

First Thessalonians

The first two chapters of this letter are devoted to the consolation of the Thessalonians who were suffering from the persecution of the Christians in their city. Paul and Timothy, who were his co-workers, had just left them and were writing to them from Macedonia. The letter is a beautiful example of the power of the Word of God in the hearts of men.

In the first chapter, Paul and Timothy speak of the love of God which has been poured into the hearts of the Thessalonians by the Holy Spirit. They also speak of the joy which has been the result of this love. In the second chapter, they speak of the persecution which they have suffered and of the hope which they have in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The third chapter is devoted to the instruction of the Thessalonians in the faith. Paul and Timothy speak of the need for the Thessalonians to be patient and to wait for the Lord's coming. They also speak of the need for the Thessalonians to be diligent in their work and to be kind to one another.

The fourth chapter is devoted to the instruction of the Thessalonians in the faith. Paul and Timothy speak of the need for the Thessalonians to be patient and to wait for the Lord's coming.
