

<sup>17</sup> Israel is a scattered flock, lions casted out it; first king of Assur ate it, this last, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, did away the bones thereof.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, Lo! I shall visit the king of Babylon, and his land, as I visited the king of Assur;

<sup>19</sup> and I shall bring again Israel to his dwelling place. Carmel and Bashan shall be fed, and his soul shall be [ful] filled in the hill [or mount] of Ephraim, and of Gilead.

<sup>20</sup> In those days, and in that time, saith the Lord, the wickedness of Israel shall be sought, and it shall not be; and the sin of Judah shall be sought, and it shall not be found; for I shall be merciful to them, which I shall forsake or leave.

<sup>21</sup> Ascend thou [or go thou up] on the land of the lords, and visit thou on the dwellers thereof; scatter thou, and slay those things, that be after them, saith the Lord; and do thou by all things which I commanded to thee.

<sup>23</sup> How is the hammer of all earth broken and all-defouled? how is Babylon turned into desert, among heathen men?

<sup>24</sup> Babylon, I have snared thee, and thou art taken, and thou knewest not; thou art found, and taken, for thou stirredest the Lord to wrath.

<sup>25</sup> The Lord opened his treasure, and brought forth the vessels of his wrath; for why a work is to the Lord God of hosts in the land of Chaldees.

<sup>27</sup> Destroy ye all the strong men thereof, go they down into slaying; woe to them, for the day of them cometh, the time of visiting of them.

<sup>28</sup> The voice of fleers, and of them that escaped from the land of Babylon, that they tell in Zion the vengeance of our Lord God, the vengeance of his temple.

<sup>29</sup> Tell ye against Babylon to full many men, to all that bend bow. Stand ye together against it by compass, and let none escape; yield ye to it after his work, after all things which it did, do ye to it; for it was raised against the Lord, against the Holy of Israel.

<sup>30</sup> Therefore young men thereof shall fall down in the streets thereof, and all men warriors thereof shall be stilled in that day, saith the Lord.

<sup>31</sup> Lo! thou proud, I to thee, saith the Lord of hosts, for thy day is come, the time of thy visitation.

<sup>32</sup> And the proud shall fall, and shall fall down together, and none shall be, that shall raise him; and I shall kindle fire in the cities of him, and it shall devour all things in compass of it.

<sup>33</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, The sons of Israel and the sons of Judah together suffer false challenge; all that took them, hold, they will not deliver them.

<sup>34</sup> The again-buyer of them is strong, the Lord of hosts is his name; by doom he shall defend the cause of them, that he make the land afeared, and stir together the dwellers of Babylon.

<sup>35</sup> A sword to Chaldees, saith the Lord, and to the dwellers of Babylon, and to the princes, and to the wise men thereof.

<sup>36</sup> A sword to the false diviners thereof, that shall be fools; a sword to the strong men thereof, that shall dread.

<sup>37</sup> Sword to the horses thereof, and to the chariots thereof, and to all the common people which is in the midst thereof, and they shall be as women; a sword to the treasures thereof, that shall be ravished.

<sup>38</sup> Dryness shall be on the waters thereof, and they shall be dry; for it is the land of graven images, and hath glory in false feignings.

<sup>39</sup> Therefore dragons shall dwell with fond wild men, and ostriches shall dwell therein; and it shall no more be inhabited till into without end, and it shall not be builded till to generation and generation;

<sup>40</sup> as the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, and the nigh cities there-of, saith the Lord. A man shall not dwell there, and the son of man shall not dwell in it.

<sup>41</sup> Lo! a people cometh from the north, and a great folk, and many kings shall rise together from the ends of [the] earth.

<sup>42</sup> They shall take bow and sword, they be cruel and unmerciful; the voice of them shall sound as the sea, and they shall ascend [or go up] on horses as a man made ready to battle, against thee, thou daughter of Babylon.

<sup>43</sup> The king of Babylon heard the fame of them, and his hands be made numb; anguish took him, sorrow took him, as a woman travailing of child.

<sup>44</sup> Lo! as a lion he shall ascend [or goeth up] from the pride of Jordan to the strong fairness, for I shall make him to run suddenly to it; and who shall be the chosen man whom I shall set [or put] before him? For who is like me? and who shall suffer me? and who is this shepherd, that shall against-stand my cheer?

<sup>45</sup> Therefore hear ye the counsel of the Lord, which he conceived in mind against Babylon, and his thoughts, which he thought on the land of Chaldees, no but the little of the flocks draw them down, no but the dwelling place of them be destroyed with them, else no man give credence to me.

<sup>46</sup> The earth is moved of the voice of [the] captivity of Babylon, and cry is heard among heathen men.

CHAPTER 51

<sup>1</sup> The Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall raise on Babylon, and on the dwellers thereof, that raised their heart against me, as a wind of pestilence.

<sup>2</sup> And I shall send into Babylon winnowers, and they shall winnow it, and shall destroy the land of it; for they came on it on each side, in the day of the torment thereof.

<sup>4</sup> And slain men shall fall in the land of Chaldees, and wounded men in the countries thereof.

<sup>5</sup> For why Israel and Judah was not made widow from their God, the Lord of hosts; but the land of them was filled with trespass of the Holy of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> Babylon is a golden cup in the hand of the Lord, and filleth all [the] earth; heathen men drank of the wine thereof, and therefore they be moved.

<sup>8</sup> Babylon fell down suddenly, and is all-broken; yell ye on it, take ye resin to the sorrow thereof, if peradventure it be healed.

<sup>9</sup> We healed Babylon, and it is not made whole; forsake we it and go we each into his land; for the doom thereof came till to heavens, and is raised [up] till to [the] clouds.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord hath brought forth our rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses]; come ye, and tell we in Zion the work of our Lord God.

<sup>11</sup> Sharpen ye arrows, fill ye arrow cases; the Lord hath raised the spirit of the kings of Medes, and his mind is against Babylon, that he lose it, for it is the vengeance of the Lord, the vengeance of his temple. The king of Medes is raised of the Lord against Babylon.

<sup>13</sup> A! thou Babylon, that dwellest on many waters, rich in thy treasures, thine end cometh, the foot-measure of thy cutting down.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord of hosts swore by his soul, that I shall fill thee with men, as with bruchuses, and a merry song shall be sung on thee.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord swore, which made [the] earth by his strength, made ready the world by his wisdom, and stretched forth heavens by his prudence.

<sup>16</sup> When he giveth voice, waters be multiplied in heaven; which Lord raiseth clouds from [the] last of the earth, he made lightnings into rain, and brought forth wind of his treasures or treasuries.

<sup>19</sup> The part of Jacob is not as these things; for he that made all things is the part of Jacob, and Israel is the sceptre of his heritage; the Lord of hosts is his name.

<sup>20</sup> Thou hurtlest down to me the instruments of battle, and I shall hurtle down folks in thee, and I shall lose realms in thee;

<sup>21</sup> and I shall hurtle down in thee an horse, and the rider thereof; and I shall hurtle down in thee a chariot, and the rider thereof;

<sup>22</sup> and I shall hurtle down in thee man and woman; and I shall hurtle down in thee eld [for old] man and child; and I shall hurtle down in thee a young man and a virgin;

<sup>23</sup> and I shall hurtle down in thee a shepherd and his flock; and I shall hurtle down in thee an earth-tiller and his yoke beasts; and I shall hurtle down in thee dukes and magistrates.

<sup>24</sup> And I shall yield, saith the Lord, to Babylon, and to all the dwellers of Chaldea, all their evil, which they did in Zion, before your eyes.

<sup>25</sup> Lo! I, saith the Lord, to thee, thou hill bearing pestilence, which corruptest all [the] earth. I shall stretch forth mine hand on thee, and I shall unwrap thee from stones, and I shall give thee into an hill of burning.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall not take of thee a stone into a corner, and a stone into foundations; but thou shalt be lost without end, saith the Lord.

<sup>27</sup> Raise ye a sign in the land, sound ye with a clarion in hills; hallow ye folks on it, tell ye to the kings of Ararat, of Minni, and of Ashchenaz against it; number ye Tifsar, that is, the leader of the host, against it, and bring ye an horse, as a bruchus having a prick.

<sup>28</sup> Hallow ye folks against it, the kings of Media, the dukes thereof, and all the magistrates thereof, and all the land of his power.

<sup>29</sup> And the earth shall be moved, and shall be troubled; for the thought of the Lord shall fully awaken against Babylon, that he set the land of Babylon desert, and uninhabitable.

<sup>32</sup> and the forths be before-occupied, and the marishes be burnt with fire, and the men warriors be troubled.

<sup>33</sup> For the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, saith these things, The daughter of Babylon is as a cornfloor, the time of threshing thereof; yet a little, and the time of reaping thereof shall come.

<sup>34</sup> Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, ate me, and devoured me; he made me as a void vessel, he as a dragon swallowed me; he filled his womb with my tenderness, and he casted me out.

<sup>35</sup> Wickedness against me, and my flesh on Babylon, saith the dwelling [for the dwellers] of Zion; and my blood on the dwellers of Chaldea, saith Jerusalem.

<sup>36</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Lo! I shall deem thy cause, and I shall avenge thy vengeance; and I shall make the sea thereof forsaken, and I shall make dry the vein thereof.

<sup>37</sup> And Babylon shall be into burials, it shall be the dwelling of dragons, wondering, and hissing, for that no dweller is.

<sup>39</sup> In the heat of them I shall set [or put] the drinks of them; and I shall make them drunken, that they be brought asleep, and that they sleep everlasting sleep, and rise not, saith the Lord.

<sup>40</sup> I shall lead forth them, as lambs to slain sacrifice, and as wethers with kids.

<sup>41</sup> How is Sheshach* taken, and the noble city of all earth is taken? How is Babylon made into wonder among heathen men?

<sup>42</sup> And the sea ascended [or went up] on Babylon, it was covered with the multitude of his waves.

<sup>43</sup> The cities thereof be made into wondering, the land is made uninhabitable and forsaken; the land wherein no man dwelleth, and the son of man shall not pass by it.

<sup>44</sup> And I shall visit on Bel into Babylon, and I shall cast out of his mouth that, that he had swallowed, and folks shall no more flow to it; for also the wall of Babylon shall fall down.

<sup>45</sup> My people, go ye out from the midst thereof, that each man save his soul from the wrath of the strong vengeance of the Lord;

<sup>46</sup> and lest peradventure your heart wax nesh, and lest ye dread the hearing, that shall be heard in the land; and hearing shall come in a year, and after this year shall come hearing, and wickedness in the land, and a lord on a lord.

<sup>47</sup> Therefore lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall visit on the graven images of Babylon; and all the land thereof shall be shamed, and all slain men thereof shall fall down in the midst thereof.

<sup>48</sup> And heaven's, and earth's, and all things that be in those [or them], shall praise on Babylon; for raveners shall come from the north to it, saith the Lord.

<sup>49</sup> And as Babylon did, that slain men fell down in Israel, so of Babylon slain men shall fall down and in all the land.

<sup>50</sup> Come ye, that fled the sword, do not ye stand; have ye mind afar on the Lord, and Jerusalem ascend [or go up] on your heart.

<sup>51</sup> We be shamed, for we heard shame; shame covered our faces, for aliens came on the hallowing of the house of the Lord.

<sup>52</sup> Therefore lo! days come, saith the Lord, and I shall visit on the graven images of Babylon, and in all the land thereof a wounded man shall bellow.

<sup>53</sup> If Babylon ascendeth [or go up] into heaven, and maketh steadfast his strength on high, destroyers thereof shall come of me, saith the Lord.

<sup>55</sup> for the Lord destroyed Babylon, and lost [or destroyed] of it a great voice; and the waves of them shall sound as many waters. The voice of them gave sound, <sup>56</sup> for a raven came [up] on it, that is, [up] on Babylon; and the strong men thereof be taken, and the bow of them withered, for the strong avenger, the Lord, yielding [again] shall yield.

<sup>57</sup> And I shall make drunken the princes thereof, and the wise men thereof, the dukes thereof, and the magistrates thereof, and the strong men thereof; and they shall sleep everlasting sleep, and they shall not be awakened, saith the king, the Lord of hosts is name of him.

<sup>58</sup> The Lord God of hosts saith these things, That broadest wall of Babylon shall be [under] mined with [under]-mining, and the high gates thereof shall be burnt with fire; and the travails of peoples shall be to nought, and the travails of heathen men shall be into fire, and shall perish.

<sup>59</sup> The word which Jeremy, the prophet, commanded to Seraiah, son of Neriah, son of Maaseiah, when he went with Zedekiah, the king, into Babylon, in the fourth year of his realm; forsooth Seraiah was prince of prophecy.

<sup>60</sup> And Jeremy wrote all the evil, that was to coming [or to come] [up] on Babylon, in a book, all these words that were written against Babylon.

<sup>61</sup> And Jeremy said to Seraiah, When thou comest into Babylon, and seest, and readest all these words, <sup>62</sup> thou shalt say, Lord, thou spakest against this place, that thou shouldest lose it, that none be that dwell therein, from man unto beast, and that it be an everlasting wilderness.

<sup>63</sup> And when thou hast [ful] filled to read this book, thou shalt bind to it a stone, and thou shalt cast it forth into the midst of Euphrates;

<sup>64</sup> and thou shalt say, So Babylon shall be drowned, and it shall not rise from the face of torment, which I bring [up] on it, and it shall be destroyed. Hitherto be the words of Jeremy.

CHAPTER 52

<sup>1</sup> Zedekiah was a son of one and twenty years, when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem; and the name of his mother was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremy of Libnah.

<sup>2</sup> And he did evils before the eyes of the Lord, by all things which Jehoiakim had done.

<sup>3</sup> For the strong vengeance of the Lord was in Jerusalem, and in Judah, till he casted them away from his face. And Zedekiah went away from the king of Babylon.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth it was done in the ninth year of his realm, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, came, he and all his host, against Jerusalem; and they besieged it, and builded against it strongholds in compass.

<sup>5</sup> And the city was besieged, till to the eleventh year of the realm of Zedekiah.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth in the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, hunger held the city; and foods were not to the people of the land.

<sup>7</sup> And the city was broken, and all men warriors thereof fled; and they went out of the city in the night, by the way of the gate, which is betwixt two walls, and leadeth to the garden of the king, while [the] Chaldees besieged the city in compass; and they went forth by the way that leadeth into desert.

<sup>8</sup> Soothly the host of Chaldees pursued the king; and they took Zedekiah in desert, which is beside Jericho, and all his fellowship fled away from him.

<sup>9</sup> And when they had taken the king, they brought him to the king of Babylon in Riblah, which is in the land of Hamath; and the king of Babylon spake dooms to him.

<sup>10</sup> And the king of Babylon strangled the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes; but also he killed all the princes of Judah in Riblah.

<sup>11</sup> And he putted out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him in stocks; and the king of Babylon brought him into Babylon, and putted him in the house of the prison, till to the day of his death.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth in the ninth month, in the tenth day of the month, that is the nineteenth year of the king of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, the prince of [the] chivalry, that stood before the king of Babylon, came into Jerusalem.

<sup>13</sup> And he burnt the house of the Lord, and the house of the king, and all the houses of Jerusalem; and he burnt with fire each great house.

<sup>14</sup> And all the host of Chaldees, that was with the master of the chivalry, destroyed all the wall of Jerusalem by compass.

<sup>15</sup> Soothly Nebuzaradan, the prince of [the] chivalry, translated of the poor men of the people, and of the residue common people, that was left in the city, and of the fleers-over, that fled over to the king of Babylon; and he translated or brought over other men of the multitude.

<sup>17</sup> Also Chaldees brake the brazen pillars, that were in the house of the Lord, and the foundations, and the brazen washing vessel, that was in the house of the Lord; and they took all the metal of those [or of them] into Babylon.

<sup>18</sup> And they took cauldrons, and fleshhooks, and psalteries, and vials, and mortars, and all brazen vessels, that were in service;

<sup>19</sup> they took also [the] water pots, and vessels of incense, and pots, and basins, and candlesticks, and mortars, and little cups; how many ever golden, golden, and how many ever silveren, silveren.

<sup>20</sup> The master of the chivalry took two pillars, and one washing vessel, and [the] twelve brazen calves, that were under the foundations, which king Solomon had made in the house of the Lord. No weight was of the metal of all these vessels.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth of the pillars, eighteen cubits of height were in one pillar, and a rope of twelve cubits encompassed it; certainly the thickness thereof was of four fingers, and was hollow within.

<sup>22</sup> And brazen pommels were on ever either; and the height of one pommel was of five cubits; and works like nets and pomegranates were on the crown in compass, [all was brazen. Like manner was the second pillar, and the pomegranates; and they were upon the head in compass, all brazen, like manner of the tother pillar].

<sup>23</sup> And the pomegranates were ninety and six hanging down, and all [the] pomegranates were encompassed with an hundred works like nets.

<sup>24</sup> And the master of the chivalry took Seraiah, the first priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest, and [the] three keepers of the vestiary.

<sup>25</sup> And of the city he took one chaste servant and honest, that was sovereign on the men warriors; and seven men of them that saw the face of the king, which were found in the cities; and a scribe, prince of knights, that proved [the] young knights; and sixty men of the people of the land, that were found in the midst of the city.

<sup>26</sup> Forsooth Nebuzaradan, the master of [the] chivalry, took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon in Riblah.

<sup>27</sup> And the king of Babylon smote them, and killed them in Riblah, in the land of Hamath; and Judah was translated from his land.

<sup>28</sup> This is the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar translated in the seventh year; Jews, three thousand and three and twenty.

<sup>29</sup> In the eighteenth year, Nebuchadnezzar translated from Jerusalem eight hundred and two and thirty persons.

<sup>30</sup> In the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan, the master of [the] chivalry, translated seven hundred and five and forty persons of Jews. Therefore all the persons were four thousand and six hundred.

<sup>31</sup> And it was done, in the seven and thirtieth year of the passing over of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, in the twelfth month, in the five and twentieth day of the month, Evilmerodach, king of Babylon, raised [up] in that year of his realm the head of Jehoiachin, king of Judah; and led him out of the house of the prison,

<sup>32</sup> and spake good things with him. And he setted the throne of him [or put his throne] above the thrones of kings, that were after him in Babylon,

<sup>33</sup> and changed the clothes of his prison. And Jehoiachin ate bread before him ever[more], in all the days of his life;

<sup>34</sup> and his meats, everlasting meats were given to him of the king of Babylon, ordained by each day, till to the day of his death, in all the days of his life.

LAMENTATIONS

<sup>1</sup> How sitteth alone the city that once was full of people? the lady of folks is made as a widow; the princess of provinces is made under tribute.

<sup>2</sup> It* weeping wept in the night, and the tears thereof be in the cheeks thereof; there is none of all the dear-worthy thereof, that comforteth it; all the friends thereof forsook it, and be made enemies to it.

<sup>3</sup> Judah passed from torment and multitude of servage, it dwelled among heathen men, and found no rest; all the pursuers thereof took it among anguishes.

<sup>5</sup> The enemies thereof be made in the head, and the enemies thereof be made rich, for the Lord spake on it. For the multitude of wickednesses thereof the little children thereof be led into captivity, before the face of the troubler.

<sup>6</sup> And all the fairness of the daughter of Zion went out from the daughter of Zion; the princes thereof be made as rams not finding pastures; and went forth without strength before the face of the pursuer [or of the follower].

<sup>7</sup> And Jerusalem bethought on the days of her affliction and of trespassing, and on all her desirable things which it had from [the] eld [or old] days; when the people thereof fell down in the hand of enemies, and none helper was; [the] enemies saw it, and scorned the sabbaths thereof.

<sup>8</sup> Jerusalem sinned a sin, therefore it was made unsteadfast; all that glorified it forsook it, for they saw the shame thereof; forsooth it wailed, and was turned aback.

<sup>9</sup> The filths thereof be in the feet thereof, and it had no mind of her end; it was put down greatly, and had no comforter; Lord, see thou my torment, for the enemy is raised [up].

<sup>10</sup> The enemy put his hand to all the desirable things thereof; for it saw heathen men entered into thy saintuary, of which thou haddest commanded, that they should not enter into thy church.

<sup>11</sup> All the people thereof was wailing and seeking bread, they gave all precious things for meat, to strengthen the soul; and the city saith, See thou, Lord, and behold, for I am made vile.

<sup>12</sup> A! all ye that pass by the way, perceive, and see, if any sorrow is as my sorrow; for he gathered away my grapes from me, as the Lord spake in the day of wrath of his strong venge-ance.

<sup>13</sup> From on high he sent fire in my bones, and taught me; he spreaded abroad a net to my feet, he turned me aback; he setted me desolate, meddled together all day with mourning.

<sup>14</sup> The yoke of my wickednesses watched in the hand of him, those be folded together, and put on my neck; my strength is made feeble; the Lord gave me in the hand, from which I shall not be able to rise.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord took away all my wor-shipful men from the midst of me; he called time against me, that he should all-foul my chosen men; the Lord stamped a presser [or the press trod] to the virgin, the daughter of Judah.

---

* CHAPTER 1:2 Throughout Chapter 1, where the "Later Version" uses the impersonal 'it' and 'thereof', the "Early Version" and most other translations use 'she' and 'her'.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore I am weeping, and mine eye is leading down water; for a comforter, converting my soul, is made far from me; my sons be made lost, for the enemy had the mastery.

<sup>17</sup> Zion spreaded abroad his hands, none is that comforteth it; the Lord sent against Jacob enemies thereof, in the compass thereof; Jerusalem is made as defouled with unclean blood among them.

<sup>18</sup> And the city saith, The Lord is just [or rightwise], for I stirred his mouth to wrathfulness [or wrath]; all peoples, I beseech, hear ye, and see my sorrow; my virgins and my young men went forth into captivity.

<sup>19</sup> I called my friends, and they deceived me; my priests and mine eld [or old] men in the city be wasted; for they sought meat to themselves, to comfort their life [or refresh their soul].

<sup>20</sup> See thou, Lord, for I am troubled, my womb is disturbed; mine heart is destroyed in myself, for I am full of bitterness; [the] sword slayeth without-forth, and like death is at home.

<sup>21</sup> They heard, that I make inward wailing, and none is that comforteth me; all mine enemies heard of mine evil, they be glad, for thou hast done it; thou hast brought a day of comfort, and they shall be made like me.

<sup>22</sup> All the evil of them enter before thee, and gather thou grapes away from them, as thou hast gathered grapes away from me, for my wicked-nesses; for my wailings be many, and mine heart is mourning.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> How hath the Lord covered the daughter of Zion with darkness in his strong vengeance? he hath cast down from heaven into earth the noble city of Israel; and bethought not on the stool of his feet, in the day of his strong vengeance.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord casted down, and spared not, all the fair things of Jacob; he destroyed in his strong vengeance the strengths or strongholds of the virgin of Judah, and casted down into [the] earth; he defouled the realm, and the princes thereof.

<sup>3</sup> He brake in the ire [or the wrath] of his strong vengeance all the horn of Israel; he turned aback his right hand from the face of the enemy; and he kindled in Jacob, as fire of flame devouring in compass.

<sup>4</sup> He as an enemy bent his bow, he as an adversary made steadfast his right hand; and he killed all thing that was fair in sight in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion; he shedded [or poured] out his indignation as fire.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord is made as an enemy; he casted down Israel, he casted down all the walls thereof; he des-troyed the strengths thereof, and filled in the daughter of Judah a man made low, and a woman made low.

<sup>6</sup> And he scattered his tent as a garden, he destroyed his tabernacle; the Lord gave to forgetting in Zion a feast day, and sabbath; and put the king and priest into shame, and into the indignation of his strong vengeance.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord putted away his altar, he cursed his hallowing; he betook into the hands of the enemy the walls of the towers thereof; they gave voice in the house of the Lord, as in a solemn day.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord thought to destroy the wall of the daughter of Zion; he stretched forth his cord, and turned not away his hand from perdition; the forewall, either the outward, mourned, and the wall was destroyed altogether.

<sup>9</sup> The gates thereof be pitched in the earth, he lost and all-brake the bars thereof; the king thereof and the princes thereof be among heathen men; the law is not, and the prophets thereof found not of the Lord a vision, either revelation.

<sup>10</sup> They sat in [the] earth, the eld [or old] men of the daughter of Zion were still; they besprinkled their heads with ashes, the elder men of Judah be girt with hair-shirts; the virgins of Judah casted down to the earth their heads.

<sup>11</sup> Mine eyes failed for tears, mine entrails were troubled or disturbed; my maw was shed [or poured] out in [the] earth upon the sorrow of the daughter of my people; when a little child and [the] sucking infant failed in the streets of the city.

<sup>12</sup> They said to their mothers, Where is wheat, and wine? when they failed as wounded men in the streets of the city; yea, when they sent out their souls in the bosom of their mothers.

<sup>13</sup> To whom shall I comparison thee? either to whom shall I liken thee, thou daughter of Jerusalem? to whom shall I make thee even, and shall I comfort thee, thou virgin, the daughter of Zion? for why thy sorrow is great as the sea; who shall do medicine to thee?

<sup>14</sup> Thy prophets saw to thee false things, and fond [or foolish]; and they opened not thy wickedness, that they should stir thee to penance; but they saw to thee false takings, and castings out.

<sup>15</sup> All men passing on the way clapped with hands on thee; they hissed, and moved their head on the daughter of Jerusalem; and said, This is the city of perfect fairness, the joy of all earth.

<sup>16</sup> All thine enemies opened their mouth on thee; they hissed, and gnashed with their teeth, and said, We shall devour; lo! this is the day which we abided, we found, we saw.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord did those things which he thought, he [ful] filled his word which he had commanded from [the] eld [or old] days; he destroyed, and spared not; and made glad the enemy on thee; and enhanced the horn of thine enemies.

<sup>18</sup> The heart of them cried to the Lord, on the walls of the daughter of Zion; lead thou forth tears as a strand [or a stream], by day and night; give thou not rest to thee, neither the apple of thine eye be still.

<sup>19</sup> Rise thou together, praise thou in the night, in the beginning of the wakings [or watches]; shed [or pour] out thine heart as water, before the sight of the Lord; raise thine hands to him for the souls of thy little children, that failed for hunger in the head of all meetings of ways.

<sup>20</sup> See thou, Lord, and behold, whom thou hast made so bare; therefore whether women shall eat their fruit, their little children at the measure of an hand? for a priest and prophet is slain in the saintuary of the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> A child and an eld [or old] man lie on the earth withoutforth; my virgins and my young men fell down by sword; thou hast slain them in the day of thy strong vengeance, thou smotest and didest no mercy.

<sup>22</sup> Thou callest, as to a solemn day, them that made me afeared of compass; and none was that escaped in the day of the strong vengeance of the Lord, and was left; mine enemy wasted them, which I fed, and nourished up.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> I am a man seeing my poverty in the rod of his indignation.

<sup>2</sup> He drove me, and brought into darkneses, and not into light.

<sup>3</sup> Only he turned into me, and turned altogether his hand all day.

<sup>4</sup> He made eld my skin, and my flesh; he all-brake my bones.

<sup>5</sup> He builded in my compass, and he encompassed me with gall and travail.

<sup>7</sup> He builded about against me, that I go not out; he aggrieved my gyves or fetters.

<sup>8</sup> But and when I cry and pray, he hath excluded my prayer.

- 9 He enclosed altogether my ways with square stones; he destroyed my paths.
10 He is made like a bear setting ambush to me, like a lion in hid places.
11 He destroyed my paths, and brake me; he setted me desolate.
12 He bent his bow, and setted me as a sign to an arrow.
13 He sent in my reins the daughters of his arrow case.
14 I am made into scorn to all the people, the song of them all day.
15 He filled me with bitternesses; he greatly filled me with wormwood.
16 He brake at number my teeth; he fed me with ashes.
17 And my soul is put away; I have forgotten goods.
18 And I said, Mine end perished, and mine hope, from the Lord.
19 Have thou mind on my poverty, and going over, and on wormwood and gall.
20 By mind I shall be mindful; and my soul shall fail in me.
21 I bethink these things in mine heart, I shall hope in God.
22 The mercies of the Lord be many, for we be not wasted; for why his merciful doings failed not.
23 I knew in the morrowtide; thy faith is much [or much is thy faith].
24 My soul said, The Lord is my part; therefore I shall abide him.
25 The Lord is good to them that hope into him, to a soul seeking him.
26 It is good to abide with stillness the health of God.
27 It is good to a man, when he hath borne the yoke of his youth.
28 He shall sit alone, and he shall be still; for he raised himself above himself.
29 He shall set his mouth in dust, if peradventure hope is.
30 He shall give the cheek to a man that smiteth him; he shall be filled with shames.
31 For the Lord shall not put away without end.
32 For if he casted away, and he shall do mercy after the multitude of his mercies.
33 For he maked not low of his heart; and casted not away the sons of men.
34 That he should all-foul under his feet all the bound men of [the] earth.
35 That he should bow down the doom of a man, in the sight of the cheer of the Highest.
36 That he should pervert a man in his doom, the Lord knew not.
37 Who is this that said, that a thing should be done, when the Lord commandeth not?
38 Neither goods neither evils shall go out of the mouth of the Highest.
39 What grutched a man living, a man punished for his sins?
40 Search we our ways, and seek we, and turn we again to the Lord.
41 Raise we our hearts with hands, to the Lord into heavens.
42 We have done wickedly, and have stirred thee to wrath; therefore thou art not able to be prayed.
43 Thou coveredest in strong venge-ance, and smitedest us; thou killedest, and sparedest not.
44 Thou settedest a cloud to thee, that prayer pass not.
45 Thou settedest me, drawing up by the root, and casting out, in the midst of [the] peoples.
46 All [the] enemies opened their mouth on us.
47 Inward dread and snare is made to us, prophecy and defouling.
48 Mine eyes led down partings of waters, for the defouling of the daughter of my people.
49 Mine eye was tormented, and was not still; for no rest was.
50 Until the Lord beheld, and saw from heavens.
51 Mine eye robbed my soul in all the daughters of my city.

52 Mine enemies took me without cause, by hunting me as a bird.
 53 My life slid into a pit; and they putted a stone on me.
 54 Waters flowed over mine head; I said, I perish.
 55 Lord, I called to help thy name, from the last pit.
 56 Thou heardest my voice; turn thou not away thine ear from my sobbing and cries.
 57 Thou nighedest to me in the day, wherein I called thee to help; thou saidest, Dread thou not.
 58 Lord, again-buyer of my life, thou deemedest the cause of my soul.
 59 Lord, thou sawest the wickedness of them against me; deem thou my doom.
 60 Thou sawest all the strong vengeance, all the thoughts of them against me.
 61 Lord, thou heardest the shames of them; all the thoughts of them against me.
 62 The lips of men rising against me, and the thoughts of them against me all day.
 63 See thou the sitting and rising again of them; I am the psalm of them.
 64 Lord, thou shalt yield while to them, by the works of their hands.
 65 Thou shalt give to them the shield of heart, thy travail.
 66 Lord, thou shalt pursue them in thy strong vengeance, and thou shalt defoul them under heavens.

CHAPTER 4

1 How is gold made dark, the best colour is changed? the stones of the saintuary be scattered in the head of all streets.
 2 The noble sons of Zion, and clothed with the best gold, how be they areckoned into earthen vessels, into the work of the hands of a potter?
 3 But also lamias or lamiae made naked their teats, gave milk to their whelps; the daughter of my people is cruel, as an ostrich in desert.
 4 The tongue of the sucking child cleaved to his palate in thirst; little children asked for bread, and none was that brake to them.
 5 They that ate lustfully, perished in ways; they that were nourished in cradles, embraced turds.
 6 And the wickedness of the daughter of my people is made more than the sin of men of Sodom, that was destroyed in a moment, and hands took not therein.
 7 Nazarites thereof were whiter than snow, shiner than milk; ruddier than eld [or old] ivory, fairer than sapphire.
 8 The face of them was made blacker than coals, and they were not known in streets; the skin cleaved to their bones, it dried, and was made as a stick.
 9 It was better to men slain with sword, than to men slain with hunger; for these men waxed rotten, they were wasted of the barrenness of [the] earth.
 10 The hands of merciful women seethed their children; they were made the meats of those women in the sorrow of the daughter of my people.
 11 The Lord [ful] filled his strong vengeance, he shedded out the ire [or he poured out the wrath] of his indignation; and the Lord kindled a fire in Zion, and it devoured the foundations thereof.
 12 The kings of [the] earth, and all the dwellers of the world believed not, that an adversary and [the] enemy should enter in by the gates of Jerusalem.
 13 For the sins of the prophets thereof, and for [the] wickednesses of priests thereof, that shedded out the blood of just [or rightwise] men in the midst thereof.
 14 Blind men erred in streets, they were defouled in blood; and when they might not go, they held their hems.

<sup>15</sup> They cried to them, Depart away, ye defouled men, depart ye, go ye away, do not ye touch; forsooth they chided, and were stirred; they said among heathen men, God shall no more add to, that he dwell among them.

<sup>16</sup> The face of the Lord parted them, he shall no more lay to, that he behold them; they were not ashamed of the faces of priests, neither they had mercy on eld [or old] men.

<sup>17</sup> The while we stood yet, our eyes failed to our vain help; when we beheld attentive to a folk, that might not save us.

<sup>18</sup> Our steps were slidery in the way of our streets; our end nighed, our days were [ful] filled, for our end came.

<sup>19</sup> Our pursuers were swifter than the eagles of heaven; they pursued us on [the] hills [or mountains], they setted ambushments to us in desert.

<sup>20</sup> The spirit of our mouth, Christ the Lord, was taken in our sins; to whom we said, We shall live in thy shadow among heathen men.

<sup>21</sup> Thou daughter of Edom, make joy, and be glad, that dwellest in the land of Uz; the cup shall come also to thee, thou shalt be made drunken, and shalt be made bare.

<sup>22</sup> Thou daughter of Zion, thy wickedness is [ful] filled; he shall not add more, that he make thee to pass over again into captivity; thou daughter of Edom, he shall visit thy wicked-ness, he shall uncover thy sins.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Lord, have thou mind what befell to us; see thou, and behold our shame.

<sup>3</sup> We be made fatherless children without a father; our mothers be as widows.

<sup>4</sup> We drank our water for money, we bought our wood for silver.

<sup>5</sup> We were driven by our heads, and rest was not given to faint men.

<sup>6</sup> We gave hand to Egypt, and to Assyrians, that we should be [ful] filled with bread.

<sup>7</sup> Our fathers sinned, and be not, and we bare the wickednesses of them

<sup>8</sup> Servants were lords of us, and none was, that again-bought from the hand of them.

<sup>9</sup> In our lives we brought bread to us, from the face of [the] sword in desert.

<sup>10</sup> Our skin is burnt as a furnace, of the face of tempests of hunger.

<sup>12</sup> Princes were hanged [up] by the hand; they were not ashamed of the faces of eld [or old] men.

<sup>14</sup> Eld [or Old] men failed from [the] gates; young men failed from the quire or choir of singers.

<sup>15</sup> The joy of our heart failed; our song is turned into mourning.

<sup>16</sup> The crown of our head fell down; woe to us! for we sinned.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore our heart is made sorrowful, therefore our eyes be made dark.

<sup>20</sup> Why shalt thou forget us without end, shalt thou forsake us into [the] length of days?

<sup>21</sup> Lord, convert thou us to thee, and we shall be converted; make thou new our days, as at the beginning.

<sup>22</sup> But thou casting away hast cast away us; thou art wroth against us greatly.

EZEKIEL

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, when I was in the midst of captives, beside the flood Chebar, heavens were opened, and I saw the revelations of God.

<sup>2</sup> In the fifth day of the month; that is the fifth year of [the] passing over of Jehoiachin, king of Judah;

<sup>3</sup> the word of the Lord was made to Ezekiel, priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of Chaldees, beside the flood Chebar; and the hand of the Lord was made there on him.

<sup>4</sup> And I saw, and lo! a whirlwind came from the north, and a great cloud, and fire wrapping in, and brightness in the compass thereof; and as the likeness of electrum from the midst thereof, that is, from the midst of the fire.

<sup>5</sup> And of the midst thereof was a likeness of four beasts. And this was the beholding of those [or them], the likeness of a man in those [or them].

<sup>6</sup> And four faces were to one, and four wings were to one.

<sup>7</sup> And the feet of those [or them]were straight feet, and the sole of the foot of those [or them]was as the sole of a foot of a calf, and sparkles, as the beholding of boiling brass.

<sup>8</sup> And the hands of a man were under the wings of those [or the pens of them], in four parts; and those [or they] had faces and wings by four parts;

<sup>9</sup> and the wings of those [or them] were joined together of one to another. They turned not again, when they went, but each went before his face.

<sup>11</sup> And the faces of those [or them] and wings of those [or them]were stretched forth above. Two wings of each were joined together, and twain [or two] covered the bodies of those [or them].

<sup>12</sup> And each of those [or them] went before his face. Where the fierceness of the wind was, thither those [or they] went, and turned not again, when they went.

<sup>13</sup> And the likeness of the beasts, and the beholding of them, was as of burning coals of fire, and as the beholding of lamps. This was the sight running about in the midst of [the] beasts, the shining of fire, and the lightning going out of the fire.

<sup>14</sup> And the beasts went, and turned again, at the likeness of lightning shining.

<sup>15</sup> And when I beheld the beasts, one wheel, having four faces, appeared on the earth, beside the beasts.

<sup>16</sup> And the beholding of the wheels and the work of those [or them]was as the sight of the sea; and one likeness was of those four; and the beholding and the works of those [or them], as if a wheel be in the midst of a wheel.

<sup>17</sup> Those [or They] going went by four parts of those [or them], and turned not again, when those [or they] went.

<sup>18</sup> Also stature, and highness, and horrible beholding was to the wheels; and all the body of them was full of eyes in the compass of those four.

<sup>19</sup> And when the beasts went, the wheels also went together beside those [or them]. And when the beasts were raised [up] from the earth, the wheels also were raised [up] together.

<sup>20</sup> Whither ever the spirit went, when the spirit went thither, also the wheels following it were raised [up] together with them; for why the spirit of life was in the wheels.

<sup>21</sup> Those [or they] went with the beasts going, and those [or they] stood with the beasts standing. And with the beasts raised from [the] earth, also the wheels pursuing those beasts were raised together; for the spirit of life was in the wheels.

<sup>23</sup> Forsooth under the firmament the wings of those beasts were straight out, of one to another; each beast covered his body with two wings, and another was covered in like manner.

<sup>24</sup> And I heard the sound of wings, as the sound of many waters, as the sound of high God. When those [or they] went, there was as a sound of a multitude, as the sound of hosts of battle; and when those [or they] stood, the wings of those [or them] were let down.

<sup>25</sup> For why when a voice was made on the firmament, that was on the head[s] of those [or them], those [or they] stood, and let down their wings.

<sup>26</sup> And on the firmament, that was above the heads of those [or them], was as the beholding of a sapphire stone, in the likeness of a throne; and on the likeness of the throne was a likeness, as the beholding of a man above.

<sup>27</sup> And I saw as a likeness of electrum, as the beholding of fire within, by the compass thereof; from the loins of him and above, and from the loins of him till to beneath, I saw as the likeness of fire, shining in compass,

<sup>28</sup> as the beholding of the rainbow, when it is in the cloud in the day of rain. This was the beholding of shining by compass. This was a sight of the likeness of the glory of the Lord. And I saw, and I fell down on my face; and I heard the voice of a speaker.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> And he said to me, Thou, son of man [or Son of man], stand on thy feet, and I shall speak with thee.

<sup>2</sup> And the spirit entered into me, after that he spake to me, and setted me on my feet. And I heard one speaking to me,

<sup>3</sup> and saying, Son of man, I send thee to the sons of Israel, to folks apostates, either going aback from faith, that went away from me; the fathers of them brake my covenant till to this day.

<sup>4</sup> And the sons be of hard face, and of unchastiseable heart, to whom I send thee. And thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things;

<sup>5</sup> if peradventure namely they hear, and if peradventure they rest, for it is an house stirring to wrath. And they shall know, that a prophet is in the midst of them.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore thou, son of man, dread not them, neither dread thou the words of them; for unbelievful men and destroyers be with thee, and thou dwellest with scorpions. Dread thou not the words of them, and dread thou not the faces of them, for it is an house stirring to wrath.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore thou shalt speak my words to them, if peradventure they hear, and rest, for they be stirrers to wrath.

<sup>8</sup> But thou, son of man, hear what-ever things I shall speak to thee; and do not thou be a stirrer to wrath, as the house of Israel is a stirrer to wrath. Open thy mouth, and eat whatever things I give to thee.

<sup>9</sup> And I saw, and lo! an hand was sent to me, in which a book was folded together.

<sup>10</sup> And he spreaded abroad it before me, that was written within and withoutforth. And lamentations, and song, and woe, were written therein.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, eat thou whatever thing thou findest, eat thou this volume; and go thou, and speak to the sons of Israel.

<sup>2</sup> And I opened my mouth, and he fed me with that volume.

<sup>3</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, thy womb shall eat, and thine entrails shall be filled with this volume, which I give to thee. And I ate it, and it was made as sweet honey in my mouth.

<sup>4</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, go thou to the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak my words to them.

<sup>5</sup> For thou shalt not be sent to a people of high word, and of unknown language; thou shalt be sent to the house of Israel,

<sup>6</sup> neither to many peoples of high word, and of unknown language, of which thou mayest not hear the words. And if thou were sent to them, they should hear thee.

<sup>7</sup> But the house of Israel will not hear thee, for they will not hear me. For all the house of Israel is of defouled, either of unshamefast, forehead, and of hard heart.

<sup>8</sup> Lo! I gave thy face stronger than the faces of them, and thy forehead harder than the foreheads of them.

<sup>9</sup> And I gave thy face as an adamant, and as a flint; dread thou not them, neither dread thou of the face of them, for it is an house stirring me to wrath.

<sup>10</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, take in thine heart, and hear with thine ears all these my words, which I speak to thee.

<sup>11</sup> And go thou, and enter to the passing over, to the sons of thy people. And thou shalt speak to them, and thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, if peradventure they hear, and rest.

<sup>12</sup> And the spirit took me, and I heard after me the voice of a great moving. The blessed glory of the Lord was heard from his place;

<sup>13</sup> and I heard the voice of wings of the beasts smiting one another, and the voice of wheels pursuing the beasts, and the voice of a great stirring.

<sup>14</sup> Also the spirit raised me, and took me. And I went forth bitter in the indignation of my spirit; for the hand of the Lord was with me, and comforted me.

<sup>15</sup> And I came to the passing over, to the heap of new fruits, to them that dwelled beside the flood Chebar. And I sat where they sat, and I dwelled there seven days, wailing, in the midst of them.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth when seven days were passed, the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>17</sup> Son of man, I gave thee to be an espyer, or a beholder, to the house of Israel. And thou shalt hear of my mouth a word, and thou shalt tell [it] to them of me.

<sup>18</sup> If when I say to the wicked man, Thou shalt die by death, thou tellest it not to him, and speakest not to him, that he be turned from his wicked way, and live; that wicked man shall die in his wickedness, but I shall seek his blood of thine hand.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth if thou tellest to the wicked man, and he is not converted from his wickedness, and from his wicked way; soothly he shall die in his wickedness, but thou hast delivered thy soul.

<sup>20</sup> But also if a just [or rightwise] man is turned from his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and doeth wickedness, I shall set an hurting before him; he shall die, for thou toldest not to him; he shall die in his sin, and his rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses], which he did, shall not be in mind, but I shall seek his blood of thine hand.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth if thou tellest to a just man, that a just man do not sin, and he sin not, he living shall live, for thou toldest to him, and thou hast delivered thy soul.

<sup>22</sup> And the hand of the Lord was made [up] on me, and he said to me, Rise thou, and go out into the field, and there I shall speak with thee.

<sup>23</sup> And I rose, and went out into the field. And lo! the glory of the Lord stood there, as the glory which I saw beside the flood Chebar; and I fell down on my face.

<sup>24</sup> And the spirit entered into me, and setted me on my feet. And he spake to me, and said to me, Enter thou, and be thou enclosed in the midst of thine house.

<sup>25</sup> And thou, son of man, lo! bonds be given on thee, and they shall bind thee with those [or them], and thou shalt not go out in the midst of them.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall make thy tongue to cleave to the roof of thy mouth, and thou shalt be dumb, and thou shalt not be as a man rebuking; for it is an house stirring to wrath.

<sup>27</sup> But when I shall speak to thee, I shall open thy mouth, and thou shalt say to them, The Lord saith these things, He that heareth, hear, and he that resteth, rest; for it is an house stirring to wrath.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And thou, son of man, take to thee a tilestone; and thou shalt set it before thee, and thou shalt describe therein the city of Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> And thou shalt ordain besieging against that Jerusalem; and thou shalt build strongholds, and thou shalt bear together [an heap of] earth, and thou shalt give hosts of battle against it, and thou shalt set engines by compass.

<sup>3</sup> And take thou to thee an iron frying pan; and thou shalt set it into an iron wall betwixt thee and betwixt the city; and thou shalt set steadfastly thy face to it, and it shall be into besieging, and thou shalt encompass it; it is a sign to the house of Israel.

<sup>4</sup> And thou shalt sleep on thy left side, and thou shalt put the wicked-nesses of the house of Israel on that side; in the number of days in which thou shalt sleep on that side, and thou shalt take the wickedness of them.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth I gave to thee the years of the wickedness of them by number of days, three hundred and ninety days; and thou shalt bear the wicked-ness of the house of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> And thou shalt turn thy face to the besieging of Jerusalem; and thine arm shall be stretched forth, and thou shalt prophesy against it.

<sup>8</sup> Lo! I have encompassed thee with bonds, and thou shalt not turn thee from this side into the other side, till thou [ful] fill the days of thy besieging.

<sup>9</sup> And take thou to thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and fitches; and thou shalt put those [or them] into one vessel. And thou shalt make to thee loaves for the number of days, by which thou shalt sleep on thy side; by three hundred and ninety days thou shalt eat it.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth thy meat, which thou shalt eat, shall be in weight twenty staters in a day; from time till to time thou shalt eat it.

<sup>11</sup> And thou shalt drink water in measure, the sixth part of hin; from time till to time thou shalt drink it.

<sup>12</sup> And thou shalt eat it as barley bread baked under the ashes; and with the dung that goeth out of a man thou shalt cover it, before the eyes of them.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord saith these things, So the sons of Israel shall eat their bread defouled among heathen men, to whom I shall cast them out.

<sup>14</sup> And I said, A! A! A! Lord God, lo! my soul is not defouled, and from my young childhood till to now I ate not a thing dead by itself, and rent of beasts; and all unclean flesh entered not into my mouth.

<sup>15</sup> And he said to me, Lo! I have given to thee the dung of oxes [or oxen] for men's turds; and thou shalt make ready thy bread with it instead.

<sup>16</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, lo! I shall all-break the staff of bread in Jerusalem, and they shall eat their bread in weight and in busyness, and they shall drink water in measure and in anguish;

<sup>17</sup> that when bread and water fail, each man fall down to his brother, and they fail in their wickednesses.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> And thou, son of man, take to thee a sharp sword, [or razor], for shaving hairs; and thou shalt take it, and shalt lead it by thine head, and by thy beard. And thou shalt take to thee a balance of weights, and thou shalt part those [or them].

<sup>2</sup> Thou shalt burn the third part with fire in the midst of the city, by the [ful] filling of days of besieging. And thou shalt take the third part, and shalt cut by sword in the compass thereof. But thou shalt scatter the tother third part into the wind; and I shall make naked a sword after them.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt take thereof a little number of those hairs, and thou shalt bind those [or them] in the highness of thy mantle.

<sup>4</sup> And again thou shalt take of them, and thou shalt cast forth them into the midst of the fire. And thou shalt burn them in fire; and fire shall go out of that into all the house of Israel.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord God saith these things, This is Jerusalem; I have set [or put] it in the midst of heathen men, and lands in the compass thereof.

<sup>6</sup> And it despised my dooms, that it was more wicked than heathen men; and it despised my commandments more than lands that be in the compass thereof. For they have cast away my dooms, and they went not in my commandments.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For ye have passed heathen men that be in your compass, and ye went not in my commandments, and ye did not my dooms, and ye wrought not by the dooms of heathen men that be in your compass;

<sup>8</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I to thee, and I myself shall make dooms in the midst of thee, before the eyes of heathen men;

<sup>9</sup> and I shall do things in thee which I did not, and to which I shall no more make like things, for all thine abominations.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore fathers shall eat sons in the midst of thee, and sons shall eat their fathers; and I shall make dooms in thee, and I shall winnow all thine remnants into each wind;

<sup>11</sup> Therefore I live, saith the Lord God, no but for that that thou defouledest mine holy thing in all thine offences, and in all thine abom-inations; and I shall break, and mine eye shall not spare, and I shall not do mercy.

<sup>12</sup> The third part of thee shall die by pestilence, and shall be wasted by hunger in the midst of thee; and the third part of thee shall fall down by sword in thy compass; forsooth I shall scatter thy third part into each wind, and I shall draw out a sword after them.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall [ful] fill my strong vengeance, and I shall make mine indignation to rest in them, and I shall be comforted. And they shall know, that I the Lord spake in my fervent love, when I shall [ful] fill all mine indignation in them.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall give thee into desert, [and] into shame to heathen men that be in thy compass, in the sight of each that passeth forth.

<sup>15</sup> And thou shalt be shame and blasphemy, ensample and wondering, among heathen men that be in thy compass, when I shall make dooms in thee, in strong vengeance, and indignation, and in blamings of ire. I the Lord have spoken,

<sup>16</sup> when I shall send into them the worst arrows of hunger, that shall bear death; and which I shall send, that I lose you. And I shall gather hunger [up] on you, and I shall all-break in you the firmness of bread.

<sup>17</sup> And I shall send into you hunger, and worst beasts, till to the death; and pestilence and blood shall pass by thee, and I shall bring in [a] sword on thee; I the Lord spake.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face toward the hills of Israel; and thou shalt prophesy to those hills,

<sup>3</sup> and shalt say, Hills of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord God. The Lord God saith these things to mountains, and little hills, to rocks of stone, and to valleys, Lo! I shall bring in on you a sword, and I shall lose your high things or places.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall destroy your altars, and your simulacra shall be broken; and I shall cast down your slain men before your idols.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall give the dead bodies of the sons of Israel before the face of your simulacra, and I shall scatter your bones about your altars,

<sup>6</sup> in all your dwellings. Cities shall be forsaken, and high things shall be destroyed, and shall be scattered; and your altars shall perish, and shall be broken. And your idols shall cease to exist, and your temples of idols shall be all-broken, and your works shall be done away.

<sup>7</sup> And a slain man shall fall down in the midst of you; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall leave in you them that fled [the] sword, to go among heathen men, when I shall scatter you into lands.

<sup>9</sup> And your delivered men shall have mind on me among heathen men, to which they be led prisoners; for I have all-broken their heart doing fornication, and going away from me, and their eyes doing fornication after their idols. And they shall displease themselves on the evils, which they did in all their abominations.

<sup>10</sup> And they shall know, that I the Lord spake not in vain, that I should do this evil to them.

<sup>11</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Smite thine hand, and hurtle thy foot, and say, Alas! to all abominations of the evils of the house of Israel; for they shall fall down by sword, hunger, and pestilence.

<sup>12</sup> He that is far, shall die by pestilence. Forsooth he that is nigh, shall fall by sword. And he that is left and besieged, shall die by hunger. And I shall [ful] fill mine indignation in them.

<sup>13</sup> And ye shall know, that I am the Lord, when your slain men shall be in the midst of your idols, in the compass of your altars, in each high little hill, and in all the highnesses of mountains, and under each tree full of wood, and under each oak full of boughs, that is, a place where they burnt incense sweet smelling to all their idols.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall stretch forth mine hand on them, and I shall make their land desolate and destitute, from desert unto Diblath, in all the dwellings of them; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, saying,

<sup>2</sup> And thou, son of man, the Lord God of the land of Israel saith these things, The end cometh, the end cometh, on [the] four coasts of the land.

<sup>3</sup> Now an end is[up] on thee, and I shall send in my strong vengeance [up] on thee, and I shall deem thee by thy ways, and I shall set all thine abominations against thee.

<sup>4</sup> And mine eye shall not spare on thee, and I shall not do mercy. But I shall set [or put] thy ways [up] on thee, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> Sorrow cometh [up] on thee, that dwellest in the land; the time cometh, the day of slaying is nigh, and not of glory of hills.

<sup>8</sup> Now anon I shall shed [or pour] out mine ire on thee, and I shall [ful] fill my strong vengeance in thee; and I shall deem thee by thy ways, and I shall put to thee all thy great trespasses.

<sup>9</sup> And mine eye shall not spare, neither I shall do mercy; but I shall put on thee thy ways, and thine abominations shall be in the midst of thee; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord smiting.

<sup>11</sup> wickedness rose in the rod of unpiety; not anything of them shall remain, and not of the people, neither of the sound of them, and no rest shall be in them.

<sup>12</sup> The time cometh, the day nighed; he that buyeth, be not glad, and he that selleth, mourn not; for why ire [or wrath] is on all the people thereof.

<sup>13</sup> For he that selleth, shall not turn again to that that he sold, and yet the life of them is in livers; for why the vision, either revelation, to all the multitude thereof shall not go again, and a man shall not be strengthened in the wickedness of his life.

<sup>14</sup> Sing ye with a trump, all men be made ready, and none is that shall go to battle; for why my wrath is on all the people thereof.

<sup>15</sup> Sword is without, pestilence and hunger within; he that is in the field, shall die by sword; and they that be in the city, shall be devoured by pestilence and hunger.

<sup>16</sup> And they shall be saved that flee of them; and they shall be as culvers of great valleys in [the] hills, all-quaking, each man in his wickedness.

<sup>17</sup> All hands shall be made numb, and all knees shall flow with waters.

<sup>18</sup> And they shall gird them with hair-shirts, and inward dread shall cover them; and shame shall be in each face, and baldness shall be in all the heads of them.

<sup>19</sup> The silver of them shall be cast out, and the gold of them shall be into a dunghill; the silver of them and the gold of them shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the strong vengeance of the Lord. They shall not [ful] fill their souls, and the wombs of them shall not be filled; for it is made the cause of stumbling out of their wickedness.

<sup>20</sup> And they setted the ornament of their brooches into pride; and they made of it the images of their abominations and simulacra. For this thing I gave it to them, into uncleanness.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall give it into the hands of aliens, to ravish, and to the unpius men of earth, into prey, and they shall defoul it.

<sup>22</sup> And I shall turn away my face from them, and they shall defoul my private place; and knaves shall enter into it, and shall defoul it.

<sup>24</sup> And I shall bring the worst of heathen men, and they shall have in possession the houses of them; and I shall make the pride of mighty men to cease, and enemies shall have in possession the saintuaries of them.

<sup>26</sup> Disturbing shall come on disturbing, and hearing on hearing; and they shall seek of the prophet a revelation, and law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the elder men.

<sup>27</sup> The king shall mourn, and the prince shall be clothed in wailing, and the hands of the people of the land shall be disturbed [or troubled]; by the ways of them I shall do to them, and by the dooms of them I shall deem them; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, I sat in mine house, and the eld [or old] men of Judah sat before me; and the hand of the Lord God fell there [up] on me.

<sup>2</sup> And I saw, and lo! a likeness as the beholding of fire; from the beholding of his loins and beneath was fire, and from his loins and above was as the beholding of shining, as the sight of electrum, [that is, metal made of gold and silver, brighter than gold].

<sup>3</sup> And the likeness of an hand was sent out, and took me by the hair, either locks, of mine head; and the spirit raised me [up] betwixt heaven and earth, and brought me into Jerusalem, in the sight of God, beside the inner door that beheld to the north, where the idol of envy was set, to stir indignation.

<sup>4</sup> And lo! the glory of God of Israel was there, by the sight which I saw in the field.

<sup>5</sup> And he said to me, Thou, son of man, raise up thine eyes to the way of the north; and I raised mine eyes to the way of the north, and lo! from the north of the gate of the altar, the idol of envy was in that entering.

<sup>6</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, guessest thou whether thou seest what thing these men do, the great abominations which the house of Israel doeth here, that I go far away from my saintuary? and yet thou shalt turn, and shalt see greater abominations.

<sup>7</sup> And he led me within to the door of the foreyard; and I saw, and lo! one hole in the wall.

<sup>8</sup> And he said to me, Son of man, dig thou in the wall; and when I had digged in the wall, one door appeared.

<sup>9</sup> And he said to me, Enter thou, and see the worst abominations, which these men do here.

<sup>10</sup> And I entered, and saw; and lo! each likeness of reptiles, either creeping beasts, and abominations of beasts, and all [the] idols of the house of Israel, were painted in the wall all about in compass.

<sup>11</sup> And seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel stood; and Jaa-zaniah, the son of Shaphan, stood in the midst of them, standing before the paintings; and each man had a censer in his hand, and the smoke of a cloud of incense went up.

<sup>12</sup> And he said to me, Certainly, son of man, thou seest what things the elder men of the house of Israel do in darkneses, each man in the hid place of his bed; for they say, The Lord seeth not us, the Lord hath forsaken the land.

<sup>13</sup> And the Lord said to me, Yet thou shalt turn, and shalt see greater abominations, which these men do.

<sup>14</sup> And he led me within, by the door of the gate of the house of the Lord, which door beheld to the north; and lo! women sat there, bewailing Adonis or Tammuz.

<sup>15</sup> And the Lord said to me, Certainly, son of man, thou hast seen; yet thou shalt turn, and shalt see greater abominations than these.

<sup>16</sup> And he led me within, into the inner foreyard of the house of the Lord; and lo! in the door of the temple of the Lord, betwixt the porch and the altar, were as five and twenty men having their backs against the temple of the Lord, and their faces to the east; and they worshipped at the rising of the sun.

<sup>17</sup> And the Lord said to me, Certainly, son of man, thou hast seen; whether this is a light thing to the house of Judah, that they should do these abominations, which they did here? For they filled the land with wicked-ness, and turned to stir me to wrath; and lo! they apply a branch to their nostrils.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore and I shall do in strong vengeance; mine eye shall not spare, neither I shall do mercy; and when they shall cry to mine ears with great voice, I shall not hear them.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> And he cried in mine ears with great voice, and said, The visitings of the city have nighed, and each man hath in his hand an instrument of slaying.

<sup>2</sup> And lo! six men came from the way of the higher gate, that beholdeth to the north, and the instrument of death of each man was in his hand; also one man in the midst of them was clothed with linen clothes, and a penner of a writer at his reins; and they entered, and stood beside the brazen altar.

<sup>3</sup> And the glory of the Lord of Israel was taken up from cherub [or cherubim], which glory was on it, to the thresh-old of the house; and the Lord called the man that was clothed with linen clothes, and had a penner of a writer in his loins.

<sup>4</sup> And the Lord said to him, Pass thou by the midst of the city, in the midst of Jerusalem, and mark thou Tau on the foreheads of men wailing and sorrowing on all [the] abominations that be done in the midst thereof.

<sup>5</sup> And he said to them in mine hearing, Go ye through the city, and follow ye him, and smite ye; your eye spare not, neither do ye mercy.

<sup>6</sup> Slay ye till to death, an eld [or old] man, a young man, and a virgin, a little child, and women; but slay ye not any man, on whom ye see Tau; and begin ye at my saintuary. There-fore they began at the elder men, that were before the face of the house.

<sup>7</sup> And he said to them, Defoul ye the house of the Lord, and fill ye the foreyards with slain men; go ye out. And they went out, and killed them that were in the city.

<sup>8</sup> And lo! when the slaying was [ful] filled, I was left alone. And I fell down on my face, and I cried, and said, Alas! alas! alas! Lord God, therefore whether thou shalt lose all the remnants of Israel, and shalt shed out thy strong vengeance on Jerusalem?

<sup>9</sup> And he said to me, The wicked-ness of the house of Israel and of Judah is full great, and the land is filled of bloods, and the city is filled with turning away; for they said, The Lord hath forsaken the land, and the Lord seeth not.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore and mine eye shall not spare, neither I shall do mercy; I shall yield the way of them on the head of them.

<sup>11</sup> And lo! the man that was clothed in linen clothes, that had a penner in his back, answered a word, and said, I have done, as thou commandedest to me.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> And I saw, and lo! in the firmament that was on the heads of cherubims [or cherubim], as a sapphire stone, and as the form of likeness of a king's seat appeared thereon*.

<sup>2</sup> And he said to the man that was clothed in linen clothes, and spake, Enter thou in the midst of the wheels, that be under cherubims [or cherubim], and fill thine hand with coals of fire, that be betwixt cherubims [or cherubim], and shed thou out on the city. And he entered in my sight;

<sup>3</sup> forsooth cherubims stood at the right side of the house of the Lord, when the man entered, and a cloud filled the inner foreyard.

---

* CHAPTER 10:1 Imagery from Chapter 1 repeated here.

<sup>4</sup> And the glory of the Lord was raised [up] from above cherubims [or cherubim] to the threshold of the house; and the house was filled with a cloud, and the foreyard was filled with shining of the glory of the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> And the sound of wings of cherubims [or cherubim] was heard till to the outermore foreyard, as the voice of Almighty God speaking.

<sup>6</sup> And when he had commanded to the man that was clothed in linen clothes, and had said, Take thou fire from the midst of the wheels, that be betwixt cherubims [or cherubim], he entered, and stood beside the wheel[s].

<sup>7</sup> And cherub stretched forth his hand from the midst of cherubims [or cherubim], to the fire that was betwixt cherubims [or cherubim]; and took, and gave into the hands of him that was clothed in linen clothes; and he took, and went out.

<sup>8</sup> And the likeness of the hand of a man appeared in cherubims [or cherubim], under the wings of those [or them].

<sup>9</sup> And I saw, and lo! four wheels were beside cherubims [or cherubim]; one wheel beside one cherub, and another wheel beside another cherub; forsooth the likeness of wheels was as the sight of the stone chrysolite.

<sup>10</sup> And the beholding of those [or them]was one likeness of four, as if a wheel be in the midst of a wheel.

<sup>11</sup> And when they went, they went into four parts; those [or they] turned not again going, but to the place to which that that was the first wheel bowed to go, also [the] others followed, and turned not again.

<sup>12</sup> And all the body of those wheels, and the necks, and hands, and wings of the beasts, and the circles, were full of eyes, in the compass of four wheels.

<sup>13</sup> And he called those wheels voluble, or able to go all about, in mine hearing.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth one beast had four faces; one face was the face of cherub, and the second face was the face of a man, and in the third was the face of a lion, and in the fourth was the face of an eagle;

<sup>15</sup> and the cherubims were raised [up]. That is the beast, which I had seen beside the flood Chebar.

<sup>16</sup> And when cherubims went, also the wheels beside those [or them] went together with them; when the cherubims raised [up] their wings, that those [or they] should be enhanced from the earth, the wheels abided not still, but also those [or they] were beside cherubims.

<sup>17</sup> The wheels stood with those cherubims standing, and were raised [up] with the cherubims raised [up]; for the spirit of life was in those wheels.

<sup>18</sup> And the glory of the Lord went out from the threshold of the temple, and stood on the cherubims [or cherubim].

<sup>19</sup> And [the] cherubims raised [up] their wings, and were enhanced from the earth before me; and when those went out, also the wheels pursued; and it stood in the entering of the east gate of the house of the Lord, and the glory of God of Israel was on those.

<sup>20</sup> That is the beast, which I saw under God of Israel, beside the flood Chebar. And I understood that four cherubims were;

<sup>21</sup> four faces were to one, and four wings to one; and the likeness of the hand of a man was under the wings of those [or them].

<sup>22</sup> And the likeness of the cheeks of those [or them]were those cheeks which I had seen beside the flood Chebar; and the beholding of those [or them], and the fierceness of each, was to enter before his face.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> And the spirit raised me [up], and led me within to the east gate of the house of the Lord, that beholdeth the rising of the sun. And lo! in the entering of the gate were five and twenty men; and I saw in the midst of them Jaazaniah, the son of Azur, and Pelatiah, the son of Benaiah, princes of the people.

<sup>2</sup> And he said to me, Thou, son of man, these be the men that think wickedness, and treat the worst counsel in this city,

<sup>3</sup> and say, Whether houses were not builded a while ago? this is the cauldron, forsooth we be fleshes.

<sup>5</sup> And the Spirit of the Lord fell into me, and said to me, Speak thou, The Lord saith these things, Ye house of Israel spake thus, and I knew the thoughts of your heart;

<sup>7</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Your slain men, which ye putted in the midst thereof, these be the fleshes, and this is the cauldron; and I shall lead you out of the midst thereof.

<sup>8</sup> Ye dreaded sword, and I shall bring in a sword on you, saith the Lord God.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall cast you out of the midst thereof, and I shall give you into the hand of enemies, and I shall make dooms in you.

<sup>10</sup> By sword ye shall fall down, I shall deem you in the ends of Israel; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> This shall not be to you into a cauldron, and ye shall not be into fleshes in the midst thereof; I shall deem you in the ends of Israel,

<sup>12</sup> and ye shall know, that I am the Lord. For ye went not in my behests, and ye did not my dooms, but ye wrought by the dooms of heathen men, that be in your compass.

<sup>13</sup> And it was done, when I prophe-sied, Pelatiah, the son of Benaiah, was dead; and I fell down on my face, and I cried with great voice, and said, Alas! alas! alas! Lord God, thou makest [an] ending of the remnants of Israel.

<sup>14</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>15</sup> Son of man, thy brethren, thy brethren, thy kinsmen, and all the house of Israel, and all men, to whom the dwellers of Jerusalem said, Go ye away far from the Lord, the land is given to us into possession.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For I made them to be far off among heathen men, and for I scattered them in lands, I shall be to them into a little hallowing, in the lands to which they came.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore speak thou, The Lord God saith these things, I shall gather you from peoples, and I shall gather you together from lands, in which ye be scattered; and I shall give the earth of Israel to you.

<sup>18</sup> And they shall enter thither, and shall do away all offences, [or grievings], and all abominations thereof in that day.

<sup>19</sup> And I shall give to them one heart, and I shall give a new spirit in the entrails of them; and I shall take away a stony heart from the flesh of them, and I shall give to them an heart of flesh;

<sup>20</sup> that they go in my commandments, and keep my dooms, and do those [or them]; and that they be into a people to me, and I be into God to them.

<sup>21</sup> But of which the heart goeth after their offendings and abominations, I shall set [or put] the way of them in their head, saith the Lord God.

<sup>22</sup> And the cherubims raised [up] their wings, and the wheels went with those [or them], and the glory of God of Israel was on those [or them].

<sup>23</sup> And the glory of the Lord ascended [or went up] from the midst of the city, and stood on the hill, which is at the east of the city.

<sup>24</sup> And the spirit raised me, and brought me into Chaldea, to the passing over, in [a] vision by the spirit of God; and the vision which I had seen, was taken away from me.

<sup>25</sup> And I spake to the passing over all the words of the Lord, which he had showed to me.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, thou dwellest in the midst of an house stirring to wrath, which have eyes to see, and see not, and ears to hear, and hear not; for it an house stirring to wrath.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore thou, son of man, make to thee vessels of passing over, and thou shalt pass over by day before them; forsooth thou shalt pass over from thy place to another place, in the sight of them; if peradventure they behold, for it is an house stirring to wrath.

<sup>5</sup> Before the eyes of them dig through the wall to thee, and thou shalt go out through it,

<sup>6</sup> in the sight of them. Thou shalt be borne on shoulders, thou shalt be borne out in darkness; thou shalt cover thy face, and thou shalt not see the earth, for I have given thee to be a sign of thing to coming to the house of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore I did as the Lord commanded to me; I brought forth my vessels, as the vessels of a man passing over by day, and in the eventide I digged through a wall to me with mine hand; I went out in darkness, and I or it was borne on shoulders, in the sight of them.

<sup>8</sup> And the word of the Lord was made early to me, and he said,

<sup>9</sup> Son of man, whether the house of Israel, the house stirring me to wrath, said not to thee, What doest thou?

<sup>10</sup> Say thou to them, The Lord God saith these things, This burden is on the duke, which is in Jerusalem, and on all the house of Israel, which is in the midst of them.

<sup>11</sup> Say thou, I am your sign of thing to coming; as I did, so it shall be done to them; they shall go into passing over, and into captivity.

<sup>12</sup> And the duke which is in the midst of them, shall be borne out on shoulders, and he shall go out in darkness; they shall dig through the wall, and lead him out; his face shall be covered, that he see not with eye the earth.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall stretch forth my net on him, and he shall be taken in my net; and I shall lead him into Babylon, into the land of Chaldees, and he shall not see that land, and he shall die there.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall scatter into each wind all men that be about him, his help, and his companies; and I shall draw out the sword after them.

<sup>15</sup> And they shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall scatter them among heathen men, and shall sow them abroad in lands.

<sup>16</sup> And I shall leave of them a few men from sword, and hunger, and pestilence, that they tell out all the great trespasses of them among heathen men, to whom they shall enter; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>18</sup> Thou, son of man, eat thy bread in disturbing [or troubling], but also drink thy water in haste and mourning.

<sup>19</sup> And thou shalt say to the people of the land, The Lord God saith these things to them that dwell in Jerusalem, and elsewhere in the land of Israel, They shall eat their bread in anguish, and they shall drink their water in desolation; that the land be desolate of his multitude, for the wickedness of all men that dwell therein.

<sup>20</sup> And [the] cities that be now inhabited, shall be desolate, and the land shall be forsaken; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>22</sup> Son of man, what is this proverb to you, of men saying in the land of Israel, Days shall be deferred into long time, and each vision shall perish?

<sup>23</sup> Therefore say thou to them, The Lord God saith these things, I shall make this proverb to cease, and it shall no more be said commonly in Israel; and speak thou to them, that the days have nighed, and each word of vision, either of prophesy.

<sup>24</sup> For why each vision shall no more be void, neither before-telling of thing to coming [or divination]shall be doubtful in the midst of the sons of Israel;

<sup>25</sup> for I the Lord shall speak what-ever word I shall speak, and it shall be done; it shall no more be delayed, but in your days, ye house stirring to wrath, I shall speak a word, and I shall do that word, saith the Lord God.

<sup>26</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>27</sup> Thou, son of man, lo! the house of Israel, of them that say, The vision which this man seeth, is into many days yet to come, and this man prophesieth into long times.

<sup>28</sup> Therefore say thou to them, The Lord God saith these things, Each word of me shall no more be deferred; the word which I shall speak, shall be [ful] filled, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, prophesy thou to the prophets of Israel that prophesy; and thou shalt say to them that prophesy of their heart, Hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Woe to the unwise prophets, that follow their spirit, and see nothing;

<sup>5</sup> Ye ascended not [or went not up] even against, neither again-setted [or again-putted] a wall for the house of Israel, that ye should stand in battle in the day of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> They see vain things, and divine a leasing, and say, The Lord saith, when the Lord sent not them; and they continued to confirm the word.

<sup>7</sup> Whether ye saw not a vain vision, and spake false divining, and said, The Lord saith, when I spake not?

<sup>8</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For ye spake vain things, and saw a leasing, therefore lo! I to you, saith the Lord God.

<sup>9</sup> And mine hand shall be on the prophets that see vain things, and divine leasings; they shall not be in the counsels of my people, and they shall not be written in the scripture of the house of Israel, neither they shall enter into the land of Israel; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord God.

<sup>10</sup> For they deceived my people, and said, Peace, peace, and no peace is; and it builded a wall, but they pargeted it with fen without chaffs.

<sup>12</sup> For lo! the wall fell down. Whether it shall not be said to you, Where is the pargeting, which ye pargeted?

<sup>13</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, And I shall make the spirit of tempests to break out in mine indignation, and [a] strong rain flowing in my strong vengeance shall be, and great hailstones in [my] wrath into wasting.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall destroy the wall, which ye haveargeted without tempering, and I shall make it even with the earth; and the fundament thereof shall be showed, and it shall fall down, and it shall be wasted in the midst thereof; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall [ful] fill mine indignation in the wall, and in them thatargeted it without tempering; and I shall say to you, The wall is not, and they be not, thatargeted it,

<sup>16</sup> that is, the prophets of Israel, that prophesy to Jerusalem, and see to it the vision of peace, and peace is not, saith the Lord God.

<sup>17</sup> And thou, son of man, set thy face against the daughters of thy people, that prophesy of their heart; and prophesy thou on them,

<sup>18</sup> and say thou, The Lord God saith these things, Woe to them that sew together cushions under each cubit of [the] hand, and make pillows under the head of each age, to take souls; and when they deceived the souls of my people, they quickened the souls of them.

<sup>19</sup> And they defouled me to my people, for an handful of barley, and for a gobbet of bread, that they should slay souls that die not, and quicken souls that live not; and they lied to my people, believing to leasings.

<sup>20</sup> For this thing the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I to your cushions, by which ye deceive souls flying; and I shall all-break those [or them] from your arms, and I shall deliver [the] souls which ye deceive, souls that ye make to fly.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall all-break your pillows, and I shall deliver my people from your hand; and they shall no more be in your hands, to be robbed; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>22</sup> For that that ye made falsely the heart of a just man to mourn, whom I made not sorry; and ye comforted the hands of a wicked man, that he should not turn again from his evil way, and live.

<sup>23</sup> Therefore ye shall not see vain things, and ye shall no more divine false divinings; and I shall deliver my people from your hand, and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> And men of the elders of Israel came to me, and sat before me.

<sup>2</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>3</sup> Son of man, these men have set [or put] their uncleannesses in their hearts, and have set steadfastly the cause of stumbling of their wickedness against their faces. Whether I that am asked, shall answer to them?

<sup>4</sup> For this thing speak thou to them, and thou shalt say to them, These things saith the Lord God, A man, a man of the house of Israel, that setteth [or hath put] his uncleannesses in his heart, and setteth steadfastly the cause of stumbling of his wickedness against his face, and cometh to the prophet, and asketh me by him, I the Lord shall answer to him in the multitude of his uncleannesses;

<sup>5</sup> that the house of Israel be taken in their heart, by which they went away from me in all their idols.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore say thou to the house of Israel, The Lord God saith these things, Be ye converted, and go ye away from your idols, and turn away your faces from all your filths.

<sup>7</sup> For why a man, a man of the house of Israel, and of converts, who-ever is a comeling in Israel, if he is alienated from me, and setteth [or shall put] his idols in his heart, and setteth steadfastly the cause of stumbling of his wickedness against his face, and he cometh to the prophet, to ask me by him, I the Lord shall answer him by myself.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall set my face on that man, and I shall make him into ensample, and into a proverb, and I shall lose him from the midst of my people; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> And when a prophet erreth, and speaketh a word, I the Lord shall deceive that prophet; and I shall stretch forth mine hand [up] on him, and I shall do him away from the midst of my people Israel.

<sup>10</sup> And they shall bear their wicked-ness; by the wickedness of the asker, so the wickedness of the prophet shall be;

<sup>11</sup> that the house of Israel err no more from me, neither be defouled in all their trespassings; but that it be into a people to me, and I be into God to them, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>12</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>13</sup> Son of man, when the land sinneth against me, that it trespassing do trespass, I shall stretch forth mine hand on it, and I shall all-break the staff of bread thereof; and I shall send hunger into it, and I shall slay of it man and beast.

<sup>14</sup> And if these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, be in the midst thereof, they by their rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall deliver their souls, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>15</sup> That if also I bring in worst beasts on the land, that I destroy it, and if it is without a way, for that no passer is for the beasts,

<sup>16</sup> and these three men that be before-said, be therein, I live, saith the Lord God, for they shall neither deliver sons, neither daughters, but they alone shall be delivered; forsooth the land shall be made desolate.

<sup>17</sup> Either if I bring in a sword on that land, and I say to the sword, Pass thou through the land, and I slay of it man and beast,

<sup>18</sup> and these three men be in the midst thereof, I live, saith the Lord God, that they shall not deliver sons neither daughters, but they alone shall be delivered.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth if I bring in also pestilence on that land, and I shed out mine indignation on it in blood, that I do away from it man and beast,

<sup>20</sup> and Noah, and Daniel, and Job, be in the midst thereof, I live, saith the Lord God, for they shall not deliver a son and a daughter, but they by their rightfulness [or rightwiseness] shall deliver their souls.

<sup>21</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, That though I send in my four worst dooms, sword, and hunger, and evil beasts, and pestilence, into Jeru-salem, that I slay of it man and beast, <sup>22</sup> nevertheless salvation of them that led out sons and daughters, shall be left therein. Lo! they shall go out to you, and ye shall see the way of them, and the findings of them; and ye shall be comforted on the evil, which I brought in on Jerusalem, in all things which I bare in on it.

<sup>23</sup> And they shall comfort you, when ye shall see the way of them, and the findings of them; and ye shall know, that not in vain I did all things, whatever things I did therein, saith the Lord Almighty.

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, what shall be done to the tree of a vine, of all the trees of woods, that be among the trees of woods?

<sup>3</sup> Whether tree, or timber, shall be taken thereof, that work be made? either shall a stake be made thereof, that any vessel hang thereon?

<sup>4</sup> Lo! it is given [to the fire] into meat; [the] fire wasted ever either part thereof, and the midst thereof is driven into a dead spark; whether it shall be profitable to work?

<sup>5</sup> Yea, when it was whole, it was not covenable to work; how much more when fire hath devoured, and hath burnt it, nothing of work shall be made thereof?

<sup>6</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, As the tree of a vine is among the trees of woods, which I gave to fire to devour, so I gave the dwellers of Jerusalem,

<sup>7</sup> and I shall set my face against them. They shall go out of the fire, and then another fire shall waste them; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall set my face against them,

<sup>8</sup> and shall give the land without a way and desolate, for they were trespassers, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, make known to Jerusalem their abominations;

<sup>3</sup> and thou shalt say, The Lord God saith these things. A! thou Jerusalem, thy root and thy generation is of the land of Canaan; thy father is Amorite, and thy mother is Hittite.

<sup>4</sup> And when thou were born, thy navel was not cut away in the day of thy birth, and thou were not washed in water into health, neither salted with salt, neither wrapped in swaddling clothes.

<sup>5</sup> An eye spared not on thee, that it having mercy on thee, did to thee one of these things; but thou were cast forth on the face of earth, in the casting out of thy soul, in the day in which thou were born.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth I passed by thee, and I saw thee defouled in thy blood; and I said to thee, when thou were in thy blood, Live thou; soothly I said to thee in thy blood, Live thou.

<sup>7</sup> I gave thee multiplied as the seed of a field, and thou were multiplied, and made great; and thou enteredest, and camest fully to women's adorning; thy teats waxed great, and thine hair waxed; and thou were naked, and full of shame.

<sup>8</sup> And I passed by thee, and I saw thee, and lo! thy time, the time of lovers; and I spreaded abroad my clothing on thee, and I covered thy shame. And I swore to thee, and I made a covenant with thee, saith the Lord God, and thou were made a wife to me.

<sup>9</sup> And I washed thee in water, and I cleansed away thy blood from thee, and I anointed thee with oil.

<sup>10</sup> And I clothed thee with clothes of diverse colours, and I shodded thee in jacinth, and I girded thee with bis, [or white silk];

<sup>11</sup> and I clothed thee with subtle things, and I adorned thee with ornament[s]. And I gave bands in thine hands, and a wreath about thy neck;

<sup>12</sup> and I gave a ring on thy mouth, and circles to thine ears, and a crown of fairness in thine head.

<sup>13</sup> And thou were adorned with gold and silver, and thou were clothed with bis, and ray-cloth with round images, and many colours. Thou atest clean flour of wheat, and honey, and oil, and thou were made fair full greatly; and thou increasedest into a realm, <sup>14</sup> and thy name went out into heathen men for thy fairness; for thou were perfect in my fairness which I had set [or put] [up] on thee, saith the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> And thou haddest trust in thy fairness, and didest fornication in thy name; and thou settedest [or hast put] forth thy fornication to each that passed forth, that thou shouldest be made his.

<sup>16</sup> And thou tookest of my clothes, and madest to thee high things set about on each side; and thou didest fornication on those [or them], as it was not done, neither shall be done.

<sup>17</sup> And thou tookest the vessels of thy fairness, of my gold and of my silver, which I gave to thee; and thou madest to thee images of men, and didest fornication in those [or them].

<sup>18</sup> And thou tookest thy clothes of many colours, and thou were clothed in those [or them]; and thou settedest mine oil and mine incense in the sight of those [or them].

<sup>19</sup> And thou settedest my bread, which I gave to thee, flour of wheat, and oil, and honey, by which I nourished thee, in the sight of those [or them], into an odour of sweetness; and it was done, saith the Lord God.

<sup>20</sup> And thou tookest thy sons and thy daughters, which thou engenderedest to me, and offeredest to those idols, for to be devoured. Whether thy fornication is little?

<sup>21</sup> Thou offeredest my sons, and gavest them, and hallowedest to those idols.

<sup>22</sup> And after all thine abominations and fornications, thou bethoughtest not on the days of thy young waxing age, when thou were naked, and full of shame, and were defouled in thy blood.

<sup>23</sup> And after all thy malice, woe, woe befell to thee, saith the Lord God.

<sup>24</sup> And thou buildedest to thee a bordello house, and madest to thee a place of whoredom in all streets.

<sup>26</sup> And thou didest fornication with the sons of Egypt, thy neighbours of great flesh, and thou multipliedest thy fornications, to stir me to wrath.

<sup>27</sup> Lo! I shall stretch forth mine hand on thee, and I shall take away thy justifying; and I shall give thee into the souls of them that hate thee, of the daughters of Palestines, that be ashamed in thy way full of great trespass.

<sup>28</sup> And thou didest fornication with the sons of Assyrians, for thou were not [ful] filled yet; and after that thou didest fornication, neither so thou were [ful] filled.

<sup>29</sup> And thou multipliedest thy fornication in the land of Canaan with Chaldees, and neither so thou were [ful] filled.

<sup>30</sup> In what thing shall I cleanse thine heart, saith the Lord God, when thou doest all these works of a woman, an whore, and greedy asker [or and bold to whoredom]?

<sup>31</sup> For thou madest thy bordello house in the head of each way, and thou madest thine high place in each street; and thou were not made as an whore full of annoying, increasing price, <sup>32</sup> but as a woman adulteress, that bringeth in aliens on her husband.

<sup>33</sup> Hires be given to all whores, but thou hast given hire, [or meed], to all thy lovers; and thou gavest to them, that they should enter to thee on each side, to do fornication with thee.

<sup>34</sup> And it was done in thee against the custom of women in thy fornications, and fornication shall not be after thee; for in that that thou gavest hires, and tookest not hires, the contrary was done in thee.

<sup>36</sup> The Lord God saith these things, For thy riches is shed out, and thy shame is showed in thy fornications on thy lovers, and on the idols of thine abominations, in the blood of thy sons, which thou gavest to them;

<sup>37</sup> lo! I shall gather together all thy lovers, with which thou were meddled [or mingled]together, and all men which thou lovedest, with all men which thou hatedest;

and I shall gather them on thee on each side, and I shall make naked thy shame before them, and they shall see all thy filthhood.

<sup>38</sup> And I shall deem thee by the dooms of adulteresses, and shedding out blood; and I shall give thee into the blood of strong vengeance, and of fervor.

<sup>39</sup> And I shall give thee into the hands of them, and they shall destroy thy bordello house, and they shall destroy the place of thine whoredom; and they shall make thee naked of thy clothes, and they shall take away the vessels of thy fairness, and they shall forsake thee naked, and full of shame.

<sup>40</sup> And they shall bring on thee a multitude, and they shall stone thee with stones, and they shall slay thee with their swords.

<sup>41</sup> And they shall burn thine houses with fire, and they shall make dooms in thee, before the eyes of full many women; and thou shalt cease to do fornication, and thou shalt no more give hires.

<sup>42</sup> And mine indignation shall rest in thee, and my fervent love shall be taken away from thee; and I shall rest, and I shall no more be wroth,

<sup>43</sup> for thou haddest not mind on the days of thy young waxing age, and thou stirredest me to ire in all these things. Wherefore and I gave thy ways in thine head, saith the Lord God, and I did not after thy great trespasses, in all these thine abominations.

<sup>44</sup> Lo! each man that saith a proverb commonly, shall take it in thee, and shall say, As the mother, so and the daughter of her.

<sup>47</sup> But thou wentest not in the ways of them, neither thou didest after the great trespasses of them; hast thou done almost a little less curseder deeds than they, in all thy ways?

<sup>48</sup> Yea, as I live, saith the Lord God, for Sodom, thy sister, did not, she and her daughters, as thou didest, and thy daughters.

<sup>49</sup> Lo! this was the wickedness of Sodom, thy sister, pride, fullness of bread, and abundance, and idleness of her, and of her daughters; and they putted not hand to a needy man and poor.

<sup>50</sup> And they were enhanced, and did other abominations before me; and I took them away, as thou hast seen.

<sup>51</sup> And Samaria sinned not the half of thy sins, but thou hast overcome them in thy great trespasses; and thou hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations, which thou wroughtest.

<sup>52</sup> Therefore and thou bear thy shame, that hast overcome thy sisters with thy sins, and didest more cursedly than they; for they be justified of thee. Therefore and be thou shamed, and bear thy shame, which hast justified thy sisters.

<sup>53</sup> And I shall convert and restore them by the conversion of Sodom with her daughters, and by the conversion of Samaria and of her daughters; and I shall convert thy turning again in the midst of them,

<sup>54</sup> that thou bear thy shame, and be shamed in all things which thou didest, comforting them.

<sup>55</sup> And thy sister Sodom and her daughters shall turn again to their eldness [or oldness]/or old ways; and Samaria and her daughters shall turn again to their eldness; and thou and thy daughters turn again to your eld-ness.

<sup>56</sup> Forsooth Sodom, thy sister, was not heard in thy mouth, in the day of thy pride,

<sup>57</sup> before that thy malice was showed, as in this time, into shame of the daughters of Syria, and all daughters in thy compass, of the daughters of Palestines, that be about thee by compass.

<sup>59</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, And I shall do to thee as thou despisedest the oath, that thou shouldest make void the covenant;

<sup>60</sup> and I shall have mind on my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I shall raise to thee a covenant everlasting.

<sup>61</sup> And thou shalt have mind on thy ways, and shalt be ashamed, when thou shalt receive thy sisters greater than thou, with thy less sisters; and I shall give them into daughters to thee, but not of thy covenant.

<sup>62</sup> And I shall raise, or establish, my covenant with thee, and thou shalt know, that I am the Lord,

<sup>63</sup> that thou have mind, and be ashamed; and that it be no more to thee to open the mouth for thy shame, when I shall be pleased to thee in all things which thou didest, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, set forth a dark speech, and tell thou a parable to the house of Israel;

<sup>4</sup> He pulled away the highness of boughs thereof, and bare it over into the land of Canaan, and setted it in the city of merchants.

<sup>5</sup> And he took of the seed of the land, and setted it in the land for seed, that it should make steadfast root on many waters; and he setted it in the higher part.

<sup>6</sup> And when it had grown, it increased into a larger vinery [or a broad vineyard], in low stature; for the boughs thereof beheld to that eagle, and the roots thereof were under that eagle; therefore it was made a vinery [or vineyard], and it made fruit into scions, and sent out boughs.

<sup>7</sup> And another great eagle was made, with great wings, and many feathers; and lo! this vinery [or this vineyard] as sending his roots to that eagle, stretched forth his scions to that eagle, that he should moist it out of the cornfloors of his seed.

<sup>8</sup> Which is planted in a good land on many waters, that it make boughs, and bear fruit, that it be into a great vinery [or vineyard].

<sup>9</sup> Say thou, Ezekiel, The Lord God saith these things, Therefore whether he shall have prosperity? Whether Nebuchadnezzar shall not pull away the roots of him, and shall constrain the fruits of him? And he shall make dry all the scions of burgeoning thereof, and it shall be dry; and not in great arm, neither in much people, that he should draw it out by the roots.

<sup>10</sup> Lo! it is planted, therefore whether it shall have prosperity? Whether not when burning wind shall touch it, it shall be made dry, and shall wax dry in the cornfloors of his seed?

<sup>11</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>12</sup> Say thou to the house of Israel stirring me to wrath, Know ye not what these things signify? Say thou, Lo! the king of Babylon cometh into Jerusalem; and he shall take the king and the princes thereof, and he shall lead them to himself into Babylon.

<sup>13</sup> And he shall take of the seed of the realm, and shall smite with it a bond of peace, and he shall take of it an oath; but also he shall take away the strong men of the land,

<sup>14</sup> that it be a meek realm, and be not raised [up], but that it keep the covenant of him, and hold it.

<sup>15</sup> Which went away from him, and sent messengers into Egypt, that it should give to him horses and much people. Whether he that did these things, shall have prosperity, either shall get health? and whether he that breaketh [a] covenant, shall escape?

<sup>16</sup> I live, saith the Lord God, for in the place of the king that made him king, whose oath he made void, and brake the covenant, which he had with him, in the midst of Babylon he shall die.

<sup>17</sup> And not in great host, neither in much people, Pharaoh shall make battle against him, in the casting up of [an heap of] earth, and in building of pales or posts, that he slay many persons.

<sup>18</sup> For he despised the oath, that he should break the bond of peace, and lo! he gave his hand; and when he hath done all these things, he shall not escape.

<sup>19</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, I live, for I shall set [or put] on his head the oath which he despised, and the bond of peace which he brake.

<sup>20</sup> And I shall spread abroad my net [up] on him, and he shall be taken in my net, and I shall bring him into Babylon; and there I shall deem him in the trespassing, by which he despised me.

<sup>21</sup> And all his fleers-away with all his company shall fall down by sword, forsooth the remnants shall be scattered into each wind; and ye shall know, that I the Lord spake.

<sup>22</sup> The Lord God saith these things, And I shall take of the marrow of an high cedar, and I shall set a tender thing of the cop [or top] of his branches; I shall constrain, and I shall plant it on an high hill, and appearing far off.

<sup>23</sup> In the high hill of Israel I shall plant it; and it shall break out into burgeoning, and it shall make fruit, and it shall be into a great cedar, and all birds shall dwell under it; each volatile shall make nest under the shadow of his boughs.

<sup>24</sup> And all [the] trees of the country shall know, that I am the Lord; I made low the high tree, and I enhanced the low tree, and I made dry the green tree, and I made the dry tree to bring forth boughs; I the Lord have spoken, and I have done.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> What is it, that ye turn a parable among you into this proverb, in the land of Israel, and say, [The] Fathers ate a bitter grape, and the teeth of sons be on edge, either astonied?

<sup>3</sup> I live, saith the Lord God, this parable shall no more be into a proverb to you in Israel.

<sup>4</sup> Lo! all souls be mine; as the soul of the father, so and the soul of the son is mine. That soul that doeth sin, shall die.

<sup>5</sup> And if a man is just, and doeth doom and rightfulness,

<sup>6</sup> eateth not in [the] hills, and raiseth not his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel; and defouleth not the wife of his neighbour, and nigheth not to a woman defouled with unclean blood;

<sup>7</sup> and maketh not a man sorry, yieldeth the wed to the debtor, ravisheth nothing by violence, giveth his bread to the hungry, and covereth a naked man with a cloth;

<sup>8</sup> lendeth not to usury, and taketh not more; turneth away his hand from wickedness, and maketh true doom betwixt man and man;

<sup>9</sup> and goeth in my commandments, and keepeth my dooms, that he do truth; this is a just man, he shall live in life, saith the Lord God.

<sup>10</sup> That if he engendereth a son, a thief, shedding out blood, and doeth one of these things,

<sup>11</sup> and soothly not doing all these things, but eating in hills, and defouling the wife of his neighbour;

<sup>12</sup> making sorrowful a needy man and poor, ravishing ravens, not yielding a wed, raising his eyes to idols, doing abomination;

<sup>13</sup> giving to usury, and taking more; whether he shall live? he shall not live; when he hath done all these abominable things, he shall die by death, his blood shall be in him.

<sup>14</sup> That if he begetteth a son, which seeth all the sins of his father, which he did, and dreadeth, and doeth none like those [or them];

<sup>15</sup> eateth not on hills, and raiseth not his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel; and defouleth not the wife of his neighbour,

<sup>16</sup> and maketh not sorry a man, withholdeth not a wed, and ravisheth not raven, giveth his bread to the hungry, and covereth the naked with a cloth;

<sup>17</sup> turneth away his hand from the wrong of a poor man, taketh not usury and overabundance, that is, nothing more than he lent, and doeth my dooms, and goeth in my commandments; this son shall not die in the wickedness of his father, but he shall live in life.

<sup>18</sup> For his father made false challenge, and did violence to his brother, and wrought evil in the midst of his people, lo! he is dead in his wickedness.

<sup>19</sup> And ye say, Why beareth not the son the wickedness of the father? That is to say, for the son wrought doom and rightfulness, he kept all my commandments, and did those [or them], he shall live in life.

<sup>20</sup> That soul that doeth sin, shall die; the son shall not bear the wickedness of the father, and the father shall not bear the wickedness of the son; the rightfulness [or rightwiseness] of a just man shall be on him, and the wicked-ness of a wicked man shall be on him.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth if a wicked man doeth penance of all his sins which he wrought, and keepeth all my behests, and doeth doom and rightfulness, he shall live by life, and shall not die.

<sup>22</sup> I shall not have mind of all his wickednesses which he wrought; he shall live in his rightfulness [or right-wiseness] which he wrought.

<sup>23</sup> Whether the death of the wicked man is of my will, saith the Lord God, and not that he be converted from his ways, and live?

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth if a just man turneth away himself from his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and doeth wickedness by all his abominations, which a wicked man is wont to work, whether he shall live? All his rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses] which he did, shall not be had in mind; in his trespassing by which he trespassed, and in his sin which he sinned, he shall die in those [or them].

<sup>25</sup> And ye said, The way of the Lord is not even. Therefore, the house of Israel, hear ye, whether my way is not even, and not more, your ways be shrewd?

<sup>26</sup> For when a rightful man turneth away himself from his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and doeth wickedness, he shall die in it; he shall die in the unrightfulness [or unrightwiseness] which he wrought.

<sup>27</sup> And when a wicked man turneth away himself from his wickedness which he wrought, and doeth doom and rightfulness, he shall quicken his soul.

<sup>28</sup> For he beholding and turning away himself from all his wicked-nesses which he wrought, [he] shall live in life, and shall not die.

<sup>29</sup> And the sons of Israel say, The way of the Lord is not even. Whether my ways be not even, ye house of Israel, and not more, your ways be shrewd?

<sup>30</sup> Therefore, thou house of Israel, I shall deem each man by his ways, saith the Lord God. Turn ye altogether, and do ye penance for all your wickednesses, and wickedness shall not be to you into falling.

<sup>31</sup> Cast away from you all your trespassings, by which ye trespassed, and make ye a new heart and a new spirit to you, and then why shall ye die, the house of Israel?

<sup>32</sup> For I desire not the death of him that dieth, saith the Lord God; turn ye again, and live ye.

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup> And thou, son of man, take wailing on the princes of Israel;

<sup>3</sup> and led out one of her little lions; he was made a lion, and he learned to take prey, and to eat men.

<sup>4</sup> And heathen men heard of him, and took him not without their wounds; and they brought him in chains into the land of Egypt.

<sup>5</sup> Which mother when she had seen, that she was sick, and the abiding of him perished, took another one of her little lions, and made him a lion.

<sup>6</sup> Which went among lions, and was made like a young lion; and [he] learned to take prey, and to devour men.

<sup>7</sup> He learned to make widows, and to bring the cities of men into desert; and the land and the fullness thereof was made desolate, of the voice of his roaring.

<sup>8</sup> And heathen men came together against him on each side from provinces, and spread on him their net; he was taken in the wounds of those heathen men.

<sup>9</sup> And they sent him into a cave in chains, and brought him to the king of Babylon; and they sent him into prison, that his voice were no more heard on the hills of Israel.

<sup>10</sup> Thy mother as a vinery [or vine-yard] in thy blood was planted on water; the fruits thereof and the boughs thereof increased by reason of many waters.

<sup>11</sup> And firm rods were made to it into sceptres of lords, and the stature thereof was enhanced among boughs; and it saw his highness in the multitude of his scions.

<sup>12</sup> And it was drawn out in wrath, and was cast forth into [the] earth; and a burning wind dried the fruit thereof, and the rods of strength thereof withered, and were made dry, and the fire ate it.

<sup>13</sup> And now it is planted over in desert, in a land without a way, and thirsty.

<sup>14</sup> And fire went out of a rod of the branches thereof, that ate the fruit thereof. And a strong rod, the sceptre of lords, was not in it. It is wailing, and it shall be into wailing.

CHAPTER 20

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the seventh year, in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month, men of the elders of Israel came to ask the Lord; and they sat before me.

<sup>2</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>3</sup> Son of man, speak thou to the elder men of Israel; and thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, Whether ye came to ask me? I live, for I shall not answer to you, saith the Lord God.

<sup>4</sup> Son of man, if thou deemest them, if thou deemest, show thou to them the abominations of their fathers.

<sup>5</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, In the day in which I chose Israel, and raised mine hand for the generation of the house of Jacob, and I appeared to them in the land of Egypt, and I raised mine hand for them, and I said, I am your Lord God,

<sup>6</sup> in that day I raised mine hand for them, that I should lead them out of the land of Egypt, into the land which I had purveyed for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, which is noble among all lands.

<sup>7</sup> And I said to them, Each man cast away the offences of his eyes, and do not ye be defouled in the idols of Egypt; I am your Lord God.

<sup>8</sup> And they stirred me to wrath, and would not hear me; each man casted not away the abominations of his eyes, neither they forsook the idols of Egypt. And I said, that I would shed out mine indignation on them, and [ful] fill my wrath in them, in the midst of the land of Egypt.

<sup>9</sup> And I did for my name, that it should not be defouled before heathen men, in the midst of whom they were, and among whom I appeared to them, that I should lead them out of the land of Egypt.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore I casted them out of the land of Egypt, and I led them out into desert;

<sup>11</sup> and I gave to them my command-ments, and I showed to them my dooms, which a man shall do, and live in those [or them].

<sup>12</sup> Furthermore and I gave to them my sabbaths, that it should be a sign betwixt me and them, and that they should know, that I am the Lord hallowing them.

<sup>13</sup> And the house of Israel stirred me to wrath in desert; they went not in my commandments, and they casted away my dooms, which a man that doeth, shall live in those [or them]; and they defouled greatly my sabbaths. Therefore I said, that I would shed out my strong vengeance on them in desert, and waste them;

<sup>14</sup> and I did for my name, lest it were defouled before heathen men, from whom I casted them out in the sight of those [or them].

<sup>15</sup> Therefore I raised mine hand on them in the desert, that I brought not them into the land which I gave to them, the land flowing with milk and honey, the best of all lands.

<sup>16</sup> For they casted away my dooms, and went not in my commandments, and they defouled my sabbaths; for the heart of them went after idols.

<sup>17</sup> And mine eyes spared on them, that I killed not them, neither I wasted them in the desert.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth I said to the sons of them in wilderness, Do no ye go in the commandments of your fathers, neither keep ye the dooms of them, neither be ye defouled in the idols of them.

<sup>19</sup> I am your Lord God, go ye in my commandments, and keep ye my dooms, and do ye those [or them].

<sup>20</sup> And hallow ye my sabbaths, that it be a sign betwixt me and you, and that it be known, that I am your Lord God.

<sup>21</sup> And the sons stirred me to wrath, and went not in my commandments, and kept not my dooms, that they did those [or them], which when a man hath done, he shall live in those [or them], and they defouled my sabbaths. And I menaced to [or threatened] them that I would shed out my strong vengeance on them, and [ful] fill my wrath in them in the desert.

<sup>22</sup> But I turned away mine hand, and I did this for my name, that it were not defouled before heathen men, from which I casted them out before the eyes of those [or them].

<sup>23</sup> Again I raised mine hand against them in wilderness, that I should scatter them into nations, and winnow them into other lands;

<sup>24</sup> for that that they had not done my dooms, and had reproved my commandments, and had defouled my sabbaths, and their eyes had been longing after the idols of their fathers.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore and I gave to them commandments not good, and dooms in which they shall not live.

<sup>26</sup> And I defouled them in their gifts, when they offered to me for their trespasses all thing that openeth the womb; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>27</sup> Wherefore speak thou, son of man, to the house of Israel, and thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, Yet and in this your fathers blasphemed me, when they despising had forsaken me,

<sup>28</sup> and I had brought them into the land on which I raised mine hand, that I should give [it] to them, they saw each high little hill, and each tree full of boughs, and they offered there their sacrifices, and they gave there their offerings, into stirring me to wrath; and they set [or put] there the odour of their sweetness, and they offered their moist sacrifices.

<sup>29</sup> And I said to them, What is the high thing, to which ye enter? And the name thereof is called High Thing till to this day.

<sup>30</sup> Therefore say thou to the house of Israel, The Lord God saith these things, Certainly ye be defouled in the way of your fathers, and ye do fornication after the offendings of them,

<sup>31</sup> and in the offering of your gifts, when ye led over your sons by fire, ye be defouled in all your idols till today, and shall I answer to you, the house of Israel? I live, saith the Lord God, for I shall not answer to you;

<sup>32</sup> neither the thought of your soul shall be done, that say, We shall be as heathen men, and as [the] nations of earth, that we worship trees and stones.

<sup>33</sup> I live, saith the Lord God, for in strong hand, and in arm stretched forth, and in strong vengeance shed out, I shall reign [up] on you.

<sup>34</sup> And I shall lead out you from peoples, and I shall gather you from lands, in which ye be scattered; in strong hand, and in arm stretched forth, and in strong vengeance shed out I shall reign on you.

<sup>35</sup> And I shall bring you into desert of peoples, and I shall be deemed there with you face to face.

<sup>36</sup> As I strived in doom against your fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt, so I shall deem you, saith the Lord;

<sup>37</sup> and I shall make you subject to my sceptre, and I shall bring in you in the bonds of peace.

<sup>38</sup> And I shall choose of you trespassers, and wicked men; and I shall lead them out of the land of their dwelling, and they shall not enter into the land of Israel; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>39</sup> And ye, the house of Israel, the Lord God saith these things, Go ye each man after your idols, and serve ye those [or them]. That and if ye hear not me in this, and defoul more mine holy name in your gifts, and in your idols,

<sup>40</sup> in mine holy hill, in the high hill of Israel, saith the Lord God, ye shall be punished grievously. There all the house of Israel shall serve me, soothly all men in the land, in which they shall please me; and there I shall seek your first fruits, and the beginning of your tithes in all your hallowings.

<sup>41</sup> I shall receive you into odour of sweetness, when I shall lead you out of peoples, and shall gather you from lands, in which ye were scattered; and I shall be hallowed in you before the eyes of the nations.

<sup>42</sup> And ye shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall bring you into the land of Israel, into the land for which I raised mine hand, that I should give it to your fathers.

<sup>43</sup> And ye shall have mind there on your ways, and on all your great trespasses, by which ye be defouled in those [or them]; and ye shall displease you in your sight, in all your malices which ye did.

<sup>44</sup> And ye shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall do well to you for my name; not by your evil ways, neither by your worst trespasses, ye house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

<sup>45</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>46</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face against the way of the south, and drop thou thy word to the south, and prophesy thou to the forest of the midday, [or south], field.

<sup>47</sup> And thou shalt say to the midday, [or south], forest, Hear thou the word of the Lord. The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall kindle a fire in thee, and I shall burn in thee each green tree, and each dry tree; the flame of burning shall not be quenched, and each face shall be burnt therein, from the south till to the north.

<sup>48</sup> And each man shall see, that I the Lord have kindled it, and it shall not be quenched.

<sup>49</sup> And I said, A! A! A! Lord God, they say of me, Whether this man speaketh not by parables?

CHAPTER 21

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face to Jerusalem, and drop thou thy word to the saintuaries, and prophesy thou against the earth of Israel.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt say to the land of Israel, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I to thee, and I shall cast my sword out of his sheath, and I shall slay in thee a just man and a wicked man.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth for that that I have slain in thee a just man and a wicked man, therefore my sword shall go out of his sheath to each man, from the south till to the north;

<sup>5</sup> that each man know, that I the Lord have drawn out my sword from his sheath, that shall not be called again.

<sup>6</sup> And thou, son of man, wail in [the] sorrow of loins, and in bitter-nesses thou shalt wail before them.

<sup>7</sup> And when they shall say to thee, Why wailest thou? thou shalt say, For [the] hearing, for it cometh; and each heart shall fail, and all hands shall be made numb, and each spirit shall be feeble, and waters shall flow down by all knees; lo! it cometh, and it shall be done, saith the Lord God.

<sup>8</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>9</sup> Son of man, prophesy thou; and thou shalt say, The Lord God saith these things, Speak thou, The sword, the sword is made sharp, and is made bright;

<sup>10</sup> it is made sharp to slay sacrifices; it is made bright, that it shine. Thou that movest the sceptre of my son, hast cut down each tree.

<sup>11</sup> And I gave it to be furbished, that it be holden with hand; this sword is made sharp, and this is made bright, that it be in the hand of the slayer.

<sup>12</sup> Son of man, cry thou, and yell, for this sword is made in my people, this in all the dukes of Israel; they that fled be given to sword with my people. Therefore smite thou on thine hip, <sup>13</sup> for it is proved; and this when it hath destroyed the sceptre, and it shall not be, saith the Lord God.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore, son of man, prophesy thou, and smite thou hand to hand, and the sword be doubled, and the sword of the slayers be trebled; this is the sword of great slaying, that shall make them astonied, and to fail in heart, and multiplieth fallings.

<sup>15</sup> In all the gates of them I gave troubling of a sword, sharp and made bright to shine, girded to slaying.

<sup>17</sup> Certainly and I shall smite with hand to hand, and I shall [ful] fill mine indignation; I the Lord spake.

<sup>18</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>19</sup> And thou, son of man, set to thee two ways, that the sword of the king of Babylon come; both shall go out of one land, and by the hand he shall take conjecturing; he shall conjecture in the head of the way of the city,

<sup>20</sup> setting a way, that the sword come to Rabbath of the sons of Ammon, and to Judah into Jerusalem most strong.

<sup>21</sup> For the king of Babylon stood in the meeting of two ways, in the head of two ways, and sought divining, and meddled [or mingled] arrows; he asked idols, and took counsel at entrails.

<sup>22</sup> Divining was made to his right side on Jerusalem, that he set engines, that he open [the] mouth in slaying, that he raise [the] voice in yelling, that he set engines against the gates, that he bear together [an heap of] earth, that he build strongholds.

<sup>23</sup> And he shall be as counselling in a vain god's answer before the eyes of them, and serving on the rest of sabbaths; but he shall have mind on their wickedness, to take them.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For that that ye had mind on your wickednesses, and showed your trespassings, and your sins appeared in all your thoughts, forsooth for that that ye had mind, ye shall be taken by the enemies' hand.

<sup>25</sup> But thou, cursed wicked duke of Israel, whose day before-determined is come in the time of wickedness,

<sup>26</sup> the Lord God saith these things, Do away the mitre, take away the crown; whether it is not this that raised the meek man, and made low the high man?

<sup>27</sup> Wickedness, wickedness, wicked-ness, I shall put it; and this shall not be done till he come, whose the doom it is, and I shall betake it to him.

<sup>28</sup> And thou, son of man, prophesy, and say, The Lord God saith these things to the sons of Ammon, and to the shame of them; and thou shalt say, A! thou sword, A! thou sword, drawn out to slay, made bright, that thou slay and shine,

<sup>29</sup> when vain things were seen to thee, and leasings were divined, that thou shouldest be given on the necks of wicked men wounded, the day of which before-determined shall come in the time of wickedness,

<sup>30</sup> turn thou again into thy sheath, into the place in which thou were made. I shall deem thee in the land of thy birth,

<sup>31</sup> and I shall shed out mine indignation on thee; in the fire of my strong vengeance I shall blow in thee, and I shall give thee into the hands of unwise men, and making death.

<sup>32</sup> Thou shalt be meat to fire, thy blood shall be in the midst of earth; thou shalt be given to forgetting, for I the Lord spake.

CHAPTER 22

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> And thou, son of man, whether thou deemest not the city of bloods? And thou shalt show to it all his abominations,

<sup>3</sup> and thou shalt say, The Lord God saith these things, This is a city shedding out blood in the midst of itself, that the time thereof come; and which made idols against itself, that it should be defouled.

<sup>4</sup> In thy blood which is shed out of thee, thou trespassedest, and thou art defouled in thine idols which thou madest; and thou madest thy days to nigh, and thou broughtest the time of thy years. Therefore I gave thee to be a shame to heathen men, and a scorning to all lands

<sup>5</sup> that be nigh thee, and that be far from thee; thou foul city, noble, great in perishing, they shall have victory of thee.

<sup>6</sup> Lo! [the] princes of Israel, all in their arm, were in thee, to shed out blood.

<sup>7</sup> They punished with wrongs [the] father and mother in thee, they challenged falsely a comeling in the midst of thee, they made sorry a fatherless child, and a widow at thee.

<sup>9</sup> Men backbiters were in thee, to shed out blood, and eat on hills [or mountains] in thee; they wrought great trespass in the midst of thee.

<sup>10</sup> They uncovered the shamefuller things of the father[s] in thee, they made low in thee the uncleanness of a woman in unclean blood.

<sup>12</sup> They took gifts of thee, to shed out blood; thou tookest usury and over-abundance, and thou challengedest greedily thy neighbours, and thou hast forgotten me, saith the Lord God.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! I have smitten together mine hands on thine avarice, [or greediness], which thou didest, and on the blood which is shed out in the midst of thee.

<sup>14</sup> Whether thine heart shall sustain, either thine hands shall have power, in the days which I shall make to thee? For I the Lord spake, and I shall do.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall scatter thee into nations, and I shall winnow, [or blow], thee into other lands; and I shall make thine uncleanness to fail from thee,

<sup>16</sup> and I shall wield thee in the sight of heathen men; and thou shalt know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>17</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>18</sup> Thou, son of man, the house of Israel is turned to me into dross, either filth of iron; all these be brass, and tin, and iron, and lead, in the midst of a furnace; they be made the dross of silver.

<sup>19</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For that all ye be turned into dross, lo! I shall gather you together in the midst of Jerusalem,

<sup>20</sup> by the gathering together of silver, and of latten, and of iron, and of tin, and of lead, in the midst of a furnace; and I shall kindle therein a fire, to well together; so I shall gather you together in my strong vengeance, and in my wrath, and I shall rest. And I shall well you together,

<sup>21</sup> and I shall gather you together, and I shall set you afire in the fire of my strong vengeance, and ye shall be welled together in the midst thereof.

<sup>22</sup> As silver is welled together in the midst of a furnace, so ye shall be in the midst thereof; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord, when I have shed out mine indignation [up] on you.

<sup>23</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>24</sup> Son of man, say thou to it, Thou art a land unclean, and not berained in the day of strong vengeance.

<sup>26</sup> [The] Priests thereof despised my law, and defouled my saintuaries; they had not difference betwixt holy thing and unholy, they understood not betwixt defouled thing and clean thing; and they turned away their eyes from my sabbaths, and I was defouled in the midst of them.

<sup>27</sup> The princes thereof in the midst thereof were as wolves ravishing prey, to shed out blood, and to lose men, and in following lucre greedily.

<sup>28</sup> Forsooth the prophets thereof pargeted them without tempering, and saw vain things, and divined leasings to them, and said, The Lord God saith these things, when the Lord spake not.

<sup>29</sup> The peoples of the land challenged false challenge, and ravished by violence; they tormented a needy man and poor, and oppressed a comeling by false challenge, without doom.

<sup>30</sup> And I sought of them a man, that should set [or put] an hedge betwixt, and stand set [even] against me for the land, that I should not destroy it, and I found not.

<sup>31</sup> And I shed out on them mine indignation, and I wasted them in the fire of my wrath; and I yielded the way of them on the head of them, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 23

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, two women were the daughters of one mother,

<sup>3</sup> and did fornication in Egypt; in their young waxing age they did fornication; there the breasts of them were made low, and the teats of the time of marriage of them were broken.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth the names of them be, Oholah, the more sister, and Oholibah, the less sister of her. And I had them, and they childed sons and daughters; certainly the names of them be Samaria Oholah, and Jerusalem Oholibah.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore Oholah did fornication on me, and was wild on her lovers, on Assyrians nighing,

<sup>7</sup> And she gave her fornications on them, on all the chosen sons of Assyrians; and in all on which she was wild, she was defouled in the uncleanness of them.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore I gave her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the sons of Assur, on whose lechery she was wild.

<sup>10</sup> They discovered the shame of her; they took away the sons and the daughters of her, and killed her with sword; and the women were made infamous, that is, made a scandal, and they did dooms in her.

<sup>11</sup> And when her sister Oholibah had seen this, she was wild in lechery more than that sister, and gave unshamefastly her fornication, on the fornication of her sister,

<sup>12</sup> to the sons of Assyrians, to dukes and magistrates coming to her, that were clothed with diverse clothes, to knights that were borne on horses, and to young men with noble shape, to all men.

<sup>13</sup> And I saw that one way of both sisters was defouled,

<sup>14</sup> and she increased her fornications. And when she had seen men painted in the wall, the images of Chaldees expressed with colours,

<sup>15</sup> and girded on the reins with knights' girdles, and caps painted on the heads of them, the forms of all dukes, the likeness of the sons of Babylon, and of the land of Chaldees, in which they were born;

<sup>16</sup> she was wild on them by covet-ousness of her eyes, and she sent messengers to them into Chaldea.

<sup>17</sup> And when the sons of Babylon were come to her, to the bed of teats, they defouled her in their lecheries of virgins; and she was defouled of them, and the soul of her was filled with revulsion of them.

<sup>18</sup> Also she made naked her forni-cations, and discovered her shame; and my soul went away from her, as my soul had gone away from her sister.

<sup>19</sup> For she multiplied her fornications, and had mind on the days of her youth, in which she did fornication in the land of Egypt.

<sup>20</sup> And she was wild in lechery on the lying-by of them, whose flesh be as the flesh of asses, and as the members of horses be the members of them.

<sup>21</sup> And thou revisitedest the great trespass of thy youth, when thy breasts were made low in Egypt, and the teats of the time of thy marriage were broken.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore, thou Oholibah, the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall raise all thy lovers against thee, of which thy soul was filled with revulsion, and I shall gather them against thee in compass;

<sup>23</sup> the sons of Babylon, and all Chaldees, noble and mighty men and princes, [and] all the sons of Assyrians, and young men of noble form, dukes, and magistrates, all princes of princes, and [the] named riders of horses.

<sup>24</sup> And they arrayed with chariot and wheel shall come on thee, the multitude of peoples shall be armed with habergeon, and shield, and basinet, against thee on each side; and I shall give doom before them, and they shall deem thee by their dooms.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall set my fervour in thee, which they shall use with thee in strong vengeance; they shall cut away thy nose and thine ears, and they shall slay with sword those things that were left; they shall take thy sons and thy daughters, and thy last thing shall be devoured by fire.

<sup>26</sup> And they shall make thee naked of thy clothes, and they shall take away the vessels of thy glory.

<sup>27</sup> And I shall make thy great trespass to rest from thee, and thy fornication from the land of Egypt; and thou shalt not raise thine eyes to them, and thou shalt no more have mind on Egypt.

<sup>28</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall give thee into the hands of them which thou hatest, into the hands of them of which thy soul was filled with revulsion, <sup>29</sup> and they shall do with thee in hatred. And they shall take away all thy travails, and they shall leave thee naked, and full of shame; and the shame of thy fornications shall be showed.

<sup>30</sup> Thy great trespass and thy fornications have done these things to thee; for thou didest fornication after heathen men, among which thou were defouled in the idols of them.

<sup>31</sup> Thou wentest in the way of thy sister, and I shall give the cup of her in thine hand.

<sup>32</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Thou shalt drink the cup of thy sister, the depth, and the broadness; thou that art most able to take, shalt be into scorning, and into mocking.

<sup>33</sup> Thou shalt be filled with drunken-ness and sorrow, with the cup of mourning and of heaviness, with the cup of thy sister Samaria.

<sup>34</sup> And thou shalt drink it, and thou shalt drink of till to the dregs, or unto the lees, and thou shalt devour the remnants thereof, and thou shalt rend thy breasts, for I the Lord spake, saith the Lord God.

<sup>35</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For thou hast forgotten me, and hast cast forth me behind thy body, bear thou also thy great trespass and thy fornications.

<sup>36</sup> And the Lord God said to me, and spake, Son of man, whether thou deemest Oholibah and Oholah, and tellest to them the great trespasses of them?

<sup>37</sup> For they did adultery, and blood was in the hands of them, and they did fornication with their idols; furthermore and they offered to those idols the sons which they engendered to me, for to be devoured.

<sup>38</sup> But also they did this to me, they defouled my sanctuary in that day, and made unholy my sabbaths.

<sup>39</sup> And when they sacrificed their sons to their idols, and entered into my sanctuary in that day, that they should defoul it, they did also these things in the midst of mine house.

<sup>40</sup> They sent to men coming from far, to which they had sent messengers. Therefore lo! they came, to which thou washedest thee, and anointedest thine eyes with ointment of women, and thou were adorned with women's attire.

<sup>41</sup> Thou satest in a full fair bed, and a board was adorned before thee; thou settedest mine incense and mine ointment on it.

<sup>42</sup> And a voice of multitude making full out joy was therein; and in men that were brought of the multitude of men, and came from desert, they setted [or puttedest] bands in the hands of them, and fair crowns on the heads of them.

<sup>43</sup> And I said to her, that was defouled in adulteries, Now also this shall do fornication in her fornication.

<sup>44</sup> And they entered to her; as to a woman, an whore, so they entered to Oholah and to Oholibah, cursed women.

<sup>45</sup> Therefore these men be just, these shall deem those women by the doom of adulteresses, and by the doom of them that shed out blood; for they be adulteresses, and blood is in the hands of them, and they did fornication with their idols.

<sup>46</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, Bring thou multitudes to them, and give thou them into noise, and into raven;

<sup>47</sup> and be they stoned with the stones of peoples, and be they stuck together with the swords of them. They shall slay the sons and the daughters of them, and they shall burn with fire the houses of them.

<sup>48</sup> And I shall do away great trespass from the land; and all women shall learn, that they do not after the great trespass of them.

<sup>49</sup> And they shall give your great trespass on you; and ye shall bear the sins of your idols, and ye shall know, that I am the Lord God.

CHAPTER 24

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, in the ninth year, and in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, write to thee the name of this day, in which the king of Babylon is confirmed in his attack against Jerusalem today.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt say by a proverb a parable to the house of Israel, stirrer to wrath, and thou shalt speak to them, The Lord God saith these things, Set thou a brazen pot, set thou it soothly, and put thou water into it.

<sup>4</sup> Take thou a beast full fat; gather thou together the gobbets thereof into it, each good part, and the hip, and the shoulder, chosen things and full of bones.

<sup>5</sup> Also dress thou heaps of bones under it; and the seething thereof boiled out, and the bones thereof were sodden in the midst thereof.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Woe to the city of bloods, to the pot whose rust is therein, and the rust thereof went not out of it; cast thou out it by parts, and by his parts; and the lot fell not on it.

<sup>7</sup> For why the blood thereof is in the midst thereof; he shed it out on a full clear stone, he shed not it out on earth, that it may be covered with dust,

<sup>8</sup> that I should bring in mine indignation, and avenge by vengeance; I gave the blood thereof on a full clear stone, that it should not be covered.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Woe to the city of bloods, whose burning I shall make great;

<sup>10</sup> gather thou together [the] bones, which I shall kindle with fire; fleshs shall be wasted, and all the setting together shall be sodden, and bones shall fail.

<sup>11</sup> Also set thou it void on coals, that the metal thereof wax hot, and be melted, and that the filth thereof be welled together in the midst thereof, and the rust thereof be wasted.

<sup>12</sup> It was sweated by much travail, and the over-great rust thereof went not out thereof, neither by fire.

<sup>13</sup> Thine uncleanness is abominable; for I would cleanse thee, and thou art not cleansed from thy filths; but neither thou shalt be cleansed before, till I make mine indignation to rest in thee.

<sup>14</sup> I the Lord spake; it shall come, and I shall make it, I shall not pass, neither I shall spare, neither I shall be pleased; by thy ways and by thy findings, I shall deem thee, saith the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>16</sup> Thou, son of man, lo! I take away from thee the desirable thing of thine eyes in vengeance, and thou shalt not wail, neither weep, neither thy tears shall flow down.

<sup>17</sup> Wail thou while being still, thou shalt not make mourning of dead men; thy crown be bound about thine head, and thy shoes shall be in the feet, neither thou shalt cover the mouth with a cloth, neither thou shalt eat the meats of mourners.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore I spake to the people in the morrowtide, and my wife was dead in the eventide; and I did in the morrowtide, as he had commanded to me.

<sup>19</sup> And the people said to me, Why showest thou not to us what these things signify, which thou doest?

<sup>20</sup> And I said to them, The word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>21</sup> Speak thou to the house of Israel, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall defoul my saintuary, the pride of your empire, and the desirable thing of your eyes, and on which your soul dreadeth; and your sons and your daughters, which ye left, shall fall by sword.

<sup>22</sup> And ye shall do, as I did; ye shall not cover mouths with cloth, and ye shall not eat the meat of wailers.

<sup>23</sup> Ye shall have crowns in your heads, and shoes in the feet; ye shall not wail, neither ye shall weep, but ye shall fail in wretchedness, for your wickednesses; and each man shall wail to his brother.

<sup>24</sup> And Ezekiel shall be to you into a sign of thing to coming, [or to come]; by all things which he did, ye shall do, when this thing shall come; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord God.

<sup>25</sup> And thou, son of man, lo! in the day in which I shall take away from them the strength of them, and the joy of dignity, and the desire of their eyes, on which the souls of them rest, cast away the sons and the daughters of them;

<sup>26</sup> in that day when a man fleeing shall come to thee, to tell to thee;

<sup>27</sup> in that day soothly thou shalt open thy mouth with him that fled; and thou shalt speak, and shalt no more be still; and thou shalt be to them into a sign of thing to coming, and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 25

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face against the sons of Ammon, and thou shalt prophesy of them.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt say to the sons of Ammon, Hear ye the word of the Lord God; the Lord God saith these things, For that that ye said, Well! well! on my saintuary, for it is defouled, and on the land of Israel, for it is made desolate, and on the house of Judah, for they be led into captivity;

<sup>4</sup> lo! therefore I shall give thee to the sons of the east into heritage, and they shall set their folds in thee, and they shall set their tents in thee; they shall eat thy fruits, and they shall drink thy milk.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall give Rabbah into a dwelling place of camels, and the sons of Ammon into a bed of beasts; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, For that that thou clappedest with hands, and smitedest with the foot, and joyedest of all [thy] desire on the land of Israel;

<sup>7</sup> therefore lo! I shall stretch forth mine hand [up] on thee, and I shall give thee into ravishing of heathen men, and I shall slay thee from peoples, and I shall lose thee, and all-break thee from lands; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord God saith these things, For that that Moab and Seir said, Lo! the house of Judah is as all folks,

<sup>9</sup> therefore lo! I shall open the shoulder of Moab of cities, soothly of cities thereof, and of the ends thereof, the noble cities of the land, Beth-jeshimoth, Baalmeon, and Kiriathaim,

<sup>10</sup> to the sons of the east, with the sons of Ammon. And I shall give it into heritage, that mind of the sons of Ammon be no more among heathen men, <sup>11</sup> and in Moab I shall make dooms; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> The Lord God saith these things, For that that Idumea did vengeance, that it avenged itself of the sons of Judah, and sinned doing trespass, and asked greatly vengeance of them;

<sup>13</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, I shall stretch forth mine hand on Idumea, and I shall take away from it man and beast, and I shall make it desert of the south; and they that be in Dedan shall fall by sword.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall give my vengeance on Idumea, by the hand of my people Israel; and they shall do in Edom by my wrath, and by my strong vengeance; and they shall know my vengeance, saith the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord God saith these things, For that that Palestines did vengeance, and avenged themselves, with all will slaying, and filling old enmities;

<sup>16</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall stretch forth mine hand on Palestines, and I shall slay [the] slayers, and I shall lose the remnants of the sea coast;

<sup>17</sup> and I shall make great vengeance in them, and I shall reprove in strong vengeance; and they shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall give my vengeance on them.

CHAPTER 26

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the eleventh year, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, for that that Tyre said of Jerusalem, Well! the gates of peoples be broken, it is turned to me; I shall be [ful] filled, it is forsaken;

<sup>3</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! Tyre, I on thee; and I shall make many folks to ascend [or go up] to thee, as the sea flowing ascendeth [or goeth up].

<sup>4</sup> And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre, and they shall destroy the towers thereof; and I shall raze the dust thereof from it, and I shall give it into a most clear stone.

<sup>5</sup> Drying of nets [it] shall be in the midst of the sea, for I spake, saith the Lord God. And Tyre shall be into ravishing to heathen men.

<sup>6</sup> And the daughters thereof that be in the field, shall be slain by sword; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> For why the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall bring to Tyre Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, from the north, the king of kings, with horses, and chariots, and knights, and with a company, and great people.

<sup>8</sup> He shall slay by sword thy daughters that be in the field, and he shall encompass thee with strongholds, and he shall bear together [the heap of] earth in compass. And he shall raise a shield against thee,

<sup>9</sup> and he shall temper engines like vineries [or vines], and engines that be called wethers against thy walls; and he shall destroy thy towers by his arms.

<sup>10</sup> By flowing of his horses, the dust of those [or them] shall cover thee; thy walls shall be moved of the sound of knights, and of wheels, and of chariots; when he shall enter by the gates, as by enterings of a city destroyed,

<sup>11</sup> with the claws of his horses he shall defoul all thy streets. He shall slay by sword thy people, and thy noble images shall fall down into earth.

<sup>12</sup> They shall waste thy riches, they shall ravish thy merchandise; and they shall destroy thy walls, and they shall destroy thine houses full clear, and thy stones, and thy trees, and they shall put thy dust in the midst of waters.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall make to rest the multitude of thy singers, and the sound of thine harps shall no more be heard;

<sup>14</sup> and I shall give thee into a most clear stone. Thou shalt be a place for the drying of nets, and thou shalt no more be builded, for I the Lord spake, saith the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord God saith these things of Tyre, Whether isles shall not be moved of the sound of thy fall, and of the wailing of thy slain men, when they be slain in the midst of thee?

<sup>16</sup> And all the princes of the sea shall go down off their seats, and they shall do away their mantles, either their spoils of slain enemies, and they shall cast away their diverse clothes, and shall be clothed with wondering. They shall sit in the earth, and shall be astonied, and shall wonder on thy sudden fall.

<sup>17</sup> And they shall take wailing on thee, and shall say to thee, How perishedest thou, noble city, that dwellest in the sea, that were strong in the sea, with thy dwellers, which dwellers all men dreaded?

<sup>18</sup> Now ships shall wonder in the day of thy dread, and isles in the sea shall be troubled, for none goeth out of thee.

<sup>19</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, When I shall give thee to be a city desolate, as the cities that be not inhabited, and I shall bring on thee the depth of waters, and many waters shall cover thee.

<sup>20</sup> And I shall draw thee down with them that go down into a pit, to the people everlasting; and I shall set thee in the last land, as old wilder-nesses, with them that be led down into a pit, that thou be not inhabited. Certainly when I shall give glory in the land of livers, <sup>21</sup> I shall drive thee into nought, and thou shalt not be; and thou shalt be sought, and thou shalt no more be found without end, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 27

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt say to Tyre, that dwelleth in the entering of the sea, to the selling of merchandise of peoples to many isles, The Lord God saith these things, O! Tyre, thou saidest, I am of perfect fairness,

<sup>4</sup> and I am set in the heart of the sea. They that be in thy coasts that builded thee, [ful] filled thy fairness;

<sup>5</sup> they builded thee with fir trees of Senir, with all works of boards of the sea; they took a cedar of the Lebanon, to make a mast to thee.

<sup>6</sup> They hewed oaks of Bashan into thine oars, they made to thee thy seats of rowers of ivory of India, and cabins of the wood of the isles of Italy.

<sup>7</sup> Diverse bis, either white silk, of Egypt, was woven to thee into a veil, that it should be set [or put] in the mast; jacinth and purple of the isles of Elishah were made thy covering.

<sup>8</sup> The dwellers of Sidon and Arvad-ians were thy rowers; Tyre, thy wise men were made thy governors.

<sup>9</sup> The old men of Byblos, and the prudent men thereof, had shipmen to the service of thy diverse array of household; all the ships of the sea, and the shipmen of these [or them], were in the people of thy merchandise.

<sup>10</sup> Persians, and Ludians, and Libyans were in thine host; thy men warriors hanged in thee a shield and helmet, for thine adorning.

<sup>11</sup> Sons of Arvadians with thine host were on thy walls in thy compass; but also Gammadims, that were in thy towers, hanged their arrow cases on thy walls by compass; they [ful] filled thy fairness.

<sup>12</sup> Carthaginians, thy merchants, of the multitude of all kind of riches filled thy fairs, with silver, and iron, with tin, and lead.

<sup>13</sup> Greece, and Tubal, and Meshech, they were thy merchants, and brought bondmen and brazen vessels to thy people.

<sup>14</sup> From the house of Togarmah they brought horses, and horsemen, and mules, to thy chapping.

<sup>15</sup> The sons of Dedan were thy merchants; many isles provided the merchandise of thine hand, they exchanged teeth of ivory, and of ebony, in thy price.

<sup>17</sup> Judah and the land of Israel were thy merchants in the best wheat, and setted forth in thy fairs balm, and honey, and oil, and resin.

<sup>18</sup> Damascus was thy merchant, in the multitude of thy works, in the multitude of diverse riches, in fat wine, and wools of best colour.

<sup>21</sup> Arabia and all the princes of Kedar, they were the merchants of thine hand; with lambs, and wethers, and goat kids, thy merchants came to thee.

<sup>22</sup> The sellers of Sheba and of Raamah, they were thy merchants, with all the best sweet smelling spices, and precious stone, and gold, which they setted forth in thy market.

<sup>23</sup> Haran, and Canneh, and Eden, were thy merchants; Sheba, and Assur, and Chilmad, were thy sellers.

<sup>24</sup> They were thy merchants in many manners, in fardels of jacinth, and of clothes of many colours, and of precious riches, that were wrapped and bound with cords.

<sup>25</sup> Also ships of the sea had cedars in their merchandises; thy princes were in thy merchandise; and thou were [ful] filled, and were glorified greatly in the heart of the sea.

<sup>26</sup> Thy rowers brought thee in many waters, but the south wind all-brake thee; in the heart of the sea were

<sup>27</sup> thy riches, and thy treasures, and thy manifold instruments. Thy shipmen, and thy governors that held thy appurtenance of household, and were sovereigns of thy people, and thy men warriors that were in thee, with all thy multitude which is in the midst of thee, shall fall down in the heart of the sea, in the day of thy falling.

<sup>29</sup> and all men that held oar, shall go down out of their ships. Shipmen and all governors of the sea shall stand in the land;

<sup>30</sup> and shall yell on thee with great voice. And they shall cry bitterly, and shall cast powder, [or dust], on their heads, and shall be sprinkled with ashes.

<sup>31</sup> And they shall shave baldness on thee, and shall be gird with hair-shirts, and they shall bewEEP thee in bitterness of soul, with most bitter weeping.

<sup>32</sup> And they shall take on thee a song of mourning, and they shall bewail thee, Who is as Tyre, that was [or wax] dumb in the midst of the sea?

<sup>33</sup> And thou, Tyre, filledest the needs of many peoples in the going out of thy merchandise of the sea; in the multitude of thy riches, and of thy peoples, thou madest rich the kings of earth.

<sup>34</sup> Now thou art all-broken of the sea, in the depths of waters. Thy riches and all thy multitude that was in the midst of thee fell down;

<sup>35</sup> all the dwellers of isles and the kings of those [or them] were astonished on thee. All they were smitten with tempest, and changed their cheers;

<sup>36</sup> the merchants of peoples hissed, [or scorned], on thee. Thou art brought to nought, and thou shalt not be till into without end.

CHAPTER 28

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, say thou to the prince of Tyre, The Lord God saith these things, For thine heart was raised [up], and thou saidest, I am God, and I sat in the chair of God, in the heart of the sea, since thou art man and not God, and thou gavest thine heart as the heart of God;

<sup>4</sup> in thy wisdom and prudence thou madest to thee strength, and thou gattest to thee gold and silver in thy treasures;

<sup>5</sup> in the multitude of thy wisdom, and in thy merchandise thou multipliedest to thee strength, and thine heart was raised [up] in thy strength;

<sup>6</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, For thine heart was raised [up] as the heart of God,

<sup>7</sup> therefore lo! I shall bring on thee aliens, the strongest of heathen. And they shall make naked their swords on the fairness of thy wisdom, and they shall defoul thy fairness.

<sup>8</sup> They shall slay, and draw down thee into the pit; and thou shalt die by the death of uncircumcised men, in the heart of the sea.

<sup>9</sup> Whether thou shalt say, and speak, I am God, before them that slay thee; since thou art a man, and not God? In the hand of them that slay thee,

<sup>10</sup> by death of uncircumcised men, thou shalt die in the hand of aliens; for I the Lord spake, saith the Lord God.

<sup>11</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>12</sup> Son of man, raise thou wailing on the king of Tyre; and thou shalt say to him, The Lord God saith these things, Thou, a print of likeness, full of wisdom, perfect in fairness,

<sup>13</sup> were in the delights of paradise of God. Each precious stone was thy covering, sardius, topaz, and jasper, chrysolyte, and onyx, and beryl, sapphire, and carbuncle, and smaragdus; also gold was the work of thy fairness, and thine holes were made ready, in the day in which thou were made.

<sup>14</sup> Thou were with a cherub held forth, and covering; and I setted thee in the holy hill of God. In the midst of stones set afire thou wentest, <sup>15</sup> perfect in thy ways from the day of thy making, till wickedness was found in thee.

<sup>16</sup> In the multitude of thy merchandise, thine inner things were filled of wickedness, and thou didest sin; and I casted thee out of the hill of God, and, thou cherub covering afar, I lost thee from the midst of stones set afire.

<sup>17</sup> And thine heart was raised [up] in thy fairness, thou lostest thy wisdom in thy fairness. I casted thee down into earth, I gave thee before the face of kings, that they should see thee.

<sup>18</sup> In the multitude of thy wicked-nesses, and in the wickedness of thy merchandise, thou defoulest thine hallowing; therefore I shall bring forth fire of the midst of thee, that shall eat thee; and I shall give thee into ashes on [the] earth, in the sight of all men seeing thee.

<sup>19</sup> All men that shall see thee among heathen men, shall be astonished on thee; thou art made nought, and thou shalt not be without end.

<sup>20</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>21</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face against Sidon, and thou shalt prophesy of it;

<sup>22</sup> and shalt say, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I to thee, Sidon, and I shall be glorified in the midst of thee; and they shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall do dooms in it, and I shall be hallowed therein.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall send pestilence into it, and blood in the streets thereof, and slain men by sword shall fall down in the midst thereof by compass; and they shall know, that I am the Lord God.

<sup>24</sup> And there shall no more be an hurting of bitterness to the house of Israel, and a thorn bringing in sorrow on each side, by the compass of them, that be adversaries to them; and they shall know, that I am the Lord God.

<sup>25</sup> The Lord God saith these things, When I shall gather together the house of Israel from peoples, among which they be scattered, I shall be hallowed in them before heathen men. And they shall dwell in their land, which I gave to my servant Jacob.

<sup>26</sup> And they shall dwell secure therein, and they shall build houses, and they shall plant vines, and they shall dwell trustily, when I shall make dooms in all men that be adversaries to them by compass; and they shall know, that I am the Lord God of them.

CHAPTER 29

<sup>1</sup> In the tenth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face against Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and thou shalt prophesy of him, and of all Egypt.

<sup>3</sup> Speak thou, and thou shalt say, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I to thee, thou Pharaoh, king of Egypt, thou great dragon, that liest in the midst of thy floods, and sayest, The flood is mine, and I made it for myself.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall set [or put] a bridle in thy cheeks, and I shall glue the fishes of thy floods to thy scales; and I shall draw thee out of the midst of thy floods, and all thy fishes shall cleave to thy scales.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall cast thee forth into desert, and all the fishes of thy flood; on the face of earth thou shalt fall down, thou shalt not be gathered [up], neither shalt be gathered together to thy people; to the beasts of earth, and to the volatiles of the air, I gave thee to be devoured.

<sup>6</sup> And all the dwellers of Egypt shall know, that I am the Lord. For that that thou were a staff of a reed to the house of Israel,

<sup>7</sup> when they took hold of thee with their hands, and thou were broken, and rentest each shoulder of them, and when they rested on thee, thou were made less, and thou hast loosed, either discomfited, all the reins of them;

<sup>8</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall bring a sword on thee, and I shall slay of thee man and beast;

<sup>9</sup> and the land of Egypt shall be into desert, and into wilderness, and they shall know, that I am the Lord. For that that thou saidest, The flood is mine, and I made it,

<sup>10</sup> therefore lo! I to thee, and to thy floods. And I shall give into wilder-ness the land of Egypt, destroyed by sword, from the tower of Syene till to the terms of Ethiopia.

<sup>11</sup> The foot of man shall not pass by it, neither the foot of beast shall go in it, and it shall not be inhabited in forty years.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall give the land of Egypt forsaken, in the midst of lands forsaken, and the cities thereof in the midst of a city destroyed, and those shall be desolate by forty years. And I shall scatter Egyptians into nations, and I shall winnow them into lands.

<sup>13</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, After the end of forty years I shall gather together Egypt from peoples, among which they were scattered;

<sup>14</sup> and I shall bring again the captivity of Egypt. And I shall set them again in the land of Pathros, in the land of their birth; and they shall be there into a meek realm,

<sup>15</sup> and among other realms it shall be most low, and it shall no more be raised over nations. And I shall make them less, that they reign not on heathen men;

<sup>16</sup> and they shall no more be to the house of Israel in trust, teaching them wickedness, that they flee, and follow them; and they shall know, that I am the Lord God.

<sup>17</sup> And it was done in the seven and twentieth year, in the first month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>18</sup> Thou, son of man, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, made his host to serve by great service against Tyre; each head was made bald, and each shoulder was made bare of hair, and meed was not yielded of Tyre to him, neither to his host, for the service by which he served to me against it.

<sup>19</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall give Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, in the land of Egypt, and he shall take the multitude thereof; and he shall take in prey the clothes thereof, and he shall ravish the spoils thereof, and meed shall be to his host,

<sup>20</sup> and to the work for which he served to me against it; and I gave the land of Egypt to him, for that that he travailed to me, saith the Lord God.

<sup>21</sup> In that day, an horn of the house of Israel shall come forth, and I shall give to thee an open mouth in the midst of them; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 30

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, prophesy thou, and say, The Lord God saith these things, Yell ye, Woe! woe! to the day,

<sup>3</sup> for the day is nigh; and the day of the Lord nigheth, the day of a cloud. The time of heathen men shall be;

<sup>4</sup> and a sword shall come into Egypt, and dread shall be in Ethiopia, when wounded men shall fall down in Egypt, and the multitude thereof shall be taken away, and the founda-ments thereof shall be destroyed.

<sup>5</sup> Ethiopia, and Libya, and Lydians, and all the residue common people, and Chub, and the sons of the land of bond of peace, shall fall down by sword with them.

<sup>6</sup> The Lord God saith these things, And they that underset Egypt shall fall down, and the pride of the lordship thereof shall be destroyed; from the tower of Syene they shall fall by sword therein, saith the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>7</sup> And they shall be destroyed in the midst of lands made desolate, and the cities thereof shall be in the midst of cities forsaken.

<sup>8</sup> And they shall know, that I am the Lord God, when I shall give fire in Egypt, and all the helpers thereof shall be all-broken.

<sup>9</sup> In that day messengers shall go out from my face in ships with three orders of oars, to all-break, [or destroy], the trust of Ethiopia; and dread shall be in them in the day of Egypt, for without doubt it shall come.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord God saith these things, And I shall make to cease the multitude of Egypt in the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon.

<sup>11</sup> He and his people with him, the strongest men of heathen men, shall be brought, to lose the land; and they shall draw out their swords on Egypt, and they shall fill the land with slain men.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall make dry the bottoms of floods, and I shall give the land into the hand of the worst men; and I shall destroy the land, and the fullness thereof in the hand of aliens; I the Lord spake.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord God saith these things, And I shall lose simulacra, and I shall make idols to cease from Memphis, and a duke of the land of Egypt shall no more be. And I shall give dread in the land of Egypt, <sup>14</sup> and I shall lose, [or destroy], the land of Pathros. And I shall give fire in Tanis, and I shall make my dooms in Alexandria.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall shed out mine indig-nation on Pelusium, the strength of Egypt; and I shall slay the multitude of Alexandria,

<sup>16</sup> and I shall give fire in Egypt. Pelusium, as a woman travailing of child, shall have sorrow, and Alexandria shall be destroyed, and in Memphis shall be each day's anguishes.

<sup>17</sup> The young men of Heliopolis and of Bubastis shall fall down by sword, and those cities shall be led captives.

<sup>18</sup> And in Tahpanhes the day shall wax black, when I shall all-break there the sceptres of Egypt, and the pride of the power thereof shall fail therein. A cloud shall cover it; forsooth the daughters thereof shall be led into captivity, <sup>19</sup> and I shall make dooms in Egypt; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>20</sup> And it was done in the eleventh year, in the first month, in the seventh day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>21</sup> Thou, son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh, king of Egypt; and lo! it is not wrapped [about], that health should be restored thereto, that it should be bound with linen clothes, and wound about with linen clothes, and that he might hold a sword again, when he had received strength.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I to Pharaoh, king of Egypt; I shall make less his strong arm but broken, and I shall cast down the sword from his hand.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall scatter Egypt among heathen men, and I shall winnow them in lands.

<sup>24</sup> And I shall strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and I shall give my sword into the hand of him; and I shall break the arms of Pharaoh, and men slain before his face shall wail by wailings.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and the arms of Pharaoh shall fall down. And they shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall give my sword in the hand of the king of Babylon; and he shall stretch forth it on the land of Egypt.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall scatter Egypt into nations, and I shall winnow them into lands; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 31

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the eleventh year, in the third month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, say to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and to his people, To whom art thou made like in thy greatness?

<sup>3</sup> Lo! Assur as a cedar in Lebanon, fair in branches, and full of boughs, and high by highness; and his height was raised [up] among thick boughs.

<sup>4</sup> Waters nourished him, the depth of waters enhanced him; his floods floated out in the compass of his roots, and he sent out his strands to all the trees of the country.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore his highness was enhanced over all [the] trees of the country, and his trees were multiplied, and his branches were raised [up], for many waters. And when he had stretched forth his shadow, <sup>6</sup> all the volatiles of the air made nests in his branches; and all the beasts of forests engendered under his boughs, and the company of full many folks dwelled under the shadowing place of him.

<sup>7</sup> And he was full fair in his greatness, and in alarging of his trees; for the root of him was beside many waters.

<sup>8</sup> Cedars in the paradise of God were not higher than he; fir trees attained not evenly to the highness of him, and plane trees were not even with the boughs of him. Each tree of paradise of God was not made like him in his fairness.

<sup>9</sup> For I made him fair, and with many and thick boughs; and all the trees of lust or Eden, that were in the paradise of God, had envy to him.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, For that that he was raised in highness, and he gave his highness green and thick, and his heart was raised [up] in his highness;

<sup>11</sup> now I have given him into the hands of the strongest man of heathen men. And he doing shall do to that Assur; after the unfaithfulness of him I casted him out.

<sup>12</sup> And aliens, and the most cruel men of nations, shall cut him down, and shall cast him forth on hills [or mountains]. And his branches shall fall down in all the great valleys, and his trees shall be broken in all rocks of stone of earth. And all the peoples of earth shall go away from his shadowing place, and shall forsake him.

<sup>13</sup> All the volatiles of the air dwelled in the falling of him, and all beasts of the country were in the branches of him.

<sup>14</sup> Wherefore all the trees of waters shall not be raised [up] in their highness, neither shall set their highness among places full of woods, and full of boughs, and all trees that be moisted of waters shall not stand in the highness of those [or them]. For all they be given into death, to the farthest land in the midst of the sons of men, to them that go down into the pit.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord God saith these things, In the day when he went down to hells, I brought in mourning; I covered him with depth of waters, and I forbade his floods, and I refrained many waters. The Lebanon was sorry on him, and all the trees of the field were shaken of the sound of his falling.

<sup>16</sup> I moved altogether heathen men, when I led him down to hell, with them that went down into the pit. And all trees of liking, noble trees, and full clear in the Lebanon, all that were moisted with waters, were comforted in the lowest land.

<sup>17</sup> For why also they shall go down with him to hell, to [the] slain men with sword; and the arm of each man, shall sit under the shadowing place of him, in the midst of nations.

<sup>18</sup> To whom art thou likened, thou noble and high among the trees of liking? Lo! thou art led down with the trees of liking to the farthest land. In the midst of uncircumcised men thou shalt sleep, with them that be slain by sword. That is Pharaoh, and all the multitude of him, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 32

<sup>1</sup> And it was done in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, take wailing on Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and thou shalt say to him, Thou were made like to a lion of heathen men, and to a dragon which is in the sea. And thou winnowest with horn in thy floods, and thou disturbedest [or troublest] waters with thy feet, and defoulest the floods of those [or them].

<sup>3</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, I shall spread abroad my net [up] on thee in the multitude of many peoples, and I shall draw thee out in my net;

<sup>4</sup> and I shall cast forth thee into [the] earth. On the face of the field I shall cast thee away, and I shall make all the volatiles of heaven to dwell on thee, and I shall fill of thee the beasts of all earth.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall give thy flesh on hills, and I shall fill thy little hills with thy roots;

<sup>6</sup> and I shall moist the earth with the stink of thy blood on mountains, and valleys shall be filled of thee.

<sup>7</sup> And when thou shalt be quenched, I shall cover heavens, and I shall make black the stars thereof; I shall cover the sun with a cloud, and the moon shall not give her light.

<sup>8</sup> I shall make all the light-givers of heaven to mourn on thee, and I shall give darknesses on thy land, saith the Lord God; when thy wounded men shall fall down in the midst of earth, saith the Lord God.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall stir to wrath the heart of many peoples, when I shall bring in thy sorrow among folks, on lands which thou knowest not.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall make many peoples to wonder on thee, and the kings of them shall dread with full great horror, or hideousness, on thee, for all thy wickednesses which thou wroughtest, when my sword shall begin to fly on the faces of them. And all men shall be astonished suddenly, for their life, in the day of their falling.

<sup>11</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, The sword of the king of Babylon shall come to thee;

<sup>12</sup> in swords of strong men I shall cast down thy multitude, all these folks that be not able to be overcome. And they shall waste the pride of Egypt, and the multitude thereof shall be destroyed.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall lose all the beasts thereof, that were on full many waters; and the foot of a man shall no more trouble those waters, neither the claw of beasts shall trouble those [or them].

<sup>14</sup> Then I shall yield the waters of them cleanest, and I shall bring the floods of them as oil, saith the Lord God,

<sup>15</sup> when I shall give desolate the land of Egypt. Forsooth the land shall be forsaken of his fullness, when I shall smite all the dwellers thereof; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>16</sup> It is a wailing, and the daughters of heathen men shall bewail him; they shall bewail him on Egypt, and they shall bewail him on the multitude thereof, saith the Lord God.

<sup>17</sup> And it was done in the twelfth year, in the fifteen day of the month, the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>18</sup> Son of man, sing thou a song of wailing on the multitude of Egypt, and draw thou down it the same, and the daughters of strong heathen men, to the last land, with them that went down into the pit.

<sup>20</sup> In the midst of slain men they shall fall down by sword; a sword is given, and they draw it to, and all the peoples thereof.

<sup>21</sup> The mightest of strong men shall speak to him, from the midst of hell, which with their helpers went down, and slept uncircumcised, and slain by sword.

<sup>22</sup> Saying, There is Assur, and all his multitude; the sepulchres of them be in the compass of him; all slain men, that fell down by sword,

<sup>23</sup> whose sepulchres be given in the last things of the pit. And the multitude of him is made there by the compass of his sepulchre; all slain men, and falling down by sword, which gave sometime their fearedful-ness in the land of living men.

<sup>24</sup> There is Elam, and all the multitude thereof by the compass of his sepulchre; all these were slain, and falling down by sword, that went down uncircumcised to the last land; which setted their dread in the land of living men, and bare their shame with them that go down into the pit.

<sup>25</sup> In the midst of slain men they putted his bed in all the peoples of him; his sepulchre is in the compass of him. All these were uncircumcised and slain by sword, for they gave dread in the land of living men, and bare their shame with them that go down into the pit; they be set [or put] in the midst of slain men.

<sup>26</sup> There be Meshech and Tubal, and all the multitude thereof; the sepulchres thereof be in the compass thereof. All these men uncircumcised were slain, and falling down by sword, for they gave their dread in the land of living men.

<sup>27</sup> And they shall not sleep with strong men, and falling down, and uncircumcised, that went down into hell with their arms, and putted their swords under their heads. And the wickednesses of them were in the bones of them, for they were made the dread of strong men in the land of living men.

<sup>28</sup> And thou therefore shalt be defouled in the midst of uncircumcised men, and shalt sleep with them that be slain with sword.

<sup>29</sup> There is Idumea, and the kings thereof, and all dukes thereof, that be given with their host, with men slain by sword, and which slept with uncircumcised men, and them that went down into the pit.

<sup>30</sup> There be all princes of the north, and all hunters, that were led forth with slain men, that be dreading and shamed in their strength, which slept uncircumcised with men slain by sword, and bare their shame with them that went down into the pit.

<sup>31</sup> Pharaoh saw them, and was comforted on all his multitude that was slain by sword. And Pharaoh and all his host, saith the Lord God, bare their shame with them that went down into the pit;

<sup>32</sup> for he gave his dread in the land of living men. And Pharaoh and all his multitude slept in the midst of uncircumcised men, with men slain by sword, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 33

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, speak to the sons of thy people, and thou shalt say to them, A land when I bring in a sword on it, and the people of the land take one man of his last men, and maketh him a beholder, either espyer, on him,

<sup>3</sup> and when he seeth a sword coming on the land, and soundeth with a clarion, and telleth to the people,

<sup>4</sup> forsooth a man that heareth, whoever he is, the sound of the clarion, and keepeth not himself, and the sword cometh, and taketh him away, the blood of him shall be on the head of him.

<sup>5</sup> He heard the sound of the clarion, and kept not himself, his blood shall be in him; forsooth if he keepeth himself, he shall save his life.

<sup>6</sup> That if the beholder or the espyer, seeth a sword coming, and soundeth not with a clarion, and the people keepeth not himself, and the sword cometh, and taketh away a man of them, soothly he is taken in his wickedness; but I shall seek the blood of him of the hand of the espyer.

<sup>7</sup> And thou, son of man, I gave thee an espyer, to the house of Israel; therefore thou shalt hear of my mouth a word, and shalt tell to them of me.

<sup>8</sup> If when I say to the wicked man, Thou, wicked man, shalt die by death, thou speakest not, that the wicked man keep himself from his way, that wicked man shall die in his wicked-ness, but I shall seek his blood of thine hand.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth if when thou tellest to the wicked man, that he be converted from his ways, and he is not con-verted from his ways, he shall die in his wickedness; certainly thou hast delivered thy soul.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore thou, son of man, say to the house of Israel, Thus ye spake, saying, Our wickednesses and our sins be [up] on us, and we fail in those [or them]; how therefore may we live?

<sup>11</sup> say thou to them, I live, saith the Lord God, I desire not the death of the wicked man, but that the wicked man be converted from his ways, and live; be ye converted from your worst ways, and why shall ye die, the house of Israel?

<sup>12</sup> Therefore thou, son of man, say to the sons of thy people, The rightfulness [or rightwiseness] of a rightful man shall not deliver him, in whatever day he doeth sin; and the wickedness of a wicked man shall not annoy him, in whatever day he is converted from his wickedness; and a just man shall not be able to live in his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], in whatever day he doeth sin.

<sup>13</sup> Also if I say to a just man, that he shall live by life, and he trusteth in his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and doeth wickedness, all his rightfulnesses [or rightwisenesses] shall be given to forgetting, and in his wickedness which he wrought, in that he shall die.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth if I say to the wicked man, Thou shalt die by death, and he doeth penance for his sin, and doeth doom and rightfulness, <sup>15</sup> and if that wicked man restoreth a wed, and yieldeth raven, and goeth in the commandments of life, and doeth not any unjust thing, he shall live by life, and shall not die.

<sup>16</sup> All his sins which he sinned, shall not be areckoned to him; he did doom and rightfulness, he shall live by life.

<sup>17</sup> And the sons of thy people said, The way of the Lord is not of even weight, [or even charge]; and the way of them is unjust.

<sup>18</sup> For when a just man goeth away from his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and doeth wickednesses, he shall die in those [or them];

<sup>19</sup> and when a wicked man goeth away from his wickedness, and doeth doom and rightfulness, he shall live in those [or them].

<sup>20</sup> And ye say, The way of the Lord is not rightful [or right]. I shall deem each man by his ways of you, the house of Israel.

<sup>21</sup> And it was done in the twelfth year, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month of our passing over, he that fled from Jerusalem came to me, and said, The city is destroyed.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth the hand of the Lord was made to me in the eventide, before that he came that fled; and he opened my mouth, till he came to me early; and when my mouth was opened, I was no more still.

<sup>23</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>24</sup> Thou, son of man, they that dwell in these ruinous things, either ready to fall down, on the earth of Israel, say, speaking, Abraham was one, and by heritage he had the land in possession; forsooth we be many, the land is given to us into possession.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, Whether ye that eat in blood, and raise your eyes to your uncleannesses, and shed blood, shall have in pos-session the land by heritage?

<sup>26</sup> Ye stood in your swords, ye did your abominations, and each man defouled the wife of his neighbour; and shall ye wield the land by heritage?

<sup>27</sup> Thou shalt say these things to them, Thus saith the Lord God, I live, for they that dwell in ruinous things, either ready to fall down, shall fall down by sword, and he that is in the field, shall be given to beasts to be devoured; but they that be in strong-holds and in dens, shall die by pestilence.

<sup>28</sup> And I shall give the land into wilderness, and into desert, and the pride and the strength thereof shall fail; and the hills of Israel shall be made desolate, for none is that shall pass by those [or them].

<sup>29</sup> And they shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall give their land desolate and desert, for all their abominations which they wrought.

<sup>30</sup> And thou, son of man, the sons of thy people that speak of thee beside walls, and in the doors of houses, and say, one to another, a man to his neighbour, and speak, Come ye, and hear we, what is the word going out from the Lord;

<sup>31</sup> and they come to thee, as if my people entereth, and my people sit before thee, and they hear thy words, and do not those [or them]; for they turn those [or them] into the song of their mouth, and their heart pursueth their avarice;

<sup>32</sup> and it is to them as a song of music, which is sung by soft and sweet sound; and they hear thy words, and they do not those [or them];

<sup>33</sup> and when that that was before-said cometh, for lo! it cometh, then they shall know, that a prophet was among them.

CHAPTER 34

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Son of man, prophesy thou of the shepherds of Israel, prophesy thou; and thou shalt say to the shepherds, The Lord God saith these things, Woe to the shepherds of Israel, that fed himself [or themselves]; whether flocks be not fed of shepherds?

<sup>3</sup> Ye ate [the] milk, and were covered with [the] wools, and ye killed that that was fat; but ye fed not my flock.

<sup>4</sup> Ye made not firm that that was unsteadfast, and ye made not whole that that was sick; ye bound not up that that was broken, and ye brought not again that that was cast away, and ye sought not that that perished; but ye commanded to them with sternness, and with power.

<sup>5</sup> And my sheep were scattered, for no shepherd was; and they were made into devouring of all beasts of the field, and they were scattered.

<sup>6</sup> My flocks erred in all mountains, and in each high hill, and my flocks were scattered on all the face of earth, and none was that sought.

<sup>8</sup> I live, saith the Lord God, for why for that that my flocks be made into raven, and my sheep into devouring of all beasts of the field, for that that no shepherd was, for the shepherds sought not my flocks, but the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flocks;

<sup>9</sup> therefore, shepherds, hear ye the word of the Lord,

<sup>10</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I myself am over [the] shepherds; I shall seek my flock of the hand of them, and I shall make them to cease, that they feed no more my flock, and that the shepherds feed no more themselves. And I shall deliver my flock from the mouth of them, and it shall no more be into meat to them.

<sup>11</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I myself shall seek my sheep, and I shall visit them.

<sup>12</sup> As a shepherd visiteth his flock, in the day when he is in the midst of his sheep that be scattered, so I shall visit my sheep; and I shall deliver them from all places in which they were scattered, in the day of cloud, and of darkness.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall lead them out of peoples, and I shall gather them from lands, and I shall bring them into their land, and I shall feed them in the hills of Israel, in rivers, and in all seats of earth.

<sup>14</sup> I shall feed them in most plenteous pastures, and the pastures of them shall be in the high hills of Israel; there they shall rest in green herbs, and in fat pastures they shall be fed on the hills of Israel.

<sup>15</sup> I shall feed my sheep, and I shall make them to lie down, or to rest, saith the Lord God.

<sup>16</sup> I shall seek that that perished, and I shall bring again that that was cast away; and I shall bind up that that was broken, and I shall make strong that that was sick; and I shall keep that that is fat and strong; and I shall feed them in doom;

<sup>17</sup> forsooth ye be my flocks. The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I deem betwixt beast and beast, and a wether and a buck of goats.

<sup>18</sup> Whether it was not enough to you to devour good pastures? Further-more and ye defouled with your feet the remnants of your pastures, and when ye drank clearest water, ye disturbed the residue with your feet.

<sup>19</sup> And my sheep were fed with these things that were defouled with your feet; and they drank these things, that your feet had troubled.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things to you, Lo! I myself deem betwixt a fat beast and a lean beast.

<sup>21</sup> For that that ye hurled with your sides, and shoulders, and winnowed with your horns all sick beasts, till those [or they] were scattered withoutforth,

<sup>22</sup> I shall save my flock, and it shall no more be into raven. And I shall deem betwixt beast and beast;

<sup>23</sup> and I shall raise on those [or them] one shepherd, my servant David, that shall feed those [or them]; he shall feed them, and he shall be a shepherd to them.

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth I the Lord shall be into God to them, and my servant David shall be prince in the midst of them; I the Lord spake.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall make with them a covenant of peace, and I shall make [the] worst beasts to cease from [the] earth; and they that dwell in desert, shall sleep secure in forests.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall set them [a] blessing in the compass of my little hill, and I shall lead down rain in his time. And rains of blessing shall be,

<sup>27</sup> and the tree of the field shall give his fruit, and the earth shall give his seed. And they shall be in their land without dread; and they shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall all-break the chains of their yoke, and shall deliver them from the hand of them that command to them.

<sup>28</sup> And they shall no more be into raven into heathen men, neither the beasts of [the] earth shall devour them, but they shall dwell trustily without any dread.

<sup>29</sup> And I shall raise to them a just burgeoning named; and they shall no more be made less for hunger in earth, and they shall no more bear the shame of heathen men.

<sup>30</sup> And they shall know, that I am their Lord God with them, and they be my people, the house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

<sup>31</sup> Forsooth ye my flocks be men, the flocks of my pasture; and I am your Lord God, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 35

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face against the hill [or mount] of Seir; and thou shalt prophesy to it,

<sup>3</sup> and shalt say to it, The Lord God saith these things, Thou hill [or mount] of Seir, lo! I to thee; I shall stretch forth mine hand on thee, and I shall give thee desolate and forsaken.

<sup>4</sup> I shall destroy thy cities, and thou shalt be forsaken; and thou shalt know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> For thou were an enemy everlasting, and enclosedest together the sons of Israel into the hands of sword, in the time of their torment, in the time of the last wickedness;

<sup>6</sup> therefore I live, saith the Lord God, for I shall give thee to blood, and blood shall pursue thee; and sith thou hatedest not blood, blood shall pursue thee.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall give the hill of Seir desolate and forsaken, and I shall take away from it a goer and a comer-again;

<sup>8</sup> and I shall fill the hills thereof with the carrions of their slain men. Men slain by sword shall fall down in thy little hills, and in thy valleys, and in thy strands [or running brooks].

<sup>9</sup> I shall give thee into everlasting wildernesses, and thy cities shall not be inhabited; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord God.

<sup>10</sup> For thou saidest, Two folks and two lands shall be mine, and I shall wield those [or them] by heritage, when the Lord was there;

<sup>11</sup> therefore I live, saith the Lord God, for I shall do by thy wrath, and by thine envy, which thou didest, hating them, and I shall be made known by them, when I shall deem thee;

<sup>12</sup> and thou shalt know, that I am the Lord. I heard all thy shames, which thou spakest of the hills [or mountains] of Israel, and saidest, The hills of Israel be forsaken, and be given to us, for to devour.

<sup>13</sup> And ye have risen on me with your mouth, and ye have depraved, [or spoken evil], against me; I heard your words.

<sup>14</sup> The Lord God saith these things, While all the land is glad, I shall turn thee into wilderness.

<sup>15</sup> As thou haddest joy on the heritage of the house of Israel, for it was destroyed, so I shall do to thee; the hill of Seir shall be destroyed, and all Idumea; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 36

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth thou, son of man, prophesy on the hills [or mountains] of Israel; and thou shalt say, Hills of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord God saith these things, For that that the enemy said of you, Well! everlasting highnesses be given to us into heritage;

<sup>3</sup> therefore prophesy thou, and say, The Lord God saith these things, For that that ye be made desolate, and defouled by compass, and be made into heritage to other folks, and ye ascended [or went up] on the lip of tongue, and on the shame of people;

<sup>4</sup> therefore, hills of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord God. The Lord God saith these things to the mountains, and little hills, to strands [or streams], and to valleys, and to pieces of walls left, and to cities forsaken, that be made bare of peoples, and be scorned of other folks by compass.

<sup>5</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, For in the fire of my fervor I spake of other folks, and of all Idumea, that gave my land into heritage to themselves with joy and all [the] heart, and of intent, and casted out it, to destroy it;

<sup>6</sup> therefore prophesy thou on the earth of Israel, and thou shalt say to mountains, and little hills, to the highness of hills, and to valleys, The Lord God saith these things, For that that ye be desolate, lo! I spake in my fervor and in my strong vengeance. For that that ye suffered shame of heathen men;

<sup>7</sup> therefore the Lord God saith these things, Lo! I raised mine hand against heathen men, that be in your compass, that they bear their shame.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth, ye hills of Israel, bring forth your branches, and bring ye fruit to my people Israel; for it is nigh that it come.

<sup>9</sup> For lo! I to you, and I shall turn to you, and ye shall be eared, and shall take seed.

<sup>10</sup> And in you I shall multiply men, and all the house of Israel; and cities shall be inhabited, and ruinous things shall be repaired.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall fill you with men and beasts, and they shall be multiplied, and shall increase; and I shall make you to dwell as at the beginning, and I shall reward with more goods than ye had at the beginning; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall bring men on you, my people Israel, and by heritage they shall wield thee, and thou shalt be to them into heritage; and thou shalt no more lay to, that thou be without them.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord God saith these things, For that that they say of you, Thou art a devouress of men, and stranglest thy folk;

<sup>14</sup> therefore thou shalt no more eat men, and thou shalt no more slay thy folk, saith the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall no more make heard in thee the shame of heathen men, and thou shalt no more bear the shame of peoples, and thou shalt no more lose thy folk, saith the Lord God.

<sup>16</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>17</sup> Thou, son of man, the house of Israel dwelled in their land, and they defouled it in their ways, and in their studies; by the uncleanness of a woman in rotten blood the way of them is made before me.

<sup>18</sup> And I shedded out mine indignation on them, for [the] blood which they shedded on the land, and in their idols they defouled it.

<sup>19</sup> And I scattered them among heathen men, and they were winnowed into lands; I deemed them by the ways and findings of them.

<sup>20</sup> And they entered to heathen men, to which they entered, and defouled mine holy name, when it was said to them, This is the people of the Lord, and they went out of the land of him.

<sup>21</sup> And I spared them for the sake of mine holy name, which the house of Israel had defouled among heathen men, to which they entered.

<sup>22</sup> Therefore thou shalt say to the house of Israel, The Lord God saith these things, O! ye house of Israel, not for you I shall do, but for mine holy name, which ye defouled among heathen men, to which ye entered.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall hallow my great name, which is defouled among heathen men, which ye defouled in the midst of them; that heathen men know, that I am the Lord, saith the Lord of hosts, when I shall be hallowed in you before them.

<sup>24</sup> For I shall take away you from heathen men, and I shall gather you from all lands, and I shall bring you into your land.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall pour out clean water [up] on you, and ye shall be cleansed from all your filths; and I shall cleanse you from all your idols.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall give to you a new heart, and I shall set a new spirit in the midst of you; and I shall do away an heart of stone from your flesh, and I shall give to you an heart of flesh,

<sup>27</sup> and I shall set my spirit in the midst of you. And I shall make that ye go in my commandments, and [that ye] keep and work my dooms.

<sup>28</sup> And ye shall dwell in the land, which I gave to your fathers; and ye shall be into a people to me, and I shall be into God to you.

<sup>29</sup> And I shall save you from all your filths; and I shall call wheat, and I shall multiply it, and I shall not put hunger on you.

<sup>30</sup> And I shall multiply the fruit of tree, and the seeds of the field, that ye bear no more the shame of hunger among heathen men.

<sup>31</sup> And ye shall have mind on your worst ways, and on studies not good; and your wickednesses, and your great trespasses, shall displease you.

<sup>32</sup> Not for you I shall do, saith the Lord God, be it known to you; O! the house of Israel, be ye shamed, and be ashamed on your ways.

<sup>33</sup> The Lord God saith these things, In the day in which I shall cleanse you from all your wickednesses, and I shall make cities to be inhabited, and I shall repair ruinous things,

<sup>34</sup> and the desert land shall be tilled, that was sometime desolate, before the eyes of each way-goer;

<sup>35</sup> they shall say, That land untilled is made as a garden of liking, and cities that forsaken and destitute and undermined sat, now be made strong;

<sup>36</sup> and heathen men, which ever be left in your compass, shall know, that I the Lord have builded [the] destroyed things, and I have planted untilled things; I the Lord spake, and I did.

<sup>37</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Yet in this thing the house of Israel shall find me, that I do to them; I shall multiply them as the flock of men, <sup>38</sup> as an holy flock, as the flock of Jerusalem in the solemnities thereof, so the cities that be forsaken shall be full of the flocks of men; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 37

<sup>1</sup> The hand of the Lord was made on me, and led me out in the spirit of the Lord; and he let me go in the midst of a field that was full of bones;

<sup>2</sup> and he led me about by them in compass. Forsooth those [or there] were full many on the face of the field, and dry greatly.

<sup>3</sup> And he said to me, Guessest thou, son of man, whether these bones shall live? And I said, Lord God, thou knowest.

<sup>4</sup> And he said to me, Prophecy thou of these bones; and thou shalt say to them, Ye dry bones, hear the word of the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord God saith these things to these bones, Lo! I shall send into you a spirit, and ye shall live.

<sup>6</sup> And I shall give sinews on you, and I shall make flesh to wax on you, and I shall stretch forth above skin in you, and I shall give a spirit to you, and ye shall live; and ye shall know, that I am the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> And I prophesied, as he com-manded to me; forsooth a sound was made, while I prophesied, and lo! a stirring together, and bones came to bones, each to his jointure.

<sup>8</sup> And I saw, and lo! sinews and flesh waxed upon those [or them], and skin was stretched forth above in them, and those [or they] had no spirit.

<sup>9</sup> And he said to me, Prophecy thou to the spirit, prophecy thou, son of man; and thou shalt say to the spirit, The Lord God saith these things, Come, thou spirit, from four winds, and blow thou on these slain men, and live they again.

<sup>10</sup> And I prophesied, as he com-manded to me; and the spirit entered into those bones, and they lived, and stood on their feet, a full great host.

<sup>11</sup> And the Lord said to me, Thou, son of man, all these bones is the house of Israel; they say, Our bones dried, and our hope perished, and we be cut away.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore prophecy thou, and thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall open your graves, and I shall lead you out of your sepulchres, my people, and I shall lead you into your land [of] Israel.

<sup>13</sup> And ye shall know, that I am the Lord, when I shall open your sepulchres, and shall lead you out of your burials, my people;

<sup>14</sup> and I shall give my spirit in you, and ye shall live. And I shall make you for to rest on your land; and ye shall know, that I the Lord spake, and did, saith the Lord God.

<sup>15</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>16</sup> And thou, son of man, take to thee one stick, and write thou on it, To Judah, and to the sons of Israel, and to his fellows. And take thou another stick, and write on it, Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and of all the house of Israel, and of his fellows.

<sup>17</sup> And join thou those sticks one to the tother into one stick to thee; and those [or they] shall be into onement in thine hand.

<sup>18</sup> Soothly when the sons of thy people that speak, shall say to thee, Whether thou showest not to us, what thou wilt to thee in these things?

<sup>19</sup> thou shalt speak to them, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the lineages of Israel, that be joined to him, and I shall give them together with the stick of Judah; and I shall make them into one stick, and they shall be one in the hand of him.

<sup>20</sup> Soothly the sticks on which thou hast written, shall be in thine hand before the eyes of them.

<sup>21</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I shall take the sons of Israel from the midst of nations, to which they went forth; and I shall gather them together on each side. And I shall bring them to their land,

<sup>22</sup> and I shall make them one folk in the land, in the hills of Israel, and one king shall be commanding to all; and they shall no more be two folks, and they shall no more be parted into two realms.

<sup>23</sup> And they shall no more be defouled in their idols, and their abominations, and in all their wicked-nesses. And I shall make them safe from all their seats, in which they sinned, and I shall cleanse them; and they shall be a people to me, and I shall be God to them.

<sup>24</sup> And my servant David shall be king on them, and one shepherd shall be of all them; they shall go in my dooms, and they shall keep my commandments, and shall do those [or them].

<sup>25</sup> And they shall dwell on the land, which I gave to my servant Jacob, in which your fathers dwelled; and they shall dwell on that land, they, and the sons of them, and the sons of their sons, till into without end; and David, my servant, shall be the prince of them without end.

<sup>26</sup> And I shall smite to them a bond of peace; it shall be a covenant ever-lasting to them, and I shall 'found' them, and I shall multiply [them], and I shall give mine hallowing in the midst of them without end.

<sup>27</sup> And my tabernacle shall be among them, and I shall be God to them, and they shall be a people to me.

<sup>28</sup> And heathen men shall know, that I am the Lord, hallower of Israel, when mine hallowing shall be in the midst of them without end.

CHAPTER 38

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and he said,

<sup>2</sup> Thou, son of man, set thy face against Gog, and against the land of Magog, the prince of the head of Meshech and of Tubal; and prophesy thou of him.

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt say to him, The Lord God saith these things, A! Gog, lo! I to thee, prince of the head of Meshech and of Tubal;

<sup>4</sup> and I shall lead thee about, and I shall set [or put] a bridle in thy cheeks, and I shall lead out thee, and all thine host, horses, and horsemen, all clothed with habergeons, a great multitude of men, taking spear, and shield, and sword.

<sup>6</sup> Gomer, and all the companies of him, the house of Togarmah, the sides of the north, and all the host thereof, and many peoples be with thee.

<sup>7</sup> Make ready, and array thee, and all thy multitude which is gathered to thee, and be thou into commandment to them.

<sup>8</sup> After many days thou shalt be visited; in the last of years thou shalt come to the land, that [is] turned again from sword, and was gathered of many peoples, to the hills of Israel, that were desert full oft; this was led out of peoples, and all men dwelled trustily therein.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth thou shalt ascend [or go up], and shalt come as a tempest, and as a cloud, for to cover the land, thou, and all thy companies, and many peoples with thee.

<sup>10</sup> The Lord God saith these things, In that day, words shall ascend [or go up] on thine heart, and thou shalt think the worst thought;

<sup>11</sup> and shalt say, I shall go up to the land without walls, I shall come to them that rest, and dwell securely; all these dwell without walls, bars, [or locks], and gates be not to them;

<sup>12</sup> that thou ravish spoils, and assail prey; that thou bring in thine hand on them that were forsaken, and afterward restored, and on the people which is gathered of heathen men, that began to wield, and to be inhabiter of the navel of [the] earth.

<sup>13</sup> Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, and all the lions thereof, shall say to thee, Whether thou comest to take spoils? Lo! to ravish prey thou hast gathered thy multitude, that thou take away gold and silver, and do away appurtenance of household and cattle, and that thou ravish preys without number.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore prophesy thou, son of man; and thou shalt say to Gog, The Lord God saith these things, Whether not in that day, when my people Israel shall dwell trustily, thou shalt know;

<sup>15</sup> and shalt come from thy place, from the sides of the north, thou, and many peoples with thee, all riders of horses, a great company, and an huge host;

<sup>16</sup> and thou as a cloud shalt ascend [or go up] [up] on my people Israel, that thou cover the earth? Thou shalt be in the last days, and I shall bring thee on my land, that my folks know, when I shall be hallowed in thee, thou Gog, before the eyes of them.

<sup>17</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Therefore thou art he of whom I spake in eld [or old] days, in the hand of my servants, prophets of Israel, that prophesied in the days of those times, that I should bring thee on them.

<sup>18</sup> And it shall be, in that day, in the day of the coming of Gog on the land of Israel, saith the Lord God, mine indignation shall ascend [or go up] in my strong vengeance,

<sup>19</sup> and in my fervor; I spake in the fire of my wrath. For in that day shall be great earth-moving on the land of Israel;

<sup>20</sup> and fishes of the sea, and beasts of [the] earth, and birds of the air, and each creeping beast which is moved on earth, and all men that be on the face of [the] earth, shall be moved from my face; and hills shall be under-turned, and hedges shall fall down, and each wall shall fall down into the earth.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall call together a sword against him in all mine hills, saith the Lord God; the sword of each man shall be dressed against his brother.

<sup>22</sup> And then I shall deem him by pestilence, and blood, and great rain, and by great stones; I shall rain fire and brimstone on him, and on his host, and on many peoples that be with him.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall be magnified, and shall be hallowed, and I shall be known before the eyes of many folks; and they shall know, that I am the Lord.

CHAPTER 39

<sup>1</sup> But prophesy thou, son of man, against Gog; and thou shalt say, The Lord God saith these things, Lo! I on thee, thou Gog, prince of the head of Meshech and of Tubal.

<sup>2</sup> And I shall lead thee about, and I shall deceive thee, and I shall make thee to go up from the sides of the north, and I shall bring thee on the hills of Israel.

<sup>4</sup> Thou shalt fall down on the hills of Israel, thou, and all thy companies, and peoples that be with thee; I gave thee for to be devoured to wild beasts, to birds, and to each volatile, and to the beasts of the earth.

<sup>5</sup> Thou shalt fall down on the face of the field; for I the Lord have spoken, saith the Lord God.

<sup>6</sup> And I shall send fire in Magog, and in them that dwell trustily in isles; and they shall know, that I am the Lord God of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall make mine holy name known in the midst of my people Israel, and I shall no more let them defoul mine holy name; and heathen men shall know, that I am the Lord God, the Holy of Israel.

<sup>8</sup> Lo! it cometh, and it is done, saith the Lord God. This is the day of which I spake.

<sup>9</sup> And dwellers shall go out of the cities of Israel, and they shall set afire, and shall burn arms, shield and spear, bow and arrows, and staves of hand, and shafts without iron; and they shall burn those [or them] in fire by seven years.

<sup>10</sup> And they shall not bear trees of countries, neither shall cut down of [the] forests, for they shall burn arms by fire; and they shall take preys of them, to whom they were preys, and they shall ravish their wasters, saith the Lord God.

<sup>11</sup> And it shall be in that day, I shall give to Gog a named place, a sepulchre in Israel, the valley of way-goers at the east of the sea, that shall make them that pass forth for to wonder; and they shall bury there Gog, and all the multitude of him, and it shall be called The valley of the multitude of Gog.

<sup>12</sup> And the house of Israel shall bury them, that they cleanse the land in seven months.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth all the people of the land shall bury them, and it shall be a named day to them, in which I am glorified, saith the Lord God.

<sup>14</sup> And they shall ordain busily men compassing the land, that shall bury and seek them that were left on the face of the land, that they cleanse it. Forsooth after seven months they shall begin to seek,

<sup>15</sup> and they shall compass going about the land; and when they shall see the bone of a man, they shall set a title, or a notable sign, beside it, till the buriers of carrions bury it in the valley of the multitude of Gog.

<sup>16</sup> Soothly the name of the city is Hamonah; and they shall cleanse the land.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth, thou, son of man, the Lord God saith these things, Say thou to each bird, and to all fowls, and to all beasts of the field, Come ye together, and haste ye, run ye to-gether on each side to my sacrifice, which I slay to you, a great sacrifice on the hills of Israel, that ye eat flesh, and drink blood.

<sup>18</sup> Ye shall eat the flesh of strong men, and ye shall drink the blood of princes of earth, of wethers, of lambs, and of bucks of goats, and of bulls, and of beasts made fat, and of all fat things.

<sup>19</sup> And ye shall eat the inner fatness into fullness, and ye shall drink the blood into drunkenness, of the sacrifice which I shall slay to you.

<sup>20</sup> And ye shall be filled on my board, of horse, and of strong horse-man, [or knight], and of all men warriors, saith the Lord God.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall set my glory among heathen men, and all heathen men shall see my doom, which I have done, and mine hand, which I have set [or put] on them.

<sup>22</sup> And the house of Israel shall know, that I am their Lord God, from that day and afterward.

<sup>23</sup> And heathen men shall know, that the house of Israel is taken in their wickedness, for that that they forsook me; and I hid my face from them, and I betook them into the hands of enemies, and all they fell down by sword.

<sup>24</sup> By the uncleanness and great trespass of them I did to them, and I hid my face from them.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, Now I shall lead again the captivity of Jacob, and I shall have mercy on all the house of Israel; and I shall take fervor for mine holy name.

<sup>26</sup> And they shall bear their shame, and all their trespassing by which they trespassed against me, when they dwelled in their land trustily, and dreaded no man;

<sup>27</sup> and when I shall bring them again from peoples, and shall gather [them] from the lands of their enemies, and shall be hallowed in them, before the eyes of full many folks.

<sup>28</sup> And they shall know, that I am the Lord God of them, for that I translated them into nations, and have gathered them on their land, and I left not any of them there.

<sup>29</sup> And I shall no more hide my face from them, for I have shed out my spirit on all the house of Israel, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 40

<sup>1</sup> In the five and twentieth year of our passing over, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, in this same day the hand of the Lord was made on me, and he brought me thither

<sup>2</sup> in the revelations of God. And he brought me into the land of Israel, and he let me down on a full high hill, on which was as the building of a city going to the south;

<sup>3</sup> and he led me in thither. And lo! a man, whose likeness was as the likeness of brass, and a cord of flax was in his hand, and a reed of measure in his hand; forsooth he stood in the gate.

<sup>4</sup> And the same man spake to me, Thou, son of man, see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears, and set thine heart on all things which I shall show to thee, for thou art brought hither that those [or it] be showed to thee; tell thou all things which thou seest to the house of Israel.

<sup>5</sup> And lo! a wall withoutforth, in the compass of the house of the Lord on each side; and in the hand of the man was a reed of measure of six cubits and a span, that is, an hand-breadth; and he meted the breadth of the building with one reed, and the highness by one reed.

<sup>6</sup> And he came to the gate that beheld the way of the east, and he ascended [or went up] by [the] degrees of it; and he meted the lintel of the gate, by one reed the breadth, that is, one lintel by one reed in breadth;

<sup>7</sup> and he meted one little chamber by one reed in length, and by one reed in breadth, and five cubits betwixt the little chambers; and he meted the lintel of the gate beside the porch of the gate within, by one reed.

<sup>9</sup> And he meted the porch of the gate of eight cubits, and the posts* thereof by two cubits; soothly the porch of the gate was within.

<sup>10</sup> Certainly the chambers of the gate at the way of the east were three on this side, and three on that side; one measure of three, and one measure of the posts on ever either side.

<sup>11</sup> And he meted the breadth of the lintel of the gate of ten cubits, and the length of the gate of thirteen cubits.

<sup>12</sup> And he meted a margin of one cubit before the chambers, and one cubit was the end on each side; forsooth the chambers were of six cubits on this side and on that side.

<sup>13</sup> And he meted the gate from the roof of the chamber till to the roof thereof, the breadth of five and twenty cubits, a door against a door.

* CHAPTER 40:9 In the original text, throughout the rest of Ezekiel, 'front/s' and 'post/s' are used interchangeably. To avoid confusion, and to enhance comprehension, only 'post/s' will be used here.

<sup>14</sup> And he made posts by sixty cubits, and at the post a foreyard† of the gate on each side by compass;

<sup>15</sup> and before the face of the gate that stretcheth forth till to the face of the porch of the inner gate, he meted fifty cubits.

<sup>16</sup> And he meted windows narrow without and large within, in the chambers, and posts of those [or them], that were within the gate on each side by compass. Soothly in like manner also windows were in the porches‡ by compass within; and the painture of palm trees was engraved before the posts.

<sup>17</sup> And he led me out to the outer-more foreyard, and lo! treasuries§, and a pavement arrayed with stone in the foreyard by compass; thirty treasuries were in the compass of the pavement;

<sup>18</sup> and the pavement was beneath in the front of the gates, by the length of the gates.

<sup>19</sup> And he meted the breadth from the face of the lower gate till to the front of the inner foreyard without-forth, an hundred cubits at the east, and at the north.

<sup>20</sup> And he meted, both in length and in breadth, the gate that beheld the way of the north, of the outermore foreyard.

<sup>21</sup> And he meted the chambers thereof, three on this side, and three on that side, and the posts thereof, and the porch thereof, by the measure of the former gate; the length thereof of fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof of five and twenty cubits.

<sup>22</sup> Soothly the windows thereof, and the porch, and the engravings, were by the measure of the gate that beheld to the east; and the ascending [or going up] thereof was of seven degrees, and a porch was before it.

<sup>23</sup> And the gate of the inner foreyard was against the gate of the north, and against the east side; and he meted from the gate till to the gate, an hundred cubits.

<sup>24</sup> And he led me out to the way of the south, and lo! the gate that beheld to the south; and he meted the posts thereof, and the porch thereof, by the former measures;

<sup>25</sup> and the windows thereof, and the porch in compass, as [the] other windows; the length of fifty cubits, and the breadth of five and twenty cubits.

<sup>26</sup> And by seven degrees men ascended to it, and a porch was before the gates thereof; and palm trees were engraved, one in this side, and another in that side, in the posts thereof.

<sup>27</sup> And the gate of the inner foreyard was in the way of the south; and he meted from the gate till to the gate in the way of the south, an hundred cubits.

<sup>28</sup> And he led me into the inner foreyard, to the south gate; and he meted the gate by the former measures;

<sup>29</sup> the chamber[s] thereof, and the posts thereof, and the porch thereof by the same measures; and he meted the windows thereof, and the porch thereof in compass; fifty cubits of length, and five and twenty cubits of breadth.

<sup>30</sup> And he meted the porch by compass, the length of five and twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof of five cubits.

† CHAPTER 40:14 In the original text, throughout the rest of Ezekiel, both 'foreyard' and 'hall' are used to express a 'court' or a 'courtyard', at times within the same sentence ('hall' is also used to express a 'porch', and once, in a misprint, a 'wall'; 'court' is found elsewhere in the "Wycliffe Bible"). To avoid confusion, and to enhance comprehension, only 'foreyard' will be used here. ‡ CHAPTER 40:16 In the original text, throughout the rest of Ezekiel, 'porch/es' and 'hall(way)/s' are used interchangeably. To avoid confusion, and to enhance comprehension, only 'porch/es' will be used here. § CHAPTER 40:17 In the original text, throughout the rest of Ezekiel, 'treasury' and 'treasuries' are used where other translations have 'chamber/s', 'room/s', 'cell/s', etc. ('chamber' and 'cell' are found elsewhere in the "Wycliffe Bible"). To avoid confusion, and to enhance comprehension, only 'chamber/s' will be used here.

<sup>31</sup> And the porch thereof was to the outermore foreyard, and the palm trees thereof in the posts; and eight degrees were, by which men ascended through it [or went up thereby].

<sup>32</sup> And he led me into the inner foreyard, by the east way; and he meted the gate by the former measures;

<sup>33</sup> the chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the porches thereof, as above; and he meted the windows thereof, and the porches thereof in compass; the length of fifty cubits, and the breadth of five and twenty cubits;

<sup>34</sup> and the porch thereof, that is, of the outermore foreyard; and palm trees engraved in the posts thereof, on this side and on that side; and in eight degrees was the ascending [or the going up] thereof.

<sup>35</sup> And he led me in to the gate that beheld to the north; and he meted by the former measures;

<sup>36</sup> the chamber[s] thereof, and the posts thereof, and the porch thereof, and the windows thereof by compass; the length of fifty cubits, and the breadth of five and twenty cubits.

<sup>37</sup> The porch thereof beheld to the outermore foreyard; and the engraving of palm trees was in the posts thereof, on this side and on that side; and in eight degrees was the ascending [or the going up] thereof.

<sup>38</sup> And by all chambers a door was in the posts of gates; and there they washed burnt sacrifice.

<sup>39</sup> And in the porch of the gate were two boards on this side, and two boards on that side, that burnt sacrifice be offered on those [or them], both for sin and for trespass.

<sup>40</sup> And at the outermore side, which ascendeth [or goeth up] to the door of the gate that goeth to the north, were two boards; and at the tother side, before the porch of the gate, were two boards.

<sup>41</sup> Four boards on this side, and four boards on that side; by the sides of the gate were eight boards, on which they offered the sacrifices.

<sup>42</sup> Forsooth four boards to burnt sacrifice were builded of square stones, in the length of one cubit and an half, and in the breadth of one cubit and an half, and in the height of one cubit; on which boards they shall set [or put] vessels, in which burnt sacrifice and slain sacrifice is offered.

<sup>43</sup> And the brinks of the boards be of an handbreadth, and be bowed again within by compass; forsooth on the boards were flesh of offering.

<sup>44</sup> And without the inner gate were chambers of chanter, in the inner foreyard, that was in the side of the gate beholding to the north; and the faces of those [or them]were against the south way; one of the side of the east gate, that beheld to the way of the north.

<sup>45</sup> And he said to me, This chamber, that beholdeth the south way, is of the priests that wake in the keepings of the temple.

<sup>46</sup> Soothly the chamber, that beholdeth to the way of the north, shall be of the priests that wake to the service of the altar; these be the sons of Zadok, which of the sons of Levi nigh to the Lord, for to minister to him.

<sup>47</sup> And he meted the foreyard, the length of an hundred cubits, and the breadth of an hundred cubits, by square, and the altar was before the face of the temple.

<sup>48</sup> And he led me into the porch of the temple; and he meted the porch by five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side; and he meted the breadth of the gate, of three cubits on this side, and of three cubits on that side.

<sup>49</sup> But he meted the length of the porch of twenty cubits, and the breadth of eleven cubits, and by eight degrees men ascended to it; and pillars were in the posts, one on this side, and another on that side.

CHAPTER 41

<sup>1</sup> And he led me into the temple, and he meted the posts, six cubits of breadth on this side, and six cubits of breadth on that side, the breadth of the tabernacle.

<sup>2</sup> And the breadth of the gate was of ten cubits; and he meted the sides of the gate by five cubits on this side, and by five cubits on that side; and he meted the length thereof by forty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits.

<sup>3</sup> And he entered within, and he meted in the post of the gate, two cubits; and he meted the gate of six cubits, and the breadth of the gate of seven cubits.

<sup>4</sup> And he meted the length thereof of twenty cubits, and the breadth of twenty cubits, before the face of the temple. And he said to me, This is the holy thing of holy things.

<sup>5</sup> And he meted the wall of the house of the Lord of six cubits, and the breadth of the side chambers of four cubits, on each side by compass of the house.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth the sides were twice three and thirty, the side to the side; and those [or they] were standing on high, that entered by the wall of the house, in those sides by compass, that those [or they] held together, and touched not the wall of the temple.

<sup>7</sup> And a street was in round, and went upward by a vice, and bare into the solar of the temple by compass; therefore the temple was broader in the higher things; and so from the lower things men ascended to the higher things, and into the midst.

<sup>8</sup> And I saw in the house an highness by compass, the sides founded at the measure of a reed in the space of six cubits;

<sup>9</sup> and the breadth of the wall of the side withoutforth, of five cubits; and the inner house was in the sides of the house.

<sup>10</sup> And betwixt chambers I saw the breadth of twenty cubits in the compass of the house on each side;

<sup>11</sup> and I saw the doors of the side to prayer; one door to the way of the north, and one door to the way of the south; and I saw the breadth of place to prayer, of five cubits in compass.

<sup>12</sup> And the building that was joined to the place separated, and turned to the way beholding to the sea, of the breadth of seventy cubits; soothly the wall of the building of five cubits of breadth by compass, and the length thereof of ninety cubits.

<sup>13</sup> And he meted the length of the house, of an hundred cubits; and that place that was separated, and the building, and the walls thereof, of the length of an hundred cubits.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth the breadth of the street before the face of the house, and of that place that was separated against the east, was of an hundred cubits.

<sup>15</sup> And he meted the length of the building against the face of that place that was separated at the back; he meted the buttresses on ever either side, of an hundred cubits. And he meted the inner temple, and the porches of the foreyard,

<sup>16</sup> lintels, and windows narrow with-outforth and broad within; buttresses in compass by three parts, against the lintel of each, and arrayed with wood by compass all about; soothly from the earth till to the windows, and the windows were enclosed

<sup>17</sup> on the doors, and till to the inner house, and withoutforth by all the walls in compass, within and without-forth at measure.

<sup>18</sup> And cherubims and palm trees were made craftily, and there was a palm tree betwixt cherub and cherub; and each cherub had two faces,

<sup>19</sup> so that the face of a man was beside the palm tree on this side, and the face of a lion expressed beside the palm tree on the tother side. By all the house in compass,

<sup>20</sup> from the earth till to the higher part, cherubims and palm trees were engraved in the walls of the temple.

<sup>21</sup> A threshold was four-cornered; and the face of the beholding of the saintuary was over against the beholding of the altar of wood;

<sup>22</sup> the height thereof was of three cubits, and the length thereof two cubits; and the corners thereof, and the length thereof, and the walls thereof, were of wood. And he spake to me, This is the board before the Lord.

<sup>23</sup> And two doors were in the temple, and in the saintuary.

<sup>24</sup> And in the two doors on ever either side were two little doors, that were folded together in themselves; for why two doors were on ever either side of the doors.

<sup>25</sup> And the cherubims, and the engraving of palm trees, were engraved in the doors of the temple, as also those [or they] were expressed in the walls. Wherefore and greater beams were in the front of the porch with-outforth, <sup>26</sup> on which the windows narrow without and large within, and the likeness of palm trees were on this side and on that side; in the little shoulders, either undersettings, of the porch, by the sides of the house, and by the breadth of the walls.

CHAPTER 42

<sup>1</sup> And he led me out into the outmore foreyard, by the way leading to the north; and he led me into the chamber, that was against the building separated, and against the house going to the north;

<sup>2</sup> in the face, an hundred cubits of length of the side of the door of the north, and fifty cubits of breadth,

<sup>3</sup> over against twenty cubits of the inner foreyard, and over against the pavement arrayed with stone of the outmore foreyard, where a porch was joined to a three-fold porch.

<sup>4</sup> And before the chambers was a walking place of ten cubits of breadth, beholding to the inner things of the way of one hundred cubits. And the doors of those [or them] to the north,

<sup>5</sup> where chambers were lower in the higher things; for those [or they] bare up the porches that appeared on high of those [or them] from the lower things, and from the middle things of the building.

<sup>6</sup> For those were of three stages, and had not pillars, as were the pillars of [the] foreyards; therefore those [or they] stood on high from the lower things, and from the middle things from [the] earth, by fifty cubits.

<sup>7</sup> And the outmore hall enclosing the walking place was by the chambers, that were in the way of the outmore foreyard, before the chambers; the length thereof was of fifty cubits.

<sup>8</sup> For the length of the chambers of the outmore foreyard was of fifty cubits, and the length before the face of the temple was of an hundred cubits.

<sup>9</sup> And under these chambers was an entering from the east, of men entering into those, from the outer-more foreyard,

<sup>10</sup> in the breadth of the wall of the foreyard that was over against the east way, into the face of the building separated. And chambers were before the building,

<sup>11</sup> and a way was before the face of those [or them], by the likeness of chambers that were in the way of the north; by the length of those [or them], so was also the breadth of those [or them]. And all the entering of those [or them], and the likenesses and the doors of those [or them],

<sup>12</sup> were like the doors of chambers that were in the way beholding to the south; a door was in the head of the way, which way was before the porch separated to men entering by the east way.

<sup>13</sup> And he said to me, The chambers of the north, and the chambers of the south, that be before the building separated, these be holy chambers, in which the priests be clothed, that nigh to the Lord into the holy of holy things; there they shall put the holy of holy things, and offerings for sin, and for trespass; for it is an holy place.

<sup>14</sup> Soothly when priests have entered, they shall not go out of holy things into the outermore foreyard; and there they shall put up their clothes in which they minister, for those [or they] be holy; and they shall be clothed in other clothes, and so they shall go forth to the people.

<sup>15</sup> And when he had filled the measures of the inner house, he led me out by the way of the gate that beheld to the east way; and he meted it on each side by compass.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth he meted against the east wind with the reed of measure, by compass five hundred reeds [or five hundred rods], in a reed of measure by compass.

<sup>17</sup> And he meted against the wind of the north five hundred reeds [or five hundred rods], in the reed of measure by compass.

<sup>18</sup> And at the south wind he meted five hundred reeds [or five hundred rods], with a reed of measure by compass.

<sup>19</sup> And at the west wind he meted five hundred reeds [or five hundred rods], with the reed of measure.

<sup>20</sup> By four winds he meted the wall thereof on each side by compass, the length of five hundred [cubits], and the breadth of five hundred [cubits], the wall separating betwixt the saintuary and the place of the common people.

CHAPTER 43

<sup>1</sup> And he led me out to the gate, that beheld to the east way.

<sup>2</sup> And lo! the glory of God of Israel entered by the east way; and a voice was to it, as the voice of many waters, and the earth shined of the majesty of him.

<sup>3</sup> And I saw a vision, by the like-ness which I had seen, when he came to destroy the city; and the likeness was like the beholding which I had seen beside the flood Chebar. And I fell down on my face, <sup>4</sup> and the majesty of the Lord entered into the temple by the way of the gate that beheld to the east.

<sup>5</sup> And the Spirit raised me, and led me into the inner foreyard; and lo! the house of the Lord was filled with the glory of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And I heard one speaking to me out of the house. And the man that stood beside me,

<sup>7</sup> said to me, Thou, son of man, this is the place of my seat, and the place of the steps of my feet, where I dwell in the midst of the sons of Israel without end; and the house of Israel shall no more defoul mine holy name, they, and the kings of them, in their fornications, and in the fallings of their kings, and in their high places.

<sup>8</sup> Which made their threshold beside my threshold, and their posts beside my posts, and a wall was betwixt me and them; and they defouled mine holy name in abominations which they did; wherefore I wasted them in my wrath.

<sup>9</sup> Now therefore put they away far their fornication, and the fallings of their kings from me; and I shall dwell ever in the midst of them.

<sup>10</sup> But thou, son of man, show the temple to the house of Israel, and be they ashamed of their wickednesses; and mete they the building,

<sup>11</sup> and be they ashamed of all things which they did. Thou shalt show to them, and thou shalt write before the eyes of them the figure of the house, and of the building thereof; the out-goings, and the enterings, and all the describings thereof, and all the com-mandments thereof, and all the order thereof, and all the laws thereof; that they keep all the describings thereof, and commandments thereof, and do those [or them].

<sup>12</sup> This is the law of the house, in the highness of the hill [or the mount]; all the coasts thereof in compass is the holy of holy things; therefore this is the law of the house.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth these be the measures of the altar, in a veriest cubit, that had a cubit and a span; in the bosom there-of was a cubit in length, and a cubit in breadth; and the end thereof till to the brink, and one span in compass; also this was the ditch of the altar.

<sup>14</sup> And from the bosom of the earth till to the last height were two cubits, and the breadth of one cubit; and from the less height of the pedestal, till to the greater height of the pedestal, were four cubits, and the breadth was of one cubit;

<sup>15</sup> forsooth that ariel, that is, the higher part of the altar, was of four cubits; and from the altar till to above were four horns.

<sup>16</sup> And the altar of twelve cubits in length was four-cornered with even sides, by twelve cubits of breadth.

<sup>17</sup> And the height of fourteen cubits of length was by fourteen cubits of breadth, in four corners thereof. And a crown of half a cubit was in the compass thereof, and the bosom thereof was of one cubit by compass; forsooth the degrees thereof were turned to the east.

<sup>18</sup> And he said to me, Thou, son of man, the Lord God saith these things, These be the customs of the altar, in whatever day it is made, that men offer on it burnt sacrifice, and blood be shed out.

<sup>19</sup> And thou shalt give to priests and deacons that be of the seed of Zadok, that nigh to me, saith the Lord God, that they offer to me a calf of the drove for sin.

<sup>20</sup> And thou shalt take of the blood thereof, and shalt put on four horns thereof, and on four corners of [the] height, and on the crown in compass; and thou shalt cleanse it, and [fully] make clean.

<sup>21</sup> And thou shalt take the calf which is offered for sin, and thou shalt burn it in a separated place of the house, without the saintuary.

<sup>22</sup> And in the second day thou shalt offer a buck of goats, which is with-out wem, for sin; and they shall cleanse the altar, as they cleansed it in the calf.

<sup>23</sup> And when thou hast [ful] filled that cleansing, thou shalt offer a calf of the drove, which calf is without wem, and a wether without wem of the flock.

<sup>24</sup> And thou shalt offer those [or them] in the sight of the Lord; and priests shall put salt on those [or them], and shall offer those [or them] into burnt sacrifice to the Lord.

<sup>25</sup> By seven days, thou shalt make ready a buck of goats for sin, each day; and they shall offer a calf of the drove, and a wether unwemmed of sheep.

<sup>26</sup> By seven days they shall [fully] cleanse the altar, and shall make it clean, and they shall [ful] fill the hand thereof.

<sup>27</sup> Forsooth when seven days be [ful] filled, in the eighth day and further, priests shall make on the altar your burnt sacrifices, and those things which they offer for peace; and I shall be pleased to you, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 44

<sup>1</sup> And he turned me to the way of the gate of the outermore saintuary, which gate beheld to the east, and was closed.

<sup>2</sup> And the Lord said to me, This gate shall be closed, and shall not be opened, and a man shall not pass through it; for the Lord God of Israel entered [in] by it, and it shall be closed to the prince.

<sup>3</sup> The prince himself shall sit therein, that he eat bread before the Lord; he shall go in by the way of the gate of the porch, and he shall go out by the way thereof.

<sup>4</sup> And he led me by the way of the north gate, in the sight of the house of the Lord; and I saw, and lo! the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord; and I fell down on my face.

<sup>5</sup> And the Lord said to me, Thou, son of man, set thine heart, and see with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all things which I speak to thee, of all the ceremonies of the house of the Lord, and of all the laws thereof; and thou shalt set thine heart in the ways of the temple, by all the goings out of the saintuary.

<sup>6</sup> And thou shalt say to the house of Israel stirring me to wrath, The Lord God saith these things, Ye house of Israel, all your great trespasses suffice to you,

<sup>7</sup> for ye bring in alien sons, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, that they be in my saintuary, and defoul mine house. And ye offer my loaves, inner fatness, and blood, and break my covenant in all your great trespasses.

<sup>8</sup> And ye kept not the command-ments of my saintuary, and ye setted keepers of my keepings in my saintuary to yourselves.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord God saith these things, Each alien, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, shall not enter into my saintuary; yea, each alien son, which is in the midst of the sons of Israel.

<sup>10</sup> But also [the] Levites, [or deacons], that went far away from me, in the error of the sons of Israel, and erred from me after their idols, and bare their wickedness,

<sup>11</sup> they shall be keepers of [the] houses in my saintuary, and porters of gates of the house, and ministers of the house; they shall slay burnt sacrifices, and sacrifices for victory of the people; and they shall stand in the sight of the priests for to minister to them.

<sup>12</sup> For that that they ministered to those [or them] in the sight of their idols, and were made to the house of Israel into offending, either hurting, of wickedness; therefore I raised mine hand on them, saith the Lord God, and they bare their wickedness.

<sup>13</sup> And they shall not nigh to me, that they use priesthood to me, neither they shall nigh to all my saintuary beside [the] holy of holy things, but they shall bear their shame, and their great trespasses which they did.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall make them porters of the house, in all the service thereof, and in all things that be done therein.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth priests and deacons, the sons of Zadok, that kept the ceremonies of my saintuary, when the sons of Israel erred from me, they shall nigh to me, for to minister to me; and they shall stand in my sight, that they offer to me inner fatness and blood, saith the Lord God.

<sup>16</sup> They shall enter into my saintuary, and they shall nigh to my board, that they minister to me, and keep my ceremonies.

<sup>17</sup> And when they shall enter into the gates of the inner foreyard, they shall be clothed with linen clothes, neither any woollen thing shall go on them, when they minister in the gates of the inner foreyard, and within;

<sup>18</sup> linen caps, either mitres, shall be in the heads of them, and linen breeches shall be in the loins of them, and they shall not be gird in sweat.

<sup>19</sup> And when they shall go out at the outermore foreyard to the people, they shall despoil them of their clothes in which they ministered, and they shall lay those [or them] up in the chambers of the saintuary; and they shall clothe themselves in other clothes, and they shall not hallow my people in their clothes.

<sup>21</sup> And each priest shall not drink wine, when he shall enter into the inner foreyard.

<sup>22</sup> And priests shall not take for wives a widow, and a forsaken woman, but virgins of the seed of the house of Israel; but also they shall take a widow, which is the widow of a priest.

<sup>23</sup> And they shall teach my people, what is betwixt holy thing and defouled; and they shall show to them, what is betwixt clean thing and unclean.

<sup>24</sup> And when debate is, they shall stand in my dooms, and shall deem by my laws; and they shall keep my commandments in all my solemnities, and they shall hallow my sabbaths.

<sup>25</sup> And they shall not enter to a dead man, lest they be defouled; no but to father, and mother, and to son, and daughter, and to brother, and sister that had not an husband, in which they shall be defouled.

<sup>26</sup> And after that he is cleansed, seven days shall be numbered to him.

<sup>27</sup> And in the day of his entering into the saintuary, to the inner foreyard, that he minister to me in the saintuary, he shall offer for his sin, saith the Lord God.

<sup>28</sup> Forsooth none heritage shall be to them, I am the heritage of them; and ye shall not give to them a possession in Israel, for I am the possession of them.

<sup>29</sup> They shall eat sacrifice, and that for sin, and that for trespass, and each avow [or vow] of Israel shall be theirs.

<sup>30</sup> And the first things of all first engendered things, and all moist sacrifices, of all things that be offered, shall be the priests' part; and ye shall give the first things of your meats to the priest, that he lay up blessing to his house.

<sup>31</sup> Priests shall not eat anything dead by itself, and taken of a beast, of fowls, and of sheep.

CHAPTER 45

<sup>1</sup> And when ye shall begin to part the land by parts, separate ye the first things to the Lord, an hallowed thing of the land, five and twenty thousand of reeds* in length, and ten thousand of reeds in breadth; it shall be hallowed in all the coast thereof by compass.

<sup>2</sup> And it shall be hallowed on each part in five hundred reeds, by five hundred, in four sides by compass, and in fifty cubits into the suburbs thereof by compass.

<sup>3</sup> And from this measure thou shalt mete the length of five and twenty thousand of reeds, and the breadth of ten thousand; and the temple and the holy of holy things shall be in it.

<sup>4</sup> An hallowed thing of the land shall be to priests, the ministers of the saintuary, that nigh to the service of the Lord; and a place shall be to them into houses, and into the saintuary of holiness.

<sup>5</sup> Soothly five and twenty thousand of length shall be, and ten thousand of breadth; but the deacons that minister to the house, they shall have in possession twenty chambers.

<sup>6</sup> And ye shall give the possession of the city, five thousand reeds of breadth, and five and twenty thousand of length, by the separating of the saintuary, to all the house of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> And ye shall give a portion to the prince on this side and on that side, beside the separating of the saintuary, and beside the possession of the city, against the face of separating of the saintuary, and against the face of possession of the city; from the side of the sea till to the sea, and from the side of the east till to the east, shall be of the possession of the prince. Forsooth the length by each of the parts, from the west end till to the east end of the land,

---

* CHAPTER 45:1 For verses 1-6, some modern trans-lations state the measurements as cubits, not reeds or rods.

<sup>8</sup> shall be possession to him in Israel; and the princes shall no more rob my people, but they shall give the rest of the land to the house of Israel, by the lineages of them.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord God saith these things, O! princes of Israel, suffice it to you, leave ye wickedness and raven, and do ye doom and rightfulness; part ye your nigh coasts from my people, saith the Lord God.

<sup>10</sup> A just balance, and a just measure[of dry things]called ephah, and a just measure[of flowing things]called bath, shall be to you.

<sup>11</sup> Ephah and bath shall be even, and of one measure, that a bath take the tenth part of the measure called a cor, and that an ephah take the tenth part of the measure called a cor; by the measure of cor shall be even weighing of those [or them].

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth a shekel shall have twenty halfpence; certainly twenty shekels, and five and twenty shekels, and fifteen shekels make a bezant.

<sup>14</sup> Also the measure of oil; a bath of oil is the tenth part of cor, and ten baths make one cor; for ten baths fill one cor.

<sup>15</sup> And one ram, either wether, of the flock of two hundred, of these which the men of Israel nourish, into sacrifice, and into burnt sacrifice, and into peaceable sacrifices, to cleanse for them, saith the Lord God.

<sup>16</sup> All the people of the land shall be bound in these first fruits to the prince in Israel.

<sup>17</sup> And on the part of the prince shall be burnt sacrifices, and sacrifices, and moist sacrifices, in solemnities, and in calends, either beginnings of months, and in sabbaths, and in all the solemnities of the house of Israel; he shall make ready the sacrifice for sin, and burnt sacrifice, and peaceable sacrifices, to cleanse for the house of Israel.

<sup>18</sup> The Lord God saith these things, In the first month, in the first day of the month, thou shalt take a calf without wem of the drove, and thou shalt cleanse the saintuary.

<sup>19</sup> And the priest shall take of the blood of the beast that shall be for sin; and he shall put in the posts of the house, and in four corners of the height of the altar, and in the posts of the gate of the inner foreyard.

<sup>20</sup> And thus thou shalt do in the seventh day of the month, for each that knew not, and was deceived by error, and thou shalt cleanse for the house.

<sup>21</sup> In the first month, in the fourteenth day of the month, the solemnity of pask shall be to you; therf loaves shall be eaten by seven days.

<sup>22</sup> And the prince shall make ready a calf for sin in that day, for himself and for all the people of the land.

<sup>23</sup> And in the solemnity of seven days he shall make burnt sacrifice to the Lord; he shall offer seven calves and seven wethers without wem each day, by seven days, and each day a buck of goats, for sin.

<sup>24</sup> And he shall make the sacrifice of ephah by a calf, and of ephah by a wether, and of oil the measure hin, by each ephah.

<sup>25</sup> In the seventh month, in the fifteenth day of the month, in the solemnity, he shall make as those [or they] be before-said, by seven days, as well for sin, as for burnt sacrifice, and in sacrifice, and in oil.

CHAPTER 46

<sup>1</sup> The Lord God saith these things, The gate of the inner foreyard, that beholdeth to the east, shall be closed six days in which work is done; for it shall be opened in the day of sabbath, but also it shall be opened in the day of calends.

<sup>2</sup> And the prince shall enter by the way of the porch of the gate without-forth, and he shall stand in the threshold of the gate; and priests shall make the burnt sacrifice of him, and the peaceable sacrifices of him; and he shall worship on the threshold of the gate, and he shall go out; forsooth the gate shall not be closed till to the eventide.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth the prince shall offer this burnt sacrifice to the Lord in the day of sabbath, six lambs without wem, and a wether without wem,

<sup>5</sup> and the sacrifice of ephah by a wether; but in the lambs he shall offer the sacrifice which his hand shall give, and of oil the measure hin, by each ephah.

<sup>6</sup> But in the day of calends he shall offer a calf without wem of the drove; and six lambs, and wethers shall be without wem,

<sup>7</sup> and ephah by a calf. Also he shall make the sacrifice, ephah by a wether; but of lambs as his hand findeth, and of oil the measure hin, by each ephah.

<sup>8</sup> And when the prince shall enter, enter he by the way of the porch of the gate, and go he out by the same way.

<sup>9</sup> And when the people of the land shall enter in the sight of the Lord into solemnities, which people entereth by the gate of the north for to worship, go it out by the way of the south gate. Certainly the people that entereth by the way of the south gate, go out by the way of the north gate. It shall not turn again by the way of the gate by which it entered, but even against that way it shall go out.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth the prince shall be in the midst of them; he shall enter with them that enter, and he shall go out with them that go out.

<sup>11</sup> And in fairs and in solemnities, the sacrifice of ephah shall be by a calf, and ephah by a wether; in lambs shall be sacrifice as his hand findeth, and of oil the measure hin, by each ephah.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth when the prince maketh a willful burnt sacrifice, either willful peaceable sacrifices to the Lord, the gate that beholdeth to the east shall be opened to him; and he shall make his burnt sacrifice, and his peaceable sacrifices, as it is wont to be done in the day of sabbath; and he shall go out, and the gate shall be closed after that he went out.

<sup>13</sup> And he shall make burnt sacrifice each day to the Lord, a lamb without wem of the same year; ever he shall make it in the morrowtide,

<sup>14</sup> and he shall make sacrifice on it full early; early he shall make the sixth part of ephah, and of oil the third part of hin, that it be meddled [or mingled] with the flour of wheat; it is a lawful sacrifice, continual and everlasting, to the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> He shall make ready a lamb, and sacrifice, and oil, full early; he shall make ready early [the] burnt sacrifice everlasting.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord God saith these things, If the prince giveth an house to any of his sons, the heritage of him shall be of his sons; they shall wield it by heritage.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth if he giveth a bequest of his heritage to one of his servants, it shall be his till to the year of remission, and it shall turn again to the prince; forsooth the heritage of him shall be to his sons.

<sup>18</sup> And the prince shall not take by violence of the heritage of the people, and of the possession of them; but of his own possession he shall give heritage to his sons, that my people be not scattered, each man from his possession.

<sup>19</sup> And he led me in by the entering, that was on the side of the gate, into the chambers of the saintuary to the priests, which chambers beheld to the north; and there was a place going to the west.

<sup>20</sup> And he said to me, This is the place where priests shall seethe, both for sin [of doing], and for trespass [of leaving undone]; where they shall seethe sacrifice, that they bear it not out into the outermore foreyard, and the people be hallowed.

<sup>21</sup> And he led me out into the outermore foreyard, and led me about by the four corners of the foreyard; and lo! a little foreyard was in the corner of the foreyard, all little fore-yards by the corners of the foreyard;

<sup>22</sup> in four corners of the foreyard little foreyards were disposed, of forty cubits by length, and of thirty by breadth; four were of one measure;

<sup>23</sup> and a wall by compass went about four little foreyards; and kitchens were made under the porches by compass.

<sup>24</sup> And he said to me, This is the house of kitchens, in which the ministers of the house of the Lord shall seethe the sacrifice of the people.

CHAPTER 47

<sup>1</sup> And he turned me to the gate of the house of the Lord; and lo! waters went out from under the threshold of the house to the east; for the face of the house beheld to the east; forsooth the waters came down into the right side of the temple, to the south part of the altar.

<sup>2</sup> And he led me out by the way of the north gate, and he turned me to the way without the outermore gate, to the way that beholdeth to the east; and lo! waters flowing from the right side,

<sup>3</sup> when the man that had a cord in his hand went out to the east. And he meted a thousand cubits, and led me over through the water till to the heels.

<sup>4</sup> And again he meted a thousand, and led me over through the water till to the knees. And again he meted a thousand, and led me over through the water till to the reins.

<sup>5</sup> And he meted a thousand, by the strand [or stream] which I might not pass [over]; for the deep waters of the strand had waxed great, that may not be waded over.

<sup>6</sup> And he said to me, Certainly, son of man, thou hast seen. And he led me, and he turned me to the river of the strand [or stream].

<sup>7</sup> And when I had turned me, lo! in the river of the strand [or stream] full many trees on ever either side.

<sup>8</sup> And he said to me, These waters that go out to the heaps of sand of the east, and go down into [the] plain places of desert, shall enter into the sea, and shall go out; and the waters shall be healed.

<sup>9</sup> And each living beast that creep-eth, shall live, whither ever the strand [or stream] shall come; and fishes many enough shall be, after that these waters come thither, and [they] shall be healed, and shall live; all things to which the strand [or stream] shall come, shall live.

<sup>10</sup> And fishers shall stand on those waters; from Engedi till to Eneglaim shall be drying of nets; full many kinds of fishes thereof shall be, as the fishes of the great sea, of full great multitude;

<sup>11</sup> but in the brinks thereof and in marishes waters shall not be healed, for those [or they] shall be given into places of making of salt.

<sup>12</sup> And each tree bearing fruit shall grow on the strand [or stream], in the rivers thereof on each side; a leaf thereof shall not fall down, and the fruit thereof shall not fail; by all months it shall bear first fruits, for the waters thereof shall go out of the saintuary; and the fruits thereof shall be into meat, and the leaves thereof to medicine.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord God saith these things, This is the end, in which ye shall wield the land, in the twelve lineages of Israel; for Joseph hath double part.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth ye shall wield it, each man evenly as his brother; on which I raised mine hand, that I should give to your fathers; and this land shall fall to you into possession.

<sup>15</sup> This is the end of the land at the north coast, from the great sea, the way of Hethlon, to men coming to Zedad,

<sup>16</sup> Hamath, Berothah, Sibraim, which is in the midst betwixt Damascus and [the] nigh coasts of Hamath, to the house of Hatticon, which is beside the ends of Hauran.

<sup>17</sup> And the end shall be from the sea till to the porch of Enan, the end of Damascus, and from the north till to the north, the end of Hamath; forsooth this is the north coast.

<sup>18</sup> Certainly the east coast from the midst of Hauran, and from the midst of Damascus, and from the midst of Gilead, and from the midst of the land of Israel, is Jordan, parting at the east sea, also ye shall mete the east coast.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth the south coast of midday is from Tamar till to the waters of against-saying of Kadesh; and the strand [or stream] till to the great sea, and the south coast of midday.

<sup>20</sup> And the coast of the sea is the great sea, from the nigh coast by [the] straight, till thou come to Hamath; this is the coast of the sea.

<sup>21</sup> And ye shall part this land to you by the lineages of Israel;

<sup>22</sup> and ye shall send it into heritage to you, and to comelings that come to you, that engendered sons in the midst of you; and they shall be to you as men born in the land among the sons of Israel; with you they shall part possession, in the midst of the line-ages of Israel.

<sup>23</sup> Forsooth in whatever lineage a comeling is, there ye shall give possession to him, saith the Lord God.

CHAPTER 48

<sup>1</sup> And these be the names of lineages, from the ends of the north, beside the way [of] Hethlon, to men going to Hamath, the porch of Enan, the term of Damascus, to the north beside Hamath; and the east coast shall be to it the sea, one part shall be of Dan.

<sup>2</sup> And from the end of Dan, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea, one part shall be of Asher.

<sup>4</sup> And on the term of Naphtali, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea, one of Manasseh.

<sup>5</sup> And on the end of Manasseh, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea, one of Ephraim.

<sup>6</sup> And on the end of Ephraim, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea, one of Reuben.

<sup>7</sup> And on the end of Reuben, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea, one of Judah.

<sup>8</sup> And on the end of Judah, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea, shall be the place of the first fruits, which ye shall set apart by five and twenty thousand reeds* of breadth and of length [or in five and twenty thousand rods of breadth and of length], as all parts be, from the east coast till to the coast of the sea; and the saintuary shall be in the midst thereof.

<sup>9</sup> The place of the first fruits which ye shall set apart to the Lord, the length shall be in five and twenty thousand, and the breadth in ten thousand.

---

* CHAPTER 48:8 For verses 8-35, some modern trans-lations state the measurements as cubits, not reeds or rods.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth these shall be the first fruits of the saintuary of priests; to the north five and twenty thousand of length, and to the sea ten thousand of breadth; but to the east ten thousand of breadth, and to the south five and twenty thousand of length; and the saintuary of the Lord shall be in the midst thereof.

<sup>11</sup> The saintuary shall be to priests of the sons of Zadok, that kept my ceremonies, and erred not, when the sons of Israel erred, as also [the] deacons erred.

<sup>12</sup> And this portion of the place of the first fruits shall be to them of the first fruits of the land, the holy of holy things, by the term of Levites, either deacons.

<sup>13</sup> But also to deacons in like manner by the coasts of priests shall be five and twenty thousand of length, and ten thousand of breadth; all the length of five and twenty thousand, and the breadth of ten thousand.

<sup>14</sup> And they shall not sell thereof, neither shall exchange any part of their portion; and the place of the first fruits of the land shall not be trans-lated, for those [or they] be hallowed to the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> Soothly the five thousand, that be left over in breadth, by five and twenty thousand, shall be the unholy things, either common things, of the city, into dwelling place, and into suburbs; and the city shall be in the midst thereof.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth the suburbs of the city at the north shall be two hundred and fifty, and at the south two hundred and fifty, and at the east two hundred and fifty, and at the sea, that is, the west, two hundred and fifty.

<sup>18</sup> But that that is residue in length, by the place of the first fruits of the saintuary, ten thousand into the east, and ten thousand into the west, shall be as the place of the first fruits of the saintuary; and the fruits shall be into loaves to them that serve the city.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth they that serve in the city shall work that land, anyone of all the lineages of Israel.

<sup>20</sup> All the place of the first fruits of five and twenty thousand, by five and twenty thousand in square, shall be separated into the place of the first fruits of [the] saintuary, and into possession of the city.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth that that is residue, shall be the prince's part, on each side of the place of the first fruits of [the] saintuary, and of the possession of the city, even against five and twenty thousand of the place of the first fruits, till to the east end; but also to the sea even against five and twenty thousand, till to the end of the sea, shall be in like manner in the parts of the prince; and the place of the first fruits of the saintuary, and the saintuary of the temple shall be in the midst of it.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth from the possession of deacons, and from the possession of the city, which is in the midst of parts of the prince, shall be into the term, either portion, of Judah, and into the term, either portion, of Benjamin; and it shall pertain to the prince.

<sup>23</sup> And to [the] other lineages, from the east coast till to the west coast, one to Benjamin.

<sup>24</sup> And against the term, either portion, of Benjamin, from the east coast till to the west coast, one to Simeon.

<sup>25</sup> And on the term of Simeon, from the east coast till to the west coast, one to Issachar.

<sup>26</sup> And on the term of Issachar, from the east coast till to the west coast, one to Zebulun.

<sup>27</sup> And on the term of Zebulun, from the east coast till to the west coast, one to Gad.

<sup>28</sup> And on the term of Gad, to the coast of the south into midday, [or southward]; and the end shall be from Tamar till to the waters of against-saying of Kadesh, and the heritage against the great sea.

<sup>29</sup> This is the land which ye shall send into part to the lineages of Israel, and these be the partings of those [or them], saith the Lord God.

<sup>30</sup> And these be the goings out of the city; from the north coast thou shalt mete five hundred and four thousand reeds.

<sup>32</sup> And at the east coast, five hundred and four thousand reeds, and three gates; one gate of Joseph, one gate of Benjamin, one gate of Dan.

<sup>33</sup> And at the south coast thou shalt mete five hundred and four thousand reeds, and three gates shall be of those [or them]; one gate of Simeon, one gate of Issachar, one gate of Zebulun.

<sup>34</sup> And at the west coast, five hundred and four thousand reeds, three gates of those [or them]; one gate of Gad, one gate of Asher, one gate of Naphtali.

<sup>35</sup> By compass eighteen miles; and the name of the city shall be from that day, The Lord is there. Amen.

DANIEL

<sup>1</sup> In the third year of the realm of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, Nebuchad-nezzar, and the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem, and besieged it.

<sup>2</sup> And the Lord betook in his hand Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, and he took a part of the vessels of the house of God; and he bare out those into the land of Shinar, into the house of his god, and he took the vessels into the house of treasure of his god.

<sup>3</sup> And the king said to Ashpenaz, sovereign of his honest servants and chaste [or provost of geldings], that he should bring in of the sons of Israel, and of the king's seed, and the children of tyrants, [or strong men], <sup>4</sup> in which were no wem, fair in shape, and learned in all wisdom, wary in knowing, and taught in chastising, either learning, and that might stand in the palace of the king, that he should teach them the letters and language of Chaldees.

<sup>5</sup> And the king ordained to them lifelode by each day of his meats, and of the wine whereof he drank; that they nourished by three years, should stand afterward before the sight of the king.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore Daniel, Hananiah, Mishaël, and Azariah, of the sons of Judah, were among them.

<sup>7</sup> And the sovereign of the honest servants and chaste putted to them names; to Daniel he putted Belte-shazzar; to Hananiah, Shadrach; to Mishaël, Meshach, and to Azariah, Abednego.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth Daniel purposed in his heart, that he should not be defouled of the board of the king, neither of the wine of his drink; and he prayed the sovereign of the honest servants and chaste, that he should not be defouled.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth God gave grace and mercy to Daniel, in the sight of the prince of honest servants and chaste.

<sup>10</sup> And the prince of honest servants and chaste said to Daniel, I dread my lord the king, that ordained to you meat and drink; and if he see your faces leaner than other young waxing men, your even-elders, ye shall condemn mine head to the king.

<sup>11</sup> And Daniel said to Melzar, whom the prince of honest servants and chaste had ordained on Daniel, Hananiah, Mishaël, and Azariah,

<sup>12</sup> I beseech, assay thou us thy servants by ten days, and pottages be given to us to eat, and water to drink;

<sup>13</sup> and behold thou our cheers, and the cheers of children that eat the king's meat; and as thou seest, so do thou with thy servants.

<sup>14</sup> And when he heard such a word, he assayed them ten days.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth after ten days the cheers of them appeared better and fatter, than all the children that ate the king's meat.

<sup>16</sup> Certainly Melzar took [away] the meats, and the wine of the drink of them, and gave them pottages.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth to these children God gave knowing and learning in each book, and in all wisdom; but to Daniel God gave understanding of all visions and dreams.

<sup>18</sup> Therefore when the days were [ful] filled, after which the king said, that they should be brought in, the sovereign of honest servants and chaste brought in them, in the sight of Nebuchadnezzar.

<sup>19</sup> And when the king had spoken to them, such were not found of all, as Daniel, Hananiah, Mishaël, and Azariah; and they stood in the sight of the king.

<sup>20</sup> And each word of wisdom and of understanding, which the king asked of them, he found in them tenfold, over all false diviners and astronomers or astrologers that were in all his realm.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth Daniel was there till to the first year of King Cyrus.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> In the second year of the realm of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar saw a dream; and his spirit was afeared, and his dream fled away from him.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore the king commanded, that the false diviners, and astronomers, and witches, and Chaldees should be called together, that they should tell to the king his dreams; and when they were come, they stood before the king.

<sup>3</sup> And the king said to them, I saw a dream, and I am shamed in mind, and I know not what I saw.

<sup>4</sup> And Chaldees answered the king by Syriack language, King, live thou without end; say thy dream to thy servants, and we shall show to thee the expounding thereof.

<sup>5</sup> And the king answered, and said to [the] Chaldees, The word is gone away from me; if ye show not to me the dream, and the expounding thereof, ye shall perish, and your houses shall be forfeited.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth if ye tell the dream, and the expounding thereof, ye shall take of me meeds and gifts, and much honour; therefore show ye to me the dream, and the interpreting thereof.

<sup>7</sup> They answered the second time, and said, the king say the dream to his servants, and we shall show the interpreting thereof.

<sup>8</sup> The king answered, and said, certainly I know, that ye again-buy the time, and know that the word is gone away from me.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore if ye show not to me the dream, one sentence is of you, for ye make an interpreting both false and full of deceit, that ye speak to me till the time pass; therefore say ye the dream to me, that I know that ye speak also the very interpreting thereof.

<sup>10</sup> Therefore [the] Chaldees answered before the king, and said, King, no man is on earth that may [ful] fill thy word; but neither any great man and mighty of kings asketh such a word of any false diviner, and astronomer, and of a man of Chaldea.

<sup>12</sup> And when this word was heard, the king commanded, in strong vengeance and in great ire that all [the] wise men of Babylon should perish.

<sup>13</sup> And by the sentence gone out, the wise men were to be slain; and Daniel and his fellows were sought, that they should perish.

<sup>14</sup> Then Daniel asked of the law and sentence of Arioch, prince of [the] chivalry of the king that was gone out to slay the wise men of Babylon.

<sup>15</sup> And he asked him that had taken power of the king, for what cause so cruel a sentence went out from the face of the king. Therefore when Arioch had showed the thing to Daniel,

<sup>16</sup> Daniel entered, and prayed the king, that he should give time to him to show the solving to the king.

<sup>17</sup> And he entered into his house, and showed the need to Hananiah, and Mishael, and Azariah, his fellows, <sup>18</sup> that they should ask mercy of the face of God of heaven on this sacrament, or hid truth; and that Daniel and his fellows should not perish with other wise men of Babylon.

<sup>19</sup> Then the private * was showed to Daniel by a vision in night. And Daniel blessed God of heaven,

<sup>20</sup> and said, the name of the Lord be blessed from the world, and till into the world, for wisdom and strength be his;

<sup>21</sup> and he changeth times and ages, he translateth realms and ordaineth; he giveth wisdom to wise men, and knowing to them that understand teaching, either chastising;

<sup>22</sup> he showeth deep things and hid, and he knoweth things set in darkneses, and light is with him.

<sup>23</sup> God of our fathers, I acknowledge to thee, and I praise thee, for thou hast given wisdom and strength to me; and now thou hast showed to me those things which we prayed thee, for thou hast opened to us the word of the king.

<sup>24</sup> After these things Daniel entered to Arioch, whom the king had ordained, that he should lose the wise men of Babylon, and thus he spake to him, Lose thou not the wise men of Babylon; lead thou me in before the sight of the king, and I shall tell the solving to the king.

<sup>25</sup> Then Arioch hasting led in Daniel to the king, and said to him, I have found a man of the sons of passing over of Judah, that shall tell the solving to the king.

<sup>26</sup> The king answered, and said to Daniel, to whom the name was Belteshazzar, whether guessest thou, that thou mayest verily show to me the dream which I saw, and the interpreting thereof?

<sup>27</sup> And Daniel answered before the king, and said, the private which the king asketh, [the] wise men, and astronomers, and false diviners, and lookers of altars, may not show to the king.

<sup>28</sup> But God is in heaven that showeth privates, which hath showed to thee, thou king Nebuchadnezzar, what things shall come in the last times. Thy dream and visions of thine head, in thy bed, be such.

<sup>29</sup> Thou, king, begannest to think in thy bed, what was to coming after these things; and he that showeth privates, showed to thee what things shall come.

<sup>30</sup> And this sacrament, [or hid truth], is showed to me not by wisdom which is in me more than in all living men, but that the interpreting should be made open to the king, and thou shouldest know the thoughts of thy soul.

<sup>31</sup> Thou, king, sawest, and lo! As one great image; that image was great, and high in stature, and stood before thee, and the looking thereof was fearedful.

<sup>32</sup> The head of this image was of best gold, but the breast and arms were of silver; certainly the womb and thighs were of brass,

<sup>33</sup> but the legs were of iron; forsooth some part of the feet was of iron, some was of earth.

<sup>34</sup> Thou sawest thus, till a stone was cut down out of the hill, without hands, and smote the image in the iron feet thereof and earthen, and all-brake those.

<sup>35</sup> Then the iron, tilestone, either earthen vessel, brass, silver, and gold, were all-broken altogether, and driven as into a dead spark of a large summer hall, that be ravished of wind, and no place is found to those [or in them]; forsooth the stone, that smote the image, was made a great hill [or mountain], and filled all earth.

<sup>36</sup> This is the dream. Also, thou king, we shall say before thee the interpreting thereof.

<sup>37</sup> Thou art king of kings, and God of heaven gave to thee realm, strength, and empire, and glory;

---

* CHAPTER 2:19 In Daniel, where the "Later Version" uses 'private' or 'privates', the "Early Version" uses 'mystery' or 'mysteries'.

<sup>38</sup> and he gave in thine hand all things in which the sons of men, and the beasts of the field, and the birds of the air dwell, and ordained all things under thy lordship; therefore thou art the golden head.

<sup>39</sup> And another realm less than thou shall rise after thee; and the third realm, another of brass, that shall have the empire of all earth.

<sup>40</sup> And the fourth realm shall be as iron; as iron maketh less, and maketh tame all things, so it shall make less, and shall all-break all these realms.

<sup>41</sup> Forsooth that thou sawest a part of the feet, and fingers or toes of earth, [or clay], of a potter, and a part of iron, the realm shall be parted; which nevertheless shall rise up out of the planting of the iron, by that that thou sawest iron mingled with a tilestone of clay,

<sup>42</sup> and the toes of the feet, in part of iron, and in part of earth, in part the realm shall be firm, and in part broken.

<sup>43</sup> Forsooth that thou sawest iron mingled with a tilestone of clay, soothly those [or they] shall be mingled together with man's seed; but those [or they] shall not cleave to themselves, as iron may not be meddled [or mingled] with tilestone.

<sup>44</sup> Forsooth in the days of those realms, God of heaven shall raise up a realm, that shall not be destroyed without end, and his realm shall not be given to another people; it shall make less, and waste all these realms, and it shall stand without end,

<sup>45</sup> by this that thou sawest, that a stone was cut down out of the hill, without hands, and made less, [or brake], the tilestone, and the iron, and the brass, and the silver, and the gold. [The] Great God hath showed to the king what things shall come afterward; and the dream is true, and the interpreting thereof is faithful.

<sup>46</sup> Then king Nebuchadnezzar fell down on his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded sacrifices and incense to be brought, that those should be sacrificed to him.

<sup>47</sup> Therefore the king spake, and said to Daniel, Verily your God is God of gods, and Lord of kings, that showeth mysteries, for thou mightest open this sacrament, or hid truth.

<sup>48</sup> Then the king raised up Daniel on high, and gave many gifts and great to him; and ordained him prince and prefect, either chief justice, over all the provinces of Babylon, and master over all the wise men of Babylon.

<sup>49</sup> Forsooth Daniel asked of the king, and ordained Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego over all the works of the province of Babylon; but Daniel himself was in the gates of the king.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Nebuchadnezzar, the king, made a golden image, in the height of sixty cubits, and in the breadth of six cubits; and he setted it in the field of Dura, of the province of Babylon.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore Nebuchadnezzar sent to gather together the wise men, magistrates, and judges, and dukes, and tyrants, [or strong men], and prefects, and all princes of countries, that they should come together to the hallowing of the image which the king Nebuchadnezzar had raised [up].

<sup>3</sup> Then the wise men, magistrates, and judges, and dukes, and tyrants, or strong men, and best men that were set in powers, and all the princes of countries were gathered together, that they should come together to the hallowing of the image, which the king Nebuchadnezzar had raised [up]. Forsooth they stood in the sight of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar had set up;

<sup>4</sup> and a beadle cried mightily, it is said to you, peoples, kindreds, and languages;

<sup>5</sup> in the hour in which ye hear the sound of trump, and of pipe, and of harp, of sambuca, and of psaltery, and of symphony, and of all kind of musics, fall ye down, and worship the golden image which the king Nebu-chadnezzar made.

<sup>6</sup> Soothly if any man falleth not down, and worshipping not, in the same hour he shall be sent into a furnace of fire burning.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore after these things, anon as all peoples heard the sound of trump, and of pipe, and of harp, of sambuca, and of psaltery or lyre, of symphony, and of all kind of musics, all peoples, lineages, and languages fell down, and worshipped the golden image which the king Nebuchadnezzar had made.

<sup>8</sup> And anon in that time men of Chaldea nighed, and accused the Jews,

<sup>9</sup> and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, King, live thou without end.

<sup>10</sup> Thou, king, hast set a decree, that each man that heareth the sound of trump, of pipe, and of harp, of sambuca, and of psaltery, and of symphony, and of all kind of musics, bow down himself, and worship the golden image;

<sup>11</sup> forsooth if any man falleth not down, and worshipping not, be he sent into the furnace of fire burning.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore men Jews be, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, which thou hast ordained on the works of the country of Babylon. Thou king, these men have despised thy decree; they honour not thy gods, and they worship not the golden image, which thou raisedest.

<sup>13</sup> Then Nebuchadnezzar commanded, in strong vengeance and in wrath, that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego should be brought; which were brought anon in the sight of the king.

<sup>14</sup> And the king Nebuchadnezzar pronounced, and said to them, whether verily Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, ye honour not my gods, and worship not the golden image which I made?

<sup>15</sup> Now therefore be ye ready, in whatever hour ye hear the sound of trump, of pipe, of harp, of sambuca, of psaltery, and of symphony, and of all kind of musics, bow ye down you, and worship the image which I made; that if ye worship not, in the same hour ye shall be sent into the furnace of fire burning; and who is God that shall deliver you from mine hand?

<sup>16</sup> Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered, and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, It needeth not, that we answer of this thing to thee.

<sup>17</sup> For why our God, whom we worship, may ravish us from the chimney of fire burning, and may deliver from thine hands, thou king.

<sup>18</sup> That if he do not, be it known to thee, thou king, that we honour not thy gods, and we worship not the golden image which thou hast raised.

<sup>19</sup> Then Nebuchadnezzar was filled with strong vengeance, and the beholding of his face was changed on Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. And he commanded that the furnace should be made hotter sevenfold than that it was wont to be made hot.

<sup>20</sup> And he commanded to the strongest men of his host that they should bind the feet of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, and send them into the furnace of fire burning.

<sup>21</sup> And anon those men were bound, with breeches, and caps, and shoes, and clothes, and were sent into the midst of the furnace of fire burning;

<sup>22</sup> for why the commandment of the king constrained. Forsooth the furnace was made full hot; certainly the flame of the fire killed those men that had sent Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego into the furnace.

<sup>23</sup> Soothly these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, fell down bound in the midst of the chimney of fire burning.

<sup>24</sup> Then king Nebuchadnezzar was astonished, and rose hastily, and said to his best men, whether we sent not three men fettered into the midst of the fire? Which answered the king, and said, Verily, king.

<sup>25</sup> The king answered, and said, lo! I see four men unbound, and going in the midst of the fire, and nothing of corruption is in them; and the likeness of the fourth is like the son of God.

<sup>26</sup> Then the king Nebuchadnezzar nighed to the door of the furnace of fire burning, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, the servants of high God living [or of high living God], go ye out, and come ye. And anon Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego went out of the midst of the fire.

<sup>27</sup> And the wise men, and magistrates, and judges, and mighty men of the king were gathered together, and beheld those men, for the fire had nothing of power in the bodies of them, and an hair of their head was not burnt; also the breeches of them were not changed, and the odour of fire had not passed by them.

<sup>28</sup> And Nebuchadnezzar brake out, and said, blessed be the God of them, that is, of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that sent his angel, and delivered his servants that believed into him, and changed the word of the king, and gave their bodies, that they should not serve, and that they should not worship any god, except their God alone.

<sup>29</sup> Therefore this decree is set of me, that each people, and languages, and lineages, whoever speaketh blasphemy against God of Shadrach, of Meshach, and of Abednego, perish, and his house be destroyed; for none other is God that may save so.

<sup>30</sup> Then the king advanced Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, in the province of Babylon; and sent into all the land an epistle, containing these words.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Nebuchadnezzar, the king, writeth thus to all peoples, [folks], and languages, that dwell in all earth, peace be multiplied to you.

<sup>2</sup> High God made at me miracles and marvels; therefore it pleased me to preach his miracles, <sup>3</sup> for those be great, and his marvels, for those be strong; and his realm is an everlasting realm, and his power is into generation and into generation.

<sup>4</sup> I, Nebuchadnezzar, was restful in mine house, and flourishing in my palace;

<sup>5</sup> I saw a dream that made me afeared; and my thoughts in my bed, and the sights of mine head, disturbed me.

<sup>6</sup> And a decree was set forth by me, that all the wise men of Babylon should be brought in before my sight, and that they should show to me the solving of the dream.

<sup>7</sup> Then false diviners, astronomers, Chaldees, and beholders of altars entered; and I told the dream in the sight of them, and they showed not to me the solving thereof,

<sup>8</sup> till the fellow in office, Daniel, to whom the name was Belteshazzar, by the name of my god, entered in my sight, the Daniel hath the spirit of holy gods in himself; and I spake the dream before him.

<sup>9</sup> Belteshazzar, prince of diviners, whom I know, that thou hast in thee the spirit of holy gods, and each sacrament, either private, is not impossible to thee, tell thou to me the visions of my dreams which I saw, and the solving of those.

<sup>10</sup> This is the vision of mine head in my bed. I saw, and lo! A tree was in the midst of earth, and the highness thereof was full great.

<sup>11</sup> And the tree was great and strong, and the height thereof touched heaven, and the beholding thereof was unto the ends of all earth.

<sup>12</sup> The leaves thereof were full fair, and the fruit thereof was full much, and the meat of all was in it; beasts and wild beasts dwelled under it, and birds of the air lived in the branches thereof, and each man ate of it.

<sup>13</sup> Thus I saw in the vision of mine head, on my bed. And lo! A watcher, and holy came down from heaven, <sup>14</sup> and he cried strongly, and said thus, Hew ye down the tree, and cut you down the boughs thereof, and shake ye away the leaves thereof, and scatter ye abroad the fruits thereof; beasts flee away, that be under it, and birds from the boughs thereof.

<sup>15</sup> Nevertheless suffer you the seed of the roots thereof in [the] earth, and be he bound with a band of iron and of brass, in herbs that be withoutforth; and in the dew of heaven be he dyed, and his part be with wild beasts in the herb of the earth.

<sup>16</sup> His heart be changed from man's heart, and the heart of a wild beast be given to him, and seven times be changed on him.

<sup>17</sup> In the sentence of the watchers it is deemed, and it is the word and asking of saints, till living men know, that [the] high God is Lord in the realm of men; and he shall give it to whomever he will, and he shall ordain on it the meekest man.

<sup>18</sup> I, Nebuchadnezzar, the king, saw this dream. Therefore thou, Belteshazzar, tell hastily the interpreting, for all the wise men of my realm be not able to say to me the solving; but thou mayest, for the spirit of [the] holy gods is in thee.

<sup>19</sup> Then Daniel, to whom the name was Belteshazzar, began to think privily within himself, as in one hour; and his thoughts disturbed him. Forsooth the king answered, and said, Belteshazzar, the dream and the interpreting thereof, disturb not thee. Belteshazzar answered, and said, my lord, the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpreting thereof be to thine enemies.

<sup>20</sup> The tree which thou sawest high and strong, whose height stretched till to heaven, and the beholding thereof into each land?

<sup>21</sup> and the fairest branches thereof, and the fruit thereof full much, and the meat of all in it, and beasts of the field dwelling under it, and the birds of the air dwelling in the boughs thereof,

<sup>22</sup> thou art, king, that art magnified, and waxedest strong, and thy greatness increased, and came till to heaven, and thy power into the ends of all earth.

<sup>23</sup> Soothly that the king saw a watcher and holy come down from heaven, and say, Hew ye down the tree, and destroy ye it, nevertheless leave ye the seed of roots thereof in earth, and be he bound with iron and brass, in herbs withoutforth; and be he besprinkled with the dew of heaven, and his meat be with wild beasts, till seven times be changed on him;

<sup>24</sup> this is the interpreting of the sentence of the Highest, which sentence is come on my lord, the king.

<sup>25</sup> They shall cast thee out from men, and thy dwelling shall be with beasts and wild beasts, and thou shalt eat hay, as an ox doeth, but also thou shalt be beshed with the dew of heaven, also seven times shall be changed on thee, till thou know that [the] high God is Lord over the realm of men, and giveth it to whomever he will.

<sup>29</sup> After the end of twelve months he walked in the hall of the palace of Babylon;

<sup>30</sup> and the king answered, and said, whether this is not Babylon, the great city, which I build into the house of the realm, in the might of my strength, and in the glory of my fairness?

<sup>31</sup> When the word was yet in the mouth of the king, a voice fell down from heaven, Nebuchadnezzar, king, it is said to thee, Thy realm is passed from thee,

<sup>32</sup> and they shall cast thee out from men, and thy dwelling shall be with beasts and wild beasts; thou shalt eat hay, as an ox doeth, and seven times shall be changed on thee, till thou know that [the] high God is Lord in the realm of men, and giveth it to whomever he will.

<sup>33</sup> In the same hour the word was fulfilled [up] on Nebuchadnezzar, and he was cast out from men, and he ate hay, as an ox doeth, and his body was coloured with the dew of heaven, till his hairs waxed at the likeness of eagles' feathers, and his nails as the nails, [or claws], of birds.

<sup>34</sup> Therefore after the end of days, I, Nebuchadnezzar, raised mine eyes to heaven, and my wit was yielded to me; and I blessed the Highest, and I praised, and glorified him that liveth without end; for why his power is everlasting power, and his realm is in generation and into generation.

<sup>35</sup> And all the dwellers of earth be areckoned into nought at him; for by his will he doeth, both in the hosts of heaven, and in the dwellers of earth, and none is that against-standeth his hand, and saith to him, Why didest thou so?

<sup>36</sup> In that time my wit turned again to me, and I came fully to the honour and fairness of my realm, and my figure turned again to me; and my best men and my magistrates sought me, and I was set in my realm, and my great doing was increased even greater to me.

<sup>37</sup> Now therefore I Nebuchadnezzar praise, and magnify, and glorify the king of heaven; for all his works be true, and all his ways be dooms; and he may make meek, [or low], them that go in pride.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Years later, Belshazzar, the king, made a great feast to his best men a thousand, and each man drank after his age.

<sup>2</sup> Forsooth the king, then drunken, commanded that the golden and silveren vessels should be brought forth, which Nebuchadnezzar, his father*, had borne out of the temple that was in Jerusalem, that the king, and his best men, his wives, and his concubines, should drink in those vessels.

<sup>3</sup> Then the golden vessels and silveren, which he had borne out of the temple that was in Jerusalem, were brought forth; and the king, and his best men, and his wives, and his concubines, drank in those vessels.

<sup>4</sup> They drank wine, and praised their gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, and of iron, and of tree, and of stone.

<sup>5</sup> In the same hour fingers appeared, as of the hand of a man, writing over against the candlestick, in the plain part of the wall of the king's hall; and the king beheld the fingers of the hand that was writing.

<sup>6</sup> Then the face of the king was changed, and his thoughts disturbed him; and the jointures of his reins were loosed, and his knees were hurtled to themselves together.

<sup>7</sup> Therefore the king cried strongly, that they should bring in astronomers, Chaldees, and false diviners by look-ing of altars. And the king spake, and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whoever shall read this scripture, and maketh open the interpreting

---

* CHAPTER 5:2 There were several kings of Babylon between Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar. 'Father' may mean 'predecessor' or the name 'Nebuchadnezzar' may have been used for 'Nabonidus'. (Good News Bible) thereof to me, shall be clothed in purple, and he shall have a golden band in the neck, and he shall be the third in my realm.

<sup>8</sup> Then all the wise men of the king entered, and might not read the scripture, neither show to the king the interpreting thereof.

<sup>9</sup> Wherefore king Belshazzar was disturbed enough, and his cheer was changed, but also his best men were disturbed.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth the queen entered into the house of feast, for the thing that had befelled to the king, and his best men; and she spake, and said, King, live thou without end. Thy thoughts disturb not thee, and thy face be not changed.

<sup>11</sup> A man is in thy realm, that hath the spirit of holy gods in himself, and in the days of thy father knowing and wisdom were found in him; for why and Nebuchadnezzar, thy father, made him prince of astronomers, of enchant-ers, of Chaldees, and of false diviners by looking on altars; soothly thy father, thou king, did this;

<sup>12</sup> for [the] more spirit, and more prudent, and understanding, and interpreting of dreams, and showing of privates, and solving of bound things were found in him, that is, in Daniel, to whom the king putted the name Belteshazzar. Now therefore Daniel be called, and he shall tell the interpreting.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore Daniel was brought in before the king. To whom the fore-said king said, Art thou Daniel, of the sons of the captivity of Judah, whom my father, the king, brought from Judah?

<sup>14</sup> I have heard of thee, that thou hast in thee the spirit of gods, and more knowing, and understanding, and wisdom be found in thee.

<sup>15</sup> And now wise men, astronomers, entered in my sight, to read this scripture, and to show to me the interpreting thereof; and they might not say to me the understanding of this word.

<sup>16</sup> Certainly I have heard of thee, that thou mayest interpret dark things, and unbind bound things; therefore if thou mayest read the scripture, and show to me the interpreting thereof, thou shalt be clothed in purple, and thou shalt have a golden band about thy neck, and thou shalt be the third prince in my realm.

<sup>17</sup> To which things Daniel answered, and said before the king, Thy gifts be to thee, and give thou to another man the gifts of thine house; forsooth, king, I shall read the scripture to thee, and I shall show to thee the inter-pretng thereof.

<sup>18</sup> O! thou king, [the] highest God gave realm, and great worship, and glory, and honour, to Nebuchadnezzar, thy father.

<sup>19</sup> And for [the] great worship which he had given to that Nebuchadnezzar, all peoples, lineages, and languages, trembled and dreaded him; he killed which he would, and he smote which he would, and he enhanced which he would, and he made low which he would.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth when his heart was raised [up], and his spirit was made obstinate in pride, he was put down off the seat of his realm; and his glory was taken away,

<sup>21</sup> and he was cast out from the sons of men; but also his heart was set [or put] with beasts, and his dwelling was with wild asses; also he ate hay as an ox doeth, and his body was coloured with the dew of heaven, till he knew, that the Highest hath power in the realm of men, and he shall raise on it whomever he will.

<sup>22</sup> And thou, Belshazzar, the son of him, meekedest not thine heart, when thou knewest all these things;

<sup>23</sup> but thou were raised [up] against the Lord of heaven, and the vessels of his house were brought before thee, and thou, and thy best men, and thy wives, and thy concubines, drank wine in those vessels; and thou praisedest gods of silver, and of gold, and of brass, and of iron, and of tree, and of stone, that see not, neither hear, neither feel; certainly thou glorifiedest not God, that hath thy blast or breathe, and all thy ways in his hand.

<sup>24</sup> Therefore the finger of the hand was sent of him, which hand wrote this thing that is written.

<sup>26</sup> And this is the interpreting of the word. Mene, God hath numbered thy realm, and hath [ful] filled it;

<sup>27</sup> Tekel, thou art weighed in a balance, and thou art found having less;

<sup>29</sup> Then, for the king commanded, Daniel was clothed in purple, and a golden bie was given about his neck; and it was preached of him, that he had power, and was the third in the realm.

<sup>30</sup> In the same night, Belshazzar, the king of Chaldees, was slain;

<sup>31</sup> and Darius of Media or of Medes was successor to the realm, and he was two and sixty years eld.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> It pleased Darius, and he ordained sixscore dukes over the realm, that they should be in all his realm.

<sup>2</sup> And over them he ordained three princes, of which Daniel was one; that the dukes should yield reason to them, and that the king should not suffer any dis-ease.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore Daniel overcame all the princes and dukes, for [the] more spirit of God was in him. Certainly the king thought to ordain him on all the realm.

<sup>4</sup> Wherefore princes and dukes, either prefects, sought to find occasion to Daniel, of the side of the king; and they might find no cause and suspicion, for he was faithful, and no blame and suspicion was found in him.

<sup>5</sup> Therefore those men said, We shall not find any occasion to this Daniel, no but in hap in the law of his God.

<sup>6</sup> Then the princes and dukes made false suggestion to the king, and spake thus to him, King Darius, live thou without end.

<sup>7</sup> All the princes of thy realm, and magistrates, and dukes, senators, and judges, have made a counsel, that a decree and commandment of the emperor go out, that each man that asketh any asking of whatever god and man, till to thirty days, no but of thee, thou king, he be sent into the pit of lions.

<sup>8</sup> Now therefore, king, confirm thou the sentence, and write thou the decree, that this that is ordained of Medes and Persians be not changed, neither be it leaveful to any man to break.

<sup>10</sup> And when Daniel had found out this thing, that is, the law ordained, he entered into his house; and the while the windows were open in his solar against Jerusalem, in three times in the day he bowed his knees, and worshipped, and acknowledged before his God, as he was wont to do before.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore those men inquired full busily, and found Daniel praying, and beseeching his God.

<sup>12</sup> And they nighed and spake to the king of the commandment, King, whether thou ordainedest not, that each man that asked any asking of gods and of men, till to thirty days, no but of thee, thou king, he should be sent into the pit of lions? To which men the king answered, and said, The word is sooth, by the decree of Medes and Persians, which it is not leaveful to break.

<sup>13</sup> Then they answered, and said before the king, Daniel, of the sons of captivity of Judah, reckoned not of thy law, and of the commandment which thou ordainedest, but three times by the day he prayeth in his beseeching.

<sup>14</sup> And when the king had heard this word, he was sorry enough, and he setted the heart for Daniel, for to deliver him; and till to the going down of the sun he travailed for to deliver him.

<sup>15</sup> But those men understood the king, and said to him, Know thou, king, that it is the law of Medes and of Persians, that it is not leaveful that any decree be changed, which the king ordaineth.

<sup>16</sup> Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and sent him into the pit of lions. And the king said to Daniel, Thy God, whom thou worshippest ever[more], he shall deliver thee.

<sup>17</sup> And one stone was brought, and was put on the mouth of the pit, which the king asealed with his ring, and with the rings of his best men, lest anything were done against Daniel.

<sup>18</sup> Then the king went into his house, and slept without supper, and meats were not brought before him; further-more and sleep went away from him.

<sup>19</sup> Then the king rose in the first of the morrowtide, and went hastily to the pit of lions;

<sup>20</sup> and he nighed to the pit, and cried on Daniel with [a] weeping voice, and spake to him, Daniel, the servant of God living [or the living God], guessest thou, whether thy God, whom thou servest ever[more], might deliver thee from the lions?

<sup>21</sup> And Daniel answered the king, and said, King, live thou without end.

<sup>22</sup> My God sent his angel, and closed altogether the mouths of lions, and they annoyed not me, for rightfulness [or rightwiseness] is found in me before him; but also, thou king, I did no trespass before thee.

<sup>23</sup> Then the king made joy greatly on him, and commanded Daniel to be led out of the pit. And Daniel was led out of the pit, and none hurting was found in him, for he believed to his God.

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth the king commanded, and those men, that accused Daniel, were brought [forth], and were sent into the pit of lions, they, and the sons of them, and the wives of them; and they came not unto the pavement of the pit, till the lions ravished them, and all-brake all the bones of them.

<sup>25</sup> Then Darius, the king, wrote to all peoples, lineages, and languages, dwelling in all earth, Peace be multiplied to you.

<sup>26</sup> Therefore a decree is ordained of me, That in all mine empire and realm men tremble, and dread the God of Daniel; for he is God living [or living God], and everlasting into worlds, and his realm shall not be destroyed, and his power is till into without end.

<sup>27</sup> He is deliverer and saviour, making miracles and marvels in heaven and in earth, which delivered Daniel from the pit of lions.

<sup>28</sup> Certainly Daniel dwelled stably till to the realm of Darius, and till to the realm of Cyrus of Persia.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon, Daniel saw a sweven, either a dream. Forsooth he wrote the vision of his head in his bed, and the dream, and comprehended in short word;

<sup>2</sup> and he touched shortly the sentence, and said, I saw in my vision in night, and lo! four winds of heaven fought in the midst of the great sea.

<sup>3</sup> And four great beasts, diverse betwixt themselves, went up from the sea.

<sup>4</sup> The first beast was as a lioness, and had wings of an eagle. I beheld till the wings thereof were pulled away, and it was taken away from [the] earth, and it stood as a man on the feet, and the heart thereof was given to it.

<sup>5</sup> And lo! another beast, like a bear in part, stood, and three orders were in the mouth thereof, and three princes in the teeth thereof. And thus they said to it, Rise thou, eat thou full many fleshs.

<sup>6</sup> After these things I beheld, and lo! another beast as a leopard, and it had on itself four wings of a bird; and four heads were in the beast, and power was given to it.

<sup>7</sup> After these things I beheld in the vision of night, and lo! the fourth beast, fearedful, and wonderful, and full strong. It had great iron teeth, and it ate, and made less, and defouled with his feet other things; forsooth it was unlike other beasts, which I had seen before it, and it had ten horns.

<sup>8</sup> I beheld the horns, and lo! another little horn came forth of the midst of those, and three of the first horns were drawn out from the face thereof; and lo! eyes as eyes of a man were in this horn, and a mouth speaking great things.

<sup>9</sup> I beheld, till that thrones were set, and the Eld of days sat; his cloth was white as snow, and the hairs of his head were as clean wool; his throne was as flames of fire, his wheels were as fire kindled.

<sup>10</sup> A flood of fire and running fast went out from before his face; a thousand thousands ministered to him, and ten times a thousand times an hundred thousand stood nigh [to] him; the doom sat, and books were opened.

<sup>11</sup> I beheld for the voice of great words which that horn spake; and I saw that the beast was slain, and his body was perished, and was given to be burnt in fire.

<sup>12</sup> And I saw that the power of other beasts was taken away, and the times of life were ordained to them, till to time and time.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore I beheld in the vision of night, and lo! one as a son of man came with the clouds of heaven; and he came fully till to the Eld of days, and in the sight of him they offered him.

<sup>14</sup> And he gave to him power, and honour, and realm, and all the peoples, lineages, and languages shall serve him; his power is everlasting power, that shall not be taken away, and his realm, that shall not be corrupted.

<sup>15</sup> My spirit had horror, either hideousness; I, Daniel, was afeared in these things, and the sights of mine head disturbed me.

<sup>16</sup> I nighed to one of the standers nigh, and I asked of him the truth of all these things. And he said to me the interpreting of these words, and he taught me.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth holy men shall take the realm of highest God, and they shall hold the realm, till into the world, and unto the world of worlds.

<sup>19</sup> After these things I would learn diligently of the fourth beast, that was greatly unlike from all the others, and was full fearedful, the teeth and nails thereof were of iron; it ate, and made less, and defouled with his feet other things.

<sup>20</sup> And of ten horns which it had in the head, and of the tother horn that came forth, before which three horns fell down; and of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth speaking great things, and was greater than others;

<sup>21</sup> I beheld, and lo! that horn made battle against holy men, and had mastery of them,

<sup>22</sup> till the Eld of days came, and high God gave doom to holy men; and lo! time came, and holy men got realm.

<sup>23</sup> And he said thus, The fourth beast shall be the fourth realm in earth, that shall be more than all realms, and it shall devour all earth, and it shall defoul, and make less that earth.

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth ten horns shall be ten kings of that realm; and another king shall rise after them, and he shall be mightier than the former, and he shall make low three kings.

<sup>25</sup> And he shall speak words against the high God, and he shall defoul the saints of the Highest; and he shall guess, that he may change times and laws; and they shall be given into his hands, till to time, and times, and the half of time.

<sup>26</sup> And the doom shall sit, that the power be taken away, and be all-broken, and perish till into the end.

<sup>27</sup> Soothly that the realm, and power, and the greatness of realm, which is under each heaven, be given to the people of the saints of the Highest, whose realm is everlasting realm, and all kings shall serve, and obey to him.

<sup>28</sup> Hitherto is the end of the word. I, Daniel, was disturbed much in my thoughts, and my face was changed in me; forsooth I kept the word in mine heart.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> In the third year of the realm of Belshazzar, the king, a vision appeared to me. I, Daniel, after that thing that I had seen in the beginning,

<sup>2</sup> saw in my vision, when I was in the castle of Susa, which is in the country of Elam; soothly I saw in the vision that I was on the gate of Ulai.

<sup>3</sup> And I raised mine eyes, and I saw; and lo! one ram stood before the marsh, and had high horns, and one higher than the other, and under-waxing.

<sup>4</sup> Afterward I saw the ram winnow-ing with his horns against the east, and against the west, and against the north, and against the south; and all beasts might not against-stand it, neither be delivered from the hands of it. And it did by his will, and was magnified.

<sup>5</sup> And I understood. Lo! forsooth a buck of goats came from the west on the face of all earth, and touched not the earth; forsooth the buck of goats had a noble horn betwixt his eyes;

<sup>6</sup> and he came till to that horned ram, which I had seen standing before the gate, and he ran in the fierceness of his strength to that ram.

<sup>7</sup> And when he had nighed nigh the ram, he hurtled fiercely on him, and he smote the ram, and all-brake twain [or two] horns of him, and the ram might not against-stand him. And when he had sent that ram into [the] earth, he defouled [him]; and no man might deliver the ram from his hand.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth the buck of goats was made full great; and when he had increased, the great horn was broken, and four horns rised under it, by four winds of heaven.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth of one of them went out one little horn, and it was made great against the south, and against the east, and against the strength.

<sup>10</sup> And it was magnified till to the strength of heaven, and it casted down of the strength and of stars, and defouled those [or them].

<sup>11</sup> And he was magnified till to the prince of the strength, and he took away from him the continual sacrifice, and casted down the place of his hallowing.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth strength was given to him against the continual sacrifice for sins, and truth shall be cast down in earth; and he shall have prosperity, and shall do.

<sup>13</sup> And I heard one of [the] holy angels speaking; and one holy angel said to another, I know not to whom speaking, How long the vision, and the continual sacrifice, and the sin of desolation, [or discomfort], which is made, and the saintuary, and the host, shall be defouled?

<sup>14</sup> And he said to him, Till to the eventide and morrowtide, two thousand days and three hundred; and the saintuary shall be cleansed.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth it was done, when I, Daniel, saw the vision, and asked the understanding, lo! as the likeness of a man stood in my sight.

<sup>16</sup> And I heard the voice of a man betwixt the banks of the Ulai, and he cried, and said, Gabriel, make thou Daniel to understand this vision.

<sup>17</sup> And he came, and stood beside where I stood; and when he was come, I dreaded, and fell on my face. And he said to me, Thou, son of man, understand, for the vision shall be [ful] filled in the time of end.

<sup>18</sup> And when he spake to me, I slid down groveling, either flat to the earth. And he touched me, and setted me in my degree.

<sup>19</sup> And he said to me, I shall show to thee what things shall come in the last of cursing, for the time hath his end.

<sup>20</sup> The ram, whom thou sawest have horns, is the king of Medes and of Persians.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth the buck of goats is the king of Greeks; and the great horn that was betwixt his eyes, he is the first king.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth that when that horn was broken, four horns rised for it, four kings shall rise of the folk of him, but not in the strength of him.

<sup>23</sup> And after the realm of them, when wickednesses have increased, a king shall rise unshamefast in face, and understanding propositions, either reasons set forth;

<sup>24</sup> and his strength shall be made stalworthy, but not in his [own] strengths. And more than it may be believed, he shall waste all things, and he shall have prosperity, and shall do. And he shall slay strong men, and the people of saints,

<sup>25</sup> by his will, and guile shall be addressed in his hand. And he shall magnify his heart, and in abundance of all things, he shall slay full many men. And he shall rise against the prince of princes, and without hand he shall be all-broken.

<sup>26</sup> And the vision, which is said in the morrowtide and eventide, is true. Therefore seal thou the vision, for it shall be after many days.

<sup>27</sup> And I, Daniel, was astonied, and was sick by full many days; and when I had risen, I did the works of the king; and I was astonied at the vision, and none was, that interpreted, either expounded.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> In the first year of Darius, the son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of Medes, that was emperor on the realm of Chaldees,

<sup>2</sup> in the first year of his realm, I, Daniel, understood in books the number of years, of which number the word of the Lord was made to Jeremy, the prophet, that seventy years of desolation of Jerusalem should be [ful] filled.

<sup>3</sup> And I setted my face to my Lord God, to pray and beseech in fastings, in sackcloth, and ashes.

<sup>4</sup> And I prayed my Lord God, and I acknowledged, and said, I beseech, thou Lord God, great and fearedful, keeping covenant and mercy to them that love thee, and keep thy commandments.

<sup>5</sup> We have sinned, we have done wickedness, we did unfaithfully, and went away, and bowed away from thy commandments and dooms.

<sup>6</sup> We obeyed not to thy servants, prophets, that spake in thy name to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, and to all the people of the land.

<sup>7</sup> Lord, rightfulness [or rightwiseness] is to thee, forsooth shame of face is to us, as is today to a man of Judah, and to the dwellers of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, to these men that be nigh, and to these men that be afar in all lands, to which thou castedest them out for the wickednesses of them, in which, Lord, they sinned against thee.

<sup>8</sup> Shame of face is to us, to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, that sinned;

<sup>9</sup> but mercy and benignity is to thee, our Lord God. For we went away from thee,
<sup>10</sup> and heard not the voice of our Lord God, that we should go in the law of him, which he setted to us by his servants, prophets.

<sup>11</sup> And all Israel brake thy law, and bowed away, that they heard not thy voice; and cursing and loathing, which is written in the book of Moses, the servant of God, dropped on us, for we sinned to him.

<sup>12</sup> And he ordained his words, which he spake on us, and on our princes, that deemed us, that they should bring in on us great evil, what manner evil was never under all heaven, by that that is done in Jerusalem,

<sup>13</sup> as it is written in the law of Moses. All this evil came [up] on us, and, our Lord God, we prayed not thy face, that we should turn again from our wickednesses, and should think thy truth.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord waked on [his] malice, and brought it [up] on us; our Lord God is just in all his works which he made, for we heard not his voice.

<sup>15</sup> And now, our Lord God, that leddest thy people out of the land of Egypt in strong hand, and madest to thee a name by this day, we have sinned, we have done wickedness,

<sup>16</sup> Lord, against all thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness]. I beseech, thy wrath and thy strong vengeance be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, and from thy holy hill; for why for our sins, and for the wickednesses of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people be in shame, to all men by our compass.

<sup>17</sup> But now, our God, hear thou the prayer of thy servant, and the beseechings of him, and show thy face on thy saintuary, which is forsaken.

<sup>18</sup> My God, for thyself bow down thine ear, and hear; open thine eyes, and see our desolation, and the city, on which thy name is called to help. For not in our justifying we set forth meekly prayers before thy face, but in thy many merciful doings.

<sup>19</sup> Lord, hear thou; Lord, be thou pleased, perceive thou, and do; my Lord God, tarry thou not, for thyself, for thy name is called to help on the city, and on thy people.

<sup>20</sup> And when I spake yet, and prayed, and acknowledged my sins, and the sins of my people Israel, that I should set forth meekly my prayers in the sight of my God, for the holy hill of my God,

<sup>21</sup> the while I spake yet in my prayer, lo! the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in vision at the beginning, flew soon, and touched me in the time of eventide sacrifice;

<sup>22</sup> and he taught me, and he spake to me, and said, Daniel, now I went out, that I should teach thee, and thou shouldest understand.

<sup>23</sup> From the beginning of thy prayers a word went out. Forsooth I came to show to thee, for thou art a man of desires; therefore perceive thou the word, and understand thou the vision.

<sup>24</sup> Seventy weeks of years be abridged on thy people, and on thine holy city, that trespassing be ended, and sin take an end, and that wickedness be done away, and everlasting right-fulness [or rightwiseness] be brought, and that the vision and prophecy be [ful] filled, and the Holy Place of saints be anointed.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore know thou, and perceive; from the going out of the word that Jerusalem be builded again, till to Christ, the duke, shall be seven weeks of years and two and sixty weeks of years; and again the street shall be builded, and walls, in the anguish of times.

<sup>26</sup> And after two and sixty weeks of years Christ shall be slain. And it shall not be his people, that shall deny him. And the people with the duke to coming shall destroy the city, and the saintuary; and the end thereof shall be destroying, and after the end of battle shall be ordained desolation.

<sup>27</sup> Forsooth one week of years shall confirm the covenant to many men, and the offering and sacrifice shall fail in the midst of the week of years; and abomination of desolation shall be in the temple, and the desolation shall continue till to the performing and end.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> In the third year of the realm of Cyrus, king of Persians, a word was showed to Daniel, Belteshazzar by name; and a true word, and of great strength, and he understood the word; for why understanding is needful in vision.

<sup>2</sup> In those days I, Daniel, mourned by the days of three weeks;

<sup>3</sup> I ate not desirable bread, and flesh, and wine entered not into my mouth, but neither I was anointed with ointment, till the days of three weeks were [ful] filled.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth in the four and twentieth day of the first month, I was beside the great flood, which is Tigris.

<sup>5</sup> And I raised mine eyes, and I saw, and lo! one man was clothed with linen clothes, and his reins were girded with shining gold;

<sup>6</sup> and his body was as chrysolyte, and his face was as the likeness of lightning, and his eyes were as a burning lamp, and his arms and those things that were beneath till to the feet were as the likeness of brass being white, and the voice of his words was as the voice of a multitude.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth I, Daniel, alone saw the vision; certainly the men that were with me saw not, but full great fearedfulness fell in on them, and they fled into an hid place.

<sup>8</sup> But I was left alone, and I saw this great vision, and strength dwelled not in me; but also my likeness was changed in me, and I was stark, [or dried up, or withered], and I had not in me anything of strengths.

<sup>9</sup> And I heard the voice of his words, and I heard, and lay astonied on my face, and my face cleaved to the earth.

<sup>10</sup> And lo! an hand touched me, and raised me on my knees, and on the toes of my feet [or upon the fingers of mine hands].

<sup>11</sup> And he said to me, Thou, Daniel, a man of desires, understand the words which I speak to thee, and stand in thy degree; for now I am sent to thee. And when he had said this word to me, I stood quaking.

<sup>12</sup> And he said to me, Daniel, do not thou dread, for from the first day in which thou settedest thine heart to understand, that thou shouldest torment thee in the sight of thy God, thy words were heard, and I came for thy words.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth the prince of the realm of Persians against-stood me one and twenty days, and lo! Michael, one of the first princes, came into mine help, and I dwelled still there beside the king of Persians.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth I am come to teach thee, what things shall come to thy people in the last days; for yet the vision is delayed into days.

<sup>15</sup> And when he spake to me by such words, I casted down my cheer to the earth, and was still.

<sup>16</sup> And lo! as the likeness of the son of a man touched my lips; and I opened my mouth, and spake, and said to him that stood before me, My Lord, in thy sight my joints be unknit, and nothing of strengths dwelled in me.

<sup>17</sup> And how shall the servant of my Lord be able to speak with my Lord? nothing of strengths dwelled in me, but also my breath is closed betwixt, [or stopped].

<sup>18</sup> Therefore again the one as the sight of a man touched me, and comforted me,

<sup>19</sup> and said, Man of desires, do not thou dread; peace be to thee, be thou comforted, and be thou strong. And when he spake with me, I waxed strong, and said, My Lord, speak thou, for thou hast comforted me.

<sup>20</sup> And he said, Whether thou knowest not, why I came to thee? And now I shall turn again, to fight against the prince of Persians. For when I went out, the prince of Greeks appeared coming.

<sup>21</sup> Nevertheless I shall tell to thee that, that is expressed in the scripture of truth; and none is mine helper in all these things, no but Michael, your prince.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth from the first year of Darius of Media, I stood, that he should be comforted, and made strong.

<sup>2</sup> And now I shall tell to thee the truth. And lo! three kings shall stand yet in Persia, and the fourth shall be made rich with full many riches over all. And when he hath waxed strong by his riches, he shall raise all men against the realm of Greece.

<sup>3</sup> Forsooth a strong king shall rise, and shall be lord in great power, and shall do that, that shall please him.

<sup>4</sup> And when he shall stand, his realm shall be all-broken, and it shall be parted into four winds of heaven, but not into his heirs, neither by the power of him in which he was lord; for his realm shall be rent, yea, into strangers besides these.

<sup>5</sup> And the king of the south shall be comforted; and of the princes of him, one shall have power above him, and he shall be lord in power; for why his lordship shall be much.

<sup>6</sup> And after the end of years they shall be knit in peace; and the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north, to make friendship. And she shall not get strength of arm, neither the seed of her shall stand; and she shall be betaken, and the younglings of her that brought her, and he that comforted her in these times.

<sup>7</sup> And a planting of the seed of the roots of her shall stand; and he shall come with an host, and shall enter into the province of the king of the north, and he shall misuse them, and he shall get the victory;

<sup>8</sup> furthermore he shall get both the gods of them, and graven images. And he shall lead into Egypt [the] precious vessels of gold, and of silver, taken in battle. He shall have the mastery against the king of the north;

<sup>9</sup> and the king of the south shall enter into the realm, and shall turn again to his land.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth the sons of him shall be stirred to wrath, and they shall gather together a multitude of full many coasts. And he shall come hasting and flowing, and he shall turn again, and shall be stirred, and shall begin battle with his stronghold.

<sup>11</sup> And the king of the south shall be stirred [to wrath], and shall go out, and shall fight against the king of the north, and shall make ready a full great multitude; and the multitude shall be given into his hand.

<sup>12</sup> And he shall take the multitude, and his heart shall be enhanced; and he shall cast down many thousands, but he shall not have the mastery.

<sup>13</sup> For the king of the north shall turn again, and shall make ready a multitude, much more than before; and in the end of times and of years he shall come hasting with a full great host, and with full many riches.

<sup>14</sup> And in those times many men shall rise together against the king of the south; and the sons of trespassers of thy people shall be enhanced, that they [ful] fill the vision, and they shall fall down.

<sup>15</sup> And the king of the north shall come, and shall bear together [heaps of] earth, and he shall take strongest cities; and the arms of the south shall not sustain. And the chosen men thereof shall rise together, to against-stand, and their strength shall not be enough.

<sup>16</sup> And he shall come [up] on him, and shall do by his will; and none shall be that shall stand against his face. And he shall stand in the noble land, and it shall be wasted in his hand.

<sup>17</sup> And he shall set his face, that he come to hold all the realm of him, and he shall do rightful things with him. And he shall give to him the daughter of women, to destroy him; and it shall not stand, and it shall not be his.

<sup>18</sup> And he shall turn his face to isles, and shall take many isles. And he shall make cease the prince of his shame, and his shame shall turn again into him.

<sup>19</sup> And he shall turn his face to the lordship of his land, and he shall stumble, and fall down, and he shall not be found.

<sup>20</sup> And the vilest and unworthy to the king's honour shall stand in the place of him, and in few days he shall be all-broken, not in strong vengeance, neither in battle.

<sup>21</sup> And a despised man shall stand in the place of him, and the honour of a king shall not be given to him; and he shall come privily, and he shall get the realm by guile.

<sup>22</sup> And the arms [or armies] of the fighter shall be overcome of his face, and shall be all-broken, furthermore and the duke of bond of peace.

<sup>23</sup> And after friendship with him, he shall do guile. And he shall ascend [or go up], and shall overcome with little or few people;

<sup>24</sup> and he shall enter into great and rich cities, and he shall do things which his fathers, and the fathers of his fathers, did not. He shall destroy the ravens, and prey, and riches of them, and against most steadfast thoughts he shall take counsel, and this till to a time.

<sup>25</sup> And the strength of him, and the heart of him shall be stirred against the king of the south with a great host. And the king of the south shall be stirred to battle with many helps and full strong; and they shall not stand, for they shall take counsels against him.

<sup>26</sup> And they that eat bread with him shall all-break him; and his host shall be oppressed, and full many men of his shall be slain, and fall down.

<sup>27</sup> And the heart of two kings shall be, that they do evil, and at one board they shall speak leasing, and they shall not profit; for yet the end shall be into another time.

<sup>28</sup> And he shall turn again into his land with many riches, and his heart shall be against the holy testament, and he shall do, and shall turn again into his land.

<sup>29</sup> In time ordained he shall turn again, and shall come to the south, and the last shall not be like the former.

<sup>30</sup> And ships with three orders of oars, and Romans, shall come [up] on him, and he shall be smitten. And he shall turn again, and shall have indignation against the testament of the saintuary, and he shall do. And he shall turn again, and he shall think against them that forsook the testament of the saintuary.

<sup>31</sup> And [the] arms or armies of him shall stand, and shall defoul the saintuary of strength, and shall take away the continual sacrifice, and shall give abomination into desolation.

<sup>32</sup> And wicked men shall feign the testament guilefully; but the people that knoweth their God shall hold, and do.

<sup>33</sup> And taught men in the people shall teach full many men, and shall fall in sword, and in flame, and into captivity, and into raven of days.

<sup>34</sup> And when they have fallen down, they shall be raised [up] by a little help; and full many men shall be applied or joined to them guilefully.

<sup>35</sup> And some of learned men shall fall, that they be welled together, and be chosen, and be made white till to a time determined; for yet another time shall be.

<sup>36</sup> And the king shall do by his will, and he shall be raised [up], and magnified against each god, and against God of gods he shall speak great things; and he shall be addressed, till wrathfulness [or wrath] be [ful] filled. For the determining is perfectly made.

<sup>37</sup> And he shall not areckon with the God of his fathers, and he shall be in the covetousness of women, and he shall not charge [or reckon] any of gods, for he shall rise against all things.

<sup>38</sup> Forsooth he shall honour god of Maozim in his place, and he shall worship a god, whom his fathers knew not, with gold, and silver, and precious stone, and precious things.

<sup>39</sup> And he shall do that he make strong Maozim, with the alien god which he knew. And he shall multiply glory, and shall give power to them in many things; and shall part the land at his will.

<sup>40</sup> And in the time determined the king of the south shall fight against him, and the king of the north shall come as a tempest against him, in chariots, and with knights, and in great navy. And he shall enter into lands, and shall defoul them; and he shall pass forth,

<sup>41</sup> and shall enter into the glorious land, and many shall fall. Forsooth these lands alone shall be saved from his hand, Edom, and Moab, and [the] princes of the sons of Ammon.

<sup>42</sup> And he shall send his hand into lands, and the land of Egypt shall not escape.

<sup>43</sup> And he shall be lord of treasures of gold, and of silver, and in all precious things of Egypt; also he shall pass by Libya and Ethiopia.

<sup>44</sup> And fame or news from the east and from the north shall disturb him; and he shall come with a great multitude to all-break, and to slay full many men.

<sup>45</sup> And he shall set his tabernacles in Apadno, betwixt the seas, on the noble hill and holy; and he shall come till to the height thereof, and no man shall help him.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth in that time Michael, the great prince, shall rise, that standeth for the sons of thy people. And time of trouble shall come, what manner time was not, from that time from which folks began to be, till to that time. And in that time thy people shall be saved, each that is found written in the book of life.

<sup>2</sup> And many of them that sleep in the dust of earth, shall awake fully, some into everlasting life, and others into shame, that they see ever[more].

<sup>3</sup> Forsooth they that be taught, [or wise], shall shine as the shining of the firmament, and they that teach many men to rightfulness [or rightwiseness], shall shine as stars into everlasting everlastingnesses.

<sup>4</sup> But thou, Daniel, close the words, and aseal the book, till to the time ordained; full many men shall pass, and knowing shall be manyfold.

<sup>5</sup> And I, Daniel, saw, and lo! As twain [or two] other men stood; one stood on this side, on the brink of the flood, and another on that side, on the tother part of the flood.

<sup>6</sup> And I said to the man that was clothed in linen clothes that stood on the waters of the flood, how long shall be until the end of these marvels?

<sup>7</sup> And I heard the man, that was clothed in linen clothes, that stood on the waters of the flood, when he had raised his right hand and left hand to heaven, and had sworn by him that liveth without end, For into a time, and times, and the half of time. And when the scattering of the hand of the holy people is [ful] filled, all these things shall be filled [or ended].

<sup>8</sup> And I heard, and understood not; and I said, my lord, what shall be after these things?

<sup>9</sup> And he said, Go thou, Daniel, for the words be closed and asealed, till to the time determined.

<sup>10</sup> Many men shall be chosen, and shall be made white, and shall be proved, as by fire, and wicked men shall do wickedly, neither all wicked men shall understand; certainly taught men shall understand.

<sup>11</sup> And from the time when continual sacrifice is taken away, and abomination is set into discomfort, shall be a thousand days two hundred and ninety.

<sup>12</sup> He is blessed that abideth, and cometh fully, to a thousand days three hundred and five and thirty.

<sup>13</sup> But go thou, Daniel, to the time determined; and thou shalt rest, and stand in thy part, in the end of days.

HOSEA

<sup>1</sup> The word of the Lord that was made to Hosea, the son of Beerī, in the days of Uzziah*, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, son of Jehoash†, the king of Israel.

<sup>2</sup> The beginning of the speaking to the Lord in Hosea. And the Lord said to Hosea, Go thou, take to thee a wife of fornications, and make to thee sons of fornications, for the land doing fornication shall do fornication, going away from the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> And he went, and took Gomer, the daughter of Diblaim; and she conceived, and childed a son to him.

<sup>4</sup> And the Lord said to him, Call thou the name of him Jezreel; for yet a little, and I shall visit the blood of Jezreel on the house of Jehu, and I shall make to rest the realm of the house of Israel.

<sup>5</sup> And in that day, I shall all-break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.

<sup>6</sup> And she conceived yet, and childed a daughter. And the Lord said to him, Call thou the name of her Without mercy, for I shall no more lay to, for to have mercy on the house of Israel, but by forgetting I shall forget them.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall have mercy on the house of Judah, and I shall save them in their Lord God; and I shall not save them in bow, and sword, and battle, and in horses, and in horsemen, either knights.

<sup>8</sup> And she weaned her that was Without mercy. And she conceived, and childed a son to him.

<sup>9</sup> And he said, Call thou his name Not my people, for ye shall not be my people, and I shall not be your God.

<sup>10</sup> And the number of the sons of Israel shall be as gravel of the sea, which gravel is without measure, and it shall not be numbered; and it shall be in the place, where it shall be said to them, Ye be not my people; it shall be said to them, Ye be the sons of God living.

<sup>11</sup> And the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel shall be gathered together, and they shall set one head to themselves, and they shall go up from the earth, for the day of Jezreel is great.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Say ye to your brethren, They be my people; and to your sisters, That that hath gotten mercy,

<sup>2</sup> Deem ye your mother, deem ye, for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband. Do she away her fornications from her face, and her adulteries from the midst of her breasts;

<sup>3</sup> lest peradventure I spoil her naked, and set her naked by the day of her nativity [or of her birth]. And I shall set [or put] her as a wilderness, and I shall ordain her as a land without a way, and I shall slay her in thirst.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall not have mercy on the sons of her, for they be the sons of fornications;

<sup>5</sup> for the mother of them did forni-cation, she is shamed that conceived them, for she said, I shall go after my lovers, that give [my] loaves to me, and my waters, and my wool, and my flax, and mine oil, and my drink.

<sup>6</sup> For this thing, lo! I shall hedge thy way with thorns, and I shall hedge it with a wall, and she shall not find her paths.

---

* CHAPTER 1:1 Also known as Azariah. † CHAPTER 1:1 Also known as Joash.

<sup>7</sup> And she shall follow her lovers, and shall not overtake them, and she shall seek them, and shall not find [them]; and she shall say, I shall go, and turn again to my former husband, for it was well to me then more than now.

<sup>8</sup> And this Jerusalem knew not, that I gave to her wheat, wine, and oil; and I multiplied silver and gold to her, of which they made offering to Baal.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore I shall turn, and take my wheat in his time, and my wine in his time; and I shall deliver my wool, and my flax, by which they covered the shame thereof.

<sup>10</sup> And now I shall show the folly of her before the eyes of her lovers, and a man shall not deliver her from mine hand;

<sup>11</sup> and I shall make to cease all the joy thereof, the solemnity thereof, the new moon thereof, that is, the feast of the new moon, the sabbath thereof, and all the feast times thereof.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall destroy the vinery [or the vineyard] thereof, [and her fig tree], of which she said, These be mine hires or wages which my lovers gave to me; and I shall set [or put] it into a forest, and a beast of the field shall eat it.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall visit on it**for* the days of Baalim, in which it burnt incense, and was adorned with her earrings, and her brooch, and went after her lovers, and forgot me, saith the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> For this thing lo! I shall give milk to it, and I shall bring it into wilder-ness, and I shall speak to the heart thereof.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall give to it vine-tillers thereof of the same place, and the valley of Achor, that is, of troubling, for to open hope. And it shall sing there by the days of her youth, and by the days of her ascending or going up from the land of Egypt.

<sup>16</sup> And it shall be in that day, saith the Lord, she shall call me Mine husband, and she shall no more call me Baali;

<sup>17</sup> and I shall take away the names of Baalim from her mouth, and she shall no more have mind of the names of those.

<sup>18</sup> And I shall smite to them a bond of peace in that day, with the beast of the field, and with the bird of the air, and with the creeping beast of the earth. And I shall all-break bow, and sword, and battle from [the] earth; and I shall make them to sleep trustily.

<sup>19</sup> And I shall spouse thee to me without end; and I shall spouse thee to me in rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and in doom, and in mercy, and in merciful doings.

<sup>20</sup> And I shall spouse thee to me in faith; and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.

<sup>21</sup> And it shall be, in that day I shall hear, saith the Lord, and I shall hear heavens, and those shall hear the earth;

<sup>22</sup> and the earth shall hear wheat, and wine, and oil, and these shall hear Jezreel.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall sow it to me into a land, and I shall have mercy on it that was without mercy. And I shall say to that, that is not my people, Thou art my people, and it shall say, Thou art my God.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And the Lord said to me, Yet go thou, and love a woman loved of a friend, and a woman adulteress, as the Lord loveth the sons of Israel; and they behold to alien gods, and love the dregs of grapes.

<sup>2</sup> And I delved it to me by fifteen pence, and by a cor of barley, and by half a cor of barley.

<sup>3</sup> And I said to it, By many days thou shalt abide me; thou shalt not do fornication, and thou shalt not be with an husband, but also I shall abide thee.

* CHAPTER 2:13 In Chapters 2 and 3 of Hosea, where the "Later Version" uses 'it' and 'thereof', the "Early Version" and other translations use 'she' and 'her'.

<sup>4</sup> For by many days the sons of Israel shall sit without king, without prince, and without sacrifice, and without altar, and without priest's cloth, and without teraphim, that is, images.

<sup>5</sup> And after these things the sons of Israel shall turn again, and shall seek their Lord God, and David, their king; and they shall dread at the Lord, and at the good of him, in the last days.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Sons of Israel, hear ye the word of the Lord, for why doom is to the Lord with the dwellers of earth; for why truth is not, and mercy is not, and knowing of the Lord is not in earth.

<sup>2</sup> Curse, and leasing, and man-quelling, and theft, and adultery flowed, and blood touched blood.

<sup>3</sup> For this thing the earth shall mourn, and each that dwelleth in that land shall be sick, in the beast of the field, and in the bird of the air; but also the fishes of the sea shall be gathered together.

<sup>4</sup> Nevertheless each man deem not, and a man be not reproved; for thy people is as they that against-say the priest.

<sup>5</sup> And thou shalt fall today, and the prophet also shall fall with thee; in the night I made thy mother to be still.

<sup>6</sup> My people was still, for it had not knowing; for thou hast put away knowing, I shall put thee away, that thou use not priesthood to me; and for thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, also I shall forget thy sons.

<sup>7</sup> By the multitude of them, so they sinned against me. I shall change the glory of them into shame.

<sup>8</sup> They shall eat the sins of my people, and they shall raise the souls of them to the wickedness of them.

<sup>9</sup> And it shall be, as the people, so the priest; and I shall visit on him the ways of him, and I shall yield to him the thoughts of him.

<sup>10</sup> And they shall eat, and they shall not be [ful] filled; they did fornication, and ceased not, for they forsook the Lord in not keeping his word.

<sup>11</sup> Fornication, and wine, and drunkenness do away the heart.

<sup>12</sup> My people asked in his tree, and the staff thereof told to it; for the spirit of fornication deceived them, and they did fornication, going away from their God.

<sup>13</sup> On the heads, either tops, of mountains they made sacrifice, and on the little hills they burnt incense under an oak, and a poplar, and a terebinth, for the shadow thereof was good. Therefore your daughters shall do fornication, and your wives shall be adulteresses.

<sup>14</sup> I shall not visit on your daughters, when they do fornication, and on your wives, when they do adultery; for they lived with whores, and made sacrifice with men turned into women's conditions. And the people that understandeth not, shall be beaten.

<sup>15</sup> If thou, Israel, doest fornication, namely Judah, trespass not; and do not ye enter into Gilgal, and go ye not into Bethaven, neither swear ye, The Lord liveth.

<sup>16</sup> For as a wild cow Israel bowed away; now the Lord shall feed them as a lamb in broadness.

<sup>18</sup> the feast of them is parted. By fornication they did fornication, the defenders thereof loved to bring shame.

---

* CHAPTER 4:17 Throughout Hosea (and also Isaiah), Ephraim is another name for the Northern Kingdom of Israel, consisting of the Ten Tribes.

<sup>19</sup> The spirit bound him in his wings, and they shall be ashamed of their sacrifices.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Priests, hear ye this, and the house of Israel, perceive ye, and the house of the king, hearken ye; for why doom is to you, for ye be made a snare to looking afar, and as a net spread abroad on Tabor.

<sup>2</sup> And ye bowed down sacrifices into depth; and I am the learner of all them.

<sup>3</sup> I know Ephraim, and Israel is not hid from me; for now Ephraim did fornication, Israel is defouled.

<sup>4</sup> They shall not give their thoughts that they turn again to their God; for the spirit of fornication is in the midst of them, and they knew not the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> And the boast of Israel shall answer into the face thereof, and Israel and Ephraim shall fall in their wickedness; also Judah shall fall with them.

<sup>6</sup> In their flocks and in their droves, they go to seek the Lord, and they shall not find; he is taken away from them.

<sup>7</sup> They trespassed against the Lord, for they engendered alien sons; now the month shall devour them with their parts.

<sup>8</sup> Sound ye with a clarion in Gibeah, with a trump in Ramah; yell ye in Bethaven, after thy back, Benjamin.

<sup>9</sup> Ephraim shall be into desolation, in the day of amending, and in the lineages of Israel I showed faith.

<sup>10</sup> The princes of Judah be made as those taking over the term; I shall shed out on them my wrath as water.

<sup>11</sup> Ephraim suffereth false challenge, and is broken by doom; for he began to go after filths.

<sup>12</sup> And I am as a moth to Ephraim, and as rot to the house of Judah.

<sup>13</sup> And Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah saw his bond. And Ephraim went to Assur, and sent to the king avenger. And he may not save you, neither he may unbind the bond from you.

<sup>14</sup> For I am as a lioness to Ephraim, and as a whelp of a lion to the house of Judah. I myself shall take, and go, and take away, and none is that shall deliver.

<sup>15</sup> I shall go, and turn again to my place, till ye fail, and seek my face. In their tribulation they shall rise early to me.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Come ye, and turn we again to the Lord; for he took, and shall heal us; he shall smite, and shall make us whole.

<sup>2</sup> He shall quicken us after two days, and in the third day he shall raise us, and we shall live in his sight.

<sup>3</sup> We shall know, and follow, that we know the Lord. His going out is made ready at the morrowtide, and he shall come as a rain to us, which is timeful and lateful to the earth.

<sup>4</sup> Ephraim, what shall I do to thee? Judah, what shall I do to thee? Your mercy is as a cloud of the morrow-tide, and as dew passing forth early.

<sup>5</sup> For this thing, I [have] hewed them in prophets, I killed them in the words of my mouth; and thy dooms shall go out as light.

<sup>6</sup> For I would or desire mercy, and not sacrifice, and I would the knowing of God, more than burnt sacrifices.

<sup>7</sup> But they as Adam brake the covenant; there they trespassed against me.

<sup>8</sup> Gilead, the city of them that work idol, is supplanted with blood;

<sup>9</sup> and as the cheeks of men that be thieves. So be the partners of priests slaying in the way men going from Shechem, for they wrought great trespass.

<sup>10</sup> In the house of Israel I saw an horrible thing; there the fornications of Ephraim. Israel is defouled;

<sup>11</sup> but also thou, Judah, set [the] harvest to thee, when I shall turn the captivity of my people.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> When I would heal Israel, the wickedness of Ephraim was showed, and the malice of Samaria was showed, for they wrought leasing. And a night thief entered, and robbed; a day thief was withoutforth.

<sup>2</sup> And lest they say in their hearts, that I have mind on all the malice of them, now their findings have encom-passed them, those be made before my face.

<sup>4</sup> All that do adultery, be as an oven made hot of a baker. The city rested a little from the meddling [or mingling together] of sourdough, till all was made sour.

<sup>5</sup> The day of our king, the princes began to be wild of wine; he stretched forth his hand with scorners.

<sup>6</sup> For they applied or made ready their heart as an oven, when he setted treason to them. All the night he slept while baking them; in the morrowtide he was made hot, as the fire of flame.

<sup>7</sup> All were made hot as an oven, and they devoured their judges. All the kings of them fell down, and none is among them that crieth to me.

<sup>8</sup> Ephraim himself was meddled [or mingled together] among peoples; Ephraim was made a loaf baken under ashes, which is not turned again.

<sup>9</sup> Aliens ate the strength of him, and he knew not; but also hoar hairs were shed out in him, and he knew not.

<sup>10</sup> And the pride of Israel shall be made low in the face thereof; they turned not again to their Lord God, and they sought not him in all these things.

<sup>11</sup> And Ephraim was made like to a culver deceived, not having heart. They called Egypt to help, they went to Assyrians.

<sup>12</sup> And when they be gone forth, I shall spread abroad on them my net, I shall draw them down as a bird of the air. I shall beat them, by the hearing of the company of them.

<sup>13</sup> Woe to them for they went away from me; they shall be destroyed, for they trespassed against me. And I again-bought them, and they spake leasings against me.

<sup>14</sup> And they cried not to me in their heart, but yelled in their beds. They chewed cud on wheat, and wine, and they went away from me.

<sup>15</sup> And I taught, and comforted the arms of them, and they thought malice against me.

<sup>16</sup> They turned again, that they should be without yoke; they be made as a guileful bow. The princes of them shall fall down by sword for the strong vengeance of their tongue; this is the scorning of them in the land of Egypt.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> A trump be in thy throat, as an eagle on the house of the Lord; for that that they went over my bond of peace, and brake my law.

<sup>2</sup> They called me to help, A! my God, we Israel have known thee.

<sup>4</sup> They reigned, and not of me; they were princes, and I knew not. They made their gold and silver into idols to them, that they should perish.

<sup>5</sup> A! Samaria, thy calf is cast away; my strong vengeance is wroth against them. How long may they not be cleansed?

<sup>6</sup> for also it is of Israel. A craftsman made it, and it is not a god; for the calf of Samaria shall be into webs of araneida or spiders.

<sup>7</sup> For they shall sow wind, and they shall reap whirlwind. A stalk standing up is not in them, the seed shall not make meal; that if also it maketh meal, aliens shall eat it.

<sup>8</sup> Israel is devoured; now Israel is made as an unclean vessel among nations,

<sup>9</sup> for they ascended or went up to Assur. Ephraim is a wild ass, solitary to himself. They gave gifts to [their] lovers;

<sup>10</sup> but also with meed they hired nations. Now I shall gather them together, and they shall rest a little from burden of the king and of princes.

<sup>11</sup> For Ephraim multiplied altars to do sin, altars were made to him into trespass.

<sup>12</sup> I shall write to them my manyfold laws, that be areckoned as alien laws.

<sup>13</sup> They shall bring sacrifices, they shall offer, and eat flesh; and the Lord shall not receive those [for them]. Now he shall have mind on the wickednesses of them, and he shall visit the sins of them; they shall turn into Egypt.

<sup>14</sup> And Israel forgot his maker, and builded temples to his idols, and Judah multiplied strong cities; and I shall send fire into the cities of him, and it shall devour the houses of him.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>3</sup> They shall not dwell in the land of the Lord. Ephraim turned again in to Egypt, and ate defouled thing among Assyrians.

<sup>4</sup> They shall not offer wine to the Lord, and they shall not please him. The sacrifices of them be as bread of mourners; all that shall eat it shall be defouled. For the bread of them is to the life of them; they shall not enter into the house of the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> What shall ye do in the solemn day, in the day of the feast of the Lord?

<sup>6</sup> For lo! they be gone out from destroying. Egypt shall gather them together, Memphis shall bury them. A nettle shall inherit the desirable silver of them, a clote shall be in the tabernacles of them.

<sup>7</sup> Days of visitation be come, days of yielding be come. Know ye, that Israel is a fool, a mad prophet, a spiritual man, for the multitude of thy wickedness is also the multitude of madness.

<sup>8</sup> The beholder of Ephraim with my God is a prophet; a snare of falling is made now on all the ways of him, strong vengeance is in the house of his God.

<sup>9</sup> They sinned deeply, as in the days of Gibeah. The Lord shall have mind on the wickedness of them, and shall visit the sins of them.

<sup>10</sup> I found Israel as grapes in desert, I saw the fathers of them as the first apples of a fig tree, in the top thereof; but they entered to Baalpeor, and were alienated [away] in[to] confusion, and they were made abominable as those things which they loved.

<sup>11</sup> Ephraim as a bird flew away; the glory of them is of child-bearing, and of the womb, and of conceiving.

<sup>12</sup> That if they nurse their sons, I shall make them without children among men. But also woe to them, when I shall go away from them.

<sup>13</sup> I saw that Ephraim was as Tyre, founded in fairness; and Ephraim shall lead out his sons to the slayer.

<sup>14</sup> Lord, give thou to them; what shalt thou give to them? give thou to them a womb without children, and dry teats.

<sup>15</sup> All the wickednesses of them be in Gilgal, for there I had them hateful; for the malice of their findings. I shall cast them out of mine house; I shall not lay to, that I love them. All the princes of them go away from me.

<sup>16</sup> Ephraim is smitten, the root of them is dried up; they shall not make fruit. That though they engender, I shall slay the most loved things of their womb.

<sup>17</sup> My God shall cast them away, for they heard not him; and they shall be of unstable dwelling among nations.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Israel was a vine full of boughs, fruit was made even to him; by [or after] the multitude of his fruit he multiplied altars, by the plenty of his land he was plenteous, [or after the plenty of his land he was plenteous in simulacra, or false gods].

<sup>2</sup> In simulacra the heart of them is parted [or The heart of them is parted], now they shall perish. He shall break the simulacra of them, he shall rob [or spoil] the altars of them.

<sup>3</sup> For then they shall say, A king is not to us, for we dread[ed] not the Lord. And what shall a king do to us?

<sup>4</sup> Speak ye words of unprofitable vision, and ye shall smite bond of peace with leasing; and doom as bitterness shall burgeon on the furrows of the field.

<sup>5</sup> The dwellers of Samaria worship-ped the kine of Bethaven. For the people thereof mourned on that calf, and the keepers of the house thereof; they made full out joy on it in the glory thereof, for it passed from that people.

<sup>6</sup> For also it was borne to Assur, a gift to the king avenger. Confusion shall take Ephraim, and Israel shall be shamed in his will.

<sup>7</sup> Samaria made his king to pass as froth on the face of water.

<sup>8</sup> And the high things of idol, the sin of Israel, shall be lost. A clote and a briar shall ascend [or go up] on the altars of them. And they shall say to mountains, Cover ye us, and to little hills, Fall ye down on us.

<sup>9</sup> From the days of Gibeah Israel sinned; there they stood. Battle shall not overtake them in Gibeah, on the sons of wickedness.

<sup>10</sup> By my desire I shall chastise them; peoples shall be gathered together on them, when they shall be chastised for their two wickednesses.

<sup>11</sup> Ephraim is a cow calf, taught for to love threshing; and I went on the fairness of the neck thereof. I shall go upon Ephraim. Judah shall ear, and Jacob shall break furrows to himself.

<sup>12</sup> Sow ye to you righteousness [or rightwiseness] in truth, and reap ye in the mouth of mercy, and make ye new to you a field newly brought to tilth. Forsooth time is to seek the Lord, when he cometh, that shall teach you righteousness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>13</sup> Ye have eared unfaithfulness, ye have reaped wickedness, ye have eaten the corn of leasing. For thou trustedest in thy ways, and in the multitude of thy strong men.

<sup>14</sup> Noise shall rise in thy people, and all thy strongholds shall be destroyed; as Shalman was destroyed of the house of him, that took vengeance on Betharbel; in the day of battle, when the mother was hurtled down on the sons.

<sup>15</sup> So Bethel did to you, for the face of malice of your wickednesses. As the morrowtide passeth, the king of Israel shall pass forth.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> For Israel was a child, and I loved him; and from Egypt I called my son.

<sup>2</sup> They called them, so they went away from the face of them. They offered to Baalim, and made sacrifice to simulacra.

<sup>3</sup> And I as a nurse of Ephraim bare them in mine arms, and they knew not, that I kept them.

<sup>4</sup> I shall draw them in the ropes of Adam, in the bonds of charity. And I shall be to them as he that enhanceth the yoke on the cheeks of them; and I bowed down to him that he should eat.

<sup>5</sup> He shall not turn again into the land of Egypt. And Assur, he shall be king of him, for they would not turn again to me.

<sup>6</sup> A sword began in the cities thereof, and it shall waste the chosen men thereof, and shall eat the heads of them.

<sup>7</sup> And my people shall hang, at my coming again. But a yoke shall be put to them altogether, that shall not be taken away.

<sup>8</sup> How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? shall I defend thee, Israel? how shall I give thee up? As Admah I shall set thee; as Zeboiim. Mine heart is turned within me; my repentance is disturbed [or troubled] altogether.

<sup>9</sup> I shall not do the strong vengeance of my wrath. I shall not turn, to lose Ephraim; for I am God, and not man. I am Holy in the midst of thee, and I shall not enter into a city.

<sup>10</sup> They shall go after the Lord. He shall roar as a lion, for he shall roar, and the sons of the sea shall dread.

<sup>11</sup> And they shall fly away as a bird from Egypt, and as a culver from the land of Assyrians. And I shall set them in their houses, saith the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> Ephraim compassed me in denying, the house of Israel in guile. But Judah a witness went down with God, and with faithful saints.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Ephraim feedeth on the wind, and followeth heat. All day he multiplieth leasing, and destroying; and he made bond of peace with Assyrians, and bare oil into Egypt.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore the doom of the Lord is with Judah, and visiting is on Jacob; by the ways of him, and by the findings of him, he shall yield to him.

<sup>3</sup> In the womb he supplanted his brother, and in his strength he wrestled with the angel.

<sup>4</sup> And he was strong to the angel, and was comforted, [or And he had victory at the angel, and he was comforted]; he wept, and prayed to him; in Bethel he found him, and there he spake with us.

<sup>5</sup> And the Lord God of hosts, the Lord, is the memorial of him.

<sup>6</sup> And thou shalt turn to thy God. Keep thou mercy and doom, and hope thou ever[more] in thy God.

<sup>8</sup> And Ephraim said, Nevertheless I am made rich, I have found an idol to me; all my travails shall not find to me the wickedness, which I sinned.

<sup>9</sup> And I am thy Lord God from the land of Egypt; yet I shall make thee to sit in tabernacles, as in the days of feast.

<sup>10</sup> And I spake by prophets, and I multiplied vision, either prophesy, and I was likened in the hand of prophets.

<sup>11</sup> If Gilead worshippeth an idol, therefore they err in vain offering to oxes in Gilgal; for why and the altars of them shall be as heaps on the furrows of the field.

<sup>12</sup> Jacob fled into the country of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and served, either kept sheep for a wife.

<sup>13</sup> But by a prophet the Lord led Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet he was kept.

<sup>14</sup> Ephraim stirred me to wrathfulness in his bitteresses, and the blood of him shall come on him; and his Lord shall restore to him the shame of him.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> For Ephraim spake, hideousness assailed Israel; and he trespassed in Baal, and was dead.

<sup>2</sup> And now they added to do sin, and made to them a molten image of their silver, as the likeness of idols; all is the making of craftsmen. To these they say, A! ye men, offer, and worship calves.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore they shall be as a morrowtide cloud, and as the dew of morrowtide, that passeth forth, as dust ravished by whirlwind from the cornfloor, and as smoke of a chimney.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth I am thy Lord God from the land of Egypt; and thou shalt not know God, except me, and no saviour is, except me.

<sup>6</sup> By their pastures they were [ful] filled, and had abundance; they raised [up] their heart, and forgot me.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall be as a lioness to them, as a leopard in the way of Assyrians.

<sup>8</sup> I as a female bear, when the whelps be ravished, shall meet them; and shall all-break the inner things of the maw of them. And I as a lion shall waste them there; a beast of the field shall rend them.

<sup>9</sup> Israel, thy perdition is of thee; thine help is only of me.

<sup>10</sup> Where is thy king? mostly save he thee now in all thy cities; and where be thy judges, of which thou saidest, Give thou to me a king and princes?

<sup>11</sup> I shall give to thee a king in my strong vengeance, and I shall take away in mine indignation.

<sup>13</sup> The sorrows of a woman travailing of child shall come to him; he is a son not wise. For now he shall not stand in the defouling of sons.

<sup>14</sup> I shall deliver them from the hand of death, and I shall again-buy them from death. Thou death, I shall be thy death; thou hell, I shall be thy morsel. Comfort is hid from mine eyes, <sup>15</sup> for he shall part betwixt brethren. The Lord shall bring a burning wind, going up from desert; and it shall make dry the veins thereof, and it shall make desolate the wells thereof; and he shall ravish the treasure of each desirable vessel.

<sup>16</sup> Samaria perish, for it stirred his God to bitterness; perish it by sword. The little children of them be hurtled down, and the women with child thereof be carved.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> Israel, be thou turned again to thy Lord God, for thou fallest down in thy wickedness.

<sup>2</sup> Take ye words with you, and be ye turned again to the Lord; and say ye to him, Do thou away all wicked-ness, and take thou good; and we shall yield the calves of our lips.

<sup>3</sup> Assur shall not save us, we shall not go upon horse; and we shall no more say, Our gods be the works of our hands; for thou shalt have mercy on that motherless child, which is in thee.

<sup>4</sup> And the Lord saith, I shall make whole the sorrows of them; I shall love them willfully, for my strong vengeance is turned away from them. [I shall heal the contrition of them; I shall love them of my free will, for my strong vengeance is turned away from them.]

<sup>5</sup> I shall be as dew, and Israel shall burgeon as a lily. And the root thereof shall break out as of the Lebanon;

<sup>6</sup> the branches thereof shall go forth. And the glory thereof shall be as an olive tree, and the odour thereof shall be as of the Lebanon.

<sup>7</sup> They shall be turned again, and sit in the shadow of him; they shall live by wheat, and shall burgeon as a vine. The memorial thereof shall be as the wine of Lebanon.

<sup>8</sup> Ephraim, what shall idols do more to me? I shall hear him, and I shall address him as a green fir tree. Thy fruit is found of me.

<sup>9</sup> Who is wise, and shall understand these things? who is understanding, and shall know these things? For the ways of the Lord be rightful, and just men shall go in those [or them]; but trespassers shall fall in those [or them].

JOEL

<sup>2</sup> Eld [or old] men, hear ye this, and all dwellers of the land, perceive ye with ears. If this thing was done in your days, either in the days of your fathers.

<sup>3</sup> Of this thing tell ye to your sons, and your sons tell to their sons, and the sons of them tell to another generation.

<sup>4</sup> A locust ate the residue of a worm, and a bruchus ate the residue of a locust, and rust ate the residue of a bruchus.

<sup>5</sup> Drunken men, wake ye, and weep; and yell ye, all that drink wine in sweetness; for it perished from your mouth.

<sup>6</sup> For why a folk strong and unnumberable ascended [or went up] on my land. The teeth thereof be as the teeth of a lion, and the cheek teeth thereof be as of a whelp of a lion.

<sup>7</sup> It setted my vinery [or put my vineyard] into desert, and took away the rind of my fig tree. It made naked and spoiled that vinery, and casted forth; the branches thereof be made white.

<sup>8</sup> Wail thou, as a virgin girded with a sackcloth on the husband of her time of marriage.

<sup>9</sup> Sacrifice and moist sacrifice perished from the house of the Lord; and priests, the ministers of the Lord, mourned.

<sup>10</sup> The country is made bare of people. The earth mourned; for wheat is destroyed. Wine is shamed, and oil was sick, either failed.

<sup>11</sup> The earth-tillers be shamed, the vine-tillers yelled on wheat and barley; for the ripe corn of the field is perished.

<sup>12</sup> The vinery is shamed [or the vine-yard is confounded]; and the fig tree was sick. The pomegranate tree, and the palm tree, and the fir tree, and all the trees of the field dried up; for joy is shamed from the sons of men.

<sup>13</sup> Ye priests, gird you, and wail; ye ministers of the altar, yell. Ministers of my God, enter ye, lie ye in sackcloth; for why sacrifice and moist sacrifice perished from the house of your God.

<sup>14</sup> Hallow ye fasting, call ye the company, gather ye together eld [or old] men, and all dwellers of the earth, into the house of your God; and cry ye to the Lord,

<sup>15</sup> A! A! A! to the day; for the day of the Lord is nigh, and shall come as a tempest from the Almighty.

<sup>16</sup> Whether foods perished not before your eyes; gladness and full out joy perished from the house of your God?

<sup>18</sup> Why wailed a beast? why lowed the flocks of oxen and kine? for no pasture is to them; but also the flocks of sheep perished.

<sup>19</sup> Lord, I shall cry to thee, for fire ate the fair things of desert, and flame burnt all the trees of the country.

<sup>20</sup> But also beasts of the field, as a cornfloor thirsting rain, beheld [up] to thee; for the wells of waters be dried up, and fire devoured the fair things of desert.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Sing ye with a trump in Zion, yell ye in mine holy hill [or mountain]. All the dwellers of earth be disturbed [or troubled]; for the day of the Lord cometh,

<sup>2</sup> for the day of darkneses and of mist is nigh, the day of cloud and of whirlwind. These locusts be as the morrowtide spread abroad on hills, a much people and strong. None was like it from the beginning, and after it shall not be, till into years of generation and of generation.

<sup>3</sup> Before the face thereof shall be fire devouring, and after it shall be burning flame; as a garden of liking or Eden the land shall be before them, and wilderness of desert shall be after them, and none is that shall escape them.

<sup>4</sup> The looking of them shall be as the looking of horses; and as horsemen, so they shall run.

<sup>5</sup> As the sound of carts on the heads [or tops] of hills they shall skip; as the sound of the flame of fire devouring stubble, as a strong people made ready to battle.

<sup>6</sup> Peoples shall be tormented of the face thereof, all faces shall be as driven into a pot.

<sup>7</sup> As strong men they shall run, as men warriors they shall ascend on the wall. These men shall go in their ways, and they shall not bow away from their paths.

<sup>8</sup> Each man shall not make strait his brother, each man shall go in his own path; but also they shall fall down by windows, and shall not be hurt.

<sup>9</sup> They shall enter into the city, they shall run on the wall; they shall ascend on houses, they shall enter as a night thief by windows.

<sup>10</sup> The earth trembled of his face, heavens were moved, the sun and the moon were made dark, and stars withdrew their shining.

<sup>11</sup> And the Lord gave his voice before the face of his host, for his hosts be full many; for those be strong, and do the word of him. For the day of the Lord is great, and full fearedful, and who shall suffer it?

<sup>12</sup> Now therefore saith the Lord, Be ye turned again to me in all your heart, in fasting, and weeping, and wailing;

<sup>13</sup> and carve ye your hearts, and not your clothes, and be ye turned again to your Lord God, for he is benign, and merciful, patient, and of much mercy, and abiding, either forgiving, on malice.

<sup>14</sup> Who knoweth, if God be turned again, and forgive, and leave blessing after him? sacrifice and moist sacrifice to our Lord God.

<sup>17</sup> Priests, the ministers of the Lord, shall weep betwixt the porch and the altar, and shall say, Lord! spare thou, spare thy people, and give thou not thine heritage into shame, that nations be lords of them. Why say they among peoples, Where is the God of them?

<sup>19</sup> And the Lord answered, and said to his people, Lo! I shall send to you wheat, and wine, and oil, and ye shall be [ful] filled with those; and I shall no more give you to be a shame among heathen men.

<sup>20</sup> And I shall make him that is at the north far from you; and I shall cast him out into a land without way, and desert; his face against the east sea, and the last part thereof at the last sea; and the stink thereof shall ascend or go up, and the root thereof shall ascend [or go up], for he did proudly.

<sup>21</sup> Earth, do not thou dread, make thou full out joy, and be glad; for the Lord magnified that he should do.

<sup>22</sup> Beasts of the country, do not ye dread, for the fair things of desert burgeoned; for the tree brought his fruit, the fig tree and vinery [or the vineyard] gave their strength.

<sup>23</sup> And the sons of Zion, make ye full out joy, and be ye glad in your Lord God, for he gave to you a teacher of rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and he shall make morrowtide rain and eventide rain to come down to you, as in the beginning.

<sup>24</sup> And cornfloors shall be [full]-filled of wheat, and pressers shall flow with wine and oil.

<sup>25</sup> And I shall yield to you the years which the locust, bruchus, and rust, and wortworm, my great strength, ate, which I sent into you.

<sup>26</sup> And ye shall eat eating, and ye shall be [ful] filled; and ye shall praise the name of your Lord God, that made marvels with you; and my people shall not be shamed without end.

<sup>27</sup> And ye shall know, that I am in the midst of Israel; and I am your Lord God, and none is more; and my people shall not be shamed without end.

<sup>28</sup> And it shall be, after these things I shall shed [or pour] out my spirit on each man; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; your eld [or old] men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions.

<sup>29</sup> But also I shall shed [or pour] out my spirit on my servants, and hand-maids, in those days;

<sup>30</sup> and I shall give great wonders in heaven, and in earth, blood, and fire, and the heat of smoke.

<sup>31</sup> The sun shall be turned into darknesses, and the moon into blood, before that the great day and horrible of the Lord come.

<sup>32</sup> And it shall be, each that calleth to help the name of the Lord shall be safe; for why salvation, either saving, shall be in the hill of Zion and in Jerusalem, as the Lord said, and in the residue men, which the Lord calleth.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> For lo! in those days, and in that time, when I shall turn the captivity of Judah and of Jerusalem,

<sup>2</sup> I shall gather all folks, and I shall lead them [forth] into the valley of Jehoshaphat*; and I shall dispute there with them on my people, and mine heritage Israel, which they scattered among nations; and they parted my land, <sup>3</sup> and sent lot on my people; and they setted [or putted] a knave child in the bordel house, and sold a damsel for wine, that they should drink.

<sup>4</sup> But what to me and to you, thou Tyre, and Sidon, and each end of Palestine or Philistia? Whether ye shall yield avenging to me? and if ye venge you against me, soon swiftly I shall yield while to you onto your head.

<sup>5</sup> Ye took away my silver and gold, and ye brought my desirable things and fairest things into your temples of idols.

<sup>6</sup> And ye sold the sons of Judah, and the sons of Jerusalem, to the sons of Greeks, that ye should make them far from their coasts.

<sup>7</sup> Lo! I shall raise them from the place in which ye sold them; and I shall turn your yielding into your head.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall sell your sons and your daughters into the hands of the sons of Judah, and they shall sell them to Sabeans, a far-off folk, for the Lord spake.

<sup>9</sup> Cry ye this thing among heathen men, hallow ye battle, raise ye up strong men; all men warriors, nigheth, and ascend or goeth up.

<sup>10</sup> Beat ye together your plows† into swords, and your mattocks, either pickaxes, into spears; a feeble man say, that I am strong.

* CHAPTER 3:2 Also known as the Kidron Valley; it is the setting for the Last Judgement, and so it is also called the 'Valley of Doom'. † CHAPTER 3:10 In other writings, Wycliffe renders this word as 'plowghschares' ('plough/plowshares').

<sup>11</sup> All folks, break ye out, and come from compass about, and be ye gathered together; there the Lord shall make thy strong men to die.

<sup>12</sup> Folks rise together, and ascend or goeth up into the valley of Jehoshaphat; for I shall sit there, to deem all folks in compass.

<sup>13</sup> Send ye sickles, either scythes, for [the] ripe corn waxed; come ye, and go ye down, for the presser is full; pressers be plenteous, for the malice of them is multiplied.

<sup>14</sup> Peoples, peoples in the valley of cutting down [or the valley of concision, or slaying together]; for the day of the Lord is nigh in the valley of cutting down [or the valley of concision].

<sup>15</sup> The sun and the moon be made dark, and stars withdraw their shining.

<sup>16</sup> And the Lord shall roar from Zion, and shall give his voice from Jerusalem, and heavens and earth shall be moved; and the Lord is the hope of his people, and the strength of the sons of Israel.

<sup>17</sup> And ye shall know, that I am your Lord God, dwelling in Zion, in mine holy hill; and Jerusalem shall be holy, and aliens shall no more pass by it.

<sup>18</sup> And it shall be, in that day, mountains shall drop with sweetness, and little hills shall flow with milk, and waters shall go by all the rivers of Judah; and a well shall go out of the house of the Lord, and shall moist the strand of thorns.

<sup>19</sup> Egypt shall be into desolation, and Idumea into desert of perdition; for that that they did wickedly against the sons of Judah, and shedded out innocent blood in their land.

<sup>20</sup> And Judah shall be inhabited without end, and Jerusalem into generation and into generation.

<sup>21</sup> And I shall cleanse the blood of them, which I had not cleansed; and the Lord shall dwell in Zion.

AMOS

<sup>1</sup> The words of Amos be these, that was in the shepherds' things of Tekoa, which he saw on Israel, in the days of Uzziah, that is, Azariah, king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, son of Jehoash or Joash, king of Israel, before two years of the earth-moving.

<sup>2</sup> And he said, The Lord shall roar from Zion, and shall give his voice from Jerusalem; and the fair things of shepherds mourned, and the top of Carmel was made dry.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord saith these things, On three great trespasses of Damascus, and on four, I shall not convert it, for it threshed Gilead in iron wains.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall send fire into the house of Hazael, and it shall devour the houses of Benhadad.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall all-break the bars, [or locks], of Damascus, and I shall lose a dweller from the field of idol, and him that holdeth the sceptre from the house of lust and of lechery; and the people of Syria shall be translated to Kir, saith the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And the Lord saith these things, On three great trespasses of Gaza, and on four, I shall not convert it, for it translated perfect captivity, to enclose that altogether in Idumea.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall send fire into the wall of Gaza, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall lose the dwellers of Ashdod, and him that holdeth the sceptre of Ashkelon; and I shall turn mine hand on Ekron, and the remnants of Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord God.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord God saith these things, On three great trespasses of Tyre, and on four, I shall not convert it, for they enclosed altogether perfect captivity in Idumea, and had not mind on the bond of peace of brethren.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall send fire into the wall of Tyre, and it shall devour the houses thereof.

<sup>11</sup> The Lord saith these things, On three great trespasses of Edom, and on four, I shall not convert it, for it pursued by sword his brother, and defouled the mercy of him, and poured further his strong vengeance, and kept his indignation till into without end.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall send fire into Teman, and it shall devour the houses of Bozrah.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord saith these things, On three great trespasses of the sons of Ammon, and on four, I shall not convert him, for he carved the women with child of Gilead, for to alarge his term.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall kindle fire in the wall of Rabbah, and it shall devour the houses thereof, in yelling in the day of battle, and in whirlwind in the day of moving together.

<sup>15</sup> And Malcham shall go into captivity, he and his princes together, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> The Lord God saith these things, On three great trespasses of Moab, and on four, I shall not convert it, for it burnt the bones of the king of Idumea till to ashes.

<sup>2</sup> And I shall send fire into Moab, and it shall devour the houses of Kerioth; and Moab shall die in sound, in the noise of a trump.

<sup>3</sup> And I shall lose a judge of the midst thereof, and I shall slay with it all the princes thereof, saith the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord saith these things, On three great trespasses of Judah, and on four, I shall not convert him, for he hath cast away the law of the Lord, and kept not the commandments of him; for their idols, after which the fathers of them went, deceived them.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall send fire into Judah, and it shall devour the houses of Jerusalem.

<sup>6</sup> The Lord saith these things, On three great trespasses of Israel, and on four, I shall not convert him, for that that he sold a just man for silver, and a poor man for shoes.

<sup>7</sup> Which all-foul the heads of poor men on the dust of [the] earth, and bow away the way of meek men; and the son and his father went to a damsel, that they should defoul mine holy name.

<sup>8</sup> And they ate on clothes laid to wed beside each altar, and drank the wine of condemned men in the house of their God.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth I destroyed Amorite from the face of them, whose highness was the highness of cedars, and he was strong as an oak; and I all-brake the fruit of him above, and the roots of him beneath.

<sup>10</sup> I am, that made you to go up from the land of Egypt, and led you out in desert by forty years, that ye should wield the land of Amorite.

<sup>11</sup> And I raised of your sons into prophets, and Nazarites of your young men. Whether it is not so, ye sons of Israel? saith the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> And ye poured out wine to Nazarites, and commanded to prophets, and said, Prophecy ye not.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! I shall creak under you, as a wain charged with hay creaketh.

<sup>14</sup> And flight shall perish from a swift man, and a strong man shall not hold his strength, and a stalworthy man shall not save his life;

<sup>15</sup> and he that holdeth a bow shall not stand, and a swift man shall not be saved by his feet; and the rider of an horse shall not save his life,

<sup>16</sup> and a strong man of heart shall flee naked among strong men in that day, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Sons of Israel, hear ye the word which the Lord spake on you, and on all the kindred, which I led out of the land of Egypt, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Only I knew you of all the kindreds of earth; therefore I shall visit on you all your wickednesses.

<sup>3</sup> Whether twain [or two] shall go together, no but it accord to them?

<sup>4</sup> Whether a lion shall roar in a forest, no but he have prey? Whether the whelp of a lion shall give voice from his den, no but he take anything?

<sup>5</sup> Whether a bird shall fall into a snare of earth, without a fowler? Whether a snare shall be taken away from earth, before that it take something?

<sup>6</sup> Whether a trump shall sound in a city, and the people shall not dread? Whether evil shall be in a city, which evil the Lord shall not make?

<sup>7</sup> For the Lord God shall not make a word, no but he show his private plan to his servants prophets.

<sup>8</sup> A lion shall roar, who shall not dread? the Lord God spake, who shall not prophesy?

<sup>9</sup> Make ye heard in the houses of Ashdod, and in the houses of the land of Egypt; and say ye, Be ye gathered together on the hills of Samaria, and see ye many strong vengeance in the midst thereof, and them that suffer false challenge in the privy places thereof.

<sup>10</sup> And they could not or knew not how to do rightful [or right] thing, saith the Lord, and they treasured wickedness and raven in their houses.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore the Lord God saith these things, The land shall be troubled, and be encompassed; and thy strength shall be drawn down of thee, and thine houses shall be ravished [or robbed].

<sup>12</sup> The Lord saith these things, As if a shepherd ravisheth from the mouth of a lion twain [or two] hips, either the last thing of the ear, so the children of Israel shall be ravished, that dwell in Samaria, in the country of a bed, and in the bed of Damascus.

<sup>13</sup> Hear ye, and witness ye in the house of Jacob, saith the Lord God of hosts.

<sup>14</sup> For in the day, when I shall begin to visit the trespassings of Israel on him, I shall visit also on the altars of Bethel; and the horns of the altar shall be cut away, and shall fall down into the earth.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall smite the winter house with the summer house, and the houses of ivory shall perish, and many houses shall be destroyed, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Ye fat kine, that be in the mount of Samaria, hear this word; which make false challenge to needy men, and break poor men; which say to your lords, Bring ye, and we shall drink.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord God swore in his holy place, for lo! days shall come on you; and they shall raise you in shafts, and your remnants in boiling pots.

<sup>3</sup> And ye shall go out by the openings, one against another, and ye shall be cast forth into Harmon, saith the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> Come ye to Bethel, and do ye wickedly; to Gilgal, and multiply your trespassing; and offer ye early your sacrifices, in three days your tithes.

<sup>5</sup> And sacrifice ye praising of bread made sour, and call ye for willful offerings, and tell ye about them; for ye, sons of Israel, would so, saith the Lord God.

<sup>6</sup> Wherefore and I gave to you astonishing [or edging] of teeth in all your cities, and neediness [or need] of loaves in all your places; and ye turned not again to me, saith the Lord.

<sup>7</sup> Also I forbad rain from you, when three months were yet to coming, till to ripe corn; and I rained on one city, and on another city I rained not; one part was berained, and the part dried upon which I rained not.

<sup>8</sup> And twain [or two] and three cities came to one city, to drink water, and those were not [ful] filled; and ye came not again to me, saith the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> I smote you with burning wind, and with rust, either mildew, the multitude of your orchards, and of your vineries [or vineyards]; and a wortworm ate your olive places, and your fig places; and ye came not again to me, saith the Lord.

<sup>10</sup> I sent into you death as in the way of Egypt, I smote with sword your young men, till to the captivity of your horses, and I made the stink of your hosts to go up into your nostrils; and ye came not again to me, saith the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> I destroyed you, as God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye be made as a brand ravished out of burning; and ye turned not again to me, saith the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> Wherefore, thou Israel, I shall do these things to thee; but after that I shall do to thee these things, Israel, be made ready into against-coming of thy God.

<sup>13</sup> For lo! he formeth hills, and maketh wind, and telleth to man his speech; and he maketh a morrow mist, and goeth on high things of earth; the Lord God of hosts is the name of him.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Hear ye this word, for I raise on you a wailing. [Hear ye, house of Israel, this word, that I raise on you a wailing.]

<sup>2</sup> The house of Israel fell down, he shall not put to, that it rise again; the virgin of Israel is cast down into her land, none is that shall raise her. [The maiden of Israel fell down, she shall not put to, that she rise again; she is cast down into her earth, there is not that shall raise her up again.]

<sup>3</sup> For the Lord God saith these things, The city of which a thousand went out, an hundred shall be left therein; and of which an hundred went out, ten shall be left therein, in the house of Israel.

<sup>4</sup> For the Lord saith these things to the house of Israel, Seek ye me, and ye shall live;

<sup>5</sup> and do not ye seek Bethel, and do not ye enter into Gilgal, and ye shall not pass to Beersheba; for why Gilgal shall be led captive, and Bethel shall be unprofitable.

<sup>6</sup> Seek ye the Lord, and live ye, lest peradventure the house of Joseph be burnt as fire; and it shall devour Bethel, and there shall none be, that shall quench.

<sup>7</sup> Which convert doom into worm-wood, and forsake rightwiseness in the land,

<sup>8</sup> and forsake him that maketh Arcturus or Pleiades and Orion, and him that turneth darknesses into the morrowtide, and him that changeth day into night; which calleth waters of the sea, and poureth out them on the face of [the] earth; the Lord is name of him.

<sup>12</sup> For I knew your great trespasses many, and your strong sins; enemies of the rightwise man, taking a gift, and bearing down poor men in the gate.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore a prudent man shall be still in that time, for the time is evil.

<sup>14</sup> Seek ye good, and not evil, that ye live, and the Lord God of hosts shall be with you, as ye said.

<sup>15</sup> Hate ye evil, and love ye good, and ordain ye in the gate doom; if peradventure the Lord God of hosts have mercy on the remnants of Joseph.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the Lord God of hosts, having lordship, saith these things, Wailing shall be in all streets, and in all things that be withoutforth it shall be said, Woe! woe! and they shall call an earth-tiller to mourning, and them that know how to wail, to wailing.

<sup>17</sup> And wailing shall be in all ways, for I shall pass forth in the middle of thee, saith the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> Woe to them that desire the day of the Lord; whether to desire ye it to you? This day of the Lord shall be darknesses, and not light.

<sup>19</sup> As if a man run from the face of a lion, and a bear run to him; and he enter into the house, and lean with his hand on the wall, and a serpent dwelling in shadow bite him.

<sup>20</sup> Whether the day of the Lord shall not be darknesses, and not light; and mist, and not shining therein?

<sup>21</sup> I hated and casted away your feast days, and I shall not take the odour of your companies.

<sup>22</sup> That if ye offer to me your burnt sacrifices, and gifts, I shall not receive, and I shall not behold the avows of your fat things.

<sup>23</sup> Do thou away from me the noise of thy songs, and I shall not hear the songs of thine harp.

<sup>24</sup> And doom shall be showed as water, and rightwiseness as a strong stream.

<sup>25</sup> Whether ye offered to me hosts, and sacrifices in desert forty years, ye house of Israel?

<sup>26</sup> And ye have borne tabernacles to Moloch, your god, and image of your idols, the star of your god, which ye made to you.

<sup>27</sup> And I shall make you for to pass over Damascus, said the Lord; God of hosts is the name of him.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Woe to you, that be full of riches in Zion, and trust in the hill of Samaria, ye principal men, the heads of peoples, that go proudly to the house of Israel.

<sup>2</sup> Go ye into Calneh, and see ye, and go ye from thence into Hamath the great; and go ye down into Gath of Palestines, and to all the best realms of them, if their term be broader than your term.

<sup>3</sup> And ye be parted into the evil day, and nigh to the seat of wickedness;

<sup>4</sup> and ye sleep in beds of ivory, and do lechery in your beds; and ye eat a lamb of the flock, and calves of the middle of the drove;

<sup>5</sup> and ye sing at the voice of psaltery. As David they guessed them, for to have made instruments of song,

<sup>6</sup> and drink wine in vials; and with best ointment they were anointed; and in nothing they had compassion on the sorrow, either defouling, of Joseph.

<sup>7</sup> Wherefore now they shall pass in the head of men passing over, and the doing, or treason, of men doing lechery [or waxing jolly], shall be done away.

<sup>8</sup> The Lord God swore in his soul, saith the Lord God of hosts, I loathe the pride of Jacob, and I hate the houses of him, and I shall betake the city with his dwellers;

<sup>10</sup> And his neighbour shall take him, and shall burn him, that he bear out bones of the house. And he shall say to him, that is in the privy place of the house, Whether there is yet any with thee? And he shall answer, An end is. And he shall say to him, Be thou still, and think thou not on the name of the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> For lo! the Lord shall command, and shall smite the greater house with fallings, and the lesser house with carvings, either breakings.

<sup>12</sup> Whether horses may run in stones, either it may be eared with wild oxen? For ye turned doom into bitterness, and the fruit of rightwiseness into wormwood.

<sup>13</sup> And ye be glad in nought, and ye say, Whether not in our strength we took to us horns?

<sup>14</sup> Lo! I shall raise on you, the house of Israel, saith the Lord God of hosts, a folk; and it shall all-break you from the entry of Hamath unto the stream of desert.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> The Lord God showed these things to me; and lo! a maker of locusts in the beginning of burgeoning things of eventide rain, and lo! eventide rain after the clipper of the king.

<sup>2</sup> And it was done, when he had ended for to eat the herb of earth, I said, Lord God, I beseech, be thou merciful; who shall raise Jacob, for he is little?

<sup>3</sup> The Lord had mercy on this thing; It shall not be, said the Lord God.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord God showed to me these things; and lo! the Lord God shall call doom to fire, and it shall devour much depth of water, and it ate altogether a part.

<sup>5</sup> And I said, Lord God, I beseech, rest thou; who shall raise Jacob, for he is little?

<sup>6</sup> The Lord had mercy on this thing; But also and this thing shall not be, said the Lord God.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord God showed to me these things; and lo! the Lord standing on a wallargeted, or plastered, and in the hand of him was a trowel of a mason.

<sup>8</sup> And the Lord said to me, What seest thou, Amos? And I said, A trowel of a mason. And the Lord said, Lo! I shall put a trowel in the middle of my people Israel; I shall no more put to, for to over-lead it [or him];

<sup>9</sup> and the high things of idol shall be destroyed, and the hallowings of Israel shall be desolate; and I shall rise on the house of Jeroboam by sword.

<sup>10</sup> And Amaziah, priest of Bethel, sent to Jeroboam, king of Israel, and said, Amos rebelled against thee, in the middle of the house of Israel; the land may not sustain all his words.

<sup>11</sup> For Amos saith these things, Jeroboam shall die by sword, and Israel taken captive shall pass from his land.

<sup>12</sup> And Amaziah said to Amos, Thou that seest, go; flee thou into the land of Judah, and eat thou there thy bread; and there thou shalt prophesy.

<sup>13</sup> And thou shalt no more put to, that thou prophesy in Bethel, for it is the hallowing of the king, and is the house of the realm.

<sup>14</sup> And Amos answered, and said to Amaziah, I am not a prophet, and I am not [the] son of a prophet; but an herder of neat I am, and drawing up sycamores.

<sup>15</sup> And the Lord took me, when I followed the flock; and the Lord said to me, Go, and prophesy thou to my people Israel.

<sup>16</sup> And now hear thou the word of the Lord. Thou sayest, Thou shalt not prophesy on Israel, and thou shalt not drop thy word on the house of idol or of Isaac.

<sup>17</sup> For this thing the Lord saith these things, Thy wife shall do fornication in the city, and thy sons and thy daughters shall fall by sword, and thy land shall be meted with a little cord; and thou shalt die in a polluted land, and Israel taken captive shall pass from his land.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> The Lord God showed to me these things; and lo! an hook of apples.

<sup>2</sup> And the Lord said, What seest thou, Amos? And I said, An hook of apples or summer fruit*. And the Lord said to me, The end is come on my people Israel; I shall no more put to, that I pass by him.

<sup>3</sup> And the hinges, either twists, of the temple shall greatly sound in that day, saith the Lord God. Many men shall die, silence shall be cast forth in each place.

<sup>4</sup> Hear ye this thing, which all-break a poor man, and make needy men of the land for to fail;

<sup>5</sup> and ye say, When shall harvest pass, and we shall sell merchandises? and the sabbath, and we shall open our wheat again? that we make less the measure, and increase the shekel, and that we set privily guileful balances;

<sup>6</sup> that we wield for silver needy men, and poor men for shoes, and we sell out-castings of wheat?

<sup>7</sup> The Lord swore against the pride of Jacob, I shall not forget till to the end all the works of them.

<sup>8</sup> Whether on this thing, the earth shall not be moved altogether, and each dweller thereof shall mourn? And it shall go up as all the flood, and shall be cast out, and shall float away, as the strand of Egypt.

<sup>9</sup> And it shall be, saith the Lord, in that day the sun shall go down in midday, and I shall make the earth to be dark in the day of light.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall convert your feast days into mourning, and all your songs into wailing; and I shall bring in on each back of you a sackcloth, and on each head of you baldness; and I shall put it as the mourning of [an] one begotten son, and the last things thereof as a bitter day.

<sup>11</sup> Lo! the days come, saith the Lord [God], and I shall send out hunger into earth; not hunger of bread, neither thirst of water, but of hearing the word of God.

---

* CHAPTER 8:2 A play on the Hebrew words for 'summer (fruit)' and 'end', which sound similar.

<sup>12</sup> And they shall be moved altogether from the sea till to the sea, and from the north till to the east they shall compass about, seeking the word of the Lord, and they shall not find.

<sup>13</sup> In that day fair maidens shall fail, and young men, in thirst, <sup>14</sup> which swear in the trespass of Samaria, and say, Dan, thy god liveth, and the way of Beersheba liveth; and they shall fall, and they shall no more rise again.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> I saw the Lord standing on the altar, and he said, Smite thou the hinges, and the over-thresholds, either lintels, be moved altogether; for avarice is in the head of all, and I shall slay by sword the last of them; there shall no flight be to them, and he that shall flee of them, shall not be saved.

<sup>2</sup> If they shall go down till to hell, from thence mine hand shall lead out them; and if they shall ascend till to or go up unto heaven, from thence I shall draw them down.

<sup>3</sup> And if they shall be hid in the top of Carmel, from thence I seeking shall do them away; and if they shall hide themselves from mine eyes in the deepness of the sea, there I shall command a serpent, and it shall bite them, and devour them.

<sup>4</sup> And if they shall go away into captivity before their enemies, there I shall command to sword, and it shall slay them. And I shall put mine eyes on them into evil, and not into good.

<sup>5</sup> And the Lord God of hosts shall do these things, that toucheth earth, and it shall fail, and all men dwelling therein shall mourn; and it shall go up as each strand, and it shall float away as the flood of Egypt.

<sup>6</sup> He that buildeth his going up in heaven, shall do these things, and founded his burden on earth; which calleth waters of the sea, and poureth out them on the face of earth; the Lord is name of him.

<sup>7</sup> Whether not as the sons of Ethiopians ye be to me, the sons of Israel? saith the Lord God. Whether I made not Israel for to go up from the land of Egypt, and Palestines from Cappadocia, and Syrians from Kir?

<sup>8</sup> Lo! the eyes of the Lord God be on the realm sinning, and I shall all-break it from the face of [the] earth; nevertheless I all-breaking shall not all-break the house of Jacob, saith the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> For lo! I shall command, and shall shake together the house of Israel in all folks, as wheat is shaken together in a riddle, and a little stone shall not fall on the earth.

<sup>10</sup> All sinners of my people shall die by sword, which say, Evil shall not nigh, and shall not come on us.

<sup>11</sup> In that day I shall raise the tabernacle of David, that fell down, and I shall again-build openings of the walls thereof, and I shall restore the things that fell down; and I shall again-build it, as in old days,

<sup>12</sup> that they wield the remnants of Idumea, and all nations; for that my name is called to help on them, saith the Lord doing these things.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! days come, saith the Lord, and the earer shall overtake the reaper, and the treader, or stamper, of grapes shall overtake the man sowing seed; and mountains shall drop sweetness, and all small hills shall be tilled.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall convert the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build forsaken cities, and shall dwell; and shall plant vineyards, and they shall drink wine of them; and shall make gardens, and shall eat fruits of them.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall plant them on their land, and I shall no more draw out them of their land, which I gave to them, saith the Lord thy God.

OBADIAH

<sup>1</sup> [The] Vision of Obadiah. The Lord God saith these things to Edom. We heard an hearing of the Lord, and he sent a legate, either a messenger, to heathen men. Rise ye, and together rise we against him into battle.

<sup>2</sup> Lo! I gave thee little in heathen men, thou art full much worthy to be despised.

<sup>3</sup> The pride of thine heart enhanced thee, dwelling in the crazings of stones, araising thy seat. Which sayest in thine heart, Who shall draw me down into earth?

<sup>4</sup> Though thou shalt be raised as an eagle, and thou shalt put thy nest among stars, from thence I shall draw thee down, saith the Lord.

<sup>5</sup> If night thieves had entered to thee, if outlaws by night, how shouldest thou have been still? whether they should not have stolen things enough to them? If gatherers of grapes had entered to thee, whether they should have left namely raisins, or clusters, to thee?

<sup>7</sup> Till to the terms they sent out thee; and all men of thy covenant of peace scorned, either deceived, thee, men of thy peace waxed strong against thee; they that shall eat with thee, shall set ambush, either treasons, under thee; there is no prudence in him.

<sup>8</sup> Whether not in that day, saith the Lord, I shall lose the wise men of Idumea, and prudence of the mount of Esau?

<sup>9</sup> And thy strong men shall dread of midday, either south, that a man of the hill of Esau perish.

<sup>10</sup> For slaying and for wickedness against thy brother Jacob, confusion shall cover thee, and thou shalt perish without end.

<sup>11</sup> In the day when thou stoodest against him, when aliens took the host of him, and strangers entered into the gates of him, and sent lot on Jerusalem, thou were also as one of them.

<sup>12</sup> And thou shalt not despise in the day of thy brother, in the day of his pilgrimage, and thou shalt not be glad on the sons of Judah, in the day of perdition of them; and thou shalt not magnify thy mouth in the day of anguish,

<sup>13</sup> neither thou shalt enter into the gate of my people, in the day of falling of them; and thou shalt not despise in the evils of him, in the day of his destroying; and thou shalt not be sent out against his host, in the day of his destroying;

<sup>14</sup> neither thou shalt stand in the going out [of the ways], that thou slay them that fled; and thou shalt not enclose together the residues, either left men, of him, in the day of tribulation,

<sup>15</sup> for the day of the Lord is nigh on all heathen men. As thou hast done, it shall be done to thee; he shall convert thy yielding into thine head.

<sup>16</sup> For as ye drank on mine holy hill, all heathen men shall drink busily, and they shall drink, and they shall swallow up; and they shall be as if they be not.

<sup>17</sup> And salvation shall be in the hill of Zion, and it shall be holy; and the house of Jacob shall wield them which wielded them.

<sup>18</sup> And the house of Jacob shall be fire, and the house of Joseph shall be flame, and the house of Esau shall be stubble; and they shall be kindled in them, and they shall devour them; and remnants shall not be of the house of Esau, for the Lord spake,.

<sup>19</sup> And these that be at the south, shall inherit the hill of Esau; and they that be in the low fields, shall inherit Philistines; and they shall wield the country of Ephraim, and the country of Samaria; and Benjamin shall wield Gilead.

<sup>20</sup> And transmigration, either passing over, of this host of sons of Israel shall wield all places of Canaanites, till to Zarephath; and the transmigration of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, shall wield the cities of the south.

<sup>21</sup> And saviours shall ascend or go up into the hill of Zion, for to deem the hill of Esau, and a realm shall be to the Lord.

JONAH

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Jonah, the son of Amittai, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Rise thou, and go into Nineveh, the great city, and preach thou therein, for the malice thereof goeth up before me.

<sup>3</sup> And Jonah rose for to flee into Tarshish, from the face of the Lord. And he came down to Joppa, and found a ship going into Tarshish, and he gave ship-hire to them; and he went down into it, for to go with them into Tarshish, from the face of the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth the Lord sent a great wind into the sea, and a great tempest was made in the sea, and the ship was in peril for to be all-broken.

<sup>5</sup> And shipmen dreaded, and men cried to their god; and sent vessels, that were in the ship, into the sea, that it were made lighter of them. And Jonah went down into the inner things of the ship, and slept by a grievous sleep.

<sup>6</sup> And the governor came to him, and said to him, Why art thou cast down in sleep? rise thou, call thy God to help, if peradventure God again-think of us, and we perish not.

<sup>7</sup> And a man said to his fellows, Come ye, and cast we lots, and know we, why this evil is to us. And they cast lots, and lot fell on Jonah.

<sup>8</sup> And they said to him, Show thou to us, for cause of what thing this evil is to us; what is thy work, which is thy land, and whither goest thou, either of what people art thou?

<sup>9</sup> And he said to them, I am an Hebrew, and I dread the Lord God of heaven, that made the sea and the dry land.

<sup>10</sup> And the men dreaded with great dread, and said to him, Why didest thou this thing? for the men knew that he flew from the face of the Lord, for Jonah had showed to them.

<sup>11</sup> And they said to him, What shall we do to thee, and the sea shall cease from us? for the sea went, and waxed great on them.

<sup>12</sup> And he said to them, Take ye me, and throw or send me into the sea, and the sea shall cease from you; for I know, that for me this great tempest is on you.

<sup>13</sup> And the men rowed, for to turn again to the dry land, and they might not, for the sea went, and waxed great on them.

<sup>14</sup> And they cried to the Lord, and said, Lord, we beseech, that we perish not in the life of this man, and that thou give not on us innocent blood; for thou, Lord, didest as thou wouldest.

<sup>15</sup> And they took Jonah, and threw or sent into the sea; and the sea stood of his boiling.

<sup>16</sup> And the men dreaded the Lord with great dread, and offered hosts to the Lord, and vowed avows.

<sup>17</sup> And the Lord made ready a great fish, that he should swallow Jonah; and Jonah was in the womb of the fish three days and three nights.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>2</sup> and said, I cried to God of my tribulation, and he heard me; from the womb of hell I cried, and thou heardest my voice.

<sup>3</sup> Thou castedest me down into deepness, in the heart of the sea, and the floods compassed me [about]; all thy swells and thy waves passed on me.

<sup>4</sup> And I said, I am cast away from the sight of thine eyes; nevertheless again I shall see thine holy temple.

<sup>5</sup> Waters encompassed me till to my soul, deepness environed me, the seaweed covered mine head.

<sup>6</sup> I went down to the uttermost places of hills, the bars of earth enclosed me altogether, into without end; and thou, my Lord God, shalt raise up my life from corruption.

<sup>7</sup> When my soul was anguished in me, I bethought on the Lord, that my prayer come to thee, to thine holy temple.

<sup>8</sup> They that keep vanities, forsake their mercy idly.

<sup>9</sup> But I in voice of praising shall offer to thee; whatever things I vowed, I shall yield to the Lord, for mine health.

<sup>10</sup> And the Lord said to the fish, and it casted out Jonah on/to the dry land.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord was made the second time to Jonah, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Rise thou, and go into Nineveh, the great city, and preach thou in it the preaching which I speak to thee.

<sup>3</sup> And Jonah rose, and went into Nineveh, by the word of the Lord. And Nineveh was a great city, of the journey of three days.

<sup>4</sup> And Jonah began for to enter into the city, by the journey of one day, and cried, and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overturned, or destroyed.

<sup>5</sup> And men of Nineveh believed to the Lord, and preached fasting, and were clothed with sackcloths, from the more till to the less.

<sup>6</sup> And the word came to the king of Nineveh; and he rose off his seat, and casted away his clothing from him, and was clothed with sackcloth, and sat in ashes.

<sup>7</sup> And he cried, and said in Nineveh of the mouth of the king and of his princes, saying, Men, and work beasts, and oxen, and sheep, taste not anything, neither be fed, neither drink water.

<sup>8</sup> And men be covered with sack-cloths, and work beasts, all cry to the Lord in strength; and be a man converted, or all-turned, from his evil way, and from wickedness that is in the hands of them.

<sup>9</sup> Who knoweth, if God be converted, and forgive, and be turned away from strong vengeance of his wrath, and we shall not perish?

<sup>10</sup> And God saw the works of them, that they were converted from their evil way; and God had mercy on the malice which he spake, that he would do to them, and did not.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And Jonah was tormented with great torment, and was wroth.

<sup>2</sup> And he prayed to the Lord, and said, Lord, I beseech, whether this is not my word, when I was yet in my land? For this thing I purposed for to flee into Tarshish; for I know, that thou, God, art meek and merciful, patient, and of much merciful doing, and forgiving of malice.

<sup>3</sup> And now, Lord, I pray, take my life from me; for death is better to me than life.

<sup>4</sup> And the Lord said, Guessest thou, whether thou art well wroth?

<sup>5</sup> And Jonah went out of the city, and sat against the east of the city, and made to him a shadowing place there; and sat under it in shadow, till he saw what befell to the city.

<sup>6</sup> And the Lord God made ready an ivy, and it went upon the head of Jonah, that shadow or shade were on his head, and covered him; for he had travailed. And Jonah was glad on the ivy, with great gladness.

<sup>7</sup> And God made ready a worm, in the going up of gray day on the morrow; and it smote the ivy, and it dried up.

<sup>8</sup> And when the sun was risen, the Lord commanded to the hot wind and burning; and the sun smote on the head of Jonah, and he sweltered. And he asked to his soul that he should die, and said, It is better to me to die, than to live.

<sup>9</sup> And the Lord said to Jonah, Guessest thou, whether thou art well wroth on the ivy? And he said, I am well wroth, till to the death.

<sup>10</sup> And the Lord said, Thou art sorry on the ivy, in which thou travailedest not, neither madest that it waxed, which was grown under one night, and perished in one night.

MICAHA

<sup>1</sup> The word of the Lord, which was made to Micah the Morasthite, in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah; which word he saw on Samaria and Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> Hear ye, all peoples, and the earth perceive, and the plenty thereof, and be the Lord God to you into a witness, the Lord from his holy temple.

<sup>3</sup> For lo! the Lord shall go out of his place, and shall come down, and shall tread on high things of earth.

<sup>4</sup> And mountains shall be wasted under him, and valleys shall be cut, as wax from the face of fire, and as waters that run down into a pit.

<sup>5</sup> In the great trespass of Jacob is all this thing, and in the sins of the house of Israel. Which is the great trespass of Jacob? whether not Samaria? and which be the high things of Judah? whether not Jerusalem?

<sup>6</sup> And I shall put Samaria as an heap of stones in the field, when a vine-yard is planted; and I shall draw away the stones thereof into a valley, and I shall show the foundations thereof.

<sup>7</sup> And all graven images thereof shall be beaten together, and all hires thereof shall be burnt in fire; and I shall put all the idols thereof into perdition; for of the hires of an whore those be gathered, and to hire of an whore those shall turn again.

<sup>8</sup> On this thing I shall wail and yell, I shall go spoiled and naked; I shall make wailing as of dragons, and mourning as of ostriches.

<sup>9</sup> For wound thereof is despaired; for it came till to Judah, it touched the gate of my people, till to Jerusalem.

<sup>10</sup> In Gath do not ye tell, by tears weep ye not; in the house of dust with dust altogether sprinkle you.

<sup>11</sup> And ye of a fair dwelling, pass to you, which is confounded with evil fame; it is not gone out, which dwelleth in the going out; a nigh house shall take of you wailing, which stood to itself.

<sup>12</sup> For it is made sick [in] to good, which dwelleth in bitternesses. For evil came down from the Lord into the gate of Jerusalem,

<sup>13</sup> the noise of [a] four-horsed cart, of dread to the people dwelling at Lachish. It is the beginning of sin of the daughter of Zion, for the great trespasses of Israel be found in thee.

<sup>14</sup> Therefore he shall give warriors on the heritage of Gath, on the houses of leasing into deceit to kings of Israel.

<sup>15</sup> Yet I shall bring an heir to thee, that dwellest in Mareshah; the glory of Israel shall come till to the cave at Adullam.

<sup>16</sup> Be thou made bald, and be thou clipped on the sons of thy delights; alarge thy baldness as an eagle, for they be led captive from thee.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Woe to you, that think unprofitable thing, and work evil in your beds; in the morrowtide light they do it, for the hand of them is against God.

<sup>2</sup> They coveted fields, and took violently; and ravished houses, and falsely challenged a man and his house, a man and his heritage.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, Lo! I think on this meine evil, from which ye shall not take away your necks; and ye shall not walk proud, for the worst time is.

<sup>4</sup> In that day a parable shall be taken on you, and a song shall be sung with sweetness of men, saying, By robbing we be destroyed; a part of my people is changed; how shall he go away from me, when he turneth again that shall part your countries?

<sup>5</sup> For this thing, none shall be to thee sending a little cord of lot, in company of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> A! thou Israel, speak ye not speaking; it shall not drop a word on these men, confusion shall not catch,

<sup>7</sup> saith the house of Jacob. Whether the Spirit of the Lord is abridged, either such be the thoughts of him? Whether my words be not good, with him that goeth rightly?

<sup>8</sup> And on the contrary, my people rose together into an adversary; ye took away the mantle above the coat, and ye turned into battle them that went simply.

<sup>9</sup> Ye casted the women of my people out of the house of their delights; from the little children of them ye took away my praising without end.

<sup>10</sup> Rise ye, and go, for here ye have no rest; for the uncleanness thereof it shall be corrupted with the worst rot.

<sup>11</sup> I would that I were not a man having spirit, and rather that I spake a leasing. I shall drop a word to thee into wine, and into drunkenness; and this people shall be, on whom it is dropped.

<sup>12</sup> With gathering I shall gather Jacob; I shall lead together thee all into one, the remnants of Israel. I shall put him together, as a flock in the fold; as sheep in the middle of folds they shall make noise, because of multitude of men.

<sup>13</sup> For he shall go up showing the way before them; they shall depart, and pass the gate, and shall go out thereby; and the king of them shall pass before them, and the Lord in the head of them.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And I said, Ye princes of Jacob, and dukes of the house of Israel, hear. Whether it is not yours for to know doom,

<sup>2</sup> which hate good, and love evil? Which violently take away the skins of them from above them, and the flesh of them from above the bones of them.

<sup>3</sup> Which ate the flesh of my people, and uncovered, [or flayed off], the skin of them from above; and brake altogether the bones of them, and cutted them up altogether as in a cauldron, and as flesh in the middle of a pot.

<sup>4</sup> Then they shall cry to the Lord, and he shall not hear them; and he shall hide his face from them in that time, as they did wickedly in their findings.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord saith these things on the prophets that deceive my people, that bite with their teeth, and preach peace; and if any man giveth not in the mouth of them anything, they hallow battle on him.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore night shall be to you for vision, or prophecy, and darkneses to you for divination; and the sun shall go down on the prophets, and the day shall be made dark on them.

<sup>7</sup> And they shall be confounded that see visions, and diviners shall be confounded, and all shall cover their cheeks, for it is not the answer of God.

<sup>8</sup> Nevertheless I am filled with strength of the Spirit of the Lord, and with doom and power, that I show to Jacob his great trespass, and to Israel his sin.

<sup>9</sup> Hear these things, ye princes of the house of Jacob, and doomsmen of the house of Israel, which loathe doom, and pervert all right things;

<sup>10</sup> which build Zion in bloods, and Jerusalem in wickedness.

<sup>11</sup> The princes thereof deemed for gifts, and [the] priests thereof taught for hire, and the prophets thereof divined for money; and on the Lord they rested, and said, Whether the Lord is not in the middle of us? evils shall not come on us.

<sup>12</sup> For this thing because of you, Zion as a field shall be eared; and Jerusalem shall be as an heap of stones, and the hill of the temple shall be into high things of woods.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And in the last days, the hill of the house of the Lord shall be made ready in the top of [the] hills, and shall be high over small hills. And peoples shall flow to him,

<sup>2</sup> and many peoples shall hasten, and shall say, Come ye, ascend or go we up to the hill of the Lord, and to the house of God of Jacob; and he shall teach us of his ways, and we shall go in his paths. For the law shall go out from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem;

<sup>3</sup> and he shall deem betwixt many peoples, and shall chastise strong folks till into far. And they shall beat together their swords into shares*, and their spears into pickaxes; folk shall not take sword against folk, and they shall no more learn to fight.

<sup>4</sup> And a man shall sit under his vineyard, and under his fig tree; and there shall not be that shall make afeared, for the mouth of the Lord of hosts spake.

<sup>5</sup> For all peoples shall go, each man in the name of his Lord God; but we shall walk in the name of our Lord God into the world, and over.

<sup>6</sup> In that day, saith the Lord, I shall gather the halting, and I shall gather her that I casted away, and whom I tormented I shall comfort.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall put the halting into remnants, and her that travailed in[to] a strong folk. And the Lord shall reign on them in the hill of Zion, from this time now and till into without end.

<sup>8</sup> And thou, dark tower of the flock of the daughter of Zion, unto thee he shall come, and the first power shall come, the realm of the daughter of Jerusalem.

<sup>9</sup> Now why art thou drawn together with mourning? whether a king is not to thee, either thy counsellor perished? for sorrow hath taken thee as a woman travailing of child.

<sup>10</sup> Thou daughter of Zion, make sorrow, and haste, as a woman travailing of child; for now thou shalt go out of the city, and shalt dwell in the country, and shalt come unto Babylon; there thou shalt be delivered, there the Lord shall again-buy thee, from the hand of thine enemies.

<sup>11</sup> And now many folks be gathered on thee, which say, Be it stoned, and our eye behold into Zion.

<sup>12</sup> Forsooth they knew not the thoughts of the Lord, and understood not the counsel of him, for he gathered them as the hay of the field.

<sup>13</sup> Rise thou, and thresh, daughter of Zion, for I shall put thine horn of iron, and I shall put thy nails brazen; and thou shalt lose, either waste, many peoples, and shalt slay to the Lord for an offering the ravens of them, and the strength of them to the Lord of all earth.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Now thou, daughter of a thief, shalt be destroyed; they putted on us besieging, in a rod they shall smite the cheek of the judge of Israel.

<sup>2</sup> And thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, art little in the thousands of Judah; he that is the lordly governor in Israel shall go out of thee to me; and the going out of him is from [the] beginning, from days of everlastingness.

<sup>3</sup> For this thing he shall give them up, till to the time in which the woman travailing of child shall bear child, and the remnants of his brethren shall be turned again to the sons of Israel.

---

* CHAPTER 4:3 In other writings, John Wycliffe renders this word in this verse as 'plowghschares' ('ploughshares'/'plowshares').

<sup>4</sup> And he shall stand, and shall feed in the strength of the Lord, in the height of the name of his Lord God; and they shall be converted, for now he shall be magnified till to the ends of all earth.

<sup>5</sup> And this shall be peace, when Assyrian shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our houses; and we shall raise on him seven shepherds, and eight primates men, either the first in dignity.

<sup>6</sup> And they shall waste the land of Assur by sword, and the land of Nimrod by spears of him; and he shall deliver us from Assur, when he shall come into our land, and when he shall tread in our coasts.

<sup>7</sup> And remnants of Jacob shall be in the midst of many peoples, as dew of the Lord, and as drops on herb, which abideth not man, and shall not abide the sons of men.

<sup>8</sup> And remnants of Jacob shall be in heathen men, in the middle of many peoples, as a lion among beasts of the woods, and as a whelp of a lion roaring in flocks of sheep; and when he passeth, and defouleth, and taketh, there is not that shall deliver.

<sup>9</sup> And thine hand shall be raised on thine enemies, and all thine enemies shall perish.

<sup>10</sup> And it shall be, in that day, saith the Lord, I shall take away thine horses from the middle of thee, and I shall destroy thy four-horsed carts.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall lose the cities of thy land, and I shall destroy all thy strongholds, either wardings;

<sup>12</sup> and I shall do away witchcrafts from thine hand, and divinations, either tellings by devil's craft, shall not be in thee.

<sup>13</sup> And I shall make for to perish thy graven images, and I shall break altogether from the middle of thee thine images, and thou shalt no more worship the works of thine hands.

<sup>14</sup> And I shall draw out of the midst of thee thy woods dedicated to idols, and I shall all-break thy cities.

<sup>15</sup> And I shall make in wrath and indignation vengeance in all folks, which heard not.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Hear ye which things the Lord speaketh. Rise thou, strive thou by doom against mountains, and little hills hear thy voice.

<sup>2</sup> Mountains and the strong foundations of earth, hear the doom of the Lord; for the doom of the Lord shall be with his people, and he shall be deemed with Israel.

<sup>3</sup> My people, what have I done to thee, either in what was I grievous to thee? Answer thou to me.

<sup>4</sup> For I led thee out of the land of Egypt, and of the house of servage I delivered thee; and I sent before thy face Moses, and Aaron, and Mary.

<sup>5</sup> My people, bethink, I pray, what Balak, king of Moab, thought, and what Balaam, son of Beor, of Shittim, answered to him till to Gilgal, that thou shouldest know the rightwiseness of the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> What worthy thing shall I offer to the Lord? shall I bow the knee to the high God? Whether shall I offer to him brunt sacrifices, and calves of one year?

<sup>7</sup> Whether God may be satisfied in thousands of wethers, either in many thousands of fat goat bucks? Whether I shall give my first begotten for my great trespass, the fruit of my womb for sin of my soul?

<sup>8</sup> I shall show to thee, thou man, what is good, and what the Lord asketh of thee; forsooth for to do doom, and for to love mercy, and be busy for to walk with thy God.

<sup>9</sup> The voice of the Lord crieth to the city, and health shall be to all men dreading thy name. Ye lineages, hear; and who shall approve it?

<sup>10</sup> Yet fire is in the house of unpious men, the treasures of wickedness, and a less measure, which make me full of wrath.

<sup>11</sup> Whether I shall justify the wicked balance, and the guileful weights of a little sack,

<sup>12</sup> in which rich men thereof be filled with wickedness? And men dwelling therein spake leasing, and the tongue of them was guileful in the mouth of them.

<sup>13</sup> And I therefore began for to smite thee, into perdition on thy sins.

<sup>14</sup> Thou shalt eat, and shalt not be [ful] filled, and thy meeking is in the middle of thee; and thou shalt take, and shalt not save; and which thou shalt save, I shall give into sword.

<sup>15</sup> Thou shalt sow, and shalt not reap; thou shalt tread the olive, and shalt not be anointed with oil; and make must, and shalt not drink wine.

<sup>16</sup> And thou keptest the behests of Omri, and all the work of the house of Ahab, and hast walked in the lusts of them, that I should give thee into perdition, and men dwelling in it into hissing, either scorning, and ye shall bear the shame of my people.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Woe to me, for I am made as he that gathereth in harvest raisins of grapes; there is no cluster for to eat; my soul desired figs ripe before others.

<sup>2</sup> The holy perished from [the] earth, and rightful is not in men; all ambush, either set treason, in blood; a man hunteth his brother to death.

<sup>3</sup> The evil of their hands they say good; the prince asketh, and the doomsman is in yielding; and a great man spake the desire of his soul, and they troubled altogether it.

<sup>4</sup> He that is the best in them, is as a paliurus, that is, a teasel, either a sharp bush; and he that is rightful is as a thorn of hedge. The day of thy beholding, thy visiting cometh, now shall be destroying of them.

<sup>5</sup> Do not ye believe to a friend, and do not ye trust in a duke; from her that sleepeth in thy bosom, keep thou the closings of thy mouth.

<sup>6</sup> For the son doeth wrong to the father, and the daughter shall rise against her mother, and the wife of the son against the mother of her husband; the enemies of a man be the ones at home, either the house-hold meine, of him.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth I shall behold to the Lord, I shall abide God my saviour; the Lord my God shall hear me.

<sup>8</sup> Thou, mine enemy, be not glad on me, for I fell down, I shall rise up again; when I sit in darkneses, the Lord is my light.

<sup>9</sup> I shall bear wrath of the Lord, for I have sinned to him, till he deem my cause, and make my doom; he shall lead out me into light, I shall see [the] rightwiseness of him.

<sup>10</sup> And mine enemy shall behold me, and she shall be covered with confusion, which saith to me, Where is thy Lord God? Mine eyes shall see her, now she shall be into defouling, as clay, either fen, of streets.

<sup>11</sup> Day shall come, that thy walls be builded; in that day law shall be made afar.

<sup>12</sup> In that day, and Assur shall come till to thee, and till to strong cities, and from strong cities till to [the] flood; and to sea from sea, and to hill from hill.

<sup>13</sup> And [the] earth shall be into desolation for her dwellers, and for fruit of the thoughts of them.

<sup>14</sup> Feed thou thy people in thy rod, the flock of thine heritage, that dwell alone in [the] wild wood; in the middle of Carmel they shall be fed of Bashan and of Gilead, as by eld [or old] days,

<sup>15</sup> by days of thy going out of the land of Egypt. I shall show to him wonderful things;

<sup>16</sup> heathen men shall see, and they shall be confounded on all their strength; they shall put hands on their mouth, the ears of them shall be deaf;

<sup>17</sup> they shall lick dust as a serpent; as creeping things of [the] earth they shall be disturbed, or troubled, out of their houses; they shall not desire our Lord God, and they shall dread thee.

<sup>18</sup> God, who is like thee, that doest away wickedness, and bearest over the sin of the remnants of thine heritage? He shall no more send in his strong vengeance, for he is willing or desiring mercy;

<sup>19</sup> he shall turn again, and have mercy on us. He shall put down our wickednesses, and shall cast far into deepness of the sea all our sins.

<sup>20</sup> Thou shalt give truth to Jacob, mercy to Abraham, which thou sworeest to our fathers from eld [or old] days.

NAHUM

<sup>2</sup> The Lord is a punisher, and the Lord is avenging; the Lord is avenging, and having strong vengeance; the Lord is avenging against his adversaries, and he is wrathing to his enemies.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord is patient, and great in strength, and he cleansing shall not make the wicked innocent. The Lord cometh in tempest, and the ways of him be in whirlwind, and clouds be the dust of his feet;

<sup>4</sup> he blameth the sea, and drieth it, and bringeth all floods into desert. Bashan is made sick, and Carmel, and the flowers of Lebanon languished.

<sup>5</sup> Mountains be moved together of him, and little hills be desolate. And [the] earth trembled together from the face of him, and the roundness of earth, and all dwelling therein.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord is good, and comforting in the day of tribulation, and knowing them that hope in him.

<sup>8</sup> And in great flood passing forth, he shall make end of his place; and darkneses shall pursue his enemies.

<sup>10</sup> For as thorns embrace themselves together, so the feast of them drinking together shall be wasted, as stubble full of dryness.

<sup>11</sup> Of thee shall go out a man thinking malice against the Lord, and treat trespassing in soul.

<sup>12</sup> The Lord saith these things, If they shall be perfect, and so many, and thus they shall be clipped, and it shall pass by. I tormented thee, and I shall no more torment thee.

<sup>13</sup> And now I shall all-break the rod of him from off thy back, and I shall break thy bonds.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord shall command on thee, it shall no more be sown of thy name. Of the house of thy god I shall slay; I shall set thy sepulchre a graven image, and an image welled together, either molten, for thou art unworshipped.

<sup>15</sup> Lo! on hills the feet of the evangelizing and telling peace. Judah, hallow thou thy feast days, and yield thy vows, for why Belial shall no more put to, that he pass forth in thee; all he is perished.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> He went up, that shall scatter before thee, that shall keep [the] besieging; behold thou the way, comfort thou loins, strengthen thou virtue greatly.

<sup>2</sup> For as the Lord yielded the pride of Jacob, so the pride of Israel; for destroyers scattered them, and destroyed the generations of them.

<sup>3</sup> The shields of strong men of him be fiery, men of the host be in red clothes; reins of fire of [the] chariots, in the day of his making ready; and the leaders thereof be asleep.

<sup>4</sup> In ways they be troubled together, carts of four horses be hurtled together in streets; the sight of them as lamps, as lightnings running about.

<sup>5</sup> He shall bethink of his strong men, they shall fall in their ways; and swiftly they shall go up on the walls thereof, and shadowing place shall be made ready.

<sup>6</sup> Gates of floods be opened, and the temple is broken down to [the] earth.

<sup>7</sup> And a knight is led away captive, and the handmaids thereof shall be driven sorrowing as culvers, grutching in their hearts.

<sup>8</sup> And Nineveh, as a cistern of waters the waters thereof; forsooth they fled; Stand ye, stand ye, and there is not that shall turn again.

<sup>9</sup> Ravish ye silver, ravish ye gold; and there is none end of riches, of all desirable vessels.

<sup>10</sup> It is destroyed, and cut, and rent, or torn, and heart failing, and unknitting of small knees, and failing in all reins; and the face of all be as blackness of a pot.

<sup>11</sup> Where is the dwelling of lions, and [the] pastures of whelps of lions? To which city the lion went, that the whelp of the lion should enter thither, and there is not that shall make afeared.

<sup>12</sup> The lion took enough to his whelps, and slew to his lionesses; and filled their dens with prey, and his couch with raven.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! I to thee, saith the Lord God of hosts; and I shall burn thy carts of four horses till to the highest, and sword shall eat thy small lions; and I shall destroy thy prey from the land, and the voice of thy messengers shall no more be heard.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Woe to the city of bloods, all of leasing, full of rending; raven shall not go away from thee.

<sup>2</sup> Voice of scourge, and voice of rush of wheel, and of horse making noise, and of [a] four-horsed cart burning,

<sup>3</sup> and of knight going up, and of shining sword, and glistening spear, and of [the] slain multitude, and of grievous falling, neither there is end of carrions. And they shall fall together in their bodies,

<sup>4</sup> for the multitude of [the] fornications of the whore fair and pleasant, and having witchcrafts; which sold folks in her fornications, and meines in her enchantments, either sorceries.

<sup>5</sup> Lo! I to thee, saith the Lord God of hosts; and I shall show thy shameful things in thy face; and I shall show to folks thy nakedness, and to realms thine evil fame, either shame.

<sup>6</sup> And I shall cast out on thee thine abominations, and I shall punish thee with despites, and I shall put thee into ensample.

<sup>7</sup> And it shall be, each man that shall see thee, shall leap away from thee, and shall say, Nineveh is destroyed. Who shall move head on thee? whereof shall I seek to thee a comforter?

<sup>8</sup> Whether thou art better than Alexandria of peoples, that dwelleth in or by the floods? Waters be in compass thereof, whose riches is the sea, waters be[the] walls thereof.

<sup>9</sup> Ethiopia is[the] strength thereof, and Egypt, and there is none end; Africa and Libya were in help thereof.

<sup>10</sup> But and it in transmigration, or passing over, is led into captivity; the little children thereof be hurtled down in the head of all ways. And on the noble men thereof they cast lot, and all great men thereof be set together in gyves, either fetters.

<sup>11</sup> And thou therefore shalt be drunken, and shalt be despised, and thou shalt seek help because of the enemy.

<sup>12</sup> All thy strengths or strongholds be as a fig tree, with his figs unripe; if they shall be shaken, they shall fall into the mouth of the eater.

<sup>13</sup> Lo! thy people be women in the middle of thee; the gates of thy land shall be showed to opening to thine enemies; fire shall devour thine hinges.

<sup>14</sup> Draw up to thee water for asieging, build thy strongholds; enter in[to] fen, and tread, thou undergoing hold a tilestone.

<sup>15</sup> There fire shall eat thee, thou shalt perish by sword, it shall devour thee, as bruchus doeth; be thou gathered together as a bruchus, be thou multiplied as a locust.

<sup>16</sup> Thou madest thy merchants more than be stars of heaven; a bruchus is spread abroad, and fly away.

<sup>17</sup> Thy keepers be as locusts, and thy little children be as locusts of locusts, which sit together in hedges in the day of cold; the sun is risen, and they fled away, and the place of them is not known, where they were.

<sup>18</sup> Thy shepherds nap, thou king of Assur, thy princes shall be buried; thy people oft was hid in hills, and there is not that shall gather.

<sup>19</sup> Thy sorrow is not privy, thy wound is worst; all men that heard thine hearing pressed together hand on thee, for on whom passed not thy malice evermore?

HABAKKUK

<sup>2</sup> How long, Lord, shall I cry, and thou shalt not hear? I suffering violence shall cry on high to thee, and thou shalt not save?

<sup>3</sup> Why showedest thou to me wickedness and travail, for to see prey and unrightwiseness against me? Why beholdest thou despisers, and art still, the while the unpious man defouleth a right-fuller than himself? And thou shalt make men as fishes of the sea, and as creeping things not having a leader; and doom is made, and against-saying is more mighty.

<sup>4</sup> For this thing law is broken, and doom cometh not till to the end; for the unpious man hath might against the just, therefore wayward doom shall go out.

<sup>5</sup> Behold ye in heathen men, and see ye, and wonder ye, and greatly dread ye; for a work is done in your days, which no man shall believe, when it shall be told.

<sup>6</sup> For lo! I shall raise Chaldees, a bitter folk and swift, going on the breadth of earth, that he wield tabernacles not his.

<sup>7</sup> It is horrible, and dreadful; the doom and the burden thereof shall go out of itself.

<sup>8</sup> His horses be lighter than leopards, and swifter than eventide wolves, and his horsemen shall be scattered abroad; for why his horsemen shall come from far, they shall fly as an eagle hasting to eat.

<sup>9</sup> All these men shall come to or for prey, the faces of them is as a burning wind; and he shall gather as gravel the captivity,

<sup>10</sup> and he shall have victory of kings, and tyrants shall be of his scorning. He shall laugh on all strength or stronghold, and shall bear together [an] heap of earth, and shall take it.

<sup>11</sup> Then the spirit [of him] shall be changed, and he shall pass forth, and fall down; this is the strength of him, of his god.

<sup>12</sup> Whether thou art not from the beginning, thou, Lord my God, mine Holy, and we shall not die? Lord, into doom thou hast set him, and thou groundedest him strong, that thou shouldest chastise.

<sup>13</sup> Thine eyes be clean, see thou not evil, and thou shalt not be able to behold to wickedness. Why beholdest thou not on men doing wickedly, and thou art still, while the unpious man devoureth a more just man than himself?

<sup>14</sup> And thou shalt make men as fishes of the sea, and as a creeping thing not having a prince.

<sup>15</sup> He shall lift up all in the hook; he drew it in his great net, and gathered into his net; on this thing he shall be glad, and make joy withoutforth.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore he shall offer to his great net, and shall make sacrifice to his net; for in them his part is made fat, and his meat is chosen.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore for this thing he spread-eth abroad his great net, and ever-more he ceaseth not for to slay folks.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> On my keeping I shall stand, and shall pitch my step on [the] warding; and I shall behold, that I see what thing shall be said to me, and what I shall answer to him that reproveth me.

<sup>2</sup> And the Lord answered to me, and said, Write thou the sight, either revelation, and make it plain on tables, that he run, that shall read it.

<sup>3</sup> For yet the vision is far, and it shall appear into the end, and shall not lie; if it shall make dwelling, abide thou it, for it coming shall come, and shall not tarry.

<sup>4</sup> Lo! the soul of him, that is unbelievful, shall not be rightful [or right] in himself; forsooth the just man shall live in his faith.

<sup>5</sup> And as wine deceiveth a man drinking, so shall the proud man be, and he shall not be made fair; for as hell he alarged his soul, and he is as death, and he is not [ful] filled; and he shall gather to him all folks, and he shall gather together to him all peoples.

<sup>6</sup> Whether not all these peoples shall take a parable on him, and the speaking of dark sentences of him? And it shall be said, Woe to him that multiplieth things not his own; how long, and he aggregateth against himself thick clay?

<sup>7</sup> Whether not suddenly they shall rise together, that shall bite thee? And they shall be raised tearing thee, and thou shalt be into raven to them; and thine ambushers in evil shall wake.

<sup>8</sup> For thou robbedest many folks, all shall rob thee, which shall be residue, either left, of peoples, for blood of man, and for wickedness of land, of the city, and of all men dwelling in it.

<sup>9</sup> Woe to him that gathereth evil covetousness to his house, that his nest be on high, and guesseth him for to be delivered of the hand of evil.

<sup>10</sup> Thou thoughtest confusion to thine house; thou hast slain many peoples, and thy soul sinned.

<sup>12</sup> Woe to him that buildeth a city in bloods, and maketh ready a city in wickedness.

<sup>13</sup> Whether not these things be of the Lord of hosts? For peoples shall travail in much fire, and folks in vain, and they shall fail.

<sup>14</sup> For the earth shall be filled, that it know the glory of the Lord, as waters covering the sea.

<sup>15</sup> Woe to him that giveth drink to his friend, and sendeth his gall, and maketh drunken, that he behold his nakedness.

<sup>16</sup> He is filled with evil fame for glory; and thou drink, and be fast asleep; the cup of the right half of the Lord shall compass thee, and casting up, either spewing, of evil fame [up] on thy glory.

<sup>17</sup> For the wickedness of Lebanon shall cover thee, and [the] destruction of beasts shall make them afear'd, of bloods of man, and of wickedness of [the] land, and of the city, and of all men dwelling therein.

<sup>18</sup> What profiteth the graven image, for his maker engraved it, a welled thing together, and [a] false image? for the maker thereof hoped in [the] making, that he made dumb simulacra.

<sup>19</sup> Woe to him that saith to a tree, Wake thou; Rise thou, to a stone being still; whether he shall be able to teach? Lo! this thing is covered with gold and silver, and no spirit is in his entrails.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth the Lord is in his holy temple, all earth be still from his face.

<sup>2</sup> Lord, I heard thy praising, and I dreaded; Lord, it is thy work, in the middle of years, quicken thou it. In the middle of years, thou shalt make thyself known; when thou shalt be wroth, thou shalt have mind of mercy.

<sup>3</sup> God shall come from the south, and the Holy from the mount of Paran. The glory of him covered heavens, and the earth is full of his praising.

<sup>4</sup> The shining of him shall be as light; with horns in the hands of him. There the strength of him was hid,

<sup>5</sup> death shall go before his face; the devil shall go out before his feet.

<sup>6</sup> He stood, and meted the earth; he beheld, and unbound folks, and hills of the world were all-broken; the little hills of the world were bowed down, of the ways of his everlastingness.

<sup>7</sup> For wickedness I saw the tents of Ethiopia, the skins of the land of Midian shall be troubled.

<sup>9</sup> Thou raising shalt raise thy bow, oaths to lineages which thou hast spoken; thou shalt part the floods of earth.

<sup>11</sup> The sun and moon stood in their dwelling place; in the light of thine arrows they shall go, in the shining of thy spear glistening.

<sup>12</sup> In gnashing thou shalt defoul earth, and in strong vengeance thou shalt astonish folks.

<sup>13</sup> Thou art gone out into health of thy people, into health with thy christ or thine anointed; thou hast smitten the head of the house of the unpious man, thou hast made naked the fundament till to the neck.

<sup>14</sup> Thou cursedest the sceptre, either power, of him, the head of his fighters, to men coming as whirlwind for to scatter me; thou heardest the joying withoutforth of them, as of him that devoureth a poor man in huddles.

<sup>15</sup> Thou madest a way in the sea to thine horses, in clay of many waters.

<sup>16</sup> I heard, and my womb is troubled altogether; my lips trembled altogether of the voice. Rot entered in/to/ my bones, and sprang under me; that I rest again in the day of tribulation, and I shall go up to our people girded altogether.

<sup>17</sup> For the fig tree shall not flower, and burgeoning shall not be in vineyards; the work of [the] olive tree shall lie down, and fields shall not bring forth meat; a sheep shall be cut away from the fold, a drove shall not be in cratches.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth I shall have joy in the Lord, and I shall make joy without-forth in God my Jesus or my salvation.

<sup>19</sup> God the Lord is my strength, and he shall put my feet as of harts; and [up] on mine high things, the over-comer shall lead forth me, singing in psalms.

ZEPHANIAH

<sup>1</sup> The word of the Lord, that was made to Zephaniah, son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah, the son of Amon, king of Judah.

<sup>2</sup> I gathering shall gather all things from the face of earth, saith the Lord;

<sup>3</sup> I gathering man and beast, I gathering volatiles of heaven, and fishes of the sea; and fallings of unpius men shall be, and I shall lose men from the face of [the] earth, saith the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> And I shall stretch out mine hand on Judah, and on all the dwellers of Jerusalem; and I shall lose from this place the remnants of Baal, and the names of keepers of [the] houses, with [the] priests;

<sup>5</sup> and them that worship on roofs the knighthood of heaven, and worship, and swear in the Lord, and swear in Malcham;

<sup>6</sup> and which be turned away behind the back of the Lord, and which sought not the Lord, neither ensearched him.

<sup>7</sup> Be ye still from the face of the Lord God, for nigh is the day of the Lord; for the Lord made ready a sacrifice, he hallowed his called men.

<sup>8</sup> And it shall be, in the day of sacrifice of the Lord, I shall visit on princes, and on sons of the king, and on all that be clothed with pilgrims', either strange, clothing.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall visit on each that proudly entereth on the threshold in that day, which fill the house of their Lord God with wickedness and guile.

<sup>10</sup> And there shall be in that day, saith the Lord, a voice of cry from the gate of fishes, and yelling from the second gate, and great defouling from little hills.

<sup>11</sup> Yell ye, dwellers of Pila; all the people of Canaan was still altogether, all men wrapped in silver perished.

<sup>12</sup> And it shall be, in that time, I shall seek throughout Jerusalem with lanterns, and I shall visit on all men pitched in their dregs, which say in their hearts, The Lord shall not do well, and he shall not do evil.

<sup>13</sup> And the strength of them shall be into ravishing, and the houses of them into desert; and they shall build houses, and shall not inhabit; and they shall plant vineyards, and they shall not drink the wine of them.

<sup>14</sup> Nigh is the great day of the Lord, nigh and swift full much; the voice of the day of the Lord is bitter, a strong man shall be in tribulation there.

<sup>15</sup> That day is a day of wrath, day of tribulation and anguish, day of neediness and wretchedness, day of darkneses and mist, day of cloud and whirlwind,

<sup>16</sup> day of trump and of noise on strong cities and on high corners.

<sup>17</sup> And I shall trouble men, and they shall walk as blind, for they have sinned against the Lord; and the blood of them shall be shed out as earth, and the bodies of them shall be as turds.

<sup>18</sup> But the silver of them, and [the] gold of them, shall not be able to deliver them in the day of wrath of the Lord; in fire of his fervor all earth shall be devoured, for he shall make end with hasting to all men inhabiting the earth.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Come ye together, be [ye] gathered, ye folk not worthy to be loved,

<sup>2</sup> before that his commanding bring forth as dust the passing day; before that wrath of strong vengeance of the Lord come [up] on you, before that the day of his indignation come [up] on you.

<sup>3</sup> All mild, either patient, men of earth, seek ye the Lord, which have wrought the doom of him; seek ye the just, seek ye the mild, if any manner ye be hid in the day of strong vengeance of the Lord.

<sup>4</sup> For Gaza shall be destroyed, and Ashkelon shall be into desert; they shall cast out Ashdod in midday, and Ekron shall be drawn out by the root.

<sup>5</sup> Woe to you that dwell in the little part of the sea, a folk of lost men. The word of the Lord on you, Canaan, the land of Philistines, and I shall destroy thee, so that a dweller be not;

<sup>6</sup> and the little part of the sea shall be rest of shepherds, and folds of sheep.

<sup>7</sup> And it shall be a little part of him, that shall be left of the house of Judah, there they shall be fed in the houses of Ashkelon; at eventide they shall rest, for the Lord God of them shall visit them, and shall turn away the captivity of them.

<sup>8</sup> I heard the shame of Moab, and blasphemies of the sons of Ammon, which they said shamefully to my people, and they were magnified on the terms of them.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore I live, saith the Lord of hosts, God of Israel, for Moab shall be as Sodom, and the sons of Ammon as Gomorrah; dryness of thorns, and heaps of salt, and desert till into without end. The remnants of my people shall ravish them, the residues of my folk shall wield them.

<sup>10</sup> Soothly this thing shall come to them for their pride, for they blas-phemed, and were magnified [up] on the people of the Lord of hosts.

<sup>11</sup> The Lord shall be horrible on them, and he shall make feeble all gods of earth; and men of their place shall worship him, all the isles of heathen men.

<sup>12</sup> But and ye, Ethiopians, shall be slain by my sword.

<sup>13</sup> And he shall stretch forth his hand on the north, and shall lose Assur; and he shall put the fair city Nineveh into wilderness, and into without way, and as desert.

<sup>14</sup> And flocks, and all the beasts of folks, shall lie, or rest, in the middle thereof; and onocrotalus, and urchin shall dwell in [the] thresholds thereof; voice of the singing in the window, and a crow in the lintel, for I shall make thine the strength thereof.

<sup>15</sup> This is the glorious city dwelling in trust, which said in her heart, I am, and there is none other more without me. How is it made unto desert, a couch of beasts; each man that shall pass by it, shall hiss, and shall move his hand.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>2</sup> It heard not the voice of the Lord, and received not teaching, either chastising; it trusted not in the Lord, it nighed not to her God.

<sup>4</sup> [The] Prophets thereof were wild, and unfaithful men; [the] priests thereof defouled holy thing, they did unjustly against the law.

<sup>5</sup> The Lord is just in the middle thereof, and shall not do wickedness; early, early he shall give his doom in light, and it shall not be hid; forsooth the wicked people knew not confusion.

<sup>6</sup> I lost folks, and the corners of them be destroyed; I made the ways of them desert, while there is not that shall pass. The cities of them be desolate, for a man is not left, neither any dweller.

<sup>7</sup> I said, Nevertheless thou shalt dread me, thou shalt receive teaching; and the dwelling place thereof shall not perish, for all things in which I visited it; nevertheless full early they rising, have corrupted all their thoughts.

<sup>8</sup> Wherefore abide thou me, saith the Lord, in the day of my rising again into coming. For my doom is, that I gather folks, and I shall gather realms; and I shall shed out on them mine indignation, and all the wrath of my strong vengeance; for in fire of my fervour all earth shall be devoured.

<sup>9</sup> For then I shall yield to peoples a chosen lip, that all call inwardly in the name of the Lord, and serve to him with one shoulder.

<sup>10</sup> Over the floods of Ethiopia, from thence my beseechers, the sons of my scattered men, shall bring gift to me.

<sup>11</sup> In that day thou shalt not be confounded on all thy findings, in which thou trespassedest against me; for then I shall take away from the middle of thee great speakers of thy pride, and thou shalt no more put to, for to be enhanced in mine holy hill.

<sup>12</sup> And I shall leave in the middle of thee a poor people and needy; and they shall hope in the name of the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> The remnants of Israel shall not do wickedness, neither shall speak leasing, and a guileful tongue shall not be found in the mouth of them; for they shall be fed, and shall rest, and there shall not be that shall make afeared.

<sup>14</sup> These things saith the Lord, Daughter of Zion, praise thou heartily, sing thou, Israel; be thou glad, and make thou joy withoutforth in all thine heart, thou daughter of Jerusalem.

<sup>15</sup> The Lord hath taken away thy doom, [he] hath turned away thine enemies; the king of Israel, the Lord, is in the middle of thee, thou shalt no more dread evil.

<sup>16</sup> In that day it shall be said, Jerusalem, do not thou dread; Zion, thine hands be not benumbed.

<sup>17</sup> Thy Lord God is strong in the middle of thee, he shall save [thee]; he shall make joy on thee in gladness, he shall be still in thy loving, he shall make joy withoutforth on thee in praising.

<sup>18</sup> I shall gather the fools, either vain men, that went away from the law, for they were of thee, that thou have no more shame on them.

<sup>19</sup> Lo! I shall slay all men that tormented thee in that time, and I shall save him that halteth, and I shall gather her that was cast out; and I shall put them into praising, and into name in each land of confusion of them,

<sup>20</sup> in that time in which I shall bring you, and in the time in which I shall gather you. For I shall give you into name, and into praising to all peoples of earth, when I shall convert your captivity before your eyes, saith the Lord.

HAGGAI

<sup>1</sup> In the second year of Darius, king of Persia, in the sixth month, in the first day of the month, the word of the Lord was made in the hand of Haggai, prophet, to Zerubbabel, son of Salathiel, duke of Judah, and to Joshua, the great priest, [the] son of Josedech*, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, and speaketh, This people saith, Yet cometh not the time of the house of the Lord to be builded.

<sup>3</sup> And the word of the Lord was made in the hand of Haggai, the prophet, and said,

<sup>4</sup> Whether it is time to you, that ye dwell in houses coupled with timber, and this house be deserted, either forsaken?

<sup>5</sup> And now the Lord God of hosts saith these things, Put ye your hearts on your ways.

<sup>6</sup> Ye have sown much, and brought in little; ye have eaten, and ye be not [ful] filled; ye have drunk, and ye be not full of drink; ye covered you, and ye be not made hot; and he that gathered hires sent those into a sack holed, either broken.

<sup>7</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Put ye your hearts on your ways.

<sup>8</sup> Go ye up into the mountain, bear ye trees, and build ye an house; and it shall be acceptable to me, and I shall be glorified, saith the Lord.

<sup>9</sup> Ye beheld to more, and lo! it is made less; and ye brought into the house, and I blew it out. For what cause, saith the Lord of hosts? for mine house is deserted, and ye hasten each man into his house.

<sup>10</sup> For this thing heavens be forbidden, that they should not give dew on you; and the earth is forbidden, that it should not give his burgeoning.

<sup>11</sup> And I called dryness on earth, and on mountains, and on wheat, and on wine, and on oil, and whatever things the earth bringeth forth; and on men, and on beasts, and on all labour of hands.

<sup>12</sup> And Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, and Joshua, the great priest, the son of Josedech, and all remnants of the people, heard the voice of their God, and the words of Haggai, the prophet, as the Lord God of them sent him to them; and all the people dreaded of the face of the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> And Haggai, a messenger of the Lord, of the messengers of the Lord, said to the people, and spake, I am with you, saith the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord raised the spirit of Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, duke of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua, the great priest, the son of Josedech, and the spirit of the remnants of all people; and they entered, and made work in the house of the Lord of hosts, their God.

<sup>15</sup> In the four and twentieth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of king Darius.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> In the seventh month, in the one and twentieth day of the month, the word of the Lord was made in the hand of Haggai, the prophet, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Speak thou to Zerubbabel, the son of Salathiel, the duke of Judah, and to Joshua, the great priest, the son of Josedech, and to others of the people, and say thou, <sup>3</sup> Who in you is left, that saw this house in his first glory? and what see ye this now? whether it is not thus, as if it be not before your eyes?

---

* CHAPTER 1:1 In the "Early Version", throughout Haggai, it is 'Joshua, the son of Josedech, the great priest'.

<sup>4</sup> And now, Zerubbabel, be thou strengthened, saith the Lord, and Joshua, the great priest, the son of Josedech, be thou comforted, and all the people of the land, be thou comforted, saith the Lord of hosts; and do ye, for I am with you, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>5</sup> This is The word that I covenanted with you, when ye went out of the land of Egypt, and my Spirit shall be in the midst of you. Do not ye dread,

<sup>6</sup> for the Lord of hosts saith these things, Yet one little thing is, and I shall move heaven, and earth, and sea, and dry land;

<sup>7</sup> and I shall move all folks, and the desired to all folks shall come; and I shall fill this house with glory, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>8</sup> Mine is silver, and mine is gold, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>9</sup> The glory of this last house shall be great, more than of the first, saith the Lord of hosts. And in this place I shall give peace, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>10</sup> In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, in the second year of king Darius, the word of the Lord was made to Haggai, the prophet, and said,

<sup>11</sup> The Lord God of hosts saith these things, Ask thou priests the law, and say thou,

<sup>12</sup> If a man taketh hallowed flesh in the hem of his clothing, and toucheth of the highness thereof bread, either pottage, either wine, either oil, either any meat, whether it shall be hallowed? Soothly priests answered, and said, Nay.

<sup>13</sup> And Haggai said, If a man defouled in soul toucheth of all these things, whether it shall be defouled? And priests answered, and said, It shall be defouled.

<sup>14</sup> And Haggai answered, and said, So is this people, and so is this folk before my face, saith the Lord, and so is all the work of their hands; and all things which they offer there shall be defouled.

<sup>15</sup> And now put ye this on your hearts, from this day and above, before that a stone on a stone was put in the temple of the Lord,

<sup>16</sup> when ye went to an heap of twenty bushels, and there were made ten; ye entered to the presser, that ye should press out fifty gallons, and there were made twenty.

<sup>17</sup> I smote you with burning wind, and with mildew, and hail, all the works of your hands; and there was none in you that turned again to me, saith the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> Put ye this on your hearts from this day, and into coming, from the four and twentieth day of the ninth month, from the day in which foundations of the temple of the Lord be casted, put ye this on your heart.

<sup>19</sup> Whether now seed is in burgeoning? and yet vineyard, and fig tree, and pomegranate, and the tree of olive flowered not. From this day I shall bless.

<sup>20</sup> And the word of the Lord was made the second time to Haggai, in the four and twentieth day of the month, and said,

<sup>21</sup> Speak thou to Zerubbabel, duke of Judah, and say thou, I shall move heaven and earth together,

<sup>22</sup> and I shall destroy the seat of realms, and I shall all-break the strength of [the] realms of heathen men, and I shall destroy a four-horsed cart, and the rider thereof; and [the] horses shall go down, and [the] riders of them, a man by sword of his brother.

<sup>23</sup> In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, thou Zerubbabel, son of Salathiel, my servant, I shall take thee, saith the Lord; and I shall put thee as a signet, for I chose thee, saith the Lord of hosts.

ZECHARIAH

<sup>1</sup> In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord was made to Zechariah, the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo, prophet, and said,

<sup>3</sup> And thou shalt say to them, The Lord of hosts saith these things. Be ye turned again to me, saith the Lord of hosts, and I shall be turned again to you, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>4</sup> Be ye not as your fathers, to which the former prophets cried, saying, The Lord of hosts saith these things, Be ye converted from your evil ways, and your worst thoughts; and they heard not, neither took attention to me, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>5</sup> Where be your fathers and prophets? whether they shall live without end?

<sup>6</sup> Nevertheless my words and my lawful things, which I commanded to my servants prophets, whether they caught not your fathers? And they were turned again, and said, As the Lord of hosts thought for to do to us by our ways, and by our findings, he did to us.

<sup>7</sup> In the four and twentieth day of the eleventh month Sebat, that is, January, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord was made to Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, prophet, and said,

<sup>8</sup> I saw by night, and lo! a man going on a red horse; and he stood betwixt places where myrtles waxed, that were in the depth, and after him were horses red, diverse, and white.

<sup>9</sup> And I said, My lord, who be these? And an angel of the Lord said to me, that spake in me, I shall show to thee what these be.

<sup>10</sup> And the man that stood betwixt places where myrtles waxed, answered, and said, These it be, which the Lord sent, that they walk through earth.

<sup>11</sup> And they answered to the angel of the Lord, that stood betwixt places where myrtles waxed, and said, We have walked through earth, and lo! all earth is inhabited, and resteth.

<sup>12</sup> And the angel of the Lord answered, and said, Lord of hosts, how long shalt thou not have mercy on Jerusalem, and on [the] cities of Judah, to which thou art wroth? This now is the seventieth year.

<sup>13</sup> And the Lord answered to the angel, that spake in me, good words, and words of comfort.

<sup>14</sup> And the angel that spake in me, said to me, Cry thou, saying, The Lord of hosts saith these things, I loved Jerusalem and Zion in great fervor;

<sup>15</sup> and in great wrath I shall be wroth on rich folks; for I was wroth a little, forsooth they helped into evil.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore the Lord saith these things, I shall turn again to Jerusalem in mercies. Mine house shall be builded in it, saith the Lord of hosts; and a plummet shall be stretched out on Jerusalem.

<sup>17</sup> Yet cry thou, saying, The Lord of hosts saith these things, Yet my cities shall flow with goods, and yet the Lord shall comfort Zion, and yet he shall choose Jerusalem.

<sup>18</sup> And I raised mine eyes, and I saw, and lo! four horns.

<sup>19</sup> And I said to the angel, that spake in me, What be these? And he said to me, These be horns that winnowed Judah, and Israel, and Jerusalem.

<sup>20</sup> And the Lord showed to me four smiths.

<sup>21</sup> And I said, What come these for to do? Which spake, saying, These be the horns, that winnowed Judah by all men, and no man of them raised his head; and these came for to make them afeared, that they cast down the horns of heathen men, which raised the horn on the land of Judah, for to scatter it.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> And I raised mine eyes, and saw, and lo! a man, and lo! in his hand, a little cord of meters.

<sup>2</sup> And I said, Whither goest thou? And he said to me, That I mete Jerusalem, and Judah; how much is the breadth thereof, and how much is the length thereof.

<sup>3</sup> And lo! the angel that spake in me, went out, and another angel went out into the meeting of him,

<sup>4</sup> and said to him, Run thou, speak to this young man, and say thou, Jerusalem shall be inhabited without wall, for the multitude of men and beasts in the middle thereof.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall be to it, saith the Lord, a wall of fire in compass; and I shall be in glory in [the] middle thereof.

<sup>6</sup> A! A! A! flee ye from the land of the north, saith the Lord, for in four winds of heaven I scattered you, saith the Lord.

<sup>8</sup> For the Lord of hosts saith these things, After glory he sent me to heathen men, which robbed you; for he that shall touch you, shall touch the apple of mine eye.

<sup>9</sup> For lo! I raise mine hand on them, and they shall be preys to these that served them; and ye shall know, that the Lord of hosts sent me.

<sup>10</sup> Daughter of Zion, praise thou, and be glad; for lo! I come, and I shall dwell in [the] middle of thee, saith the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> And many folks shall be joined to the Lord in that day, and they shall be to me into a people, and I shall dwell in the middle of thee; and thou shalt know that the Lord of hosts sent me to thee.

<sup>12</sup> And the Lord shall wield Judah into his part, in the land hallowed, and shall choose yet Jerusalem.

<sup>13</sup> Each flesh be still from the face of the Lord, for he rose of his holy dwelling place.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> And the Lord showed to me the great priest Joshua, standing before the angel of the Lord; and Satan stood on his right half, that he should be adversary to him.

<sup>2</sup> And the Lord said to Satan, The Lord blame in thee, Satan, and the Lord that chose Jerusalem, blame in thee. Whether this is not a dead brand ravished from the fire?

<sup>3</sup> And Joshua was clothed with foul clothes, and stood before the face of the angel.

<sup>4</sup> Which answered, and said to them that stood before him, and he said, Do ye away foul clothes from him. And he said to him, Lo! I have done away from thee thy wickedness, and I have clothed thee with changing of clothes.

<sup>5</sup> And he said, Put ye a clean mitre [or cap] on his head. And they putted a clean mitre [or cap] on his head, and clothed him with clothes. And the angel of the Lord stood,

<sup>6</sup> and the angel of the Lord witnessed to Joshua, and said,

<sup>7</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, If thou shalt go in my ways, and shalt keep my keeping, also and thou shalt deem mine house, and shalt keep my porches; and I shall give to thee goers, of these that now here stand nigh.

<sup>8</sup> Hear thou, Joshua, great priest, thou and thy friends that dwell before thee, for they be men signifying thing[s] to coming. Lo! soothly I shall bring my servant springing up, either Christ born.

<sup>9</sup> For lo! the stone which I gave before Joshua, on one stone be seven eyes; and lo! I shall engrave the engraving thereof, saith the Lord of hosts, and I shall do away the wickedness of that land in one day.

<sup>10</sup> In that day, saith the Lord of hosts, a man shall call his friend under a vine, and under a fig tree.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> And the angel turned again, that spake in me, and raised me, as a man that is raised up out of his sleep.

<sup>2</sup> And he said to me, What seest thou? And I said, I saw, and lo! a candlestick all of gold, and the lamp thereof on the head thereof, and seven lanterns thereof on it, and seven vessels for to hold oil to the lanterns, that were on the head thereof.

<sup>3</sup> And two olives thereon, one of the right half of the lamp, and another on the left half thereof.

<sup>4</sup> And I answered, and said to the angel that spake in me, and I said, What be these things, my lord?

<sup>5</sup> And the angel that spake in me, answered, and said to me, Whether thou knowest not what be these things? And I said, No, my lord.

<sup>6</sup> And he answered, and said to me, and spake, This is the word of the Lord, saying to Zerubbabel, Not in host, neither in strength, but in my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>7</sup> Who art thou, great hill, before Zerubbabel, into plain? and he shall lead out the first stone, and shall make even grace to grace thereof.

<sup>8</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>9</sup> The hands of Zerubbabel founded this house, and the hands of him shall perform it; and ye shall know, that the Lord of hosts sent me to you.

<sup>10</sup> Who forsooth despised little days? and they shall be glad, and shall see a stone of tin in the hand of Zerubbabel. These be the seven eyes of the Lord, that run about into all earth.

<sup>11</sup> And I answered, and said to him, What be these twain [or two] olives on the right half of the candlestick, and at the left half thereof?

<sup>12</sup> And I answered the second time, and said to him, What be the twain [or two] ears, either ripe fruit, of olives that be beside the two pipes of gold, in which be oil vessels of gold?

<sup>13</sup> And he said to me, and spake, Whether thou knowest not what be these things? And I said, No, my lord.

<sup>14</sup> And he said, These be two sons of oil shining, which stand nigh to the lordly governor of all earth.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> And I was converted, and raised mine eyes, and saw, and lo! a book flying.

<sup>2</sup> And he said to me, What seest thou? And I said, Lo! I see a book flying; the length thereof was of twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof of ten cubits.

<sup>3</sup> And he said to me, This is the curse, that goeth on the face of all earth; for each thief shall be deemed, as it is written there; and each man swearing falsely shall be deemed of this also.

<sup>4</sup> I shall lead out it, saith the Lord of hosts, and it shall come to the house of a thief, and to the house of him that sweareth falsely in my name; and it shall dwell in the middle of his house, and shall waste him, and his trees, and his stones.

<sup>5</sup> And the angel went out, that spake in me, and said to me, Raise up thine eyes, and see, what this thing is that goeth out.

<sup>6</sup> And I said, What is it? And he said, This is an amphora, either a pot, going out. And he said, This is the eye of them in all earth.

<sup>7</sup> And lo! a talent of lead was borne up from it; and lo! a woman sitting in middle of the pot.

<sup>8</sup> And he said, This is unpiety, either unfaithfulness. And he casted down her in the middle of the pot, and sent a gobbet of lead into the mouth thereof.

<sup>9</sup> And I raised mine eyes, and saw, and lo! two women going out, and a spirit in the wings of them; and they had wings as the wings of a kite, and raised the pot betwixt heaven and earth.

<sup>10</sup> And I said to the angel that spake in me, Whither bear these the pot?

<sup>11</sup> And he said to me, That an house be builded thereto in the land of Shinar, and be stablished, and set there on his fundament.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> And I was converted, and raised mine eyes, and saw, and lo! four [four]-horsed carts going out of the middle of twain [or two] hills, and the hills were hills of brass.

<sup>2</sup> In the first four-horsed cart were red horses, and in the second four-horsed cart were black horses;

<sup>3</sup> and in the third four-horsed cart were white horses, and in the fourth four-horsed cart were diverse horses, and strong.

<sup>4</sup> And I answered, and said to the angel that spake in me, What be these things, my lord?

<sup>5</sup> And the angel answered, and said to me, These be four winds of heaven, which go out, that they stand before the lordshipper of all earth.

<sup>6</sup> In which were black horses, they went out into the land of the north; and the white went out after them; and the diverse went out into the land of the south.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth they that were strongest went out, and sought for to go, and run about by all earth. And he said, Go ye, and walk ye through the earth. And they walked through the earth.

<sup>8</sup> And he called me, and spake to me, and said, Lo! they that go out into the land of the north, made my spirit for to rest in the land of the north.

<sup>9</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to me, and said,

<sup>10</sup> Take thou of them that be of the transmigration, either captivity, of Heldai, and of Tobijah, and of Jedaiah; and thou shalt come in that day, and shalt enter into the house of Josiah, son of Zephaniah, that came from Babylon.

<sup>11</sup> And thou shalt take gold and silver, and shalt make crowns, and put on the head of Joshua, the great priest, the son of Josedech;

<sup>12</sup> and shalt speak to him, and say, The Lord of hosts saith these things, saying, Lo! a man, Coming forth, either Born, is his name, and under him it shall spring. And he shall build a temple to the Lord,

<sup>13</sup> and he shall make a temple to the Lord; and he shall bear glory, and shall sit, and shall be lord on his seat; and the priest shall be on his seat, and counsel of peace shall be betwixt them twain [for them two].

<sup>14</sup> And crowns shall be to Helem, and to Tobijah, and to Jedaiah, and to Hen, the son of Zephaniah, as a memorial in the temple of the Lord.

<sup>15</sup> And they that be far, shall come, and build in the temple of the Lord; and ye shall know, that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. Soothly this thing shall be, if by hearing ye shall hear the voice of your Lord God.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> And it is made in the fourth year of Darius, king, the word of the Lord was made to Zechariah, in the fourth day of the ninth month, that is Chisleu, that is, November.

<sup>2</sup> And Sherezer, and Regemmelech, and men that were with them, sent to the house of the Lord, for to pray the face of the Lord;

<sup>3</sup> that they should say to priests of the house of the Lord of hosts, and to prophets, and speak, Whether it is to weep to me in the fifth month, either I shall hallow me, as I did now many years?

<sup>4</sup> And the word of the Lord [of hosts] was made to me, and said,

<sup>5</sup> Speak thou to all the people of the land, and to priests, and say thou, When ye fasted, and wailed in the fifth and seventh months, by these seventy years, whether ye fasted a fast to me?

<sup>6</sup> And when ye ate, and drank, whether ye ate not to you, and drank not to yourselves?

<sup>7</sup> Whether the words of prophets be not, which the Lord spake in the hand of the former prophets, when yet Jerusalem was inhabited, and was full of riches, and it, and the cities thereof in compass thereof, and at the south and in field place was inhabited?

<sup>8</sup> And the word of the Lord was made to Zechariah, and said,

<sup>9</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, and speaketh, Deem ye true doom, and do ye mercy, and doings of mercy, each man with his brother.

<sup>10</sup> And do not ye falsely challenge a widow, and fatherless, either mother-less, and comeling, and poor man; and a man think not in his heart evil to his brother.

<sup>11</sup> And they would not take heed, and they turned away the shoulder, and went away, and made heavy their ears, lest they heard.

<sup>12</sup> And they set their heart as an adamant stone, lest they heard the law, and words which the Lord of hosts sent in his [holy] Spirit, by the hand of the former prophets; and great indignation was made of the Lord of hosts.

<sup>13</sup> And it is done, as he spake; and as they heard not, so they shall cry, and I shall not hear [them], saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>14</sup> And I scattered them by all realms, which they knew not, and the land is desolate from them; for that there was not a man going and turning again, and they have put [the] desirable land into desert.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> And the word of the Lord of hosts was made to me, and said,

<sup>2</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, I hated Zion with great fervor, and with great indignation I hated it.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, I am turned again to Zion, and I shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth, and [the] hill of the Lord of hosts shall be called an hill hallowed.

<sup>4</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Yet eld [or old] men and eld [or old] women shall dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and the staff of a man shall be in his hand, for the multitude of years.

<sup>5</sup> And the streets of the city shall be filled with young children and damsels, playing in the streets thereof.

<sup>6</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Though it shall be seen as hard to do before the eyes of the remnants of this people in those days, whether before mine eyes it shall be hard to do, saith the Lord of hosts?

<sup>7</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Lo! I shall save my people from the land of the east, and from the land of the going down of the sun;

<sup>8</sup> and I shall bring them back, and they shall dwell in the middle of Jerusalem; and they shall be to me into a people, and I shall be to them into God, and in truth, and in rightwiseness.

<sup>9</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Be your hands comforted, which hear in these days these words by the mouth of prophets, in the day in which the house of the Lord of hosts is founded, that the temple should be builded again.

<sup>10</sup> Soothly before those days hire of men was not, neither hire of work beasts was, neither to man entering and going out was peace for tribulation; and I let all men go, each against his neighbour.

<sup>11</sup> But now not after the former days I shall do to the remnants of this people, saith the Lord of hosts,

<sup>12</sup> but the seed of peace shall be; the vine shall give his fruit, and the earth shall give his burgeoning, and heavens shall give their dew; and I shall make the remnants of this people for to wield all these things.

<sup>13</sup> And it shall be, as ye, the house of Judah, and the house of Israel, were cursing among heathen men, so I shall save you, and ye shall be blessing. Do not ye dread, be your hands comforted;

<sup>14</sup> for the Lord of hosts saith these things, As I thought to torment you, when your fathers had stirred me to wrath, saith the Lord, and I had not mercy,

<sup>15</sup> so I converted thought in these days to do well to the house of Judah and to Jerusalem; do not ye dread.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore these be the words which ye shall do; speak ye truth, each man with his neighbour; deem ye truth and the doom of peace in your gates;

<sup>17</sup> and think ye not in your hearts, any man, evil against his friend, and love not a false oath; for all these things it be which I hate, saith the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> And the word of the Lord of hosts was made to me, and said,

<sup>19</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, The fasting of the fourth month, and the fasting of the fifth, and the fasting of the seventh, and the fasting of the tenth, shall be to the house of Judah into joy and gladness, and into solemnities full clear; love ye only truth and peace.

<sup>20</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, Peoples shall come on each side, and dwell in many cities;

<sup>21</sup> and the dwellers shall go, one to another, and say, Go we, and beseech the face of the Lord, and seek we the Lord of hosts; also I shall go.

<sup>22</sup> And many peoples shall come, and strong folks, for to seek the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, and to beseech the face of the Lord.

<sup>23</sup> The Lord of hosts saith these things, In those days, in which ten men of all languages of heathen men shall take hold, and they shall take the hem of a man a Jew, and say, We shall go with you; for we have heard that God is with you.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> The burden of the word of the Lord, in the land of Hadrach, and of Damascus, which shall be the rest thereof; for of the Lord is the eye of man, and of all [the] lineages of Israel.

<sup>2</sup> And Hamath shall be in the terms thereof, and Tyrus, and Sidon; for they took to them wisdom greatly.

<sup>3</sup> And Tyrus builded his stronghold, and gathered silver as earth, and gold as fen of streets.

<sup>4</sup> Lo! the Lord shall wield it, and shall smite in the sea the strength thereof, and it shall be devoured by fire.

<sup>5</sup> Ashkelon shall see, and shall dread; and Gaza, and shall sorrow full much; and Ekron, for the hope thereof is confounded; and the king shall perish from Gaza, and Ashkelon shall not be inhabited;

<sup>6</sup> and a parter shall sit in Ashdod, and I shall destroy the pride of Philistines.

<sup>7</sup> And I shall take away the blood of him from the mouth of him, and the abominations of him from the middle of the teeth of him, and he also shall be left to our God; and he shall be as a duke in Judah, and Ekron as Jebusite.

<sup>8</sup> And I shall compass mine house of these that hold knighthood to me, and go, and turn again; and an exactor, or unjust asker, shall no more pass on them, for now I saw with mine eyes.

<sup>9</sup> Thou daughter of Zion, make joy withoutforth enough; sing, thou daughter of Jerusalem; lo! thy king shall come to thee, he is just, and a saviour; he is poor, and ascending [or going up] on a she-ass, and on a colt or a foal, the son of a she-ass.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall lose the four-horsed cart of Ephraim, and an horse of Jerusalem, and the bow of battle shall be destroyed; and he shall speak peace to heathen men, and the power of him shall be from sea till to sea, and from floods, till to the ends of [the] earth.

<sup>11</sup> And thou in the blood of thy testament sentest out thy bound men from the pit in which is no water.

<sup>12</sup> Ye bound of hope, be turned again to stronghold; and today I tell, and I shall yield to thee double things,

<sup>13</sup> for I shall stretch forth to me Judah as a bow, I filled the land of Ephraim. And I shall raise thy sons, thou Zion, on thy sons, thou land of Greeks, and I shall set thee as the sword of strong men.

<sup>14</sup> And the Lord God shall be seen on them, and the dart of him shall go out as lightning. And the Lord God shall sing in a trump, and shall go in whirlwind of the south;

<sup>15</sup> the Lord of hosts shall defend them, and they shall devour, and make subject with stones of a sling; and they drinking, shall be filled as with wine, and shall be filled as vials, or cruets, and as horns of the altar.

<sup>16</sup> And the Lord God of them shall save them in that day, as a flock of his people, for holy stones shall be raised [up] on the land of him.

<sup>17</sup> For what is the good of him, and what is the fair thing of him, no but wheat of chosen men, and wine of burgeoning for the virgins?

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Ask ye of the Lord rain in late time, and the Lord shall make snows, and rain of might of cloud; and he shall give to them, to each by himself, herb in the field.

<sup>2</sup> For simulacra spake unprofitable things, and diviners saw leasing; and dreamers spake vainly, idly they comforted; therefore they be led away as a flock, they shall be tormented, for a shepherd is not to them.

<sup>3</sup> On shepherds my strong vengeance is wroth, and on the bucks of goats I shall visit; for the Lord of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Judah, and hath put them as an horse of his glory in battle.

<sup>4</sup> Of him shall be a cornerstone, and of him a little pale, of him a bow of battle, and of him each exactor, either unjust asker, shall go out together.

<sup>5</sup> And they shall be as strong men, defouling clay of ways in battle, and they shall fight, for the Lord is with them; and riders of horses shall be confounded.

<sup>6</sup> And I shall comfort the house of Judah, and I shall save the house of Joseph; and I shall convert them, for I shall have mercy on them; and they shall be as they were, when I had not cast away them; for I shall be the Lord God of them, and I shall graciously hear them.

<sup>7</sup> And they shall be as the strong men of Ephraim, and the heart of them shall be glad, as of wine; and the sons of them shall see, and be glad, and the heart of them shall make joy withoutforth in the Lord.

<sup>8</sup> I shall hiss to them, and I shall gather them, for I again-bought them, and I shall multiply them, as they were multiplied before.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall sow them among peoples, and from far they shall bethink of me; and they shall live with their sons, and shall turn again.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall bring again them from the land of Egypt, and I shall gather them from Assyrians; and I shall bring them to the land of Gilead and of Lebanon, and place shall not be found to them.

<sup>11</sup> And he shall pass in the wave of the sea, and shall smite waves in the sea, and all depths of flood shall be confounded; and the pride of Assur shall be meeked, and the sceptre of Egypt shall go away.

<sup>12</sup> I shall comfort them in the Lord, and they shall walk in the name of him, saith the Lord.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>2</sup> Yell, thou fir tree, for the cedar fell down, for great men be destroyed; yell, ye oaks of Bashan, for the strong forest is cut down.

<sup>3</sup> The voice of yelling of shepherds, for the great worship of them is destroyed; the voice of roaring of lions, for the pride of Jordan is wasted.

<sup>5</sup> which they that wielded slew; and sorrowed not, and sold them, and they said, Blessed be the Lord, we be made rich. And the shepherds of them spared not them,

<sup>6</sup> and I shall no more spare on them that inhabit the earth, saith the Lord. Lo! I shall betake men, each into the hand of his neighbour, and into the hand of his king, and they shall rend together the land; and I shall not deliver from the hand of them,

<sup>7</sup> and I shall feed the beast of slaying. For this thing, ye poor men of the flock, hear. And I took to me two staffs; one I called Fairness, and the tother I called Little Cord; and I fed the flock.

<sup>8</sup> And I cutted down three shepherds in one month, and my soul was drawn altogether in them; for also the soul of them varied in me.

<sup>9</sup> And I said, I shall not feed you; that that dieth, die; and that that is cut down, be cut down; and the residues devour, each man the flesh of his neighbour.

<sup>10</sup> And I took my staff, that was called Fairness, and I cutted down it, that I should make void my covenant, which I smote with all peoples.

<sup>11</sup> And it was made void in that day; and the poor men of the flock that kept to me, knew thus, for it is the word of the Lord.

<sup>12</sup> And I said to them, If it is good in your eyes, bring ye my meed; and if nay, rest ye. And they weighed my meed, thirty pieces of silver.

<sup>13</sup> And the Lord said to me, Cast away it to the maker of images, the fair price, by which I am appraised of them. And I took [the] thirty pieces of silver, and casted forth them in the house of the Lord, to the maker of images.

<sup>14</sup> And I cutted down my second staff, that was called Little Cord, that I should part, or unbind, the brother-hood betwixt Judah and Israel.

<sup>15</sup> And the Lord said to me, Yet take to thee the vessels of a fond [or foolish] shepherd;

<sup>16</sup> for lo! I shall raise a shepherd in earth, which shall not visit forsaken things, and shall not seek scattered things, and he shall not heal a thing all-broken, and shall not nourish forth that that standeth. And he shall eat flesh of the fat, and shall unbind the claws of them.

<sup>17</sup> A! the shepherd, and idol, forsaking the flock; sword on his arm, and on his right eye; the arm of him shall be dried with dryness, and his right eye waxing dark shall be made dark.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> The burden of the word of the Lord on Israel. And the Lord said, stretching forth heaven, and founding the earth, and making the spirit of a man in him,

<sup>2</sup> Lo! I shall set Jerusalem as a lintel of gluttony to all peoples in compass, but also Judah shall be in besieging against Jerusalem.

<sup>3</sup> And it shall be, in that day I shall set Jerusalem a stone of burden to all peoples; all that shall lift it shall be drawn with cutting down, and all realms of earth shall be gathered against it.

<sup>4</sup> In that day, saith the Lord, I shall smite each horse in[to] dread, either losing of mind, and the rider of him in[to] madness; and on the house of Judah I shall open mine eyes, and shall smite with blindness each horse of peoples.

<sup>5</sup> And the dukes of Judah shall say in their hearts, Be the dwellers of Jerusalem comforted to me in the Lord of hosts, the God of them.

<sup>6</sup> In that day I shall set the dukes of Judah as a chimney of fire in wood, and as a brand of fire in hay; and they shall devour at the right side and left side all peoples in compass. And Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in his place, in Jerusalem.

<sup>7</sup> And the Lord shall save the tabernacles of Judah, as in the beginning, that the house of David glory not greatly, and the glory of men dwelling in Jerusalem be not against Judah.

<sup>8</sup> In that day the Lord shall defend the dwellers of Jerusalem; and he that shall offend of them, shall be in that day as David, and the house of David shall be as of God, as the angel of the Lord in the sight of him.

<sup>9</sup> And it shall be, in that day I shall seek to all-break all folks that come against Jerusalem.

<sup>10</sup> And I shall pour out on the house of David, and on the dwellers of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace, and of prayers; and they shall behold to me, whom they pricked. And they shall bewail him with wailing, as on the one begotten son; and they shall make sorrow on him, as sorrow is wont to be made in the death of the first begotten son.

<sup>11</sup> In that day great wailing shall be in Jerusalem, as the wailing of Hadad-rimmon in the field of Megiddon.

<sup>12</sup> And the land shall wail; families and families by themselves; the families of the house of David by themselves, and the women of them by themselves; families of the house of Nathan by themselves, and the women of them by themselves;

<sup>13</sup> families of the house of Levi by themselves, and the women of them by themselves; families of Shimei by themselves, and the women of them by themselves.

<sup>14</sup> All other families, families and families by themselves, and the women of them by themselves.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> In that day an open well shall be to the house of David, and to men dwelling at Jerusalem, into washing away of a sinful man, and of a woman defouled in unclean blood.

<sup>2</sup> And it shall be, in that day, saith the Lord of hosts, I shall destroy the names of idols from the land, and they shall no more be thought on; and I shall take away from earth false prophets, and an unclean spirit.

<sup>3</sup> And it shall be, when any man shall prophesy any more, his father and mother that engendered him, shall say to him, Thou shalt not live, for thou hast spoken leasing in the name of the Lord; and his father and his mother, the engenderers of him, shall prick him, when he hath prophesied.

<sup>4</sup> And it shall be, in that day, prophets shall be ashamed, each of his vision, when he shall prophesy; neither they shall be covered with a mantle of sackcloth, that they lie;

<sup>5</sup> but he shall say, I am not a prophet; I am a man an earth-tiller, for Adam is mine ensample from my youth.

<sup>6</sup> And it shall be said to him, What be these wounds in the middle of thine hands? And he shall say, With these I was wounded in the house of them that loved me.

<sup>7</sup> Sword, be thou raised on my shepherd, and on a man cleaving to me, saith the Lord of hosts; smite thou the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered. And I shall turn mine hand to the little ones.

<sup>8</sup> And two parts of the people shall be in each land, saith the Lord, and they shall be scattered, and shall fail, and the third part shall be left in it.

<sup>9</sup> And I shall lead the third part by fire, and I shall burn them, as silver is burnt, and I shall prove them, as gold is proved. He shall call to help my name, and I shall graciously hear him; and I shall say, Thou art my people, and he shall say, Thou art my Lord God.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> Lo! days shall come, saith the Lord, and thy spoils shall be parted in the middle of thee.

<sup>2</sup> And I shall gather all folks to Jerusalem, into battle; and the city shall be taken, and houses shall be destroyed, and women shall be defouled. And the half part of the city shall go out into captivity, and the residue of the people shall not be taken away from the city.

<sup>3</sup> And the Lord shall go out, and shall fight against those folks, as he fought in the day of strife.

<sup>4</sup> And his feet shall stand in that day on the hill of Olives, which is against Jerusalem at the east. And the hill of Olives shall be carved or parted of the middle part thereof to the east, and to the west, by full great before-breaking; and the half of the hill shall be departed to the north, and the half thereof to the south.

<sup>5</sup> And ye shall flee to the valley of mine hills, for the valley of hills shall be joined together till to the next. And ye shall flee, as ye fled from the face of earth-moving in the days of Uzziah, king of Judah; and my Lord God shall come, and all saints with him.

<sup>6</sup> And it shall be, in that day light shall not be, but cold and frost.

<sup>7</sup> And there shall be one day, which is known to the Lord, not day, neither night, and in the time of eventide light shall be.

<sup>8</sup> And it shall be, in that day quick waters shall go out of Jerusalem, the half of them shall go out to the east sea, and the half of them to the last sea; in summer and in winter they shall be.

<sup>9</sup> And the Lord shall be king on all earth; in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name shall be one.

<sup>10</sup> And all earth shall turn again till to [or unto] desert, from the little hill Rimmon to the south of Jerusalem. And it shall be raised, and shall dwell in his place, from the gate of Benjamin till to the place of the former gate, and till to the gate of the corners, and from the tower of Hananeel till to the pressers of the king.

<sup>11</sup> And they shall dwell therein, and cursedness shall no more be, but Jerusalem shall sit secure.

<sup>12</sup> And this shall be the wound by which the Lord shall smite all folks that fought against Jerusalem; the flesh of each man standing on his feet shall fail, either rot, and his eyes shall fail altogether in their holes, and their tongue shall fail altogether in their mouth.

<sup>13</sup> In that day great noise of the Lord shall be in them, and a man shall catch the hand of his neighbour; and his hand shall be locked altogether on the hand of his neighbour.

<sup>14</sup> But also Judah shall fight against Jerusalem; and the riches of all folks in compass shall be gathered together, gold, and silver, and many clothes enough.

<sup>15</sup> And so falling shall be of horse, and mule, and camel, and ass, and of all work beasts that were in those castles, as this falling.

<sup>16</sup> And all that shall be residue of all folks, that came against Jerusalem, shall go up from year into year, that they worship the king, Lord of hosts, and hallow the feast of tabernacles.

<sup>17</sup> And it shall be, rain shall not be on them that shall not go up of the meines of earth to Jerusalem, that they worship the king, Lord of hosts.

<sup>18</sup> That and if the meine of Egypt shall not go up, and shall not come, neither on them shall be rain; but falling shall be, by which the Lord shall smite all folks, which went not up, for to hallow the feast of tabernacles.

<sup>19</sup> This shall be the sin of Egypt, and this the sin of all folks, that ascended not [or went not up], for to hallow the feast of tabernacles.

<sup>20</sup> In that day, that that is on the bridle of the horse shall be inscribed, Holy to the Lord; and cauldrons shall be in the house of the Lord, as vials, or cruets, before the altar.

<sup>21</sup> And every cauldron in Jerusalem and Judah shall be hallowed to the Lord of hosts. And all men shall come offering, and shall take of those [or them], and shall see the in those [or In them]; and a merchant shall no more be in the house of the Lord of hosts in that day.

MALACHI

<sup>2</sup> I loved you, saith the Lord, and ye said, In what thing lovedest thou us? Whether Esau was not the brother of Jacob, saith the Lord, and I loved Jacob, <sup>3</sup> but I hated Esau? And I have put Seir, the hills of him, into wilderness, and his heritage into dragons of desert.

<sup>4</sup> That if Idumea saith, We be destroyed, but we shall turn again, and build those things that be destroyed; the Lord of hosts saith these things, These men shall build, and I shall destroy; and they shall be called the terms of wickedness, and a people to whom the Lord is wroth, till into without end.

<sup>5</sup> And your eyes shall see, and ye shall say, The Lord be magnified on the term of Israel.

<sup>6</sup> The son honoureth the father, and the servant shall dread his lord; therefore if I am the father, where is mine honour? and if I am the lord, where is my dread? saith the Lord of hosts. A! ye priests, to you that despise my name; and ye say, Wherein have we despised thy name?

<sup>7</sup> Ye offer on mine altar defouled, either unclean, bread, and ye say, Wherein have we defouled thee? In that thing that ye say, The board of the Lord is despised.

<sup>8</sup> If ye offer a blind beast to be sacrificed, whether it is not evil? And if ye offer a crooked and sick beast, whether it is not evil? Offer thou it to thy duke, if it shall please him, either if he shall receive thy face, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>9</sup> And now beseech ye the cheer of the Lord, that he have mercy on you; for of your hand this thing is done, if in any manner he receive your faces, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>10</sup> Who is in you that closeth doors, and burneth mine altar of his own will, either freely? Will or Delight is not to me in you, saith the Lord of hosts; and I shall not receive a gift of your hand.

<sup>11</sup> For from the rising of the sun till to the going down, my name is great among heathen men; and in each place a clean offering is sacrificed, and offered to my name; for my name is great among heathen men, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>12</sup> And ye have defouled it in that that ye say, The board of the Lord is defouled, and that that is put above is contemptible, or worthy for to be despised, with [the] fire that devoureth it.

<sup>13</sup> And ye said, Lo! of travail; and ye have blown it away, saith the Lord of hosts. And ye brought in of ravens a crooked thing, and sick, and brought in a gift; whether I shall receive it of your hand? saith the Lord.

<sup>14</sup> Cursed is the guileful, that hath in his flock a male beast, and he making a vow, offereth a feeble beast to the Lord; for I am a great king, saith the Lord of hosts, and my name is dreadful among folks.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>2</sup> If ye will hear, and if ye will not put on the heart, that ye give glory to my name, saith the Lord of hosts, I shall send neediness into you, and I shall curse your blessings; and I shall curse them, for ye have not put on the heart.

<sup>3</sup> Lo! I shall cast forth to you the arm, and I shall scatter on your face the drit of your solemnities, and it shall take you with it.

<sup>4</sup> And ye shall know, that I sent to you this commandment, that my covenant were with Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>5</sup> My covenant was with him of life and peace; and I gave to him a dread, and he dreaded me, and he dreaded of the face of my name.

<sup>6</sup> The law of truth was in his mouth, and wickedness was not found in his lips; in peace and in equity he walked with me, and he turned away many men from wickedness.

<sup>7</sup> For the lips of a priest keep knowing, and they shall again-seek the law of his mouth, for he is the angel of the Lord of hosts.

<sup>8</sup> But ye went away from the way, and caused to stumble full many in the law; ye made void the covenant of Levi, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>9</sup> For the which thing and I gave you worthy to be contemptible, either worthy to be despised, and bowed to all peoples, as ye kept not my ways, and took a face [of a person] in the law.

<sup>10</sup> Whether not one father is of all you? whether not one God made of nought you? Why therefore each of you despiseth his brother, and defouleth the covenant of your fathers?

<sup>11</sup> Judah trespassed, and abomination is done in Israel, and in Jerusalem; for Judah defouled the hallowing of the Lord, which he loved, and he had the daughter of an alien god.

<sup>12</sup> The Lord destroy the man that shall do this thing, the master and disciple, from the tabernacle[s] of Jacob, and him that offereth a gift to the Lord of hosts.

<sup>13</sup> And again ye did this thing; ye covered with tears the altar of the Lord, with weeping, and wailing; so that I behold no more to sacrifice, neither receive anything pleasant of your hand.

<sup>14</sup> And ye said, For what cause? For the Lord witnessed betwixt thee and the wife of thy puberty, that is, time of marriage, whom thou despisedest, and this is thy fellow, and the wife of thy covenant of peace.

<sup>15</sup> Whether one made not, and the residue of spirit is his? and what seeketh one, no but the seed of God? Therefore keep ye your spirit, and do not thou despise the wife of thy youth;

<sup>16</sup> when thou hatest her, leave thou her, saith the Lord God of Israel. Forsooth wickedness shall cover the cloth of him, saith the Lord of hosts; keep ye your spirit, and do not ye despise.

<sup>17</sup> Ye made the Lord for to travail in your words, and ye said, Wherein made we him for to travail? In that that ye say, Each that doeth evil, is good in the sight of the Lord, and such men please him; either certainly, Where is the God of doom?

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Lo! I shall send mine angel, and he shall make ready the way before my face; and anon the Lord, whom ye seek, shall come to his holy temple, and the angel of the testament, whom ye will or desire. Lo! he cometh, saith the Lord of hosts;

<sup>2</sup> and who shall be able to think the day of his coming? and who shall stand to see him? For he shall be as fire welling together, and as the herb of fullers, either tuckers;

<sup>3</sup> and he shall sit welling together and cleansing silver, and he shall purge the sons of Levi; and he shall purge them as gold and as silver, and they shall be offering to the Lord sacrifices in rightwiseness.

<sup>4</sup> And the sacrifice of Judah and of Jerusalem shall please the Lord, as the days of the world, and as old years.

<sup>5</sup> And I shall come to you in doom, and I shall be a swift witness to mis-doers, either enchanterers of devil's craft, and to adulterers, and to forsworn men, and that falsely challenge the hire of an hired man, and widows, and fatherless children, and oppress a pilgrim, and dreaded not me, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth I am the Lord, and I am not changed; and ye sons of Jacob be not wasted.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth from the days of your fathers ye went away from my lawful things, and kept not; turn ye again to me, and I shall again turn to you, saith the Lord of hosts. And ye said, In what thing shall we turn again?

<sup>8</sup> If a man shall torment God, for ye tormented me. And ye said, In what thing tormented we thee? In tithes and in first fruits;

<sup>9</sup> and ye be cursed in neediness, and all ye folk deceived me, and tormented.

<sup>10</sup> Bring ye each tithe into my barn, that meat be in mine house, and prove ye me on this thing, saith the Lord, if I shall not open to you the gutters of heaven, and shall shed out to you blessing, till to abundance.

<sup>11</sup> And I shall blame for you that that devoureth, and he shall not destroy the fruit of your land; neither barren vine shall be in the field, saith the Lord of hosts,

<sup>12</sup> and all folks shall say you blessed; for ye shall be a desirable land, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>13</sup> Your words waxed strong on me, saith the Lord; and ye said, What have we spoken against thee?

<sup>14</sup> And ye said, He is vain, that serveth God; and what winning for we kept his behests, and for we went sorrowful before the Lord of hosts?

<sup>15</sup> Therefore now we say proud men [be] blessed; for they be builded doing wickedness, and they tempted God, and be made safe.

<sup>16</sup> Then men dreading God spake, each with his neighbour; and the Lord perceived, and heard, and a book of mind or remembrance is written before him, to them that dreaded God, and thought on his name.

<sup>17</sup> And they shall be to me, saith the Lord of hosts, in the day in which I shall make, into a special treasure; and I shall spare them, as a man spareth his son serving to him.

<sup>18</sup> And ye shall be turned again, and ye shall see, what is betwixt the just man and the unpious, betwixt the serving to the Lord, and not serving to him.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> For lo! a day shall come, burning as a chimney; and all proud men, and all that do unpiety shall be stubble; and the day coming shall enflame them, saith the Lord of hosts, which shall not leave to them root and burgeoning.

<sup>2</sup> And to you dreading my name the sun of rightwiseness shall rise, and health in pens or wings of him; and ye shall go out, and shall leap, as a calf of the drove.

<sup>3</sup> And ye shall tread the unpious men, when they shall be ashes under the sole of your feet, in the day in which I do, saith the Lord of hosts.

<sup>4</sup> Bethink ye on the law of my servant Moses, which I commanded to him in Horeb, to all Israel commandments and dooms.

<sup>5</sup> Lo! I shall send to you Elijah, the prophet, before that the great day and horrible of the Lord come.

<sup>6</sup> And he shall turn again the heart of fathers to sons, and the heart of sons to the fathers of them, lest peradventure I come, and smite the earth with curse. Amen.

TOBIT

<sup>1</sup> Tobit* was of the lineage and of the city of Naphtali, which is in the higher parts of Galilee, above Hazor, behind [or after] the way that leadeth to the west, and it hath in the left side the city of Thisbe,

<sup>2</sup> when he was taken [or he was caught] in the days of Shalmaneser, king of Assyrians [or of Assyria], never-theless he set in captivity, either taken prisoner, forsook not the way of truth,

<sup>3</sup> so that he parted each day all things which he might have, with his captive brethren that were of his kin.

<sup>4</sup> And when he was younger than all others in the lineage of Naphtali, nevertheless he did no childish thing in work [or in deed].

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth when all the Jews went to worship the golden calves, which Jeroboam, the king of Israel, had made, this Tobit alone fled the companies of all those Jews;

<sup>6</sup> and he went to Jerusalem, to the temple of the Lord, and there he worshipped the Lord God of Israel; and he offered faithfully all his first fruits, and his tithes;

<sup>7</sup> so that in the third year he gave all his tithe to converts, that is, men that were turned to the belief [or the converted from Gentiles], and to comelings.

<sup>8</sup> The young man kept these things, and things like these, by [or after] he law of God of heaven.

<sup>9</sup> And when he was made a man, he took a wife, Anna, of his lineage; and he engendered [or he begat] of her a son, and he put his own name to him;

<sup>10</sup> whom he taught from young childhood to dread God, and for to abstain from all sin. [whom from the time that he began to speak, he taught to dread God, and to abstain from all sin.]

<sup>11</sup> Therefore when by captivity Tobit was come, with his wife and son, into the city of Nineveh, with all his lineage,

<sup>12</sup> and all ate there of the meats of heathen men [or all ate of the meats of Gentiles], this Tobit kept his soul, clean, and he was never defouled in the meats of them, that were forbidden to Jews by Moses' law.

<sup>13</sup> And for he was mindful of the Lord in all his heart, God gave grace to him in the sight of Shalmaneser, the king;

<sup>14</sup> and he gave to Tobit power to go wither ever he would, and he had freedom to do whatever things he would.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore he went by all men that were in [the] captivity, and gave to them the behests [or admonishings] of health.

<sup>16</sup> And when he was come into Rages, a city of Media, and had ten talents of silver, of these things by [or with] which he was honoured of the king;

<sup>17</sup> and he saw Gabael needy, that was of his lineage, with much company of his kin, Tobit gave to him, under an obligation [or under writing], the foresaid weight of silver.

<sup>18</sup> And after much time, after that Shalmaneser, the king, was dead, when Sennacherib, his son, reigned for him [or when his son Sennacherib reigned for him], and had the sons of Israel hateful in his sight,

<sup>19</sup> Tobit went each day by all his kindred, and comforted them, and he parted [or divided] of his chattel to each man, as he might;

---

* CHAPTER 1:1 This story of Tobit befelled in the sixth year of king Hezekiah.

<sup>20</sup> he fed hungry men, and gave clothes to naked men, and he busily ordained sepulchres to dead men and slain.

<sup>21</sup> And when king Sennacherib turned again, fleeing from Judea for the vengeance that God did there to him for his blasphemy, and was wroth, and killed many of the sons of Israel, Tobit buried their bodies.

<sup>22</sup> And after that this was told to the king, he commanded Tobit to be slain, and he took from him all his chattel [or all his substance].

<sup>23</sup> And Tobit fled with his son and with his wife, and he was hid naked, that is, spoiled of all his chattel, for many men loved him.

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth after five and forty days, the sons of the king killed the king;

<sup>25</sup> and then Tobit turned again to his house, and all his chattel was restored to him.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth after these things, when a feast day of the Lord was, and a good meat was made in the house of Tobit, he said to his son,

<sup>2</sup> Go thou, and bring some men of our lineage, that dread God, that they eat with us.

<sup>3</sup> And when he, young Tobias, was gone forth, he turned again, and told to his father, that one of the sons of Israel lay strangled in the street; and anon Tobit rose up from his sitting place, and left the meat, and came fasting to the body;

<sup>4</sup> and he took it, and bare it to his house privily, for to bury him warily [or slyly], when the sun was gone down.

<sup>5</sup> And when he had hid the body, he ate bread with mourning and trembling,

<sup>6</sup> and remembered the word, which the Lord said by Amos, the prophet, Your feast days shall be turned into mourning and lamentation, either wailing, [or into wailing and sorrowing].

<sup>7</sup> And when the sun was gone down, Tobit went, and buried him.

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth all his neighbours blamed [or reproved] him, and said, Now for the cause [or because] of this thing thou were commanded to be slain, and scarcely thou hast escaped the behest [or the commandment] of death, and again thou buriest dead men?

<sup>9</sup> But Tobit dreaded more God than the king, and he took away the bodies of slain men, and hid them in his house, and buried those in the middle of nights [or in the midnights he buried them].

<sup>10</sup> And it befelled, that in a day Tobit was made weary of burying dead bodies; and he came home, and laid himself beside a wall, and slept there;

<sup>11</sup> and while he slept, hot turds, or drit, fell down from the nest of swallows upon his eyes; and he was made blind.

<sup>12</sup> And therefore the Lord suffered this temptation to befall to him, that the ensample of his patience should be given to after-comers, as also it is of holy Job.

<sup>13</sup> For why when Tobit dreaded God ever[more] from his young childhood, and kept his commandments, he was not sorry, or heavy, or grutching against God, for that the sickness of blindness came to him;

<sup>14</sup> but he dwelled unmovable in the dread of God, and did thankings to God in all the days of his life.

<sup>15</sup> For why as kings upbraided saint or blessed Job, so it befelled to this Tobit, that his elders and kinsmen scorned his life, and said,

<sup>16</sup> Where is thine hope*, for which thou didest alms-deeds and buryings?

<sup>17</sup> And Tobit blamed them, and said,

---

* CHAPTER 2:16 These believed the rewarding of good and of evil is only in present life, as the friends of Job did.

<sup>18</sup> Do not ye speak so, for we be the sons of holy men, and we abide that life, which God shall give to them that change never their faith from him.

<sup>19</sup> And Anna, his wife, went each day to the work of weaving, and she brought home the livelode [or the lifelode] which she might get of the travail of her hands.

<sup>20</sup> Whereof it befell, that she took a kid of goats, for her weaving, and she brought it home.

<sup>21</sup> And when her husband had heard the voice of this kid bleating, he said, Look ye, lest peradventure this kid be gotten of theft [or it be stolen], but if it so be yield ye it again to his lords; for it is not leaveful, either to eat either to touch anything of theft.

<sup>22</sup> At these words the wife of Tobit was wroth, and answered, Now is openly thine hope made vain, and thine alms-deeds have appeared, that is, feigned and void, as done for hypocrisy.

<sup>23</sup> And by these and other such words she said shame [or put reproof] to him.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Then Tobit inwardly sorrowed, and began to pray with tears, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Lord, thou art just, and all thy dooms be just, and all thy ways be mercy, and truth, and doom.

<sup>3</sup> And now, Lord, have thou mind of me, and take thou not vengeance of my sins, neither have thou mind of my trespasses [or nor remember thou my guilts], neither of my fathers.

<sup>4</sup> For we obeyed not to thy commandments, and therefore we be taken into rifling [or wasting], and into captivity, and into death, and into a fable or jangling, and into shame [or reproof] to all nations, among which thou hast scattered us.

<sup>5</sup> And now, Lord, thy dooms be great and dreadful; for we have not done after thy commandments, and we have not gone cleanly [or clearly] before thee.

<sup>6</sup> And now, Lord, by [or after] thy will do thou mercy with me, and command thou my spirit to be received in peace; for it speedeth more to me to die than to live.

<sup>7</sup> And also it befell in the same day, that Sarah, the daughter of Raguel, was in Rages, a city of Media, and she heard shame [or the reproof] of one of the handmaids of her father;

<sup>8</sup> for she was given to seven husbands, and a fiend [or a devil], Asmodeus by name, killed them, anon as they had entered [in] to her.

<sup>9</sup> And when Sarah blamed her maid for her guilt, the damsel answered to her, and said, Thou slayeress of thine husbands, see we never upon earth son either daughter of thee;

<sup>10</sup> whether also thou wilt slay me, as also thou hast slain seven men? At this word Sarah went into the higher closet [or the over bed-place] of her house, and three days and three nights she ate not, neither drank;

<sup>11</sup> but she continued in prayer with tears, and besought God, that he should deliver her from this shame [or reproof].

<sup>12</sup> And it was done in the third day, while she had fulfilled her prayer,

<sup>13</sup> she blessed the Lord, and said, God of our fathers, thy name is blessed, [Blessed is thy name, God of our fathers], which when thou hast been wroth, [thou] shalt do mercy, and in time of tribulation thou forgivest sins to them, that inwardly call thee.

<sup>14</sup> Lord, to thee I turn altogether my face; and I lift up mine eyes to thee. [To thee, Lord, I turn my face, and to thee mine eyes I rear.]

<sup>15</sup> Lord, I ask of thee, that thou loose me from the bond of this shame, either certainly that thou take me away from above the earth.

<sup>16</sup> Lord, thou knowest, that I never coveted man for fleshly lust, and I have kept my soul clean from all covetousness [or lust].

<sup>17</sup> I meddled me never with players dissolutely and dishonestly, [or Never with players I mingled me], neither I gave myself to be partner with them that go in unstableness.

<sup>18</sup> But, Lord, I consented to take an husband with thy dread, not with my lust.

<sup>19</sup> And either I was unworthy to them, either they peradventure were not worthy to me; for in hap [or peradventure] thou hast kept me to another husband.

<sup>20</sup> For thy counsel is not in the power of man to know it.

<sup>21</sup> Forsooth each that worshippeth thee hath this for certain, that if his life is in proving, he shall be crowned, if he continue patiently; soothly if he is in tribulation, he shall be delivered; and if he is in chastising, it shall be leaveful to come to thy mercy.

<sup>22</sup> For thou delightest not in our losses; for after tempest thou makest peaceable, and after mourning and weeping thou bringest [or pourest] in full out joying.

<sup>23</sup> God of Israel, thy name be blessed into worlds, that is, till into without end.

<sup>24</sup> In that time the prayers of both Tobit and Sarah were heard in [the] sight of the glory of the highest God [or the most good God];

<sup>25</sup> and Raphael, the holy angel of the Lord, was sent to heal them both, whose prayers were rehearsed in one time in the sight of the Lord.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Therefore when Tobit guessed his prayer to be heard, that he might die, he called Tobias, his son, to him,

<sup>2</sup> and said to him, My son, hear thou the words of my mouth, and build or ground thou them as a fundament in thine heart.

<sup>3</sup> When God hath taken my soul, bury thou my body; and thou shalt do honour to thy mother in all the days of her life;

<sup>4</sup> for thou owest to be mindful, what perils and how great perils she suffered for thee in her womb.

<sup>5</sup> And when also she hath *[full-]*filled or ended the time of her life, thou shalt bury her beside me.

<sup>6</sup> And in all the days of thy life have thou God in mind, and be thou ware [or beware], lest anytime thou consent to sin, and forsake the behests of our God.

<sup>7</sup> And of thy own chattel [or thy substance] do thou alms-[deeds], and do not thou turn away thy face from any poor man*; and so it shall be done, that the face of the Lord be not turned away from thee.

<sup>8</sup> As thou mayest, that is, after thy power, be thou merciful. [What manner wise thou shalt be able, so be thou merciful.]

<sup>9</sup> If thou hast much, give thou plenteously [or abundantly]; if thou hast a little, also be thou busy to part willfully or gladly a little.

<sup>10</sup> Certainly then thou treasurest to thee a good meed, in the day of need;

<sup>11</sup> for why alms-[deeds] delivereth from all sin and from death, and shall not suffer the soul to go into dark-nesses.

<sup>12</sup> Alms-[deeds] shall be the great trust before the highest God to all men doing it.

<sup>13</sup> Son, take heed to thyself, and flee from all fornication, and besides thy wife, suffer thou never to know sin.

<sup>14</sup> And suffer thou never pride to have lordship in thy wit, neither in thy word; for all loss [or perdition], either damnation, took beginning in pride.

---

* CHAPTER 4:7 If thou mayest not give chattel, give thou will, and sign of compassion.

<sup>15</sup> Whoever worketh anything to thee, yield thou anon his meed, and utterly the hire of thine hired man, or thy workman, dwell it not with thee.

<sup>16</sup> That that thou hatest to be done to thee of another man, see thou, lest anytime thou do that thing to another man. [That of another thou hatest to be done to thee, look thou, that anytime thou do it not to another.]

<sup>18</sup> Ordain thy bread and thy wine on the sepulchre, or the burying, of a just [or rightwise] man, and do not thou eat and drink thereof with sinners.

<sup>20</sup> In all time bless thou God, and ask thou of him, that he dress [or make ready] thy ways, and all thy counsels dwell in him.

<sup>21</sup> Also, my son, I show to thee, that while thou were yet a little child [or little infant], I gave ten talents of silver to Gabael, in Rages, a city of Media; and I have his obligation [or the writ of it] with me;

<sup>22</sup> therefore inquire thou busily, how thou shalt come to him, and receive thou of him the foresaid weight of silver, and restore to him his obligation [or his writ].

<sup>23</sup> My son, do not thou dread; forsooth we lead a poor life, but we shall have many goods, if we dread God, and go away from all sin†, and do well.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Then Tobias answered to his father and said, Father, I shall do all things, whichever [or whatever] thou commandedest to me;

<sup>2</sup> but I know not, how I shall get this money; Gabael knoweth not me, and I know not him; what token shall I give to him? but neither I knew anytime the way, by which me goeth thither.

<sup>3</sup> Then his father answered to him, and said, Certainly I have his obligation here with me, which the while thou showest it to him, he shall restore [or yield] anon the money.

<sup>4</sup> But go now, and inquire [or ensearch] to thee some faithful man, that shall go with thee for his hire safe [or saved his meed], that thou receive that money yet while I live.

<sup>5</sup> Then Tobias went forth, and he found a shining young man, standing, tucked up [or gird], and as ready to go;

<sup>6</sup> and he knew not that it was the angel [or an angel] of God. And he greeted the young man, and said, Of whence have we thee, good young man?

<sup>7</sup> And he answered, I am of the sons of Israel. And Tobias said to him, Knowest thou the way, that leadeth into the country of Media?

<sup>8</sup> To whom he answered, I know it, and I have gone often all the ways thereof, and I have dwelled with Gabael, your cousin/your brother, that dwelleth in Rages, a city of Media, which city is set in Ecbatana.

<sup>9</sup> To whom Tobias said, I beseech thee, abide thou me here, till I tell these things to my father.

<sup>10</sup> Then Tobias entered, and told all these things to his father; on the which things his father wondered, and he prayed the young man, that he would enter [or should come] in to him.

<sup>11</sup> Then he entered, and greeted Tobit, and said to him, Joy be ever-[more] to thee!

<sup>12</sup> And Tobit said, What manner joy shall be to me, that sit in darkneses, and see not the light of heaven?

† CHAPTER 4:23 That is, deadly sin, for we may not utterly eschew all venial in this life.

<sup>13</sup> To whom the young man said, Be thou of strong wit; it is in the most nigh time, or full nigh, that thou be healed [or cured] of God.

<sup>14</sup> Then Tobit said to him, Whether thou mayest lead my son to Gabael into Rages, a city of Media, and when thou comest again, I shall restore [or I shall yield] thy meed to thee?

<sup>15</sup> And the angel said to him, I shall lead him thither, and bring again him to thee/ and I shall lead again him whole to thee.

<sup>16</sup> To whom Tobit answered, I pray thee, show to me, of what house, either of what lineage thou art?

<sup>17</sup> To whom Raphael, the angel, said, Askest thou the kin [or the kindred] of the hired man, either askest thou who is the hired man himself, that shall go with thy son?

<sup>18</sup> But lest peradventure I make thee doubtful, I am Azariah, that is interpreted, the helper of God, the son of the great Ananias, that is interpreted, the grace of God. [But lest peradventure I make thee stirred, I am Azariah, the son of great Ananias.]

<sup>19</sup> And Tobit answered, Thou art of great kin; but I ask, or pray, thee, that thou be not wroth, that I would know thy kin [or thy kindred].

<sup>20</sup> And the angel said to him, I shall lead forth thy son whole [or sound], and I shall bring again to thee thy son whole [or sound] /and I shall lead him again whole [or sound] to thee.

<sup>21</sup> And Tobit answered, and said, Well go ye, and the Lord be in your way, and his angel go with you.

<sup>22</sup> Then when all things were ready, that should be borne in the way with them, Tobias made farewell to his father and his mother; and both went together/and they walked forth both together.

<sup>23</sup> And when they were gone forth, his mother began to weep, and to say to old Tobit, Thou hast taken the staff*, or the substance, of our eld age[or The staff of our eld thou hast taken away], and hast sent him away from us;

<sup>24</sup> I would that that money had never been, that thou hast sent him for/for which thou sentest him;

<sup>25</sup> our poverty sufficed to us, that we should have areckoned this thing to be riches to us /that we should areckon this riches, that we see our son beside us.

<sup>26</sup> And Tobit said to her, Do not thou weep/Weep thou not; our son shall come safe thither, and he shall turn again safe to us, and thine eyes shall see him.

<sup>27</sup> Soothly I believe, that the good angel of God goeth with him, and that angel shall dispose well all things, that be done about him, so that he turn again with joy to us.

<sup>28</sup> At this voice, or word, his mother ceased to weep, and was still.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> And Tobias went forth, and a dog pursued him [or an hound followed him], and he dwelled, or abode, in the first dwelling of his journey beside the flood of Tigris.

<sup>2</sup> And he went forth to wash his feet; and lo! a great fish went out to devour him.

<sup>3</sup> Which fish Tobias dreaded, and cried with great voice, and said, Sire, this fish assaileth me.

<sup>4</sup> And the angel said to him, Take the fish by the gill, or by the jaw, [or Catch his fin], and draw him to thee. And when he had done this thing, he drew the fish into a dry place, and it began to sprawl before his feet.

---

* CHAPTER 5:23 That is, the sustaining, for children owe to fathers and mothers the service of reverence, and of needful purveyance, if they have need.

<sup>5</sup> Then the angel said to him, Draw out the entrails of this fish [or Open this fish], and keep to thee his heart and gall and maw; for these things be needful to medicines profitably.

<sup>6</sup> And when he had done this thing, he roasted the flesh thereof, and they took with them in the way; and they salted other things, that should suffice to them in the way, till they came into Rages, the city of Media.

<sup>7</sup> Then Tobias asked the angel, and said to him, Azarias, brother, I beseech thee, that thou say to me, what remedy these things shall have, which thou hast commanded to be kept of the fish.

<sup>8</sup> And the angel answered, and said to him, If thou puttest a little part of his heart upon hot coals, the smoke thereof driveth away all kind of fiends [or devils], either from man either from woman, so that it nigh no more to them.

<sup>9</sup> And the gall is much worthy to anoint eyes, in which is a web [or rime], and they shall be healed [or be whole].

<sup>10</sup> And Tobias said to him, Where wilt thou, that we dwell, or abide?

<sup>11</sup> And the angel answered, and said, Here is a man, Raguel by name, a nigh man of thy lineage, and he hath a daughter, Sarah by name; but neither he hath male child neither any other female or maid child, except her.

<sup>12</sup> All his chattel [or his substance] is due to thee; and it behooveth thee have her to thy wife.

<sup>13</sup> Therefore ask thou her of her father; and he shall give her a wife to thee.

<sup>14</sup> Then Tobias answered, and said, I have heard, that she was given to seven husbands, and all they be dead; but I have heard this also, that a fiend [or a devil] killed them.

<sup>15</sup> And therefore I dreaded, lest peradventure also these things befall to me; and since I am one alone to my father and mother, I put down with sorrow their eld age to hells/and since I am an only son to my father and mother, I dread to put down to hell their eld age with dreariness.

<sup>16</sup> Then the angel Raphael said to him, Hear thou me, and I shall show to thee, who they be, over whom the fiend [or the devil] hath mastery;

<sup>17</sup> certainly the fiend hath power over them, that take so their weddings [or wedlock], that they close out God from them, and from their mind; the fiend [or the devil] hath power over them, that give so attention to their lechery [or lusts], as an horse and a mule do, that have none under-standing.

<sup>18</sup> But when thou hast taken her to wife, enter into thy bed-place, and by three days be thou continent from her, or be thou chaste abstaining thee from her in all fleshly lust, and to none other thing thou shalt give attention with her, but only to prayers.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth in that first night, when the maw of the fish is burnt, the fiend [or the devil] shall be driven away.

<sup>20</sup> And in the second night, thou shalt be received [or admitted] in the coupling, or marriage, of holy patriarchs.

<sup>21</sup> And in the third night, thou shalt get blessing, that whole [or sound] sons be engendered of you.

<sup>22</sup> But when the third night is passed, thou shalt take the virgin [or the maiden] with the dread of the Lord, and thou shalt be led more by the love of begetting of children than by lust, that in the seed of Abraham thou get blessing in sons.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth they entered [or went in] to Raguel; and Raguel received them with joy.

<sup>2</sup> And Raguel beheld Tobias, and said to Edna, his wife, This young man is full like my sister's son [or How like is this young man to our aunt's son].

<sup>3</sup> And when he had said these things, he said, Of whence be ye, young men, our brethren? And they said, We be of the lineage of Naphtali, of the captivity of Nineveh.

<sup>4</sup> And Raguel said to them, Know ye Tobit, my brother? And they answered, We know him.

<sup>5</sup> And when he spake many good things of Tobit, the angel said to Raguel, Tobit, of whom thou askest, is the father of this man.

<sup>6</sup> Then Raguel bowed down himself, and with tears he kissed Tobias, and he wept on his neck, <sup>7</sup> and said, My son, blessing be to thee; for thou art the son of a good and a full noble man.

<sup>9</sup> And after that they had spoken thus, Raguel commanded a wether to be slain, and a feast to be made ready. And when Raguel moved them to sit down to meat,

<sup>10</sup> Tobias said, I shall not eat, neither drink here today, no but thou confirm first mine asking, and [thou] promise to give to me Sarah, thy daughter to wife.

<sup>11</sup> And when this word was heard, Raguel dreaded, witting what befelled to those seven men; and he began to dread, lest peradventure it should befall in like manner to this Tobias, [and he die]. And when he doubted, or mused in this manner, and gave none answer to the asker,

<sup>12</sup> the angel said to him, Do not thou dread to give her to this man; for thy daughter oweth to be given to this man dreading God; therefore another man might not have her.

<sup>13</sup> Then Raguel said, I doubt not, that God hath received my prayers and my tears in his sight.

<sup>14</sup> And I believe, that therefore the Lord made you to come to me, that also this woman should be joined to her kindred by [or after] the law of Moses; and now, Tobias, do not thou bear any doubt, that I shall give her to thee.

<sup>15</sup> And he took the right hand of his daughter, and gave to the right hand of Tobias, and said, God of Abraham, and God of Isaac, and God of Jacob, be with you, and he join you together, and he [full]-fill his blessing in you.

<sup>16</sup> And they took a charter, and they made together a writing of witnessing of the marriage. [And the charter taken, they made the conscription of the wedlock.]

<sup>18</sup> And Raguel called to him Edna, his wife, and commanded [to] her to make ready another bed-[place].

<sup>19</sup> And she led Sarah, her daughter, in to it, and Sarah wept; and Edna said to her, My daughter, be thou of strong wit; the Lord of heaven give to thee joy, for the annoyance that thou hast suffered.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> And after that they had supped, they brought the young man Tobias in to her.

<sup>2</sup> And Tobias bethought him of the words of the angel, and brought forth or drew out of his scrip [or his bag], a part of the maw of the fish, and he putted it upon quick coals.

<sup>3</sup> And then Raphael, the angel, took the fiend [or caught the devil], and bound him fast in the desert of higher Egypt.

<sup>4</sup> Then Tobias admonished the virgin [or the maiden], and said to her, Sarah, rise up, and pray we God today, and tomorrow, and the second morrow/ and after tomorrow;

for in these three nights we be joined to God; and when the third night is passed, we shall be in our marriage [or in our wedlock];

<sup>5</sup> for we be the children of holy men, and we may not be joined or coupled together as heathen men [or Gentiles]be, that know not God.

<sup>6</sup> Soothly they rose up together, and they both prayed together busily, that health should be given to them.

<sup>7</sup> And Tobias said, Lord God of our fathers, heavens, and all lands or earths, and the sea, and wells, and floods, and each creature of thine, that is in those, bless thee;

<sup>8</sup> thou madest Adam of the slime of earth, and thou gavest to him an helper, Eve.

<sup>9</sup> And now, Lord, thou knowest, that I take my sister to wife, not for cause [or because] of lechery, but for love alone of heirs or of begetting [or of bringing forth] of children, in which thy name be blessed into worlds of worlds.

<sup>10</sup> And then Sarah said, Lord, have thou mercy on us, have thou mercy on us, and wax we both eld together whole in body and soul.

<sup>11</sup> And it was done about the cock's crowing or the crowing of the cock's, Raguel made [or commanded] his servants to be called, and they went with him to dig a grave.

<sup>12</sup> For he dreaded, lest it had befallen in like manner to Tobias, that befelled also to the other seven men, that entered into wedlock to Sarah before.

<sup>13</sup> And when they had made ready a pit, Raguel went again to his wife, and said to her,

<sup>14</sup> Send one of thine handmaids, and see she, whether Tobias is dead, that I bury him, before that light of day come.

<sup>15</sup> And she sent one of her hand-maids, which entered into the closet, or bed chamber, [or into the bed-place], and found them safe and sound, sleeping together by themselves.

<sup>16</sup> And she turned again, and told good message. And they blessed the Lord, that is, Raguel and Edna, his wife,

<sup>17</sup> and said, Lord God of Israel, we bless thee, for it hath not befallen to us, as we guessed;

<sup>18</sup> for thou hast done thy mercy with us, and hast shut out from us the enemy pursuing us.

<sup>19</sup> Soothly thou hast done mercy with two alone. My Lord, make thou them to bless thee fullier [or more fully], and for to offer to thee the sacrifice of thy praising, and of their health, that the university, or the multitude, of folks know, that thou art God alone in all earth.

<sup>20</sup> And anon Raguel commanded his servants to fill the pit, which they had made, before that light of day came [or before that it waxed light].

<sup>21</sup> And Raguel said to his wife, that she should array a feast, and make ready all things, that were needful to men making journey [or were necessary to way-goers].

<sup>22</sup> Also he made to be slain two fat kine, and four weathers, and [plenteous] meats to be made ready to all his neighbours, and to all his friends.

<sup>23</sup> And Raguel made Tobias to swear or to promise him, that he should dwell two weeks at Raguel/that he should abide with him two weeks.

<sup>24</sup> And all things, that Raguel had in possession, he gave the half part to Tobias; and he made this scripture, that the half part, that was left of his chattel, should come to the lordship of Tobias after the death of him and his wife.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> Then Tobias called to him the angel, whom soothly he guessed a man. And Tobias said to him, Azarias, brother, I ask of thee, that thou hearken my words.

<sup>2</sup> If I shall betake or Though I betake myself [a] servant to thee, yet I shall not by my knowing, be even worthy to thy purveyance, or wisdom.

<sup>3</sup> Nevertheless I beseech thee, that thou take to thee beasts, either servants, and go thou to Gabael into Rages, a city of Media, and yield or betake thou to him his obligation [or his writ]; and take [or receive] of him the money that he oweth to my father, and pray him to come to my weddings [or to my bridals].

<sup>4</sup> For thou knowest, that my father numbereth the days of our journey, and if I [shall] tarry one day more, his soul [or his life] shall be made sorry.

<sup>5</sup> And certainly thou seest, how Raguel hath charged me to dwell here with him, whose charging I may not despise.

<sup>6</sup> Then Raphael took four of the servants of Raguel, and two camels, and went into Rages, a city of Media, and he found Gabael, and gave to him his obligation [or writ], and received of him all the money;

<sup>7</sup> and he showed to him of Tobias, the son of Tobit, and all things that were done. And he made Gabael to come with him to the weddings [or to the bridals].

<sup>8</sup> And when Gabael entered into the house of Raguel, he found Tobias sitting at the meat; and he skipped up/and Tobias rose up anon, and they kissed themselves together.

<sup>9</sup> And Gabael wept, and blessed God, and said, The Lord God of Israel bless thee, for thou art the son of a full good man, and just [or rightwise], and dreading God, and doing alms-deeds;

<sup>10</sup> and the blessing of God be brought or come upon thy wife, and upon your fathers and mothers,

<sup>11</sup> and see ye your sons, and the sons of your sons, till into [or unto] the third and the fourth generation; and your seed be blessed of God of Israel, that reigneth into worlds of worlds or without end.

<sup>12</sup> And when all men had said Amen, they went to the feast or to meat; and they used the feast of those weddings [or bridals] with the dread of the Lord.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> Soothly when Tobias made tarry-ing for cause of his weddings [or by reason of the bridals], Tobit his father was heavied or anguished, and he said to his wife, Why guessest thou, that my son tarrieth thus, either why he is withholden there or he is held there thus long?

<sup>3</sup> Forsooth he began to be sorry full much, and Anna, his wife, with him; and both began to weep together, for that their son turned not home again to them in the day set.

<sup>4</sup> Then his mother wept with tears without remedy [or with unremediable tears], and said, Alas to me! my son, why sent we thee to go a pilgrimage, thou art the light of our eyes, the staff* of our eld age, the solace of our life, and the hope of our heirs or after-comers?

<sup>5</sup> We had all things together in thee alone, and we ought not to have [or should not] let thee go from us.

<sup>6</sup> To whom Tobit said, Be still, and do not thou be troubled [or disturbed]; our son is whole and safe; for that man is faithful enough, with whom we sent him forth.

<sup>7</sup> But his mother might not be comforted in any manner, but each day she went out, and looked about after him, and compassed all the ways, by which the hope of his again-coming seemed to her, to see him coming afar, if it might be done.

* CHAPTER 10:4 For as a sick man is sustained by a staff, so father and mother in eld age owe to be sustained of sons.

<sup>8</sup> And soothly Raguel said to the husband of his daughter [or his son-in-law], Dwell thou here, or Abide thou here with me, and I shall send a messenger to tell of thine health to Tobit, thy father.

<sup>9</sup> To whom Tobias said, I know, that my father and my mother reckon now [or now count] the days of mine absence from them, and their spirit is tormented in them.

<sup>10</sup> And when Raguel had prayed Tobias with many words, and he would not hear Raguel or consent to him by, or for, any reason, Raguel betook to him Sarah, and half the part of all his chattel or all his goods, [or all his substance], in servants, and damsels or handmaidens, in sheep and camels, and in kine, and in much money; and he delivered from him-self Tobias safe and jolyng, and said,

<sup>11</sup> The holy angel of the Lord be in your way, and bring you sound home, and find ye all things rightfully [or right] about your father and your mother,

<sup>12</sup> and mine eyes see your sons, before that I die. And the father and mother took their daughter, and kissed her, and let her go forth with Tobias her husband,

<sup>13</sup> and admonished her to honour the father and mother of her husband [or her father- and mother-in-law], and to love her husband, and to rule well her meine, and to govern wisely her house, and to show herself unreprouable.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> And when they turned again, they came to Haran, which is in the middle of the way against Nineveh, in the eleventh day from departing from the house of Raguel.

<sup>2</sup> And the angel said, Tobias, brother, thou knowest, how [or what manner] thou leftest thy father.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore if it pleaseth thee, go we before; and the meine, with thy wife, together with the beasts, pursue [or follow] they our way with soft going.

<sup>4</sup> And when this thing pleased Tobias, that they should go before, Raphael said to Tobias, Take with thee of the gall of the fish, for it shall be needful. Then Tobias took with him of that gall, and they went forth.

<sup>5</sup> And Anna sat beside the way each day in the cop of the hill, from whence she might behold from afar.

<sup>6</sup> And while she beheld from the same place the coming of him, she saw afar, and she knew anon her son coming [or anon she knew her son coming]; and she ran home, and told to her husband, and said, Lo! thy son cometh.

<sup>7</sup> And Raphael said to Tobias, When thou hast entered into thine house, anon worship thou the Lord thy God, and do thou thankings to him, and then nigh to thy father, and kiss him.

<sup>8</sup> And anon anoint on his eyes of this gall of the fish, which thou barest with thee; for why know thou, that anon his eyes shall be opened, and thy father shall see the light of heaven, and he shall be joyful in thy sight.

<sup>9</sup> Then the dog [or the hound] ran before, that was together in the way, and he made joy with the fanning of his tail to old Tobit and his wife, as a messenger coming and bringing good tidings.

<sup>10</sup> And his blind father rose up, and began to run, stumbling with his feet, and when he had given his hand to a child to lead him, he ran against his son.

<sup>11</sup> And Tobit, with his wife, received their son, and kissed him, and both began to weep for joy.

<sup>12</sup> And when they had worshipped God, and had done thankings to him, they sat down together.

<sup>13</sup> And then Tobias took of the gall of the fish, and anointed the eyes of his father.

<sup>14</sup> And he abode the working of that medicine almost half an hour, and then the web, [or the rime], as the little skin of an egg, began to go out of his eyes.

<sup>15</sup> Which web Tobit took, and drew it from his eyes, and anon he received his sight.

<sup>16</sup> And they glorified God, that is, Tobit, and his wife, and all that knew him.

<sup>17</sup> And Tobit said, Lord God of Israel, I bless thee, for thou hast chastised me, and thou hast saved me; and lo! now I see Tobias, my son.

<sup>18</sup> Then also Sarah, the wife of his son, entered after seven days, and all the meine, and the beasts whole, and camels, and much money of the wife, but also the money which he had received of Gabael.

<sup>19</sup> And he told to his father and mother all the benefices [or all the benefits] or all the goodnesses of God, which he had done about him by the man, that had led him in the way.

<sup>20</sup> And Achior and Nadab, the nigh cousins of Tobit, came to Tobit, and were joyful with him, and they thanked God with him of all the goodnesses that God had showed about him.

<sup>21</sup> And by seven days they ate, and joyed [or gladdened] with great joy.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Then Tobit called to him his son, and said to him, What may we give to this holy man, that came with thee?

<sup>2</sup> And Tobias answered, and said to his father, Father, what meed shall we give to him, either what thing may be worthy to his benefices [or his benefits] or his goodnesses?

<sup>3</sup> He led me forth, and brought me whole again/and he hath brought me again whole; and he received of Gabael the money that he owed to thee; and he made me to have a wife, and he drove away the fiend [or the devil] from her; he made joy to her father and mother; he delivered me from the devouring of a fish; and he made thee to see the light of heaven; and we be full-filled with all goods by him; what thing worthy to these things may we give to him?

<sup>4</sup> But, father, I ask thee, that is, I beseech thee, that thou pray him, if peradventure he shall vouchsafe to take to him the half part of all things, whatever things be brought hither.

<sup>5</sup> And the father and the son called him, and took him asides half, and they began to pray him, that he would vouchsafe to have acceptable the half part of all things, which they had brought thither.

<sup>6</sup> Then Raphael said to them privily, Bless ye God of heaven, and acknowledge ye to him before all men living, for he hath done his mercy with you.

<sup>7</sup> For it is good to hide the private of an earthly king; but it is worshipful to show and acknowledge the works of God.

<sup>8</sup> Prayer is good with fasting, and with alms-[deeds], more than to hide treasures of gold;

<sup>9</sup> for why alms-[deeds] delivereth from death, and those alms it is that purgeth sins, and maketh man to find everlasting life.

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth they that do sin and wickedness, be enemies of their soul.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore I show truth to you, and I shall not hide from you a privy word. [Then I open to you the truth, and shall not hide from you the privy word.]

<sup>12</sup> When thou, Tobit, prayedest with tears, and buriedest dead men [or buriedest the dead], and leftest thy meat, and hidest those dead men by day in thine house, and buriedest them in the night, I offered thy prayers* to the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> And for thou were acceptable to the Lord, it was needful that temptation should prove thee.

<sup>14</sup> And now the Lord sent me for to cure thee, and to deliver Sarah, the wife of thy son, from the fiend. [And now the Lord sent me, that I should heal thee, and Sarah, the wife of thy son, from the devil deliver.]

<sup>15</sup> For I am Raphael, the angel, one of the seven that be present [or that stand] before the Lord.

<sup>16</sup> And when they had heard this, they were disturbed or troubled, that is, they wondered and were astonished, and they fell down trembling upon their faces.

<sup>17</sup> And the angel said to them, Peace be to you, do not ye dread;

<sup>18</sup> for when I was with you, I was by God's will [or by the will of God]. Therefore bless ye him, and sing ye to him.

<sup>19</sup> Certainly I seemed to eat and to drink with you; but I use invisible meat, and drink that may not be seen of men.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore it is time, that I turn again to him, that sent me; but bless ye God, and tell ye out all his marvels; bless ye him, and sing ye to him.

<sup>21</sup> And when he had said these things, he was taken [or borne] away from their sight; and they might no more see him.

<sup>22</sup> Then they felled down upon their faces the space of three hours, and they blessed God; and they rising up, told all his marvels.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth the elder Tobit opened his mouth, and blessed God, and said, Lord, thou art great without end, and thy realm is into all worlds;

<sup>2</sup> for thou beatest [or scourgest], and makest safe; thou ledest down to hells, and ledest again; for none is that escapeth thine hand.

<sup>3</sup> Sons of Israel, acknowledge ye to the Lord, and praise ye him in the sight of heathen men [or Gentiles];

<sup>4</sup> for therefore he hath scattered you among heathen men, that know not God, that ye tell out his marvels, and make them to know, that none other God is almighty besides him/ that there is none other God Almighty except him.

<sup>5</sup> He hath chastised us for our wickednesses; and he shall save us for his mercy.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore behold ye, what things he hath done with you, and acknowledge ye to him with dread and trembling; and enhance ye the King of worlds in your works.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth I in the land of my captivity shall acknowledge to him; for he hath showed his majesty upon [or into] a sinful folk.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore, ye sinners, be ye converted, that is, be ye altogether in heart, and word, and deed, turned from your sin, and do ye rightfulness [or rightwiseness] before God, and then believe ye, that he shall do his mercy with you.

<sup>9</sup> Soothly I and my soul shall be glad in him.

<sup>10</sup> All chosen of the Lord, bless ye him [or Blesseth the Lord, ye all chosen of him]; make ye the days of gladness, and acknowledge ye to him.

<sup>11</sup> Jerusalem, the city of God, the Lord hath chastised* thee for the works of thine hands.

---

* CHAPTER 12:12 For angels offer to God the prayers of just men; they be spirits of service sent into service, for them that take the heritage of health; to the Book of Hebrews, in the first Chapter. * CHAPTER 13:11 That is, shall chastise, for it was not destroyed in the time of Tobit.

<sup>12</sup> Acknowledge thou to God in thy goods, and bless thou God of worlds, that is, without ending, that he build again in thee his tabernacle, and again-call to thee all thy prisoners [or call again to thee all thy captives]; and that thou have joy into all worlds of worlds.

<sup>13</sup> Thou shalt shine with bright light, and all the coasts of the earth shall worship [or shall honour] thee.

<sup>14</sup> Nations, that is, many men from diverse countries, shall come from [a] far to thee, and they shall bring gifts to thee, and shall worship the Lord in thee, and they shall have thy land into hallowing;

<sup>15</sup> for they shall call in thee the great name./and in thee, Jerusalem, they shall inwardly call the great name of the Lord.

<sup>16</sup> And they shall be cursed, that despise thee, and they shall be damned or condemned, that blaspheme thee; and they shall be blessed, that build [up] thee.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth, Jerusalem, thou shalt be glad in thy sons, for all they shall be blessed [or for all shall be blessed], and they shall be gathered together to the Lord.

<sup>18</sup> Blessed be all that love thee, and that have joy upon thy peace.

<sup>19</sup> My soul, bless thou the Lord, for the Lord our God hath delivered Jerusalem, his city, from all tribulations thereof.

<sup>20</sup> I shall be blessed, if the relics or the after-comers of my seed shall be abiding to see the clearness [or the clarity] of Jerusalem.

<sup>21</sup> The gates of Jerusalem shall be builded of sapphire, and of smaragdus, and of precious stones; all the compass of the walls thereof shall be of white and clean stone.

<sup>22</sup> And all the streets thereof shall be strewed; and alleluia, that is, the praising of God, shall be sung through the streets thereof.

<sup>23</sup> Blessed be the Lord, that hath enhanced it, that his realm be upon it into worlds of worlds. Amen.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> And thus the words of Tobit were ended; and after that he was lightened of his blindness[or after that he is lighted to see], he lived two and forty years, and saw the sons of his son's sons.

<sup>2</sup> And when an hundred years and twain were filled, he was buried worshipfully in Nineveh.

<sup>3</sup> Soothly when Tobit was of six and fifty years he lost the light of his eyes; and when he was of sixty years age he received his sight again.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth the residue of his life was in joy, and he went [or passed] in peace with good increasing of God's dread.

<sup>5</sup> And in the hour of his death, he called to him Tobias, his son, and seven young sons of him, his son's sons, and said to them,

<sup>6</sup> The perishing, or destruction, of Nineveh shall be nigh, for the word of God shall not fall away void; and your brethren, that be scattered from the land of Israel, shall turn again to it.

<sup>7</sup> And all the desert land of it shall be full-filled, and the house of God, which is burnt therein, shall be builded again, and all that dread God shall turn again thither.

<sup>8</sup> And heathen men shall forsake their idols, and they shall come to Jerusalem, and they shall dwell therein or shall inhabit it.

<sup>9</sup> And all the kings of earth shall have joy therein, and they shall worship the King of Israel [or honouring the king of Israel].

<sup>10</sup> Therefore, my sons, hear ye your father; serve ye the Lord in dread and in truth; and inquire ye [or inwardly seeketh] to do those things that be pleasant to him.

<sup>11</sup> And command ye your sons to do rightwisenesses and alms-deeds; and that they be mindful of God, and bless God in all time, in truth, and in all their virtue or power.

<sup>12</sup> Now therefore, my sons, hear ye me, and do not ye dwell here in Nineveh, but in whatever day ye have buried your mother beside me in a sepulchre, from that day dress ye your steps, that ye go out from hence;

<sup>13</sup> soothly I see that the wickedness of Nineveh shall bring destruction thereto.

<sup>14</sup> And it was done after the death of his mother, Tobias went away from Nineveh, with his wife, and his sons, and with the sons of his sons, and he turned again to the father and mother of his wife [or to his father- and mother-in-law].

<sup>15</sup> And he found them sound in good eld age. And he did the care of them, and he closed their eyes; and after that he took all the heritage of the house of Raguel, and Tobias saw the fifth generation, the sons of his sons.

<sup>16</sup> And when ninety years and nine were fulfilled in the dread of the Lord, they buried him with joy.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth all his kindred, and all his generation, dwelled perfectly in good life, and in holy conversation, so that they were acceptable both to God and to men, and to all inhabiting the earth or that dwelled in earth [or to all dwelling in the land].

JUDITH

<sup>1</sup> And so Arphaxad, king of Medes, had made subject many folks to his empire; and he builded a full mighty city, which he called Ecbatana.

<sup>2</sup> Of square stones and carved [or hewn] he made the walls thereof, in the height of threescore cubits and ten [or seventy cubits], and in the breadth of thirty cubits. And he set the towers thereof in the height of an hundred cubits.

<sup>3</sup> And by the squareness of the towers ever either side was stretched forth, by [or in] the space of twenty feet; and he set the gates of that city in the height of those towers.

<sup>4</sup> And he had glory, as a mighty man in the power of his host, and in the glory of his chariots [or his four-horsed carts].

<sup>5</sup> Therefore Nebuchadnezzar, king of Assyrians, that reigned in the great city Nineveh, in the twelfth year of his realm he fought against Arphaxad, and he got, or took, Arphaxad in a great field, <sup>6</sup> that was called Ragau, beside the floods of Euphrates, and Tigris, and Hydaspes, in the field of Arioch, the king of Elymeans.

<sup>7</sup> Then the realm of Nebuchadnezzar was enhanced, and his heart was raised into pride; and he sent to all men, that dwelled in Cilicia, and in Damascus, and in Lebanon,

<sup>8</sup> and to folks, that were in Carmel, and in Gilead, and to men dwelling in Galilee, and in the great field of Esdraelon,

<sup>9</sup> and to all men [or to all], that were in Samaria, and beyond the flood of Jordan, unto Jerusalem; and to all the land of Goshen, till that men come to the hills of Ethiopia.

<sup>10</sup> To all these men, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Assyrians, sent messengers;

<sup>11</sup> and all these against-said with one will, and they sent again his messengers void, and they casted them away without honour.

<sup>12</sup> Then Nebuchadnezzar was wroth to all that land, and he swore by his realm and by his throne, that he would defend him from all these countries [or regions], that is, assail all those countries.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> In the thirteenth year of king Nebuchadnezzar, in the two and twentieth day of the first month, a word was made [or done] in the house of Nebuchadnezzar, king of Assyrians, that he would defend him from his enemies.

<sup>2</sup> And he called to him all his elder men, and all the dukes, his warriors [or his fighters]; and had with them the private of his counsel.

<sup>3</sup> And he said, that his thought and intent was set in that thing, to make subject each land to his empire.

<sup>4</sup> And when this saying had pleased all men, king Nebuchadnezzar called Holoernes, the prince of his chivalry, and said to him,

<sup>5</sup> Go thou out against each realm of the west, and against them principally, that despised my commandment [or mine empire].

<sup>6</sup> Thine eye shall not spare any realm, and thou shalt make subject to me each strengthened city.

<sup>7</sup> Then Holoernes called the dukes and magistrates of the power of Assyrians, and he numbered men into the making ready of battle, as the king commanded to him, sixscore thousand of footmen fighters, and twelve thousand horsemen and archers.

<sup>8</sup> And he made all his purveyance to go before him in multitude of unnumberable camels, with those things that sufficed plenteously to his hosts, and he sent droves of oxen, and flocks of sheep, of which was none number.

<sup>9</sup> He ordained wheat to be made ready of all Syria in his passage.

<sup>10</sup> And he took with him much gold and silver of the king's house.

<sup>11</sup> And Holofernes, and all his host, went forth with chariots [or four-horsed carts], and horsemen, and archers, which covered the face of the earth, as locusts.

<sup>12</sup> And when he had passed the ends [or the coasts] of Assyrians, he came to the great hills called Auge, that be at the left half [or left side] of Cilicia; and he went up into all the castles of them, and he got each strong place [or hold] there.

<sup>13</sup> And he brake and destroyed the most strong city called Bectileth, and he robbed all the sons of Rassas, and the sons of Ishmael, that were against the face of desert, and at the south coast of the land of Chelleans.

<sup>14</sup> And he passed [over] Euphrates, and came into Mesopotamia, and he brake, and wasted, all the high cities that were there, from the strand [or the stream] of Abron till that men come to the sea.

<sup>15</sup> And he occupied the ends or the coasts thereof from Cilicia unto the ends of Japheth, that be at the south.

<sup>16</sup> And he brought with him all the sons of Midian, and he took from them all their riches; and he killed by the sharpness of sword all men against-standing him.

<sup>17</sup> And after these things he came down into the fields of Damascus, in the days of ripe corn [or of reaping], that is, in harvest, and he burnt [up] all those corns [or all the sown things], and he made all the trees and vines to be cut down;

<sup>18</sup> and his dread fell upon all men inhabiting the land or dwelling upon earth [or all the dwellers in the land].

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Then the kings and princes of all cities and provinces, that is, of Syria, of Mesopotamia, and Coelesyria, and of Lebanon, and of Cilicia, sent their messengers [or their legates]. And when they came to Holofernes, they said,

<sup>2</sup> Thine indignation cease about us [or Cease thine indignation about us]; for it is better, that we live and serve Nebuchadnezzar, the great king, and to be subject to thee, than that we die, and suffer with our perishing the harms of our servage, or our thrall-dom, that is, suffer more harms than is servage.

<sup>3</sup> Each city of ours [or All our cities], and all our possessions, all our mountains, and little hills, and our fields, and droves of oxen, and flocks of sheep, and of goats, and of horses, and of camels, and all our riches and our meines be in thy sight;

<sup>4</sup> all things be under thy law.

<sup>5</sup> Also we and our children be thy servants.

<sup>6</sup> Come thou and be thou a peaceable lord to us, and use thou our service, as it pleaseth thee.

<sup>7</sup> Then Holofernes came down from the hills, with knights [or horse-men] in great strength, and he got each city, and each man inhabiting the land or each man that dwelled in that land.

<sup>8</sup> And of all the cities he took to him helpers, strong men and chosen to battle.

<sup>9</sup> And so great dread of Holofernes lay [or fell] upon all provinces, that the dwellers of all cities, and the princes and men of honour, went together out with their peoples to meet him coming,

<sup>10</sup> and received him with crowns and lamps, and they led dances before him with pipes and tympana [or trumps and timbrels].

<sup>12</sup> for why both he destroyed their cities, and hewed down their [maumet] woods.

<sup>13</sup> For king Nebuchadnezzar had commanded to him, that he should destroy all the gods of earth [or of the land], that is, that he alone should be said god of all these nations, that might be made subject/s by the power of Holofernes [or might be under-yoked by the might of Holofernes].

<sup>14</sup> And Holofernes passed over all Coelesyria, and all the country of Appanie, and all Mesopotamia, and he came to Idumeans in the land of Geba;

<sup>15</sup> and he took the cities of them, and dwelled there by thirty days, in which days he commanded all the host of his power to be gathered together.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Then the sons of Israel, that dwelled in the land of Judea, heard these things, and they dreaded greatly of the face of Holofernes.

<sup>2</sup> Also trembling and hideousness [or horror] assailed the wits of them, lest he should do this thing to Jerusalem, and to the temple of the Lord, which thing he had done to other cities and temples of them [or their temples]

<sup>3</sup> And they sent into all Samaria, by compass till to Jericho, and before-occupied all the cops or the heights of the hills;

<sup>4</sup> and they encompassed their towns with walls, and gathered together wheat into the making ready of battle.

<sup>5</sup> Also the priest Joakim wrote to all men, that were dwelling against Esdraelon, which is even against the face of the great field besides Dothan, and to all men by whom passage might be,

<sup>6</sup> that they should hold [or wield] the goings-up of the hills, by which hills a way to their enemies might be to Jerusalem, and that they should keep there, where straight way might be among the hills.

<sup>7</sup> And the sons of Israel did after this behest, that Joakim, the priest of the Lord, had ordained to them.

<sup>8</sup> And all the people cried to the Lord with great instance, or hearty beseeching, and they and the women of them meeked their souls in fastings.

<sup>9</sup> And the priests clothed them-selves with hair-shirts, and the young children bowed themselves against the face of the temple of the Lord, and they covered the altar of the Lord with an hair-shirt.

<sup>10</sup> And they cried together to the Lord God of Israel, lest the children of them should be given into prey, and the wives of them into parting or departing by violence of ravishers, and their cities into destroying, and their holy things into defouling.

<sup>11</sup> Then Joakim, the great priest of the Lord, compassed all Israel, and spake to them, and said,

<sup>12</sup> Know ye, that the Lord shall hear your prayers, if ye dwelling dwell perfectly [or abide still] in fastings and in prayers in the sight of the Lord.

<sup>13</sup> Be ye mindful of Moses, the servant of the Lord, which not in fighting with iron, but in praying with holy prayers, casted down Amalek trusting in his virtue or his strength, and in his power, and in his host, and in his shields, and in his chariots, and in his knights [or his horsemen];

<sup>14</sup> and so shall all the enemies of Israel be cast down, if ye continue in this work, which ye have begun.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore at this exciting, [or exhortation], or stirring, of him, the men of Israel prayed heartily to the Lord, and dwelled in the sight of the Lord,

<sup>16</sup> so that also they, that offered burnt sacrifices to the Lord, were girt with hair-shirts, and they offered sacrifices to the Lord, and ashes were put upon their heads.

<sup>17</sup> And all men of all their hearts prayed to the Lord, that he would visit his people Israel.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> And it was to Holofernes, prince of the chivalry of men of Assyria, that the children of Israel made ready themselves to against-stand him [or that the sons of Israel made them-selves ready to withstand], and that they had closed altogether the ways of the hills.

<sup>2</sup> And by over-great madness he burnt out into great wrathfulness [or with full much madness he burned out into great wrath]; and he called all the princes of Moab, and the dukes of Ammon,

<sup>3</sup> and said to them, Say ye to me, who this people is [or who be these people], that besiegeth the hilly places; either which, and what manner, and how great be their cities; also what is the virtue or the strength of them, either what is the multitude of them, either who is the king of their chivalry;

<sup>4</sup> and why before all men, that dwell in the east, have these men despised me, and they have not gone out to receive us with peace?

<sup>5</sup> Then Achior, duke of all the sons of Ammon, answered and said, My lord, if thou vouchest safe to hear me, I shall say the truth in thy sight of this people that dwelleth in the hilly places [or in the mountains], and a false word shall not go out of my mouth.

<sup>7</sup> and this people dwelled first in Mesopotamia; for they would not pursue [or follow] the gods of their fathers, that were in the land of Chaldea.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore they forsook the ceremonies of their fathers, that were with the multitude of gods,

<sup>9</sup> and they worshipped one God of heaven, which also commanded to them to go out from thence, and to dwell in Canaan. And when hunger had covered all the land, they went down into Egypt, and there they were so multiplied by four hundred years [or there by four hundred years so be multiplied], that the host of them might not be numbered*.

<sup>10</sup> And when the king of Egypt had grieved them, and had made them subjects in the buildings of his cities in clay and tilestone, they cried to their God, and he smote all the land of Egypt with diverse vengeance.

<sup>11</sup> And when men of Egypt had cast out from them the men of Israel, and the vengeance had ceased from the men of Egypt, and again when they would take the men of Israel, and again-call them to their service,

<sup>12</sup> then God of heaven opened the sea to these men of Israel fleeing away, so that on this side and on that side [or on either side] the waters were made firm as walls, and in their walking these men with dry feet passed the deepness of the sea.

<sup>13</sup> In which place the while unnumberable host of men of Egypt [or of Egyptians] pursued Israel, it was so covered with waters, that there dwelled not namely one man alive, that should tell the deed to after-comers.

<sup>14</sup> Also the men of Israel went out of the Reed Sea [or the Red Sea], and they occupied the deserts of the hill [or of the mounts] of Sinai, in which deserts there might never man dwell, neither any son of man rest there.

<sup>15</sup> There bitter wells were made sweet to them for to drink; and by forty years they got livelode from heaven.

---

* CHAPTER 5:9 This nativity beginneth at Isaac, and endeth in the going out of Egypt.

<sup>16</sup> And wherever they entered, their God fought for them, and he over-came their adversaries without bow and arrow, and without shield and sword.

<sup>17</sup> And there was no man that casted down this people, no but when it went away from the worshipping of their Lord God [or the Lord his God].

<sup>18</sup> Soothly as often ever as they worshipped any other except that their own God, they were given into prey, and into sword, and into shame [or reproof].

<sup>19</sup> But as often ever as they repented that they had gone away from the worshipping of their God, God of heaven gave to them virtue to against-stand their enemies.

<sup>20</sup> Certainly they casted down the kings of Canaanites, and of Jebusites, and of Perizzites, and of Shechemites, and of Gergashites, and of Amorites, and all the mighty men of Heshbon, and they had in possession the lands of them, and the cities of them;

<sup>21</sup> and till that they had sinned in the sight of their God, good things and prosperity were with them, for the God of them hateth wickedness.

<sup>22</sup> For why and before these years, when they had gone away from the way which God had given to them, that they should go therein, they were destroyed of diverse nations by many battles, and full many of them were led prisoners [or led captive] into a land not theirs.

<sup>23</sup> But a while ago they turned again to the Lord their God, and they were gathered together from the scattering, in which they were scattered; and now they have gone up into all these hilly places, and again they have Jerusalem in possession, where the holy of holy things be.

<sup>24</sup> Now therefore, my lord, inquire thou perfectly, if any wickedness of them is [or if there is any wickedness of them] in the sight of their God, and go we then up to them; for their God betaking shall betake them to thee, and they shall be made subject under the yoke of thy might.

<sup>25</sup> Truly if none offence of this people is before their God, we may not against-stand them; for the God of them shall defend them, and we shall be into shame to all earth.

<sup>26</sup> And it was done, when Achior had ceased to speak these words, all the great men of Holofernes were wroth against him, and they thought to slay him, and they said together,

<sup>27</sup> Who is this that saith, that the sons of Israel, men without armour [or arms], and without virtue or strength, and without knowing of the craft of fighting may against-stand king Nebuchadnezzar and his hosts?

<sup>28</sup> Therefore that this Achior know, that he deceiveth us, go we up into the hilly places [or the mountains]; and when the mighty men of them be taken, then he shall be pierced with a sword with the same men;

<sup>29</sup> and all folk know, that Nebuchad-nezzar is god of earth, and except him there is none other.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, when they had ceased to speak, Holofernes had disdain greatly, and he said to Achior,

<sup>2</sup> For thou hast prophesied to us, and saidest, that the folk of Israel is defended of their God, that I show to thee, that no god is but Nebuchad-nezzar;

<sup>3</sup> when we have slain them all as one man/when we as one man have slain all the sons of Israel, then also thou shalt perish with them by the sword of men of Assyria, and all Israel shall perish diversely with thee in perdition;

<sup>4</sup> and thou shalt prove, that Nebuchadnezzar is lord of all earth; and then the sword of my chivalry shall pass through thy sides, and thou shalt be pierced, and thou shalt fall among the wounded men of Israel, and thou shalt no more breathe again [or thou shalt no more take breath], till thou be destroyed with them.

<sup>5</sup> But certainly if thou guessest thy prophecy sooth, thy cheer fall not down [or fall not down thy cheer]; and the paleness that hath gotten thy face, go away from thee, if thou guessest that these my words may not be fulfilled.

<sup>6</sup> But that thou know, that thou shalt feel this thing together with the children of Israel, lo! from this hour thou shalt be fellowshipped to the people of them, that when they have taken, or suffered, worthy pains of my sword, thou be subject to like vengeance.

<sup>7</sup> Then Holofernes commanded to his servants to take Achior, and to lead him into Bethulia, and to betake him into the hands of the sons of Israel.

<sup>8</sup> And the servants of Holofernes took him, and they went forth by the field places, but when they had nighed to the hilly places [or the mountains], slingers or men throwing stones with slings, went out against them.

<sup>9</sup> And they turned away from the side of the hill, and they bound Achior to a tree by his hands and feet, and so they left him bound with ropes [or cords], and they turned again to their lord.

<sup>10</sup> And the sons of Israel went down from Bethulia, and they came to Achior, whom they unbound [or loosed], and led him to Bethulia, and they set him in the midst of the people, and they asked [him], what manner of things befell, that the men of Assyria had left him bound.

<sup>11</sup> In those days these princes of Jews were there, Uziah, the son of Micah, of the lineage of Simeon, and Charmis, which is also called Gothoniell.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore in the midst of elder men [or And so in the middle of the elders], and in the sight of all men, Achior said all the things, which he was asked of Holofernes, and had told to Holofernes, and how the people of Holofernes would slay him for this word that he had said,

<sup>13</sup> and how Holofernes himself was wroth, and commanded him to be betaken for this cause to the men of Israel, that the while he overcame the sons of Israel, then he commanded that also that Achior perish with diverse torments, for this thing that he had said, God of heaven is the defender of his people.

<sup>14</sup> And when Achior had expounded all these things, all the people felled down on their faces, and worshipped the Lord; and with common wailing [or lamenting] and weeping they shed out to the Lord their prayers of one will,

<sup>15</sup> saying, Lord God of heaven and of earth, behold the pride of thine enemies, and behold thou to our meekness, and take heed to the face of thy saints, and show that thou forsakest not men trusting in thee, and that thou makest low men trusting of themselves, and men having glory or them that have glory of their own virtue, or strength.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore when the weeping was ended, and the prayer of the people by all the day was fulfilled,

<sup>17</sup> they comforted Achior, and said, God of our fathers, whose virtue or power thou hast preached, he is rewarder of all goodness, and he shall give thee grace[or recompensation] for this while, that thou see more the perishing of them.

<sup>18</sup> And when the Lord our God hath given this freedom to his servants, that we have overcome our enemies, also the Lord be then with thee in the midst or in the middle of us, that as it shall please thee, so thou live with all thy things [or so with all thine thou dwell].

<sup>19</sup> Then after that this council was ended, Uziah, the chief priest, received Achior into his house, and made a great supper to him.

<sup>20</sup> And when all the priests were called together, after that the fasting was filled, they refreshed Achior and themselves, [or they ate].

<sup>21</sup> And afterward all the people was called together, and they prayed by [or throughout] all the night within the church, and they asked help of God of Israel.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>2</sup> And there were with them sixscore thousand of footmen fighters, and twelve thousand knights [or horsemen], without [or besides] those men, that were there ready, which the captivity had occupied, and were brought from provinces and cities, of all youth, or of able fighters.

<sup>3</sup> And all there together made them ready to battle against the sons of Israel; and they came by the side of an hill unto the cop or the height thereof, that beholdeth Dothan, from the place which is said Balbaim unto Cyamon, which is against Esdraelon.

<sup>4</sup> And the sons of Israel, as soon as they saw the multitude of them, they bowed down themselves upon the earth, and threw [or putting] ashes upon their heads, and they prayed with one will, that God of Israel should show his mercy upon his people.

<sup>5</sup> And they took their armours [or arms] of battle, and they sat by the places by which the path of the straightway betwixt the hilly places is dressed, and they kept those places all the day and night.

<sup>6</sup> Certainly Holofernes, the while he went about by compass, found that the well, that flowed into the water conduit of them, was dressed at the south part without the city, and he commanded their water conduit to be cut asunder [or to be hewn down].

<sup>7</sup> Nevertheless wells were not far from the walls of the city, of which wells men of Israel were seen to draw water by stealth, or privily, rather to refresh them than to drink.

<sup>8</sup> But the sons of Ammon and of Moab nighed to Holofernes, and they said to him, The sons of Israel trust not in spear and arrow, but hills [or the mountains] defend them, and little hills set in the rock of stone make them strong.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore that thou mayest over-come them without assailing of battle, set thou [or put] keepers of their wells, that they draw not water of those [or them]; and thou shalt slay them without sword, either certainly when they be made faint [or wearied] for default of water, they shall betake to thee their city, the which city, for it is set in the hills, they guess it may not be overcome.

<sup>10</sup> And these words pleased before Holofernes, and before all his knights; and he ordained by compass by each well an hundred men.

<sup>11</sup> And when by twenty days the keeping of the wells was fulfilled, the cisterns and the gatherings of waters failed to all the men of Israel dwelling in Bethulia [or to all the dwellers in Bethulia], so that there was not of water within the city, whereof they should be fulfilled, namely one day, for the water was given by measure to the people each day.

<sup>12</sup> Then all men and women, young men and eld, and little children, were gathered together to Uzziah, the chief priest, and all they said together with one voice,

<sup>13</sup> The Lord deem betwixt us and thee, for thou, not willing to speak peaceably with the men of Assyria, hast done evil things against us, and for this thing God hath sold us into the hands of them.

<sup>14</sup> And therefore there is none that helpeth us, when we be cast down in thirst, and in great loss before their eyes. [And therefore there is not that helpeth, when we be thrown down before the eyes of them in thirst, and in great perdition.]

<sup>15</sup> And now therefore gather ye together all men, that be in this city, that all we peoples betake us-selves by free will to Holofernes.

<sup>16</sup> It is better that we be made prisoners [or captive], and bless God and live, then that we die thus, and we be shame [or reproof] to each man, and since we see our wives and our young children die for default, before our eyes.

<sup>17</sup> We call into witnessing [or to witness] today heaven and earth, and the God of our fathers, that punisheth us after our sins, that now ye betake this city into the hands of the chivalry of Holofernes, and that our end be made short in the sharpness of sword, which end is now made longer in the dryness [or the drought] of thirst.

<sup>18</sup> And when they had said these things, great weeping and yelling was made of all men in the great church, and by many hours they cried with one voice to the Lord, and said,

<sup>19</sup> We and our fathers have sinned, we have done unjustly [or unright-wisely], and we have done wickedness.

<sup>20</sup> Thou, Lord, for thou art merciful, have mercy on us, and avenge our wickednesses with thy scourge; and, Lord, do not thou betake men acknowledging thee to a people that knoweth not thee,

<sup>21</sup> that they say not among heathen men [or Gentiles], Where is the God of them?

<sup>22</sup> And when they were made faint with these cries, and were made weary with these weepings, and were still, Uzziah rose up, all beshed with tears, and said,

<sup>23</sup> Brethren, be ye patient, and by these five days abide we the mercy of the Lord;

<sup>24</sup> for in hap he shall cut [or put] away his indignation, and he shall give glory to his name.

<sup>25</sup> Soothly if when these five days be passed, help cometh not, we shall do these words which ye have spoken.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, when Judith, the widow, had heard these words, which was the daughter of Merari, the son of Ox, the son of Joseph, the son of Oziel, the son of Elkiah, the son of Ananias, the son of Gideon, the son of Raphain, the son of Ahitub, the son of Elijah, the son of Eliab, the son of Nathanael, the son of Salamiel, the son of Sarasadai, the son of Israel.

<sup>2</sup> And her husband was Manasseh, that was dead in the days of barley harvest;

<sup>3</sup> for he stood busily over men binding together reaps [or sheaves] in the field, and heat came upon his head, and he was dead in Bethulia his city, and he was buried there with his fathers.

<sup>4</sup> And Judith left of him, or living after him, was widow then three years and six months.

<sup>5</sup> And in the higher parts of her house she made to her a privy closet, in which she dwelled close with her damsels [or her handwomen];

<sup>6</sup> and she had an hair-shirt on her loins, and she fasted all the days of life, except sabbaths, and the beginnings of months [or new moons], or the first days of the moon, and the feasts of the house of Israel.

<sup>7</sup> And she was of full seemly beholding, to whom her husband had left many riches, and plenteous meine, and possessions full of [or with] droves of oxen, and of flocks of sheep.

<sup>8</sup> And this Judith was most famous among all men; for she dreaded God greatly, neither any was that spake of her an evil word.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore when this Judith had heard, that Uzziah had promised, that when the fifth day was passed, he would betake the city to Holofernes, she sent to the priests Chabris and Charmis.

<sup>10</sup> And they came to her; and she said to them, What is this word, in which Uzziah hath consented to betake the city to men of Assyria, if within five days help come not to us?

<sup>11</sup> And who be ye that tempt the Lord?

<sup>12</sup> This is no word that stirreth mercy; but rather it stirreth God's wrath, and kindleth his madness.

<sup>13</sup> Have ye set a time of the mercy doing of the Lord, and in your will have ye set a day to him? [Ye have set a time of mercy doing of the Lord, and in your doom ye have ordained a day to him.]

<sup>14</sup> But for the Lord is patient, do we penance for this sin, and ask we with tears his forgiveness;

<sup>15</sup> for God shall not menace [or threaten] so as man, neither as a son of man he shall be inflamed to wrathfulness [or to wrath].

<sup>16</sup> And therefore meek we our souls to him, and in a contrite spirit and made meek serve we to him;

<sup>17</sup> and say we weeping to the Lord, that after his will so he do his mercy with us; and as our heart is troubled [or disturbed] in the pride of our enemies, so have we glory in our meekness.

<sup>18</sup> For we have not pursued [or followed] the sins of our fathers, that forsook their God, and worshipped alien gods;

<sup>19</sup> for which great trespass they were given to their enemies into sword, and into raven, and into confusion; but we know not another God besides him.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore, we being meek, abide we his comfort, and he shall seek, or avenge, our blood of the torments [or from the tormenting] of our enemies; and he shall make meek all folks [or all Gentiles], whichever have risen against us; and the Lord God shall make them without honour.

<sup>21</sup> And now, brethren, for ye be priests in the people of God, and the soul of them hangeth of you, raise ye up their hearts to God at your speech, that they be mindful, that our fathers were tempted, that they should be proved, whether they worshipped God verily [or if verily they praised their God].

<sup>22</sup> They owe to be mindful, how our father Abraham was tempted, or assayed, and how he was proved by many tribulations, and he was made the friend of God.

<sup>23</sup> So Isaac, so Jacob, so Moses, and all that pleased the Lord, passed forth faithfully by many tribulations.

<sup>24</sup> And they that received not temptations with the dread of the Lord, and brought forth their unpatience, and the shame [or the reproof] of their grutching against the Lord, <sup>25</sup> were destroyed of a destroyer, and they perished of serpents.

<sup>26</sup> And therefore avenge we not us [or ourselves] for these things which we suffer;

<sup>27</sup> but areckon we, that these same torments be less than our sins, and believe we, as servants of the Lord that be chastised, that the beatings, or the torments, [or the scourges] of the Lord be come to our amending, and not to our perdition.

<sup>28</sup> And Uzziah and the priests said to Judith, All these things, that thou hast spoken, be sooth, and no reproving is in thy words.

<sup>29</sup> Now therefore pray thou for us, for thou art an holy woman, and dreading God.

<sup>30</sup> And Judith said to them, As ye know, that this thing, that I might speak, is of God,

<sup>31</sup> so prove ye, if this that I have purposed to do, is of God, and pray ye, that God make steadfast my counsel.

<sup>32</sup> Ye shall stand at the gate this night, and I shall go out or shall go forth with my free handmaid; and pray ye, that, as ye said, the Lord behold his people Israel these five days.

<sup>33</sup> But I desire not, that ye inquire my doing, and till I tell to you, none other thing be done or be there done none other thing of you, no but prayer for me to our Lord God [or to the Lord our God].

<sup>34</sup> And Uzziah, the prince of Judah, said to her, Go thou in peace, and the Lord be with thee in the vengeance [or the avenging] of our enemies. And they, Uzziah and the priests, turned, and went away.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> And while they went away, Judith entered into her oratory, and she clothed herself with an hair-shirt, and putted ashes upon her head; and she bowed down herself to the Lord, and cried to the Lord, and said,

<sup>2</sup> Lord God of my father Simeon, which gavest to him a sword into defense of aliens, that were defoulers in their defouling, and made naked the hip of a virgin [or the maiden] into her own confusion;

<sup>3</sup> and thou gavest the women of them into prey, and the daughters of them into captivity, and all the prey into parting [or division] to thy servants, that loved fervently thy fervent love; Lord, I beseech thee, help thou me a widow.

<sup>4</sup> For thou madest the former things, and those things thou thoughtest to make afterward, and this thing is made to us, which thou wouldest.

<sup>5</sup> For all thy ways be ready, and thou hast set thy dooms in thine own purveyance.

<sup>6</sup> Behold thou the strengths [or the tents] of the men of Assyria now, as then thou vouchested safe to behold the strengths [or the tents] of the men of Egypt, when they came armed after thy servants, and trusted in their chariots [or four-horsed carts], and in the multitude of their knights, and in the multitude of their warriors [or fighters].

<sup>7</sup> But thou beheldest on the powers of them, and darkneses made them faint; [But thou beheld upon the tents of them, and darkneses over-travailed them;]

<sup>8</sup> the bottom of the sea held their feet, and waters covered them.

<sup>9</sup> Lord, also these men be made so, that trust in their multitude, or Lord, be these men made also in like manner, which trust in their multitude, and in their chariots, and in their sharp shafts without iron [or in weapons], and in their arrows; and have vain glory in their spears;

<sup>10</sup> and they know not, that thou thyself art our God, that all-breakest battles from the beginning, and the Lord is name to thee.

<sup>11</sup> Raise up thine arm, that is, thy power, as thou didest at [or from] the beginning, and hurtle down the power of them in thy virtue, or in thy virtue hurledest down the power of them; the power of them fall it down in thy wrathfulness, which promise them*[selves]* to defoul thine holy things, and to defoul [or to pollute] the tabernacle of thy name, or which promise*[d]* them*[selves]* to defoul the tabernacle of thy name, and to cast [or to throw] down with their sword the horn or the might of thine altar.

<sup>12</sup> Lord, make thou, that the pride of them be cut off [or cut away] with their own sword;

<sup>13</sup> and be Holofernes taken with the snare of his eyes in me; and thou shalt smite him with the lips of my charity, that is, by my sweet words, and showing love.

<sup>14</sup> Give, Lord, thou to me steadfastness in soul [or in will], that I despise him and his virtue or his power, and destroy him [or turn him upside-down].

<sup>15</sup> For it shall be a memorial or a mindfulness to thy name, when the hands of a woman have cast [or have thrown] him down.

<sup>16</sup> For why, Lord, thy virtue or thy power is not in multitude, neither thy will is in the strengths of horses; and proud spirits pleased not thee at the beginning [or nor proud men pleased to thee from the beginning], but the prayer of meek men and mild hath ever*[more]* pleased thee.

<sup>17</sup> God of heavens, thou art Creator of waters, and Lord of all creatures or of each creature, hear thou me wretched woman praying, and trusting of thy mercy.

<sup>18</sup> Lord, have thou mind of thy testament, and give a word in my mouth to speak, and make thou strong the counsel of thee in mine heart, that thine house dwell perfectly in thine hallowing;

<sup>19</sup> and that all folks know, that thou art God, and that none other is except thee. [and all Gentiles know, for thou art God, and there is none other besides thee.]

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> And it was done, when Judith had ceased to cry to the Lord, she rose up from the place, in which she lay bowed down to the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> And she called her free handmaid, and came down into her house; and she took away from herself the hair-shirt, and unclothed herself from the clothing of her widowhood.

<sup>3</sup> And she washed her body, and anointed her[self] with best myrrh, and she setted [or pleated] the hair of her head, and setted a mitre on her head, and she clothed her with the clothes of her gladness, and clothed her feet with sandals; and she took the ornaments of arms, and lilies, and earrings, and rings, and she adorned herself with all her adornments or ornaments.

<sup>4</sup> To whom also the Lord gave brightness or fairness, for all this ornament [or composition] hanged not of lechery [or lust], but of virtue; and therefore the Lord made large this fairness on her, that by uncomparable fairness, or fairness that might not be comparised, she appeared seemly to the eyes of all men [or she appeared to the eyes of all men with fairness uncomparable].

<sup>5</sup> And then she putted [or put] upon her free handmaid a bottle of wine to bear with her, and a vessel of oil, and meat made of meal [or pottage], and dried figs, and loaves, and cheese, and they went forth.

<sup>6</sup> And when they were come to the gate of the city, they found Uzziah and the priests of the city abiding her.

<sup>7</sup> And when they had seen her, they were astonied and wondered [or marvelled] full much on her fairness.

<sup>8</sup> Nevertheless they asked her nothing, and they let her pass forth, and said, The God of our fathers give grace to thee, and make strong with his virtue all the counsel of thine heart, and Jerusalem have glory on thee, and thy name be in the number of holy and just men [or be thy name in the number of saints and rightwise men].

<sup>9</sup> And all they, that were there, said with one voice, Be it done! be it done!

<sup>10</sup> Certainly Judith [or Then Judith] prayed the Lord, and she passed forth through the gates, and her handmaid with her.

<sup>11</sup> And it was done, when she came down off the hill about the rising of the day, the spyers [or the spies] of Assyrians met her, and they held her, and said, From whence comest thou, either whither goest thou?

<sup>12</sup> And she answered, I am a daughter of Hebrews, and therefore I have fled from the face of them, for I know, that it shall come, that they shall be given to you into prey, for they have despised you, and for they would not betake themselves willfully to you, that they should have found grace in your sight.

<sup>13</sup> And for this cause I thought within me, and I said, I shall go to the face or to the presence of the prince Holofernes, for to show to him the privates of the men of Israel, and I shall show to him, by what entry he may get them, so that not one man of his host fall down [or so that there fall not one man of his host].

<sup>14</sup> And when those men had heard the words of her, they beheld her face, and wondering was in their eyes, for they wondered greatly on her fairness [or they marvelled full much on the fairness of her].

<sup>15</sup> And they said to her, Thou hast kept thy life, for thou hast found such a counsel, that thou wouldest come down to our lord.

<sup>16</sup> And know thou this thing, that, when thou standest in his sight, he shall do well to thee, and thou shalt be most acceptable [or most accepted] in his heart. And they led her to the tabernacle of Holofernes, and they showed her to him.

<sup>17</sup> And when she had entered before his face, anon Holofernes was taken by [or caught in] his eyes with lust.

<sup>18</sup> And his knights said to him, Who shall despise the people of Jews, that have so fair women, that we owe not to fight skillfully against them for these women?

<sup>19</sup> And Judith saw Holofernes sitting within a curtain, that is, in a chair, covered with such a curtain, [or Judith seeing Holofernes sitting in the canopy], that was wide beneath, and narrow or sharp above, that was woven of purple and gold, and smaragdus, and most precious stones,

<sup>20</sup> and when she had looked into his face, she worshipped [or honoured] him, and bowed down herself on the earth; and the servants of Holofernes raised her up, for their lord commanded so.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> Then Holofernes said to her, Be thou comforted, and do not thou dread in thine heart, for I never annoyed man, that would serve Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Assyria.

<sup>2</sup> And if thy people had not despised me, I had not raised mine hand or my power upon it.

<sup>3</sup> But now say to me, for what cause wentest thou away from them, and why it pleased thee to come to us.

<sup>4</sup> And Judith said, Take thou the words of thine handmaid; for, if thou pursuest [or followest] the words of thine handmaid, the Lord shall make [or shall do] a perfect thing with thee.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth Nebuchadnezzar, the king of [the] earth, liveth, and his virtue or his power liveth, which is in thee to the chastising of all souls or all lives erring; for not only by thee men shall serve him, but also beasts of the field shall obey to him by thee.

<sup>6</sup> For the prudence of thy soul is told to all folks; and it is showed [or it is open] to all the world, that thou alone art good and mighty in all his realm; and thy teaching is preached in all provinces.

<sup>7</sup> Neither this thing is hid, which Achior hath spoken, neither that thing is unknown, which thou commandedest to befall to him.

<sup>8</sup> For it is known, that our God is so offended by sins, that he hath sent by his prophets to the people, that he would betake them to their enemies for their sins.

<sup>9</sup> And for the sons of Israel know, that they have offended the Lord their God, the trembling of him [or his trembling] is upon them.

<sup>10</sup> Furthermore also hunger hath assailed them, and for dryness [or the drought] of water they be reckoned [or counted] now among dead men.

<sup>11</sup> And this thing they ordain, that they slay their beasts, and drink their blood;

<sup>12</sup> and they have thought to give these holy things of their Lord to buy with, wheat, wine, and oil, which God commanded to be not touched, and they will waste the things, which they ought not to touch with hands; therefore for they do these things, it is certain that they shall be given into perdition.

<sup>13</sup> Which thing I, thine handmaid, know, and therefore I fled from them, and the Lord hath sent me to tell these same things to thee.

<sup>14</sup> For I, thine handmaid, worship God, also now with thee; and thine handmaid shall go forth, and I shall pray God;

<sup>15</sup> and he shall say to me, when he shall yield to them their sin; and I shall come, and tell to thee, so that I bring thee through the midst [or by the middle] of Jerusalem, and thou shalt have all the people of Israel as sheep to which is no shepherd, and there shall not bark, or chide, either speak foul, against thee namely one;

<sup>16</sup> for these things be said to me by the purveyance of God.

<sup>17</sup> And for God is wroth to them, I am sent to tell to thee these same things.

<sup>18</sup> Certainly all these words pleased before Holofernes, and before his servants; and they wondered [or marvelled] at the wisdom of her;

<sup>19</sup> and one said to another [or the one said to the tother], There is not such a woman on earth in sight, in fairness, and in wit of words.

<sup>20</sup> And Holofernes said to her, God did well, that sent thee before the people, that thou give or betake it into mine hands;

<sup>21</sup> and for thy promise is good, if thy God doeth these things to me, he shall be also my God, and thou shalt be great in the house of Nebuchad-nezzar, and thy name shall be named in all earth.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Then Holofernes commanded her to enter, where his treasures were kept, and he commanded her to dwell there; and he ordained, what should be given to her of his feast.

<sup>2</sup> To whom Judith answered, and said, Now I may not eat of these things, which thou commandedest to be given to me, lest offence come on me; but I shall eat of these things, which I have brought with me.

<sup>3</sup> To whom Holofernes said, If these things fail, which thou hast brought with thee, what shall we then do to thee?

<sup>4</sup> And Judith said, Lord, thy soul liveth, for thine handmaid shall not spend all these things, till [or to the time that] God shall do in mine hands these things which I have thought to do. And his servants led her into the tabernacle, wither he had commanded.

<sup>5</sup> And she asked of Holofernes, while she entered, that freedom should be given to her to go out to prayer, in the night, and before the light of the day came, to beseech the Lord.

<sup>6</sup> And he commanded to his chamberlains, that, as it pleased her, she should go out, and enter [or come] in, for to pray her God by three days.

<sup>7</sup> And she went out or went forth in nights into the valley of Bethulia, and washed herself in a well of water.

<sup>8</sup> And as she went up there, she prayed the Lord God of Israel, that he would dress [or govern] her way to the deliverance of his people.

<sup>9</sup> And she entered in, and dwelled clean in the tabernacle, till that she took her meat in the eventide.

<sup>10</sup> And it was done in the fourth day, Holofernes made a supper to his servants, and he said to Bagoas, the chamberlain [or gelding], Go thou, and counsel [or sweetly move] that Hebrew woman, that she consent willfully to dwell with me.

<sup>11</sup> For it is a foul thing with men of Assyria, if a woman scorn a man, in her doing, and that she pass free from him.

<sup>12</sup> Then Bagoas entered in to Judith, and said, A good damsel be not ashamed to enter in to my lord, that she be honoured before his face, and that she eat with him, and drink wine with gladness.

<sup>13</sup> To whom Judith answered, Who am I, that I against-say my lord?

<sup>14</sup> I shall do all things, that shall be good and best before his eyes. And whatever thing pleaseth him, this thing shall be best to me in all the days of my life.

<sup>15</sup> And she rose up, and adorned herself with her clothes, and entered, and stood before the face of Holofernes.

<sup>16</sup> And the heart of Holofernes was stirred to lust; for he was burning in fleshly covetousness [or lust] of her.

<sup>17</sup> And Holofernes said to her, Drink thou now, and take meat in gladness [or Drink now, and sit down in joy]; for thou hast found grace before me.

<sup>18</sup> And Judith said, Lord, I shall drink, for my soul is magnified today before all the days of my life.

<sup>19</sup> And she took, and ate, and drank before him those things, which her handmaid had made ready to her.

<sup>20</sup> And Holofernes was made glad [or merry] towards her, and he drank full much wine, how much he had never drank in one day in his life.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth as soon as eventide was made, his servants hasted to their inns [or to their harbourgeries], that is, tents; and Bagoas closed together the doors of the closet where Holofernes lay, and went forth.

<sup>2</sup> For all men were made faint, or drunk, of wine;

<sup>3</sup> and Judith alone was there within the closet [or the privy chamber].

<sup>5</sup> And Judith said to her damsel, that she should stand withoutforth before the door of the closet [or the privy chamber], and espy [or wait about], that no man were nigh.

<sup>6</sup> And Judith stood before the bed of Holofernes, and she prayed with tears, and with moving of her lips she said in silence,

<sup>7</sup> Lord God of Israel, confirm me, or make me stable, [or Confirm me, Lord God of Israel], and in this time behold thou to the works of mine hands, that, as thou hast promised, thou raise up Jerusalem thy city; and that I perform this thing, which thing I believing thought to may be done by thee.

<sup>8</sup> And when she had said this, she nighed [or went] to the pillar that was at the head of his bed, and she loosened his sword, that hanged [or hung] there bound on the pillar.

<sup>9</sup> And when she had drawn out of the sheath that sword, she took the hair of his head; and said, Lord God of Israel, confirm me in this hour.

<sup>10</sup> And she smote twice on [or into] his neck, and she cutted off his head; and she took away his curtain [or his canopy] from the pillars, and she wallowed away his body headless.

<sup>11</sup> And after a little [while] she went out, and she betook the head of Holofernes to her handmaid, and commanded, that she should put it into her scrip.

<sup>12</sup> And the two women went out or went forth by their custom, as to prayer, and they passed the tents, that is, host, of Assyrians, and they compassed the valley, and came to the gate of the city.

<sup>13</sup> And Judith said afar to the keepers of the walls, Open ye the gates, for God is with us, that hath done great virtue in Israel.

<sup>14</sup> And it was done, when the men had heard her voice, they called the priests of the city.

<sup>15</sup> And all men from the least till to the most ran to her; for they had hoped not [or no more], that she should come now.

<sup>16</sup> And they tended lights, and all men encompassed about her. And she went up into an higher place, and commanded silence to be made. And when all men were still [for when all had held their peace], Judith said,

<sup>17</sup> Praise ye the Lord our God, that hath not forsaken them that trust in him, and by me, his handmaid,

<sup>18</sup> he hath fulfilled his mercy, which he promised to the house of Israel, and in this night he hath slain in mine hand the enemy of his people.

<sup>19</sup> And she took out of the scrip the head of Holofernes, and showed it to them, and said, Lo! the head of Holofernes, prince of the chivalry of Assyrians; and lo! his curtain [for the canopy of him], in which he lay in his drunkenness, where also the Lord our God killed him by the hand of a woman.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth the Lord God liveth, for his angel hath kept me, both going from hence, and dwelling there, and turning again from thence hither; and the Lord hath not suffered his handmaid to be defouled, but without defouling [or pollution] of sin he hath again-called me to you, and I have joy in victory of the Lord or in his victory, and in my escaping, and in your deliverance.

<sup>21</sup> Acknowledge ye all to him or to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy is into without end.

<sup>22</sup> Soothly all men worshipped the Lord, and said to her, The Lord hath blessed thee in his virtue, for by thee he hath brought to nought our enemies.

<sup>23</sup> And then Uziah, the prince of the people of Israel, said to Judith, Daughter, thou art blessed of the high Lord God, before all women on earth.

<sup>24</sup> Blessed be the Lord God, that made heaven and earth, and that dressed thee into the wounds of the head of the prince of our enemies;

<sup>25</sup> for today he hath magnified so thy name, that thy praising go not away from the mouth of men, that shall be mindful of the virtue of the Lord without end; for which thou sparedest not thy life for the anguishes and tribulations of thy kin [or thy kindred], but helpedest the falling before the sight of our God, or for which men thou sparedest not thy life, but puttedest it for the anguishes and tribulations of thy kin, and thou hast holpen the falling of the people before the sight of our God.

<sup>26</sup> And all the people said, Amen! amen! or Be it thus done! be it thus done! [or So be it! so be it!]

<sup>27</sup> And then Achior was called, and he came; and Judith said to him, That God of Israel, to whom thou gavest witnessing, that he avengeth him of his enemies, hath cut off the head of all unbelievful men in this night by mine hand.

<sup>28</sup> And that thou prove that it is so, lo! the head of Holofernes, which in the despite of his pride despised God of Israel, and he menaced [or threatened] death to thee, and said, When the people of Israel is taken, I shall command thy sides to be pierced with a sword.

<sup>29</sup> And when Achior saw the head of Holofernes, he was anguished for dread, and he fell down on his face upon the earth, and his soul suffered anesthetizing, that is, swooning.

<sup>30</sup> And after that he had taken again his spirit, and was comforted, he felled down at the feet of Judith, and worshipped [or honoured] her, and said,

<sup>31</sup> Blessed art thou of thy God in all the tabernacles of Jacob; for in all folk, that shall hear thy name, God of Israel shall be magnified in thee.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth Judith said to all the people, Brethren, hear ye [or Heareth, brethren]; hang ye up this head upon your walls.

<sup>2</sup> And it shall be, when the sun riseth, each man take his armours [or his arms], and go ye out with fierce-ness, not that ye go all down beneath the hill, but as men making assault.

<sup>3</sup> And then it shall be needed, that the spyers [or the spies] of the land flee to raise up their prince to battle.

<sup>4</sup> And when the dukes of them shall run together to the tabernacle of Holofernes, and find him headless [or beheaded], wallowed [or wrapped] in his blood, dread shall fall down upon them.

<sup>5</sup> And when ye know that they flee, go ye securely after them, for God shall all-break them [or tread them] under your feet.

<sup>6</sup> Then Achior saw the virtue that God of Israel had done, and he forsook the custom of heathenness, and he believed to God; and he circumcised the flesh of his rod, and he was put to the people of Israel, and all the after-coming of his kin till into this day or unto this time, [or unto the day that is now].

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth anon as the day rose, they hanged the head of Holofernes on the wall; and each man took his armours [or his arms], and they went out with great noise and yelling.

<sup>8</sup> Which thing the spyers [or the spies] saw, and they ran to the tabernacle of Holofernes.

<sup>9</sup> And they, that were in the tabernacle, came, and made noise before the entering of the bed [or the in-coming of the privy chamber] of Holofernes, and they imagined by crafty unrestfulness for cause of up-raising [him], that Holofernes should awake not of the raisers, but of the noise off[the] sounders.

<sup>10</sup> For no man was hardy to open the tabernacle of the virtue, that is, of the prince of the chivalry, of Assyrians by knocking, either by entering.

<sup>11</sup> But when his dukes, and his tribunes [or the leaders of thousands], and all the greater men of the host of the king of Assyria were come, they said to the chamberlains,

<sup>12</sup> Enter ye, and raise ye him up; for mice be gone out of the caves, and they dare move us [or call forth us] to battle.

<sup>13</sup> Then Bagoas entered into his closet [or into his privy chamber], and he stood before the curtain of his bed, and he made beating together with his hands; for he supposed him to sleep with Judith.

<sup>14</sup> But when by the wit, or listening, of his ears he perceived not any stirring [or moving] of Holofernes lying there, he came nigh and nighed to the curtain, and he drew it up or he raised it, and he saw the dead body of Holofernes without head, defouled [or rotting] in his blood, and lying upon the earth, and he cried [out] with great voice with weeping, and rent his clothes.

<sup>15</sup> And Bagoas entered into the tabernacle of Judith, and found not her [or found her not], and anon he went out to the people,

<sup>16</sup> and said, An Hebrew woman hath made confusion in the house of king Nebuchadnezzar; for lo! Holofernes lieth in the earth, and his head is not with him.

<sup>17</sup> And when the princes of the virtue or the power of Assyrians had heard this thing, all they rent their clothes, and unsufferable [or intolerable] dread and trembling felled down upon them, and their souls were troubled greatly.

<sup>18</sup> And uncomparable cry was made by the middle of their tents./And cry that might not be comparisoned was made throughout their tents.

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> And when all the host had heard Holofernes beheaded, mind and counsel fled from them, and they shaken by trembling and dread alone or they stirred with only trembling and dread, took the help [or the succour] of flight,

<sup>2</sup> so that no man spake with his neighbor; but each man bowing down his head, and all their things were forsaken or left behind them, they were busy to escape the Jews or Hebrews, which they had heard to come armed upon them; and they fled by the ways of fields, and by the paths of little hills.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore the sons of Israel saw the men of Assyria fleeing or flying away, and they pursued [or followed] after them, and came down, and they sounded with trumps, and yelled after them.

<sup>5</sup> And Uziah sent messengers by all the cities and countries [or regions] of Israel.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore each country and each city [or And so all regions and all cities] sent forth chosen young men armed after them; and they pursued those Assyrians with the sharpness of sword, till they came to the last part of their coasts.

<sup>7</sup> And the residue men, or the remnant, of the sons of Israel, that were left in the city of Bethulia, entered into the tents of Assyrians, and took away with them the prey, which Assyrians fleeing had left, and men of Israel were greatly charged with chattel.

<sup>8</sup> And they that were over-comers, in their pursuit turned again to the city Bethulia, or But they that were overcomers, turned again to Bethulia, and they took away with them all things whatever were of those Assyrians, so that there was no number in sheep, and beasts, and in all moveable things of them, so that from the least unto the most, all men of Israel were made rich of the preys.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth Joakim, the highest [or the high] bishop came from Jerusalem into Bethulia with all the priests, to see Judith.

<sup>10</sup> And when she had gone out to him, all they blessed her with one voice, and said, Thou art the glory of Jerusalem, and thou art the gladness of Israel, thou art the honour of our people, which hast done manly,

<sup>11</sup> and certainly thine heart was comforted in God, for thou lovedest chastity, and after thine husband thou knew not another man; therefore and the hand of the Lord comforted thee, and therefore thou shalt be blessed [into] without end.

<sup>12</sup> And all the people said, Be it done! be it done! or Amen! amen!

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth by thirty days scarcely were the spoils of men of Assyria gathered up of the men of Israel.

<sup>14</sup> Certainly they gave to Judith all things, that were proved to be property of Holofernes, in gold, in silver, and in clothes, and in gems, and in all appurtenance of household; and all things were given to her of the people.

<sup>15</sup> And all peoples, with women, and virgins, and with young men, made joy, in organs and harps.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> Then Judith sang this song to the Lord,

<sup>2</sup> and said, Begin ye to praise God in tympanis [or timbrels]; sing ye to the Lord in cymbals; sing ye sweetly a new psalm to him; fully make ye joy [or full out joyeth], and inwardly call ye his name.

<sup>3</sup> The Lord all-breaketh battles, the Lord is name to him;

<sup>4</sup> which hath set his castles, that is, angels, or his strengths, in the midst of his people [or that put his tents in the middle of his people], for to deliver us from the hand of all our enemies.

<sup>5</sup> Assur came from the hills, from the north, in the multitude of his strength; whose multitude stopped strands [or the streams], and the horses of them covered valleys.

<sup>6</sup> And he said, that he should burn my coasts, and slay my young men with sword, to give my young children into prey, and the virgins thereof into captivity.

<sup>7</sup> But the Lord Almighty annoyed him, and betook him into the hands of a woman, and she shamed [or confounded] him.

<sup>8</sup> For the mighty prince of them felled not down by strength of young men, neither the sons of giants killed him, neither high giants putted them-selves to him; but Judith, the daughter of Merari, overcame him by the fairness of her face.

<sup>9</sup> For she unclothed her from the cloth of [her] widowhood, and clothed her with [or in] the cloth of gladness, into the full out joying of the sons of Israel.

<sup>10</sup> She anointed her face with ointment, and she bound together the tresses of her hairs with a coronal [or a mitre], to deceive him.

<sup>12</sup> Men of Persia had hideousness of her steadfastness, and men of Media of her hardiness. [The Persians dreaded her steadfastness, and Medes her hardiness.]

<sup>13</sup> Then the strong powers of the men of Assyria [or Assyrians] yelled for dread, when my meek men of Israel, waxing dry for thirst, appeared to them.

<sup>14</sup> The sons of young women have pricked them, and they have killed them as children fleeing; they perished in battle from the face of my God [or from the face of my Lord].

<sup>15</sup> Sing we an hymn to the Lord, and sing we a new hymn to our God. [A new hymn sing we to the Lord our God.]

<sup>16</sup> Lord God, thou art a great Lord, and full clear [or all clear]art thou in thy virtue, whom no man may over-come.

<sup>17</sup> Each creature of thine serve thee, for thou saidest, and so all things were made; thou sentest thy Spirit, and then all things were made of nought [or be formed]; and none is that against-standeth thy commandment.

<sup>18</sup> For hills shall be moved from the foundations with waters; and stones shall float abroad as wax before thy face [or stones as wax shall melt before thy face].

<sup>19</sup> And they that dread thee, shall be great with thee by all things.

<sup>20</sup> Woe to the folk rising up upon my kin [or my kindred]; for the Lord Almighty shall take vengeance in them, and in the day of doom he shall visit them.

<sup>21</sup> For he shall give fire and worms in the fleshs of them [or in their flesh], that they be burnt, and live, and they feel the fierceness thereof till into without end [or unto evermore].

<sup>22</sup> And it was done after these things, all the people after the victory came to Jerusalem to worship the Lord; and anon as they were cleansed [or were purified]after the law, all men offered burnt sacrifices, and avows [or vows], and their promises.

<sup>23</sup> Forsooth Judith gave then into the cursing of forgetting all the armours [or the arms] of battle of Holofernes, which the people had given to her, also the curtain [or the canopy], which she had taken away.

<sup>24</sup> Certainly all the people was merry after the face of holy men [or joyful after the face of saints]; and by three months the joy of this victory was hallowed with Judith.

<sup>25</sup> And after those days each man went again into his own things or into his own dwelling place, [or After those days forsooth each went again into his own]; and Judith was made great in Bethulia, and she was more clear than all the women of the land of Israel.

<sup>26</sup> For chastity was joined to her virtue of steadfastness, so that she knew no man fleshly all the days of her life, since Manasseh, her husband, was dead.

<sup>27</sup> Soothly in feast days she came forth with great glory./In holidays, Judith came forth, and with great glory she was worshipped before other women.

<sup>28</sup> And she dwelled in the house of her husband an hundred years and five; and she let go, or made, her handmaid free. And then Judith was dead, and she was buried with her husband in Bethulia, or And she was dead, and buried with her husband in Bethulia;

<sup>30</sup> Forsooth in all the space of her life, there was none that overcame or disturbed Israel, and many years after her death.

<sup>31</sup> And the day of the victory of this feast is taken of Hebrews, and reckoned in the number of holy days, and it is worshipped of the Jews, from that time till into this present day.

ADDITIONS TO ESTHER

The Greek version of Esther, found in the Septuagint, contains six additions not found in the Hebrew version of Esther that is in most Bibles. These additions to Esther consist of a prologue, prayers by Mordecai and Esther, the texts of the decrees from King Ahasuerus, amplifications to, and elaborations of, the narrative, and a postscript. In the “Wycliffe Bible” and the first edition of the King James Bible (1611), these additions to Esther are included, but are placed at the end of the Hebrew version of Esther, beginning with verse 4 of Chapter 10, and concluding in Chapter 16. That format is followed here; but in addition, the place where each passage occurs in the Greek version of Esther, and where it would belong in the Hebrew version of Esther, is indicated at the beginning of each section in parentheses. (Modern translations of the Apocrypha, such as the New English Bible, and the Good News Bible, print the entire Greek version of Esther with these additions clearly marked.) Also, in the Greek version of Esther, the names of several of the principals are spelled differently. In order to avoid confusion, and to aid comprehension, here they have been changed to the Hebrew names.

(In the Greek Esther, the following verses also appear as verses 4-13 of Chapter 10.)

CHAPTER 10

<sup>4</sup> And Mordecai said, These things be done of God.

<sup>5</sup> I have mind on a dream, which I saw, signifying these same things, and nothing of those was void.

<sup>6</sup> A little well, that waxed [or grew] into a flood, and was turned into light, and sun, and turned again into full many waters, this well is Esther, whom the king took into wife, and would that she were his queen.

<sup>7</sup> And the two dragons, I am, and Haman;

<sup>8</sup> and folks that came together, be these, that enforced or endeavoured to do away the name of Jews.

<sup>9</sup> But my folk Israel it is, that cried to the Lord; and the Lord made safe his people, and he hath delivered us from all evils, and he hath done great signs, or tokens, and wonders among heathen men [or the Gentiles;]

<sup>10</sup> and he hath commanded two lots to be, one of God’s people, and the other of all heathen men [or all Gentiles].

<sup>11</sup> And then ever either lot came into a day ordained, or determined, from that time before God and all folks. [And either lot came into the set day before God now from that time to all Gentiles.]

<sup>12</sup> And the Lord had mind on his people, and had mercy on his heritage.

<sup>13</sup> And these days shall be kept in the month Adar, or March, in the fourteenth and the fifteenth day of the same month, with all busyness and joy of the people gathered into one company, into all the generations of the people of Israel afterward.

(In the Greek Esther, and likewise for the Hebrew Esther, the following verse serves as a postscript after the 10 new verses added to Chapter 10.)

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> In the fourth year, when Ptolemy and Cleopatra reigned, Dositheus, that said himself to be a priest and of the kin of Levi, and Ptolemy, his son, brought this epistle of lots [or Purim] into Jerusalem, which epistle they said, that Lysimachus, the son of Ptolemy, translated. This is a rubric; for this beginning was in the common translation, which beginning is not told in Hebrew, neither at any of the translators, [or This forsooth

was the beginning in the common translation, that neither in Hebrew, nor with any of the interpreters is told].

(In the Greek Esther, verses 2-12 that follow, serve as a Prologue to Chapter 1; in the Hebrew Esther, they would be placed at verse 5 of Chapter 2.)

<sup>2</sup> In the second year, when Artaxerxes* the most reigned/the mightiest king reigned, Mordecai, the son of Jair, the son of Shimei, the son of Kish, of the lineage of Benjamin, saw a dream in the first day of the month Nisan, that is, June;

<sup>3</sup> and Mordecai was a man a Jew, that dwelled in the city of Susa, a great man, and among the chief men or the first men of the king's hall.

<sup>4</sup> And he was of that number of prisoners [or captives], which Nebu-chadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had translated or brought over from Jerusalem with Jeconiah, king of Judah. And this was his dream.

<sup>5</sup> He saw that voices, and noises, and thunders, and earth-movings [or earthquakes], and great troubling [or disturbing] appeared upon the earth.

<sup>6</sup> And lo! two great dragons, and they were made ready against them-selves into battle;

<sup>7</sup> at whose cry all nations were stirred together, to fight against the folk of just [or rightwise] men.

<sup>8</sup> And that was a day of darkneses, and of peril, of tribulation, and of anguish, and great dread [or great fear] was then upon the earth.

<sup>9</sup> And the folk of just [or rightwise] men, dreading their evils, was disturbed, and made ready to death.

<sup>10</sup> And they cried to God; and when they cried, a little well increased [or waxed] into a full great flood, and it turned again into full many waters.

<sup>11</sup> And then the light and the sun rose up; and meek men were enhanced, and devoured noble men.

<sup>12</sup> And when Mordecai in his sleep had seen this thing, and had risen from his bed, he thought, what God would do, and he had fast set [or fixed] in his soul this vision, and coveted to know, what the dream signified.

(In the Greek Esther, verses 1-6 that follow conclude the Prologue to Chapter 1; in the Hebrew Esther, they would be placed at verse 21 of Chapter 2.)

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth Mordecai dwelled that time in the hall of the king, with Bigthan or Gabatha and Teresh or Tharra, the honest servants and chaste [or geldings] of the king, that were porters of the palace.

<sup>2</sup> And when he had understood the thoughts of them, and had before-seen full diligently their busynesses, he learned that they endeavoured them to set [or to put] their hands upon the king Ahasuerus, and he told of that thing to the king.

<sup>3</sup> And when enquiring was had of ever either of them, the king commanded them, that acknowledged [or had confessed] their treason, to be led to the death.

<sup>4</sup> And the king wrote in books that thing, that was done, and also Mordecai took mind of this thing to be written in letters./Forsooth the king wrote in books that, that was done, but also Mordecai betook the mind of the thing to letters.

<sup>5</sup> And the king commanded Mordecai, that he should dwell in the hall of the palace, and he gave to him gifts for the telling.

---

* CHAPTER 11:2 In the Hebrew Esther, this king is called Ahasuerus; his son is called Artaxerxes (though historically the son may have been "Artaxerxes II" and the father "Artaxerxes I"). In order to avoid confusion, and to aid comprehension, the Hebrew name of the king will be used in this translation henceforth.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth Haman, the son of Hammedatha, a Bougean, was most glorious before the king, and he would have annoyed Mordecai, and his people, for the twain [or two] honest and chaste servants of the king that were slain. Hitherto is the proem; those things, that pursue[or follow], were set[or put] in that place where it is written in the book, And they took away the goods, either the chattels of them; which things we found in the common translation.

(In the Greek Esther, verses 1-7 below follow verse 13 of Chapter 3; in the Hebrew Esther, these 7 verses would also follow verse 13 of Chapter 3.)

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> Soothly this was the sampler of the epistle. The greatest king Ahasuerus, from India unto Ethiopia, saith health to the princes and dukes of an hundred and seven and twenty provinces, which princes and dukes be subject/s to his empire.

<sup>2</sup> When I was lord of full many folks, and I had made subject all the world to my lordship, I would not mis-use the greatness of power, but govern my subjects by mercy and softness, that they, leading their life in silence without any dread, should use peace coveted of all deadly men.

<sup>3</sup> And when I asked of my counsellors, how this might be [ful] filled, one, Haman by name, that passed other men in wisdom and faithfulness, and was the second after the king,

<sup>4</sup> showed [or told] to me, that a people was scattered in all the roundness of lands, the which people used new laws, and did against the custom of all folks, and despised the commandments of kings, and defouled by his dissention the according of all nations.

<sup>5</sup> And when we had learned this thing, and saw, that one folk rebelled against all the kind of men, and that it used wayward [or shrewd] laws, and was contrary to our commandments, and disturbed or troubled the peace and according [or the accord] of provinces subject to us,

<sup>6</sup> we commanded, that whichever [or whosoever] Haman showed, which is sovereign of all provinces [or that is provost to all provinces], and is the second from the king, and whom we honour in the place of father, they with their wives and children, be done away of their enemies, and no man have mercy upon them, in the fourteenth day of the twelfth month Adar, or March, of the present year;

<sup>7</sup> that cursed [or wicked] men go down to hell in one day, and yield peace to our empire, which they had troubled [or have disturbed]. Hitherto is the sampler of the epistle; these things, that pursue[or follow], I found written after that place, where it is read, And Mordecai went, and did all things, which Esther had commanded to him; nevertheless those things be not had in Hebrew, and utterly those be not said at any of the translators.

(In the Greek Esther, verses 8-19 below follow verse 17 of Chapter 4; in the Hebrew Esther, these 11 verses would also follow verse 17 of Chapter 4.)

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth Mordecai besought the Lord, and was mindful of all his works/and he was mindful of all the works of the Lord, [Mordecai forsooth prayed the Lord, mindful of all his works,]

<sup>9</sup> and said, Lord God, King Almighty, all things be set in thy lordship, either power, and there is none, that may against-stand [or withstand] thy will; if thou deemest for to save Israel, we shall be delivered anon.

<sup>10</sup> Thou madest heaven and earth, and whatever thing [or all thing that] is contained in the compass of heaven.

<sup>11</sup> Thou art Lord of all things, and there is none that against-standeth thy majesty.

<sup>12</sup> Thou knowest all things, and knowest, that not for pride and spite, neither for any covetousness of vain glory I did this thing, that I worshipped not Haman the most proud man[or that I honour not the most proud Haman;]

<sup>13</sup> for I was ready willfully to kiss/I was ready to have kissed willfully, yea, the steps of his feet for the health of Israel,

<sup>14</sup> but I dreaded, lest I should bear over to a man, or to man, the honour of my God, and lest I should worship any man except my God.

<sup>15</sup> And now, Lord King, God of Abraham, have thou mercy on thy people, for our enemies will lose us, and do away thine heritage;

<sup>16</sup> despise not thy part, which thou again-boughtest from Egypt.

<sup>17</sup> Hear thou my prayer, and be thou merciful to the lot, and the part of thine heritage; and turn thou our mourning into joy, that we living praise thy name, Lord; and close thou not the mouths of men praising thee.

<sup>18</sup> And all Israel with like mind and beseeching cried to the Lord, for cause that certain death nighed to them.

(In the Greek Esther, verses 1-19 below follow the preceding verses, prior to Chapter 5; in the Hebrew Esther, these 19 verses would also follow the preceding verses, prior to Chapter 5.)

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> Also queen Esther fled [or flew] to the Lord, and dreaded the peril, that nighed.

<sup>2</sup> And when she had put away the king's clothes that pertained to the queen, she took clothes covenable to weepings and mourning; and for diverse ointments, she filled her head with ashes and drit, or vile power, or dust, and she meeked her body with fastings; and with braiding, or twisting, [or tearing, or pulling] away of her hair, she filled all places, in which she was wont to be glad;

<sup>3</sup> and she besought [or prayed] the Lord God of Israel, and said, My Lord, which alone art our King, help me a woman left alone, and of whom none other helper is except thee, [or My Lord, that art king alone, help me solitary, and of whom save thee is none other helper];

<sup>4</sup> my peril is in my hands.

<sup>5</sup> I have heard of my father, that thou, Lord, hast taken away Israel from all folks [or shouldest have taken Israel from all Gentiles], and our fathers from all their greater men before, that thou shouldest wield an everlasting heritage; and thou hast done to them, as thou hast spoken, or promised.

<sup>6</sup> We have sinned in thy sight, and therefore thou hast betaken us into the hands of our enemies;

<sup>7</sup> for we worshipped the gods of them. Lord, thou art just, [or Rightwise thou art, Lord];

<sup>8</sup> and now it sufficeth not to them, that they oppress us with hardest servage, but they reckon the strength of their hands to the power of idols [or maumets],

<sup>9</sup> and therefore they will change thy behests, and do away thine heritage, and close the mouths of men praising thee, and quench the glory of thy temple and [of thine] altar,

<sup>10</sup> that they open the mouths of heathen men/and they will open the mouths of heathen men, and praise the strength of idols, and preach a fleshly king without end. [that they open the mouths of Gentiles, and praise the strength of maumets, and preach a fleshly king into evermore.]

<sup>11</sup> Lord, give thou not thy king's rod to them, that be nought, lest they laugh at our falling; but turn thou the counsel of them upon themselves, and destroy thou him, that began to be cruel against us.

<sup>12</sup> Lord, have thou mind, and show thee to us in the time of [our] tribulation; and, Lord, King of gods, and King of all power, give thou trust to me, [or and give to me trust, Lord, king of Jews, and of all power];

<sup>13</sup> give thou a word well addressed, [or a seemly word], in my mouth in the sight of the lion Ahasuerus*, and turn over his heart into the hatred of our enemy, that both he perish, and other men that consented to him.

<sup>14</sup> But deliver us in thine hand, and help me, having none other help but thee,

<sup>15</sup> Lord, that hast the knowing of all things; and Lord, thou knowest that I hate the glory of wicked men, and that I loathe the bed of uncircumcised men, and of each alien [or of all heathen].

<sup>16</sup> Lord, thou knowest my frailty and my need, that I hold abominable [or loathe] the sign of my pride and of my glory, which is on mine head in the days of my showing, and that I loathe it as the cloth of a woman having unclean blood [or in the flux of blood], and I bear not, or use it, in the days of my stillness [or my silence],

<sup>17</sup> and that I ate not in the board of Haman, neither the feast of the king pleased me, and I drank not the wine of moist sacrifices,

<sup>18</sup> and that thine handmaid was never glad, since I was translated hither till into present day, but in thee, Lord God of Abraham.

<sup>19</sup> A! strong God above all, hear thou the voice of them, that have none other hope than thee, and deliver thou us from the hands of wicked men, and deliver thou me from my dread.

(In the Greek Esther, the next 2 verses would follow verse 8 of Chapter 4; in the Hebrew Esther, these 2 verses would also follow verse 8 of Chapter 4.)

1' And no doubt that Mordecai sent to Esther, that she should enter to the king, and pray for her people, and for her country.

1" He said, Be thou mindful of the days of thy meekness, how thou were nourished in mine hand; for Haman, which is ordained the second person in power from the king, hath spoken against us into death; therefore thou inwardly call the Lord, and speak thou to the king for us, and deliver us from death.

(In the Greek Esther, verses 1-16 below, follow Esther's prayer, which follows Mordecai's prayer, all of which precede Chapter 5; in the Hebrew Esther, these 16 verses would replace the first 2 verses of Chapter 5.)

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth in the third day she putted off the clothes of her adorning, or of her mourning, and was encom-passed with her glory.

<sup>2</sup> And when she shined in the king's clothing, and had inwardly called the Governor of all things and the Saviour God, she took two servantesses,

<sup>3</sup> and soothly she leaned on one, as not sustaining to bear her [own] body, for delights and full great tenderness;

<sup>4</sup> but the other servantess [or damsel] pursued [or followed] the lady, and bare up her clothes trailing [or flowing] down upon the earth.

<sup>5</sup> Soothly she was beshed with colour of roses in the cheer/And Esther in her face was coloured with rose colours, and with her pleasant and shining [or bright] eyes she covered her sorrowful soul, that was drawn together with full much dread.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore she entered [or gone in] through all the doors by order, and she stood against the king, where he sat upon the seat [or the see] of his realm, and was clothed in the king's clothes, and shined in [or shining with] gold and precious stones, and he was dreadful [or fearful] in sight.

<sup>7</sup> And when he had raised up his face, and had showed the madness, or austereness, of his heart with burning eyes, the queen felled [or fell] down before him; and when her colour was changed into paleness, she rested her head bowed down upon her handmaid.

<sup>8</sup> And God turned the spirit of the king into mildness, and he hasted, and dreaded, and skipped [or started] out of the seat/and the king hasting, and dreading, rose up anon of his seat; and he sustained her/he held up the queen with his arms, till she came again to herself; and he spake fair to her by these words,

<sup>9</sup> Esther, what grief hast thou? I am thy brother; do not thou dread,

<sup>10</sup> thou shalt not die, for this coming to me without calling; for this law is not made for thee, but for all men. Therefore nigh thou hither [or Come hither then],

<sup>11</sup> and touch the sceptre, that is, the king's rod. And when she was still [or held her peace], he took the golden rod, and putted [or put] [up] on her neck;

<sup>12</sup> and he kissed her, and said, Why speakest thou not to me?

<sup>13</sup> And she answered, Lord, I saw thee as an angel of God, and mine heart was troubled [or disturbed] for the dread of thy glory;

<sup>15</sup> And when she spake, again she felled down in a swoon, and was almost dead [or utterly swooned].

(In the Greek Esther, verses 1-24 below, follow verse 12 of Chapter 8; in the Hebrew Esther, these 24 verses would also follow verse 12 of Chapter 8.)

1' The sampler of the letter of king Ahasuerus, which he sent for the Jews to all the provinces of his realm; and this same sampler is not had in the book of Hebrew [or in the Hebrew volume].

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> The great king Ahasuerus, from India unto Ethiopia, saith health to the dukes and princes of an hundred and seven and twenty provinces, that obey to our commandment. [Ahasuerus, the great king, from India unto Ethiopia, of an hundred and seven and twenty provinces, to dukes and princes, that to our commanding obeish, saith greeting.]

<sup>2</sup> Many men mis-use into pride the goodness and honour of princes, which is given to them;

<sup>3</sup> and not only they endeavor to oppress [the] subjects to kings [or to the king], but they bear not duly the glory given to them, and make ready treasons against them, that gave their glory to them.

<sup>4</sup> And they be not appeased to do not thankings for benefices [or benefits] or goodnesses, and to defoul in themselves the laws of courtesy; but also they deem, that they may flee the sentence of God seeing all things.

<sup>5</sup> And they break out into so much madness, that they endeavor them with ropes, [or with the little cords, or the privy and subtle flatterings] of leasings to destroy them, that keep diligently [or busily] the offices betaken to them, and do so all things, that they be worthy the praising of all men;

<sup>6</sup> while by subtle fraud false men deceive the simple ears of kings, and guessing other men by their own kind./and while malicious men guess-ing other men by their own kind blameful by subtle fraud, they deceive the simple ears of kings.

<sup>7</sup> Which thing is proved both by eld [or old] stories, and by these things that be done each day; how the studies of kings be made shrewd [or depraved] by evil suggestions of some men.

<sup>8</sup> Wherefore it is to purvey for the peace of all provinces.

<sup>9</sup> And though we command diverse things, ye owe not to guess, that this cometh of the unstableness of our soul or of our heart; but that we give sentence by our counsel for the manner and need of times, as the profit of the common thing asketh.

<sup>10</sup> And that ye understand more openly that thing, that we say; Haman the son of Hammedatha, a man of Macedonia by soul and folk [or will and kindred], and an alien from the blood of Persians, and defouling our piety with his cruelty, was a pilgrim, or a stranger, and was received of us;

<sup>11</sup> and he feeled in himself so great courtesy of us, that he was called our father, and he was worshipped [or honoured] of all men as the second person after the king;

<sup>12</sup> the which Haman was raised into so great swelling of pride, that he enforced to deprive us of the realm and of our life.

<sup>13</sup> For by some new and unheard casts he asked into death Mordecai, by whose faith and benefices [or benefits] we live, and also the fellow of our realm, Esther, with all her folk;

<sup>14</sup> and he thought these things, that when they were slain, he should set treason to our aloneness [or onlyhood], that is, to us-self alone, and that he should translate [or over-bear] the realm of Persians into the realm of the Macedonians.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth we found not the Jews in any guilt utterly [or We forsooth utterly find in no blame the Jews], that were ordained to death by him that is the worst of deadly men; but again-ward that they/the Jews, use just laws,

<sup>16</sup> and be the sons of the highest and most God, and ever living/and be the sons of the highest and [the] most, and of everlasting [or evermore living] God, by whose benefice [or benefit], or goodness, the realm was given both to our fathers and to us, and is kept unto this day.

<sup>17</sup> Wherefore know ye, that those letters be void, which that Haman sent under our name.

<sup>18</sup> For which great trespass both he that imagined it, and all his kindred, hangeth in gibbets before the gates of he city of Susa; for not we, but God yielded to him that, that he deserved.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth this commandment, which we send now, be set forth [or purposed] in all cities./Therefore this behest, that we send forth now, be it set up in all cities, that it be leaveful to the Jews to use their laws.

<sup>20</sup> Which Jews ye owe to help, that they may slay them, that made themselves ready to the death of Jews, in the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is called Adar, or March; [To whom ye shall be to help, that those men, the which themselves to their death had made ready, they may slay, the fourteenth day of the twelfth month, that is called Adar;]

<sup>21</sup> for Almighty God hath turned this day of wailing and of mourning into joy to them. [this forsooth day of sorrow and of wailing the Almighty God turned to them into joy.]

<sup>22</sup> Wherefore and ye have this day among other feast days, and hallow it with all gladness;

<sup>23</sup> that it be known afterward [or hereafter], that all men, that obey faithfully to the kings of Persia, receive worthy meed for their faith; and that they, that set treason to the realm of them, perish for the felony.

<sup>24</sup> And each province and city, that will not be partner of this solemnity, perish by sword and by fire; and be it so undone or destroyed [or done away], that not only it be without way to men, but also to beasts without end [or into evermore], for ensample [or example] of despising and unobedience.

WISDOM OF SOLOMON

<sup>1</sup> Ye that deem the earth, love rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; feel ye of the Lord in goodness, and seek ye him in the simpleness of heart.

<sup>2</sup> For he is found of them, that tempt not him [or that tempt him not]; forsooth he appeareth to them, that have faith into him.

<sup>3</sup> For why wayward thoughts part [or sever] from God; but proved virtue reproveth unwise men.

<sup>4</sup> For why wisdom shall not enter into an evil-willed soul; neither it shall dwell in a body subject to sins.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth the Holy Ghost of wisdom shall fly or flee away from a feigned man [or a feigner], and he shall take away himself from thoughts, that be without understanding; and the unwise man shall be punished of wickedness coming above.

<sup>6</sup> For the spirit of wisdom is benign, and he shall not deliver a cursed man from his lips; for why God is witness of his reins, and the searcher of his heart is true, and the hearer of his tongue.

<sup>7</sup> For why the Spirit of the Lord hath filled the world; and this thing, that containeth all things, hath the knowing of voice.

<sup>8</sup> Therefore this he that speaketh wicked thing [or For that he that speaketh wicked things], may not be hid; and doom and punishing shall not pass him.

<sup>9</sup> For why asking shall be in the thoughts of a wicked man [or of the unpious]. Forsooth the hearing of his words shall come to God, and to the punishing [or the correction] of his wickednesses;

<sup>10</sup> for the ear of fervent love [or of the jealous] heareth all things, and the noise of grutchings shall not be hid.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore keep ye you from grutching, that profiteth nothing, and from backbiting spare ye the tongue; for a dark word shall not go into vain; forsooth the mouth that lieth, slayeth the soul.

<sup>12</sup> Do not ye covet death, in the error of your life, neither get ye perdition in the works of your hands;

<sup>13</sup> for God made not death, neither he is glad in the perdition of living men.

<sup>14</sup> For why God made of nought all things, that those should be; and he made the nations of the world able to be healed. For why medicine of destroying is not in those men, neither the realm of hells [or of hell] is in earth.

<sup>15</sup> For rightfulness is everlasting, and undeadly; but unrightfulness is getting of death. [Rightwiseness forsooth is perpetual, and undeadly; unrightwise-ness forsooth purchasing of death.]

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth wicked [or unpious] men called that unrightfulness by hands and words, and they guessed [or esteemed] it a friend, and floated away, and they putted promises to it; for they be worthy the death, that be of the part thereof.

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth wicked men said, thinking with themselves not rightfully, The time of our life is little, and with annoyance; no refreshing is in the end of a man, and none there is, that is known, that turned again from hells. [Forsooth unpious men said, thinking with themselves not right, Little and with annoyance is the time of our life; there is not refreshing in the end of a man, and there is not, that be known, turned again from hell.]

<sup>2</sup> For we were born of nought, and after this time we shall be, as if we had not been; for why smoke is blown out in our nostrils, and a word of sparkle to stir our heart.

<sup>3</sup> For our body shall be quenched ashes, and the spirit shall be scattered abroad as soft air; and our life shall pass as the step of a cloud, and it shall be departed as a mist, which is driven away of the beams of the sun, and is grieved of the heart thereof.

<sup>4</sup> And our name shall take forgetting by the passing of time; and no man shall have mind of our works.

<sup>5</sup> For why our time is the passing of a shadow, and no turning again of our end there is [or there is not turning again of our end]; for it is asealed, and no man turneth again.

<sup>6</sup> Therefore come ye [or Cometh then], and use we the goods that be, and use we a creature, as in youth, swiftly.

<sup>7</sup> Fill we us with precious wine and ointments; and the flower of time pass not us.

<sup>8</sup> Crown we us with roses, before that they wither; no meadow be, that our lechery pass not by [or through].

<sup>9</sup> No man of us be there without part of our lechery; everywhere leave we the signs of gladness; for this is our part, and this is our heritage [or our lot].

<sup>10</sup> Oppress we a poor just [or rightwise] man, and spare we not a widow, neither reverence we hoar hairs of an old man of much time.

<sup>11</sup> But our strength be the law of rightfulness; for why that that is feeble, is found unprofitable.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore deceive we a just [or the rightwise] man, for he is unprofitable to us, and he is contrary to our works; and he upbraideth [or reprovngly putteth] to us the sins of law, and he defameth on [or against] us the sins of our teaching.

<sup>13</sup> He promiseth that he hath the knowing of God, and he nameth himself the son of God.

<sup>14</sup> He is made to us into showing of our thoughts.

<sup>15</sup> He is grievous to us, yea, to see; for why his life is unlike to other men, and his ways be changed.

<sup>16</sup> We be guessed of him to be triflers, that is, men of no virtue, and he abstaineth himself from our ways, as from uncleannesses; and he before-setteth [or telleth before] the last things of just men, and he hath glory, that he hath God his father.

<sup>17</sup> Therefore see we, if his words be true; and assay we, what things shall come to him; and we shall know, what shall be the last things of him.

<sup>18</sup> For if he is the very son of God, he shall up-take him, and shall deliver him from the hands of them that be contrary to him.

<sup>19</sup> Ask we him by despising and torment, that we know his reverence, and that we prove his patience.

<sup>20</sup> By most foul death condemn we him, for why beholding [or respect] shall be of his words.

<sup>21</sup> They thought these things, and they erred; for why their malice blinded them.

<sup>22</sup> And they knew not the sacraments of God, neither they hoped the meed of rightfulness [or of rightwiseness], neither they deemed the honour of holy souls.

<sup>23</sup> For why God made man unable to be destroyed [or undeadly], and God made man to the image of his likeness.

<sup>24</sup> But by [or through] envy of the devil death entered into the world; forsooth they pursue [or follow] him, that be of his part.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth the souls of just men be in the hand of God; and the torment of death shall not touch them.

<sup>2</sup> They seemed to the eyes of unwise men to die; and torment was deemed the out-going of them.

<sup>3</sup> And from just way they went into destroying, and that that is of us the way of destroying [or destruction]; but they be in peace.

<sup>4</sup> Though they suffered torments before men, the hope of them is full of undeadliness.

<sup>5</sup> They were travailed in a few things, and they shall be disposed well in many things; for why God assayed them, and found them worthy to himself.

<sup>6</sup> He proved them as gold in a furnace, and he took them as the offering of burnt sacrifice;

<sup>7</sup> and the beholding of them shall be in time of yielding. Just men shall shine, and they shall run about as sparkles in a place of reeds. [and in time shall be the beholding of them. They shall shine rightwise, and as sparkles in reedy places they shall run hither and thither.]

<sup>8</sup> They shall deem nations, and shall be lords of peoples; and the Lord of them shall reign without end.

<sup>9</sup> They that trust on him, shall understand truth; and faithful men in love shall assent to him; for why gift and peace is to his chosen men.

<sup>10</sup> But wicked men, by those things that they thought, shall have punishing; which despised just thing, and went away from the Lord.

<sup>11</sup> For he that casteth away wisdom and lore, is cursed [or is unhappy]; and the hope of wicked men is void, and their travails be without fruit, and their works be uninhabitable, and unprofitable.

<sup>12</sup> The women of them be unwitting [or unwise], and the sons of them be full wayward [or most wicked].

<sup>13</sup> The creature of them is cursed; for why the woman barren and undefouled is blessed [or happy is the barren, and the undefouled], that hath not known the bed in trespass; she shall have fruit in the beholding of holy souls.

<sup>14</sup> And a man unmighty to engender or beget, [or a gelding], is blessed, that hath not wrought wickedness by his hands, neither thought most wayward [or wicked] things against the Lord; for why a chosen [free] gift of faith shall be given to him, and a most acceptable [or most allowed] heritage in the temple of God.

<sup>15</sup> For why the fruits of good travails is glorious, and the root of wisdom that falleth not down.

<sup>16</sup> But the sons of adulterers shall be in destroying, and the seed of a wicked bed shall be destroyed [or outlawed].

<sup>17</sup> And soothly though they shall be of long life, they shall be areckoned into nought; and the last eld age of them shall be without honour.

<sup>18</sup> And if they be dead swiftlier [or if swiftlier they shall be dead], they shall not have hope, neither allowing in the day of knowing.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth wicked nations be of hard ending.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> How fair is a chaste generation with clearness [or clarity]; for the mind thereof is undeadly, for it is known, both with God, and with men.

<sup>2</sup> When it is present, they pursue [or follow] it; and they desire it, when it hath led out itself, and it over-coming getteth by victory the meed of battles undefouled, and is crowned without end.

<sup>3</sup> But the manyfold engendered multitude of wicked [or unpius] men shall not be profitable; and plantings of adultery they shall not give deep roots, neither shall set stable steadfastness.

<sup>4</sup> Though they burgeon in boughs [or branches] for a time, they set unsteadfastly shall be moved of the wind, and they shall be drawn out by the root of the greatness of winds [or and of the muchliness of winds pulled up by the roots].

<sup>5</sup> For why boughs [or branches] unperfect shall be broken altogether; and the fruits of them be unprofitable, and sour to eat, and covenable to nothing.

<sup>6</sup> For why all sons, that be born of wicked men, be witnesses of wicked-ness against fathers and mothers, in their asking.

<sup>7</sup> But a just man [or the rightwise], though he be before-occupied by death, shall be in refreshing.

<sup>8</sup> For why worshipful eld [age] is not of long time [or long enduring], neither it is reckoned by the number of years;

<sup>9</sup> the wits of a man be hoary, and the age of eld is life without wem [or undefouled].

<sup>10</sup> He pleased God, and was made dearworthy [or loved], and he living among sinners was translated, or borne over;

<sup>11</sup> he was ravished, lest malice should change his understanding, either lest feigning should deceive [or beguile] his soul.

<sup>12</sup> For why deceiving of trifling maketh dark good things, and the unstableness of covetousness turneth over [or over-turneth] the wit without malice.

<sup>13</sup> He was ended in short time, and [ful] filled many times;

<sup>14</sup> for why his soul was pleasant to [or pleased] God; for this thing God hasted to lead him out from the midst of wickednesses;

<sup>15</sup> but peoples saw and understood not, neither setted [or putted] such things in their hearts or entrails. For the grace and mercy of God is on his saints, and beholding [or respect] of God is on his chosen men.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth a just [or rightwise] man dead condemneth quick [or alive] wicked men; and youth ended swiftlier condemneth the long life of an unjust man [or the unrightwise].

<sup>17</sup> For they shall see the end of a wise man, and they shall not understand, what thing God thought of him, and why the Lord made him less [or diminished him].

<sup>18</sup> For they shall see, and shall despise him; but the Lord shall scorn them. And after these things they shall be falling down without honour, and in despising among dead men without end.

<sup>19</sup> For he shall all-break them swollen without voice, and he shall move them from the foundations; and they shall be desolate till to the last thing. And they shall be wailing, and the mind of them shall perish.

<sup>20</sup> They shall come fearedful in the thought of their sins; and their wickednesses on the contrary side shall lead them over.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Then just [or rightwise] men shall stand in great steadfastness against them that anguished them, and which took away their travails.

<sup>2</sup> They shall see, and shall be disturbed with horrible dread, and they shall wonder in the suddenty of their health unhoped [or shall marvel in the suddenness of the unhoped health];

<sup>3</sup> and they shall wail for anguish of spirit, and they shall say, doing penance within themselves, and wailing for the anguish of spirit, These men it be, which we had sometime into scorn, and into like-ness of upbraiding.

<sup>4</sup> We mad men guessed their life madness, and the end of them without honour;

<sup>5</sup> how therefore be they reckoned [or counted] among the sons of God, and their part [or lot] is among saints?

<sup>6</sup> Therefore we erred from the way of truth, and the light of rightfulness [or of rightwiseness] shined not to us, and the sun of understanding rose not up to us.

<sup>7</sup> We were made weary in the way of wickedness and of perdition; and we went [or we have gone] hard ways. But we knew not the way of the Lord;

<sup>8</sup> what profited pride to us, either what brought the boast of riches to us?

<sup>9</sup> All those things passed as shadow, and as a messenger before running [or as a messenger running before].

<sup>10</sup> And as a ship, that passeth through the flowing water, of [the] which when it hath passed, it is not to find a step, neither the path of the bottom thereof in waves.

<sup>11</sup> Either as a bird, that flyeth over in the air, of which no proof [or evidence] is found of the way thereof, but only the sound of wings beating light wind, and carving [or cutting] the air by the might of way, and with wings moved together it flew over, and after this no sign is found of the way thereof [or of his way].

<sup>12</sup> Either as an arrow shot out into a place ordained, the air is parted, and is closed again anon, that the passing thereof be not known.

<sup>13</sup> Right so we born ceased anon to be, and soothly we might show no sign of virtue; but we were wasted in our malice. They that sinned, said such things in hell.

<sup>14</sup> For the hope of a wicked man [or the unpious] is as the flower of a briar, [or thistledown], which is taken away of the wind, and as small froth [or foam] which is scattered abroad of a tempest, and as smoke which is spread abroad of wind, and as the mind of a guest of one day, that passeth forth.

<sup>15</sup> But just [or rightwise] men shall live without end, and the meed of them is with the Lord; and the thought of them is with the Highest.

<sup>16</sup> Therefore they shall take of the hand of the Lord the realm of fairness, and a diadem of comeliness; for he shall govern them with his right hand, and he shall defend them with his holy arm. [Therefore they shall take the realm of worship, and the diadem of fairness of the hand of the Lord; for with his right hand he shall cover them, and with his holy arm defend them.]

<sup>17</sup> And his fervent love [or the jealousy of him] shall take armour, and he shall arm the creature to the vengeance of enemies.

<sup>18</sup> He shall clothe rightfulness for an habergeon, and he shall take certain doom for a basinet; [He shall clothe for the breastplate rightwiseness, and he shall take for the helmet certain doom;]

<sup>19</sup> he shall take a shield that may not be overcome, equity, either evenness; [he shall take the shield unquenchable equity;]

<sup>20</sup> forsooth he shall whet [or sharpen] hard wrath into a spear, and the world shall fight with him against unwitting men [or against the unwise].

<sup>21</sup> Straight sendings-out of lightnings shall go, and as the sides of a rainbow, when the bow of clouds is crooked, they shall be destroyed; and they shall skip into a certain place. [The sendings-out of lightnings shall go even right, and as at the teasing the bow of clouds bent, they shall be outlawed; and to a certain place they shall leap in.]

<sup>22</sup> And full hailstones shall be sent from a stony wrath, and the water of the sea shall wax white against them, and floods shall run altogether hard.

<sup>23</sup> The spirit of virtue shall stand against them, and as the whirling of wind it shall part them; and the wickedness of them shall bring all the land to desert, and malice shall destroy the seats of mighty men. Wisdom is better than strengths, and a prudent man doeth more than a strong man.

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Therefore, ye kings, hear, and understand; and ye judges of the coasts of earth, learn. [Heareth then, ye kings, and understandeth; learneth, ye doomsmen of the coasts of the earth.]

<sup>2</sup> Ye that hold together multitudes, and please you in the companies of nations, give ears; [Giveth ears, ye that hold together multitudes, and please to you in companies of nations;]

<sup>3</sup> for why power is given of the Lord to you, and virtue is given of the Highest, that shall ask your works, and shall search thoughts.

<sup>4</sup> For when ye were ministers of his realm, ye deemed not rightfully [or rightly], neither ye kept the law of rightfulness, neither ye went by the will of God.

<sup>5</sup> Hideously [or Horribly] and soon he shall appear to you; for why harshest doom shall be made in them, that be sovereigns.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth mercy is granted to a little man; but mighty men shall suffer torments mightily.

<sup>7</sup> For the Lord, which is lord of all things, shall not withdraw the person of any man, neither he shall dread the greatness of any man; for he made both the little man and the great man, and charge [or care] is to him evenly of all men

<sup>8</sup> But stronger torment nigheth to stronger men.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore, ye kings, these my words be to you, that ye learn wisdom, and that ye fall not down. [To you then, kings, be these my words, that ye learn wisdom, and that ye fall not.]

<sup>10</sup> For they that keep rightfulness [or rightwiseness], shall be deemed right-fully; and they, that learn just things, shall find, what they shall answer.

<sup>11</sup> Therefore covet ye my words, and love ye those; and ye shall have teaching. [Coveteth than my words, and loveth them; and ye shall have discipline.]

<sup>12</sup> Wisdom is clear, and that shall never fade; and it is seen lightly of them that love it, and it is found of them that seek it.

<sup>13</sup> It before-occupieth them that covet it, that it show itself the former to them.

<sup>14</sup> He that waketh by light to it, shall not travail; forsooth he shall find it sitting nigh his gates.

<sup>15</sup> Therefore to think on wisdom is perfect wit, and he that waketh for it, shall soon be secure.

<sup>16</sup> For why it goeth about, and seeketh men worthy to it; and in their ways [or in his ways] it shall show itself gladly to them, and in all purveyance it shall meet them.

<sup>17</sup> For why the beginning of wisdom is the veriest covetousness of learning. Therefore the busyness of learning is love; [The beginning forsooth of it most very coveting of discipline. Then care of discipline is loving;]

<sup>18</sup> and love is the keeping of laws thereof [or of his laws]. Soothly the keeping of laws is perfection of uncorruption;

<sup>19</sup> forsooth uncorruption maketh to be next to God.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore the covetousness of wisdom shall bring to everlasting realm [or kingdom].

<sup>21</sup> Therefore if ye, kings of the people, delight in seats, and in kings' rods, or regalties, love ye wisdom, that ye reign without end. All ye, that be sovereigns to peoples, love the light of wisdom.

<sup>22</sup> Soothly what is wisdom, and how it is made, I shall tell; and I shall not hide from you the sacraments of God; but from the beginning of birth I shall seek, and I shall set into the light the knowing thereof, and I shall not pass [beside the] truth.

<sup>23</sup> And I shall not have way with envy waxing rotten; for such a man shall not be a partner of wisdom.

<sup>24</sup> Forsooth the multitude of wise men is the health of the world; and a wise king is the stablishing [or the stability] of the people.

<sup>25</sup> Therefore take ye teaching [or discipline] by my words, and it shall profit to you.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth and I am a deadly man, like other men, and of earthly kind of him that was made first,

<sup>2</sup> and in the womb of my mother I was formed flesh. In the time of ten months I was curded together in blood, of the seed of man, and by according delight [or covenable delighting] of sleep.

<sup>3</sup> And I was born, and took common air, and in like manner I fell down into the earth made [or fell down into the made earth]; and I weeping sent out the first voice, like all men.

<sup>4</sup> I was nursed in wrappings [or swaddling clothes], and in great busy-nesses;

<sup>6</sup> Therefore one entering to life is to all men, and like going out. [One entry is to all to life, and like issue.]

<sup>7</sup> Wherefore I desired, and wit was given to me; and I inwardly called, and the spirit of wisdom came into me [or there came to me the spirit of wisdom].

<sup>8</sup> And I setted wisdom before realms, and seats; and I said, that riches be nought [or nothing] in comparison thereof,

<sup>9</sup> and I comparisoned not a precious stone to it; for why all gold in comparison thereof is a little gravel, and silver shall be areckoned [or esteemed] as clay in the sight thereof.

<sup>10</sup> I loved wisdom more than health and fairness; and I purposed to have it for light, for the light thereof may not be quenched [or is unquenchable].

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth all goods came together to me with it; and unnumberable honesty is by the works thereof.

<sup>12</sup> And I was glad in all things; for this wisdom went before me, and I knew not, for it is the mother of all goods.

<sup>13</sup> Which wisdom I learned without feigning, and I commune without envy; and I hide not the honesty thereof.

<sup>14</sup> For it is treasure without number to men, and they, that used that treasure, were made partners of God's friendship, and were praised for the gifts of knowing [or commended for the gifts of discipline].

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth God gave to me to say of sentence, and to before take [or to take before] worthy things of these things that be given to me; for he is the leader of wisdom, and amender of wise men.

<sup>16</sup> For why both we, and our words, and all wisdom, and learning of knowing of works be in his hand.

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth he gave to me the very knowing of these things that be, that I know the disposition of the world, and the virtues of elements;

<sup>18</sup> the beginning, and the ending, and the middle of times; the changings of whiles, and the endings of times; the changings of manners, and partings [or the divisions] of times;

<sup>19</sup> the courses of the year, and the dispositions of stars;

<sup>20</sup> the kinds of beasts, and the wraths of wild beasts; the strength of winds, and the thoughts of men; the differences of trees, and the virtues of roots.

<sup>21</sup> And I learned whatever things be hid and unpurveyed;

<sup>22</sup> for why wisdom, the craftsman [or craftsman] of all things, taught me. For in that wisdom unmade is the spirit of understanding, holy, manyfold, one alone [or only], subtle, temperate [or mannerly], wise, moveable, undefouled, certain, sweet, loving a good deed, which spirit forbiddeth nothing to do well [or that nothing prevented or hindered to do well];

<sup>23</sup> courteous, benign, stable, secure, having all virtue, beholding all things, and which taketh all spirits able to understand, he is clean, and subtle.

<sup>24</sup> For why wisdom is more moveable than all moveable things; forsooth it stretcheth forth everywhere [or it attaineth over all], for his cleanness.

<sup>25</sup> For it is a breathing of God's virtue, and it is some clean coming forth of the clearness of Almighty God; and therefore no defouled thing runneth into it.

<sup>26</sup> For it is brightness of everlasting light, and it is a mirror without wem of God's majesty, [or a mirror without wem of the majesty of God], and it is an image of his goodness.

<sup>27</sup> And when it is one [or And since it is one], it may all things; and it dwelleth in itself, and reneweth all things, and by nations it beareth over itself into holy souls; it maketh the friends of God, and prophets.

<sup>28</sup> For God loveth no man, but him that dwelleth with wisdom.

<sup>29</sup> For why this wisdom is fairer than the sun, and is above all the disposition of stars; wisdom comparised to light, [it] is found the former.

<sup>30</sup> For why night cometh after the light; but wisdom overcometh malice.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> Therefore wisdom stretcheth forth from the end till to the end strongly, and disposeth all things sweetly.

<sup>2</sup> I loved this wisdom made [or This I loved], and I sought it out from my youth; and I sought to take it a spouses to me, and I am made a lover of the fairness thereof [or of the form of it].

<sup>3</sup> He that hath the fellowship of God, glorifieth the gentleness thereof [or It having the company of God, glorifieth the gentleness of it]; but also the Lord of all things loved it.

<sup>4</sup> For it is the teacheress of the learning [or of the discipline] of God, and chooserness of his works.

<sup>5</sup> And if riches be coveted [or be desired] in life, what is richer than wisdom, that worketh all things?

<sup>6</sup> Soothly if wit worketh, who is a craftsman [or craftsman] more than wisdom, of these things that be?

<sup>7</sup> And if a man loveth rightfulness [or rightwiseness], the travails of this wisdom have great virtues; for it teacheth soberness, and prudence, and rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and virtue; and nothing is profitabler [or more profitable] than these in life to men.

<sup>8</sup> And if a man desireth multitude of knowing, wisdom knoweth things passed, and guesseth of things to coming [or to come]; it knoweth the fellnesses or falsenesses of words, and assolings or absolvings of arguments; it knoweth signs and showings of things to coming, before that they be made [or the tokens and wonders it knoweth, ere they be done]; and the befallings [or chances] of times and of worlds.

<sup>9</sup> Therefore I purposed to bring to me this wisdom [or Then I purposed this to bring to me], to live together; witting that it shall commune with me of goods, and speaking together of my thoughts, and of mine annoyances, shall be.

<sup>10</sup> For this wisdom I shall have clearness at companies, and honour at elder men;

<sup>11</sup> I shall be found young and sharp in doom, and in the sight of mighty men I shall be wonderful, and the faces of princes shall worship me [or shall marvel me].

<sup>12</sup> They shall abide me, being still, and they shall behold me, speaking; and the while I speak many things, they shall set hands on their mouths.

<sup>13</sup> Furthermore by this wisdom I shall have undeadliness; and I shall leave everlasting mind to them, that shall come after me.

<sup>14</sup> I shall dispose peoples; and nations shall be subject to me.

<sup>15</sup> Hideous kings hearing me shall dread; and in multitude I shall be seen good, and strong in battle.

<sup>16</sup> I shall enter into mine house, and I shall rest with wisdom; for the conversation thereof hath no bitterness, and the dwelling together thereof hath none annoyance, but gladness and joy.

<sup>17</sup> I thought these things at me, and I remembered in mine heart; for why wisdom is undeadly in thought,

<sup>18</sup> and good delighting is in the friendship thereof; and honesty with-out default is in the works of hands thereof; and wisdom is in the strife of speech thereof; and great clearness is in the communing of words thereof; I went about, seeking to take wisdom to me.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth I was a witting child, and I got a good soul.

<sup>20</sup> And when I was more good, I came to a body undefouled.

<sup>21</sup> And as I knew, that else I may not be chaste [or continent], no but God give it, and this same thing was wisdom, to know whose this gift was; I went to the Lord, and I besought him, and I said, of all mine entrails [or of all the entrails of mine heart].

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> God of my fathers, and Lord of mercy, that madest all things by [or with] thy word,

<sup>2</sup> and ordainedest man by thy wisdom, that he should be lord of creature, which is made of thee,

<sup>3</sup> that he dispose the world in equity and rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and deem doom in right ruling of heart;

<sup>4</sup> give thou to me wisdom, that standeth nigh thy seats; and do not thou reprove me from thy children.

<sup>5</sup> For I am thy servant, and the son of thine handmaid; I am a sick [or a feeble] man, and of little time, and less to the understanding of doom and of laws.

<sup>6</sup> And if any man is perfect among the sons of me, if thy wisdom fleeth away from him, he shall be reckoned into nought.

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth thou hast chosen me king to thy people, and a judge [or doomsman] of thy sons and daughters;

<sup>8</sup> and thou saidest, that I should build a temple in thine holy hill, and an altar in the city of thy dwelling place; the likeness of thine holy tabernacle, which thou madest ready at the beginning [or that thou preparedest from the beginning].

<sup>9</sup> And thy wisdom is with thee, that knoweth thy works, which also was present then, when thou madest the world, and knew what was pleasant to thine eyes, and what was addressed [or right] in thy commandments.

<sup>10</sup> Send thou that wisdom from thine holy heavens, and from the seat of thy greatness, that it be with me, and travail with me; and that I know what is acceptable [or allowed] with thee.

<sup>11</sup> For why that wisdom knoweth and understandeth all things; and it shall lead me forth in my works soberly, and it shall keep me in his power.

<sup>12</sup> And my works shall be acceptable, and I shall dispose thy people justly [or rightwisely], and I shall be worthy of the seats of my father.

<sup>13</sup> For who of men may know the counsel of God? either who may think, what will God?

<sup>14</sup> For why the thoughts of deadly men be dreadful, and our purveyances be uncertain.

<sup>15</sup> For why the body that is corrupt[ed], grieveth the soul; and earthly dwelling presseth down the wit, thinking many things.

<sup>16</sup> And of hard we guess those things, that be in earth; and we find with travail those things, that be in beholding. But who shall search those things, that be in heavens?

<sup>17</sup> But who shall know thy wit, no but thou give wisdom/but if thou give wisdom, and send thine Holy Spirit from highest things?

<sup>18</sup> And if the paths of them, that be in lands, be amended, and if men have learned those things, that please thee. For why, Lord, whichever pleased thee from the beginning, were made whole by wisdom.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> This wisdom of God kept him, that was formed first of God, the father of the world, when he alone was made of nought. And this wisdom led him out of his trespass, and led [or brought] him out of the slime of the earth,

<sup>2</sup> and gave to him virtue to hold together all things, that is, gave to him the lordship over all lower things.

<sup>3</sup> As the unjust man in his ire went away from this wisdom, brotherhood perished by the ire of man-quelling. [From this as the unrightwise went away in his wrath, by the wrath of manslaughter perished fraternity.]

<sup>4</sup> For which thing when the water did away the earth, wisdom healed again; governing a just [or the rightwise] man by a despicable tree.

<sup>5</sup> This wisdom also in the consent of pride, when nations had raised themselves, knew a just man [or knew the rightwise], and kept without complaint [or blame] to God; and this wisdom kept strong mercy in sons.

<sup>6</sup> And it delivered a just man [or the rightwise] fleeing from wicked [or unpious] men perishing, when fire came down into the place of five cities.

<sup>7</sup> For which wicked men the land smoking is made desert, into witnessing of waywardness [or shrewdness], and trees having fruits in uncertain time; and the mind of an unbelieveful soul standing an image of salt.

<sup>8</sup> For why men passing wisdom, not only fell in this, that they knew not goods [or good things], but also they left to men the mind of their unwisdom, that in these sins, which they did, they might not be hid.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth wisdom delivered them from sorrows, that keep it.

<sup>10</sup> Soothly this wisdom led forth a just man [or rightwise] by rightful [or right] ways, that fled from the ire [or the wrath] of his brother; and it showed him the realm [or the kingdom] of God, and gave to him the knowing of saints; it made him honest in travails, and fulfilled his travails.

<sup>11</sup> It helped him in the fraud [or guile] of deceivers, and made him honest.

<sup>12</sup> It kept him from enemies, and defended him from deceivers; and it gave to him a strong battle, that he should overcome, and know, that wisdom is the mightiest of all.

<sup>13</sup> This wisdom forsook not the just [or rightwise] man sold, that is Joseph, when his brothers sold him to men of Ishmael, but delivered him from sinners; and it went down with him into a ditch, that is, to the prison of the king of Egypt;

<sup>14</sup> and it forsook not him in bonds, till it brought to him the sceptre of the realm, and power against them that oppressed him; and it showed them liars, that defouled him, and it gave to him everlasting clearness.

<sup>15</sup> This wisdom delivered a just [or rightwise] people, and wholly without complaint [or blame], from nations that oppressed it.

<sup>16</sup> It entered into the soul of God's servant, and he stood against hideous kings, in great wonders and miracles [or signs].

<sup>17</sup> And it yielded to just [or rightwise] men the meed of their travails, and led them forth in a wonderful [or a marvellous] way; and it was to them in covering of the day, and in the light of stars by night.

<sup>18</sup> And it translated, either led over, them through the Red or the Reed Sea; and bare them over through full much water.

<sup>19</sup> But it drowned down the enemies of them into the sea; and led them out from the depth of hells [or the deepness of hell], that is, from the bottom of the sea.

<sup>20</sup> Therefore just men take away the spoils of wicked men [or rightwise men took away the spoils of unpius men]; and, Lord, they magnified in song thine holy name, and praised together thine hand overcomer.

<sup>21</sup> For why wisdom opened the mouth of dumb men, and made the tongues of young children not speaking to be wise [or fair speaking].

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> He addressed the works of them, in the hands of an holy prophet. [It right ruled the works of them, in the hands of the holy prophet.]

<sup>2</sup> They made journey by deserts, that were not inhabited; and they made little houses, or cottages, in desert places.

<sup>3</sup> They stood against kings [or enemies], and avenged them[selves] of enemies.

<sup>4</sup> They thirsted, and they inwardly called thee; and water of a full high stone was given to them, and rest of thirst was given to them of an hard stone.

<sup>5</sup> For by which things the enemies of them suffered pains, for default [or from the defaulting] of their drink, and the sons of Israel were glad, when they had plenty; by these things, when these failed to those enemies, it was done well with them.

<sup>6</sup> For soothly for the well of everlasting flood, thou gavest man's blood to unjust men.

<sup>7</sup> And when they were made less [or diminished], in the leading away of young children slain, thou gavest suddenly plenteous water to them [or thou gave to them abounding water in manner not hoped];

<sup>8</sup> and showedest by the thirst, that was then, how thou wouldest enhance thy servants, and wouldest slay the adversaries of them.

<sup>9</sup> For when they were assayed, soothly they took chastising with mercy; they knew, how wicked men deemed with ire [or how with wrath the unpius men deemed], should suffer torments.

<sup>10</sup> Soothly thou admonishing as a father, provedest these men; but thou as an hard king asking condemnedest them.

<sup>12</sup> For why double annoyance had taken them, and wailing with the mind of things passed.

<sup>13</sup> Soothly when they heard, that it was done well with themselves by their torments, they bethought on the Lord, and wondered on the end of the out-going.

<sup>14</sup> For at the end of the befalling, they worshipped him, whom they scorned cast out in shrewd putting forth; and thou didest not in like manner to just men.

<sup>15</sup> Forsooth for unwise thoughts the wickednesses of them were punished; for some men erring worshipped dumb serpents [or adders], and superfluous beasts, thou sentest into them a multitude of dumb beasts, into vengeance;

<sup>16</sup> that they should know, that by what things a man sinneth, he is tormented also by these things.

<sup>17</sup> For why thine hand almighty [or thine almighty hand], that made the world of matter unseen, was not unmighty to send into them a multitude of bears, either hardy lions,

<sup>18</sup> either beasts of new kind full of ire, and unknown beasts, either beasts frothing heat of fires, either bringing forth the odour of smoke, either sending out from the eyes hideous sparkles; [or of new kind of unknown beasts, and full of wrath, or spitting breathings of fires, or bringing forth smell of smoke, or putting out grizzly sparks from eyes;]

<sup>19</sup> of which beasts not only the hurting might destroy them, but also the sight [or the looking] might slay by dread.

<sup>20</sup> For why and without these beasts they might be slain by one spirit, and suffer persecution of those their own deeds, and be scattered by the spirit of thy virtue. But also thou hast disposed all things in measure, and in number, and in weight;

<sup>21</sup> for it was left ever to thee alone to be able to do much; and who shall against-stand the virtue of thine arm?

<sup>22</sup> For as the tongue of a balance, so is the world before thee; and as a drop of dew rising before the light [or a drop of morrowtide dew], that cometh down into earth.

<sup>23</sup> And thou hast mercy of all things, for thou mayest all things; and thou dissemblest, *either forbear*est, the sins of men, for penance.

<sup>24</sup> For thou lovest all things that be, and thou hatest nothing of those, that thou madest; for thou not hating anything ordainedest, either madest.

<sup>25</sup> But how might anything dwell, no but thou wouldest?/but if thou wouldest? either how should a thing be kept, that were not called of thee?

<sup>26</sup> But, Lord, thou lovest souls, thou sparest all things; for those things [or they] be thine.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> Lord, how good, and how sweet is thy Spirit in all things [or in us];

<sup>2</sup> and therefore thou chastisest by parts these men that err; and thou admonishest [or thou warnest], of which things they sin, and thou speakest to them, that when they have forsaken malice, they believe in thee, Lord.

<sup>3</sup> For thou wouldest lose those eld [or old] dwellers of thine holy land, which thou loathest;

<sup>4</sup> for they did works hateful to thee, by medicines, that is, by witchcrafts, and false divinings, and sacrifices offered to fiends, and unjust [or unrightwise] sacrifices;

<sup>5</sup> and the slayers of their sons, without mercy, and eaters of entrails [or the bowels] of men, and devourers of blood;

<sup>6</sup> and by the hands of our fathers thou wouldest lose from thy middle sacrament, that is, from Judea, fathers and mothers, authors of souls, that is, of their children, unhelped;

<sup>7</sup> that our fathers should take the worthy pilgrimage of God's children, which is to thee the dearworthiest land of all.

<sup>8</sup> But also thou sparedest these as men, and thou sentest wasps, the before-goers of thine host, that those [or they] should destroy them little and little.

<sup>9</sup> Not for thou were unmighty to make wicked [or unpious] men subject to just [or rightwise] men in battle, either to destroy at once, by cruel beasts, either by an hard word;

<sup>10</sup> but thou deemedest by parts, and gavest place to penance, and knewest, that the nation of them was wayward [or shrewd], and their malice was kindly, that is, made hard by long custom, and that their thought might not be changed without end.

<sup>11</sup> For it was a cursed seed at [or from] the beginning. And thou not dreading any man, gavest forgiveness to the sins of them.

<sup>12</sup> For why who shall say to thee, What hast thou done? either who shall stand against thy doom? either who shall come in thy sight, to be avenger of wicked men? either who shall areckon to thee [or who shall reckon to thee], if nations perish, which thou madest?

<sup>13</sup> For why none other than thou is God, to whom is charge of all things, that thou show, that thou deemest doom not unjustly. [Forsooth there is none other God than thou, to whom is care of all, that thou show, for not unrightwisely thou deemest doom.]

<sup>14</sup> Neither king neither tyrant in thy sight shall inquire of these men, which thou hast lost [or destroyed].

<sup>15</sup> Therefore since thou art just, thou disposest justly all things, [or Since then thou art rightwise, all things rightwisely thou disposest]; also Father, thou condemnest him, that oweth not to be punished*, and thou guessest him a stranger from thy virtue.

<sup>16</sup> For why thy virtue is the beginning of rightfulness [or of rightwiseness]; and for this, that thou art lord of all men, thou makest thee to spare all men.

<sup>17</sup> For thou, that art not believed to be perfect [or full ended] in virtue, thou showest virtue; and thou ledest over these men, that know not thee, in hardiness.

<sup>18</sup> But thou, lord [or lordshipper] of virtue, deemest with peaceableness, and disposest us with great reverence; for it is subject to thee to be able to, when thou wilt.

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth thou hast taught thy people by such works, that it behooveth a judge to be just, and benign, either merciful; and thou madest thy sons of good hope, for thou deemest, and givest place to penance in sins.

<sup>20</sup> For if thou tormentedest the enemies of thy servants, and men due to death with so great perceiving, either attentiveness, and deliveredest, and gavest time and place [or giving time and place], by which they might be changed from malice;

<sup>21</sup> with how great diligence deemest thou thy sons, to whose fathers thou gavest oaths and covenants of good promises?

<sup>22</sup> Therefore when thou givest chastising [or discipline] to us, thou beatest [or scourgest] manyfold our enemies, that we, deeming, think thy goodness; and when it is deemed of us, that we hope thy mercy.

<sup>23</sup> Wherefore and to them, that lived unwisely, and unjustly in their life, thou gavest sovereign torments, by these things which they worshipped.

<sup>24</sup> For they erred full long in the way of error, and guessed to be gods these things that be superfluous in beasts, and lived by custom of young children unwittingly [or living by manner of unwise young children].

<sup>25</sup> For this thing thou gavest doom, into scorn, as to children unwitting [or unwise];

<sup>26</sup> but they, that were not amended by scornings and blamings, feelled the worthy doom of God.

<sup>27</sup> For they bare heavily in these things, which they suffered, in which things they suffering had indignation [or disdained]; they seeing him, whom they denied sometime them to know, knew him very God, by these things which they guessed gods among them, when those were destroyed; for which thing and the end of their condemnation shall come on them.

---

* CHAPTER 12:15 That is, punishest sometime, to proving of his patience, it is openly of saint Job.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth all men be vain, that is, void of truth, in which the knowing of God is not; and of these things that be seen good, they might not understand him, that is, and they perceiving the works knew not, who was the worker [or craftsman];

<sup>2</sup> but they guessed gods governors of the world, either the fire, either the wind, either the air made swift, either the compass of stars, either full much water, either the sun and moon;

<sup>3</sup> and if they delighted in the fairness of those things, and guessed them gods, know they, how much the Lord of those things is fairer than those; for why the engenderer [or begetter] of fairness made all these things.

<sup>4</sup> Either if they wondered on the virtue and works of those things, understand they of those [things], that he that made these things, is stronger than those;

<sup>5</sup> for by the greatness [or muchliness] of fairness and of creature the Creator of these might be seen knowingly, either might be known by his works.

<sup>6</sup> But nevertheless yet in these men is less complaint; for they err, in hap seeking God, and willing to find.

<sup>7</sup> For when they live in his works, they seek, and hold for a sooth, that those things be good, that be seen.

<sup>8</sup> Again soothly it oweth not to be forgiven to these men.

<sup>9</sup> For if they might know so much, that they might guess the world, how found they not lightlier the Lord thereof?

<sup>10</sup> forsooth they be cursed, and the hope of them is among dead men, that called gods the works of men's hands, gold, and silver, the finding of craft, and [the] likenesses of beasts, either a stone unprofitable [or unprofitable stone], the work of an eld [or old] hand.

<sup>11</sup> Either if any craftsman, a carpenter, heweth down of the woods a straight tree, and eraseth away perfectly all the rind thereof [or taughtly pare away all the rind], and useth his craft diligently, and maketh a vessel full profitable into conversation of life;

<sup>12</sup> soothly he useth the remnants of this work to the making ready of meat;

<sup>13</sup> and the residue of these things, which he maketh to no work [or that to none use], a crooked tree, and full of knots, he engraveth diligently by his voidness, that is, made of him by his engraving, and by the knowing of his craft he figureth it, and likeneth it to the image of a man,

<sup>14</sup> either maketh it like to some of beasts, and anointeth with red colour, and maketh the colour thereof ruddy with painture, and anointeth, [or daubing or painting] each spot which is in it,

<sup>15</sup> and maketh to it a worthy dwelling place, and setteth it in the wall, and he fasteneth it with iron,

<sup>16</sup> lest peradventure it fall down; and he purveyeth for it, and knoweth, that it may not help itself; for it is an image, and help is needful thereto.

<sup>17</sup> And he maketh a vow, and inquireth of his chattel, and of his sons, and of weddings; he is not ashamed to speak with him, that is without soul;

<sup>18</sup> and soothly for health he beseecheth a thing unmighty [or feeble], and for life he prayeth a thing without life [or for life he prayeth the dead], and he calleth an unprofitable thing into help. And for journey he asketh of that thing, that may not go;

<sup>19</sup> and of getting [or purchasing], and of working, and of befalling [or the chance] of all things he asketh of him, which is unprofitable in all things.

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> Again another man thinking to sail in a ship [or another thinking to sail], and beginning to make journey through fierce waves, inwardly calleth a tree more frail than the tree that beareth him.

<sup>2</sup> For why covetousness to get money[or winning] found that idol; and a craftsman made it by his wisdom.

<sup>3</sup> But thou, Father, governest by purveyance, for thou gavest way in the sea [or thou hast given in the sea way], and a most steadfast path among waves;

<sup>4</sup> showing that thou art mighty to make whole of [or to heal] all things, yea, if a man goeth to the sea without ship;

<sup>5</sup> but that the works of thy wisdom should not be void, for this thing men betake their lives, yea, to a little tree, and they pass the sea, and be delivered by a ship.

<sup>6</sup> But at the beginning, when proud giants perished, the hope of the world fled to a ship, and sent again seed of birth to the world, which was governed by thine hand.

<sup>7</sup> For why blessed is the tree, by which rightfulness was made [or by the which is done rightwiseness].

<sup>8</sup> But the idol which is made by hand is cursed, both it, and he that made it, for soothly he wrought great trespass [or unbelievfulness]; soothly that idol, when it was frail, was named God.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth in like manner the wicked man and his wickedness, [or the unpious and the unpiousness of him], be hateful to God.

<sup>10</sup> For why that that is made shall suffer torments, with him that made it.

<sup>11</sup> For this thing and to the idols of nations shall not be beholding [or reward]; for the creatures of God be made into hatred, and into temptation to the soul of men, and into a trap [or a mouse-catch], to the feet of unwise men.

<sup>12</sup> For the beginning of fornication, that is, idolatry, which is ghostly fornication, is the seeking out of idols, and the finding of those idols is the corruption of life.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth those were not at the beginning, neither those shall be without end. [Forsooth they were not from the beginning, nor shall be into without end.]

<sup>14</sup> For why the voidness of men found these idols into the world; and therefore the end of those is found shortly.

<sup>15</sup> For why the father making sorrow with bitter mourning, made soon to him an image of the son that was ravished; and began to worship him now as a god, that was dead then as a man; and he ordained holy things [or temples] and sacrifices among his servants.

<sup>16</sup> Afterward in time coming betwixt, when the wicked custom was strong, this error was kept as a law, and images were worshipped by lordship of tyrants.

<sup>17</sup> The figure of them was brought from afar, which the men might not honour [or worship] in open, for they were [a] far; and they made an open image of the king, whom they would honour; that by their busyness they should worship him as present, that was absent.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth the noble [or the great] diligence of a craftsman brought in also them, that knew not, to the worshipping of these things or of these kings.

<sup>19</sup> For he willing more to please the king, that took him, that is, chose him to make an image to the king, travailed perfectly by his craft, to make a likeness into better, that is, in making the king fairer.

<sup>20</sup> Soothly the multitude of men, deceived by the fairness of work, guessed [or esteemed] him now a god, that was honoured as a man before that time.

<sup>21</sup> And this was the deceit [or the deceiving] of man's life; for why men serving greatly, either to affection, either to kings, putted to stones and trees the name that may not be communed [or the uncommunicable name].

<sup>22</sup> And it sufficed not, that they erred about the knowing of God; but also they living in great battle of unknowing, call so many and so great evils peace.

<sup>23</sup> For either they slaying their sons in sacrifice, either making dark sacrifices, either having wakings [or having watches] full of madness,

<sup>24</sup> keep now neither clean life, neither clean weddings [or spousals]; but also one man slayeth another man by envy, either doing adultery maketh sorry his neighbor.

<sup>25</sup> And all things be meddled [or mingled] together, blood, manslaying [or manslaughter], theft, and feigning, corruption, unfaithfulness, disturbing, and forswearing,

<sup>26</sup> noise, forgetting of goods of the Lord, defouling of souls, changing of birth, unsteadfastness of weddings, unordaining of lechery and of unchastity. [strife, the unminding of the goods of the Lord, the defouling of souls, the mis-changing of birth, the unstableness of bridals, the unordaining of lechery and of uncleanness.]

<sup>27</sup> For why the worshipping of cursed idols is the cause, and the beginning, and the end, of all evil.

<sup>28</sup> For why either they wax mad, while they be glad; either certainly they prophesy false things, either they live unjustly, either they forswear soon.

<sup>29</sup> For the while they trust in idols, that be without soul, they swear evil, and hope not, that they shall be annoyed.

<sup>30</sup> Therefore ever either shall come to them worthily; for they deemed evil of God, and gave attention to idols [or taking heed to maumets], and they swore unjustly in an idol, and they despised rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>31</sup> For why an oath is not virtue, but the pain of sinners goeth forth ever-[more], into the breaking of just [or rightwise] things.

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth thou, our God, art sweet, and true, and patient, and disposeth all things in mercy.

<sup>2</sup> For if we sin, we be thine, and know thy greatness; and if we sin not, we know, that we be accounted at thee [or for with thee we be counted].

<sup>3</sup> For why to know thee, is perfect rightfulness [or full ended rightwise-ness]; and to know thy rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and virtue, is the root of undeadliness.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth the thinking out of evil craft of men brought not us into error, neither the shadow of painture [or of painting] travail without fruit, an image graven by diverse colours;

<sup>5</sup> whose beholding [or sight] giveth covetousness [or coveting] to an unwise man, and he loveth the like-ness of a dead image without soul.

<sup>6</sup> The lovers of evils be worthy the death, that have hope in such [things]; and they that make those, and they that love, and they that worship be worthy the death.

<sup>7</sup> But also a potter, thrusting [the] nesh earth, by great travail maketh each vessel to our uses; and of the same clay he maketh vessels that be clean to use, and in like manner those that be contrary to these; forsooth what use is of these vessels, the potter is judge.

<sup>8</sup> And he that was made of earth a little before, maketh a god of the same clay with vain travail; and the potter, asked to yield the debt of the soul which he had, leadeth himself after a little time to the earth, from whence he was taken.

<sup>9</sup> But he hath care, not for he shall travail, neither for his life is short, but he striveth with goldsmiths and silversmiths; but also he pursueth [or followeth] workers of brass, and setteth before glory; for he maketh superfluous [or over-void] things.

<sup>10</sup> For the heart of him is ashes, and superfluous earth is his hope, and his life is viler [or fouler] than clay.

<sup>11</sup> For he knew not God, that made him, and that inspired a soul to him [or that inspired to him a soul]; and he loveth those things which he hath wrought; and he knew not God, that blowed [or blew] in him a spirit of life.

<sup>12</sup> But they guessed fleshly delighting [or a playing place] to be our life, and the conversation of life to be made to winning, either covetousness, and that it behooveth to get on each side, yea, of evil.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth this man that maketh frail vessels, and graven images of the matter of earth, knoweth that he trespasseth above all men.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth, Lord, all unwise men and cursed be proud over the measure of their soul, and be enemies of thy people, and upbraid it [or mis-saying to it];

<sup>15</sup> for they guessed all the idols of nations to be gods, that have neither sight of eyes to see, neither nostrils to perceive a spirit, either wind, neither ears to hear, neither fingers of hands to touch, but also their feet be slow to go.

<sup>16</sup> For why a man made those [or made them], and he that borrowed a spirit, made those; for why no man may make a god like himself.

<sup>17</sup> For since he is deadly, by [or with] wicked hands he maketh a dead idol; for he is better than these gods, which he worshippeth; for soothly he lived, when he was deadly, but they lived never.

<sup>18</sup> But also most wretched men worship beasts; for why unreasonable beasts, comparised to these men, be worse than they.

<sup>19</sup> But neither by sight any man may of these beasts behold goods [or good things]; forsooth they have driven away [or fled] the praising of God, and his blessing.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> For these things, and things like these, they suffered torments worthily, and they were destroyed by multitude of beasts.

<sup>2</sup> For which torments thou disposedest well thy people, to which thou gavest covetousness of their delighting a new savour, making ready meat to them a curlew, that is, a multitude of curlews.

<sup>3</sup> That soothly they coveting meat, were turned away, yea, from needful coveting, for those things that were showed, and sent to them; but these men made poor in short time, tasted new meat.

<sup>4</sup> For soothly it behooved perishing to come on them without excusing, using [or haunting] tyranny; but to show only to these Hebrews, how their enemies were destroyed.

<sup>5</sup> Forsooth when the fierce ire of beasts came on them, they were destroyed by the bitings of wayward serpents. But, Lord, thine ire [or wrath] dwelled not without end;

<sup>6</sup> but they were troubled in short time to amending [or correction], and had a sign of health, to remembering of the commandment of thy law.

<sup>7</sup> For he that was converted, was healed not by that that he saw, but by thee, Saviour of all men [or saviour of all].

<sup>8</sup> Forsooth in this thou showedest to our enemies, that thou it art [or thou art], that deliverest from all evil.

<sup>9</sup> Forsooth the bitings of locusts and of flies killed them, and health of their life was not found; for they were worthy to be destroyed of such things.

<sup>10</sup> But neither the teeth of dragons, neither of venomous beasts overcame thy children; for why thy mercy came, and healed them.

<sup>11</sup> For they were tormented in mind of thy words, that is, that they should be mindful of thy behests, and they were healed swiftly [or swiftly they were saved]; lest they falling into deep forgetting of God, [they] might not use thine help.

<sup>12</sup> For neither herb, neither plaster healed them; but, Lord, thy word, [or but thy word, Lord], that healeth all things.

<sup>13</sup> Lord, thou art, that hast power of life and of death; and ledest forth to the gates of death, and ledest again.

<sup>14</sup> But soothly a man slayeth his soul by malice; and when the spirit is gone out, it shall not turn again, neither the body shall again-call the soul, which is received;

<sup>15</sup> but it is impossible to escape thine hand.

<sup>16</sup> For why wicked [or unpious] men, denying to know thee, were tormented by the strength of thine arm; they suffered persecution by new waters, and hails, and rains, and were wasted by fire.

<sup>17</sup> For why that was wonderful, the fire had more might in the water, that quencheth all things; for why the world was avenger of just [or rightwise] men.

<sup>18</sup> For why sometime the fire was mild [or tamed], lest the beasts should be burnt, that were sent to wicked [or unpious] men; but that they seeing should know, that they suffer persecution by the doom of God.

<sup>19</sup> And sometime the fire burnt on high on each side in the water, above the virtue of fire, to destroy the wicked nation of the land.

<sup>20</sup> For which things thou nourishedest thy people with meat of angels, and thou gavest from heaven bread made ready to them, without travail; having all delighting in itself, and the sweet-ness of all savour.

<sup>21</sup> For thou showedest thy chattel [or thy substance], and thy sweetness, which thou hast, to sons; and the bread serving to the will of each man, was turned to that, that each man would.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth snow and ice suffered the might [or the strength] of fire, and melted not; that they should know, that fire burning, in hail and rain lightning, destroyed the fruits of enemies.

<sup>23</sup> Soothly again this was wonderful, also fire forgot his virtue, that just men should be nourished.

<sup>24</sup> For why the creature serving to thee the Maker, waxeth white [or burneth out] into torment against unjust [or unrightwise] men, and is made lighter [or softer] to do well, for them that trust in thee.

<sup>25</sup> For this thing and all things transfigured then, that is, changed from the property of their kind, served to thy grace, nourisher of all things, to the will of them, that be desired of thee;

<sup>26</sup> that, Lord, thy sons should know, which [or whom] thou lovedest, that not the fruits of birth, that is, not only fruits coming forth of earth, feed men, but thy word keepeth them, that believe in thee.

<sup>27</sup> For why that that might not be destroyed of fire, that is, manna, melted anon as it was made hot of a little beam of the sun;

<sup>28</sup> that it were known to all men, that it behooveth to come before the sun to thy blessing, and to worship [or honour] thee at the rising of the light.

<sup>29</sup> Forsooth the hope of an unkind man shall melt away as ice of winter, and shall perish as superfluous water.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth, Lord, thy dooms be great, and thy words may not be fully told out [or untellable]; unlearned souls erred for these [or for these the undisciplined souls erred].

<sup>2</sup> For the while wicked men hold for steadfast, that they may be lords of [or be able to lordship to the] holy nation, they were fettered with bonds of darkneses, and of long night, and were enclosed under roofs; and they fugitives were subject to everlasting [or perpetual] purveyance.

<sup>3</sup> And the while they guess them to be hid in dark sins, they were scattered by dark hiding of forgetting [or by the dark veil of forgetting they be scattered], dreading hideously, and disturbed with full great wondering.

<sup>4</sup> For the den that withheld them, kept not without dread; for why sound coming down disturbed them, and sorrowful persons appearing to them, gave dread to them.

<sup>5</sup> And soothly no might [or strength] of fire might give light to them, and the clear flames of [the] stars might not lighten that hideous night.

<sup>6</sup> Soothly sudden fire full of dread appeared to them [or there appeared to them sudden fire, full of dread]; and they were smitten with the dread of that face, that was not seen, and guessed those things to be worse, that were seen.

<sup>7</sup> And [the] scorns of witchcraft were laid to, and the glory of wisdom was chastising with despising [or correction with strife].

<sup>8</sup> For they, that promised themselves to put away dreads and disturbings [or perturbations] from a sick soul, were full with scorn, and were sick for dread.

<sup>9</sup> For why though nothing of the wonders against kind disturbed them, they were moved [or stirred] by the passing of beasts, and by the hissing of adders,

<sup>10</sup> and they trembled, and perished [or fearful, they perished]; and denied, that they saw the air, which a man might not escape [or flee] by any reason; for why worst things before-occupy often, while the conscience reproveth.

<sup>11</sup> For since wickedness is dreadful, it is given into condemnation of all men; for why a conscience disturbed presumeth ever[more] wicked things.

<sup>12</sup> For why dread is nothing, but help of presumption, and showing of thought of helps [or betraying of the helps of thought].

<sup>13</sup> And the while less abiding is from within, it guesseth greater power of that cause, of which it giveth torment.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth they, that came into a mighty night, and coming above [or overcoming] from [the] lowest things, and from [the] highest things, they sleeping the same sleep,

<sup>15</sup> were hurled sometime by dread of wonders against kind, sometime the souls failed by leading over; for why sudden dread and unhoped, came on them.

<sup>16</sup> Afterward if any of them had fell [or had fallen] down, he was kept enclosed in prison, without iron;

<sup>17</sup> for if any churl was, either shepherd, either a workman of fields, and was before-occupied, he suffered need that might not be escaped [or unescapable]. For why all men were bound together by [or with] one chain of darkneses;

<sup>18</sup> either a wind hissing, either sweet sound of birds betwixt the thick boughs of trees, either the fierceness of water running down greatly,

<sup>19</sup> either a strong sound of stones cast down, either the running unseen of beasts playing [or the unseen course of playing beasts], either the strong voice of beasts lowing, either echo sounding [or rebounding] again from [the] highest hills, made them failing for dread.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth all the world was lightened [or lighted] with clear light, and was not withholden in works hindered [or contained in works not letted].

<sup>21</sup> But a grievous night, the image of darkneses, that was to coming [or to come] on them, was set on them alone; therefore they were grievouser [or more grievous] to themselves than the darkneses.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>1</sup> But full great light there was to thine holy servants[or thy saints], and soothly enemies heard the voice of them, but they saw not the figure, either shape; and for also they suffered not by the same things, they magnified thee.

<sup>2</sup> And for they were hurt before, they did thankings to thee, for they were not hurt; and that difference should be betwixt them and Egyptians, they asked thee, God.

<sup>3</sup> For which thing they had a burning pillar of fire, the leader of unknown way; and thou gavest the sun, without hurting of good harbour.

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth they were worthy to want [or to lack] light, and to suffer the prison of darkneses, which held [or kept] thy sons enclosed; by which sons[or by whom] the uncorrupt light of law began to be given to the world.

<sup>5</sup> When they thought to slay the young children of just men [or the infants of rightwise men]; and when one son was put forth, and delivered, thou tookest away the multitude of sons, that is, of the first engendered of Egypt, for the leading-over of them, and thou lostest [or spoiledst] them altogether in strong water.

<sup>6</sup> Forsooth that night was known before of our fathers, that they witting verily to which oaths they believed, should be more patient [or steadfast].

<sup>7</sup> Forsooth health of just [or rightwise] men was received verily of thy people, and also destroying of unjust [or unrightwise] men.

<sup>8</sup> For as thou hurtedest our adversaries, so thou excitedest also us, and magnifiedest us.

<sup>9</sup> For why just [or the rightwise] children of good men made sacrifice privily, and disposed the law of rightfulness [or rightwiseness] into according; they disposed or assigned just [or rightwise] men to receive goods and evils in like manner, and sung [or singing] praisings to the Father of all men.

<sup>10</sup> But [the] unseemly voice of enemies sounded, and weepful wailing of beweepers of young children was heard.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth the servant was tormented by like pain with the lord; and a man of the people suffered things like the king.

<sup>12</sup> Therefore in like manner all men by [or with] one name of death had dead men unnumberable, for neither quick men sufficed to bury; for why the nation of them, that was clearer than others, was destroyed in one moment.

<sup>13</sup> Forsooth of all Egyptians men not believing for benefices [or benefits], promised them then to be God's people, when the destroying of the first engendered [or begotten] things was first.

<sup>14</sup> Forsooth when all things held restful silence, and the night had the middle [or the mean] way in his course,

<sup>15</sup> Lord, thy word almighty [or thine almighty word] coming [or going out] swiftly from heaven, came from the king's seats;

<sup>16</sup> a sharp sword bearing thy commandment not feigned, came forth, overcomer into the middle of the land of destroying [or of death]; and it stood, and filled all things with death, and it stood in earth, and stretched forth till to heaven.

<sup>18</sup> And another man cast forth half quick [or half alive] into another place, showed for what cause of death he died.

<sup>19</sup> For why sights that disturbed them, before-warned these things, that they should perish not unwittingly [or unknowingly], why they suffered evils.

<sup>20</sup> Forsooth [the] temptation of death, that is, punishment by death, touched then also just [or rightwise] men, and moving altogether [or a stirring] of [the] multitude was made in desert [or in wilderness]; but thine ire [or wrath] dwelled not long.

<sup>21</sup> For a man without complaint hastened to beseech [or to pray] for peoples, and he brought forth prayer the shield of his service, and he alleged prayer by incense, and against-stood ire [or withstood to the wrath]; and he setted an end to the need, and showed that he was thy servant.

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth he overcame companies, not by virtue of body, neither by armour of power; but he remembered the oaths, and the testaments of fathers, and by word he made him subject, that travailed himself.

<sup>23</sup> For when dead men fell down by heaps, each on other, he stood betwixt [or between] dead men and living, or the dead and the quick, and cut away the fierceness of burning, and parted that way, that led to quick men.

<sup>24</sup> For why all the world, by signifying either figure, was in the cloth [or the priest's cape] lasting to the heels, which he had; and the great things of fathers were engraved in four orders of stones; and, Lord, thy magnificence [or great doing] was written in the diadem of his head.

<sup>25</sup> Forsooth he that destroyed, gave stead to these things, and dreaded these things, for why the temptation alone was sufficient to ire. [To these forsooth he gave stead, that destroyed, and these things he full out dreaded; forsooth there was alone sufficient tempting of wrath.]

CHAPTER 19

<sup>1</sup> Forsooth ire [or wrath] without mercy came on wicked men [or the unpious] till into the last, that is, till to the drowning of them; for why God before-knew also the things to coming [or to come] of them.

<sup>2</sup> For when they were turned, and had suffered, that they should lead out them, and had before-sent them with great busyness, the deeds of repenting pursued them.

<sup>3</sup> For they having yet mourning betwixt the hands, and they be-weeping at the sepulchres of dead men [or weeping at the monuments of the dead], took to them another thought of unknowing; and they pursued those Hebrews, as fleers away, which they praying had sent forth.

<sup>4</sup> For why worthy need [or necessity] led them to this end, and they lost remembering of these things, that had befallen, that punishing should [ful] fill those things, that failed [or lacked] of torments,

<sup>5</sup> and that soothly thy people should pass wonderfully; forsooth that they should find a new death.

<sup>6</sup> For why each creature serving to thine behests, was reformed to his kind at [or from] the beginning, that thy children should be kept unhurt.

<sup>7</sup> For why a cloud beshadowed the castles [or the tents] of them, and dry earth appeared in water that was before, and a way without hindering appeared in the Reed Sea, and a field burgeoning from full great depth; [For a cloud shadowed the tents of them, and in the water that was before, the earth appeared dry; and in the Red Sea way without hindrance, and a burgeoning field of full great depth;]

<sup>8</sup> by which field all the nation passed, that was covered with thine hand; forsooth they saw thy marvels and wonders.

<sup>9</sup> For they as horses devoured [or gnawed] meat, that is, took the armours of Egyptians, which they saw dead on the brink of the sea, and as lambs they made full out joy, magnifying thee, Lord, that [or for thou] deliveredest them.

<sup>10</sup> For they were mindful yet of those things, that were done in the dwelling of them among Egyptians; how the land brought forth flies, for the nation of beasts, and the flood brought forth multitude of paddocks [or frogs] for fishes.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth at the last they saw a new creature of birds, when they were led by covetousness [or lust], and asked meats of feast [or of delicious eating].

<sup>12</sup> For in the speaking to, that is, at the asking of them, of their desire, a curlew ascended [or went up] to them from the sea;

<sup>13</sup> and dis-eases [or travails] came on sinners, and not without provings [or evidences] of those things, that were done before by the fierceness [or the force] of floods. For they suffered justly, by [or after] their wickednesses; for they ordained more abominable unhospitality.

<sup>14</sup> Soothly some received not unknown comelings; soothly others took good men harboured into thralldom [or good guests into servage].

<sup>15</sup> And not only they did these things, but soothly also another beholding [or respect] of them was, that they against their will received strangers.

<sup>16</sup> Forsooth they that used the same ordinances, tormented with cruelest sorrows them, that received with gladness. [Who forsooth with gladness received them, that had used the same informings, with most cruel sorrows they tormented.]

<sup>17</sup> Forsooth they were smitten with blindness, as they in the gates of the just man [or the rightwise], when they were covered with sudden darkenesses; each man sought the passing of his door.

<sup>18</sup> Forsooth while elements be turned into themselves, as the sound of manner [or of quality] is changed in organ, and all things keep their sound; wherefore it may be guessed of that certain sight.

<sup>19</sup> Beasts of the field were turned into beasts of water; whatever were swimming things, went in the land.

<sup>20</sup> Fire in water had power above [or strength over] his virtue; and water forgot the kind quenching [or his quenching kind].

<sup>21</sup> Again-ward flames of corruptible beasts dis-eased not the fleshs of Hebrews going together; neither departed that good meat, that was departed lightly as ice. [Flames again-ward travailed not the flesh of the corruptible beasts going together; nor dissolved it, that lightly was dissolved as ice, good meat.]

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth, Lord, thou magnifiedest thy people in all things, and honouredest; and despisedest not, and helpedest them in each time and in each place [or in all place standing nigh to them].

ECCLESIASTICUS

<sup>2</sup> Who numbered the gravel of the sea, and the drops of rain, and the days of the world?

<sup>3</sup> Who measured the highness [or height] of heaven, and the breadth of earth, and the depth of the sea? Who ensearched the wisdom of God, that goeth before all things?

<sup>4</sup> Wisdom was formed first of all things, and the understanding of prudence, from the world, that is, from without beginning.

<sup>5</sup> The well of wisdom is the son of God in high things [or the word of God in heights]; and the entering of that wisdom is everlasting command-ments.

<sup>6</sup> To whom was the root of wisdom showed? and who knew the subtleties thereof?

<sup>7</sup> To whom was the lore [or the discipline] of wisdom showed, and made open? and who understood the multiplying of the entering thereof, that is, of the work thereof?

<sup>8</sup> One is the highest Creator [or maker of nought] of all things, almighty, and a mighty king, and worthy to be dreaded full much, sitting on the throne of that wisdom, and God having lordship.

<sup>9</sup> He formed it in the Holy Ghost, and he saw, and numbered, and he measured. And he shedded [or poured] out it on all his works, <sup>10</sup> and on each flesh by [or after] his gift; he giveth it to them that love him.

<sup>11</sup> The dread of the Lord is glory, and glorying [or joying], and glad-ness, and a crown of full out joying.

<sup>12</sup> The dread of the Lord shall delight the heart; and shall give gladness and joy into [the] length of days.

<sup>13</sup> To him that dreadeth God, it shall be well in the last things or days; and he shall be blessed in the day of his death. Forsooth they to whom wisdom appeareth in sight, that is, by revelation of prophecy, love it in sight, and in knowing of his great things. The love of God is honourable wisdom.

<sup>14</sup> The beginning of wisdom is the dread of the Lord; and it is formed together in the womb with faithful men, and it goeth with chosen women, and it is known with just [or right-wise] men and faithful.

<sup>15</sup> The dread of the Lord is religi-osity of knowing. Religiosity shall keep, and shall justify the heart; and shall give mirth and joy. It shall be well to him that dreadeth God; and he shall be blessed in the days of his comfort [or in the days of ending of him].

<sup>16</sup> The fullness of wisdom is for to dread God; and fullness is of the fruits thereof.

<sup>17</sup> It shall fill each gift [or each house] of him of generations, and receptacles of the treasures thereof.

<sup>18</sup> The crown of wisdom is the dread of the Lord, and filleth peace, and the fruit of health. And he saw, and numbered it; forsooth ever either be the gifts of God.

<sup>19</sup> Wisdom shall part the knowing and understanding of prudence; and it enhanceth the glory of them, that hold it.

<sup>20</sup> The root of wisdom is for to dread God; forsooth the branches thereof be long enduring [or long living]. Understanding and religiosity of knowing be in the treasures of wisdom; but wisdom is abomination to sinners.

<sup>21</sup> The dread of the Lord putteth away sin, for he that is without dread of God, may not be justified;

<sup>22</sup> for why the wrathfulness of his pride [or willfulness] is the destroying of him.

<sup>23</sup> A patient man shall suffer the dis-eases of a proud man till into time; and afterward there shall be yielding of mirth.

<sup>24</sup> Good wit shall hide the words of him till into a time; and the lips of many men shall tell out the wit of him.

<sup>25</sup> In the treasures of wisdom is signifying of knowing; but the worshipping of God is abomination to a sinner.

<sup>26</sup> A! son, coveting wisdom, keep thou rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and God shall give it to thee.

<sup>27</sup> For why the dread of the Lord is wisdom, and knowing [or discipline], and that that is well pleasant [or well-pleased] to him is faith and mildness; and God shall fill the treasures of him [or it shall full-fill the treasures of him].

<sup>28</sup> Be thou not rebel, and unbelieve-ful to the dread of the Lord; and nigh thou not to him in [or with] double heart.

<sup>29</sup> Be thou not an hypocrite in the sight of men; and be thou not caused to stumble in thy lips.

<sup>30</sup> Take thou keep to those [things], lest thou fall, and bring dishonor to thy soul; and lest God show thy privates, and hurtle thee down in the midst of the synagogue, that is, of gathering together of faithful men; for thou nighedest wickedly [or malicious-ly] to the Lord, and thine heart was full of guile and of falseness [or treachery and deceit].

CHAPTER 2

<sup>1</sup> Son, nighing to the service of God, stand thou in rightfulness [or rightwiseness], and dread; and make ready [or prepare] thy soul to temp-tation.

<sup>2</sup> Bear down thine heart, and suffer, and bow down thine ear, and take the words of understanding, and haste thou not into the time of death [or time of oppressing].

<sup>3</sup> Suffer thou the sustainings of God; be thou joined to God, and abide thou, that thy life wax in the last time.

<sup>4</sup> Take thou all thing that is set to thee, and suffer thou in sorrow, and have thou patience in thy lowness [or meekness].

<sup>5</sup> For why gold and silver is proved in fire; forsooth men worthy to be received be proved in the chimney of lowness [or meekness].

<sup>6</sup> Believe thou to God, and he shall recover thee; and dress thou thy way, and hope thou into him. Keep thou his dread, and wax thou eld [or old] therein.

<sup>7</sup> Ye that dread the Lord, abide his mercy, and bow ye not away from him, lest ye fall down [or lest ye fall].

<sup>8</sup> Ye that dread the Lord, believe to him, and your meed shall not be voided [away].

<sup>9</sup> Ye that dread the Lord, hope into him, and mercy shall come to you into delighting.

<sup>10</sup> Ye that dread the Lord, love him, and your hearts shall be lightened or enlightened. Sons, behold ye the nations of men, and know ye, that no man hoped in the Lord, and was shamed; none dwelled in his behests, and was forsaken; either who inward-ly called him, and he despised him?

<sup>11</sup> For why God is piteous, and merciful, and he shall forgive sins in the day of tribulation; and he is defender to all men, that seek him in truth.

<sup>12</sup> Woe to the double in heart, and with cursed lips, and mis-doing [or evil-doing] hands; and to a sinner entering [or going] into the land by two ways.

<sup>13</sup> Woe to them that be dissolute of heart, that believe not to God; and therefore they shall not be defended of him.

<sup>14</sup> Woe to them that have lost patience, and that have forsaken rightful [or right] ways, and have turned away [or aside] into shrewd ways. And what shall they do, when the Lord shall begin to behold [or to inwardly look]?

<sup>15</sup> They that dread the Lord, shall not be unbelievelful to his word; and they that love him, shall keep his ways.

<sup>16</sup> They that dread the Lord, shall inquire [or inwardly seek] those things, that be well pleasant [or well pleased] to him; and they that love him, shall be filled with his law.

<sup>17</sup> They that dread the Lord, shall make ready [or prepare] their hearts, and shall hallow their souls in his sight. They that dread the Lord, shall keep his commandments, and they shall have patience till to the behold-ing of him;

<sup>18</sup> and shall say, If we do not penance, we shall fall into the hands of the Lord, and not into the hands of men. For by the greatness of him, so and his mercy is with him. The sons of wisdom be the church of just [or rightwise] men, and the nation of them is obedience and love.

CHAPTER 3

<sup>1</sup> Dearworthy sons, hear ye the doom of the father; and do ye so, that ye be safe.

<sup>2</sup> For why God honoured the father in sons, and he seeketh, and hath made steadfast the doom of the mother into sons.

<sup>3</sup> He that loveth God, shall pray for sins, and he shall abstain [or with-hold] himself from those [or them], and he shall be heard in the prayer of days.

<sup>4</sup> And as he that treasureth, so he that honoureth his mother.

<sup>5</sup> He that honoureth his father, shall be made merry in sons, and he shall be heard in the day of his prayer.

<sup>6</sup> He that honoureth his father, shall live by [or with] longer life; and he that obeyeth to the father, shall refresh the mother, that is, shall comfort her.

<sup>7</sup> He that dreadeth the Lord, honoureth father and mother; and he shall serve in work, and word, and in all patience to them that engendered [or begat] him, as to lords.

<sup>8</sup> Honour thy father, that the bless-ing of God come to thee; and his blessing dwelleth in the last.

<sup>9</sup> The blessing of the father maketh steadfast the houses of sons; but the cursing of the mother draweth out the foundations [by the root].

<sup>10</sup> Have thou not glory in the des-pising [or the wrong] of thy father; for it is not glory to thee, but confusion [or shame].

<sup>11</sup> For why the glory of a man is of the honour of his father; and the shame of the son is a father without honour.

<sup>12</sup> Son, receive the eld [or last age] of thy father, and make thou not him sorry [or not sorrow thou him] in his life;

<sup>13</sup> and if he faileth in wit, give thou forgiveness, and despise thou not him in thy virtue;

<sup>14</sup> for why the alms-[deeds] of the father shall not be [in] forgetting. For why good shall be restored to thee for the sin of the mother, and building [up] shall be made to thee in rightful-ness [or rightwiseness];

<sup>15</sup> and it shall remember of thee in the day of tribulation, and thy sins shall be released [or loosed], as ice in clearness, either heat, of the sun.

<sup>16</sup> He is of full evil fame, that forsaketh the father; and he that wratheth the mother, is cursed of God.

<sup>17</sup> Son, perform thy works in mild-ness, and thou shalt be loved over the glory of men.

<sup>18</sup> In as much as thou art great, make thee meek in all things, and thou shalt find grace before God;

<sup>20</sup> for why the power of God alone is great, and he is honoured of meek men.

<sup>21</sup> Seek thou not higher things than thou, and inquire [or search] thou not stronger things than thou;

<sup>22</sup> but ever[more] think thou those things, which God commanded to thee; and be thou not curious in full many works of him. For it is not needful to thee to see with thine eyes those things, that be hid.

<sup>23</sup> In superfluous things do not thou seek [or ensearch] manyfold; and be thou not curious in many works of him; for why full many things above the wit of men be showed to thee.

<sup>26</sup> An hard heart shall have evil in the last time; and he that loveth peril shall perish therein. An heart that entereth by two ways [or The heart going into two ways], that is, that hath the knowing of good in under-standing, and malice in will, shall not have prosperities, either rest; and a man of shrewd heart, shall be caused to stumble in those [or them].

<sup>27</sup> A wicked heart shall be grieved in sorrows; and a sinner shall heap or add to [or lay to], to do sin.

<sup>28</sup> Health shall not be to the synagogue of proud men; for why the thick wood of sin shall be drawn out [or taken up] by the root in them, and it shall not be understood, of sinners who will not think on God's dooms.

<sup>29</sup> The heart of a wise man is understood in wisdom, and a good ear shall hear wisdom with all covet-ousness. A wise heart and able to understand shall abstain itself from sins, and shall have prosperities in the works of rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>31</sup> And God, the beholder of him that yieldeth grace, that is, doeth alms, hath mind afterward; and he shall find steadfastness in the time of his fall.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>1</sup> Son, defraud thou not the alms-[deeds] of a poor man, and turn not over thine eyes from a poor man [or the poor].

<sup>2</sup> Despise thou not an hungry man, and wrath thou not a poor man in his neediness. [The hungering soul not despise thou, and stir thou not out to wrath the poor in his mis-ease.]

<sup>3</sup> Torment thou not the heart of a needy man, and tarry thou not the gift to a man that is set in anguish. [The heart of the helpless not torment thou, and draw thou not along a gift to the man put in straits.]

<sup>4</sup> Cast thou not away the praying of a man set in tribulation, and turn not away thy face from a needy man. [The praying of the troubled not cast thou away, and turn thou not away thy face from the needy.]

<sup>5</sup> Turn not away thine eyes from a poor man for ire [or From the helpless not turn thou away thine eyes for wrath], and give not occasion, [or cause], to men asking to curse thee behind.

<sup>6</sup> For the prayer of him that curseth thee in the bitterness of soul, shall be heard; forsooth he that made him, shall hear him.

<sup>7</sup> Make thee easy to speak to the congregation of poor men, and make meek thy soul to a priest, that is, do thou due reverence to an eld man, and make meek thine head to a great man.

<sup>8</sup> Bow down without sorrow thine ear to a poor man [or the poor], and yield thy debt, and answer thou peaceably in mildness.

<sup>9</sup> Deliver thou him that suffereth wrong from the hand of a proud man, and bear thou not heavily in thy soul.

<sup>10</sup> In deeming be thou merciful as a father to fatherless children, and be thou for an husband to the mother of them; and thou shalt be as an obedient son of the Highest, and he shall have mercy on thee more than a mother hath mercy on her child.

<sup>11</sup> Wisdom inspireth life to his sons, and receiveth men seeking him, and shall go before in the way of rightfulness; [Wisdom to his sons inbreathed life, and receiveth the men out seeking him, and he shall go before in the way of rightwiseness;]

<sup>12</sup> and he that loveth that wisdom, loveth life, and they that wake to it, shall embrace the peaceableness [or the gladness], either sweetness, thereof.

<sup>13</sup> They that hold it, shall inherit life; and whither it shall enter, God shall bless.

<sup>14</sup> They that serve it, shall be obeying to the Holy; and God loveth them, that love it

<sup>15</sup> He that heareth it, deemeth folks; and he that beholdeth it, shall dwell trustily.

<sup>16</sup> If a man believeth [or give faith] to it, he shall dwell, and inherit it; and the creatures of them shall be in confirming, that is, the works of them shall be confirmed in good.

<sup>17</sup> For in temptation it goeth with him, and among the first it chooseth him. It shall bring in on him dread, and fear, and proving, and it shall torment him in the tribulation of his doctrine [or teaching], till it tempt him in his thoughts, and believe to his soul.

<sup>18</sup> And it shall make him steadfast, and shall bring right way to him, and it shall make him glad; and shall make naked his privates to him, and shall treasure on him knowing, and understanding of rightfulness [or rightwiseness].

<sup>19</sup> Forsooth if he erreth, God[or it] shall forsake him, and shall betake him into the hands of his enemy.

<sup>20</sup> Son, keep thou time, and eschew thou [or shun away] from evil. Be thou not ashamed for thy life to say truth;

<sup>21</sup> for why there is shame that bringeth sin, and there is shame that bringeth glory and grace.

<sup>23</sup> Shame thou not thy neighbour in his fall [or falling], neither withhold thou a word in the time of health.

<sup>24</sup> Hide not thy wisdom in the fair-ness thereof; for why wisdom is known in [the] tongue, and wit, and knowing, and teaching in the word of a wise man; and steadfastness is in the works of rightfulness [or rightwise-ness].

<sup>25</sup> Against-say thou not the word of truth in any manner; and be thou ashamed of the leasing of thy mis-learning.

<sup>26</sup> Be thou not ashamed to acknowledge thy sins; and make thee not subject to each man for sin.

<sup>27</sup> Do not thou stand against [or withstand] the face of the mighty, neither endeavour thou against the stroke of the flood.

<sup>28</sup> For rightfulness [or rightwiseness] fight thou for the health of thy soul, and till to the death strive thou for rightfulness [or rightwiseness]; and God shall overcome thine enemies for thee.

<sup>29</sup> Do not thou be swift in thy tongue, and unprofitable and slack [or slothful] in thy works.

<sup>30</sup> Do not thou be as a lion in thine house, turning upside-down thy menials, and oppressing them that be subject/s to thee.

<sup>31</sup> Thine hand be not ready [or put forth] to take, and closed altogether to give.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>1</sup> Do not thou take heed to wicked possessions, and say thou not, Sufficient life is to me [for There is to me sufficient life], that is, long is to coming to me, therefore I must get many things; for it shall nothing profit in the time of vengeance, and of failing [for of oppressing], either death.

<sup>2</sup> Pursue thou not the covetousness of thine heart in thy strength, [Not follow thou in thy strength the coveting of thine heart,]

<sup>3</sup> and say thou not, As I might, either, who shall make me subject for my deeds? For why God avenging shall avenge.

<sup>4</sup> Say thou not, I have sinned, and what sorrowful thing befell to me? For the Highest is a patient yielder.

<sup>5</sup> Of the forgiveness of sins, do not thou be without dread, neither heap [for lay] thou sin upon sin.

<sup>6</sup> And say thou not, The merciful doing of God is great [for The mercy of God is great]; he shall have mercy on the multitude of my sins. For why mercy and ire [for wrath] nigheth soon from him, and his ire [for wrath] beholdeth on sinners.

<sup>7</sup> Tarry thou not to be converted to the Lord, and delay thou not from day into day. For why his ire shall come suddenly, and he shall lose thee in the time of vengeance. [Not tarry thou to be converted to the Lord, and not put thou it off from day into day. Suddenly forsooth shall come the wrath of him, and in time of vengeance he shall destroy thee.]

<sup>8</sup> Do not thou be anguished in unjust riches; for those [for they] shall not profit in the day of failing, either of death, and of vengeance.

<sup>9</sup> Winnow thee not into each wind, and go thou not into each way; for so a sinner is proved in double tongue.

<sup>10</sup> Be thou steadfast in the way of the Lord, and in truth and knowing of thy wit; and the word of peace and of rightfulness [for rightwiseness] pursue thee perfectly.

<sup>11</sup> Be thou mild to hear the word of God, that thou understand, and with wisdom bring thou forth a true answer.

<sup>12</sup> If thou hast understanding, answer thy neighbor; else thine hand be on thy mouth, lest thou be taken in a word unwisely taught, and be ashamed.

<sup>13</sup> Honour and glory is in the word of a wise man; but the tongue of an unprudent man is his destroying.

<sup>14</sup> Be thou not called a privy evil speaker, [for a twisel tongue, or a privy backbiter], in thy life, and be thou not taken in thy tongue, and be ashamed. Shame and penance is on a thief, and worst shame [for worst reproof], either cursing, is on a man of double tongue. Forsooth hatred and enmity and despising is to a privy backbiter.

<sup>15</sup> Justify thou a little man and a great man in like manner. [Justify thou in like manner the little and the great.]

CHAPTER 6

<sup>1</sup> Do not thou for a friend be made an enemy to thy neighbour; for why an evil man shall inherit upbraiding and despising [for reproof and strife], and each sinner envious and double-tongued [for twisel-tongued].

<sup>2</sup> Enhance thee not in the thought [for thinking] of thy soul, as a bull doeth; lest thy virtue [for thy strength] be hurtled down by folly,

<sup>3</sup> and it eat thy leaves, and lose thy fruits, and thou be left as a dry tree in desert [for in wilderness].

<sup>4</sup> Forsooth a wicked soul shall lose [for destroy] him that hath it, and it giveth him into the joy of the enemy, and it shall lead forth into the part of wicked men.

<sup>5</sup> A sweet word multiplieth friends, and assuageth enemies; and a tongue well gracious shall be plenteous in a good man [or a gracious tongue in a good man shall abound].

<sup>7</sup> If thou hast a friend, have him in temptation, that is, prove thou him in thine adversity, and betake not lightly [or not lightly open, or trust], thyself to him.

<sup>8</sup> For there is a friend by his time, and he shall not dwell in the day of tribulation.

<sup>9</sup> And there is a friend which is turned to enmity; and there is a friend, that shall show openly hatred, and chiding, and despisings, [or there is a friend, that hate, and strife, and reproofs shall discover].

<sup>10</sup> Forsooth there is a friend, fellow of table, and dwelleth not in the day of need.

<sup>11</sup> If a friend dwelleth steadfast, he shall be as a man even with thee, and he shall do trustily in thy menial [or homely] things.

<sup>12</sup> If he meeketh himself before thee, and hideth him from thy face, thou shalt have good friendship of one accord [or of one will].

<sup>14</sup> A faithful friend is a strong defending [or a strong protection]; forsooth he that findeth him, findeth treasure.

<sup>15</sup> No comparison is to a faithful friend; weighing of gold and of silver is not worthy against the goodness of his faithfulness.

<sup>16</sup> A faithful friend is medicine of life, and of undeadliness; and they that dread the Lord, shall find him.

<sup>17</sup> He that dreadeth the Lord, shall have evenly good friendship [or evenly shall have good friendship]; for why his friend shall be at the likeness of him.

<sup>18</sup> Son, from thy youth take thou doctrine, and till to [thine] hoar hairs thou shalt find wisdom.

<sup>19</sup> As he that eareth, and that soweth, nigh thou to it, and abide thou the good fruits thereof. For thou shalt travail a little in the work thereof, and thou shalt eat soon of the generations thereof [or and soon thou shalt eat of the gettings of it].

<sup>20</sup> Wisdom is over-sharp or full-sharp to untaught men, and an heart-less man shall not dwell therein.

<sup>21</sup> As the virtue of a stone, proving shall be in them; and they shall not tarry to cast away it [or to throw it afar].

<sup>22</sup> Forsooth the wisdom of teaching is by the name thereof, and it is not open to many men; but it dwelleth with them, of whom it is known, till to the sight of God.

<sup>23</sup> Son, hear thou [or Hear, son], and take the counsel of understanding, and cast thou not away my counsel.

<sup>24</sup> Set in thy foot into the stocks thereof, and thy neck into the bies [or collars] thereof.

<sup>25</sup> Make subject [or Underlay] thy shoulder, and bear it, and be thou not annoyed in the bonds thereof.

<sup>26</sup> In all thy will go to it, and in all thy virtue keep the ways thereof.

<sup>27</sup> Inquire thou about it [or Ensearch it], and it shall be made open to thee; and thou made holding wisdom forsake not it.

<sup>28</sup> For in the last things thou shalt find rest therein, and it shall turn [or it shall be turned] to thee into delight-ing.

<sup>29</sup> And the stocks thereof shall be to thee in defence of strength, and the foundations of virtue, and the bies, [or collars] thereof, into a stole of glory.

<sup>30</sup> For why the fairness of life is in wisdom, and the bonds thereof be healful or healthful [or wholesome] binding.

<sup>31</sup> Thou shalt wear it as a stole of glory, and thou shalt set [or put] on thee a crown of thanking.

<sup>32</sup> Son, if thou takest heed to me, thou shalt learn wisdom; and if thou givest thy will, thou shalt be wise.

<sup>33</sup> If thou bowest down thine ear, thou shalt take teaching; and if thou lovest for to hear, thou shalt be wise.

<sup>34</sup> Stand thou in the multitude of prudent priests, and be thou joined of heart to the wisdom of them;

<sup>35</sup> that thou mayest hear each telling [or all the telling] of God, and the proverbs of praising flee or fly not away [or escape not] from thee.

<sup>36</sup> And if thou seest a wise man, wake thou to or watch him, and thy foot [often] tread on the grees of his doors.

<sup>37</sup> Have thou thought in the commandments of God, and be thou most busy in his behests; and he shall give to thee [an] heart, and covetous-ness [or coveting] of wisdom shall be given to thee.

CHAPTER 7

<sup>1</sup> Do not thou do evils, and those [or they] shall not take [or catch] thee.

<sup>2</sup> Depart thou from wickedness, and evils shall fail from thee. [Go away from the wicked, and there shall fail evils from thee.]

<sup>3</sup> Sow thou not evils in the furrows of unrightfulness [or unrightwiseness], and thou shalt not reap those [or them] in sevenfold.

<sup>4</sup> Do not thou seek of a man leading [or the dignity of a leader], neither of a king the chair of honour.

<sup>5</sup> Justify thou not thee before God, for he is the knower of the heart; and do not thou desire to be seen wise with the king.

<sup>6</sup> Do not thou seek to be made a judge [or a doomsman], no but thou mayest break wickednesses by thy virtue; lest thou dread the face of a mighty man, and set cause of stumbling in thy swiftness [or thine hither and thither deliberateness].

<sup>7</sup> Do not thou sin in the multitude of a city, neither send thee into the people;

<sup>8</sup> neither bind thou [to] double sins, for thou shalt not be guiltless in one.

<sup>9</sup> Do not thou be a coward in thy soul, to pray; and despise thou not to do alms-[deeds].

<sup>10</sup> Say thou not, God shall behold in the multitude of my gifts; and when I shall offer to God alder-highest [or to the highest God], he shall take my gifts.

<sup>11</sup> Scorn thou not a man in the bitterness of soul; for why God is the beholder, that maketh meek, and enhanceth.

<sup>13</sup> Do not thou desire to lie any leasing; for why the continuance thereof [or the busyness forsooth of them] is not good.

<sup>14</sup> Do not thou be a jangler [or full of words] in the multitude of priests; and rehearse thou not a word in thy prayer.

<sup>15</sup> Hate thou not travailous works, and earth-tilthing [or churlish doing] made of the Highest.

<sup>16</sup> Areckon thou not thee in the multitude of unlearned men [or men without discipline]. Have thou mind on ire [or wrath], for it shall not tarry.

<sup>17</sup> Make thou meek greatly thy spirit [or Meek greatly thy spirit], for why the vengeance of the flesh of an unpious man is fire, and worms.

<sup>19</sup> Do not thou depart [or go away] from a wise woman, and good, whom thou hast gotten in the dread of the Lord; for why the grace of her shamefastness is above gold.

<sup>21</sup> A witting servant be dearworthy to thee as thy own soul; defraud thou not him of freedom, neither forsake thou him when needy [or helpless].

<sup>22</sup> Beasts be to thee? take thou heed to those [or them]; and if those be profitable, dwell those still at thee, [or if they be profitable, abide they still with thee].

<sup>23</sup> Sons be to thee? teach thou them, and bow thou them under chastising from their childhood.

<sup>24</sup> Daughters be to thee? keep thou the body of them, and show thou not glad face to them [or show thou not thy face glad to them].

<sup>25</sup> Give thy daughter to marriage, and thou doest a great work; and give thou her to a wise man.

<sup>26</sup> If a woman is to thee after thy soul, cast her not away; and betake thou not thee in all thine heart to an hateful woman.

<sup>28</sup> Have thou mind that thou haddest not been, but by them, and yield thou to them as they did to thee.

<sup>29</sup> In all thy soul dread thou God, and hallow thou his priests.

<sup>30</sup> In all thy virtue [or strength] love thou him that made thee; and forsake thou not his ministers [or servants].

<sup>31</sup> Honour thou God of all thy soul; and honour thou priests, and cleanse thee with thine arms, that is, by offerings gotten with thy travail. Give thou to them the part of the first fruits, and of purging, as also it is commanded to thee; and of thy negligence purge thou thee with few men. Thou shalt offer to the Lord the gift of thine arms, and the sacrifice of hallowing, the beginnings, that is, the first fruits and dimes, or tithes, of holy men [or the beginnings of holy things].

<sup>32</sup> And dress thine hand to a poor man [or to the poor], that thy mercy and blessing be performed.

<sup>33</sup> Grace is given in the sight of each that liveth; and forbid thou not grace to a dead man.

<sup>34</sup> Fail thou not in to do comfort to them that weep; and go thou with them that mourn.

<sup>35</sup> Be thou not slow to visit a sick man [or the sick]; for by these things thou shalt be made steadfast in love.

<sup>36</sup> In all thy works have thou mind on [or have in mind] thy last things; and thou shalt not do sin without end.

CHAPTER 8

<sup>1</sup> Chide [or Strive] thou not with a mighty man, lest thou fall into his hands.

<sup>2</sup> Strive thou not with a rich man, lest peradventure he make play again-ward to thee [or lest again-ward he set strife to thee]. For why gold and silver hath lost many men; and it stretcheth forth till to the heart[s] of kings, and turneth them.

<sup>3</sup> Chide [or Strive] thou not with a man, a jangler [or a tonguey man], and lay thou not trees into his fire.

<sup>5</sup> Despise thou not a man turning away himself from sin, neither up-braid thou him [nor put thou reproof to him]; have thou mind, that all we be in corruption.

<sup>7</sup> Do not thou make joy of thine enemy being dead, witting that all we die, and will not to come into joy of our enemies.

<sup>8</sup> Despise thou not the telling of wise priests, and be thou conversant in the proverbs of them [or in the proverbs of them altogether dwell thou]; for of them thou shalt learn wisdom, and teaching of understanding, and to serve without complaint to great men.

<sup>9</sup> The telling of elder men pass not by thee [or Pass not beside thee the telling of elders]; for they have learned of their fathers. For of them thou shalt learn understanding; and in the time of need thou shalt give [an] answer.

<sup>10</sup> Kindle thou not the coals of sinners, and reprove them; and be thou not burnt with the flame of [the] fire of their sins.

<sup>11</sup> Stand thou not against the face of a man full of despising [*or the face of the strife*ful]; lest he sit as an espyer to thy mouth.

<sup>12</sup> Do not thou lend to a man stronger than thou; that if thou hast lent, have thou it as lost.

<sup>13</sup> Promise thou not above [or over] thy power or virtue; that if thou hast promised, bethink thou as yielding, for thou art holden to do thy might.

<sup>14</sup> Deem thou not against a judge; for he deemeth after that, that is just.

<sup>15</sup> Go thou not in the way with an hardy man, lest peradventure he aggregate his evils in thee; for he goeth after his will, and thou shalt perish together with him through his folly.

<sup>16</sup> Make thou not chiding [or jangling] with a wrathful man, and go thou not into desert with an hardy man; for why blood, that is, shedding out of innocent blood, is as nought before him, and where none help is [or and where is not help], he shall hurtle thee down.

<sup>17</sup> Have thou not counsel with fools; for they may not love, but those things that please them.

<sup>18</sup> Make thou not a counsel before a stranger; for thou knowest not, what he shall bring forth.

<sup>19</sup> Make not thine heart known to each man [or To all men thine heart open thou not], but only to a very friend, and proved; lest peradventure he bring to thee false grace, that is, feigned friendship, and despise [or put reproof to] thee.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>1</sup> Love thou not jealously the woman of thy bosom [or Be thou not jealous to the woman of thy bosom]; lest she show on thee the malice of evil doctrine.

<sup>2</sup> Give thou not to a woman the power of thy soul; lest she enter in thy virtue, and thou be shamed [or confounded].

<sup>3</sup> Behold thou not a woman of many wills, that coveteth now this man, now that man; lest peradventure thou fall into the snares of her.

<sup>4</sup> Be thou not customable with a dancress, [or a leaperess, or tumbler], neither hire thou her; lest peradventure thou perish in the speedy work of her.

<sup>5</sup> Behold thou not a virgin [or a maiden]; lest peradventure thou be caused to stumble in the fairness of her.

<sup>6</sup> Give thou not thy soul to whores in anything; lest thou lose thee, and thy soul, and thine heritage.

<sup>7</sup> Do not thou behold about in the lanes [or ways] of the city; neither err thou in the large streets thereof.

<sup>8</sup> Turn away thy face from a woman well arrayed; and behold thou not about the fairness of another or another man's wife. Many men have perished for the fairness of a woman; and thereby covetousness [or lust] burneth on high as fire or concupiscence burneth out as fire. Each woman which is an whore, either customable to fornication, shall be defouled as a fen, or a turd, in the way, [or Each woman that is lecherous, as a thost, or dung, in the way shall be trodden]. Many men wondering on the fairness of an alien woman were made reprovably, for why the speech of her burneth on high as fire.

<sup>9</sup> Sit thou not in any manner with an alien woman, neither rest thou with her on a bed [nor lie thou with her upon the arm]; and jangle thou not with her in wine, lest peradventure thine heart bow into her, and thou fall into perdition by thy blood [or by thy blood thou slide into perdition].

<sup>10</sup> Forsake thou not an eld [or old] friend; for a new friend shall not be like him. New wine is like a new friend; it shall wax eld [or old], and thou shalt drink it with sweetness.

<sup>11</sup> Covet [or Love] thou not the glory and riches of a sinner; for thou knowest not, what destroying of him shall come.

<sup>12</sup> The wrong of unjust [or unright-wise] men please not thee, and know thou that a wicked man [or the unpious] shall not please till to hells [or hell].

<sup>13</sup> Be thou far from a man that hath power to slay, that is, from a cruel tyrant, and thou shalt not have suspicion of the dread of death; and if thou nighest to him, do not thou do any trespass [or anything do amiss], lest peradventure he take away thy life. Know thou the communing of death; for thou shalt enter into the midst of snares, and thou shalt go on the arms of them that sorrow.

<sup>14</sup> By thy virtue, keep thee from thy neighbour that may speak against thee to a tyrant; and treat thou with wise men and prudent men.

<sup>15</sup> Just [or Rightwise] men be guests, or meat-frères, [or meat-fellows], to thee; and thy glorying be in the dread of God.

<sup>16</sup> And the thought of God be to thee in wit, that is, apply thy wit to think on God; and all thy telling be in the behests of the Highest.

<sup>17</sup> Works shall be praised in the hand of craftsmen, and the prince of the people in the wisdom of his word; forsooth in the wit of elder men [or elders] a word shall be praised.

<sup>18</sup> A man, a jangler [or a tonguey man], is dreadful in his city; and a fool-hardy man in his word shall be hateful.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>1</sup> A wise judge shall deem his people; and the princehood of a witting man shall be steadfast [or stable].

<sup>2</sup> After the judge of the people, so and his ministers [or servants]; and what manner man is the governor of the city, such be also men dwelling therein.

<sup>3</sup> An unwise king shall lose his people; and cities shall be inhabited by the wit of prudent men.

<sup>4</sup> The power of earth is in the hand of God, and all the wickedness of heathen men [or the Gentiles] is abominable; and he shall raise up a profitable governor at a time on it.

<sup>5</sup> The power of man is in the hand of God; and he shall set [or put] his honour on the face of a wise man in the law.

<sup>6</sup> Have thou not mind on all the wrong of the neighbour; and do thou nothing in the works of wrong.

<sup>7</sup> Pride is hateful before God and men; and all the wickedness of heathen men [or Gentiles] is abominable.

<sup>8</sup> A realm is translated, either taken away, from a folk into folk for unrightfulnesses, and wrongs, and despisings, and diverse guiles [or treacheries].

<sup>9</sup> Nothing is curseder than an avarice man. What art thou proud, thou earth and ashes? Nothing is worse, than for to love money [or Nothing is more wicked, than to love money]; for why this man hath, yea, his soul set to sale, for in his life he hath cast away his innerest [or in-ward] things.

<sup>10</sup> Each power is short life; long sickness grieveth the leech. A leech cutteth away [or cutteth off] short sickness; so and a king is today, and tomorrow he shall die.

<sup>11</sup> Forsooth when a man shall die, he shall inherit serpents, and beasts, and worms.

<sup>12</sup> The beginning of pride of man was to be apostate from God; for his heart went away from him that made him.

<sup>13</sup> For why pride is the beginning of all sin [or For the beginning of all sin is pride]; he that holdeth it, shall be filled with cursings, and it shall destroy him into the end. Therefore the Lord hath shamed the covents or convents of evil men, and hath destroyed them unto the end.

<sup>14</sup> God destroyed the seats of proud dukes; and made mild men to sit for them.

<sup>15</sup> God made dry the roots of proud folks; and planted meek men of those folks.

<sup>16</sup> The Lord destroyed the lands of folks; and lost those [or destroyed them] unto the fundament.

<sup>17</sup> He made dry the roots of them, and lost them; and made the mind of them to cease from the earth. God lost the mind of proud men; and left the mind of meek men in wit.

<sup>18</sup> Pride was not made to men; neither wrathfulness to the nation of women, that is, to all men born of women.

<sup>19</sup> This seed of men that dreadeth God, shall be honoured; but this seed shall be dishonoured, that over-passeth the commandments of the Lord.

<sup>20</sup> In the midst of brethren the governor of them is in honour; and they that dread God, shall be in his eyes, that is, shall be honourable, and please him.

<sup>22</sup> The glory of rich men honoured and of poor men is the dread of God.

<sup>23</sup> Do not thou despise a just [or rightwise] poor man; and do not thou magnify a rich sinful man.

<sup>24</sup> The judge is great, and he is mighty in honour; and he is not greater than that man that dreadeth God.

<sup>25</sup> Free children serve a witting servant; and a prudent man and learned shall not grutch, when he is blamed [or chastised], and an un-knowing man shall not be honored.

<sup>26</sup> Do not thou enhance thee in thy work to be done; and do not thou be slow [or despair] in the time of anguish.

<sup>27</sup> He is better that worketh, and hath plenty [or aboundeth] in all things, than he that hath glory, and needeth bread.

<sup>28</sup> Son, keep thy soul in mildness, that holdeth due measure, and re-fraineth excess; and give thou honour to it, after his merit.

<sup>29</sup> Who shall justify him that sinneth against his soul? and who shall honour him that dishonoureth his soul?

<sup>30</sup> A poor man hath glory by his learning and dread; and there is a man that is honoured for his chattel [or substance].

<sup>31</sup> Forsooth if a man hath glory in poverty, how much more in chattel? and he that hath glory in chattel, dread poverty. [Who forsooth glorieth in poorness, how much more in substance? and who glorieth in substance, poorness shameth.]

CHAPTER 11

<sup>1</sup> The wisdom of a man made meek shall enhance his head; and shall make him to sit in the midst of great men.

<sup>4</sup> Have thou never glory in cloth-ing, and be thou not enhanced in the day of thine honour; for why the works of the Highest alone be wonderful, and his works be glorious, and hid, and unseen.

<sup>5</sup> Many tyrants have set in throne; and a man of whom was no supposing bare the diadem.

<sup>6</sup> Many mighty men be oppressed strongly; and glorious men be given into the hands of other men. [Many mighty men be oppressed greatly; and the glorious be taken into the hands of other men.]

<sup>7</sup> Before that thou ask, blame thou not any man; and when thou hast asked, blame thou justly [or chastise thou rightly].

<sup>8</sup> Before that thou hear, answer thou not a word; and in the midst of elder men add thou not to speak.

<sup>9</sup> Strive thou not, of that thing that dis-easeth [or grieveth] not thee; and stand thou not in the doom of sins [or in the middle of sinners].

<sup>10</sup> Son, thy deeds be not in many things; and if thou art rich, thou shalt not be without part of guilt [or thou shalt not be guiltless from trespass]. For if thou pursuest [or shalt follow], thou shalt not [over]-take; and thou shalt not escape, if thou runnest before.

<sup>11</sup> There is a man travailing, and hasting, and sorrowing, and unpious; and by so much the more he shall not have plenty [or shall not abound].

<sup>12</sup> There is a man fade, that is, feeble, failing more than others, needy of recovering, failing more in virtue, and plenteous in poverty; and the eye of God beheld him in good, and raised him from his lowness, [There is a man withered, needing recovering, more failing in virtue, and abounding in poorness; and the eye of God beheld him in good, and reared him from his lowness;]

<sup>13</sup> and enhanced his head; and many men wondered [or marvelled] in him, and honoured [or worship-ped] God.

<sup>14</sup> Goods and evils, that is, prosperities and adversities, life and death, poverty and riches, be of God.

<sup>15</sup> Wisdom, and learning, and knowing of the law be with the Lord; love and the ways of good men be at [or with] him.

<sup>16</sup> Error and darkneses be made together to sinners; forsooth they that make full out joy in evil, wax eld [or old] together into evils.

<sup>17</sup> The gift of God dwelleth to just [or rightwise] men; and increasings of him shall have prosperities without end.

<sup>18</sup> Some man there is made rich in doing scarcely [or scarcely doing], and this is the part of his meed,

<sup>19</sup> in that that he saith, I have found rest to me, and now I alone shall eat of my goods. And he know not that time passeth him, and death nigheth, and he shall leave all things to other men, and shall die [or and die].

<sup>20</sup> Stand thou in thy testament, and speak thou altogether in it; and wax thou eld [or old] in the work of thy behests.

<sup>21</sup> Dwell [or Abide] thou not in the works of sinners; but trust thou in God, and dwell in thy place. For it is easy in the eyes of God, suddenly to make rich a poor man.

<sup>22</sup> The blessing of God hasteth into the meed of a just [or rightwise] man; and the going forth of him maketh fruit in swift honour.

<sup>23</sup> Say thou not, What is need to me? and what goods shall be for me hereafter?

<sup>24</sup> Say thou not, I am sufficient, and what shall I be made worse hereafter?

<sup>25</sup> In the day of goods, be thou not unmindful of evils, and in the day of evils, be thou not unmindful of goods;

<sup>26</sup> for it is easy before God to yield in the day of death, to each man after his ways. [for light it is before God in the day of death, to yield to each after his ways.]

<sup>27</sup> The malice of one hour maketh forgetting of most lechery; and in the end of a man is making naked of his works.

<sup>29</sup> Bring thou not each man into thine house; for why many treasons be of a guileful [or treacherous] man.

<sup>30</sup> For why as the entrails of stinking things break out, and as a partridge is led into a trap, either net, and as a capret is led into a snare, so and the heart of proud men; and as a beholder [or the for-looker] seeing the fall of his neighbour.

<sup>31</sup> For he turneth goods [or good things] into evils, and setteth treasons, and putteth a wem on chosen men.

<sup>32</sup> Fire is increased of a sparkle, and blood is increased of a guileful [or treacherous] man; for why a sinful man setteth treason to blood.

<sup>33</sup> Take heed to thee from a guileful man, for he maketh evils; lest per-adventure he bring in on thee scorning without end.

<sup>34</sup> Receive thou an alien to thee, and he shall destroy thee in a whirlwind, and he shall make thee alienated from thine own ways.

CHAPTER 12

<sup>1</sup> If thou doest well, know thou to whom thou doest it; and much grace shall be to thy goods.

<sup>2</sup> Do thou well to a just [or right-wise] man, and thou shalt find great yielding; though not [or if not] of him, certainly of the Lord.

<sup>3</sup> It is not well to him that is customable [or busy] in evils, and to him that giveth not alms; for why the Highest both hateth sinners, and doeth mercy to them that do penance.

<sup>4</sup> Give thou to a merciful man [or Give to the merciful], and receive thou not a sinner, that is, obstinate in sins; God shall yield vengeance both to unfaithful men [or the unpious] and to sinners, keeping them in the day of vengeance. Give thou to a good man, and receive thou not a sinner.

<sup>5</sup> Do thou good [or well] to a meek man, and give thou not to an unpious man, that is, obstinate in sin; forbid thou to give loaves to him, lest in those [or with them], he become mightier than thou. For thou shalt find double evils in all goods, which-ever [or whatever] thou doest to him;

<sup>6</sup> for why the Highest both hateth sinners, and shall yield vengeance to unfaithful men [or the unpious].

<sup>8</sup> A friend shall not be known in goods, and an enemy shall not be hid in evils, that is, adversities.

<sup>9</sup> In the goods of a man, his enemies be sorry; and a friend is known in the sorrow and malice of him, that is, in adversity of him.

<sup>11</sup> Though he be made meek, and go low [or crooked], cast away thy soul, and keep thee from him.

<sup>12</sup> Set thou not him beside thee, neither sit he at thy right side, lest he turn, and stand in thy place; lest per-adventure he turn into thy place, and inquire [or inwardly seek] thy chair, and in the last time thou know my words, and be pricked in my words.

<sup>13</sup> Who shall do medicine to an enchanter smitten of a serpent, and to all men that nigh to beasts, <sup>14</sup> and to him that goeth with an evil man, and is wrapped in the sins of him?

<sup>15</sup> In one hour he shall dwell with thee; soothly if thou bowest away, he shall not bear up.

<sup>16</sup> The enemy maketh sweet in his lips, and in his heart he setteth treason to overturn thee into the ditch. The enemy weepeth in his eyes; and if he findeth time, he shall not be filled of blood [or full-filled with blood].

<sup>17</sup> If evils befall to thee, thou shalt find him the former there. The enemy shall weep before thine eyes, and he as helping shall undermine thy feet.

<sup>18</sup> He shall stir his head, and he shall beat with hands; and he shall speak privily many evils of thee, and shall change his cheer.

CHAPTER 13

<sup>1</sup> He that toucheth pitch, shall be defouled of it; and he that communeth with a proud man, shall be clothed with[or in] pride*.

<sup>2</sup> He raiseth a weight on himself [or Burden upon him he taketh], that communeth with a more rich man than himself; and be thou not fellow to a man richer than thou. What shall a caldron commune to a pot? for when those [or they] hurtle them-selves together, the pot shall be broken.

<sup>3</sup> A rich man shall do unjustly [or unrightwisely], and shall gnash, as ready yet to do worse; but a poor man hurt shall be still [or shall hold his peace].

<sup>4</sup> If thou givest, he shall take thee; and if thou hast not, he shall forsake thee.

<sup>5</sup> If thou hast, he shall live together with thee, and shall make thee void; and he shall not have sorrow on thee.

<sup>6</sup> If thou art needful [or necessary] to him, he shall deceive thee; and he shall flatter, and shall give hope, telling to thee all goods; and shall say, What is need to thee? [or What need is to thee?]

<sup>7</sup> And he shall shame thee in his meats, till he annihilate or extinguish thee twice and thrice, and at the last he shall scorn thee; afterward he shall see, and shall forsake thee, and he shall move his head to thee. Be thou made meek to God, and abide thou his hands.

<sup>8</sup> Take heed, lest thou be deceived, and be made low in folly. Do not thou be low in thy wisdom, lest thou be made low, and be deceived into folly.

<sup>9</sup> When thou art called of a mightier man, go thou away; for by this he shall more call thee.

<sup>10</sup> Be thou not greatly pressing [or too greedy], lest thou be hurtled down [or be put again]; and be thou not far from him, lest thou go into forgetting.

<sup>11</sup> Withhold thou not to speak with him evenly, that is, speak thou to him without reverence, and believe thou not to his many words; for of much speech he shall tempt thee, and he shall laugh privily, and shall ask thee of thine hid things.

<sup>12</sup> His cruel soul shall keep thy words, and he shall not spare of [or from] malice, and of [or from] bonds.

<sup>13</sup> Beware to thee, and take heed diligently to thine hearing; for thou goest with thy destroying [or thy turning upside-down]. But thou hear-ing those things, see as in sleep, and thou shalt wake.

<sup>14</sup> In all thy life love thou God [or love God], and inwardly call thou him in thine health, that is, for thine health, temporal and everlasting.

<sup>15</sup> Each beast loveth a beast like itself; so and each man oweth to love his neighbour.

---

* CHAPTER 13:1 For why men be inclined to undue desire of their own excellence, wherein pride standeth, wherefore it cleaveth lightly to a man.

<sup>16</sup> Each flesh shall be joined to flesh like itself, and each man shall be fellowshipped to a man like himself.

<sup>17</sup> As a wolf shall commune some-time with a lamb, so a sinner with a just [or rightwise] man.

<sup>18</sup> What communing [or communi-cation] is of an holy man to a dog? either what good part is of a rich man to a poor man?

<sup>19</sup> The hunting of a lion is a wild ass in desert [or wilderness]; so in the pastures of rich men be poor men.

<sup>20</sup> And as meekness is abomination to a proud man, so and a poor man is abomination of a rich man.

<sup>21</sup> A rich man moved, that is, disturbed, either hurled, is confirmed of his friends; but a meek man, when he falleth, shall be cast out, yea, of known men [or shall be put out also from known].

<sup>22</sup> Many recoverers be to a rich man deceived; he spake proudly, and they justified him. A meek man is deceived, furthermore also he is reprov'd; he spake wisely, and no place was given to him.

<sup>23</sup> The rich man spake, and all men were still [or held their peace]; and they shall bring [or shall bear] his word till to the clouds. A poor man spake, and they say, Who is this? and if he offendeth, they shall destroy him.

<sup>24</sup> Chattel is good to him, to whom is no sin in conscience; and the worst poverty is in the mouth of a wicked man. [Good is substance, to whom is not sin in conscience; and most wicked is poorness in the mouth of the unpius.]

<sup>25</sup> The heart of a man changeth his face, either in good either in evil. Of hard and with travail, thou shalt find the step of a good heart, and a good face.

<sup>26</sup> (This verse is omitted in the original text.)

CHAPTER 14

<sup>1</sup> Blessed is the man, that stood not by the words of his mouth, and was not pricked in the sorrow of trespass.

<sup>2</sup> He is blessed, that hath not sorrow of his soul, and falleth not down [or away] from his hope.

<sup>3</sup> Chattel, that is, riches, is without reason to a covetous man, and hard niggard; and whereto is gold to an envious man?

<sup>4</sup> He that gathereth of his will unjustly, gathereth to other men; and another man shall make waste [or do lechery] in his goods.

<sup>5</sup> To what other man shall he be good, which is wicked to himself? [or Who to himself is shrewd, to what other shall he be good?] and he shall not be merry in his goods.

<sup>6</sup> Nothing is worse, than he that hath envy [or that envieth] to himself; and this is the yielding of his malice.

<sup>7</sup> And if he doeth good, he doeth unwittingly, and not willfully; and at the last he sheweth his malice.

<sup>8</sup> The eye of an envious man is wicked, and turning away the face, and despising his soul.

<sup>9</sup> The eye of the covetous man is never filled [or unfillable]; he shall not be filled into the part of wicked-ness, till he perform unrightfulness [or unrightwiseness], and make dry his soul.

<sup>10</sup> An evil eye to evils, and the needy man shall not be filled of [or with] bread; and he shall be in sorrow on his table.

<sup>11</sup> Son, if thou hast, do well with thyself, and offer thou worthy offer-ings to God.

<sup>12</sup> Be thou mindful that death shall not tarry, and the testament of hells [or of hell], that is, the ordinance of God, of the death of each man, which is showed to thee; for why the testament of this world shall die by death.

<sup>13</sup> Before death do thou good [or well] to thy friend, and by thy mights [or strengths] stretch thou forth, and give to a poor man.

<sup>14</sup> Be thou not deceived [or be-guiled] of a good day, and a little part of a good day pass not thee.

<sup>15</sup> Whether thou shalt not leave to other men thy sorrows, and travails?

<sup>16</sup> In the parting of lot give thou, and take, and justify thy soul.

<sup>17</sup> Before thy death work thou right-fulness [or rightwiseness]; for at hells [or hell], it is not to find meat.

<sup>18</sup> Each man shall wax eld [or old] as hay, and as a leaf bringing fruit in a green tree. Others be engendered, and others be cast [or fall] down; so the generation of flesh and blood, another is ended, and another is born.

<sup>19</sup> Each corruptible work shall fail in the end; and he that worketh it, shall go with it. And all [or each] chosen work shall be justified; and he that worketh it, shall be honoured in it.

<sup>20</sup> Blessed is the man, that shall dwell in wisdom, and that shall bethink in rightfulness [or rightwise-ness], and shall think in wit the beholding [or the looking about] of God.

<sup>21</sup> Which [or Who] thinketh out, either findeth out, the ways of him in his heart, and shall be understanding in the hid things of him;

<sup>22</sup> going as a searcher after it, and standing in the ways of it.

<sup>23</sup> Which [or Who] beholdeth by the windows thereof, and heareth in the gates thereof;

<sup>24</sup> which [or who] resteth nigh the house thereof, and setteth a stake [or a pale] in the walls thereof.

<sup>25</sup> He shall set his little house at the hands of him, and goods shall rest in his little house, by enduring of the world;

<sup>26</sup> he shall set his sons under the covering thereof, and he shall dwell under the boughs [or branches] thereof;

<sup>27</sup> he shall be covered under the covering thereof from heat, and he shall rest in the glory thereof.

CHAPTER 15

<sup>1</sup> He that dreadeth God, shall do good works; and he that holdeth rightfulness [or rightwiseness], shall take it, that is, wisdom.

<sup>2</sup> And it as a mother honoured shall meet him, and as a woman from virginity [or maidenhood] it shall take him.

<sup>3</sup> It shall feed him with the bread of life, and of understanding; and it shall give drink to him with water of heal-ful [or wholesome] wisdom;

<sup>4</sup> it shall be made steadfast in him, and he shall not be bowed from the evenness of rightfulness. And it shall hold him, and he shall not be shamed [or confounded];

<sup>5</sup> and it shall enhance him at his neighbours. And in the midst of the church he [or it] shall open his mouth; and God shall fill him with the spirit of wisdom, and of under-standing, and shall clothe him with the stole of glory.

<sup>6</sup> God shall treasure on him mirth, and full out joying; and shall inherit him with everlasting name.

<sup>7</sup> Fond men [or fools] shall not take that wisdom, and witting men shall meet it. Fond men [or fools] shall not see it;

<sup>8</sup> for why it goeth away far from pride, and guile [or treachery]. Men leasing-mongers [or liars] shall not be mindful thereof, and soothfast men be found therein; and shall have prosperity unto the beholding of God.

<sup>9</sup> Praising is not fair in the mouth of a sinner, for he is not sent of the Lord.

<sup>10</sup> For why wisdom went forth from God; forsooth praising shall stand nigh the wisdom of God, and it shall be plenteous [or abound] in a faithful mouth, and the Lord shall give it to him.

<sup>11</sup> Say thou not, It goeth away by God; for why do thou not those things, which God hateth.

<sup>12</sup> Say thou not, He made me for to err; for why wicked [or unpious] men be not needful to him.

<sup>13</sup> The Lord hateth all cursedness of error, and it shall not be amiable [or loveful] to them, that dread him.

<sup>14</sup> At [or from] the beginning God made man, and let him go in the hand of his counsel.

<sup>15</sup> He added his commandments, and laws; if thou wilt keep the commandments, those [or they] shall keep thee, and keep pleasant faith without end.

<sup>16</sup> He hath set [or put] to thee water and fire; dress [or put forth] thine hand to that, that thou wilt.

<sup>17</sup> Before man is life and death, good and evil; that, that pleaseth him, shall be given to him.

<sup>18</sup> For why the wisdom of God is much, and he is strong in power [or might], and seeth all men without ceasing.

<sup>19</sup> The eyes of the Lord be to them, that dread him; and he knoweth all the travail [or all the work] of man.

<sup>20</sup> He commanded not to any man to do wickedly [or unpiously]; and he gave not to any man space to do sin.

CHAPTER 16

<sup>1</sup> For he coveteth not the multitude of sons unfaithful [or of unfaithful sons] and unprofitable.

<sup>2</sup> Be thou not glad in wicked [or unpious] sons, if they be multiplied; neither delight thou on them, if the dread of God is not in them.

<sup>3</sup> Believe thou not [or Not give thou faith] to the life of them, and behold thou not into the travails of them. For why better is one dreading God, than a thousand wicked [or unpious] sons. And it is more profitable to die without sons, than to leave wicked [or unpious] sons.

<sup>4</sup> A country [or city] shall be inhabited of one witting man; and it shall be made desert [or forsaken] of three wicked [or unpious] men.

<sup>5</sup> Mine eye saw many other things, and mine ear heard stronger things than these.

<sup>6</sup> Fire shall burn on high in the synagogue of sinners, and ire shall burn on high in a folk unbelievful.

<sup>7</sup> Eld [or Old] giants that were destroyed, trusting on their virtue, prayed not for their sins;

<sup>8</sup> and God[or he] spared not the pilgrimage of them, that is, their life, which is a pilgrimage on earth, but he killed them, and cursed them, for the pride of their word.

<sup>9</sup> He had not mercy on them, and he lost [or destroying] all the folk enhancing themselves in their sins.

<sup>10</sup> And as he killed six hundred thousand of footmen, that were gathered together in the hardness of their hearts, that is, rebely against God;

<sup>11</sup> and if one had been hard-nolled, it is a wonder if he had been guiltless [or harmless]. For why mercy and ire [or wrath] is with him; prayer is mighty, and shedding out ire [or pouring out wrath].

<sup>12</sup> By his mercy, so is the chastising of each man; he is deemed by his works. [After his mercy, so the chastising of him; he deemeth a man after his works.]

<sup>13</sup> A sinner in raven shall not escape; and the sufferance of him that doeth mercy shall not tarry [behind].

<sup>14</sup> All mercy shall make place to each man, after the merit of his works, and after the understanding of his pilgrimage.

<sup>17</sup> Say thou not, I shall be hid from God; and from the highest, that is, heaven, who shall have mind on me? Say thou not, I shall not be known in a great number of people; for why which is my soul in so great a number of creature? [or what forsooth is my soul in so great a creature without measure?]

<sup>18</sup> Lo! heaven, and the heavens of heavens, the great ocean [or the sea, or deepness], and all earth, and those things that be in those [or them], shall be moved in his sight;

<sup>19</sup> mountains altogether; and little hills, and the foundations of earth; and when God beholdeth those [or them], those shall be shaken alto-gether with trembling [or by trem-bling they shall be smitten together].

<sup>20</sup> And in all these things the heart is unwise, and each heart is understood of him. And who understandeth his ways?

<sup>21</sup> and a tempest, which the eye of man saw not? For why full many works of him be in hid things,

<sup>22</sup> but who shall tell out the works of his rightfulness [or rightwiseness], either who shall suffer them? For why the testament is far from some men; and the asking of men is in the ending.

<sup>23</sup> He that is made little in heart, thinketh vain things; and a man unprudent and a fool thinketh fond things [or the unprudent man and erring thinketh follies].

<sup>24</sup> Son, hear thou me, and learn thou teaching [or discipline] of wit, and give thou attention to my words in thine heart;

<sup>25</sup> and I shall say teaching in equity, and I shall seek to tell out wisdom. And give thou attention to my words in thine heart; and I say in equity of spirit the virtues, which God hath set on his works at the beginning [or that God put into his works from the beginning], and in truth I tell out the knowing of him.

<sup>26</sup> In the doom of God be his works from the beginning; and in the ordinance of those, he parted the parts of those [or from the ordaining of those men he severed the parts of them], and he parted the beginnings of those [or them] in his folks.

<sup>27</sup> He adorned without end the works of them; they hungered not, neither travailed, and they ceased not of their works.

<sup>28</sup> Each shall not make strait [or anguish] the next to him, till into without end. Be thou not un-believelful to the word of him.

<sup>29</sup> After these things God beheld into the earth, and filled it with his goods.

<sup>30</sup> Forsooth the soul of each living thing told before his face; and that soul is again the turning again of those things.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>2</sup> And again he turned man into that image; and after himself he clothed him with virtue.

<sup>3</sup> He gave to him the number of days, and time; and he gave to him power of those things that be on earth.

<sup>4</sup> He setted [or put] the dread of man [up] on all flesh, and he was lord of beasts and of flying birds [or fowls].

<sup>5</sup> He formed of man an help like him; [He formed of him help like to himself;]

<sup>6</sup> he gave to them counsel, and tongue, and eyes, and ears, and heart to think out things; and he filled them with teaching of understanding.

<sup>7</sup> He made to them the knowing of spirit, he filled the heart of them with wit; and he showed to them evils and goods.

<sup>8</sup> He setted the eye of them on the hearts of them, to show to them the great things of his works, that they praise altogether the name of hal-lowing;

<sup>9</sup> and to have glory in his marvels, that they tell out the great things of his works.

<sup>11</sup> He added to them teaching [or discipline]; and he inherited them with the law of life.

<sup>12</sup> He ordained an everlasting testa-ment with them; and he showed to them his rightfulness [or rightwise-ness], and dooms.

<sup>13</sup> And the eyes of them saw the great things of his honour, and the ears of them heard the honour of voice;

<sup>14</sup> and he said to them, Take heed to you from all wicked thing. And he commanded to them, to each man of his neighbour.

<sup>15</sup> The ways of them be ever before him; those [or they] be not hid from his eyes.

<sup>17</sup> On each folk he made sovereign a governor; and Israel was made the open part of God.

<sup>19</sup> And all the works of them be as the sun in the sight of God; and his eyes behold without ceasing in the ways of them.

<sup>20</sup> Testaments were not hid from the wickedness of them; and all the wickednesses of them were in the sight of God.

<sup>22</sup> The alms of a man is as a bag [or a little sack] with him, and it shall keep the grace of a man as the apple of the eye;
